NO ROOM IN AMERICA FOR A BIGOT, SAYS ROOSEVELT

President Answers Correspondent in Regard to Taft's Religious Belief.

OUTRAGE TO AGITATE SUCH A QUESTION

A Man's Religion Is Purely His Private Concern and Has No Bearing on His Fitness for Any Office at the Hands of the People.

Washington, Nov. 10.—Any attempt to discriminate against a man because of his religious belief is condemned as an American and against the cause of liberty and civilization by President Roosevelt in a letter to J. C. Martin, of Dayton, Ohio. The letter has been made public because the president declares he has received a number of similar communications and takes this means of answering them. He says:

"Nov. 6, 1908.
"My Dear Sir: I have received your letter running in part as follows:

"While it is claimed almost universally that religion should not enter into politics, yet there is no denying that it does, and the mass of the voters that are not Catholics will not support a man for any office, especially for president of the United States, who is a Roman Catholic.

"Since Taft has been nominated for president by the Republican party it is being circulated and is constantly urged as a reason for not voting for Taft, that he is an infidel (Unitarian) and his wife and brother Roman Catholics.

"If his feelings are in sympathy with the Roman Catholic church, on account of his wife and brother being Catholics, that would be objectionable to sufficient number of voters to defeat him. On the other hand, if he is an infidel, that would be sure to mean defeat. I am writing this letter for the sole purpose of giving Mr. Taft an opportunity to let the world know what his religious belief is."

Outrage to Agitate Such Questions, Says Roosevelt.

"I received many such letters as yours during the campaign, expressing dissatisfaction with Mr. Taft on religious grounds; some of them on the ground that he was a Unitarian, and others on the ground that he was suspected to be in sympathy with Catholics. I did not answer any of those letters during the campaign because I regarded it as an outrage even to agitate such questions as a man's religious convictions with the purpose of influencing a political election.

"But now that the campaign is over, when there is opportunity for men to calmly consider whether such propositions as those you make in your letter would lead, I wish to invite them to consider them, and I have selected your letter to answer because you advance both the objections commonly urged against Mr. Taft, namely: That he is a Unitarian and also that he is suspected of sympathy with the Catholics.

"You ask that Mr. Taft shall let the world know what his religious belief is. This is purely his own private concern; and it is a matter between him and his Maker, a matter for his own conscience; and to require it to be made public under penalty of political discrimination is to negative the first principles of our government, which guarantees complete religious liberty and the right to each man to act in religious affairs as his own conscience dictates.

Religious Discriminations Fatal to True Liberty.

"Mr. Taft never asked my advice in the matter, but if he had asked it, I should have emphatically advised him against thus stating publicly his religious belief. The demand for a statement of a candidate's religious belief can have no meaning except that there may be discrimination for or against him because of that belief. The inevitable result of entering upon such a practice would be an abandonment of our real freedom of conscience and a reversion to the dreadful conditions of religious dissension which in so many lands have proved fatal to true liberty, to true religion and fatal to advance in civilization.

"To discriminate against a thoroughly upright citizen because he belongs to some particular church, or because, like Abraham Lincoln, he has not avowed his allegiance to any church, is an outrage against that liberty of conscience which is one of the foundations of American liberty. You are entitled to know whether a man seeking your suffrages is a man of clean and upright life, honorable in all his dealings with his fellows, and fit by qualification and purpose to do well in the great office for which he is a candidate; but you are not entitled to know matters which

'S PLUCK SAVES THREE LIVES

Library of Congress, Washington, D. C.
Commissioner of Indian Affairs

OLIVE LOUISE KERN.

Denver, Colo., Nov. 10.—The sheer grit of Olive Kern, society girl, saved her own life and two other lives in one of the fiercest storms that ever swept the Rocky mountains.

It was a bright, sunny afternoon when Miss Kern and her mother left Denver recently for North Cheyenne canyon, above Colorado Springs, to attend a bungalow house party. They were lightly clad, for the temperature was that of a spring day.

At Bruin Inn they were met by a male escort, and the three started on up the mountain, mounted on burros. Late in the afternoon the storm swooped down on them—a white, roaring blizzard, with pelting hail and driving snow. Utterly unable to see their way, the three gave rein to the burros. These managed to keep to the mountain paths, and their riders were spared a fall of a thousand feet down some beetling cliff, but they found no shelter.

At last, Miss Kern realized that to keep on meant exhaustion and death, and she halted her companions beside a big boulder. Behind this they crouched, sheltered in a measure from the fury of the storm. Their clothing had been drenched and frozen, and soon the sleep of death threatened the little party.

But Miss Kern forced the slumber from her eyes, and kept her companions from succumbing to it. She compelled them to keep moving their half-frozen limbs in order to keep their blood circulating, and when dawn came, bringing with it a rescue party, all were still alive.

It was a close call, and that they live to tell the story is due to the heroism of the girl.

SWITZERLAND FINDS HE PREFERRED DEATH RAILROADS HEAVY BURDEN RATHER THAN KILL THE KING

Deficit for the Past Twelve Months Will be More Than a Million Dollars.

Former Deputy and Prominent Political Leader of Portugal Takes Own Life.

Brussels, Nov. 10.—In Belgium the exploitation of railroads by the state is proving a rather disastrous experiment. The deficit for last year's working will exceed $2,000,000. The situation is so bad that the administration has already raised some passenger rates and is now considering a big increase all around, in both passenger and freight rates.

A Campaign Issue.

Berne, Switzerland, Nov. 10.—Unfavorable results of the state ownership of railroads in Switzerland promise to be the leading issue in the coming election campaign. The deficit this year will be between $1,000,000 and $1,100,000, and the state must also meet the interest on $240,000,000 in bonds which were issued for the railroads.

SALOONKEEPER KILLS POLICEMAN IN FIGHT

Cripple Creek, Nov. 10.—George Goode, one of the proprietors of the Turf saloon, shot and killed Albert H. Smith, a policeman, early this morning. Goode then turned the revolver on himself and sent a bullet into his head. He is in a precarious condition and may die.

Goode had an altercation with Robert Dalton, a teamster, and they retreated to the sidewalk to fight it out. Smith interfered to stop the fight and Goode killed him.

CASABLANCA INCIDENT SETTLED

Paris, Nov. 10.—The foreign office has been advised from Berlin that M. Cambon, the French ambassador, and Baron von Waschler, acting secretary of foreign affairs for Germany, this afternoon signed an agreement in settlement of the Casablanca incident.

NORTH DAKOTA IS LAUNCHED

Quincy, Mass., Nov. 10.—The battleship North Dakota, the first American war vessel of the Dreadnaught class, was launched at the yards of the Fore River Shipbuilding company at Quincy Point today.

KILLING OF CARMACK CAUSES SENSATION IN THE SOUTH

Former United States Senator From Tennessee Shot Down In Street Duel.

THE DEATH CREATES MUCH BITTERNESS

Friends of Both Carmack and Cooper Are Angered and More Trouble May Result From the Duel.

Nashville, Nov. 10.—Messages by wire and mail from various sections testify to the tremendous sensation caused throughout the state and the south by the killing of former United States Senator E. W. Carmack by young Robin Jones Cooper, in a street duel late yesterday afternoon. Carmack's brilliant career as a United States senator from Tennessee made him one of the best known national figures. Colonel Duncan S. Cooper, father of young Cooper, and who was with him when the duel occurred, has an extensive acquaintance and a legion of friends.

Carmack's race for the nomination as Democratic senator, in which he was defeated, and his more recent race for the governorship in which he was defeated by Governor Patterson, served to draw his following in the state more closely to him, and his tragic end spread distress and bitterness among them. It is feared by some that the end of the trouble is not yet, and it is sure to play a part in the coming political alignments.

In each of Carmack's recent campaigns feeling ran at fever heat and in both Cooper was with the opposition. In former years the men were dear friends, Carmack having declared in public print that Cooper was his benefactor. But the friendship had been replaced by bitter enmity which was more noticeable since Carmack became editor of the Tennesseean following the late primary. Then editorial attacks began which culminated in yesterday's affair.

Young Cooper was wounded in the duel but not seriously hurt. He has made no statement regarding the shooting. Friends on both sides claim that the other fired the first shot.

According to the statement of friends of the Coopers they were on their way to keep an appointment with Governor Patterson at the executive mansion when they passed Carmack, who was on the opposite side of the street. The elder Cooper went across the street to ask Carmack to refrain from editorial attacks upon the Coopers in his paper, the Tennesseean, while his son remained on the opposite side of the street.

According to friends of the Coopers Carmack drew his revolver and fired the first shot. Colonel Cooper did not use a revolver but his son at once ran across the street to his father's aid, and as he did so Carmack shot him. The younger Cooper then fired, three shots taking effect in Carmack's body.

Young Cooper is seriously wounded, the bullet penetrating his right shoulder. Three shots struck Carmack and he died almost instantly.

RAILROADS TO SHARE GENERAL PROSPERITY

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Prosperity is abroad in the land and the railroads propose to have a share of it. They spend large sums in improvements and extensions, employ thousands of additional men to fill their depleted forces and in general are ready to handle the enormous tonnage which is certain to come shortly.

It has been definitely agreed to advance commodity rates 10 per cent, effective January 1. This affects about 80 commodities, including, of course, the principal goods shipped. The transcontinental lines are in the movement, but they will make reductions in class rates at the same time they advance the commodity rates.

WOMAN ON TRIAL FOR MURDER PAINTS IN COURT

Santa Barbara, Calif., Nov. 10.—When Police Captain Wiley testified to the killing of Walter Sproul in court this morning, Mary M. Cavaliero, charged with the murder, faintly and was unconscious for half an hour. The shooting occurred here July 13 last. According to the woman's statement Sproul had been lying with her four years and she shot him when he threatened to leave her.

DIED FROM NERVOUS SHOCK

St. Louis, Nov. 10.—David DeCamp Thompson, editor of the Northwest Christian Advocate, died here this morning as a result of an automobile accident last night in which he suffered a broken arm, several cuts and bruises and internal injuries. Death was due primarily to the nervous shock as he was 56 years old.

BUG HOUSE SAVES MILLIONS

CALIFORNIA INSECTARY

Sacramento, Cal., Nov. 10.—California, the greatest fruit state in the union, has the only insectary in the world, and it is located at Sacramento, the heart of the great deciduous fruit center.

An insectary is just what the word implies—a bug house, a house where fruit pests are taken for examination and where parasites on pests are propagated and prepared to be fed on the pests in orchards and vineyards.

There are over 1,000,000 bugs now in the great insectary at Sacramento, under the personal direction and care of E. K. Carnes, an economic entomologist in the employ of the state horticultural commission. Carnes is also the owner of one of the finest collections of bugs in the world. He is known as one of the best bugologists in the business and is under the direction of J. W. Jeffery, horticultural commissioner of California.

The insectary is a beautiful building placed amidst the beauties of the splendid Capital park at Sacramento. The greatest fruit state is a proud leader in the insectary business—the latest step towards the elimination and destruction of the terrible fruit pests, pests which cost us millions every year.

