THOUSANDS OF SURVIVORS PLEAD FOR AID OF WORLD

Every Nation Must Contribute to the Needs of Those Who Escaped Death in Italy and Sicily as the Demand Is Too Great for the Italian Government to Successfully Succor All—Food, Water, Clothing, Shelter and Medical Attendance Must be Supplied Without Delay.

THE DEATH LIST WILL EXCEED 100,000 AND MAY BE DOUBLE THAT NUMBER, IF RESCUE IS DELAYED

Thousands Are Yet In the Ruins and Cannot be Rescued in Time to Save Their Lives—An Army of 25,000 People Needed to Search the Ruins, Rescue Wounded and Bury the Dead—Survivors Fight Desperately for Dry Bones with Which to Appease Hunger and a Reign of Terror Follows in Which Strong Are Victorious.

Rome, Dec. 31.—Slowly the measure of the disaster which has depopulated Calabria and the eastern part of Sicily is being taken and as the reports accumulate it is evident that the first estimates have in no sense exaggerated the extent and horror of the visitation. The official estimate places the list of dead at 110,000, but there is reason to believe this will be greatly exceeded.

Today the pitiable plight of the survivors claims universal attention and the relief of their sufferings calls for the united efforts of all nations. The dead are dead but countless thousands of half-demented, naked and starving survivors, some wounded, some uninjured, are crying piteously for food, water, clothing, shelter and medical attention.

No word has yet been received concerning the fate of the Americans thought to have been in the devastated district excepting Rev. David Sessums and his daughter Alice, who were believed to be at Messina. They are at Rome, safe. It is reported that several Americans lost their lives in the wreck of a hotel at Messina and Ambassador Griscom is about to go to the south to endeavor to secure news about other Americans who are reported missing.

It is estimated that hundreds of thousands of people have fled from the devastated territory in fear of further disturbances. The latest estimate of the dead at Palmi and Lagware is 14,000 and 12,000, respectively. Two thousand soldiers were killed at Reggio. The survivors say that for half an hour before the quake the heavens were filled with a gorgeous display of light, resembling the Aurora Borealis. It is declared that not less than 25,000 people are needed to rescue the living who are still entrapped in the ruins and to bury the dead.

A dispatch from the observatory at Ripostar says that the center of the earthquake was probably in the sea in the southern part of the strait of Messina. The seismograph at Mileto continues to record slight shocks. Signor Stancel, distinguished scientist attached to the Florence observatory, is of the opinion that the earthquake was geological rather than volcanic. He believes the trouble was caused by the subsidence of a lower strata and as a result of this depression huge cracks appeared in the form of a semi-circle, the center of which was the focal point of the disturbance.

Rome, Dec. 31.—To the terrifying spectacle of death, caused by the earthquake of Monday, has now been added the horror of starvation and the fear of pestilence. In the ruins of Messina, Reggio and various other towns in Sicily and Calabria lie countless bodies, which it will be impossible to extricate, while everywhere thousands of homeless throngs the littered thoroughfares.

Words are inadequate to express the horror of the ruin and desolation that has overwhelmed Calabria and Sicily, where the trembling of the earth and fire and water combined to change a smiling, verdant country into a desert.

Messina no longer exists and at least thirty years will be necessary to repair the ruin that nature's violence has wrought there. It is as yet impossible to obtain news of the fate of dozens of little villages along the coast, many of which, it is believed, have been entirely wiped out.

In many cases entire buildings were swept into the sea and no trace of them remains. Flourishing villages have been wiped out of existence and the topography of the country in many places entirely changed.

In some of the smaller towns, such as Palmi, only a few score people are alive today where a few days ago were thousands of happy, contented people. In such places the catastrophe was overwhelming in its suddenness and completeness. There was no time to think of escape. At Palmi, there are perhaps less than 100 alive out of a population of 14,000. Yesterday 2,200 corpses were buried in the cemetery there. The survivors at Palmi reinforced by rescuers from other points, are performing prodigies of valor.

The first survivors of Reggio to reach Catanzaro were so broken by the shock of their experiences that it was almost impossible for them to give a clear account of the destruction of the city. They spoke disconnectedly of whole districts swept away in a moment, and entire families annihilated.

Reggio remains isolated in its ghastly desolation. Railroads and footpaths to the city have been entirely destroyed, while the survivors lack food, water and medical supplies.

On the visit of the king and queen to Messina has aroused widespread enthusiasm. They spent several hours both at Messina and Reggio and at both places imparted freshness to the work of rescue.

The waters of Messina strait are covered with floating bodies of men and all kinds of wreckage. The shores of the strait have been completely transformed in appearance. Even the lighthouses on the headlands have disappeared.

Entire Regiment Killed. Reggio, Calabria, Dec. 31.—There is reason to believe that an entire regiment of infantry was drowned by the tidal wave at Palmi. Three hundred bodies of soldiers have already been recovered.

As a precaution against an outbreak of disease the bodies of the persons killed by the earthquake are being burned and strong disinfectants are being strewn about the ruins of the city. The troops have set up field kitchens and are baking bread in the streets for distribution to the survivors. Strong guards have been placed over the stores of clothing and provisions to prevent pillage.

Fighting for Food. Messina, Dec. 31.—A frightful scene occurred here today amid the ruins of the custom house. A band of famished individuals were groping among the debris in the hope of discovering food. The first of the scavengers who were successful were attacked by the others with revolvers and knives and obliged to divide their findings. The struggle was fierce.

The famished men threw themselves upon each other like wolves and several fell, disemboweled in defending a handful of dry bones or a few ounces of flour. One of the unfortunates was pinned to a plank by a knife while clinging to his hand was a little child for whom he had sought food.

Flee From the Scene.

London, Dec. 31.—A special from Palermo today says that it is estimated that up to this morning nearly 100,000 persons have embarked on warships and other vessels in Messina straits, or have otherwise left the devastated districts. All the towns and villages along the straits are rapidly becoming depopulated as there is widespread fear of further convulsions.

Scenes of the wildest nature are being enacted at Messina and other ruined cities. Grim advices reach Palermo that clouds of crows have descended on the ruined cities, having crossed the sea in response to a mysterious intuition of the disaster. In Messina the rescuers frequently encounter bands of naked people, carrying images of saints. It is ex-

A BIT OF HISTORY

A reference to the important factors in the making of any city in the United States, which has attained the dimensions of a metropolis, will throw important light upon the situation in Albuquerque today, where the people are contemplating the building of a much needed modern sewer system.

First, in the upbuilding of any city, there must be the natural or artificial resources, to make that city an industrial, educational or marketing center.

In that respect Albuquerque is richly endowed. The natural resources of the entire territory, ranging from mines to livestock and from lumbering to farming, find their natural outlet through this city. In direct contact with Albuquerque, is the richest section of the great Rio Grande valley, wealthy in agricultural products.

There is, therefore, every reason to predict that Albuquerque will never want for resources without her gates. Within the city are the greatest lumbering industry in the west, the shops and yards of a great railway system and other manufacturing industries, all of which give employment to thousands, besides modern schools, colleges and a university.

As compared with other great cities in their youth, Albuquerque has every reason to feel assured of her future. But resources never yet built a city, alone and unaided. The most striking part of every city's growth without exception, has been the work of public spirited citizens who have persistently shoved their city forward, in the face of every public ill, who have unflinchingly used their credit to make the improvements necessary to attract homebuilders and manufacturers and who have shown their own faith in the future by making provisions to take advantage of its opportunities.

At some stage in the history of every city, there has been a turning point where the citizens have been forced to choose between standing still—which eventually means retrogression—or of taking the ball by the horns and advancing well ahead of the times.

This is the point which Albuquerque has reached. It is a question of acting now and at once. Shall we install a sewer system which our present population must have and which will be adequate to accommodate three times the number of people now living here, or shall we stand still, while El Paso and other cities display their faith in the future by outbuilding us?

This is simply what the present situation resolves itself into. It is a matter of such supreme importance to the people of this community that there can be but one answer.

Disregarding public health of today, disregarding the prompt increase in real estate values, disregarding the fact that our bonds can now be sold above par, disregarding the fact that never again can we build so cheaply, there still remains that paramount common interest—our future.

The history of every city in the United States reads the same on the question of municipal improvements. The people of Albuquerque are now face to face with the making or destroying of Albuquerque.

We can not hope for others to come here to build up homes and industries with a firm faith in our future, if we ourselves have not that faith.

The sewer bonds come before the people to be voted upon January 19, 1909. The action of the people at that time, will mark an epoch for advancement or decline of Albuquerque. On that score if for nothing more, the Citizen characterizes every vote against the bond issue as a vote against Albuquerque and the history of any American city will bear out the statement.

WON'T SUMMON ROOSEVELT.

Washington, Dec. 31.—Senator Hale, acting chairman of the committee on appropriations, which has charge of the investigation of the methods of the secret service, said today that there is no intention, so far as he knows, of summoning President Roosevelt before the committee after his retirement on March 4, as has been intimated in published reports.

CHRISTMAS PACKAGES

CHICAGO, Dec. 31.—Many reports of letters and packages being stolen from the mails at Christmas time have been made to the postal inspectors. Most of these thefts are due to carelessness on the part of the public, according to Inspector Stewart. He says investigation has revealed that a band of men have made it a practice to steal mail placed on top of postal boxes and chutes.

