CHINESE GOVERNMENT WOULD PROTECT LEON LING

Consul at New York Makes Report and Claims That Ling Did Not Kill Elsie.

HIS COUNTRYMEN AID HUNTED MAN

Claim is Made That Girl Took Poison When Ling Was Out of the Room and He Will Be Protected Now.

Denver, Colo., July 14.—It is stated by Chinese here that the Chinese government, following the report of the Chinese consul at New York on the Elsie Siegel case, has set its official seal of approval upon the protection of Leon Ling by Chinese Masons, and that Ling will never be found with the assistance of his countrymen. Chinese newspapers having unofficial sanction of the government print the consul's report, made at the direction of officials at Pekin. The report states that Elsie Siegel came to Ling's room and, in a moment of desperation, took poison, killing herself. Ling was absent at the time, the report says, and when he found the dead body he called in Chung Sin, who was occupying the next room, and told him the full circumstances. Sin told him that the police would never believe his story and he might be lynched, so Ling made desperate efforts to hide the body and conceal his own whereabouts. The report of poison stated in the consul's report, which has just become public in America, was sent to Pekin three weeks ago. The report is evidently regarded by the Chinese authorities as a true solution of the mystery, and the Chinese are encouraged to conceal Ling. A member of the Chinese colony here said today: "Only God can find Ling now. He is under the protection of the Masons, who are aiding him to escape the police." The Chinese estimate that assurance of assistance from the Chinese in this country should be taken with a grain of salt.

THINK THAW CRAZY ON ONE THING ONLY

Witnesses Say They Never Talked About White Killing to Harry.

White Plains, N. Y., July 14.—District Attorney Mack is careful to ask all witnesses in the examination of Harry Thaw whether they ever discussed the killing of White with the prisoner. The theory of the state is that the victim of Parania only exhibits symptoms of pronounced insanity when the particular subject affecting him is mentioned. All the witnesses have denied approaching this subject. Anna G. Dayley and Maru Murnane, mistresses of the jail, said they considered Thaw sane. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw was a witness in the case yesterday and attracted as much attention as when she appeared as a witness in the two trials of the murder case. She testified for her husband.

"FILL THE BATH TUB" IS THE ULTIMATUM TONIGHT

Citizens' Committee Composes Document for Consideration of the City Council.

SPECIAL MEETING CALLED BY MAYOR

Representatives of Street Meeting Demand That City Aldermen Get Busy and Get Water Without Further Delay.

The mayor has called a special meeting of the city council for this evening at 8 o'clock in the library building, as the result of a request made by the citizens' committee appointed at a street meeting July 6, to discuss the water question. The committee held a meeting last night in the office of Otto Diekmann at which it drew up resolutions to be presented to the city council tonight. The resolutions were circulated today as petitions, and were signed by many people. The citizens' committee presents another solution of the water question and it is dissimilar to other solutions presented to date in that it demands that the city council annul the franchise and take over the water plant. "Fill the bathtubs," is the rally cry, and it is understood the citizens' committee intends to get a bath if it takes all summer to do it. Those who attended the meeting last night were: William Kleke, L. T. Delaney, Mike Mandell, H. E. Fox, Otto Diekmann, Chas. O. Cushman, A. W. Anson, W. W. Alston, Tom Hughes, H. S. Litigow, Felix Giannotti, A. A. Scidillo and H. B. Ives. The committee indulged in considerable oratory and it is understood that, failing in its efforts to get immediate action, it proposes to placard the city, get out the bands, hold another mass meeting and stir up the animals, or get a bath. The resolutions briefly state that the Water Supply company has violated its franchise; that the health of the people is at stake; that the fire protection is a myth; that insurance policies are likely to be annulled or the rates raised; that the city streets need sprinkling, and that no provision is being made to meet the increased demand for water as the city grows. The resolutions conclude with a demand that the council take immediate steps to get water and plenty of it. The resolutions in full are as follows: To the Honorable Mayor and City Council of the City of Albuquerque, New Mexico. Gentlemen:— A mass meeting of the citizens of Albuquerque, N. M., held July 6, 1909, appointed a committee to examine in view of the present water situation in our city. After fully considering the matter and fully canvassing the situation the committee has decided upon the following: Report and Findings. This committee has made a full investigation of the situation. We find that the Water Supply company is under a contract with, and has a franchise from this city which provides in part as follows: "Section 5. That said company shall furnish at all times for public and private use in said city a good and sufficient supply of good water, as the same may be needed and demanded for domestic and manufacturing purposes, so that it may be drawn off through the pipes connecting with the mains of said waterworks in all parts of said city where such pipes may be at a minimum pressure of 60 pounds to the square inch at all times unless prevented through an accident to the reservoir, engines, pipes and other apparatus or machinery of said company. Provided that any such accident shall be remedied or repaired within a reasonable time." We further find that the Water Supply company has utterly failed to comply with this contract and the terms of its franchise aforesaid for over two weeks and has failed to supply water for fire protection and for drinking and domestic purposes as is required by its contract and franchise. And we further specifically find that it is absolutely necessary for the health of the citizens of this community that an adequate supply of pure water be furnished for drinking and all domestic purposes. That unless an adequate supply of water for fire protection is immediately had that our insurance policies may be cancelled or our insurance rates greatly increased according to the terms of all fire insurance paragraphs. That the present lack of water is

THE NEW SUMMER WHITE HOUSE

THE EVANS HOME, NEAR BEVERLY, MASS., WHICH WILL BE THE SUMMER CAPITAL OF THE UNITED STATES.

The Evans home is a big, spacious place, large enough to hold a reception if the president—or Mrs. Taft—wants to go in for that. It looks out on Massachusetts bay and Marblehead Neck, so that President Taft can sit in as judge of the Beverly yacht club regatta this summer from his front porch hammock. Of course there are splendid golf links there. The roads of this part of the country are ideal for horseback riding. The living room of the president's summer home is lighted by glass doors looking out onto the veranda which faces the ocean, and by four stained glass windows. The panels of the living room are finished in sycamore, with tapestry paper running to the ceiling molding. A staircase leads from the living room to a balcony, around which are six chambers on the second floor. On the right of the living room is the music room, which is decorated in white, and off the entrance hall is a small room also in white. On the left of the living room is the large dining room, the windows of which open on the ocean. The whole of the dining room suite is in mahogany.

retarding building operations, thus preventing the investment of capital and the employment of labor in our city.