It's a case of bug eat bug and the good bug in the ascendant.

GOVERNMENT PETITION FOR A REHEARING IS DENIED

Court of Appeals Refuses to Permit Standard Oil Case to be Retried.

WILL CARRY IT TO SUPREME COURT

Chicago, Nov. 10.—The United States circuit court of appeals for this district today denied the government's petition for rehearing in the case in which the Standard Oil company was fined $29,240,000 for rebating. The government asked a retrial of the case as a result of a reversal of the fine by the court of appeals.

As a result of the court's action today it is authoritatively stated that the government will now attempt to bring the whole matter before the supreme court on a writ of certiorari.

WESTERN BANKS WILL GET BIG DEPOSITS

Washington, D. C., Nov. 10.—After Dec. 1 the money derived by the government from timber sales, permits for stock grazing and for special uses of various resources in the national forest reserves, will be deposited with national banks instead of being forwarded to Washington to be locked in the treasury.

The banks which have been named as depositories for these funds are the Western Montana National at Missoula, Mont.; the Denver National, the First National of Albuquerque, N. M.; the First National of Ogden, Utah; the First National of San Francisco, and the First National at Portland, Ore. The estimated receipts from the national forests for the present fiscal year will approximate $2,000,000.

BOOTH STOCKHOLDERS PLAN REORGANIZATION

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Stockholders of A. Booth & Co. have undertaken to raise funds for a reorganization of the fish company, which failed recently. They have been in conference with the creditors' committee of Chicago banks and it is the idea at this time that the stockholders should raise through stock assessment something like $665,000.

NEW HIGH RECORD FOR BUILDING PERMITS

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Building construction is now making new high records, according to the Construction News. During October permits were taken out in thirty-six cities for the construction of 9,729 buildings involving a total estimated cost of $43,074,775, or $12,700,000 more than in October a year ago.

New York City shows an increase of 112 per cent, Brooklyn 22 per cent and Philadelphia 59 per cent. Other increases include: Chicago, 25 per cent; Denver, 65 per cent; Portland, Ore., 28 per cent.

LEGAL SERVICES COST LABOR FEDERATION A BIG SUM

The Executive Council Report Shows Progress of Work for More Favorable Laws.

MANY TROUBLES HAVE BEEN SETTLED

Denver, Colo., Nov. 10.—The entire morning session of the American Federation of Labor's annual convention in this city was spent in reading the report of the executive council. This report gave the details of the work which occupied the council during the past year.

Controversies in fourteen unions have been considered and adjusted. The report gives much space to the injunction and anti-trust law decisions and the campaign of the federation in its effort to secure more favorable laws from Congress. This matter was practically covered in the report read by President Gompers yesterday.

The report shows that the federation had to expend for legal services during the year $19,474.

GOT TWO CONVICTIONS.

The case of Francisco Balazan, charged with forging two checks, occupied the attention of the second district court today. Yesterday the wheels of justice ground exceedingly fast, disposing of two criminal cases, in which the territory secured two convictions. George Peel was found guilty of embezzling a wagon and set of harness from C. W. Hunter. Mariano Garcia was adjudged guilty of assault and battery upon the person of Zenos Alderette. Both men will be sentenced at the close of court.

No action was taken by Judge Abbott today toward granting Jack Donahue bail, satisfactory evidence as to his character as yet being lacking.

ITALIANS WANT OFFICIAL STATEMENT ON ABRUZZI

Rome, Nov. 10.—The Tribuna, which is government organ, in an article on the marriage of the Duke of the Abruzzi, says that the majority of Italians, while preferring that the duke should marry a royal princess, do not deny that he should follow the dictates of his own heart, but they demand that the question of his marriage to Miss Elkins be officially confirmed or denied, thus putting an end to the feud of the American newspaper comments, which deeply wound the Italian sensibilities and may result in a reaction in public opinion.

VIENNA STUDENTS FIGHT AND HUNDRED ARE HURT

Vienna, Nov. 10.—An encounter between the warring factions of the students attending the University of Vienna resulted this morning in the injury of about one hundred young men. The cause of the conflict is found in the smouldering antagonism between German and Jewish students.

INSANE WOMAN FOILED IN AN ATTEMPT TO BLACKMAIL

Denver Police Capture Woman Who Carried Dynamite to Enforce Her Demands.

PRISONER TRIES TO TAKE MORPHINE

While Being Examined by Chief of Police She Made an Effort to Swallow Morphine Tablets But Was Prevented by the Police.

Denver, Nov. 10.—The woman who attempted yesterday to blow up herself, Miss Helen Phipps, the daughter of Mrs. Genevieve Chandler Phipps, and the two policemen who were about to arrest her, with dynamite, after failing in her efforts to extort $20,000 from Mrs. Phipps by the threat of death, was identified today as Mrs. Allen Reed, the wife of a druggist in this city.

She recently returned to this city from Springfield, Mass., where she attended the funeral of her father. Her husband was at Buffalo Park, Colo., where the family had a summer cottage, while she was engaged in her efforts to blackmail Mrs. Phipps. It is believed that she is insane.

After her arrest and while being examined at the police station Mrs. Reed attempted to commit suicide. The chief of police had been examining her and saw her make a motion as though to put something in her mouth. He struck her hand, knocking its contents to the floor, and found that she had fifty tablets of morphine, enough to kill a half dozen people.

Since last Saturday Mrs. Reed had haunted the Phipps residence and had made demands for money. Yesterday she was standing behind a tree in front of the house when Mrs. Phipps started out in her automobile for a ride, and as the machine passed, Mrs. Reed opened the door and got in. She talked rationally, assuring Mrs. Phipps that she did not intend to harm her and the two rode for fifteen or twenty minutes. Finally Mrs. Reed produced two sticks of dynamite and demanded $20,000.

Mrs. Phipps consented to go to the bank and get the money but Mrs. Reed insisted that they stop on the way and get Mrs. Phipps' daughter from the school she was attending. They did so and on arriving at the bank Mrs. Phipps and her daughter got out leaving Mrs. Reed in the automobile. Mrs. Phipps told the bank officials of her danger, and a bank detective went to the automobile, engaging Mrs. Reed in conversation while two policemen went to the other side of the automobile. Seeing herself in a trap, Mrs. Reed attempted to throw the dynamite, but it fell without exploding, and she was taken into custody.

DOCTORS ORGANIZE TO FIGHT DISEASE

City Physicians Will Keep Close Watch on Pupils in the Schools.

A number of Albuquerque physicians met in N. T. Arango building last night and organized a society, the purpose of which will be to assist the faculty of the city schools, public and private, from stamping out any malignant disease which might start among the children. The first meeting was held a week ago but not until last night was any definite action taken. The meeting last night was attended by eleven physicians and surgeons, Rev. A. M. Manduluri, of the Immaculate Conception church; A. J. Maloy, of the city school board, and Prof. Sterling, superintendent of the city schools. While there was some difference of opinion among the physicians as to what method they should take in the matter, the meeting finally agreed upon the plan of appointing a doctor for each of the several schools to examine the children. A close watch will be kept and any children showing symptoms of disease will be sent home and if necessary quarantined. The following physicians were appointed inspectors: Inspector for the Central High school, Dr. McCormick; First ward school, Dr. McLean; Second ward school, Dr. R. L. Hunt; Fourth ward school, Dr. Smart and O. J. McLaughlin; Martinez school, Dr. P. G. Cornish; Old Albuquerque schools, Dr. Eligio Osuna; St. Vincent's academy and Sacred Heart school, Dr. Reidy; Duranes school, Dr. M. K. Wylder; Old Albuquerque parochial school, Dr. Haynes; Barajas and San Jose schools, Dr. De La Vergne.

Married Again

Nat C. Goodwin, the matinee idol, about whom the public has heard much of late, is married again.

This makes four times for the actor and the woman he married is herself divorced from at least one husband.

If anything more were needed to put the festive Nat out of the matinee business, it would seem that this fourth marriage with three other wives still alive, would be sufficient, but such is the peculiar perverseness of the theater-going public that instead of hissing a man of Goodwin's brazenness, it will only swell his audiences. In other words, every time Goodwin marries, it at least proves a good advertisement and press story for him.

The woman who consents to be fourth Mrs. Goodwin on the list, is likely not much above Goodwin's moral plane. The press reports say she is an actress of considerable ability, good looking and vivacious.

The fact that a man can divorce three women during a few years and marry a fourth one, with considerable possibility that the end is not yet, indicates that the public will continue to be long suffering, under the most trying circumstances. For such people as Goodwin, it would seem that the laws governing marriage should be entirely suspended, because it does not look right to make such a travesty out of the most sacred ceremony of both church and state.

But the fact that a few fellows like Goodwin set aside the laws of morality and public decency, does not prove that the world is getting worse.

It does prove, however, that some people have apparently no idea of the eternal fitness of things, which after all, is about the worst you can say of the lower animals who unlike Goodwin, have not free wills, human brains and immortal souls.

Thanksgiving Proclamation

Executive Office, Santa Fe, N. M.

President Roosevelt has designated Thursday, November 26, 1936, as Thanksgiving Day.

Therefore, I, George Curry, Governor of the Territory of New Mexico, recommend that the citizens of the territory observe the day in a manner suitable to its true significance.

New Mexicans have abundant reasons for thanking this year. There have been no public calamities in the way of strikes, epidemics, famines, or general drouths. Our territory is pre-eminently a land of opportunities. Here labor has splendid opportunities and genuine fields for investment. During the past year over twenty thousand sturdy, wide-awake men and women from the middle western states have established their homes upon our agricultural domains; magnificent irrigation systems are under construction by both public and private capital; new railroad lines are being built; we are preparing to enter the union as a sovereign state this coming winter; intellectual and moral advancement is keeping pace with our material prosperity.

For these reasons, fellow citizens, I recommend that you observe Thanksgiving Day. Let us on that day remember the needy and unfortunate. To assemble in places of worship and there join in a service of song and prayer, is excellent, but if, in addition thereto, we open our purses to the destitute, the act will prove the sincerity of our Thanksgiving, as well as worthy of a continuance of the blessings we enjoy.

Done at the executive office this 7th day of November, A. D., 1936.
Witness my hand and the great seal of the territory of New Mexico.
(Territorial Seal) GEORGE CURRY, Governor.
NATHAN JAFFA, Secretary of New Mexico.

One of the perils of the fall which science understands better than it did a few years ago, is the timid surrender to the weather which is still too common when the winds begin to bite and the storm clouds are dark and menacing, says the Cleveland Plain Dealer. It is dangerous to try too hard to escape exposure to harsh climatic conditions. The gospel of fresh air is being preached with vigor in all parts of the civilized world. It was never before so popular, never so well understood. But it isn't dominant enough yet. It is still too much shirked and dodged. There is not as much dislike of stuffy rooms and stale air as there ought to be. At this time of the year it is easy to fall into the habit of shunning what is called exposure to the weather. Indoor life seems far more comfortable than the open-air kind, when rain is falling and the wind is almost violent enough to make a deep-sea sailor admit that there is a storm. In the late autumn, therefore, the need is greatest of keeping upon intimate terms with the outdoor world and living close to nature. That is the way to carry a good stock of vitality and health into the winter and be prepared to meet all the rigors of the severest season, in the best possible condition for health and safety.

