took place today at the Imperial Palace and later presented to Emperor Yoshihito a letter from President Huerta, thanking his majesty for Japan's participation in Mexico's centenary celebration. After the presentation of the letter the emperor decorated the Mexican special envoy with the Grand Cordón of the Order of Paulownia.

As Señor de La Barra entered the carriage which took him to the palace, he was cheered by a crowd which had gathered about the hotel.

TORRES PRESENTED WITH DECISION BY SHEARN

Lightweight Bout Ends Unsatisfactorily at New Mexico A. C. Gym; Referee Severely Criticized.

The scheduled ten-round bout between Torres and Matthews at the New Mexico Athletic Club gymnasium, ended in a victory for Torres in the seventh round, when Referee "Pat" Shearn presented Torres with the decision on "knock out".

The end came unexpectedly and the blow, which Shearn declared foul, appeared to many spectators to have been perfectly fair—a clean right hook to the stomach. That it was not foul was strengthened by the fact that Torres evidenced no pain, made no claim that a foul had been committed, and apparently was just as greatly surprised at the sudden termination of the bout by the referee as was Matthews, who protested against the stopping of the bout and the awarding of the verdict to his opponent.

It is unfortunate that the bout ended as it did for Torres had secured a lead that undoubtedly would have earned him a clean-cut victory in points had the contest gone the full ten rounds. Matthews, however, might have terminated in an untimely manner by his opponent, who appeared to be a very strong fighter as the bout neared the close, though he was fighting desperately to save off defeat.

Yesterday's bout established one thing conclusively and that is that a referee who knows his business and who can use his eyes and his head, is absolutely necessary for the boxing game here is to be maintained at the high standard previously set by Mike Levy's fight club, who, perhaps rightfully, had cautioned Matthews in the preceding rounds for roughness and hitting low, but he called a foul at the wrong time, in the opinion of many fans present.

Because of rumors that the bout between Torres and Matthews was "fixed" and other talk along these lines, Director Levy announced that to protect himself and the club he would "decide" any fight, and also added that Shearn had "consented" to referee the match only on condition that all bets be declared off.

Torres was the first to enter the ring. He looked well, but his condition for a championship battle. There was considerable delay caused by Matthews' slowness in putting in an appearance. After his arrival, the boys were given their instructions and the bell changed for the opening round.

Matthews started out to force the millinery. However, he found he was up against Torres' awkward style of boxing—confined chiefly to a "shell-like" crouch, making it possible to hit him only on the top of the head or on his back. The first round was slow.

In the second, Torres assumed the "offensive" and the boys fought. Though the local boy preferred to have the St. Louisan to the landing, attempting each time to beat him to the punch. Failing in this, the boys ducked into his impenetrable crouch. The fans yelled for him to "come out of it," "stand up and fight," "get him a bed," and a few other choice invectives. But Torres was deaf to their cries. He was too busy with his tripping and fell during a fierce exchange of wallop of a haymaker variety.

It was in the third round that Torres scored a commanding lead. A right swing to the chin of Matthews' chin fairly upset him, he turning a handspike on the canvas, but not going down for the count. Torres repeated the trick a few minutes later, the blow producing almost the identical result, a handspike on the part of Matthews.

Though Matthews tried hard in the fourth to even up the score, Torres was too strong, willing and aggressive for him. The St. Louisan answered to be tired, and though occasionally he would land a right cross or a left hook to the jaw or wind that would force Torres to cover, he was for the most part kept busy covering for himself. In fact both boys did entirely too much "hugging" to make the bout interesting, and in these tactics each appeared to rough it more or less. It was in these clinches that Matthews was cautioned by the referee for hitting low.

The fifth and sixth rounds were undoubtedly Torres' on aggressiveness, though in the exchanges honors appeared to be about even, except for the fact that Torres had the harder wallop and never seemed to tire or show any signs of slowing up, while Matthews, after a flash, was forced to check himself in an effort to get his bearings and fathom out some ring trick by which he might win over a winning punch on his husky opponent.

The seventh saw Torres leading, though Matthews did not appear to be in distress, other than that he was unable to reach Torres' rushes and his "evolution punch," made famous by Johnny Dundee, but used with considerably less gracefulness than the New Yorker executes the "flying wallop." The eighth round was a minute old, during an exchange in Matthews' corner. Torres had whipped a right swing to the head and tried a left uppercut to the chin. Matthews beat him to this punch by planting a solid right hook to the stomach, above the belt line. The boys were not clinched and the blow for which Matthews was disqualified by the referee was easily seen and landed cleanly, in not more cleanly than several blows previously. However, Shearn, who appeared to have made up his mind that Matthews was determined to lose by a foul, lost his head and jumped between the fighters, shoving Matthews into his corner and raising Torres' hand as the winner amid the cheers of the Albuquerque boxers and the jeers of Matthews' friends.

A demonstration for Torres then took place and he was carried from the ring on the shoulders of some of the more enthusiastic fans.

PRELIMINARIES FURNISH SUCCESSION OF THRILLS

The preliminaries furnished a succession of thrills which served to put the assembled fans on edge for the main event. The six-round curtain raiser, between Patsy Cline and Harry Cruse was a whirlwind affair, the two boys traveling at a pace that had both very tired at the close of the bout. Cline showed unusual ease in his initial appearance, and had Cruse groggy toward the close, but he had fought himself out and couldn't stop him. He, himself, was in danger several times of being put to sleep. This bout was called a draw by Director Levy, who officiated as referee.

In the semi-final, Barney Kurtz and Ed Gilfeather clashed in a scheduled eight-round go on a winner-take-all basis. Kurtz won handily by a knock-out at the quarter of the seventh round. In fact the bell saved Gilfeather in the sixth, after he had been knocked down four times. In this round, Gilfeather showed signs of being knocked out, and the referee, who was in the fifth round, went with head lowered and gloves flying, he sailed into Kurtz "a la Jim Flynn," only to be battered by right and left hooks and swings that soon had him backing up. Gilfeather gave all he had in this session in an effort to win by a lucky punch, but he failed and the victory of Kurtz was manifestly apparent from this round on. Gilfeather was not in any too good condition, being fat and short of wind, while Kurtz appeared trained to the minute. Harry Shearn refereed this contest.

CHALLENGES READ FROM MATTHEWS AND O'Rourke

Before the main event began, challenges from Tommy O'Rourke, of Cincinnati, and Santa Fe, and Danny Matthews, of Fresno, who recently stopped Frankie Gage at Prescott, Ariz., in five rounds, were announced from the ring.