That the city has expended considerable money on our streets and unless the streets are sprinkled the money expended will be wasted. Failure to sprinkle is also a source of great discomfort to our citizens.

That no preparation has been, or is being made, to meet the increased demands for water which has come and will continue to come with our rapidly increasing population and the further demand which will certainly be made by the completion of our new sewer system.

Wherefore, be it resolved, that it is the sense of your citizens' committee, and we hereby demand that the city council take immediate steps to compel the Water Supply company to forthwith fulfill its contract with the city. And to protect the rights of the city and the rights of the citizens and water consumers of our city.

(Signed.) Wm. Kleke, chairman; L. E. Delaney, secretary; Mike Mandell, H. E. Fox, Otto Diekmann, C. O. Cushman, A. W. Anson, W. W. Ralph, Tom Hughes, H. S. Litigow, A. A. Scidillo, B. H. Ives, Felix Giannotti.

It is practically decided that all available data regarding the resources, products and physical characteristics of each state and territory, be sent to the bureau.

Berlin, July 14.—Dr. Von Bethmann Holterweg was appointed chancellor of the empire to succeed Prince Von Buelow today and various other cabinet changes are gazetted. Von Buelow, commenting on the fact that he had been approached with want of courage for not dissolving the Reichstag, said that such action would increase the forces of Socialism. "I have been able," said the prince, "to give the Socialists a smashing defeat at the elections without resorting to the police."

FIGHT IN STREETS OF PERSIAN CITY

Shah's Troops Arrayed Against the Nationalist Soldiers in Bloody Warfare.

Teheran, July 14.—Fighting in the streets continues since yesterday morning and became serious at midnight, when Persian cosacks opened up with artillery on the Nationalists, who attempted to storm the cosack position. The Nationalists have occupied a sheltered garden, where they are now being shelled. The soldiers of the Shah approached within three miles of the city, shelling the parliament buildings.

MYSTERIOUS POISON KILLED ELSIE SIGEL

New York, July 14.—Prof. George A. Ferguson, of Columbia, has found poison in the viscera of Elsie Sigel, but is unable to determine the nature of the drug. Tests show it to be an irritant poison and the professor believes it to be a powerful Oriental drug known to the Mongolians only. He will give it to rabbits and watch the effect.

SHE FED STRYCHNINE TO LITTLE CHILDREN

Des Moines, Iowa, July 14.—Mrs. William Gilphart, living near West Branch, became despondent over family troubles last night, gave her four small children strychnine and then swallowed strychnine and carbolic acid. THE ELKS NOT TO BLAME FOR EXTINCTION OF ANIMALS Committee Reports That Famous Tooth Controversy Be Considered Closed.

SAMMIS CHOSEN EXALTED RULER

Iowa Man Wins Out Over Ohio Candidate in Grand Lodge Election -- Holland Reports New Members.

Los Angeles, Cal., July 14.—The question of wearing Elk teeth as an emblem of the order is regarded as a closed incident by the members of the grand lodge. The report of the committee which investigated the matter was to the effect that the members of the lodge are in no way to blame for the rapid extinction of elk, and no action is therefore probable by the grand lodge, which resumed its sessions today. The election of national officers was announced last night as follows: James U. Sammis of LeMars, Iowa, grand exalted ruler; Warren G. Sayre of Wabash, Ind., grand leading knight; J. D. Jones of Scranton, Pa., grand lecturing knight; Fred C. Robinson of Dubuque, Iowa, grand secretary; Edwin H. Leach of New York, grand treasurer; Percy A. Clay of Denver, grand trustee; Charles L. Decker of Bernidji, Minn., grand Tyler; A. M. Taylor of San Augustine, Fla., grand inner guard. Sammis received 592 votes and Herrmann, his nearest competitor, 529 votes, for grand exalted ruler. Detroit was chosen as the next meeting place.

The contest over the election of grand exalted ruler brought out much feeling and was bitterly contested up to the last. Many prominent Elks were drawn into the controversy. There was only slight contest over the election of the other officers.

In submitting his annual report, Grand Exalted Ruler Rush L. Holland submitted the matter of establishing an orphanage for the children of deceased lodge members without recommendation to the grand lodge. Holland criticized the establishment of the national home at Beauford, Va., and suggested that a fund of $214,000 be raised by levying an annual assessment of five cents a member for the erection of a home at some other point.

His report shows a large increase in membership, which is now in excess of 300,000 with 42 new lodges established during the past year.

BATTLER WORSTED IN TEN ROUND BOUT

Wolgaast Had Things His Way in Terrific Fight and Nelson Couldn't Stop Him.

Los Angeles, July 14.—Batting Nelson was badly worsted in a ten-round bout with Ad Wolgaast of Milwaukee, here last night and though no decision was given because of a local ordinance prohibiting it, the spectators and officials agree that Wolgaast clearly had the best of the battle throughout. The first round was an even break, but Wolgaast had the best of six out of the other nine rounds and Nelson could only get an even break in three rounds. At the end of the fight Nelson was battered and bruised but Wolgaast appeared to be fresh and unharmed. Wolgaast succeeded in stopping the Battler's rushes in the seventh round.

BALLINGER EXPLAINS HIS CONTROVERSY WITH PINCHOT

Secretary of Interior Says He Has No Row With Wilson Over Forests.

MINERAL LANDS WILL BE OPENED

He Has Asked Department of Justice to See That Public Lands Are Not Withheld by the Forest Service.

Seattle, July 14.—"The idea seems to have gone forth that I have clashed with the secretary of agriculture, Wilson, over the forest reserves," declared Secretary Ballinger, of the interior department, last night. "But such is not the case. I have no quarrel with Secretary Wilson. My views and those of Gifford Pinchot, head of the forestry bureau, which is part of the department of agriculture, diverged in the matter of forest reserves. I maintain that the law should be enforced and it is now up to the attorney general for a decision. The department of the interior has charge of all of public lands and does not intend that the forestry bureau shall run the department of the interior. By act of Congress the forest reserves are open for mineral exploration. Mr. Pinchot set aside certain sections of forest reserves which are called administrative sites and rangers' posts. He refused positively to allow these to be opened for mineral exploration and exploitation. Among his rules was the laudable one to the effect that some of the mineral sites might also have valuable water power advantages. I maintain that the law of Congress, which throws the public land open for mineral exploitation applies to these so-called administrative sites whether or not they have water power advantages. I do not think Mr. Pinchot is within the law in closing such sections."