DOCTOR GIVES HOPE FOR HIS RECOVERY

He Has a Chance to Recover Unless Complications Follow—
Motive for the Shooting
Remains a Mystery.

Leo Zanone, junior member of the firm of Joshua Zanone & Son, saloon keepers, 1009 South Second street, was shot shortly after noon today and, seriously, if not fatally, injured. Louis Baca of Santa Fe, is in the county jail, charged with the shooting. His victim is at St. Joseph's hospital under the care of City Physician Pearce, who says that his patient has a chance to recover.

So far as can be learned there were no witnesses to the shooting, other than the principals. According to the story Leo Zanone told his father three minutes after the shooting, Baca walked into the saloon, swearing, Zanone was behind the bar.

"I have something for you, you know," Baca is alleged to have said as he walked up to the bar. "I don't like that word you use—Greaser," Zanone is said to have answered.

With that Baca pulled a pistol and fired. He then turned around and walked quietly out of the place and down the street. Ten minutes later he entered the saloon of Frank Francoroli, at 823 South Second street. A boy behind the bar fled in fright when he saw him. Twenty-five minutes after the shooting Baca was arrested by Police Officer Harry Cooper on Third street a block and a half from the scene of the shooting.

Baca is a native of Santa Fe. He made no effort to escape, apparently, and refused to discuss the shooting. He did not deny it and when asked about the gun, said that he would produce it at the proper time. The gun had not been found at 4 o'clock, though the officers made a diligent search for it. It is believed to have been a .38-caliber. A small boy living in the neighborhood of the saloon where the shooting occurred, told the officers that he saw Baca give the pistol to another native, but this man could not be located. Baca was hurried to the city jail and later taken to the county jail for safe keeping. His only request was that his relatives at Santa Fe be notified.

Zanone Called for His Father. K. J. Duggan, a bootmaker, who was standing about thirty yards from the Zanone saloon at the time of the shooting, was the first person to reach the wounded man. Duggan said that Baca passed out of the saloon as he went in. There is a thin board partition between the front door and the bar. As he reached the door in this partition, he met Leo Zanone. The latter placed his hand over his heart and said that he was shot.

"I am killed," Duggan says the injured man said. "Call papa. He shot me," and Zanone pointed toward the door through which Baca had just passed.

Duggan says that he pushed the boy into a chair, secured a wet towel and placed it over the wound. The elder Zanone was half asleep in a barber chair in a barber shop at the time of the shooting. He was aroused and told that his son was shot. The old man would not believe it at first. He rushed to the saloon, half shaved, and found his son sitting in a chair, with a stream of blood flowing down his chest.

A boy was sent on a bicycle to summon City Physician Pearce. The sheriff's office and police station were notified by telephone. Dr. Pearce, Deputy Sheriff Fred Heyn and Police Officer Harry Cooper took the same car to the scene of the shooting. The officers soon learned that Baca was still in the neighborhood and in anticipation of trouble, loosed their pistols in their holsters. Baca was traced down the street to the Francoroli saloon, through an alley and out on to Third street, where he was taken into custody without trouble. He had about $5 in money and a few papers in his pockets.

After making a hurried examination of the wound, Dr. Pearce ordered an ambulance and had Zanone taken to the hospital.

The bullet entered the left breast about a half inch below the collarbone, passed over the heart cavity, through the upper part of the left lung, and lodged in the lower part of the right lung.

Zanone suffered excruciating pains but remained calm all the way to the hospital and bore the probing of the bullet with set teeth. The bullet entered the left breast about a half inch below the collarbone, passed over the heart cavity, through the upper part of the left lung, and lodged in the lower part of the right lung.

NEW PURE FOOD LAW WORKS LIKE CHARM, SAYS WILEY

Since It Went Into Effect a Noticeable Difference Has Been Created by the Public.

MERCHANTS ARE GIVING SUPPORT

The New Law Is Doing an Immense Good Since the Public Has Become Educated and Forced Dealers
to Act.

Baltimore, Md., Dec. 31.—Dr. H. D. Wiley, chief of the bureau of chemistry, department of agriculture, was the principal speaker today before the convention of scientists, which is in session here. Dr. Wiley spoke of the good already accomplished as a result of the pure food and drug act, and gave a review of the changes brought about by the new law. He said in part:

First must be mentioned the effect which the food and drug act has had upon the ethics of trade. It is the universal consensus of opinion of all high grade manufacturers and merchants in food and drug products that the morality of the trade has been distinctly improved. When low grade or dishonest articles have to be named and specified and adulterations excluded there is no longer the necessity which existed before of really high grade manufacturers stooping to the debasement of their food products to meet competition. In other words, the success of business now does not depend upon meeting low grade competition, but upon high grade competition, and thus the merit and excellence of the product, other things being equal, will set the pace for success of the business.

The second good which has been accomplished by the food and drug act is the judicial determination in many cases of the principles involved in the law itself. Judge Smith Pherson, of the United States district court, Western District of Missouri, Kansas City, in a decision which he rendered on the food and drug act, stated: "This statute is to protect consumers and not producers. It is a most beneficial and righteous statute, and within the powers of Congress to legislate concerning and should be enforced." Here we have the judicial statement showing the substantiality of the act and its beneficial purpose and the purpose for which it should be enforced.

The consumer in all cases is the party to be protected, but in protecting the consumer the rights of the manufacturers are also protected. The third good which has been accomplished by the law is the improvement in the quality of the food and drug supplies. This has been apparent in both food and drugs. Cold storage foods are no longer sold or at least not so extensively as fresh foods and greater care is exercised in the sanitary preparation of foods than ever before, so that the foods which the people of this country are eating today are more wholesome, and consequently more palatable and more nutritious than ever before. This improvement in the quality of drugs is not less marked. A rigid inspection of imported drugs keeps out of the country all that are not up to the pharmaceutical standard, and the careful control, though not complete of interstate commerce tends to produce the same effect on drugs passing from state to state. The making and sale of deleterious patent medicines has been greatly restricted, especially in those productions which relate to the introduction of habit forming drugs into patent medicines and of alcohol. The statement on the labels of these products respecting the presence of these bodies has served to warn a great many persons of the danger of their use and thus restricted their sale. While perhaps there is much left to be desired in this direction, the progress which has been made is most encouraging, and the good which has been accomplished already is pronounced.

"Finally, the general attitude of the public has been strengthened respecting this law so that it has the support of a more unified and enthusiastic public opinion. Add to this the almost unanimous support of the courts in all cases which have come before them and we see that the food and drug act has been firmly established and will continue the good work in which so much has already been accomplished."

TEN TO ONE FOR NEW SEWER AT ONCE

People Realize Necessity for Immediate Action and Bond Issue.

XPRESSIONS SHOW PUBLIC SENTIMENT

Unanimity of Opinion in Every Interview on Two Important Questions—Alderman Says Matter Is Now in Hands of Voters and They Must Decide.

That the people are thoroughly aroused to the fact that Albuquerque must install a sewer system without further delay, becomes more and more apparent as the days pass. Citizen reporters who are endeavoring to secure expressions of opinion on the subject, find that those who favor the immediate construction of a sewer system and the voting of bonds for that purpose, number ten to one to those who either do not care or who are not giving the matter due attention.

The expressions obtained from all classes of citizens are interesting for several reasons. The most noticeable feature is the unanimity on the question of a bond issue and of prompt action thereafter in building the sewer.

A member of the city council today said: "One thing which must not be lost sight of in discussing the sewer problem is that the city council has placed itself on record to give the contract to the lowest bidder. This, therefore, obviates any question as to the letting of the contract. Therefore the only thing at issue is to pass the sewer bonds and provide funds for the work and the council has placed this matter in shape to be voted upon. The people must now remember that upon themselves and not on the city council will rest the verdict. The sewer is an open one and a public spirited one. I believe the paper's action will be endorsed by an overwhelming vote on January 19th."

The Citizen has selected the following from an innumerable number of interviews, as of interest to the people:

The Foundation. J. H. O'Reilly, manager for the Occidental Life Insurance company:

"I am in favor of the bond issue and think that everybody should not only vote for it, but work for it. The prospective growth of Albuquerque will require a larger and better foundation and I think that a complete and thorough sewerage system would add materially to this particular and important feature."

Wants a Sewer System. Col. John Borradaile, real estate broker and loan agent and owner of considerable Albuquerque realty:

"I think we ought to have a good sewer system without delay."

Good Reason Why. Emil Mann, of Mann Bros., harness merchants, who are building a three-story building on Copper avenue:

"I know that city employees have dug up the old sewer back of my place of business, and within ninety days, spreading germs and a bad odor for a block around, and I think that it is time we were getting a new system; one that will do the work. I am in favor of the bond issue and will work for it."

Up-to-Date Albuquerque.

L. Kempenich, dry goods merchant and property owner:

"I think that we are in need of a new sewer system. An up-to-date city should certainly have an up-to-date sewer. I am in favor of the city issuing bonds and will vote for them."

Food for Thought.