Danny Matthews is now said to be on his way to Albuquerque from his home at Flagstaff, in search of a bout here, and it is more than likely he will be sent against Torres in the near future. It is believed Torres has demonstrated enough to fight any ordinarily good lightweight. But set, Torres is too inexperienced, boxing experts say, to be sent against any of the near top-notchers, though they agree that he is plenty good enough to take on Rocky Yankins, who is considered the peer of southwestern lightweight.

Director Levy also announced that Vie Hanson and Al Smoulding, mid-dleweights, would box New Year's day in this city. Hanson, a Jack Johnson, of Juarez, Mexico, Sunday and will come here immediately after that bout to meet Smoulding.

The managers and coaches of the Rocky Mountain institutions will meet tomorrow to arrange an athletic schedule for next year. RABBI BERGMANN TAKES CHARGE OF TEMPLE ALBERT

NEW MINISTER ARRIVES FROM DENVER; DR. SILBER TO PREACH LATE P.M. SERMON TODAY, AFTER RECEIVING HONORS.

That Albuquerque citizens are not indifferent to the advantages of an independent line of railroad running into the city connecting Farmington and Roswell, and that on the other hand, they are willing to contribute liberally to such an enterprise, regardless of who the promoters of it may be, has been fully evidenced by the development of the last two or three days.

Following upon the visit to Albuquerque of Herbert Green, the Chicago banker and promoter who organized the Gulf, New Mexico & Pacific Railroad company and who asserts that he will take the New Mexico Central out of the hands of a receiver, complete the construction of the Albuquerque Eastern and extend the line of both companies as far as this city a new and independent railroad, there has been great activity among the business men of Albuquerque for the purpose of putting the city definitely on record in regard to the construction of a new railroad into the city.

As a result of this activity a movement is now on foot to raise a subscription list, pledged to the contribution of a bond to any company or set of individuals who will undertake to complete a new railroad into Albuquerque between the points Albuquerque with Moriarty, the junction point between the Albuquerque Eastern and the New Mexico Central. The bonds will be available to anybody who actually builds such a road.

In starting this movement, the business men of the city are convinced that they do not intend any reflection upon Mr. Green or his associates in the newly formed corporation. On the contrary, the idea is to have the first opportunity to take advantage of the offer that is made. They wish merely to make it clear that Albuquerque wants a new railroad and is not particularly interested in just as it is at the present time, that it is being secured by the business men of the city, to complete a definite sum of money to be pledged for the construction of a railroad along the lines proposed by Mr. Green and his associates, fifty per cent to be paid in cash when the road is constructed and the balance to be paid in bonds when the road is completed.

Dr. Silber will leave for New Orleans tomorrow, the latter part of this week, to attend the annual convention of the American Medical Association, which will be held at the new work by the first of the new year.

BOY MURDERER MAY ESCAPE DEATH PENALTY

Los Angeles, Dec. 25.—Louis Bundy, the boy who confessed he killed Harold Ziebach, 15 years old, in a drug store near the city jail, was refused to eat the food at the city jail.

By telling Police Judge Chambers that he was not yet 18 years of age, although he previously said he was between 18 and 19, the youth has delayed his arraignment on a charge of murder. If his father also swears the boy is not 18, the case probably will be transferred to the juvenile court.

Bundy telephoned an order several days ago to a cracker, asking that change for $20 accompany his delivery, and then murdered Ziebach, the messenger, that he might buy with the loot, a Christmas present for a girl friend.

ORGANIZATION OF STATE GUARDS BY HUERTA

President Plans to Place 5,000 Militia in Charge of National Capital, Thereby Relieving Regulars.

Mexico City, Dec. 25.—President Huerta's plans of organizing state guards to act independently of a federal army is to be extended to the federal district. Announcement was made tonight that after January 1, a federal district garrison of 5,000 men would be entrusted to safeguard the capital and environs. This body is not to be subject to service elsewhere.

The federal district is like a territory in its organization and is not included in the general plan to enlist one thousand militia in every state. The men for the federal district guard are said to be already enlisted and prepared for the troops which have heretofore been kept for service in the capital.

UNEMPLOYED MEN DO COXEY ARMY ACT

Fresno, Calif., Dec. 25.—An organized band of 153 unemployed men, who have been here for the last three days, continued their march south today. They started for Sanger, twelve miles distant, where they expected to stay tonight.

A committee named at a mass meeting Tuesday night secured sufficient ration tickets to guarantee the men dinner and supper today. From Sanger it is said the unemployed will march to Porterville, stopping at other small towns enroute. It probably will be three weeks before they reach Bakersfield. The men have been well behaved and law-abiding.

This morning they passed a set of regulations thanking the city for its generosity.

CHRISTMAS TREES BESIDE BED OF CRIPPLED TOT

Carlisle Nielsen, 3 Years Old, Who Wondered if Santa Would Come to Hospital, Gets Many Presents.

When seven-year-old Carl Nielsen awoke yesterday morning at St. Joseph's hospital, he couldn't believe his eyes. Four Christmas trees borne down with toys stood about his bed. Carlisle rubbed his eyes and stared. He wasn't sure whether he was dreaming or awake, and started to get out of bed to find out if the trees were real, but sank back. Excited, Carlisle had forgotten that his leg had been cut off several weeks ago.

It was because of the amputation of his leg and the fact that Dr. G. S. McAndrew told him he would not be able to go home before Christmas, that caused Carlisle to wonder whether Santa Claus would visit him at the hospital. He knew he would not be able to leave the bed to hang up his stockings, and this added to his anxiety.

The Sisters and Dr. McAndrew learned what Carlisle was worrying about yesterday. The Sisters placed the trees near his bed and decorated them with toys, candy, nuts and other things that they had gotten for him and these sent by other persons.

Carl's father, H. E. Nielsen, 1022 North Third street, telephoned the hospital from his bed yesterday morning, to inquire about his son's condition, and learned how royally Santa had treated him. The father is all with tears and confidence in his home. A telephone was placed at his bedside, so he could call St. Joseph's whenever he wished to while Carlisle is there.

Mrs. Nielsen, who is caring for her husband, was unable to go to the hospital yesterday. However, the Sisters and nurses waited on the boy, taking him from his bed and setting him on the bed for him to play with.

The boy will be able to leave the hospital next month. The operation was successful and appears to have arrested the tubercular infection which made amputation necessary.

HELP YOURSELF, BENEFIT FRIENDS BY ENROLLING AS A CANDIDATE IN GREAT ASERVO SYSTEM CAMPAIGN

Your True Friends Will Welcome Your Entrance in Race to Girdle Globe; Others Don't Count; Privileges You Give to Subscribers More Than Ample Repays Them For Subscriptions.