Concerning Woocers

The conviction of John Madison and his confession that he has swindled many women by promising marriage and then borrowing all the money possible, before taking a sudden and unexpected departure, is somewhat of an object lesson for the fair sex.

It is also somewhat of a sidelight on the divorce evil, since it indicates just how lightly some people consider marriage and how foolishly they enter upon it.

There is nothing particularly new in Madison's affairs, except that he succeeded in deceiving a few more women than most bigamists and swindlers attempt. That he was a past master in the gentle art of wooing appears to be undisputed, and that he was also quite a clever chap in getting possession of most of the filthy lucre hoarded by the fair ones, naturally follows.

It is not necessary at all to comment upon the sort of a man who pretends to plier and ruin foolish women rather than to earn an honest living, since the character of such a man is quite apparent, without the application of a searchlight.

Aside, therefore, from one phase of the campaign methods of Madison, there is nothing in his various conquests to provoke astonishment. He told the old, old story, which is never old, to the sort of women who are always young, and it is not marvelous that he won hearts for his hire.

But the point at which Madison gave himself away and the point at which all of his victims should have been clearly warned, was his habit of borrowing money from the object of his amatory attentions. From the whole number of his feminine adorers Madison cleaned up a sum of money running into the thousands, and in several cases his dupes were completely impoverished.

Now, no woman, in the first flush or in the second flush of romance, can hope to be exposed for being beguiled by such coarse work as open grafting. The man who attempts to borrow money from a woman at all—much less from a woman with whom he pretends to be in love—is a bad actor. He won't do. He admits by that act that he is a fraud. He is not worth throwing out of the door, but that is what should be done with him in every case and in all circumstances.

A Sad Job for Rick

Emperor Nicholas has gone to Peltava to join in the bi-centennial of the victory of the Russians over the Swedes led by Charles XII. A pleasant task, surely, for Nicholas. Who knows what bitter retrospection the "Little Czar" will indulge in as he recalls the mighty achievement of that predecessor of his who was called "The Great." While Nicholas is helping to celebrate the battle that gave Russia world wide eminence two hundred years ago he cannot fail to recall bitterly that he conducted the most disastrous war of modern times.

Between Peter the Great and Nicholas there is this one point of resemblance—both were born to feeble health. There the likeness ends. The weakness and insufficiency that mark the present czar had no place in the make up of his mighty predecessor. Combined with many of the traits of the barbarian, Peter possessed a boundless capacity for work and an all embracing conception of the methods necessary to lift his country out of its state of semi-savagery. A mares in the arts of war, he knew that the ways of peace led to advancement. Knowing that Russia must have a navy to compete with the other nations of Europe, he went incognito to Holland and England and worked as a common laborer in the shipyards to gain a practical knowledge of shipbuilding.

When he was not building ships, digging canals and laying out cities he was leading his armies. To gain seaports for the ships he was building he fought the Turks on the Black Sea and the Swedes who held all the coast of the Baltic. Matching his strength against that of Charles XII, the honors of war rested again and again with the Swedish Lion. But Peter knew that his soldiers were learning a lesson with every defeat and kept up the fight. The vindication came at Poltava where Nicholas is surveying the glories that he might have won in the Orient. Surely it must have been uncomfortable for Nicholas to have faced his people knowing that they must be thinking of Port Arthur and Mukden.

Rudyard Goes to War

The spectacle of Rudyard Kipling, mysterious prophet once, but with a weak voice now, crying out imitation poetry about Great Britain and her faults, brings to British eyes the sad results of condemning one's own country. As they see him, Rudyard is a rascal.

Kipling was once a great author with a great message to a great people. He wrote a book, though, "The Light That Failed," that at least bore a strange titular forecast of Rudyard's light as the world views it today.

Where once literary incandescence shone, now Kipling's light has faded to that of a wax taper hid under a peach-basket hat.

The light began to wane in the case of Kipling when he began to write against his own people. He whined himself out of a poet laureate's wreath. As he spilled bitter literary tears over his proud empire's shame his light faded yet more.

Kipling is a muck-raker. And being in a spleenish mood the other day laid himself out on the critics' rack and penned a new poem which he calls "The City of Brass."

After three-quarters of a column or so of brazen verse, the poem ends thus:

They chose themselves prophets and priests of minute understanding,
Men swift to see done—and outrun—their extremest commanding—
Of the tribe that describe with a jibe the perversions of Justice—
Pandars avowed to the crowd whatever their lust is.

"Justice" and "lust is." How Rudyard must trust us!

This from the author of "Barrack-Room Ballads" that brought the British army up standing with cheers. From the man who poured a genius' soul at the altar of his Maker with his "Recessional." From the man who solved the riddle of wolf-talk and of Mowgli and his jungle friends. It is to believe worse that Rudyard does.

Doctors say every time a man gets angry, his brain, composed of millions of little cells, undergoes a remarkable change. The joy-cells are destroyed and the anger-cells sprout up like mushrooms. Anger has a toxic effect on the whole human system.

Rudyard has been getting angry a long time. He was first angry with India, then with the United States, then with some relatives, then with Canada, and finally with England.

Imagine drunken old Omar, with some swaying hard at his side and a baked-clay urn full of sour wine and a crust of hard-tack nearby, getting angry at anything!

Anger will conquer the most convolutive cranium. It spoils and hurts. So, as long as Rudyard Kipling continues to be angry with his neighbors and his people because their "prophets and priests of minute understanding" don't suit him, he must put the critics, too, in the same class.

CLIPPINGS From the Press

A DIFFICULT JOB.

The prohibitionists are trying to get up a local option election in Tombstone. It is needless to say that if old Tombstone should go dry the whole country and part of Europe would sit up and take notice.—Bisbee Evening Miner.

GOLD THAT GLITTERS.

Two bars of gold bullion were received yesterday by the Prescott National bank from the Elta mine. They were valued at over $1,000, the proceeds of a recent run. This mine is a regular shipper of this metal, and the property is said to be showing up well.—Prescott Journal-Miner.

JUST KNOCKING.

Knocking never builds up a community and neither does the suppression of the recognition of existing evils. Go after the bad spots and get rid of them.—The Roswell Record.

SOUNDS GOOD.