O. N. Marron, attorney at law and owner of considerable city property:

"The building of this proposed sewer system is an absolute necessity. I fully agree with what The Citizen has been saying that the health of our people is of vastly more consequence than any other consideration. We can not hope for a greater Albuquerque without a greater and much improved sewer system. Let's vote the bonds and provide the funds."

Wants Paving Bonds, Too.

D. S. Rosenwald, manager for the Rothenberg & Schloiss Cigar company and owner of considerable residence and business property:

"You may say that I am in favor of a new sewer system and the paving of Central avenue as well. The sewer system we certainly must have. The city has outgrown the old one, and it seems that a new and larger one is

SUBSCRIPTION LIST STARTED FOR ITALIANS

Father A. M. Mandalari, pastor of the Immaculate Conception church, has opened a subscription list at the parochial residence, for the aid of those who are suffering and in need as the result of the great earthquake in southern Italy.

"I will receive all subscriptions which may be sent to me," said Father Mandalari today, "and I hope that all of the people, particularly members of our parish will contribute liberally. All subscriptions which may be sent to me will be forwarded without delay to those in charge of the rescue work in Italy, where I am reliably informed conditions are so pitiful as to beggar description."

Father Mandalari today received a visit from a number of Italians and others of his parish, who asked him to assist in relieving the distress in the afflicted districts. In response to their request, he started the subscription and he will also make a special collection in church for that purpose. A number of contributions have already been received.

Her Career

Helen Bertram has given up a successful vaudeville career for motherhood and home.

"Don't let's talk about art," she said, as she prepared for her final appearance. "What's art compared to the home? I have a home and a daughter. Applause is mine today. Tomorrow it goes to somebody else. But my home and my daughter are mine indeed, and they are the things worth while in life."

Here is a wise head and a true heart.
The woman who has a home and a daughter has her career cut out for her by the Almighty.

She has the true gold, and can well afford to give up for it the tinsel of the stage.

It must seem fine to a talented woman to be able to sway the feelings of vast audiences with her song. But it must be infinitely finer to her to soothe her own little girl to sleep with a lullaby.

Ripples and roars of applause must be sweet. But the lispings of a woman's own child must be sweeter.

True, there is a place on the stage and in business, and in the professions for women. Hundreds of thousands of them in this country are making good in public life, as teachers, stenographers, nurses, clerks, actresses, doctors and even lawyers. And none would bar or hinder them. They are faithfully performing noble service for humanity.

But few of them have homes and daughters.
The woman who has these and properly cherishes them need have no envy for her strenuous and seemingly more brilliant sisters.

Here is the jewel of great price. She may think sometimes that life is dull and drudging. But so do the others far oftener than she. So, alas! do all of us.

But if there is anything that, more than all else, lifts us in this life to true purposes, sets us in tune with the infinite, and gives us foretaste of heaven; it is that little corner in God's creation we call home.

The woman with a ribboned and scented dog hugged to her heart can imagine she knows love.

The woman in the elegantly appointed hotel may think she knows luxury.

The woman in the childless mansion may think she knows wealth.

The woman who has no car may think she knows happiness.

But the woman in her own home, with her own child at her breast, knows all these, and she knows them better than all the others do.

The home may be humble but it is her home.

The child may be a care, but it is her child.

And in all the ages since woman was created for motherhood, woman nature has not changed one whit.

A Daniel has come to judgment in the Vermont legislature with a bill intended to guard newspapers against "fakers." It makes the giving of false news to a newspaper with intent to deceive, punishable by a fine ranging from $5 to $20 for each offense. We hope that the Vermont law makers will lose no time in making the bill a statute. Its enactment will fill a long felt want of Vermont editors and blaze the way for the relief of those of other states. One Vermont paper has been victimized by a practical joker who by false representations procured the publication of a "marriage notice," greatly to the annoyance of the editor and the parties untruthfully said to have wedded. A few years ago a Massachusetts paper had a similar unhappy experience, despite the precautions it had taken to guard itself against imposition. On a larger scale the New York World confessed itself victimized in the matter of the Hale-Kaiser interview. The joker should be made to pay for his humor, and the imposter treated to a touch of the law's severity. There is a popular impression that all is grist that comes to the mill of a newspaper that the editor will publish and does publish everything the neighbors bring in, whereas, the truth is what is tendered for publication is carefully scrutinized as to its authenticity.—Boston Transcript.

That army recruiting officers should have rejected eight times as many applicants for enlistment because of "alcoholism" the last year as in the preceding is cited by a service paper as a wonderful circumstance in view of the spread of prohibition sentiment. Two years ago the rejections for this cause averaged about 10 per 1,000 of applicants, but the surgeon general's report, just issued, indicates that in the twelvemonth covered by it they rose to 75 per 1,000. As the regulations governing enlistments have not been changed in the interval, the difference is not to be accounted for by their increased stringency. Officers are wondering if there is an increase in hard drinking among the people generally proportionate to the percentage of "alcoholics" among those who enter recruiting offices. Possibly an explanation is found in business depression compelling many hard drinkers who ordinarily find some civil employment to choose between enlisting and starving. There is so much good material offering now that officers have no temptation to let down the lines even in favor of moderate drinkers.—Boston Transcript.

A new watch has been invented for the use of physicians and nurses in counting the pulse. The watch indicates, without mental calculation, the number of beats of the pulse in a minute. It operates on the principle of a stop-watch. By pressing the push button a large second hand is set in motion, and the counting of the pulsations begins. At the twentieth pulsation the motion of the hand is stopped by another pressure of the push button. The dial accurately indicates the exact number of pulsations per minute. A third pressure on the push button brings the hand back to the starting point. The use of this instrument does away with the necessity of observing the progress of the watch while taking the pulse, and in addition, secures an absolutely correct record. The instrument is also a chronographic counter, facilitating the making of observations, which are automatically recorded in minutes, seconds and fifths of a second. A small dial placed below the 12 records minutes from 0 to 30. The large hand records seconds and fifths of a second.

Now that the complete returns of the November election are at hand, the student of politics will look in vain for the results which were supposed to come from the Red Special, which carried Debs from coast to coast.

DAILY SHORT STORIES

THE CONVICT.

By Harold Carter.

The sheriff's red face looked into the prison-white face of the convict. They stood alone among the Florida pines and swamps, but close at hand the guards lounged with their rifles.

"Bill, yer wife's sick," the sheriff jeered.

"Do you know anything about—her application for my pardon?" the convict faltered.

The sheriff burst into loud laughter. "Why, Bill, that's all a bluff," he said. "You won't get no pardon. It's a divorce she's going to get, and then—"

He bent forward and whispered into the convict's ear.

"You lie, you cur!" the convict hissed. His fist crashed squarely into the sheriff's jaw, and the man fell senseless.

The convict listened, breathing hard. Though the pine trees he could see the guards playing cards upon the ground, their rifles beside them. Evidently they had heard nothing. Then, bending low, he began to wriggle along the ground in the direction of the palmetto swamps, thirty yards away.

If he could gain the shelter of these he could break his way out at nightfall, and hit the trail for the settlement of Okchoh, twelve miles away, where Mary lived.

Two years ago, actuated by that fury that besets the Southerner when any insult is offered to his woman-kind, he had shot and almost killed Hickson for a few words addressed half jokingly to his young wife.

He had been tried at Tampa, and, unjustly as most thought, sentenced to serve for five years in the convict camp. Since then Hickson, who had been elected sheriff, had never ceased to jeer at him and endeavor to do him evil. The few visits which were permitted his wife were held in the presence of the jailors; they were kept apart; they could say nothing that was not overheard. Yet he had always believed in her loyalty—now?

Of course he would be recaptured at the door, but he must see her, must have one moment's word with her to learn the falseness of Hickson's monstrous insinuations.

Suddenly he heard shouts behind him. Bullets began to zip among the needles of the pines. He sped on, desperately.

He was some twenty yards from the swamps when he felt a blow upon the thigh that sent him sprawling to the ground. Blood was flowing from a bullet wound. He floundered on desperately, a moment, and the palmetto tangles and friendly reeds had sheltered him. He plunged through the shallow water and sat cowering in safety at last, while the voices of his baffled pursuers could be heard as they called one to another.

The blood was spurting from his wound, but, binding it tightly with a strip from his coarse cotton shirt, he succeeded in staunching it. Then, faint, but resolute, he waited for night. At last the sun sank. The guards had ceased to call. Doubtless they were watching the roads.

He crept out through the reeds. Weak, limping, hardly able to push his tired feet forward, he struggled on manfully, until at last, shortly before the dawn he saw the outlying settlement before him. The buildings loomed up darkly under the moon. But there was a light in one—in Mary's house.

—In Mary's house.

He crept up stealthily. He made no sound. In the high road he saw, not thirty paces away, the dark figure of a man seated on horseback, his rifle on his arm. He passed it safely; he was creeping to the door when his foot caught in some creeps and he fell. An instant later the guard was galloping up.

The convict sprang to his feet and dashed open the door. He stumbled upon the threshold and fell forward swooning. Yet, even in that extremity, he saw two figures in the room—Mary and a gentleman of bearing who looked like a prosperous lawyer from Tampa.