There are not two days left in which to secure ballots for the next exhibit of points of repulsive candidates in the Morning Journal's "Round the World and Tropical Tour Campaign." Ballots will be accepted and counted up to 6 o'clock tomorrow (Saturday) night. It is advisable, however, to turn in your subscriptions daily and secure your ballots which you may cash at any time during the campaign.

Do not overlook the free coupons published in the Morning Journal daily. Also be sure they are mailed before the expiration date printed on the face of each. Every NEW subscriber you secure means just five extra points for YOU every day during the campaign. Have your friends save them for you or deposit them in your credit at the Tour Department. Also cash slips on Aservo System stores count double this week.

BUT DON'T SPEND TIME YOU COULD BE PUTTING IN SECURING A SUBSCRIBER ON COLLECTING COUPONS. One twelve-month subscription probably would take no longer to get than a year's worth of coupons. The twenty subscription would mean either 4,000 or 8,000 points. See the difference? Ballots obtained on subscriptions count much more rapidly than in any other manner.

The campaign has just started. If YOUR name is not in the list of candidates, see that it is entered NOW. Then wait right away until you have secured the points to secure one of the valuable awards. You will be surprised how easy it will be after you are fairly started. Come to the Tour Department and talk over your plans. Every bit of assistance possible will be given you.

Right now the question uppermost in the minds of many young women in Albuquerque, the state of New Mexico or northern Arizona is "Could I secure the tour of the world in the Morning Journal's campaign if I entered as a candidate?"

The answer is most emphatically "YES" if you go in with the proper determination to succeed. One young woman said yesterday: "Why, I am just crazy to go in and I think I could win, but my friends discourage me."

The term "friends" in this instance is a misnomer. They are not true friends who try to dissuade any young woman from attempting to secure such advantages as the Morning Journal offers them. Their "advice" is prompted from some other than a "friendly" reason. Possibly they class the Aservo System campaign with an ordinary contest and are afraid they will be called upon to pay in advance for the paper which they already take by the month—and on which possibly they owe a small subscription balance.

Their Advice Is Biased. Such "friends" have not YOUR best interest at heart. Their sentiment has a misleading attached or if not that, selfishness often prompts a dissuasive argument. Even though the winning of such a tour would mean wonderful advantages to the young woman, they often times cannot lose sight of "me" and for personal reasons try to prevent their sister, their sweetheart or their wife from enjoying the pleasure of such a trip—an enjoyment which possibly THEY never could afford to give them.

There is absolutely nothing of an undignified character in this race to "girdle the globe" at the expense of the Morning Journal. Every candidate may rest assured that she will be treated courteously by every man upon whom she calls. Insults are offered women in the business world only when they are prompted by word or action on the part of the woman herself. No candidate in the Morning Journal's "Round the World and Tropical Tour" campaign need fear insult. That class of candidates is not eligible.

Early Start Advisable. There is absolutely no ground reason why YOU should not enter the race. The campaign has just started. No one has a high point record so far. Many of the candidates have not yet even started their campaign. Others are waiting for the next list of candidates before becoming active. That is bad policy. Like the early bird that beats his fellows to the worm, the candidate in the field at the beginning of the campaign will have a better opportunity than her sister who is "trying to decide" whether or not she will enter. Active ballot-getting has just begun. There is ample room for

Do not delay longer. Do not allow your "friends" to dissuade you from your ambition to secure a tour of the world by your own efforts. Your TRUE friends will help you. There is no unpleasant publicity. Your name appears on a list of winners of numerous other aspirants for the same honor. The campaign is dignified in every respect and the fact that you are assisting your friends even more than yourself should eliminate any objection on the score of obtaining help for the material return.

Back at my old stand and will give all orders my personal attention. Quantity and quality guaranteed. Hugh Trotter, Coal and Wood.

FOOL OR FIEND.

The dreadful tragedy at Calumet, Mich., by which seventy-two people, nearly all children, were crushed to death during a panic at a Christmas celebration, was the work of a fool or a fiend—probably he was merely a fool who had no thought of the consequences of his act, a fool like the man who rocks the boat and snags a gun that he didn't know was loaded.

But whatever the motive of the man who shouted fire may have been, he will carry with him all of his life the vision of the seventy-two dead people, mostly children, piled in a heap in the hall where only a few moments before had been pleasure and joy and Christmas jollity.

That the act should have been inspired by the Citizens' league, formed in opposition to the strike which had been in progress in the copper mine region for the past five months, is unthinkable, and such suggestions, made by President Moyer, of the Western Federation of Miners, or any one else, have more than an inkling of the foolishness or the depravity of the man who shouted fire.

PARDONING CRIMINALS.

The Journal had occasion to point recently to the evils which inevitably follow wholesale pardoning of criminals. In the orderly and law-abiding state of North Dakota, the governor has pardoned six convicts, and the people of the town of Williston decided to take the law into their own hands and lynch a man who had just been sentenced to the penitentiary for life. He had wantonly murdered a whole family and should have been sentenced to death. Had the people believed that the life sentence would have been carried out, there would have been no lynching. But there was a well-grounded fear that a pardon would release him within a few years.

The worst offender in the matter of pardoning criminals is Governor Hise, of South Carolina. In two years he has turned loose above a thousand convicts. Here is the story of one of them as told in the news columns of the Columbia state.

When Hise became governor, nearly three years ago, James Jeter was in the penitentiary for murder, serving a life sentence. Hise pardoned him, though he had served only seven years of his term. Jeter had been out about a week when he was caught robbing a house. He was released after signing an agreement to leave the county in which the crime was committed. He showed his appreciation of the leniency by shooting the officer who was escorting him to the county line. In the fight, Jeter was also shot and taken to the county hospital, from which he escaped on crutches. He was arrested and taken to jail, where he attempted to kill the jailer.

For these minor offenses, he was tried and sentenced to the penitentiary for a term of two years. He was again pardoned by Governor Hise. Where this beneficiary of the governor's clemency will locate is not known, as he has been out of prison for only a few days. It is probable that he will remain in South Carolina during Hise's incumbency. After that he may take up his criminal career in some other state, but wherever he goes he will be a menace to society.

Whatever may be said for or against the administration of Governor William C. McDonald in New Mexico, he has refused to prostitute his office to the pardoning of criminals rightly sentenced to the penitentiary. Where he has exercised that power it has been because of circumstances making it plain that there had been a miscarriage of justice.

LESSON FOR REPUBLICANS.

The passage of the currency bill should cause the republican party to reflect. It was a subject of legislation which the republican leaders had known for a long time should be taken up and settled, but they failed to do it.

The republicans should have acted when they were returned to power in 1896 with a mandate to establish the gold standard. After the election of 1900, when the republicans were confirmed in power by the re-election of McKinley, was another opportune time. But for fourteen years of unquestioned power, the party dabbled with the question and did nothing. During the same period the party dabbled with the tariff and finally did worse than nothing.