We plucked a cherry twig this week from a tree in the orchard of Harvey McCoy that contains 104 perfect specimens on a 14-inch twig. Harvey has 100 trees of this celebrated variety known as 16 to 1 and when they come fully into bearing (this is their first crop), he will have cherries for every requirement. In addition to his 100 trees of 16 to 1, he has Early Richmond, Dye House and English Morillo in abundance. Within a few years when the hundreds of fruit trees set on this ranch come into bearing this will be one of the best fruit ranches in the county.—San Juan County Democrat.

POOR BREEDING.

Nothing can ever correct the lack of breeding in one who is low down enough to speak ill of his host while under his very roof. This, however, sometimes occurs and while, of course the source is considered it is nevertheless disgusting to hear it. Such was the case last Monday when two gentlemen from Pittsburg, or Pittsburgh as they called it, began to make comparisons between Tucumcari and the "smoky city."

Pittsburg is, of course, a grand old town, and what in the Sam Hill did they leave there for to come to Tucumcari to find homes. No, Tucumcari is all right, too, but it so happened that the gentlemen were not met at the station by a band and no one laughed at their stale jokes, when, lo, and behold, they had halloed from Pittsburg. It may have been neglect on the part of the Tucumcarians but such neglect is customary here and no one is carried on high until they prove that they had more than a birth place.—The Tucumcari News.

THE TRANSFORMATION.

Land around Aztec, N. M., has produced 100 bushels of corn to the acre. Corn produces fat hogs, fat cattle, fat pocketbooks and the comforts of life. Some.—The Durango Herald.

ONE WAY OF COLLECTING.

The Index family enjoyed the "Feed" of their lives Sunday. Mrs. Goodberlet furnished a nice lot of green peas, George Lamberson gave us a dandy lot of new suds and John Cuddy a splendid bunch of new boots. Beats the dence how much a fellow can eat when he gets a chance.—San Juan County Index.

THE DREAD LOCK.

W. W. Cox, the San Augustine herdsman, has quit a number of sick horses on his range. The horses reel and fall and have trouble to keep on their feet. Yesterday Mr. Cox came to Cruces and took out Professors Simpson and Wootton to investigate and try and find the cause. Prof. Wootton thinks the horses are afflicted by an attack of loco, which affects the spine and brain. They will investigate further and try and find the cause. Last spring Mr. Cox lost a number of fine horses, among them one stallion valued at $1,000, and two at $500 each.—Rio Grande Republican.

NOT AS HOT AS SOME.

The weather during the past week has been unusually sultry—warm would not express it, it was absolutely hot. Old Sol poured down his rays on this section of terra firma with unusual vigor, and the absence of the customary mountain breeze made it still more uncomfortable. Those who had business to attend to had to do it with saturated garments and porous skins. As we scribble this paragraph the perspiration trickles from our finger tips, pours from off our faces, drops from our eyeballs until every pore in our body seems to be a complete rivulet. Trusting, however, in the capacity of our No. 7 shoes to hold enough of our corporeal system for the coroner to hold an inquest upon, we quietly await the verdict.

And yet, when we stop to think, there are a great many places hotter than the Carrizozo valley, particularly the one the little book refers to.—Carrizozo News.

HISTORIC CHAIRS.

The fact that the king will sit at the next levee in the Henry VII chair will render it of interest to recall recollection to the existence of other historic chairs.

The chair occupied by Charles I at his trial in Westminster hall is now in a cottage hospital at Moreton-in-Marsh, in Gloucestershire; the chair of the chief justice of the court of common pleas is in the possession of Lord Coleridge, as an heirloom in his family, having come to his father, the last chief justice of the common pleas and subsequently chief justice of England. The chair of the speaker of the Irish house of commons, which belongs to Viscount Massereene, and Farrar, as the descendant of Mr. Foster (Lord Oriel), the last speaker, is now in the National Museum in Dublin.—Westminster Gazette.

Girl Animal Trainer

New York Press.

On a small farm about two miles from Plainfield, N. J., lives a young woman who is among the most remarkable educators in America. She teaches animals, preferably dull ones, supposed to have little brain development. She is not a professional trainer. She simply does it for her own amusement. She has accomplished some things—especially with horned domestic cattle, which are considered the most stupid of all domestic animals—that have been thought impossible hitherto even by professionals.

Her name is Winona von Ohl. She was born and brought up on a great cattle ranch in New Mexico. She and her mother moved to Plainfield two or three years ago. It was not long before the news began to get about of the odd things this girl had taught her pets to do. An ever increasing number of visitors has been the result. Now there is hardly a day but automobile parties run out to the farm from all various towns for ten or twenty miles around to see if it is true that Miss von Ohl's horse can hold a whip in his teeth and crack it, or that a bull will stand on its hind legs and waltz, or that her calf will indulge in all sorts of monkey shins.

Cheerfully and obligingly she puts her pets through their paces. The mild-eyed but mischievous looking little calf is brought out, and is made to do all the tricks that a highly trained clown dog could. An educated racoon vaults on the calf's back and gallops about with all the clat of a baroque rider in a circus. A once vicious dull bull does equine high school tricks and so on. The calf and the bull are the star performers. No one has ever been able to teach such animals to do "stunts" before.

It is a trade of scholarly knowledge that would do credit to a graduate from any of the great universities for women. She determined to train these horned animals, and to prove that the professional educators of beasts and the scientists who had claimed to measure the quality of their brains were both wrong.

Some Unusual Stunts.

Miss von Ohl decided to experiment with the toughest subject she could find. She let it be known that she wanted to buy the most dangerous and vicious of these year-old bulls that was obtainable for miles about Plainfield. Much to her joy she heard of one whose owner was going to kill him because of his superlatively ugly temper. He was between two and three years old, and had gored three men. It was the same with this vicious animal that it had been with the horses she had tamed on the range.

She bought the bull and unwillingly at first he yielded to the dominance that he could not understand. Miss von Ohl got him this spring. Today, with her, he is as gentle and as clever at doing quickly and intelligently the unusual things he has been taught as is a docile and well-trained horse.

He poses on barrels and pedestals, lies down and rolls over at the word "command," waltzes, and so on. Beats the dence how much a fellow can eat when he gets a chance. One of this bull's most remarkable tricks, considering his vicious record of three men gored and tossed with his sharp horns, is when he rolls his trainer over and over on the ground.

Miss von Ohl lies on the grass, pretending to be asleep. The bull approaches and literally roots and noses her across the turf, seeming to derive great enjoyment from rolling her over and over and finally seeing her awake. His horns are only four or five inches long, but are sharp as needles. With an animal of this description, the experts say, this particular trick is a shade more dangerous than any that is attempted in the lion or tiger's cages by the exhibitors of those great cat animals.