It was true, then, what Hickson had told him. In his despair he did not see how the armed guard suddenly halted as the stranger lifted his hand. But he saw his wife's arms about him as he looked up with darkening sight.

"Well, dear," she sobbed, "this is Governor Burgess. He came himself last evening—and then we heard you had escaped, and see he waited. See!" She held up a sheet of paper. "He has pardoned you."

THE COUNTRY'S CHAMPION CORN GROWER

L. B. CLORE, PRIZE CORN, AND TROPHY.

Omaha, Neb., Dec. 30.—Here is the champion corn grower of the United States, L. B. Clore of Franklin, Ind. For the second time Clore has won the silver grand premier sweepstakes trophy, valued at $1,000, for the 619 ears of corn shown at the national corn exposition at Omaha. Clore has also won a prize of $1,000 in gold and $500 in other prizes offered by other states. He won this trophy also last year at Chicago.

The trophy was founded by the Indiana commission to the national corn show exposition and the money for it was subscribed among the corn growers of Indiana.

Some Reasons Why

The C

Because The Citizen is a home paper. It is either delivered by carrier at the house or is carried home by the business man when his day's work is done and it STAYS THERE. A morning paper is usually carried down town by the head of the family and hurriedly read.

The Citizen is not read hurriedly, but thoroughly so that all advertisements receive their share of attention. It presents the store news a little ahead, giving the prospective purchaser time to plan a shopping tour for the next morning.

Wise advertisers patronize The Citizen because they know their advertisements are seen and read at the homes in the evening, and if they are offering something worthy of attention, their ad has accomplished its mission.

I

The Citizen has never given premiums to subscribers but is subscribed to and paid for on its news merits, showing that its subscribers have money with which to buy what they want from legitimate merchants. These are the people The Citizen invites to your store.

Z

The Citizen employs a man whose business it is to look after your advertising wants. He will write your copy if you wish. If not, he will see that your ads are "set up" to look their best and he will attend to them from day to day.

Are you advertising in The Citizen? Your competitors are, and are profiting by it. Do you think conservative business men are spending money where they are not getting results? Get in the swim and watch your business grow.

HOW THE CZAR ENGLAND ALSO PROFIT SHARING IS INFORMED HAS ANNUAL ON A LARGE OF EVENTS DEFICIT SCALE

He Has a Special Journal.
Only One Copy of Which Is Printed to Tell Him.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 31.—For a long time it has been thought that the life of Czar Nicholas II resembles that of a prisoner, and that all knowledge of what is going on in Russia at large is carefully kept from his ears. All the responsibility for the horrors that have befallen Russia is thrust upon him—the nobles and the bureaucracy—the czar himself being described as a good, harmless man, who with a different environment and better counselors, would rule his empire to universal satisfaction.

Access, however, has lately been obtained to the czar's library, which has led to the discovery of the kind of literature which Nicholas II is in the habit of reading, and to the discovery also of the Czar Journal, which, although it had been heard of for years has hitherto never been seen by any one except his immediate advisers.

At the express wish of the czar only one manuscript copy of this journal is privately issued by the members of the committee of censors of foreign literature under the immediate direction of the minister of the interior and it can be imagined how difficult it must have been for any one else to see it.

Ten to fifteen folio volumes of this work have appeared yearly, of 500 to 600 pages apiece, and to these volumes have been added a number of reviews, letters, printed material, brochures, manifestos, lottery tickets of the revolutionary Red Cross etc. On every volume are notes by the minister of the interior or his assistant stating the place and time at which the czar read the journal and his remarks concerning it. Marginal notes have also been added by Lieutenant-General Von Hesse the court favorite. The additions of the minister of the interior, Goremkyin, and his assistant in the reproduction of the journal Baron Jukull were compiled from these notes.

To judge by the table of contents of this publication Nicholas II would seem to be one of the best informed persons in Russia concerning the revolution and its history for through the perusal of this journal he must have been aware of almost every detail of the revolutionary struggle since 1897.

Accounts of the arrests of notable revolutionaries the risings of the peasants the strikes the suppressed printing houses clubs and unions; the relation of the home revolutionaries with those who had emigrated to England and Switzerland; the newly published revolutionary books, brochures and proclamations (even Clara Zetkin's pamphlet on the economic position of women is mentioned); the persecution of the Jews; the quarrels between the nihilists, are all to be found in the journal.

The Government Is Seeking Ways to Reduce the Constantly Increasing Debt.

London, Dec. 31.—Lloyd George, Chancellor of the Exchequer, has one of the biggest and most thankless tasks of his political life ahead of him. It is nothing more nor less than the devising of new methods of taxation to meet the rapidly increasing national deficit. As he himself has picturesquely described it, he must "look for new hen roosts to rob," and predictions are now in order and are being widely made as to the particular quarter of the barnyard he will turn his attention to.

Various schemes have been put forward, more or less authoritatively, but in almost every case it was evident that the wish was father to the thought. As far as the chancellor himself is concerned, he has but to examine the old records of the department over which he rules to find an almost endless variety of means of "raising the wind," all of them, tried and found useful by his predecessors in office.

For instance there was the "chimney money." In 1862 Parliament voted a tax of fifty cents a year on every chimney in England. Some idea of the enormous amount such a tax would yield today can be gathered when it is said that a majority of the houses of London and the other big English cities boast as many as fifteen chimneys apiece. Few of them have less than ten. That it proved a heavy burden in those days is evident, for it was immensely unpopular. Peppys records three months after the passing of the law: "Much clamor against the chimney money and the people say they will not pay it without force."

A little over a hundred years ago every clock, either inside or outside a house, was taxed $1.25 a year. If you were lucky enough to own a gold watch and it came to the official notice you were compelled to add $2.50 to the public exchequer. If your spending money was limited and you were a miser, you were taxed a silver case, $1.75 was demanded of you. Furthermore, your jewelry was compelled to pay a tax of 60 cents a year for the privilege of selling such luxuries to you.

One of the most curious of all the taxes was that imposed upon windows. This ranged from $1 for one to six windows to $240 every twelve months for 180 windows. The quite natural result of this tax was the closing up of many of the windows with bricks. Parliament promptly devised a trick worth two of that and imposed a tax of $1.25 upon every 1,000 bricks. The legislators "put the lid on it," however, when they imposed a tax of $5 a year on everybody who used hair powder.

British Company Has Plan to Permit Employees Large Share of the Gains.

London, Dec. 31.—Sir Christopher Furness, M. P., addressing a specially convened mass meeting of his workers at West Hartlepool, on his co-partnership scheme, said the full capacity of the yards in which the experiment would be tried was twenty-four steamers. He had decided at once, on his own account, to give orders for six vessels at the Harbor dockyard and six to Middleton Shipyard, orders which carried with them the building of twelve sets of engines.

This and other statements were received with marked enthusiasm. The meeting was held in the Grand theater and 1,000 workmen crowded the building. Counselor Liddle of the "Joiners' Society," who presided, declared his confidence that the whole scheme was a most sincere and earnest trial.

Looking to the immediate future, he was not without hope that, if they could only fill their building berths, and as a result of their more harmonious, industrious and efficient working could secure at the end of twelve months profits such as had been made in good years in the shipbuilding industry, the proportion of surplus divided accruing to the employees' share would be a distinct consideration alongside the 4 per cent paid on their share contributions; and in view of the necessary allowances which must be set aside for depreciation, improvements and reserve, he was satisfied that in a few years his co-partners would find that their shares had become materially enhanced in value. But, after all, it was not pounds, shillings and pence, but personal peace, individual freedom from worry on the part of them all, which he pictured as the best dividend to be anticipated as an outcome of their new departure.

Touching one of the increased efficiency of the establishment—and without wishing to fill the part of the Pharisee—he hoped that another indirect consequence of the closer form of association would be the cultivation on the part of all of a keen sense of self-respect and a recognition of the duty which became all good citizens. Candidly he regarded a drastic reform of the licensing laws as a national necessity from the point of view of the efficiency of industry. Excesses alike in drinking and in gambling constituted a serious national danger. Any government ought to be thanked by all good citizens for a sturdy stand in the matter of a reform of the licensing laws. That was what he might call a very pertinent digression from the theme of his remarks.

After stating that the work of the construction of these vessels would begin in a short time, he said he hoped and believed that at the expiry of the time taken in the construction of the twelve steamers they would find themselves in possession of orders for the remaining twelve steamers to keep the two yards fully employed for the whole of 1909, and despite the pessimism of the shipowners and the undoubted gloom of the moment he entertained strongly the belief that at the end of twelve months—certainly at the opening of 1910—they would find the general conditions of trade such as to enable the yards to continue in the same way in regard to employment that he had proposed to start them.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED
by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever (nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is not a permanent condition, but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces).

SANTA FE TO BUILD SEARCHLIGHT LINE

rumored That the Road Will Invade Mining District in Nevada.

San Bernardino, Dec. 31.—A gentleman arriving here from Searchlight, Nev., yesterday, announces that it is reported there on good authority that the Santa Fe is about to undertake extensive construction work in that section. The company is said to be casting eyes at Eldorado canyon. Fearful lest competition enter the field and cut off the choice business, now enjoyed with this rapidly developing district, is evidently planning the railroad to consider taking decisive steps, which will forever clinch, not only the patronage of Eldorado, but of the adjacent country.