The country became disgusted and elected Wilson and a democratic congress. The result was revision of the tariff by a free trade party and currency reform by people who had been notoriously wrong on money questions.

The moral is that parties, like individuals, must keep themselves up to date if they would do business. When the country could not get action out of the party presumed to be best fitted to do the work, it turned the job over to another party which, if not so well fitted, was willing.

What was the matter with the republican party between 1896 and 1912? The answer is easy. It was loaded down with leaders who wouldn't lead. It has led itself of some of these leaders, but not all. It still has some housecleaning to do before it can become a party of right action once more. It is up to the republican voters to take a hand in reshaping things in every state of the union.

At this time, there is no party in opposition to President Wilson. With his record of constructive legislation, there really is no reason for opposition.

EQUALITY BEFORE THE LAW.

Family connections have nothing to do with the achievement of honor and fame in the United States. From dog-eat-dog to the presidency, the way is open to every youth who has the stuff in him to make good. It is individual ability that counts.

Never was this fact more emphasized—not even by the rise of Abraham Lincoln and Andrew Johnson to the presidency—than when Robert A. Taft, the son of a former president, stood alongside two negro boys, sons of former slaves, all taking the oath as attorneys at law before the supreme court of Ohio.

One of the negroes is messenger to the present governor of Ohio. His father was a slave who never learned to read or write. The other was the son of an escaped slave. All three were graduated in the same class. All three will presumably start at the bar with about the same equipment for life's work, but undoubtedly the social standing of the Tafts will serve to modify the relations in life hereafter.

But it is a comforting fact to know that the colored youths have guaranteed to them under the laws, as far as the laws can guarantee such things, equal opportunity with the son of former President Taft. A short time ago, a negro was elected orator for the senior class of Harvard university.

A RELATED CONVERSION.

Senator Fall's attack on the railroads of the country comes rather late for a man who was joint author of the renowned Fall-Hawkins bill. The railroads now are down and out, so far as political power is concerned, and they are struggling for existence, not trying to dictate to legislators.

Senator Fall's speech in his home town of El Paso made interesting reading. He spoke from inside information, of conditions as they existed when he was a corporation attorney shaping legislation in New Mexico in the interest of his clients. Such conditions do not exist now and will not exist again.

Villa continues to gain victories. It is doubtful if he takes a fit whether Carranza approves his conduct or not. With the army behind him, the question is how long will he approve Carranza?

General Huerta goes through the form of levying taxes on his subjects. General Villa takes it all. In neither case does the equalization board find itself very busy.

President Wilson has given a short vacation to the senior class. He will make the scholars work harder than ever after the holidays.

There is some excuse for lynching the man who shouts "fire" for fun where a building is crowded with emotional people.

Twenty-five thousand dollars for a baseball player goes far toward explaining the high cost of living.

The turkey can now gobble with more confidence.

Forest Notes

THERE are 703 bighorns or mountain sheep in the national forests of Nevada.

In twenty-six states there are state foresters who co-operate with private timberland owners in solving the forest problems.

The forest service maintains nine experiment stations for studies in reforestation and similar subjects.

The bureau of entomology and the forest service, working together for control of forest insects, last year covered more than 150,000 acres in their operations.

A national arboretum is being established in Rock Creek national park, District of Columbia. Eventually it will contain all American tree species which will thrive there.

The total amount of land purchased in the eastern states for federal forests in 1912 was 805,000 acres. So far the principal work on these areas has involved their protection against forest fires.

RECORD SESTER MAIL CLERK OUTS MONOPLANE BUILT BY NEW MEXICO MAN A SUCCESS

IS COMPLETED AT STATE COLLEGE AFTER RUNNING 2 MILLION MILES

With Every Department in Prosperous Condition the Mesilla Park School Promises Best Year in History.

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE TO MORNING JOURNAL.
Lawrence, Kan., Dec. 25.—The first half year's work of the new Mesilla Park College of Agriculture and Mechanical Arts has closed and the larger part of the students have gone to their homes in every part of the state to spend the holidays.

The semester just closed has proven one of the best and most enthusiastic in the history of the college. The enrollment, which was not expected to be as high as the average this year, has exceeded that of the first semester last year, and it is confidently predicted that the record will be broken before the end of the year's work.

The standard of scholarship for the fall term has been high. The final grades handed in by the instructors show an unusually small number of failures and conditions, and the number of unexcused absences from classes has been growing steadily since the opening of college in September. There are seven students enrolled for post-graduate work, eight seniors and seventeen juniors. The sophomore, freshman and special classes are unusually large, of the total 244 students in the institution, forty-nine are enrolled in the agricultural courses, fifty in the different branches of engineering, thirty-two in domestic science, twenty-five in commercial work, twenty in general science, and eighteen in learning mechanical trades.

In athletics the college has gone through a successful season, its football team winning the championship of Arizona and New Mexico, and its student athletic association being in good financial condition. The literary and debating societies are wide awake, the agricultural and engineering clubs are doing steady work, and the Young Men's Christian association has almost doubled its membership.

Several new reservations have already been made for the second semester, and indicating a point of large increase in the attendance when the college reopens on January 5.

A Farm House School

COMPLETE freedom from restraint is the lot of the children who attend the experimental rural school at Winthrop College, Rock Hill, S. C., as described by Mrs. Betty Browne in a bulletin of the United States Bureau of Education. There are no seats or desks in this school; no class rooms; no rule of silence; but a free activity guided and directed by a woman who is in complete sympathy with country children and country life.

In this and other respects observers have noted a resemblance to the Montessori schools, but Mrs. Browne began her work several years ago quite independently of the theories of Madame Montessori. Furthermore, the Rock Hill school makes no claim to a deliberate scientific basis; it is essentially an "experimental" school, where it is hoped to learn by actual experience what kind of a school is best adapted to rural life.

The school building is a farm house, with rooms fitted up as "kitchen room," "bathroom" and "workshop." A large veranda surrounding the house is used for the midday meal, which is served by the pupils of the school, and for other purposes. There is plenty of ground about the house, including space for a large garden.

The garden is the center about which instruction revolves. From the study of soil and seed in the winter time to the actual planting, cultivation, and harvesting at the other seasons, the garden remains the center of the children's interest and activity. Arithmetic, spelling, etc., are not taught as subjects, but only as the need for them arises in connection with the study of the garden. Laying out the garden involves arithmetic, and even geometry, both of which are absorbed by the children without effort. The making of towels for use at the school naturally develops new words having to do with sewing and many other things. And so on. Words and numbers are given the children only as the need for them develops, and then with as little formality as possible. The whole idea is for the children to find out things, if possible, without being told.