One of the latest stunts in theatrical lines, is the advertisement of a player that she will dance with five snakes twined about her. Most anybody would dance under similar circumstances, however, and some people would dance with only one snake.

The New York World finds considerable satisfaction in rubbing it in on the Democratic party by declaring that if any other man than Bryan had been nominated he would have been elected.

The New York Sun says it will yet be happy but the "old subscriber" who has read the paper for some thirty years, can't believe the good news.

The best thing about being president, according to the small boy, is that after you quit the job, you can go hunting.

DAILY SHORT STORIES

EMMA'S ENGAGEMENT.

Sylvia removed the chief d'oeuvre of a leading milliner and placed it fondly on her knees, stuck a collection of dead-looking looking pins into it and announced:

"I'm back."

"I'm intensely interested, pray go on."

"And," continued Sylvia impressively, "Emma's engaged."

"How did you manage it?"

"I didn't. It was due entirely to a mistake I made. Papa invited Emma and me to go to Vienna on that monument business with him, and Col. Locke told papa that he would take his nephew and show us a good time. I was delighted, Emma ditto. Mama said she saw enough of our nonsense at home and wished she could have a nice quiet trip with papa. Her objections were overruled."

I had heard much of his nephew from Col. Locke. Ever since Carl and I have been engaged I have wanted Emma to be engaged too. You see we have always been chums and shared everything except Carl and here was an opportunity to have Emma and his nephew meet and—well—you know what I mean.

"To skip forty years, the nephew missed the train. We were disappointed and said so. The morning after we arrived, papa and mama and Col. Locke went to the military park right after breakfast. Emma and I arose at 9:30; we were not hungry, so we went out after fudge. When she returned she remarked that there was a young man in a dandy touring car in front of the hotel, but we forgot it in the interest in the fudge, which was particularly nice fudge. Presently a young man came in from the office (a very much-out-of-the-ordinary young man) took off his hat, looked at us inquiringly; Emma in some subtle way conveyed the information that this was the young man of the touring car."

He looked so embarrassed and foolish and so I laughed, which gave him courage to announce that he was looking for some one and we told him that he looked the part. One remark led to another and we were getting nicely acquainted when I saw papa and mama and Col. Locke getting out of a carriage in front of the hotel. A thousand wild suggestions—as to ways and means of getting rid of the young man before papa came in—flew through my mind. I thought of introducing him to papa as an old friend from Chicago, but remembered that I didn't have any old friends that papa did not know. By this time Emma awoke to the seriousness of the situation. There was no escape except down the very passage that papa was coming up. The only other door led to a closet. We told the young man that papa's ideas of propriety were not to be trifled with and begged him to go into the closet. He seemed to regard this as absurd and unnecessary. I tried to explain, but our frantic efforts to drag him in must have softened his heart. We shut the door and were speechless with laughter when papa appeared in the door.

Papa had tried for 18 years to suppress my giggling but had resigned himself to the inevitable and was not surprised to find us speechless. He said that we were going home sooner than he had expected and to get our things ready right away. We said "yes" to everything, we were so anxious to have him go, for that young man would not keep still. He kept saying "my name is Sawyer, I'm—" but what he was he was not allowed to say for Emma quietly but firmly shut the door in the young man's face each time he said "my name is Sawyer." After papa went we let the young man out.

Explanations followed. He was Col. Locke's nephew. Had felt quite certain that we were the girls in his uncle's party, but before he could say so we had shut him in the closet. Col. Locke had never mentioned his name. They blame me for putting him in the closet, but it is all right, Emma's engaged to Mr. Sawyer.

What Would You Do?

In case of a burn or scald what would you do to relieve the pain? Such injuries are liable to occur in any family and everyone should be prepared for them. Chamberlain's Salve applied on a soft cloth will relieve the pain almost instantly, and unless the injury is a very severe one, will cause the parts to heal without leaving a scar. OSBORN WONT TELL MRS. MALONEY'S PLANS

Her Former Husband Plans the Ignorance of Philadelphia's Girl's Intentions.

New York, Nov. 10.—"I am positive that no one who knows anything about her affairs will at this time say anything about Miss Helen Maloney's matrimonial intentions," said Miss Maloney's former husband, Arthur Herbert Osborn, yesterday. "When the proper time comes I suppose the announcement will be made by the young woman's family. Certainly I am in no position to speak, and I have said nothing, nor will I. I wish you would deny most emphatically that I said that which a morning newspaper quoted me as saying today. I told the reporter nothing. I shall not answer any questions on the subject of Miss Maloney's affairs, either directly or indirectly."

The report which incensed the young broker stated that he said there was nothing now to prevent his remarriage to the daughter of Martin Maloney, the Philadelphia Standard Oil millionaire, whose elopement with him was called by Miss Maloney a mock marriage when last winter she ran away with Samuel Clarkson, the young Englishman.

Acquaintances of Mr. Osborn have said that he never ceased to love the girl, and when the formal announcement was published last week in London that Miss Maloney would not wed Clarkson they jumped at the conclusion that she was about to return to her first love.

On the other hand, there is a report in Philadelphia that the young heiress will wed a Chicagoan if her father gets the church in Rome to overlook the refusal of the church in America to annul her marriage to Osborn, which already has been set aside by the courts.

How to Cure a Cold.

Be as careful as you can you will occasionally take cold, and when you do, get a medicine of known reliability one that has an established reputation and that is certain to effect a quick cure. Such a medicine is Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It has gained a world wide reputation by its remarkable cures of this most common ailment, and can always be depended upon. It acts on nature's plan, relieves the lungs, aids expectoration, opens the secretions and aids nature in restoring the system to a healthy condition. During the many years in which it has been in general use we have yet to learn of a single case of cold or attack of grip having resulted in pneumonia when the remedy was used, which shows conclusively that it is a certain preventive of that dangerous disease. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy contains no opium or other narcotic and may be given as confidently to a baby as to an adult. For sale by all druggists.

Some Reasons Why

The C

Because The Citizen is a home paper. It is either delivered by carrier at the house or is carried home by the business man when his day's work is done and it STAYS THERE. A morning paper is usually carried down town by the head of the family and hurriedly read.

The Citizen is not read hurriedly, but thoroughly, so that all advertisements receive their share of attention. It presents the store news a little ahead, giving the prospective purchaser time to plan a shopping tour for the next morning.

Wise advertisers patronize The Citizen because they know their advertisements are seen and read at the homes in the evening, and if they are offering something worthy of attention, their ad has accomplished its mission.

The Citizen has never given premiums to subscribers, but is subscribed to and paid for on the news merits, showing that its subscribers have money with which to buy what they want from legitimate merchants. These are the people The Citizen invites to your store.

The Citizen employs a man whose business it is to look after your advertising wants. He will write your copy if you wish. If not, he will see that your ads are "set up" to look their best and he will attend to them from day to day.

Are you advertising in The Citizen? Your competitors are, and are profiting by it. Do you think conservative business men are spending money where they are not getting results? Get in the swim and watch your business grow.

NO DYSPEPSIA OR STOMACH MISERY

Eat Any Favorite Food Without the Slightest Distress From Indigestion or an Upset Stomach.

You haven't Catarrh of the Stomach, or Nervousness, or Gastritis, or Cancer, etc. Prove this by taking Pape's Diapiesin after your very next meal. Convince yourself within five minutes that your actual disease was sour, acid Stomach—Food fermentation—that every bite you ate turned to Stomach gas, Stomach poison and Acid, which makes you feel sick and miserable, producing such symptoms as pain in the pit of the stomach, Difficulty in breathing after a meal, Headaches, Belching, Heartburn, Nauseous breath, Water brash, Bilioousness, Sour risings, Gas on Stomach and many other bad feelings.

Indigestion is a result, not a cause, of your misery. If the Stomach is sour, your food becomes tainted, and that's why you have these stomach disorders.

Ask your pharmacist to show you a case of Pape's Diapiesin, which costs only 50 cents. Read what this effective Stomach and digestive treatment contains, and how absolutely harmless it must be; how it does for the Stomach what the washing and scrubbing do for the skin; absolutely removes every corrupting or tainting element, and will digest all the food you can eat.

Go to your druggist and get some Diapiesin now, then eat anything you want at your next meal, and you will not suffer from Indigestion or Stomach trouble. Each bite of food will taste good, and, besides, you will not need liver regulators to keep your intestines and Stomach clean and fresh.

Now and forever rid yourself of the misery of Indigestion and Stomach trouble. Make your meals a pleasure by going to the table with a healthy appetite.

"THE ROYAL CHEF" COMING NEXT WEEK

One of the Best Staged and Best Played Musical Plays Here Tuesday.

The musical comedy, "The Royal Chef" comes to the Elks' theater November 17. The "Chef" was originally staged in Chicago and holds a record of over 300 nights at the Garrick theater. It was given its New York premier at the Lyric theater and was one of the first to win actual recognition for a Chicago musical production, with the superlative press and public of the metropolis, who have usually exhibited strong antipathy towards anything theatrical not born on Broadway, until the "Chef" entered the field and proved itself pleasing and satisfactory enough to compel recognition, and a consecutive run of nearly four months to large and delighted audiences was the result. The entire press, without a single dissenting voice, declared it one of the best staged and best played musical plays seen in that city for years. The music, by Ben Jerome, is among the best that has been written in many a day, and the book by Geo. Stoddard is not only built on original lines, but unfolds a coherent story, laughable in its handling and theme and interesting from curtain to curtain. The music has had immense popularity, there being not a dull or unattractive number in the entire score. The sale of the latter by the publishers, having already exceeded the quarter of a million mark. Much of the music is orchestrated with a neatness and a taste which show Mr. Jerome has great knowledge of instrumentation and its uses. The entire press, wherever the play has been seen, unite in declaring that not in years has a light opera score been heard which contains more of musical understanding and appreciation of what is suitable and effective in such work. The chorus is not only large numerically but is a telling one and the various ensembles are uncommonly good and move naturally to fine climaxes and beautiful stage pictures. The famous "Freeters" were first seen with the "Royal Chef" and all the original members with one or two exceptions, are with the company together with nearly all the producing cast. Wm. H. Conley as the "Chef" has a role, it is said that fits him like a glove and possesses a much better voice than the average opera comedian, is magnetic, intelligent and acts and sings with spirit and dash. Miss Walcott, the prima donna, is a fine soprano, acts with animation and in appearance is a very attractive young woman.

Colds and Croup in Children. "My little girl is subject to colds," says Mrs. Wm. H. Serig, No. 41, Fifth St., Wheeling, W. Va. "Last winter she had a severe spell and a terrible cough but I cured her with Chamberlain's Cough Remedy without the aid of a doctor, and my little boy has been prevented many times from having the croup by the timely use of this syrup. As soon as he shows any signs of croup I give him Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for three or four days which prevents the attack." This remedy is for sale by all druggists.