The plan under advisement calls for the bridging of the Colorado river and the completion of the circle which now ends at Searchlight and Chloride, Ariz.

Such a circle would embrace Needles, Tex., Goffs, Barnwell, Hart, Searchlight, Nob Hill, Nelson, Eldorado Canyon, White Hills, Chloride, Kingman and points on the main line between Kingman and Needles. Likewise there would be included the branch running from Barnwell to Ivanpah.

Speaking of the grade up the canyon, the ex-railroad man stated that he did not consider it would be any more troublesome than the present grade on the main line into Williams, Ariz. In this day, he said, it was a big load for an engine to pull six or seven cars, but with the introduction of larger and more powerful engines it was now possible to handle a train of twenty-odd. He concluded by saying that it would not be a question of grades but of business.

Just how much credence should be given to the report is hard to say. The Santa Fe has shown that it is alive to the fact that the Salt Lake may at any time build south from Las Vegas and cut in on its territory. Nor is the canyon section unknown to the Santa Fe. The first data, drawings and estimates on the branch into Searchlight, including the canyon and on through to Cedar City in Utah.

It took the Santa Fe a number of years to get into Searchlight, but more rapid action may be expected on the Eldorado branch, for the reason that the district presents great possibilities in the way of outgoing traffic. Searchlight, with its free milling ores, is a comparatively small shipper, whereas, Eldorado base ores predominate.

The General Demandof the Well-Informed of the World has always been for a simple, pleasant and efficient liquid laxative remedy of known value; a laxative which physicians could sanction for family use because its component parts are known to them to be wholesome and truly beneficial in effect, acceptable to the system and gentle, yet prompt, in action.In supplying that demand with its excellent combination of Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna, the California Fig Syrup
Co. proceeds along ethical lines and relies on the merits of the laxative for its remarkable success.That is one of many reasons why Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna is given the preference by the Well-Informed.
To get its beneficial effects always buy the genuine—manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., only, and for sale titled to the strongest praise I can give them. I never placed much faith in patent medicines, but I can say I have derived more benefit from Doan's Kidney Pills than from any other remedy. Several years ago I began to notice indications of kidney complaint and my condition reached the state where I was an almost constant sufferer from pain in my back and trouble of an alarming nature existed with the kidney secretions. On one occasion the kidney secretions stopped altogether and I had to have a physician draw it from me. At that time I was employed as a locomotive engineer and had to give up this work, as the jar of the engine made the pain in my back beyond endurance. I suffered from pain across my loins and in both sides over my hips that I would have to get down in a chair and lean my back against something to support it. At night after I would retire I would not sleep any more than an hour before the pain would awaken me. About three months I learned about Doan's Kidney Pills and procured a supply. In a short time every difficulty was corrected and I have no trouble at all with my back and kidneys now. On occasions without number I have recommended Doan's Kidney Pills, and whatever I can say for them will always afford me pleasure."For sale by all dealers. Price, 50 is an absolute necessity. The town can't grow any more without it. We can't possibly advance any more un-already outgrown the old one and I

THEFT AND ASSAULT TAKEN INTO COURT

Two Men Who Drank Together Spent Night in a Cell Together, and Appear Before Jury Together.

After having slept in the same cell all night, with plenty of time to adjust their differences, J. C. Binkley and H. C. Vandeventer, both Santa Fe firemen, swore to separate complaints in Judge McClellan's court this morning, which may land them both in jail to await the action of the territorial grand jury next March.

Binkley and Vandeventer were arrested by the police last night at the Alamo saloon on the charge of fighting. For this offense each was sentenced to pay a fine of $15, but before returning to their joint cell, each asked the court to make a complaint against the other.

Binkley swore to a complaint charging Vandeventer with stealing $8.80 from him. He said that he met the defendant on First street last night and bought him a drink. He was slightly drunk himself. Vandeventer went home with him, and as the two sat in a swing at a south side rooming house, Vandeventer slipped his pocket book from his pocket. Judge McClellan asked him how he knew he took the money, and Binkley said that he saw him do it but did not know what he was doing until he went to his room. When he missed his money he came down town and finding Vandeventer, attacked him with a knife.

Vandeventer charged Binkley with assaulting him with a deadly weapon, and exhibited a number of cuts in his clothing. Binkley did not deny that he used the knife. When searched Binkley had 70 cents and Vandeventer had $8.80. Both men were given a preliminary hearing this afternoon.

POPULAR COUPLE MARRIED LAST NIGHT

Well Known People are Wedded and Will Make Future Home at Kettner.

A pretty little home wedding was solemnized yesterday afternoon by Rev. Fletcher Cook when Miss Minnie T. Baker and Mr. Robert Wilson were united in matrimony. The wedding took place at the residence of the brother of the bride, Ernest Baker, 607 North Twelfth street, and was attended only by Miss Edith Everitt, who acted as bridesmaid, and Mr. Ernest Baker as best man.

Both parties are well known in this city. Mr. Wilson being prominently connected with the American Lumber company at Kettner, N. M., while the bride, for some years past has filled the position as teacher at the Fourth ward school. After a wedding supper served the party at the Alvarado hotel, Mr. and Mrs. Wilson left for Kettner, where they will make their home in the future. Miss Baker's position at the Fourth ward school will be filled by Miss Meriam Cook, who has been elected to succeed her.

ARM DID NOT NEED BANDAGING

Dr. Pearce Says Boy Wanderer Is Romancing—Says He Cares for All Who Need It.

The boy who gave the name of Elmer Williamson, who said he was a chauffeur, formerly employed in Chicago, and who appealed to the police for his meals, stating that he was suffering from a broken arm, has been taken in charge by a local auto man, who is also a doctor. The boy is repairing the auto owner's machine, and in return will be provided with a railway ticket to Los Angeles, where he says he has a sister, and such medical attention as he may need, if any.

The boy several days ago said that the city physician had declined to dress his broken arm. Dr. Pearce, the city physician, said today that the reason he did not dress the arm was because it did not need dressing.

"When a fracture has once been properly set and the swelling or inflammation reduced, it should be left that way until the bones knit together. The oftener it is tampered with the more chances one takes of having trouble with the break. The boy came to my office and in reply to my questions, said the arm did not hurt him but that the bandage was soiled and he wanted it changed. I told him the arm was all right, as it was, and I would not molest it. He then left the office. In my private practice as well as city physician, I never turn down any deserving charity work."

BLOW THE WHISTLES WITH MODERATION

There Should be a Limit, Says Citizen Who Objects to the Noise on New Year's Eve.

"Let us use moderation in announcing the birth of the new year tonight," was the request of a prominent citizen today, in discussing the annual carnival of noise which is due to take place at midnight tonight.

"The principal objection to the blowing of whistles and the ringing of bells, to say nothing of the shooting of guns, is the fact that there are a number of seriously sick people in the city at present," continued the advocate of noiseless celebration. "I remember a few years ago that whistles were going for nearly an hour while a very dear friend of mine lay dying. It seemed to me then that there should be a limit. Let the whistle blow for five minutes and then quit. It would serve the same purpose."

THE BIG SHOW AT DENVER

The Denver stock show has grown in a few years into one of the leading national shows of the country. The fourth annual National Stock show which opens January 18 for a week, will dedicate the new amphitheatre, constructed at a cost of $200,000 and accommodating 10,000 people. The big feature of this show, however, is the business end. Stockmen from all parts of the west will be there with the finest car load exhibit of feeder cattle ever gathered. Buyers are coming from the east in force to purchase them. The pure blood breeders of the east are coming with their herds and the national record associations will hold public sales of the choicest individuals of their breeds, the idea being to still further improve the flocks and herds of the west. These sales provide an opportunity for the western breeder to secure the choicest animals at fair figures and be assured that they are getting of Herefords, Shorthorns, and Galloways, will be the best ever brought to the west and only the best individuals selected by a committee will be offered in the sales.

The modern stock show is the modern school of live stock agriculture. It was through the stock show that Europe built up their stock breeds, and it will be through the stock show that the west will finally come into its own as the greatest breeding ground in the world. No stockman or farmer can afford to miss the show if it is at all possible to get there.

Before buying call and see our list of residences. Prices $850 to $5,000. Vacant lots for sale. John Borradaile, corner Third and Gold.

TEMPERANCE SPEAKER TALKS TO TEACHERS

Representative of W. C. T. U. Gives Interesting Lecture, Which Is Interestingly Discussed.

Before a large assembly of teachers gathered from all over the territory to attend the meeting of the New Mexico Educational association, Mrs. Edith Smith Davis of Milwaukee, Wis., yesterday delivered a lecture on "The Effects of Narcotics and Alcohol on the Pupils of the Grades of the Public School System." The discussion which followed the speech of Mrs. Davis proved a most interesting one.

Mrs. Davis was brought to this city by the New Mexico W. C. T. U. for the purpose of delivering the address. She occupies the position of director of the bureau of scientific research and superintendent of the department of scientific temperance instruction in the public schools and colleges for the W. C. T. U.