The children in this rural school are not assigned to "classes" and "periods," as in the traditional school. A visitor will see one group working in the garden, another group on the veranda sewing, another in the kitchen at a cooking task, and still another doing "numbers" or reading with the teacher in her room.

The aim of the Rock Hill school is summarized by Dr. A. P. Bourland in an introduction to the bureau's bulletin. "The result was to make a school that will train the working children for their future work in the home, on the farm, and in the social life around them. Hence we began, frankly with the activities of the farm. The aim was not a cut-and-dried plan, but rather a working idea to enable the teacher to create a growing agency for the development of farm life."

No State Religion in Chinese Republic

IT is learned from Chinese sources that the attempt to establish for the Chinese republic has been abandoned. Dr. Chen Kuang-chang, a man holding the degree of doctor of philosophy from Columbia university, has lately been attempting to have a provision made in the new constitution of the republic by which Confucianism should be established as a state religion. The missionaries and foreigners in general felt that the action, if taken, would be extremely detrimental to the new republic and would stamp it as one of the reactionary nations. In consequence, every effort possible has been exerted to influence President Yuan Shih-kai and others in important positions, to decide against the movement.

Apparently these efforts have so far succeeded that Dr. Chen has at length determined to abandon the idea of establishing a state religion. Instead of that, however, he still

P. D. Forpeneo Once Had Job That Carried Him From Kansas City to Deming; Forty-four Years on Road.

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE TO MORNING JOURNAL.
Lawrence, Kan., Dec. 25.—A journey of approximately 2,000,000 miles ended here this week when P. D. Forpeneo, forty-four years a railway mail clerk, was transferred to a position in the local postoffice.

Forpeneo was the oldest railway clerk in the service, both in age and in years of service, when he was taken off the road, being 74.

Forpeneo's record in the service is without parallel. At the age of thirty-two years he entered it and remained continuously on the job until the recent transfer. The railway mail service was but two years old when Forpeneo made his first run. It was from Quincy, Ill., to St. Joseph, Mo., over the Hannibal & St. Joseph railroad. At that time this was the only road carrying mail to the Missouri river.

This train served the states of Kansas, Nebraska, Colorado, California and all of the territory west of the Missouri, which has since become states. Only one train made a trip each day, there was but one mail car on this train and two clerks working in this car handled all the mail for this vast territory. In those days the daily mail for the state of Kansas averaged about seven sacks of papers and as many letters.

Letters were handled in iron boxes, which were dispatched to their destinations. Papers were carried in huge leather pouches large enough for a man to get inside. The cars were heated by stoves and the fuel was wood. The clerks worked by candle light and later by coal oil light. The early day mail was not the modern moving postoffice which has been the result of that start.

Forpeneo figures that he traveled a total distance of 2,000,000 miles in the service. He calculates that he traveled on an average of 4,000 miles a month for forty-four years of service. The longest run he ever took was from Kansas City, Mo., to Deming, N. M., which was made when the road was first built that far west. It was a distance of 1,000 miles and required five days' travel.

Forpeneo has been in a number of railroad wrecks while in the service. At least forty times has his car left the tracks, tumbled down embankments or been crushed in a collision. He recalls a wreck in early days while in the employ of the Hannibal & St. Joseph. The car plunged down a high embankment at Salt River, Mo., and took fire. With the mail car all aflame, Forpeneo crawled out of the blazing wreckage and escaped.

Although 74 years old, Forpeneo is in the best of health and as active and able to do his share of the work as any of the younger men in the service. It was with much regret that he gave up his life's work and came in off the run to a position at home.

CHINO EMPLOYEE IS CRUSHED TO DEATH UNDER DUMP CAR

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE TO MORNING JOURNAL.
Silver City, N. M., Dec. 25.—A fatal accident occurred in the mine of the Socorro company at Mogollon, a few days ago, in which George M. Piper, an employee of the company, was instantly killed and his body frightfully mangled. The unfortunate man was evidently standing at the edge of the main shaft looking down and did not see or hear the rapidly descending cage which struck him, completely severing his head from his body and dashing both to the bottom of the 400-foot shaft. The young man was 25 years old and was married, his wife residing in California. The body was brought to Silver City by Mr. Anderson of the company and prepared here for shipment to the family home in Cincinnati, O.

The man was working on a train that was carrying a load of waste to the dump. At the time of the accident he was riding on the forward car, some distance from the engine, which was acting as a pusher. He gave the engineer the signal to go ahead, and a few minutes later the engineer saw his lantern fall, and at the same time the emergency brakes went on.

The fireman went forward and found Piper lying beside the track in a dying condition. His left arm was broken at the shoulder and his left side crushed. He was also badly bruised and lacerated on the left side of his face. The trucks of the car on which he was riding had left the track. He had not been run over by one of the wheels, but had evidently been crushed and dragged. As it was dark, no one of the crew could offer any explanation of just how the accident occurred.

The remains were brought to Silver City and to Deming, where the young man's mother and father reside. He was 24 years of age and had been in the employ of the company only a short time.

Guarding Against Croup.
The best safeguard against croup is a bottle of Foley's Honey and Tar Compound in the house. P. H. Glen, Middleton, Ind., writes: "My children are subject to croup, especially catch cold. I give them Foley's Honey and Tar Compound and in every instance they get prompt relief and are soon cured. We keep it at home and prevent croup." Use it also for coughs, colds, bronchitis, tickling throat, whooping cough, and all other bronchial and laryngeal troubles. It contains no opiates. Refuse substitutes. For sale by Butts, Inc.

Dr. Rowe, of Glenwood, Grant County, Assembles Machine Which Makes Good on Trial Flight.

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE TO MORNING JOURNAL.
Silver City, N. M., Dec. 25.—Two and one-half years of tireless energy and incessant application of inventive facilities on the part of Dr. Rowe, of Glenwood, has resulted in the completion of the first monoplane built in the United States and the fourth of its kind in the world.

The first active try-out occurred last July and it was then ascertained that the machine would fly and that this fact might be materialized into a commercial proposition. Dr. Rowe, after many trials, succeeded in engaging the services of Lieut. G. Purcell, of the Austro-Hungarian army and a graduate of the Moisant school of aviation in New York, and an aviator of record, to assist him in the re-assembling of the machine, strengthening the various parts and making a number of minor changes, and placing the monoplane in perfect condition. This accomplished, an exciting try-out was made on the White-water mesa, which was successful, but demonstrated that the gasoline employed was too low in gravity to produce the speed necessary for an extended flight. The ordinary gasoline employed in automobiles and holding engines is of 60 gravity, and the strength required for the navigation of the air in high altitudes requires gasoline of 70 gravity. To obtain oil of this special gravity has consumed over six weeks of valuable time, and not until last Friday, after many weeks of weary waiting, did it arrive in Silver City, and is now en route to Glenwood and White-water mesa, where the first flight of any magnitude will be made.