Are You on Good Terms With Your Stomach?

Treat it right—its your best friend. Abuse it—and you'll find there's a limit. When the limit is reached, the stomach must rest. Kodol rests it.

That is what Kodol is for. The stomach cannot stop work; if it did you would stop existing. It cannot even take a vacation and "rest up"—except when it has Kodol to assist it.

Very likely you never gave a thought to how hard your stomach works. Most people don't until they have to. Sometimes, though, it costs less to do a little thinking before one has to.

Even the galley-slave of the ancients rested—at intervals. But the stomach of modern man works harder than the galley-slave, and it never rests—of itself.

Kodol, of course, will rest the stomach, but that is something nature didn't provide for. If people now-a-days lived the way nature intended, it wouldn't have been necessary to provide for it. But they don't—that's the trouble.

Better keep on good terms with your stomach, if you can. Your health depends absolutely upon the perfect performance of the stomach's functions. Ever think of that—or why it is true?

The human body is composed of certain chemical elements. These are combined to form substances such as fat, protein, carbohydrates, mineral matter and water.

The food we eat is composed of exactly these elements. The stomach must disintegrate this food and correctly apportion it to the needs of the system. Looks like a lot of work for the stomach, doesn't it? No wonder it occasionally needs Kodol to help it do this.

The person who has the kind of a stomach that can do its own work continuously, without assistance has a good deal to be thankful for. Most people haven't that kind. That is why they require Kodol.

Kodol will do all the stomach's work for it, when necessary—giving it a period of complete rest. The rest that restores health. That's how Kodol cures indigestion—which is merely a good digestion "gone wrong."

People used to think that when they had indigestion they should stop eating or limit themselves to a prescribed diet. Others commenced purging with cathartics. All that is very disagreeable and unpleasant. Also, it isn't necessary.

Starvation or purging doesn't cure anything. Kodol doesn't cure anything either—but shows nature the right road, in short order. Kodol merely establishes complete and perfect digestion. It does this by digesting every particle of the food. The stomach then rests and cures itself. That is what was intended when Kodol was made. It couldn't be any other way.

Kodol is quite indispensable to a good many persons. To all, in fact, who haven't time in their daily lives for a careful selection of foods and diet. It very quickly enables nature to rectify any disagreeable effects of wrong eating.

A HUSBAND AND WIFE TO DIE TOGETHER

They Will be Executed in New York Prison Within
the Next Two Weeks.

Auburn, New York, Nov. 10.—A man and a woman, husband and wife, father and mother James and Mary Farmer, will next month follow each other to death in the electric chair in Auburn prison.

For the first time in prison annals in America, a man and his wife will, on the same day, pay the awful price which the state exacts—their blood for the blood they have shed. A baby, a pretty baby whose eyes have been opened to the bright world a little less than two years will be orphaned by the lightning of the law. In an asylum, which the state provides, the terrible story of the crime of this baby boy's parents and society's vengeance, will be kept from him until—the truth creeps into his heart. Kindly disposed attendants at this asylum, who have learned to love this child, hope that some childless husband and wife will come to claim him, change his name and forever keep dark his unconscious shame.

Crouching in their cells in "murderer's row" only a few paces away from the instrument that is soon to cut out their lives, James and Mary Farmer sit, listless and half dumb, with a terror they know not how to utter. They are hard people. Their lives of drudgery and shiftless irresponsibility have marked their faces. They are unmistakably the prison type. Their dull eyes, their misshapen lips, the very creases in their faces speak of the sin-sick souls. To pity them one must be tolerant of human error, considerable of environment and hold sympathy for the weaknesses of their kind.

Death will remove in these two little that the world will miss but death to James and Mary Farmer holds all the terrors known to the human breast. They are patient—they may find life on the other side. The story of the lives of James and Mary Farmer is a story of poverty and black futurity. The story of their crime is hideous, a wretched offering of their degradation. In Brownsville, Jefferson county they lived in a hovel. Sarah Brennan and her husband Patrick were their next door and envied neighbors. Patrick and Sarah were rich; they had money in the bank. They did not want for things to eat or things to wear. They owned their home and so the Farmers envied them.

A year ago Mary Farmer presented herself in the office of the county clerk in Watertown. "I am Sarah Brennan," she said, and she fraudulently acknowledged a deed, transferring the Brennan home in Brownsville to James and Mary Farmer, in consideration of $2100, said to have been paid. Having thus obtained by fraud, legal possession of the Brennan home, which had been held in the name of Sarah, the Farmers plotted to defray the life of Mrs. Brennan and thus obtain actual possession of the house and little patch of land they coveted. It was a crude and ugly plot which any but stupid minds would realize must surely fail.

There is evidence that the Farmers considered failure, for before they undertook to murder Mrs. Brennan they decided the property to their infant. At least, then, they possessed the grace of child love.

On April 25 last neighbors saw Sarah Brennan cross from her home to the house occupied by the Farmers about 5 o'clock in the afternoon. She was never seen alive again.

That evening her husband came home from the Remington mill at Brownville and found his house locked and wondered why his wife had failed to leave the key behind the shutter. He decided to take down the storm door while waiting when Jim Farmer came to the fence. "Don't take that down. Don't you know I own that place now?" he asked.

Brennan was dumfounded. "Yes, the place is mine, all right. I bought it last October, and you can see the deed at the county clerk's office," he declared.

"That's funny, my wife never said anything about it," commented Brennan.

When Sarah Brennan failed to come home Patrick became suspicious, especially when Farmer announced that he was tired of receiving $2 a week rent from Mrs. Brennan and that he would move into the place at once. The next day, Brennan, worried by the continued absence of his wife, was served with a notice of dispossession and was shown a bill of sale for all of the personal property in the place. Another day elapsed and the Farmers moved in and Brennan was forced to go to the home of friends. A trunk, tied round and round with rope, among the effects brought over from the old Farmer place was carefully guarded by them. Stated that something was wrong, Brennan went to District Attorney Pitcher, who sent Sheriff Bellinger to the place. They found the trunk in the kitchen, its door causing the sheriff to demand the key. The Farmers declared it was lost and the officer broke the lock and threw open the cover.

"My God, did you do this?" shouted Brennan to Farmer, as he recognized in the mass of clotted hair, torn skirts and chopped trunk and limbs, the remains of his wife. The Farmers were placed under arrest at once. The woman was the first to confess. As they talked to Mrs. Brennan, Mrs. Farmer struck the first blow with an ax. Farmer finished the murder.

The two await death in separate cells. Mrs. Farmer being closely guarded in the women's row. Her husband occupies cell No. 8. When the fateful day draws near the woman will be brought over to a cell nearer the chair. When the woman keeps it is for her baby. Farmer frequently requests to see his wife, but this is denied. They will probably never see each other again until the final parting. The child Peter will probably never look upon the faces of his parents again.

The day of execution has not been announced but it will come before Christmas.

How Is Your Digestion? Mrs. Mary Downing of No. 228 8th Ave., San Francisco, recommends a remedy for stomach trouble. She says: "Gratitude for the wonderful effect of Electric Bitters in a case of acute indigestion, prompts this testimonial. 'I am fully convinced that for stomach and liver troubles Electric Bitters is the best remedy on the market today.' This great tonic and alterative medicine invigorates the system, purifies the blood and is especially helpful in all forms of female weakness. 50c at all druggists."

MANDOLIN GLEE CLUB WILL BE ORGANIZED

Players of String Instruments Are to Form New Musical Organization.

About twenty of Albuquerque's young musicians are now planning the organization of a Mandolin Glee club which promises to become one of the leading organizations of its kind in the city. It will be the intention of the club to furnish music for all sorts of occasions, such as receptions, afternoons at home and parties where string instruments are wanted. The demand for such an organization has been great in the past and it is thought that the Glee club will have plenty to do.

The young musicians will be under the direction of a competent leader who will also act as business manager and besides being a business proposition, inasmuch as the club will serve as a musical bureau, it is the intention of the members to make its meetings of a social order with refreshments after practice hours. Many applications for membership have already been received and judging from the enthusiasm evinced by players of mandolins, guitars, flutes, etc., who seek admission to the Glee club, success is assured.

A large room in the central part of the city has been engaged and a business meeting is being planned for some evening next week, to be announced later. All players of string instruments will be welcome to join and help make the organization a success.

NO ROOM IN AMERICA

ROOSEVELT

He purely between himself and his

No Limit to Evils That May Result
From Bigotry."If it is proper or legitimate to oppose a man for being a Unitarian, as was John Quincy Adams, for instance, as the Rev. Edward Everett Hale, a present time chaplain of the Senate and an American of whose life all good Americans are proud—then it would be equally proper to support or oppose a man because of views on justification by faith, or the method of administering the sacrament, or the gospel of salvation by works. If you once enter upon such a career there is absolutely no limit at which you can legitimately stop."So much for your objections to Mr. Taft because he is a Unitarian.
Now, for your objections to him because you think his wife and brother to be Roman Catholics. As it happens, they are not; but if they were,
or if he were a Roman Catholic hereafter, it ought not to affect in the slightest degree any man's supporting him for the position of president."You say that the mass of the voters that are not Catholics will not support a man for any office, especially for president of the United States, who is a Roman Catholic." I believe that when you say this you foully slander your fellow countrymen. I do not for one moment believe that the mass of our fellow citizens, or that any considerable number of our fellow citizens, can be influenced by such narrow bigotry as to refuse to vote for any thoroughly upright and fit man because he happens to have a particular religious creed. Such a consideration should never be treated as a reason for either supporting or opposing a candidate for political office.History Refutes Sander Against the American People."Are you aware that there are several states in this Union where the majority of the people are now Catholics? I should reprobate in the severest terms the Catholics who in those states (or in any other states)
refused to vote for the most fit man
because he happened to be a Protestant; and my condemnation would be exactly as severe for Protestants who,
under reversed circumstances, refused to vote for a Catholic."In public life I am happy to say that I have known many men who were elected and constantly re-elected to office in districts where the great majority of the constituents were of a different religious belief. I know Catholics who have for many years represented constituencies mainly Protestants, and Protestants who have for many years represented constituencies mainly Catholic; and among the congressmen whom I know particularly well was one man of Jewish faith who represented a district in which there were hardly any Jews at all. All of these men by their very existence in political life
refute the slander you have uttered against your fellow Americans."I believe that this republic will endure for many centuries. If so there will doubtless be among its presidents Protestants and Catholics, and very probably at some time Jews. I have consistently tried while president to act in regard to my fellow Americans of Catholic faith as I hope that any future president who happens to be a Catholic will act toward his fellow Americans of Protestant faith. Had I followed any othercourse I should have felt that I was unfit to represent the American people.
No Lines of Creed or Race in the Cabinet."In my cabinet at the present moment there sit side by side Catholic and Protestant, Christian and Jew, each man chosen because in my belief he is particularly fit to exercise on behalf of all people the duties of the office to which I have appointed him. In no case does the man's religious belief in any way influence his discharge of his duties, save as it makes him more eager to act justly and uprightly in his relations to all men."The same principles that have obtained in appointing the members of my cabinet, the highest officials under me, the officials to whom I entrusted the work of carrying out all the important policies of my administration, are the principles upon which all good Americans should act in choosing, whether by election or appointment, the men to fill any office from the highest to the lowest in the land. Yours truly,

WOULD HAVE PARK
FOR THE HIGHLANDS

Council Considers Proposition for a Playground for the Children.