Another thing this bull does is to pick up his teacher and carry her. He grabs her clothing with his strong teeth and marches along with her for a dozen yards and then carefully lets her down to the ground.

First Notable Achievement.

These two achievements by Miss von Ohl—the training of the calf and of the bull—are said by professional trainers to be absolutely unique. No one has ever succeeded in doing so much with these animals before. Their period of instruction is not yet over, she says she is giving them their post-graduate course now.

These are not all of Miss von Ohl's unique "stunts." Any one who knows anything about horses appreciates the fact that it is an unheard-of thing to get a horse to take a stick or anything of the kind in his teeth and hold it as long as a dog. This young woman's amateur trainer does even more than that. One of the things that a horse fears the most is a whip. She has taught one of her horses to grab a whip between his teeth and to struggle against its being taken away from him, just as a puppy would.

The horse seems to think it a very delightful game, and appears to be laughing all the time that he is trying to study his mistress's game.

When she seizes the end of the whip and tries to take it away from him he clenches his teeth on it with all the tenacity of a bulldog. Only at the word of command will he release it, and then with a playful show of reluctance. After this the horse will stand at a little distance, shake his head feebly and snap the whip he holds in his teeth.

Miss von Ohl's first notable achievement in training stupid animals was some years ago, when she taught a herd of twenty mules to do some remarkable tricks. Horses have been trained to do all sorts of things from time immemorial, but mules are cred-

Found a $10,000 Orchid

London Chronicle.

In 1902 only five of the precious "Cypripedium" plants were left—counting the home-bred hybrid named for Mrs. F. L. Ames of Massachusetts. Four were in France, in the Jardin de Luxembourg; one was in England, in the conservatory of Sir Trevor Lawrence. These were fast declining and the next year one alone in the known world gave forth a flower. Despairingly, Opeox, the Luxembourg gardener, tried to breed from it, and waited in ardent and hopeful impatience. But you cannot make a high-class, decent orchid germinate its own pollen. This orchid was no exception; it was bent on race suicide.

In such a plight were the orchidists when they offered $10,000 reward to any one who would find a hale and virile wild specimen of the Cypripedium Fairriemum. England had long desired to open up Tibet to the range of commerce. Opportunity did not come till Russia was busy with war in Manchuria and Korea. Captain Youngusband was hurriedly dispatched by the English from India with a military force to penetrate to the sacred city of Lhasa. The penetration was made—at cost of blood, life and treasure. Attached to the expedition was G. L. Searight of Dartford, surveyor in his Majesty's service. Being, like many Englishmen, an amateur gardener, he botanized along the way, and one afternoon, 7,000 feet above sea level, he came upon the Lost Orchid.

He sent 1,000 plants back to Calcutta by a native, to be examined. News of this reached England. Inquiries were verified the specimens as the long vanished Fairriemum. That news, also, was cabled to Europe. "Events," commented the Orchid Review, excitedly, "follow each other with such startling rapidity as to make one almost breathless!"

These events—the arrival, the testing and the decision on the genuineness of the find—produced among the cognoscenti a tremendous sensation. Indeed, among orchidists, the historic expedition, even the Russo-Japanese war itself, will be chiefly memorable for having led to the reclamation of this little "lady's slipper."

When 179 of Searight's plants arrived in London they brought $2,750—and $10,000 reward besides. At this rate Searight's discovery must have yielded him nearly $25,400—and the cost of the plants yet in bloom.—Franklin Clark, in Everybody's.

GOLD FROM SUNKEN SHIP.

In the most boisterous part of Mounts Bay, and almost unapproachable except by sea, lies Dollar Cove, where for the past three months a treasure seeking expedition, sent down by a London syndicate, has been quietly working. The company of seekers some three or four weeks ago suspended operations in order to get more powerful pumps and gear. These are in working order, and although the salvors have little to say about the matter, they appear to be hopeful of success. In the year 1788 a Spanish ship went ashore there with about 20 tons of specie aboard.

Everybody who lives on the coast is familiar with the appearance of the dollars, as large numbers have been washed up on the beach from time to time. Gold pieces are said to have been discovered recently by people walking on the beach.—London Chronicle.

PIG THAT BARKS LIKE A DOG.

Fred M. Thim of this city, a well known electrician and railroad man, has at his home in lower Beach street a pig that barks like a dog.

The black and white markings of the pig are much like a hound. Its ears are much resemble those of a hound in their size, shape and the way they hang.

Mr. Thim has had many visitors to see the animal and hear it bark. All say it is startling to hear such sounds come from a pig, and there is an impulse to jump.—Saco, Me., dispatch to New York World.

Ever have a "low-down" pain in the back?

In the "small," right over the hips? That's the home of backache. It's caused by sick kidneys.

That's why Doan's Kidney Pills cure it.

Albuquerque people endorse this. Read a case of it:

T. A. Barnett, retired, 914 S. Broadway, Albuquerque, N. Mex., says: "For years I was troubled by kidney complaint which was growing gradually more severe. I had pains in my back, a general weakness and any exertion tired me out. The kidney secretions were too frequent in passage and obliged me to arise often at night. About a year ago I had the good fortune to learn of Doan's Kidney Pills and began their use. I can say that no other medicine ever afforded me such great benefit. Doan's Kidney Pills not only gave me strength but toned up my kidneys and invigorated me generally."

CHAPTER VII

Mr. Arndsen of Duane street Sends for the Police.

Cornoyer had hurriedly got rid of his all too genial guest on the plea of a pressing prior engagement, and that chance acquaintance, having hidden him an effusive farewell, set out in the direction of Broadway at a swift pace without paying much attention to where he was going. Although he had been more or less successful in concealing the fact, his feelings had been deeply ruffled by the other's urgency to get him off the club premises.

"Lot o' snobs those chaps in the Cornucopia!" he muttered disparagingly. "I've no use for snobs. Give me plain, simple gentlemen like myself. But I did think that young Frenchman would stand for a touch. If he'd even introduced me about a bit, I might have got up a flutter at cards. But no—it was all to the door for mine!"

"And I'm getting deucedly near the end of my tether too! That ramshackle auto comes pretty steep, and I owe more to the hotel already than I can dazzle them with if they lie down on me without warning. There's no use of beating about the bush, Dominic, my boy, and this is no time for mere piking. Your fortune's made, you're a millionaire many times over, if you'll only pluck up sufficient courage to face Black Dirck."