The machine is a perfect piece of mechanism, has a spread of 25 square feet, a plane surface, and weighs a trifle over 550 pounds, including a 50-horsepower Roberts aluminum engine, and the weight of the aviator. It is the lightest and withal the strongest and most compact of any ever made and is a marvel of the inventive skill and genius of the inventor, Dr. Rowe. After the preliminary flight, within a day or two, an exhibition flight will be made on or about New Year's, and succeeding this, it will not be a surprising spectacle to see it coming over the top of Bear mountain on its first visit to Silver City.

COLORADO CAPITALIST WILL START CANNING FACTORY AT DEMING

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE TO MORNING JOURNAL.
Deming, N. M., Dec. 25.—John D. Best, a capitalist of Colorado, has been spending several days in this vicinity, having in mind the establishing of a large canning factory to handle peas, beans, tomatoes and everything that can be profitably canned. Mr. Best is a man who is thoroughly familiar with the best methods of scientific canning. He is thoroughly impressed with the Minnieville valley as the proper place for profitable growing of vegetables that can be canned for the southwestern market. It is his intention to erect a fine fire-proof building in close proximity to the railroads so that the trucking facilities will be a factor in the shipping of the products. It is his purpose to have everything in operation by the time that the canning season opens. Mr. Best is very enthusiastic over the prospects and possibilities of Deming, and freely makes the prediction that it will be one of the great cities of the southwest. In this connection it is interesting to note that the two private canning factories in this vicinity putting up tomatoes, exclusively, have had great success this year, and both will conduct a much larger business for the ensuing year.

POLITICAL CRISIS IN INDIA

FACES ENGLAND

PLAN'S RAPIDLY PROGRESSING

Monetary Conditions Are Grave With Vast Sums of Gold in Hiding as Though Earth Had Swallowed It Up.

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE TO MORNING JOURNAL.
London, Dec. 25.—Financial circles all over the world cannot remain indifferent to the grave crisis now prevailing in India. It is a crisis, monetary, industrial and political, the result of which is causing the teeming population of Hindustan to revert to their former Asiatic method of burying their gold and their silver, thus withdrawing them from circulation. The natives were slowly being weaned of this, and during the last four or five years showed a growing disposition to confide their money to banks and to invest it in industrial enterprises.

The failure of the Bank of Egypt, less than two years ago, an institution in which the directors were Englishmen and the depositors small land owners and peasants of the land of the Nile, has been followed during the last two or three months by the failure of a whole string of native owned, native managed banks in India—banks extending all the way from Bombay to Calcutta and from Madras to Lahore—carrying with them in their towns all sorts of native industries, which they were financing.

The consequence of all this has been to cause a run of large proportions on all those other institutions and undertakings in which native capital has been invested, and in many instances compelling them to go out of business.

The money thus withdrawn is once more being buried, as before, after all the only really safe means of its preservation. An additional and very powerful motive impelling the natives to revert to this course is the rapidly growing disbelief in the permanency and security of British rule.

It is no exaggeration to assert that the political situation just at present in India furnishes plenty of ground for uneasiness, not to say alarm. The harsh treatment accorded to the thousands of Indian lieges of King George in South Africa, where it has culminated in riot and bloodshed during the last few weeks, has been the immediate indignation throughout the Indian population. Public meetings are being held there everywhere to protest against the British crown permitting its Indian lieges to be subjected to such intolerable treatment.

It is a sad condition which there have been many contributory causes, chief among them the indiscriminate spread of education unsuited to native conditions, the refusal of the crown to satisfy their demands for self-government, to which they were entitled.

It is a sad condition which there have been many contributory causes, chief among them the indiscriminate spread of education unsuited to native conditions, the refusal of the crown to satisfy their demands for self-government, to which they were entitled.

Formerly before civil service competition was introduced the officials were recruited from the best educated in British India, men of birth and breeding, who softened and humanized the laws, administering them not by precedent but by a sense of right. They were in touch with native life, possessed of innate tact and courtesy, were respected and honored as men to be feared, and were not so much machines to grind out judgments. As predicted by Lord Eversley when appointment by competitive examination was introduced the civil service of India is now composed of self-righteous, narrow-minded pedants, deaf and blind to every consideration save the formulae and the letter of the law, whose one desire is uniformity, unable to think outside its narrow channels, and what is infinitely worse, wholly devoid of tact. In one word the members of the civil service of India of today, and from these are recruited the older generation—belong to a lower social grade, to whom the natives are but "niggers" and who have no manners. India indeed is rapidly becoming lost in the hands of the "Civil Service" Wallahs of its civil service.

The Netherlands Is Sixth Nation to Accept Arbitration Proposal of President and Secretary of State.

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE TO MORNING JOURNAL.
Washington, Dec. 25.—When Secretary of State William Jennings Bryan and Chevalier W. L. P. C. Van Rappard, minister to the United States for the Netherlands, affixed their signatures to a general peace and arbitration treaty on December 15, the world was recorded the sixth successful step of President Wilson and Secretary Bryan in their attempt to link the civilized world together for universal peace. Thus, in nine months, despite real opposition on the part of many members of the United States Senate, the administration has made what are regarded as wonderful strides toward universal peace and put to rest war lords and territory aggrandizers.

The six treaties negotiated, signed and sent to the United States Senate for ratification are: The Netherlands, signed December 15; Nicaragua, December 17; Honduras, November 2; Panama and Guatemala, September 20; Salvador, August 7. All of the treaties, with the exception of the one with the Netherlands, are the same. The treaty with the Netherlands, which is the first of the kind to be signed by a European power, provides in substance:

"The high contracting parties agree that all disputes between them, of every nature whatsoever, to the settlement of which they are not already bound by treaty or agreement do not apply in their terms or are not applied in fact, shall, when diplomatic methods of adjustment have failed, be referred for investigation and report to a permanent international commission; and that they agree not to declare war or begin hostilities during such investigation and before the report is submitted."

The international commission shall be composed of five members, to be appointed as follows: One member shall be chosen from each country by the government thereof; one member shall be chosen by each government from some third country; the fifth member shall be chosen by common agreement between the two governments, it being understood that he shall not be a citizen of either country.

The international commission shall be appointed within six months after the exchange of the ratification of this treaty.

In case the high contracting parties shall have failed to settle a dispute by diplomatic methods, both governments shall at once refer it to the international commission for investigation and report. The international commission may, however, spontaneously offer its services to that effect, and in that case all national hostilities shall be suspended and its co-operation in the investigation.