If the city park board has its way
the people of the Highlands will be given a park and children's playground, maintained by the city, fully as large and desirable as Robinson park. R. W. D. Bryan, representing B. Spitz, of the park board, and one of the most enthusiastic civic improvement workers of the city, and Dr. Burton, of the park board, attended last night's meeting of the council and untold to it plans which will accomplish this end.

The city now owns one block of land on the Highlands, which is known as the Highland park. The park board urges the city to buy another block adjoining, and proposes to take active steps at once toward transforming them into an attractive park. Mr. Bryan said that the board had considered the matter very thoroughly and had gone so far as to secure the assistance of the government forestry department. This department had sent a Mr. Mattoon, an expert, here and he was ready to make plans for a park free of cost to the city.

The block to be secured is owned jointly by Mr. P. Stamm and several citizens, and is held by the owner's at about $3,500. The park board, through Mr. Bryan, agrees to secure the remainder of the council will raise $2,250. Mr. Bryan told the council that the board had about $1,200
which it would use in beautifying the ground. He said that this amount, he believed, would put good soil on the ground, install water and plant some trees, besides sow it to grass. The government expert told Mr. Bryan he believed that the forestry department would furnish some trees. Part of the ground will be leveled and equipped for a playground for the boys at present, and parked later, when the school board could furnish a playground. Mr. Mattoon, the government expert, will be leaving the city within a couple of weeks and on this account Mr. Bryan and Dr. Burton urged the council to take immediate action.

Alderman Neustadt, chairman of the finance committee, opposed immediate action on the proposition because of the expenditure. The council has but $20,000 balance, and the sudden expenditure of $2,000 or more would be felt perceptibly. Alderman Hanley then moved that the proposition be referred to the finance committee.

City Hall Wanted.
The hard working and reliable finance committee was also burdened with the duty of ascertaining if there was enough money in the city treasure to warrant the starting of a city building. The movement was started by Dr. Wroth, who said that he believed the city should quit paying rent. The city has a site at the corner of Tijeras avenue and North Second street, and $10,000 in the building fund. It also has the plans. Dr.
Wroth proposed that the finance committee ascertain if a portion of the new building, sufficient to house the fire department and police court,
could not be erected with the money
on hand.

Building Inspector.
J. W. Shea, a new arrival from the east, was appointed building and plumbing inspector by Mayor Lester, and the appointment was given the unanimous vote of the council.

Amendment to Health Ordinance.
The council amended the ordinance
governing the fumigation of houses
"that in the future the city physician is to charge a fee only equal to the cost of the chemicals used. Mayor Lester spoke in opposition to the amendment but it was carried by a unanimous vote of the council. Dr.
Wroth said that Albuquerque had been one of very few cities in the United States where people had been charged a fee for the services of the city physician in such instances as fumigating houses in which there had been infectious diseases. He said that the city physician was paid about $1,000 annually and thought that quite sufficient for the services rendered in that position.

Moving Poles.
The Postal Telegraph company was granted permission to move lines as follows: From Grand avenue, between First and Second street, to an alleyway in that vicinity; from South First street south of Silver avenue, to the railroad right-of-way.

AROUND THE WORLD
FOR FIFTY CENTS

Presbyterian Ladies Plan Novel Entertainment for Next Week.

The ladies of the Presbyterian church are planning a novel and interesting entertainment for Thursday evening, November 19. The feature of the evening will be an imaginary trip around the world, for the minimum charge of fifty cents. Six countries will be represented at six different homes, which will be handsomely and characteristically decorated. Music and refreshments symbolic of the represented country will be provided at each residence.

The countries represented will be as follows: America at the home of Mrs. Walter G. Hope, 815 West Copper avenue; Japan at the home of Mrs. R. W. D. Bryan, 800 Park avenue; Ireland at Mrs. W. H. Barney's, 308 Park avenue; Germany at Mrs.
W. H. Hahn's, 214 West Central avenue; Scotland at the home of Mrs.
George Arnot, 1612 West Central avenue; and Africa at Mrs. Frank Ackerman's, 1110 West Central avenue.

Excellent musical talent will assist in the entertainment. Among the singers are Mrs. Charles A. Frank, Mrs. Roy McDonald, Mrs. Hugh Collins, Miss Lillian Elwood, Miss Iona
Reynolds, and others.

NEW ATHLETIC CLUB
IN CONVENTION HALL

An Instructor Has Been Secured and
the Club Is Assured of Success.

The Athletic club that will have its quarters in the new armory, under the auspices of the armory board, will be a success. The board proposes to install a well equipped gymnasium in the hall and to entertain club members at the very moderate fee of $2 a month. This fee will entitle members to the use of the gym and the baths and instructions from Prof. W. H. Kennedy, who has been secured by the armory board to superintend the athletic division. Tuesday and Friday nights will be reserved for the guard, and a night now and then will be reserved when the hall is rented for balls and meetings.
Full details of the rules may be had from Major Ruppe at the Ruppe drug store.

Mr. Kennedy, the instructor, is already here, and will take charge of the institution immediately. His record as instructor at Notre Dame, Detroit Athletic club, Rush Medical college and other institutions of standing in the east recommend him fully capable for the position. For a fee of $3 extra Prof. Kennedy, by an arrangement with the armory board, will give boxing and wrestling lessons. He will instruct in all other sports for the club at large. A large number of young men have already signed their intentions of joining the club. A strong drawing feature of the club will be the fact that once a month the members will be treated to a good live smoker. Major Ruppe said this morning that these would not be affairs where persons could secure tickets the day before, but to enjoy the sport must be members
month in and month out.

DEDICATION PROGRAM FOR NEW ARMORY

Program of Music and Speeches Will Be Followed by Dancing
November 19.

The dedication of the new armory
will be an affair long to be remembered if the plans of the armory board are carried out. The ceremony will be held on the evening of November 19 beginning at 8 o'clock. After an elaborate program, consisting of music and speaking, dancing will be in order. The chief address of the evening will be delivered by Governor Curry, who will come here from Santa Fe for the occasion. Adjutant General A. P. Turkington, of the New Mexico national guard, will come here from Santa Fe also to take part. The affair will be under the auspices of the armory board, consisting of Col.
E. W. Dobson, Col. M. L. Stern, Major
B. Ruppe and Major J. F. Pearce. An admission fee of fifty cents will be charged for each person; the money to be expended in decorating and furnishing the hall and furnishing the entertainment of the evening. Music for the dancing will be furnished by the First Regiment band.

The program follows:
Overture by First Regiment Band.
Invocation by Captain Fletcher Cook,
chaplain of First Regiment.
Dedication Address by Commander in Chief Geo. C. National Guard, by Col. E. C. Abbott.
Presentation of national colors by Adjutant General A. P. Turkington and First Lieut. D. R. Lane, commanding Company G, N. G. N. M.
Flag Raising.
Bugle Call—"Retreat."
"National Hymn," First Regiment
Band.
Dedication Dance.

Present "Mikado" Tonight.

With "Mikado" tonight, the "Bohemian Girl" tomorrow night, and "Carmen" on Friday night, with several other popular musical comedies Wednesday and Saturday, with "Plaza" as a tapering off piece, theatergoers of Albuquerque should get themselves full of fun and music this week.

These will be the bills put on by the Boston Ideal Opera company. This company, twenty people strong, arrived this morning, bringing a carload of special scenery and costumes.
Velvet and diamond, with sparkling song and graceful dancing, pretty and shapely young ladies should make the company a good drawing card. The Burgess brothers and Mr. Walters, who will appear in leading roles
among the men, are not strangers here. They were at the Casino last season and have been coming to Albuquerque for several years, growing in popularity with each appearance.
The ticket sale for tonight's performance has been large.

THREE CHURCHES
JOIN IN BANQUET

Methodists, Congregationalists and Presbyterians Will Feast Next Thursday.

Next Thursday evening, in the parlors of the Methodist church, the congregations of the Methodist, Presbyterian and Congregational churches will unite in giving a banquet and musical entertainment. Nearly $300 will be in attendance. The banquet will consist of everything from turkey and cranberry sauce down to corn bread. During the feast toasts will be listened to from such members as Prof. C. E. Hodgins of the University of Mexico; Prof. W. D. Sterling, superintendent of public schools of this city; A. B. Stroup, C. O. Cushman and others. Following the elaborate banquet a musical program has been arranged and will be participated in by Mrs. C. A. Frank, Miss Lillian Elwood, Mrs. Roy McDonald, Miss Iona Reynolds and Attorney Cartwright, while a recitation will be delivered by Prof. J. H. Crum of the University of New Mexico. Several selections will be played by the Congregational orchestra, and the evening promises to be a most enjoyable one.
The banquet and entertainment is in charge of three committees, one from each church, the chairman of which are Dr. C. A. Eller, Hugh Collins and Prof. Richards. The banquet tickets are being furnished by the Ladies Aid society of the Methodist church, who are also giving a public turkey dinner Thursday noon at the church parlors.

EXPERT SUBMITS REPORT ON SEWERS

Makes Exhaustive Statement
Covering the Subject Thoroughly for the Council.

Dr. James H. Wroth, chairman of the sewer committee, at last night's meeting of the city council made a personal report announcing the arrival of the expert report of Samuel T. Gray, of Providence, R. I., on a sewer system for the city of Albuquerque. Nine copies of the report were laid on the council chamber table, one for each alderman, with the instructions that each member thoroughly acquaint himself with the contents of the report before the next meeting night so as to be able to either adopt or reject the report when it is introduced formally. Several expansive maps showing streets, alleys, elevations and manufacturing institutions form an important part of the report. The incomprehensible condition of these maps, because of their size, was one reason why the council took no action in the matter last night. Alderman Hanley said that he did not want to adopt the report until he knew what he was voting for.

Mr. Gray's bill of $1,372.75 was allowed by the council with very little hesitation. Mr. Leonard said that he understood that the report was to be made for $1,000. Dr. Wroth explained that the contract was $1,000 and expenses.

Mr. Gray, in his report, has divided the city into districts. He estimates that a system for the east side district will cost $19,502; west side, $19,127; a pumping plant, $14,100, and a set of hydraulic ejectors, $14,350, making a total for the sewer system, without provision for storm waters, of $180,087. To this he adds 10 per cent for contingencies and incidentals, not including interest, $18,008.70, making a grand total of $198,095.70. Mr. Gray estimates that a storm water system will cost $55,125, bringing the cost of an adequate system up to $253,220.70. His report follows:

Providence, R. I., Oct. 19, 1936.