While in the city Mrs. Davis will be the guest of Mrs. N. C. Nutter of 515 South High street. She expects to leave for her home in Wisconsin next Monday. Tomorrow afternoon, before the Woman's club, Mrs. Davis will deliver another address on the subject of temperance.

DR. VINCENT LEADS A STRENUOUS LIFE

Lecturing Is Only a Small Part of His Daily Routine, as Exemplified by His Activity in Albuquerque.

Dr. George Edgar Vincent, who last night delivered his second lecture to an Albuquerque audience, "The Mind of the Mob," again surprised his listeners by the rapidity of his speech and his "whirlwind" action. He last night in getting started and he wasted no time after that. He is the most active lecturer ever in Albuquerque, but his activity is not confined to the platform by any means.

Dr. Vincent arrived at noon Monday. Within a few minutes he was mounted on a pony and in company with several friends, was riding until 5:30. Within a short time after he returned he appeared in evening clothes and then attended a dinner party. Later he gave his first lecture and after that was a principal figure at the reception given to the visiting educators. The next morning he was up at 7 o'clock and as soon as he had breakfasted, mounted a pony which was awaiting him, carried a lunch and spent the day riding. He returned to his hotel at 5:30 and there found a friend awaiting him.

"Let us walk and talk," said Dr. Vincent, and he led the way. They walked and talked for an hour. Dr. Vincent keeping up his "whirlwind" comment. Then they returned to the hotel and Dr. Vincent, dressed evening clothes and attended another dinner. Then he gave his second lecture. This morning he was up before seven and took a long walk, returning to his hotel for breakfast, and finishing just in time to board No. 2 for the east.

WOMEN WILL KEEP OPEN HOUSE TOMORROW

A Lecture and Program at the Woman's Club to Which Strangers Are Invited.

The Woman's Club will hold open house at the Woman's club rooms Friday afternoon from 2 until 6. A cordial invitation is extended to every stranger in the city. Refreshments will be served. A program will be given in which Mrs. Edith Smith Davis will give a 20 minutes talk on scientific temperance. Mrs. Davis is a great temperance worker and her talk will be one of great interest. The following program will be given: Piano Solo—Selected, Miss Hesselden. Piano Solo—Selected, Miss Olney. Talk—Scientific Temperance. G. A. Albright. Mrs. Edith Smith Davis. Solo—What the Chimney Sings. F. B. Schwenker. Piano Solo—Frost of the Rockies. Miss Marguerite Cartwright.

THE BOYS' BAND FORGING AHEAD

They Are Presented With a Substantial Check and Plan a Concert for the Near Future.

In return for a serenade given in his honor in front of the Sturges hotel last evening, William McIntosh emerged from the hotel and with a few well chosen words presented the Leonard and Lindemann Boys' band with a check for $100 to be used as they see fit for the betterment of the organization. The money has already been deposited in one of the banks by the president and treasurer, William F. Myer, and a vote of thanks is being prepared by the boys to be presented to Mr. McIntosh.

The Leonard and Lindemann music store is twice a week the scene of the gathering for practice of the 25 members of the band, whose ages run all the way from 10 years to 19. Under the personal direction of Prof. Fred K. Ellis, the band has been transformed from a few members of moderate ability to an organization which now numbers twenty-five or more players whose music can be favorably compared with efforts of much older bands throughout the country. A concert is being planned by the boys to be given in the Elks' theater some time in February and as the members of the band have offered their services quite freely on various occasions in the past, the event promises to be well patronized.

The following is the list of the names of the players as well as the instruments on which they perform: William F. Myer, president and treasurer, bass; Henry Clark, vice president, bass; Charles Boatright, secretary, snare drum; Dick Guy, bass drum; Frank Guy, slide trombone; Harold Mace, slide trombone; Mira Pixley, trombone; Antonio Nicolaci, baritone; Charles Clarke, baritone; Len Overton, bass; Henry Pomerank, cornet; Gusseppe Nicolaci, cornet; Charles Bruno, cornet; William Pomerank, solo alto; Walter Clarke, alto; Ray Carson, alto; Henry Fleming, clarinet; Charles Birtman, clarinet; Ira Pixley, clarinet; Grande, clarinet; Roy Yott, piccolo; King Stacy, saxophone; William Kieko, snare drum; W. H. Ryan, bass; Diamante Grande, clarinet; Nienote Grande, alto.

LOCAL ITALIANS COLLECTING FUNDS

A considerable sum of money has been collected among local Italians and others, for the benefit of the sufferers from the terrible earthquake in Southern Italy.

The committee in charge of the work today gave a fairly accurate list of subscribers for publication and the names of contributors will be added to the list in the Citizen from day to day. The committee stated that all contributions could be made through any of the banks, and at other public places where cards will be posted tomorrow.

"If we are to accomplish real good by our work," said a member of the committee today, "it is necessary that all those who desire to contribute shall do so at once, because the money must be sent to Denver to the Italian consul and from there to Italy, which takes time. Every minute that we delay in this work, there may be hundreds dying for want of a little food or medicine. According to the press dispatches of the Citizen, the calamity is much worse than was at first announced, and we are therefore all the more anxious to assist in the work of relief. We hope that all nationalities will assist us in this task and that every one will give something, if only a little."

The following list covers the subscriptions received by the committee up until this morning:

FAMOUS SCHOOL IS AGAIN OPEN

Warsaw University Which Figured In Revolution Resumes Work After Two Years.

Warsaw, (Poland), Dec. 31.—After being closed for over two years and a half the University of Warsaw, the only center of "higher" education in all Russian Poland, is again open. It was closed soon after the notorious "Red Sunday," when the czar ordered the crowds to be fired upon in St. Petersburg. This event, as will be remembered, was followed by disturbances all over the empire. Warsaw was not behind in this, and the students were the most active. Meeting together in the university, they passed a resolution that they would turn out all the Russian professors and have the lectures delivered in Polish, and swore to boycott the Russians till they were replaced by Poles. Then they tore the czar's portrait down from the walls and cut it into pieces.

The natural result was that the Cossacks surrounded the university buildings and arrested some 600 students. Although most of them had been averse to insulting the czar's portrait, this act of violence did them a great deal of harm. The building was closed and their demands and petitions to have a Polish instead of a Russian university ignored. Efforts were made by Russian reactionaries to remove the university altogether from Poland and open one in Eastern Russia instead. But those professors who wished to stay in Warsaw prevailed and their institution has just been reopened with the comparatively small number of 600 students. But the government has been firm about the language in which the lectures are to be delivered—Russian is to be used, and Russian alone. So the Polish element has boycotted the place. There are only thirty-eight entered, and even these are doubtful. The rest of the students are mostly the worst type of Russian anarchist propagandists. So uproarious are they that they have even prevented decent Russians from entering the university. The quieter portion of the town population is aghast at this inrush of unruly youths, most of whom have been expelled from all the universities in Russia and found a haven in Warsaw, because the government wants a "Russian" university there at all costs.

Strange as it may seem to western ideas, these students do not come to learn, nor to get that "tone" which universities give in other parts of the world. Sports are of course, unknown. The Warsaw university students' exercise consists in walking very slowly up the principal street and making rude remarks to the women he passes. He is an unhealthy looking creature, the product of under-feeding and of vicious habits. Coming as he does from the depths of Russia, he never saw a white linen collar before. He possesses one red cotton shirt cut low at the neck and held in at the waist by a leathern belt. His trousers being bought from some second hand clothes dealer have been made either too large or too small for his limbs. Over the shirt he wears a short coat or a flowing cape. High boots and a cap with a faded blue band, complete his costume. His hair flows over his shoulders—and he never shaves. He never goes into the lecture rooms of his university either, except his fellow students call a political meeting, when they flock to the building in such crowds that a detachment of soldiers is told over to keep order outside.

The Russian universities are nearly all alike in this. As only a few new members go out of curiosity the professors read—or mumble—their lectures to empty benches. At the end of the term those who want to pass their examinations read up their course at home and trust to Providence for the rest. Generally, Providence is good to them. The examinations are carried on in a peculiar way. A large urn stands in the middle of the hall and the candidate draws a ticket therefrom. These tickets have numbers which correspond to the numbers on the examination papers prepared by the professor—and which do not change one whit during generations. If he draws No. 8 the professor asks him question 8 and lets him go. Of course, it often happens that the candidate only reads up for question No. 9 or No. 7, and knows nothing whatever of No. 8. But in Warsaw at any rate this does not much matter. The professors knowing the desperate class of youths they have to do with and fearing that severity will result in disturbances and consequently in the closing of the university, let them down lightly.

Needless to say, the professors are not much better than the students, for the simple reason that no civilized men could stand the present state of affairs. The ignorance of the Warsaw university lecturer has long been proverbial and now that the best of them have resigned the rest are beneath criticism. In fact, many of them were never trained as teachers. One who lectures on Universal History is very well versed in the art of making cutlets. Some years ago when the notorious Apuchtin was educational minister of Poland, a professor was needed suddenly for the Warsaw university. Apuchtin wired to a friend in St. Petersburg: "Send me a history teacher at once. Old one dead." The telegraph clerk twisted the message into: "Send me a good cook at once," so the friend sent a man he could thoroughly recommend by the next train. Apuchtin was astonished when the new professor presented his certificates—but by no means nonplussed. "Do you know who Napoleon was?" he asked. "Yes, your excellency," was the prompt reply. "He was the man who gave the name to the apple cakes with puffy paste." "You'll do—begin your lectures tomorrow," said the great man. And from that day the cook began to read history to four empty walls and a doorkeeper of the Warsaw university.