The report of the international commission shall be completed within one year after the date on which it shall declare its investigation to have begun, unless the high contracting parties shall limit or extend the time by mutual consent.

The high contracting parties reserve the right to act independently on the subject matter of the dispute after the report of the international commission shall have been submitted.

It is also provided that the treaty shall remain in force for five years, and shall thereafter remain in force until twelve months after either the United States or the Netherlands shall give notice to the other of an intention to terminate it.

One difference between the Netherlands treaty and the others negotiated is: The contracting parties in the Netherlands treaty agree that the fifth member of the international commission shall be chosen from some other country and the other treaties assert that the fifth member of the commission shall be chosen merely "by common agreement between the two governments."

The last and most important difference is that, as to the military activity of the "high contracting parties." The Netherlands treaty provides that pending the investigation the contracting parties agree not to declare war or begin hostilities during the investigation of the commission. The other treaties assert:

"Pending the investigation and report of the international commission, the high contracting parties agree not to increase their military or naval power, unless danger from a third power shall compel such increase; in which case the party feeling itself menaced shall confidentially communicate the fact in writing to the other contracting party, whereupon the latter shall also be released from its obligation to maintain its military and naval status quo."

Before leaving for Florida, Secretary of State Bryan said he had high hopes of negotiating several more treaties before this session of the congress adjourned.

All of these treaties will be before the senate soon after the holidays for ratification.

Coughs That Prevent Sleep
These coughs are wearing and if they "hang on," can run one down physically and lower the vital resistance to disease. Mr. E. H. This medicine is equally good for croup, whooping cough, measles cough, and for the chronic coughs of elderly people. It is soothing and healing and stops tickling throat. For sale by Butts' Inc."

MAKEUP OF CABINET IS CONSIDERED BY MITCHEL

Choice of New York Department Heads Narrows to Process of Elimination; Names to Be Announced Soon.

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE TO MORNING JOURNAL.
New York, Dec. 25.—Mayor-elect John Purroy Mitchel has begun to make final selection of commissioners who are to serve under him in the next four years. He has devoted three weeks of hard study to the problem, and expects to have his slate, so far as the heads of the departments are concerned, completed by the end of the week. But he will make no announcement of his selections until December 31. The deputies and assistants of the various departments will not be selected until some time in January.

In the last few days Mr. Mitchel has had many conferences with Robert Adams, Mayor Kline's secretary, and others of his advisers, while the selection of police commissioner and corporation counsel has given Mr. Mitchel more trouble than other appointments. Regarding the first office, the trouble has been caused by the scarcity of candidates of the sort Mr. Mitchel seeks, while it is just the reverse in the office of corporation counsel.

Among those Mr. Mitchel has in mind for police commissioner are William J. Flynn, who left the government's secret service bureau in the early part of Mayor Gaynor's administration to reorganize the detective bureau; Arthur Woods and Frederick H. Bugher, both ex-deputy police commissioners; Raymond B. Fosdyck, ex-commissioner of accounts; Col. Eugene Van C. Lucas, an army officer, who has the backing of Colonel Goethals; ex-Commissioner Theodore A. Hinchman and the present commissioner, Rhinelandt Waldo.

For corporation counsel Mr. Mitchel is considering the names of Lamar Hardy, a personal friend; Stephen J. Baldwin, who was counsel for Mayor Gaynor; Clarence J. Shearn, counsel for William R. Hearst; Frank L. Polk, who was mentioned for appointment as collector of the port of New York before Mr. Mitchel was selected; William Chivers and Frederick C. Tanner, republican district leader; William M. Chadbourne, a progressive leader, and William D. Edison, also a close friend to Mr. Mitchel.

CHANGE OF VENUE GRANTED INDICTED LAS VEGAS EDITOR

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE TO MORNING JOURNAL.
Las Vegas, N. M., Dec. 25.—Judge David J. Leahy has announced that he will grant a change of venue in the case of F. M. V. 135-13, 135-13 charged with criminal libel. The case will be heard in Mora county. Several affidavits were presented to the court by Chacon's counsel, Judge E. V. Long, stating that the young man likely would be unable to obtain a fair and impartial trial here because of prejudice. Judge Long asked that the case be tried in Guadalupe county. Chacon is associate editor of La Voz del Pueblo, a Spanish paper published in this city. He is accused of criminally libeling Manuel C. de Baca, editor of El Independiente.

CHICKEN SHOW WILL OPEN TODAY WITH 500 BIRDS

More Than 300 Already in Coops and Remainder Expected to Arrive Today;
Many Breeds Represented.

Shabby clothes first, was the order
at the Salvation Army's Christmas
tree yesterday afternoon at
the National Guard armory, Fifth
street and Silver avenue.

When Capt. Anna Shattuck saw
more than 400 children gathered in the hall at 2 o'clock who knew
that someone would be disappointed.
The Army did not have presents for
that many. The captain saw there were many well dressed children in
the crowd, so she gave the word that
the poorly dressed ones would receive
their presents first.

A little girl, a year old, whose
worn shoes seemed to have no soles,
headed the line. Captain Shattuck
and her assistants lined up the others, according to their dress, tie-died her. The children filed past the tree where the workers stood, handling their candy, nuts, oranges, apples and toys. The first five hundred children received sacks of
candy and those who came after them
got only apples and oranges. The very empty was exhausted long before
the end.

The doors of the armory were opened
at 2 o'clock, although the distribution of presents was not begun until 2:30 o'clock, because it was too cold for
the children—some of them rather richly clad—to stand outside. Nearly 100 had gathered outside before Captain Shattuck led them they might enter. From 2 o'clock until 2:30 o'clock
a stream of kiddies poured through
the doors.

Captain Shattuck had no difficulty
in keeping order. All seemed to be on their best behavior, evidently thinking they would be slighted by
the Salvation Army or well as Santa
Claus if they were bad.

When the line was formed there was no dispute as to position. They took the places assigned to them by
the Salvation Army workers and kept
them. The line marched slowly by the big tree and upstairs and from
the balcony outside, as none of the children were able to "repeat."

When Captain Shattuck announced
that the tree had been stripped bare
of packages the rear of the file gave
a little cry of disappointment and broke. About 100 still remained in the hall. Those who had gotten their presents had time to look at the
tree, about a year old, was conspicuously laid in the expression of his
chagrin. The pockets bulged conspicuously, however, as if they contained
riches in candy, satisfying Captain Shattuck. Santa Claus had not overlooked him.

The little ones who were at the head of the line had come empty-
handed and the workers were pleased
because they had been able to give them all something. The distribu-
ment in the file, between the scanty
clothes and the neatly
dressed rear had been passed long
before the gifts gave out.