Dr. James H. Wroth, and Messrs. P. Hanley and John Beaven, Sewerage Commission, Albuquerque, N. M.: Gentlemen: Having been requested by you to design a sewerage system for your city, I beg leave to present the following report, together with a map of the city, showing the proposed drainage area included in the sewerage system, and the location of the main trunk sewers, branches and laterals and other appurtenances, and also estimates of cost.

Present Conditions.
The city of Albuquerque now has a small system of sewers, aggregating about seven miles, the sewers varying in size from 8-inch to 21-inch in diameter, and which discharge through one outlet into the Rio Grande river on the southern side of the city. This system is faulty in construction and of insufficient capacity to permit further extension. The outlet is below the surface of the water in the river at its ordinary stage, causing a sluggish flow in the main sewer nearly its entire length.

At the time of my visit to Albuquerque this summer the sewers in the business part of the city, in the lower ground, were filled with sewage, due in part to the sluggish flow at the outlet, consequently it was impossible to make a thorough examination of the sewers at that time.

The present sewers, especially the trunk lines, are laid with very flat grades, which give low velocity of flow in the sewers. In some instances depressions occur in the main trunk lines, some of which may be due to its having settled since it was built; consequently the sewers generally have become partially filled with solid matters. After the temporary pumping plant at the outlet, now being built, is in operation, the conditions should very materially improve.

The present system was designed for domestic sewage only, storm water being excluded; but the main sewer on the west side takes in a certain amount of manufacturing waste and more or less ground water, as well as the sewage from the Indian school.

Albuquerque, naturally, can be advantageously divided into two distinct sewer districts. That portion of the city lying on the west side of the Santa Fe tracks is low and with very little grade, while that portion located on the east side of the railroad, known as the "Highlands," is in higher ground, with rapidly rising grades towards the east.

In considering a complete system of sewerage for your city, it is advisable to take advantage of these conditions and consider the two sections of the city separately, which, in this report, will be designated as the east side and the west side districts.

The area contained within the entire city limits is approximately 1,600 acres. A tract of 300 acres lying in the west side, adjoining the river, is too low to be considered in a sewer proposition at the present time.

Systems of Sewerage.
In discussing the sewerage proposition it may be well to call attention to some of the various systems of sewerage, as well as some of the methods of sewage disposal now in use.

There are three general systems of sewerage in use, which are known as the "separate" system, the "combined" system and the "double" system. First—The "separate" system of sewerage is intended to take only domestic sewage from dwellings, hotels and other places of habitation, and a certain quantity of manufacturing liquid wastes. No storm water or rain water is allowed to enter the sewers.

Second—"Combined" system. The combined system of sewerage is intended to take all domestic sewage and more or less of the storm water accumulating on the area being sewered. This system requires large sewers, in order to provide for the sudden downpour of rain, which often occurs in a short space of time. This system is much more expensive to build than the separate system, as it requires larger sewers, with catch-basins at frequent intervals, to intercept the sand and foreign materials coming from the streets.

Third—"Double" system. This system includes the building of two systems, one for sewage only, and one for storm water. While this system is thought to be the most expensive, it is not always the case, for the reason that the separate system first above mentioned can be built with small sewers, laid at a depth to take house drainage, while the storm water drains can be laid at a much less depth to take the water from the street surfaces, roof water and other surface drainage. Again, it is not always necessary to lay a storm drain in all localities where a sanitary sewer is required. Where it is necessary to pump the sewage, or to dispose of it by some method of treatment, it is generally conceded the separate system, or the double system, is the best method to adopt, as in the combined system there is always more or less storm water that has to be cared for, in addition to the sewage, making the cost of maintaining and operating the latter much more than the former.

Methods of Sewage Disposal.
Among the different methods of disposing of sewage the following may be mentioned as the principal ones:

First, crude disposal.
Second, broad irrigation.
Third, intermittent filtration.
Fourth, septic tank treatment.
Fifth, chemical precipitation.

The above methods are subject to combinations and variations. First—"Crude disposal." This method consists in the discharging of sewage into tidal water or some large stream having ample flow to properly dilute the sewage so that it will not cause a nuisance to the public or to individuals. This method is sometimes called "dilution," and is oftentimes practiced, and even sometimes when the dilution is not sufficient to give good results.

Second—"Broad irrigation" is a method whereby the sewage is taken to large tracts of land and there used for irrigating growing crops. This method requires an ample area upon which to turn the sewage; for in time of rains the growing crops do not require the water, and yet the sewage flow must be taken care of in the wet season as well as the dry. If an ample quantity of suitable land can be secured within reasonable distance of the outlet, so that the sewage can be taken there by gravity, this method of disposal is sometimes desirable; but if the sewage has to be pumped to irrigation fields the expense is generally too great to be considered.

Third—"Intermittent Filtration" is a method of disposing of the sewage through sand, either in natural or artificial beds; the effluent from the filters being allowed to flow off into the streams or water courses. This method very thoroughly purifies the sewage, and is considered most effective. These filter beds require considerable attention in order to keep them from clogging, it being necessary to rake the sewage from the surface of the beds at frequent intervals, the sludge being usually disposed of by plowing in. This method is practiced where conditions will permit and where a high degree of purity is required in the effluent.

Fourth—"Septic tank treatment." This method consists in allowing the sewage to pass slowly through large settling tanks, in such a manner as that the solids are precipitated to the bottom, a thick scum being formed on the top of the tank, where the organic matters are attacked by bacteria, broken up and largely destroyed. The effluent flows off at the lower end of the tank near the surface of the water, where it can be further purified, either by intermittent filtration through sand, or by passing it through sprinklers on beds made of coarse broken stone or gravel. This latter method if carefully practiced should remove from 90 to 95 per cent of the organic matter in sewage. If done, however, by the former method, that is, by intermittent filtration, or filtering the effluent through sand, greater purity should result, if properly managed.

Fifth—"Chemical precipitation." This method allows the sewage to flow into comparatively large tanks with certain chemicals added to the sewage just previous to its entering the tanks. These chemicals usually consisting of lime, sulphate of alumina or salt of iron, cause more or less of the solids to precipitate to the bottom of the tank, while the liquid above flows off into a second tank for further precipitation; after which it flows off to the water or some other watercourse. This method usually removes about one-half of the organic matter in the sewage. It is not practiced at the present time to the extent that it was some years ago, owing to the advancing cost of chemicals.

In order to obtain a self-cleaning

ment, the latter being more economical in operating and giving better results.

The question of disposing of the sewage at Albuquerque at the present time is not a serious one, as it can be discharged into the Rio Grande river near the present outlet, without causing a nuisance to the city or to anyone upon the river below the city.

Should it become necessary to adopt some method of treatment in the future, the work herein recommended will readily adapt itself to such new conditions without any serious change in the general system.

Recommendations.

After a careful study and consideration of the various problems encountered in your city, it is recommended that you adopt the separate system of sewage for the entire city, supplemented with storm water drains where and when necessary. Also, that for the present you adopt the method known as "crude disposal," having a general outlet in the Rio Grande river near the present outlet. Plans and estimates of cost have been made in accordance with the above recommendations.

In recommending the separate system of sewerage for your adoption, consideration has been given to the question of economy in building and operating. Another question which has considerable bearing on the subject is the mean annual rainfall of only about 7 1/2 inches.

While, if the combined system were adopted, the cost of pumping the storm water from the west side district would be very large, it would be necessary to provide extra machinery to take care of the maximum rainfall, which prevails during about three months of the year. This extra machinery, however, would have to stand idle for the balance of the year. Furthermore, the sewers would have to be designed of sufficient size to carry the maximum quantity of water and sewage when the greatest rains occurred; and for the balance of the time the sewers would not have sufficient water to keep them clean. Therefore, it is my opinion that better results can be obtained by building a separate system for the sewage, and such other system of storm water drains as may be necessary, to give you relief in those portions of the city where it is most needed.

All the sewage from that portion of the city east of Broadway and Arno street, referred to as the east side district, can be taken to the general outlet by gravity. The slope of the ground toward the river is sufficient to give good grades for an intercepting sewer.

In designing trunk sewers for the general system it is thought best to include some additional area outside the city limits on the north and east, which will, without doubt, eventually become a part of the city. The area on the north side includes the Indian school, the sewage from which the city is under obligation to care for.

Proposed System.
It is proposed to build an outfall sewer Second street, from the river to Trumbull avenue, of sufficient capacity to take the sewage from the entire city. This outfall sewer will have it invert at the lower end, at elevation 150, or high water in the river.

East Side District.

For the east side district the trunk line from the outfall sewer will follow through Trumbull avenue to the alley between John street and Broadway; through the alley and Lewis avenue to Broadway; up Broadway to Central avenue; in the latter to the alley between Broadway and Arno street; following this alley to Iron avenue and Arno street; next to Central avenue and the alley next east, and up this alley to Grand avenue. This trunk line will intercept and discharge by gravity at the outfall all the sewage coming in from the east, with the exception of a small area inside the city limits north of Grand avenue, which naturally drains towards the north and west. The grades of the sewer are such as will give velocities of at least 4 feet per second.

Branch sewers can readily be built in the avenues running east and west, and lateral sewers in the alleys running north and south.

The grade rises so rapidly on the east side in some cases that sewers may be required in some of the streets running north and south, to take the drainage from the buildings on the upper or easterly side of the street, otherwise the sewer in the alley on the upper side of the building would have to be very deep, to take the drainage at the rear of the dwellings.

The subsoil in the east side district is composed largely of sand and gravel and is free from ground water at the depth which the sewers will be laid, which is favorable to the cost of building sewers in this district.

West Side District.

In the west side district the conditions are found to be quite different from those prevailing on the east side. The ground is nearly level, having only a slight rising grade from south to north of about one in a thousand, and an average of about 14 feet above high water in the river. With these conditions it is impracticable to build a sewer system having its outlet above high water, and with grades that will give sufficient velocities to keep the sewers clean.

In order to obtain a self-cleaning

velocity in the trunk sewer, it will be necessary to drop the main outlet below water level in the river, in order to obtain a steeper grade, and then lift the sewage by some mechanical device up to or a little above the river level; so that it can be discharged free into the river at about high water.

This can be done by having one central lifting station, and bringing the trunk sewer to it at a low level, lifting the sewage but once. Or it can be built in two or more sections with automatic lifts at frequent intervals, and the sewage finally collected at the same station, but having a smaller lift, where it can be raised and discharged. The former project seems best adapted for your locality, owing to the greater expense of building and operating the automatic lifts to take care of the accumulating flow of sewage, much of it having to be raised several times.

The subsoil on the west side consists of about 4 feet of adobe clay, below which is found a medium grade of sand about 4 feet in thickness, and then a finer grade of sand, mixed with water; the water table varying from 7 to 9 feet below the surface of the ground.

The proposed plan for the west side district is to collect all the sewage at the pumping station to be built at Second street and Trumbull avenue, and lifting it about ten feet into the outfall sewer proposed in connection with the east side district.