He smote his leg with the cane he carried, and threw out his chest in ostentatious bravado.

"Who's afraid of Black Dirck, anyhow?" he soliloquized sternly. "And, even if I do happen to owe him a small sum, I'll soon be able to wipe that off with interest. With interest, mark you. For Dominic Seager's dead honest, just as soon as he can afford to be. And this is a sure thing, a brassbound clinch. I've proof enough to convince a whole court of inquiry."

Thus holding communion with himself and at the same time, bolstering up his moral courage, he boarded a Broadway car bound for the Battery. "Better strike while the iron's hot," he advised himself.

This same Dominic Seager, who had not flinched before the revolver aimed at him by the girl on the broken-down runabout, was not lacking in that physical quality which so often enables men of his stamp to brave bodily danger unmoved. But it must be admitted with equal frankness that, as he drew rapidly nearer Duane street, he became mentally ill at ease, his spirit of valor oozed from his finger tips.

"If he'll only listen to me," he whispered uneasily, slackening his pace. "I can soon make everything right. All there is between us is a mere fleabite compared with the stake I can share with him now. I can convince him that it will pay handsomely to let bygones be bygones."

He squared his shoulders now and strode forward till he came to a dingy door bedizened with an unclean brass plate bearing the simple statement:

D. ARDENSEN, Inc.
Wholesale Hardware.

and, pushing it open, passed through. There was nothing at all alarming about the scene inside. A shabby office interior, much divided by dirty partitions.

The apprehensive adventurer, proceeding to a private office, seated himself cavalierly in front of the desk occupied by the personage who was D. Arndsen, Inc., a very truculent-looking man of swarthy complexion, possessed of a bushy black beard and mustache.

Mr. Arndsen raised his eyes, and so suddenly that Seager was startled. But nevertheless he met them with a successful enough assumption of coolness.

"Not!" hissed Mr. Arndsen, with slowly rising inflection, and in the monosyllabic there was purposeful menace.

"Now don't get hot," Seager advised, controlling his own premonitions of coming trouble. "I've come to settle about that shipment, and I want you to hear me out in a rational spirit."

Mr. Arndsen did not appear to have heard him in any spirit at all.

"Wulf," he called, "run round to the corner of Hudson, and fetch a cop."

Then he leaned back, elbows upon the arms of his chair.

"I'll settle with compound interest," Seager continued as though he had not spoken, and watching him closely. "Figure it all out and let me know the amount."

Mr. Arndsen eyed him curiously, but made no answer.

"Get busy," commanded the other. "Do you want me to withdraw my offer and go?"

come here with another cock and bull story, and wanting more money. I know you too well to think any other errand would tempt you to cross my threshold. It will cost no less to lock you up than to listen."

Seager was disconcerted by the intonation with which his former friend had hit the mark, and showed that by his next move.

"It's a sure thing this time," he said, "a cold-drawn clinch. I have full proof with me"—he fumbled in a pocket and produced a bulky package which he held up before the other—"all signed and sealed, all safe and certain. You're not going to be such a fool!"

"I have been a fool—once!" asserted Arndsen, with dreary fixity of purpose.

Seager saw that the man meant what he said and was about to rise, with some faint hope that he might yet make his escape, when he heard hasty footsteps. He thrust the papers back into his pocket, and when his hand came forth again it held a pistol. He dropped his wrist, so that it lay levelly in line with Arndsen's low forehead.

"If I go to Sing Sing," he said in a tone voice, head forward. "I'll go for a good reason, damn you! If you value your life, send the cop away."

Arndsen's dull eyes had dilated slightly, and his teeth showed, snarling through his beard, but otherwise he had not moved.

"Wulf!" he said quietly. "Give the cop half a dollar and send him away."

The steps outside had almost reached the door before they halted and turned back.

The two men in the small square room drew deep breaths of relief. That minute had been pregnant with grave possibilities for both, but they recovered from its influence with an ease which proved that they were well used to facing chances of that sort.

"You're bold," commented Arndsen. "If you were also honest to your friends I could have done good things with you and for you."

"We'll quit that line of talk, now," said Seager sourly. While he was master of the situation he would be treated with respect. He knew, of course, that all he had gained was a respite, but felt quite confident that he could turn that into a free pardon.

"I've got a proposition to put before you which beats the gun-running business. I wouldn't have come here at all if I hadn't been certain sure that it would."

"I'll listen," assented his victim, "but tell me first—what did you do with the money they paid you for those cartridges you took to St. Thomas for me?"

"I lost it on the way back in New Orleans," Seager answered rather shamefacedly. "At cards."

"Eight thousand dollars of my good money! And two years ago. I could have turned it into eighty by now. You must pay me those $80,000 you owe me."

"All right, all right. That's a mere trifle. I tell you, to what we're going to make out of this. You lose a lot through being impatient."

"I'm not impatient," asserted Arndsen. "I'm really a very patient man. Go on, I'm listening."

A BATTLESHIP TRUCK GARDEN.

Turkey has been having more than her share of publicity during the last six months with revolutionary, anti-revolutionary, and reactionary political parties that have kept the government in continual turmoil, and have troubled the heads of the great European powers. Meanwhile the Turkish navy has been renovated, and the investigation has disclosed a ludicrous state of inefficiency.

The whole of the quarterdeck of one of the warships had been converted into a flourishing kitchen garden, and there was promise of an excellent crop of cabbages and artichokes. The entire crew were interested in these agricultural pursuits, for naturally a share in the fresh vegetables was more to be desired than empty honors gained by proficiency in seamanship, only acquired through close application to naval duties. The state of the remainder of the Turkish ships may be left to the imagination. Harper's Weekly.

PET CROW THE THIEF.

A pet crow in the family of Alexander V. Anderson, at Rockport, Ky., has been found to have been the thief which for several years has been purloining diamonds and articles of jewelry which the family had missed from time to time, and for the theft of which several servants have been accused and discharged.

The crow was seen to fly from the house with a diamond brooch in its mouth, and a search of his nest in a nearby tree revealed a gold watch, two rings, two $10 bills, one $20 gold piece, a woman's "hat," and many other articles of more or less value.

The loss of the articles had long baffled the members of the family and a policeman of Rockport, who had been at work on the various robberies in an effort to locate the missing articles and arrest the thief—Lexington (Ky.) Dispatch to New York Tribune.

THE TURTLE'S CUNNING.