And although the cook-professor is rather an extreme case, not very much more can be said for the Russian university professor in general, and the Warsaw university professor in particular.

"HANS AND NIX"

An important announcement in theatricals is the coming engagement of the clever comedians, Dixon and Bernard, in the smart musical comedy, "Hans and Nix," which comes to the Elks' theatre January 4.

The piece will have the advantage of handsome stage setting and elaborate gowns, for the subject which the play is based—admits of almost endless display in these lines, while the musical accomplishment will be varied and many at the proper time.

Much stress is laid on the chorus, which in voice and beauty is said to compare more than favorably with that dashing contingent known as the New York Casino girl. An unusual cast has been selected to interpret the various characters, and includes the original candy kid ballet.

JUST ONE HALF OF THE PEOPLE ARE POOR

Very Few Families in the United States Save Anything. Says an Official.

Atlantic City, Dec. 31.—Somewhat startling statements were made with convincing force by George M. Holmes of the United States department of agriculture, in the course of an address in which he discussed the question: "How Far Should Family Wealth Be Encouraged and Conserved?" before the American Sociological society last night.

Mr. Holmes' address began with the premise that there is ample field for efforts to encourage the accumulation of wealth by the family. About one-half of the families in the United States, the speaker said, are poor in the sense that their wealth is confined mostly to personal and household belongings and the implements of occupation. This statement was fortified by reference to the census statistics of farm and home tenure and real estate mortgage indebtedness, and also to the classification of occupations and the comparatively low annual earnings received in many of them.

Family savings out of wage and salary earnings, the speaker asserted, are comparatively little, and they are mostly derived from returns to capital, either as interest, or as rent paid by real estate tenants, or as unearned increment to land values, or as pure profit.

While a large fraction of the families are poor in possessions, a large fraction of these, he said, have income sufficient for a rather high degree of well-being, and, in fact, income goes mostly to sustain a high standard of living. At the same time there is a large degree of unproductive consumption of no benefit to the family and often detrimental. Mr. Holmes went on to say, in substance:

"When we observe the general appearance of well-being throughout the land, the inference is that wealth is well distributed, and, on the other hand, when we are confronted with the probable distribution in fact, we are horrified at the dreadful condition of humanity that it is assumed to indicate."

It is a popular fallacy that savings banks indicate saving by the poor, these banks are more properly investment institutions than savings banks.

The popular misunderstanding of the annual reports of the United States bureau of labor concerning wages and cost of food was explained and the statement made that the purchasing power of wage earnings decreases in so-called prosperous times and increases in periods of industrial depression, except in so far as want of employment may qualify the latter conclusion.

Emphasis was placed upon the unfitness of a large proportion of the people, not only to produce wealth, but to save it. Business failures are referred to, most of which, the speaker attributed to unfitness. There are the lazy, the mentally incapable, the sick, weak and deformed, the criminal natures, the degenerate, and the stultified. It requires a mighty good inheritance to enable a man to subordinate present satisfaction to future good and greater future satisfaction; therefore, income disappears in present consumption."

The wastefulness of the people received attention, and also the common inability of persons safely to invest their savings, or to employ their savings as productive capital. A majority of men can work for others better than for themselves. About two-thirds of the persons having gainful occupations work for wages and salaries. The argument of Mr. Holmes future good and greater future satisfaction; therefore, income disappears in present consumption."

NEW 6-DAY BIKE CHAMPIONS

MORAN AND MCFARLAND.
This team won the six-day bicycle race at Madison Square Garden. It was McFarland, the giant Californian, whose sprint carried him to the fore in the last mile, while 12,000 frenzied spectators yelled deliriously to the competitors.

favor of voluntary co-operation. He presented a comprehensive statement of the prevalence of varieties of voluntary co-operation, carried on by farmers to illustrate how effective it can be when applied to the encouragement of family wealth.

The concluding point made by Mr. Holmes was that if the family is not disposed to accumulate wealth, with such encouragement as will be given by co-operative association, the state would better keep its hands off. It is fundamentally a question of responsibility. If the unit will not respond to suggestions and offers of help, let them go. Do not deny to the unit the extinction of their kind. It is a damage to society to enforce the preservation of those who will not help themselves."

MANY STATUES WILL SOON BE ERECTED

Washington to Have Figures of Naval and Army Officers and Patriots.

Washington, Dec. 31.—The location in this city of statues of John Paul Jones and Commodore John Barry, both of whom are heralded as the "Father of the American navy," by their respective admirals, will prove a difficult task for the special commission charged with that duty. The commission consists of the secretary of war, the secretary of the navy and the chairman of Senate and House committees on the library.

For each statue Congress appropriated $50,000, but no action has been taken to decide the controverted question relating to the navy's pedigree. It is for this reason that the location of the effigies is regarded as important, as the prominence accorded each of the heroes in the matter of location will be supposed to give some indication as to their respective merits in the competition for the honor of being the "Father of the Navy."

Some time ago it was proposed to place these statues face to face on a single site, but that was opposed by adherents of each of the heroes. Many sites have been suggested, but up to the present time there has been no action looking to a determination of the question. The statue of John Paul Jones is now under way and a competition will soon be entered upon to decide who will be the favored sculptor for the making of the statue of Barry.

Work is now in progress for a statue of General Grant to be erected west of the capitol grounds, but this will not be completed before two years.

About twenty models have been submitted for a heroic statue of Columbus to be located in front of the new Union station.

Next spring statues of John Witherspoon, signer of the Declaration of Independence, and of Longfellow, the poet, will be presented to the government by the memorial associations and they will be erected in this city.

Other statues which have been provided for by Congress and will be erected in the near future are those of Von Steuben, Pulaski and Kosciuszko.

Good Cough Medicine for Children.
The season for coughs and colds is now at hand and too much care can not be used to protect the children. A child is much more likely to contract diphtheria or scarlet fever when he has a cold. The quicker you cure his cold the less the risk. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is the sole reliance of many mothers, and few of those who have tried it are willing to use any other. Mrs. F. P. Starcher, of Ripley, W. Va., says: "I have never used anything other than Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for my children and it has always given good satisfaction." This remedy contains no opium or other narcotic and may be given as confidently to a child as to an adult. For sale by all druggists.

PLANS OF JEWS WILL SURELY SUCCEED

A Leader Discusses the Zion Movement and the Question of Nationality.

New York, Dec. 31.—The Rev. H. Maslansky of Brooklyn, a leader in the Zionist movement, is a Jew who has the gift of language, that faculty which made the Bible such excellent literature. He's a Jewish orator who thinks in tropes and ponders in metaphors. By the fervor of his words and the insinuating melody of his voice he plays upon the Jewish heart and rouses his people for the militant march to nationality. In twenty years Mr. Maslansky has spoken to a million of his people on two continents and he is their hero.

"Why does the Jew want to preserve his nationality?" he was asked. "Nationality is the very life of a people," he replied. "Without it they become dispirited, ambitious and easy to oppress."

"You may argue that the American has no nationality. He is not a type, you say. He is a mixture of Swede, German and colonist. He has many creeds. Americans may say they would not follow the flag to war because it does not represent their political ideals; that they would not fight for it."

"You can say that. An American could mount a platform and harangue an audience with those sentiments. But let a Jew declare that the Stars and Stripes are nothing to him and he would be mobbed. His utterance would be taken as the views of the race. The race would have to bear the brunt. That's what makes us a nationality. You Gentiles have done it. You force nationality upon us."

"Then you believe the Jews' aloofness is as much the result of the Gentiles' attitude as the Jews' own yearning for isolation and nationality?"

"Certainly. The spirit of race is strong in every people. The Gentiles would not mingle with the Jews. A Gentleman would feel her heart break if her son or daughter chose a Jew."

"Do you hope to have all Jews return to Palestine, then?"

"No. Such an aim would be ridiculous. Only the Jews from lands of oppression are expected to return."

"Could Palestine support a large population?"

"Yes, the soil is rich. Together with Transjordan and Mesopotamia it would support 63 millions."

"Do you expect to get 63 million people there?"

"No. There are not 63 million Jews on the face of the earth. There are only 12 million."

"Why did you choose Palestine for the new Zion?"

"From purely sentimental and historical reasons."

"If the soil is rich why is the country not already densely populated?"

"Because of the Turkish regime and nomadic character of the Arab population. They hate the soil. When they tire of one locality they pull up their tent pegs and move on. The primary source of wealth to the Jews will be agriculture. The main idea is self-support. To subsidize the movement would be to pauperize the people."

"The resources of the country will all be developed. The Palestine industrial syndicate has been organized to take over the mining concessions along the coast of the Dead sea. The principal products are sulphur, asphalt, guano and coal. Already there is established a school for applied arts to teach the young native born Jews the art of weaving, iron masonry, marble work and making plaster casts. This is called the Bezalel school. It was founded by a young sculptor of St. Louis, who gave up his profession to go to Palestine and serve without pay. David Wolfsohn, the head of the organization, addressed the new Turkish Parliament about ten days ago, assuring that body that the Jews have no designs on Palestine inimical to the Turkish government."