The route proposed for the trunk line or intercepting sewer is from the pumping station up Second street to Bridge street; up Bridge street to Third street; up Third street to Cromwell avenue; and out Cromwell avenue to Fourth street; then up Fourth street to Stover avenue, where a secondary trunk line from the Twelfth street sub district will connect with the main sewer in Fourth street. From Stover avenue the main line will continue up Fourth street to Mountain road.

This plan will give a trunk line sewer in Fourth street and one in Twelfth street, both of which are centrally located for draining the territory on either side. Grades are designed that will give three feet velocity in the trunk sewers.

The average depth of the sewer in Fourth street will be about 13 feet, from the pumping station to Stover avenue, and a depth of about 10 feet from Stover avenue to Mountain road. On the Twelfth street line the depth will be about 10 feet to Central avenue, and about 9 feet in depth to Mountain road.

It will be impracticable to build all the lateral sewers on grades that will produce three feet velocity, without increasing the depth of the trunk lines; or by providing an automatic lift for laterals, where the length is such as to render the grades too small to give the required velocity. Either of these methods would mean much additional cost in building and operating the system. These lateral sewers can, however, be kept clean by a much less expenditure on first cost with the use of the automatic flush tanks, built on the upper end of the lateral sewers, where the grades are insufficient to otherwise accomplish the desired results.

There are a few places on Fourth street where it will be necessary to install automatic lifts on the lateral sewers, namely, at New York avenue, Main avenue and Mountain road; also one will be required at Cromwell avenue and East street, to bring the sewage from the lower end of the town, between Broadway and the railroad into the west side district.

Quantity of Sewage.

The quantity of sewage that should be provided for is generally based upon the water consumption. As no definite records of the water consumption are available for Albuquerque, it will be necessary to base it upon the experience of other cities of a similar character.

From information given by your city engineer, it is believed that the water consumption averages about 200 gallons per capita per day; but in all probability about one-half of this quantity is used for irrigation purposes, leaving 100 gallons per capita per day as the amount of water used for domestic purposes. This quantity will form the basis of estimating the average flow to be provided for.

The flow of sewage fluctuates very materially during the twenty-four hours, being much more in the forenoon than in the latter part of the day; therefore, it is necessary to provide for a greater rate of flow than the average.

I have in this case estimated a flow of 50 per cent in excess of the average, to allow for these fluctuations; or, the sewers should have a capacity to carry at the rate of not less than 150 gallons per capita for twenty-four hours.

In calculating the size of sewers, 40 people per acre have been assumed as the ultimate density of population to be provided for. On this basis, the 1,300 acres contained within and adjacent to the city limits, would give an ultimate population of 72,000 people; what, at 150 gallons per capita, makes a rate of 10,800,000 gallons of sewage per twenty-four hours.

A certain quantity of ground water will find its way into the sewers when they are laid below the water level, as will be the case principally on the west side. To allow for this, provision is made for a flow of ground water equal to 1,000,000 gallons per square mile per day, or 1,320,000 gallons per day in the west side district of 1,161 acres.

Provision is also made for 300,000 gallons per day from the Indian school, including liquid wastes from industrial plants; or a total daily average flow at the rate of 100 gallons per capita, or 9,320,000 gallons when the city reaches a population of 72,000 people; or, at the maximum rate of 150 gallons per capita, or 12,820,000 gallons per day. No allowance has been made for ground water on the east side, as it is believed there will not be any material inflow from this source.

It is always advisable to provide for some contingencies in the capacity of a system, to allow for irregularities in the rate of flow; and in this case the sewers are designed to flow one-half full when carrying the maximum calculated quantity for the east side district, and two-thirds full for the west side district. The outfall sewer has been designed to carry the maximum rate, or 12,820,000 gallons per day when flowing two-thirds full.

It is not now contemplated to build a complete system for this quantity of sewage, but to so design the outfall and trunk lines, that this maximum rate of flow per day can be taken care of, when the time comes to complete the system, without rebuilding or undoing any of the work proposed for present needs.

In the west side district it is only intended, for the present, to provide pumping and lifting machinery for a maximum flow of 3,720,000 gallons per day, or for a population of about 15,000, as additions to this part of the system can be readily made as the flow increases.

Automatic Sewer Lifts.

Two methods of lifting sewage automatically have been considered. First by compressed air, and second, by water pressure from the street mains. The first mentioned method has been in use for several years, while the latter, or hydraulic lift, is a more recent invention.

The compressed-air-lift (or ejector) the first mentioned method, is made of cast iron, having a chamber of suitable capacity into which the sewage flows from a given district by gravity. When this chamber is filled with sewage to a certain height, a float opens a valve, allowing the air from the main distributing pipe to enter the chamber under pressure, forcing the sewage out into the upper level. When the chamber is emptied, the float closes the valve and the process is repeated. One advantage afforded by the air lift is that there is very little mechanism to wear or get out of order, and they have been in use for several years, giving good satisfaction.

The hydraulic lift is constructed with a chamber bored and fitted with a plunger, into which the sewage flows similar to the air ejector; and when filled, a float opens a valve automatically, allowing the water from the street mains under the reservoir pressure to now into a cylinder fitted with a piston, directly connected with the plunger, but of much smaller area. The water pressure acting on the piston, forces the plunger down into the chamber, thereby causing a displacement, forcing the sewage out at the desired height. When the chamber is emptied the valve closes, letting the water in the cylinder escape into the sewer. These hydraulic lifts are fitted with pistons and plungers, which require more or less attention, in order to keep them in good working order. As they have been in use only a comparatively short time it is difficult to make accurate comparisons as to their durability, but they will undoubtedly perform the work in a satisfactory manner.

The first cost of installing the compressed-air lifts will be much greater than the installation of the hydraulic lifts for the reason that it will be necessary to include in the installation, steam power, air compressors and air pipes for conveying air from the power plant to the ejectors; while with the hydraulic plant, the power for operating the lifts can be taken directly from the water mains and at very much less expense. The cost of operating the latter, with the present price of water, will also be much more economical than the use of compressed air with the necessary attendance. Therefore, the hydraulic method is recommended.

Pumping Plant.

The proposed plan contemplates building a suitable pumping station, with screen and pump wells, in Second street, near Trumbull avenue, and installing two centrifugal electric pumps, each capable of raising 3,000 gallons per minute, or of a sufficient capacity to take care of the maximum flow of sewage from 15,000 people, together with the Indian school, manufacturing wastes and ground water. This station should be of ample size to permit additions to the pumping machinery in the future, as the system is extended and the flow increases.

This pumping station to be located in Second street, near Trumbull avenue, so that a more direct flow can be maintained, thereby avoiding the angles and short turns, were the station located on abutting property, and as there is very little call for keeping this street open to its full width below Trumbull avenue, it was also thought best to locate it in the street. It need not, however, block the entire highway, as there will be ample room on either side of the station for ordinary traffic. But, if there are objections to this location, the station can be readily adapted to a site at one side of the street on private property.

Estimates were made of the cost of pumping the sewage from the west side district by steam power and also by electricity. It was found that with the present prices it would be much more economical to pump by electricity. It would, however, be advisable to have a duplicate electric plant located in some convenient part of the city to operate the pumps, in case any accident occurred to the electrical works.

The Old System.
In designing a new system of sewers, considerable study has been given to retaining as much of the old system as is consistent, in its connection with the new one.

It was found practically impossible to make any use of the main trunk line in Third street, from Cromwell avenue to Lead avenue. The old sewers laid under the railroad tracks in Cromwell avenue and Lead avenue have been retained, for the purpose of bringing the sewage from the low ground on the east side between the railroad and Broadway into the west side system. The old sewer in Lead avenue is cut off at Arno street, and the sewage from above this street is taken into the high level interceptor.

The old sewer in Second street has been retained, from the alley north of Lead avenue to State avenue. Above this point, the sewer is so near the surface of the ground that it had better be abandoned. It is proposed to intercept the Second street sewer at Tijeras, Marquette,

MISS ELKINS IS THINKING IT OVER

The World and Her Italian Prince Lover Await a Word From the American Girl.

Elkins, W. Va., Nov. 10.—Miss Katherine Elkins is thinking it over. Secure from intrusion in the mountain fastnesses of her secluded West Virginia home, the queenly daughter of Senator Stephen B. Elkins is debating the momentous question whether she shall become the Catholic Duchess d'Arzuzel or remain the all powerful "Lady Katherine" of the large American Protestant principality that bears her name.

While this sun-bronzed and wind-tanned slip of an American girl is aimlessly gazing day after day over the autumn-tinted hills or nestling unconcerned with a book in her favorite window nook overlooking the valley, the Elkins family, the diplomatic circle in Washington, the Duc d'Arzuzel, fourth in the Italian royal line of succession, the king of Italy and the nations of the civilized world are waiting on one little word from her.

Will she say "Yes?" Or, will she say "No?"

Ex-Senator Henry Gassaway Davis, maternal grandfather of Miss Elkins, proudly summed it up this way:

"Yes, it is a very interesting situation. You see it's the first time the suggestion of the marriage of an American girl with a member of a royal family has been made. But Katherine will not say anything about it yet. She's a stand-right-us girl, is Katherine."

No one knows better than the old gentleman whose pet the spirited girl has always been. Whether it was a prize dog or a fine horse, or millions that she wanted, he has always succumbed to her will.

Mrs. Elkins was equally indefinite as to what her daughter would do. "Just as soon as there is anything definite to give out I will give it," she said. "Now there is not. It is not as if this were a political matter or a social matter, to be influenced by outside circumstances. It is purely a private matter of my daughter's."

And Elkins is quite as indefinite. So is Washington while the Italian minister, demand an answer in the name of the king or declare the whole thing off.

But why should this petted child of good fortune hurry to accept even a dukedom with the crown of a queen in prospect? No princess in a fairy tale or feudal times ever had a realm more of her own. And no princess of even oriental despotism ever had a stronger "I will" or "I won't."

The Elkins home, Hallsburg, a long, towering mansion, built on the brow of the West Virginia mountain when Katherine Elkins was born, dominates the valley that blossomed with life at the magic touch of the Elkins-Davis wand. The Davis home, a magnificent yellow stone pile, rises in the same spacious grounds a little to the left. And from the broad imposing colonial porches of both, as far as the eye can reach and much further, stretches the panorama of activities resultant on their coming. The city of Elkins, built better than other West Virginia towns, lies in the center. Every enterprise there bears the name of Davis or Elkins, or both. The great lumber business the coal yards and coal lands, the Western Maryland railroad, the hospital, the leading church (Presbyterian), the banks, the hotels, the hospital, even the laundry and the brewer all represent Davis-Elkins investments.

"When we came here 15 years ago there was only a cross-roads and a blacksmith shop down there," said Senator Davis as he waved his hand toward the wide veranda. It was an eloquent exposition of what the millions of a powerful Democrat like Senator Davis, candidate for vice-president four years ago, and his Republican son-in-law can do when combined. Elections might go one way or the other. Their party was always in power.