Although not credited with any high degree of intelligence, the turtle, when about to deposit its eggs, exhibits considerable cunning.

It scoops out a hole, as if to prepare a repository for its eggs, but in order to delude the birds and other enemies the turtle throws the sand again into the hole, leaving the surface rough and waddles off to another spot, where it repeats the process. Sometimes this is done three times, and eventually the eggs are laid in an excavation within a few yards of the sham nest, the surface being smoothed and battened down.

When hunting for the eggs the Queensland blacks probe the sand in the vicinity of one of the sham nests, and are usually successful.—London Globe.

TAFT REVIEWS WORK OF THE RED CROSS

President Writes Governors. Telling What the Society Has Done in the Past.

President Taft, as president of the American National Red Cross, has sent a letter to governors of states and territories, calling their attention to the resources of that organization. The letter is also one which will clearly and completely inform a great many people as to the general nature of the Red Cross, its manner and means of organization, and its support by the government. The letter says:

"Sir: The purpose of this letter is to bring to your knowledge the facilities of the American Red Cross for conducting large measures of emergency relief or assisting in their conduct in any part of the United States. Its national director, Ernest P. Bicknell, who devotes his entire time to the executive duties of the Red Cross, has had an extended experience in the organization and direction of work of this character.

"Mr. Bicknell is prepared to proceed immediately to the scene of any great disaster and confer with the state or local authorities, as well as the local representatives of the Red Cross, in regard to the efficient organization of relief. The service is wholly free, and is quite apart from any question of the source of the relief funds.

"The Red Cross is a national organization, the only one chartered by the United States and maintained for the sole purpose of relieving the sufferings caused by war or by calamities in time of peace. In the United States, fortunately, the Red Cross has been almost entirely free from the demands of war, but has found an important and growing field in the relief and rehabilitation of communities devastated by fire, flood, storm or other disaster of an extent or magnitude exceeding local relief sources.

"It operates under a special charter from Congress and is governed by a central committee appointed in part by the President of the United States, from the departments of state, war, navy, treasury and justice, and is required to submit an annual report to Congress. In the event of war the Red Cross is the only organization whose agents in the military encampments and upon the battlefields will be officially recognized and authorized to maintain hospitals, hospital ships, etc.

"Should any calamity occur within the bounds of your state which requires large and unusual relief measures, you are invited to make the best use of the services of the Red Cross or of its national director in either an executive or an advisory capacity. Since the reorganization of the Red Cross in 1905, the amounts enumerated on the attached sheet have been raised and expended at the places or for the objects stated. Very respectfully,

"WILLIAM H. TAFT."

The statement shows that the American National Red Cross has expended for relief from January 5, 1905, to May 15, 1909, $4,472,892.62; the largest four items being the San Francisco fire, $2,856,289.52; the Italian earthquake 1908, $986,283.11; Chinese famine, $327,725.43, and the Japanese famine, $245,865.67. The Red Cross realized $138,000 from the sale of its Christmas stamps in 1908, the proceeds being used for local anti-tuberculosis work throughout the country.

The total expenditure for administration and executive work for the same period was $30,195.15, about two-thirds of 1 per cent of the funds disbursed.

THE EXCLUSION LAW HAS BEEN STRETCHED

Many Chinese Entered the United States Though Not Entitled to Admission.

San Francisco, July 14.—A lax administration of the Chinese exclusion act, which has permitted the influx of hundreds of Chinese from Hawaii to the United States since the annexation of that territory is to be brought to the attention of the United States attorney's office, and probably will result in wholesale arrests among the Chinese who have thus gained admission, even if no official condemnation falls on those who stretched the law to what the Washington officials consider undue limits.

It is around the naturalized Chinese of Hawaii and their offspring that the question settles. According to the United States attorney's office, the admission of a Chinese, naturalized in Hawaii, is quite within the exclusion act for the annexation of the islands made him an American citizen. Neither is there any question as to the right of his children, born since his naturalization, or that were minors at the time.

But the immigration officials have given a broader interpretation to the law and spread out the father's naturalization papers to cover his children who had reached their majority before he took the oath of allegiance.

The immigration authorities, whose duty it is to hold down Chinese immigration to the letter of the law, are said to have allowed Wing or Lung to swear to the parentage of many other stalwart Wings or Lung and vest in them his acquired right of citizenship, although all of their mature years have been spent in China.

Those naturalized-by-proxy Chinese under this state of affairs, have, of course, the right to bring their offspring with them, and so on ad infinitum until the Chinese exclusion act looks in China like an engraved invitation to all who can secure a naturalized father in Hawaii, to set sail for the United States.

It is understood that the interpretation of the law coming from Washington, with its accompanying demand for an investigation, has given the local immigration officials a decided jar, and fear has been expressed by some of its officials that wholesale arrests and much embarrassment will follow.

Then the trust shut up the refinery, Kissel has been "thrown down" by the trust, his friends say. He was indicted with the trust directors in New York last week, but appeared to answer with his own lawyer, W. S. Osborn.

ANT HILLS AND FLIES.

A recent traveler in Central Africa describes an interesting use of the soil of ant hills. It appears that it makes excellent bricks, of which houses are built. The natives tread it with water into a dough-like substance which is shaped in rough wooden molds. It is then dried in the sun, and afterward baked in native kilns. The same substance is found to make excellent tennis courts. It is mixed with water into a thick paste, spread on the ground, and smoothed over with the hands. The same traveler tells us how the natives in the neighborhood of Lake Nyassa esteem a species of fly as an excellent article of diet. It is known as the "kunu," and appears to be peculiar to the lake. At certain seasons of the year they appear in enormous numbers, and are sometimes blown in myriads over the land. If this happens near a village the natives come out eagerly to gather them up. They make them into what they consider a delicious confection.—London Globe.

A MOUNTAIN OF BORAX.

With the exception of the Grand Canyon, there is probably no more famous locality in the west than Death Valley, known as the "vale below the sea," and although there are a number of Mount Blancs in the great American desert, the Mount Blanco of Death Valley is the greatest of its name. It rises like an enormous white beast against the terra cotta ridge of Funeral Range, close to Furnace Creek Canyon, a great rent that cleaves the steep rampart of Death Valley. Around it is a rolling waste of bald, yellow hills, none of which is a mere knoll, and it towers a good 1,000 feet above them. The lowland of Death Valley, sinking for several miles westward, is probably 2,500 feet lower.

