In a statement released in Washington June 9, Costa Rican Foreign Minister Rodrigo Madrigal announced that a meeting of Central American foreign ministers scheduled for the following week in Guatemala had been canceled as a result of disagreement regarding the agenda. Madrigal was in Washington attending a session of the Organization of American States to discuss the Panamanian situation. As a result of the cancellation, the regional summit meeting that had been scheduled for July has been postponed indefinitely. The foreign ministers had been expected to study a plan for the demobilization of the Nicaraguan contra camps in Honduras, and Nicaragua's progress on electoral and media reform legislation.