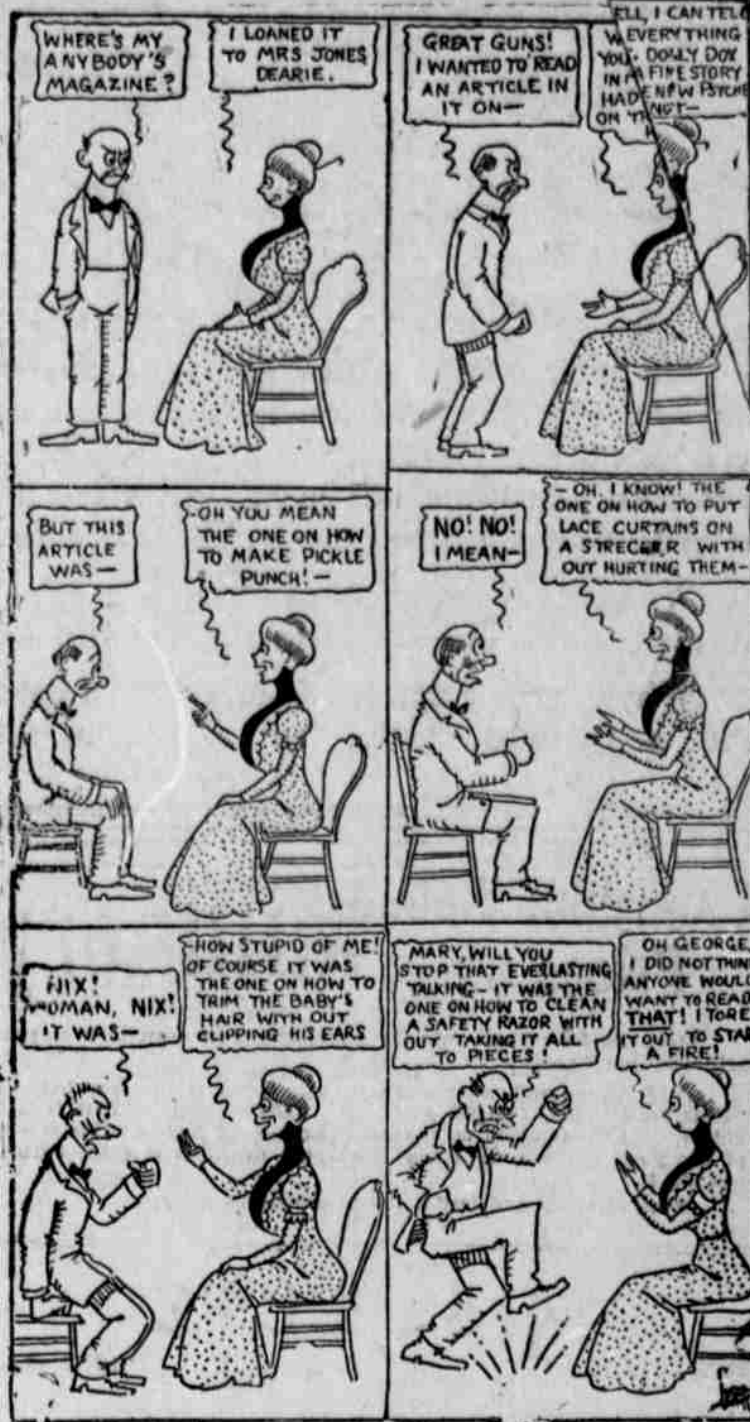

Muscular Pains Cured.

"During the summer of 1903 I was troubled with muscular pains in the instep of my foot," says Mr. S. Pedlar, of Toronto, Ont. "At times it was so painful I could hardly walk. Chamberlain's Pain Balm was recommended to me, so I tried it and was completely cured by one small bottle. I have since recommended it to several of my friends, all of whom speak highly of it." INTEREST IN NORDICA

It is seldom that any great musician wins the esteem and personal interest of the public to such an extent as has Mme. Nordica. How ever great they may have been it is invariably true that the interest is confined almost entirely to their artistic triumphs. Such is not true, however, in the case of Mme. Nordica. Every item regarding her life and personal characteristics is received with interest by literally millions of readers. The fact that she maintains three beautiful homes—one in New York, one on the Hudson and one in Paris, is well known to many, but the question arises—Is she, too, going to waste the earnings of her successful years in extravagant living and, in the end, be reduced to such straits as those of which we read concerning other great singers who have gone before? Those who know her best, however, realize that such an outcome is impossible. While the Madam lives in a manner worthy of a princess and has a small army on her pay roll, besides being the personification of generosity, she has a keen perception of values that has enabled her to invest her surplus earnings in securities that are absolutely safe and yield good returns. Of course her social position puts her into personal contact with many who control large interests, but she relies upon her own judgment in choosing between the opportunities offered her. She is not a manipulator, but a "buyer," and many of her friends rely upon her judgment in matters of investment. So each year she has gone on adding to her holdings, until now she is one of the wealthiest women in the country, though not parsimonious, for her purse is always open to the unfortunate, for Nordica has not forgotten the old days, nor the hard trials through which she passed on her road to fame. Nordica comes to the Elks' theatre January 9.

TWO GIRLS HOLD

HOMESTEAD TITLE

They Lived on a Claim Near Logan, N. M., and Rather Enjoyed the Experience.

The following dispatch appeared recently in an eastern newspaper, telling of the experience of two girls in homesteading a claim near Logan, N. M.:

Alton, Ill., Dec. 26.—Miss Rosa Krinard, 21 years old, who, with a girl chum, staked out a claim on the New Mexico plains, lived there with her gun and broncho for eight months and won a title to 160 acres of good land by her pluck, is back at home in Upper Alton, with a fine coat of tan, skill in marksmanship and a spirit of independence that few girls know anything about. Miss Krinard is a daughter of Mrs. Mary Krinard of Manning street, Upper Alton. She had known Miss Rosa Ritter of San Antonio for several years. The girls decided to enter a claim in New Mexico and selected a spot 15 miles from Logan, N. M. The nearest neighbor was six miles away.

"At first we kept our guns with us in bed and shivered with fright every night," she says, "but soon we grew accustomed to being alone and left our doors open even though coyotes howled all around at night. We lived in a stone house 11x12 feet, which we built ourselves. We learned how to shoot and how to ride. We studied farming and raised 90 acres of fine Kaif corn. We spent a good deal of time in the saddle and rode a great deal. Sometimes we rode over and took dinner with the cowboys on a ranch ten miles distant. They were a fine lot of fellows, and taught us Spanish, which was useful, as we were near the Mexican border."

The girls were known as "Rose and Rosa," and their claim as "Rose-dale." Miss Krinard says now that the title to the claim is theirs, they will not live there any more. She says a delegation of cowboys was at the depot in Logan to bid them a noisy farewell when they departed several days ago.

TO DECLARE WAR ON THE LOAN "SHARK"

A National Organization Will Be Formed to Combat This Growing Evil.

Chicago, Dec. 31.—A national organization to fight the loan shark evil, particularly the "salary loan" extortion, has been decided upon as a necessity to successfully cope with the different problems produced by varying state laws and conditions. M. B. Wellington of the Legal Aid Society of Chicago, has sent out letters to all the larger cities where organizations exist, asking for data upon the amount of capital employed, the forms of notes, "confessed judgments" and salary assignments used and the rate of interest at which small chattel loans can be made with reasonable profit. The total amount of capital of "loan shark" offices in the United States is put at $25,000,000, of which sum it is known that $3,600,000 is employed by the 125 different offices in Chicago, a sum larger than that employed in New York, according to figures of a recent report paid by the Russell Sage Foundation, or in any city in the United States. The rates charged for small loans in New York are the highest—the actual cost of short time loans, when extra fees, "brokerage," "protest fees" and unjust "collection charges" are added, being in many cases as high as 173 per cent per annum. No philanthropy has yet taken up in the west the investigation of this subject thoroughly, to point the practical means to save people who must borrow from such extortioners and to provide a humane substitute. A bill will soon be submitted to the Illinois legislature to limit the rate charged to 4 per cent a month instead of 10 to 20 per cent now charged. Authorities have found in Illinois that though the loan venter was an outlaw, his right to interest above the legal 7 per cent cannot be contested if once paid, although it frequently amounts to more than the principal originally borrowed. The loans are found to average about $50 and the net profits of the outlaw lenders to average from 35 to 50 per cent after the expenses of scattered offices and losses are paid.

Marked for Death. "Three years ago I was marked for death. A graveyard cough was tearing my lungs to pieces. Doctors failed to help me, and hope had fled, when my husband got Dr. King's New Discovery," says Mrs. A. C. Williams, of Bae, Ky. "The first dose helped me and improvement kept on until I had gained 58 pounds in weight and my health was fully restored." This medicine holds the world's healing record for coughs and colds and lung and throat diseases. It prevents pneumonia. Sold under guarantee at all druggists. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free.