GOOD AUDIENCES GREET
HOLIDAY PERFORMANCES
AT THE ELKS THEATER

Two good audiences greeted the matinee and night performances of
"The Shepherd of the Hills," at the Elks theater yesterday. Liberal applause was given the players, and
close attention was paid to their work
from the first to the last curtain.

The play is a dramatization of
the novel of Harold Bell Wright by the same name, which is familiar to all readers of contemporary literature. It is strong and full dramatic possibilities, and best of all, it is free from
the suggestiveness of vulgarity which
is all too characteristic of the modern drama. Its lines are full of absorbing interest, and the situations
are gripping in intensity of feeling. It is a play, however, that requires a very high degree of dramatic
skill to develop its possibilities, and candor requires the statement that the company presenting it here did not in
all respects measure up to the opportunities presented.

A tendency to overdo the back-
woods southern accent was one of the
most glaring faults in the production
as given here. People generally have come to an understanding of the fact
that even Arkansas hill-billies don't say "Ah kaint" for "I can't." Also,
the two or three big emotional scenes
in the play were simply beyond the
capabilities of the players.

Mr. Stevens, as "Preaching" Bill, was exactly the star member of the cast
and the best moments of the play
were when he was on the stage. He is
a character actor of undoubted ability,
and if he could once get his southern
dialect on straight would be a fine
in the part. Mr. Holland, as Wash
Gibbs, gave a convincing interpretation of the conventional rough-neck
villain, and managed to get himself
thoroughly disliked by the audience.
The best that can be said of Mr.
Schroder is that as the hero, he looked the part.

Miss Margaret O'Brien and Miss Bessie Little, the principal feminine players, averaged up to the standard of the company. Miss O'Brien said
"You coward" to the villain, with the approved melodramatic emphasis, bringing a round of applause from the audience, who evidently shared her views.

Sherman Post of the G. A. R., at Las Vegas, yesterday sent a telegram to Dr. Thomas Harwood, former superintendent of the Harwood industrial school, who is seriously ill,
regretting his sickness and giving him
the greetings of the post. The message was signed by Jefferson Ray-nolds, commander.

Dr. Harwood appeared to be in somewhat better condition yesterday
than he has been for the last week.
He is not yet out of danger, but recovery, which was despaired of several days ago, is looked for now.

POSTOFFICE HANDLES
CHRISTMAS RUSH
WITHOUT DIFFICULTY

Postoffice employees here handled
the Christmas congestion of mails easily, although the number of parcels mailed exceeded last year's record many times over. Yesterday not a single package mailed Wednesday remained in the office, all having been sent out Wednesday night. By yesterday afternoon all parcels received had been delivered and the postoffice last night bore no indication that it was Christmas and that the busiest season of the year for postal clerks had just closed.

TOTS DISAPPOINTED
WHEN CHRISTMAS
TREE IS BARE
LOTS OF FUN; SO
DO SOME DOGS

Children With Worn Clothes
Given Preference by Salvation Army, However, and They All Were Pleased.

Shabby clothes first, was the order
at the Salvation Army's Christmas
tree yesterday afternoon at
the National Guard armory, Fifth
street and Silver avenue.

When Capt. Anna Shattuck saw
more than 400 children gathered in
the hall at 2 o'clock who knew
that someone would be disappointed.
The Army did not have presents for
that many. The captain saw there
were many well dressed children in
the crowd, so she gave the word that
the poorly dressed ones would receive
their presents first.

A little girl, a year old, whose
worn shoes seemed to have no soles,
headed the line. Captain Shattuck
and her assistants lined up the others, according to their dress, tie-
died her. The children filed past the
tree where the workers stood, handling their candy, nuts, oranges, apples and toys. The first five hundred children received sacks of
candy and those who came after them
got only apples and oranges. The
very empty was exhausted long before
the end.

The doors of the armory were opened
at 2 o'clock, although the distribution of presents was not begun until
2:30 o'clock, because it was too cold for
the children—some of them rather richly clad—to stand outside. Nearly 100 had gathered outside before Captain Shattuck led them they might
enter. From 2 o'clock until 2:30 o'clock
a stream of kiddies poured through
the doors.

Captain Shattuck had no difficulty
in keeping order. All seemed to be
on their best behavior, evidently
thinking they would be slighted by
the Salvation Army or well as Santa
Claus if they were bad.

When the line was formed there
was no dispute as to position. They took the places assigned to them by
the Salvation Army workers and kept
them. The line marched slowly by
the big tree and upstairs and from
the balcony outside, as none of the
children were able to "repeat."

When Captain Shattuck announced
that the tree had been stripped bare
of packages the rear of the file gave
a little cry of disappointment and
broke. About 100 still remained in the hall. Those who had gotten their presents had time to look at the
tree, about a year old, was conspicu-
ously laid in the expression of his
chagrin. The pockets bulged conspicuously, however, as if they contained
riches in candy, satisfying Captain
Shattuck. Santa Claus had not overlooked him.

The little ones who were at the
head of the line had come empty-
handed and the workers were pleased
because they had been able to give
them all something. The distribu-
ment in the file, between the scanty
clothes and the neatly
dressed rear had been passed long
before the gifts gave out.

GOOD AUDIENCES GREET
HOLIDAY PERFORMANCES
AT THE ELKS THEATER

Two good audiences greeted the
matinee and night performances of
"The Shepherd of the Hills," at the Elks theater yesterday. Liberal applause was given the players, and
close attention was paid to their work
from the first to the last curtain.

The play is a dramatization of
the novel of Harold Bell Wright by the
same name, which is familiar to all
readers of contemporary literature. It
is strong and full dramatic possibilities, and best of all, it is free from
the suggestiveness of vulgarity which
is all too characteristic of the modern drama. Its lines are full of absorbing interest, and the situations
are gripping in intensity of
feeling. It is a play, however, that requires a very high degree of dramatic
skill to develop its possibilities, and
candor requires the statement that the
company presenting it here did not in
all respects measure up to the opportunities presented.

A tendency to overdo the back-
woods southern accent was one of the
most glaring faults in the production
as given here. People generally have
come to an understanding of the fact
that even Arkansas hill-billies don't
say "Ah kaint" for "I can't." Also,
the two or three big emotional scenes
in the play were simply beyond the
capabilities of the players.

Mr. Stevens, as "Preaching" Bill, was
exactly the star member of the cast
and the best moments of the play
were when he was on the stage. He is
a character actor of undoubted ability,
and if he could once get his southern
dialect on straight would be a fine
in the part. Mr. Holland, as Wash
Gibbs, gave a convincing interpretation of the conventional rough-neck
villain, and managed to get himself