Katherine is the youngest of Mr. and Mrs. Elkins' five children, all the best men, Frederick, Jr., Davis, Richard and Blaine. And she has always been a comrade with them. They loved horses so she loved horses. They loved dogs so she has a fine kennel of her own, consisting of Irish setters, pointers, bulldogs, fox terriers and King Charles spaniels all pedigreed.

Miss Elkins has eight hunters and riding horses. "Signet" her favorite, has taken cups in New York, Boston, Philadelphia and Baltimore. Back of the barn on the West Virginia estate is a hurdle ground. There Miss Elkins often spends her mornings training her jumpers. On election day her brothers all home to vote, helped her break two colts to the high jumps.

She is also fond of hunting and is a good shot.

Every day "Lady Katherine" goes down from her feudal heights into the town to get her mail. She always wears a plain dark habit or skirt and blouse. Very often she is hatless.

Everyone in the town knows her and children never scream or run when they see her horse rearing and dancing on its hind legs. They know she can handle it as well as they could a kitten.

She is not at all fond of town life though "her standing right up" as her grandfather phrases it, always makes her a conspicuous figure at Washington functions. She is a splendidly put up girl, five feet eight inches tall, and gracefully slender.

Miss Elkins makes very few close friends, but those whom she does love she is very loyal to, members of her family say. Miss Rosalie O'Brien, daughter of former Supreme Court Justice Morgan J. O'Brien of New York, and Miss Marjorie Gould, daughter of George J. Gould, are closest friends. Miss O'Brien has visited at Elkins this fall.

This week Miss Elkins broke her seclusion by pouring tea for her grandfather, while he and his younger daughter, Mrs. Arthur Lee of Washington, entertained the nurses from the perfectly equipped Davis hospital. But although everyone was thinking in terms of Italian royalty, no one dared broach the interesting subject. Miss Elkins poured tea and was as serene as if the vexed question that has kept so many people guessing for nearly a year never had been.

Roma, Fruit and New York avenues, by building new sewers in these avenues.

The sewer in Sixth street has been retained throughout its entire length; and it is proposed to connect the lower end of the old sewer by extending the same to the new sewer in Iron avenue; and it is also proposed to intercept the Sixth street sewer at Tijeras, Marquette, Roma and Fruit avenues.

In the old system there are, in all, including branches and lateral sewers, about 44-1/2 miles which have been retained and brought into the new system.

While these lateral sewers are all of ample capacity, they are not in all cases laid on very good grades; but by placing flush tanks at the upper ends of many of these sewers, they can be kept in good condition. Manholes have been designed for all intersections, and for changes in alignment and grade of the sewer. Flush tanks are also designed for the upper ends of all the long lines of lateral sewers.

The waste water from the wool-scouring plant at the Woolen Mills is now run into the sewer with but very little sedimentation; the result of which is to cause deposits of clay substance, thereby clogging the sewers and preventing a free flow.

To obviate this trouble, it is recommended that the wash-water be subjected to at least not less than eight hours sedimentation, before it is allowed to run off into the sewer. This can be done by building larger tanks through which the wash-water must pass before it reaches the sewers.

The estimated cost of the sanitary system which it is proposed to build for present needs, is practically $200,000, which embraces about 14.8 miles of new sewers, and with the 4.4 miles of the old laterals reserved, makes about 19.2 miles in all.

Before attempting to build the proposed sewer system, careful surveys should be made, detail drawings prepared, and also contracts and specifications drawn up. For, by so doing you will save much money in the cost of construction.

The mean annual rainfall for Albuquerque, as shown by the records obtained from the University of New Mexico, is 7.44 inches; but the records so far do not give any information relative to the intensity or the maximum rate for a given time; but from information available, and from personal observation on the ground, it is my opinion that a rate of one inch of rainfall per hour, at certain seasons of the year, is not infrequent, and that when storm water drains are built they should have a capacity to take care of the water due to such rainfall.

For the improved portion of the city on the east side, the ordinary rainfall for the present can be taken care of in the gutters at the sidewalks discharging into the acequia near Broadway. Whenever you propose to grade and pave the streets in this section of the city it would seem best to lay a storm water drain to a depth of from 4 to 6 feet below the surface of the street, in the avenue running east and west, letting it discharge into the acequia above mentioned. To attempt to convey all the storm water to the river by means of underground drains would necessarily be very expensive, and as the acequia must be maintained for parties having prior rights, the storm water may well be taken into it. It is recommended that, in the near future, some plan for straightening and covering the acequia be made in the compact part of the city, to prevent, as far as possible, the contamination of the water flowing in it through the city, and also the possible use of the acequia as an open sewer.

Heavy local rainfalls occur occasionally in the foothills where the drainage areas are large and extensively porous, absorbing the greater portion of the downpour. There are, however, times when the ground will not absorb all the storm water, and at such times the surplus flows down through the city, carrying much sand and gravel with it, and doing considerable damage. Storms occurring in the foothills further north have at times sent down large volumes of water from that source, doing more or less damage by washing sand and gravel onto the streets. These unusually severe storms occur only at infrequent intervals, and therefore to provide storm drains for the removal of these excessive downpours would appeal to the Well-Informed in every walk of life and are essential to permanent success and creditable standing. Accordingly, it is not claimed that Syrup of Fig and Elixir of Senna is the only remedy of known value, but one of many reasons why it is the best of personal and family laxatives is the fact that it cleanses, sweetens and relieves the internal organs on which it acts without any debilitating after effects and without having to increase the quantity from time to time.

It acts pleasantly and naturally and truly as a laxative, and its component parts are known to and approved by physicians, as it is free from all objectionable substances. To get its beneficial effects always purchase the genuine—manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., only, and for sale by all leading druggists.

be prohibitive at the present time. It is understood that East Copper avenue has been abandoned as a public street, and is now used exclusively for diverting the storm water accumulations at the upper end of and north of Central avenue and discharging it into the acequia near Broadway.

To prevent, in as far as possible, further damages from these storms which occur in the foothills on the west, it is suggested that a trench be excavated in the vicinity of Hill street, from about Gola avenue southward following the general contour of the ground, to some point below the build-up portion of the city, where the storm water referred to can find its way to the acequia or to the river.

Not having any topographical surveys of this section of the city, it is impossible to submit any plans, or make any reliable estimates of the cost of such a proposition. It is now understood that your city engineer is at work on this same topographical map.

To prevent flooding at the north end, temporary dikes have already been built beyond the city limits on the north, to hold back the flood waters for the time, which waters naturally flood the property above the dike. The owners of the property flooded have raised objections to this scheme, but it occurs to me to suggest that sluice gates could be provided in these dikes, to allow the water to escape slowly and in such manner that it would not do serious injury to the owners of the property or to the city.

To provide relief from storm water in the business district on the west side—that is, the area between First and Seventh streets and Coal and Tijeras avenues—it is proposed to build an independent storm water system, using Seventh street for an intercepting line.

The general trend of the ground on the west side is gradually sloping from the north towards the river; and taking advantage of this fact, a main drain is proposed in Seventh street, from Coal avenue to Tijeras avenue, with branch lines extending easterly in the avenues to First street.

The outlet for this system will be into the river at the nearest point. I would state that there can be no objections to discharging the storm water into the river above the county bridge.

The rate of rainfall is assumed at one inch per hour, and the drains for this district have been designed on this basis, using the customary formula and co-efficients.

It is estimated that the storm water system as designed for the business district will cost about $55,000, in addition to the cost of the sewerage system. Accompanying this report is a plan, copied from the lithograph map of your city, showing the proposed location of the main and lateral sewers, manholes, flush tanks, automatic lifts and pumping station. Also a white print, showing the proposed storm water drains in the business district; also a sketch of the proposed pumping plant and a set of grade sheets, showing the streets in which it is proposed to build sewers for the present, and on which the estimates are based.

Estimates of Cost. The estimates of cost have been prepared upon the basis of prices secured from the manufacturers or dealers of all materials, and upon the market price of labor prevailing in the city at the present time.

These estimates are believed ample to cover the cost of a system of sewerage and drainage as designed for present construction. In closing I wish to express my appreciation of the assistance rendered me by the committee and its honor the mayor. Also to Mr. J. N. Gladding, your city engineer, for his co-operation in preparing data for my use. Respectfully submitted, S. M. GRAY, Consulting Engineer.

UNITED STATES TO MAKE AN EXHIBIT

Government's Plans for Seattle Exposition Will be Practical and Unique.

Seattle, Nov. 10.—The United States government will have not only the largest exhibit at the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition which opens here June 1, 1909, but it will be the most unique upon the grounds. In fact it will be in many respects, the most unique exhibition ever made by the government. The last Congress appropriated $500,000 for the purpose. The commissioners appointed are men who have been connected with every government exhibit in recent years. They determined upon one thing, right at the start—there should be something new and a practical benefit. Heretofore the government has been largely content with making a display of the various features of the government, showing how Uncle Sam does business. The collections and displays prepared for the Chicago World's fair in 1893, have been the nucleus for ensuing expositions and the commissioners realized that exposition visitors were getting tired of the same old things. Accordingly they have planned to make the display at Seattle next year on different lines.

Because this western country is tremendously interested in forestry, irrigation, dry-land farming and improved agricultural methods, fisheries and everything connected with the deep sea, it is proposed to treat the above named departments from an educational standpoint, to give demonstrations of practical methods, to show pictures of actual conditions and by means of a bioscope, to teach and illustrate. Thus the man who is interested in irrigation and horticulture will find the best practices displayed by models, pictures and charts, and actual workings by the bioscope. He will learn how to prepare the land, how to run his ditch, how to plant and care for his trees, how to spray them, how to pick and pack the fruit.

Every department will carry out this practical work. The exhibits will be even more comprehensive than shown at other expositions. Everything will be of interest. There will be opportunities for the lawyer, the missionary, the farmer, the laborer, the seaman, the lumberman, the manufacturer, the economist, the politician, the exporter and importer, the stockman, the artist, the teacher, these and scores of other professions, trades and business lines will find something to interest them and show them improved methods.

The government exhibit will be shown in five great exhibition halls; the main building, the Alaska building, the Hawaiian and Philippines building, the Fisheries building and the lecture and bioscope hall. The five will be arranged in an attractive connected group at the head of the great central Court of Honor, forming the crowning feature of the building scheme. Work is about to begin on these buildings and the commissioners, who are now in Seattle, state emphatically that the buildings will be ready for exhibits within five months. That Uncle Sam will be truly and extensively represented is assured.

Exposition Notes. During the early part of June, 1909, the Western Bowling congress will be held in Seattle, and the local bowlers are making great preparations for the event. At least three hundred bowlers will attend taking advantage of the reduced rates to the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition.

The Fraternal Brotherhood will hold its 1909 encampment of the uniform rank in Seattle and plans are being made to establish the camp upon the grounds of the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition. About 3,000 men will be quartered in the tents. The railroads have made their first announcement of rates to the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition in Seattle. Next summer a fifty dollar round-trip rate from Duluth, St. Paul, Minneapolis,