No one ledge or series of ledges anywhere in the world contains the immense amount of borate quartz shown in the surface of this mountain of Colemanite. It is a body of ore measuring 1,000 feet in width and 5,000 feet in length, pitching into the mountain range at a 33-degree angle. It is a borax quarry whose limitations cannot be even roughly conjectured, but it must exceed by thousands of tons any known borate deposit.—Detroit News.

Livestock in Demand, Kansas City Stock Yards, July 14.—Cattle receipts here last week were fairly good at 45,000 head, run same week last year 35,000. The market declined 10 to 25 cents on heavy steers, but light steers and butcher cattle closed about steady for the week, after selling higher middle of the week. Grass cattle last 15 to 25 cents during the week, with cows selling at the smallest loss. Some fed Colorado steers brought $6.50 and $6.00 during the week, and Kansas grazed western steers sold at $5.25 to $6.25, grass cows at $3.00 to $4.00. The run today is only 3,000 cattle here, the supply kept down by inability of railroads to handle stuff promptly, account of big rains and washouts in Kansas and Missouri. The stuff is selling around steady today, although the meager supply is not nearly sufficient to supply the normal demand. Indications point to a small run next few days, and with the cessation of flood conditions, and the improvement of the railroad situation, the demand will require large supplies of all kinds of cattle. Stockers and feeders lost ground last week, closing 15 to 25c lower. Very few are included today, stock steers at $3.75 to $3.00, feeders $4.50 to $5.15, a few weighty feeders at $5.50 lately, buyers of same intending to feed them for the September market. Supplies of sheep and lambs are fairly good, and the market has been stronger since the first of last week. Supplies today are only 2,000 head, but offerings in the last week have embraced a wide variety of stuff, including Utah wethers at $4.00, year-

A CALIFORNIA FIRM AWARDED CONTRACT FOR SEWER

Council in Executive Session. Accepts Bid of the Bakersfield Contractors.

In executive session, in which only the members of the council, the city attorney and the city engineer were permitted to take part, the city council last night let the contract for the building of the new sewer system to the firm of Glass & Fisher, of Bakersfield, Calif. The price was $261,842.90, which includes the purchase of all under-ground material and the laying of the pipes. The work is to be done according to the specifications of Dr. Gray, the New Jersey expert, and under the supervision of Dr. Gray and City Engineer Gladding.

The bid of Glass & Fisher was the lowest bid after the withdrawals of Monday night, but only had a margin of $3,000 to go on under the bid of T. J. Shea, the New Orleans contractor or as originally submitted. Mr. Shea's bid was $271,844.90, and he had a number of strong local interests working for him in the caucus that were made. Mr. Shea's reputation as the builder of the system of New Orleans, which is considered one of the biggest engineering feats in America, was in his favor, but the Bakersfield concern made a strong, straightforward bid, with good guarantee, and it had to be recognized.

The work is to begin within thirty days and is to be completed within a year if material can be had readily.

The city under its contract with Glass & Fisher is obligated to furnish the manhole casings and the pumping equipment, which will cost about $27,000. The city now has a balance of $201,000 in the sewer fund.

The bids canvassed by the sewer committee in its search for the best bid were as follows:

- A. L. Patterson $201,225.00
- M. Kerne 357,084.00
- The Municipal Construction Company 291,475.00
- Dearborn & Jackson 228,275.00
- J. D. Henley & Co. 299,782.00
- Glass & Fisher 261,842.90
- T. J. Shea 271,844.90
- Hamilton Bros. 207,986.00
- Seerle Bros. & Co. 228,175.00

The original bid of Glass & Fisher was $268,842.90, but $7,000 expense was eliminated by mutual agreement between the city and the contractor. The mayor and the city clerk were authorized by the council to close the contract.

Work for Water Committee.

Alderman Wroth, before the council went into executive session last night, moved and received a second that the water committee's expert report be referred back to the committee for conclusions. Dr. Wroth said that the report was long enough but determined no conclusion.

On his motion the committee was referred back to the committee with instructions to formulate their conclusions and report them to the next meeting. M. L. Stern, representing the committee, was present. Mr. Stern took the report and said he understood the council wanted a summary of the report. Alderman Wroth's motion carried without a dissenting vote.

NEGRO FOUND DEAD IN ROOMING HOUSE

He Was Cared for by Police But Left Police Headquarters Monday.

Aaron McGee, a negro found near the Crystal Lee plant Monday by Officer Quier, suffering from violent pains in his stomach, was found dead this morning at Mrs. Taylor's rooming house in a position on the floor which indicated that he had died a painful and sudden death. The body was lying cramped up on the floor and wedged against the door. The indications were that McGee got out of bed and was starting toward the door when death overtook him.

The man's case was a pitiful one. City Physician Pearce was out of the city and the man received no medical attention all day Monday. He was given a pallet in the police headquarters, but left Monday night and yesterday morning was found lying on the sidewalk on Central avenue. He was taken back to the police station and a physician called. He was in great agony almost continually, and complained of pains in his stomach. Yesterday forenoon Rev. James Washington, of the A. M. E. church had him taken to the Taylor rooming house. He was given medical attention, but when last seen last night was still suffering intensely. He gave his residence at Dumont, Miss., and said that he had been working recently at Raton.

PLENTY OF TROUT IN JAMEZ COUNTRY

Col. Sellers Relates an Incident of the Trip He Took in Company With M. W. Flournoy.

M. W. Flournoy and Col. D. K. B. Sellers returned to the city last night from a ten days' outing on the Guadalupe river in the Jemez country. They stopped at the ranch of E. M. French, 15 miles west of the Jemez Hot springs, and found fine fishing in the immediate neighborhood. The colonel, who was acting as press agent for the two today, said that they had fish every meal they were there and there was always some left.

"One day we took a large pan, a can of lard and our lines and made a fire on the bank of the stream," said the colonel in relating a story of one of the big catches. "Mr. Flournoy made a fire and we got the lard hot and then I started to fish. Mr. Flournoy cleaned the trout and put them in the pan as fast as I pulled them out. Well, there were twenty-one frying in the pan before the first one was well done. We fried them all a dark seal brown and they were delicious."

No rain fell in the Jemez country while they were there, but it was cloudy almost every day, and the country is green and covered with flowers and foliage.

Motion for New Trial Is Filed and Precautions Taken for an Appeal.

District Attorney Klock, who yesterday filed a motion for a new trial in the salary cases of John S. Beaven and Sig Grunfeld, involving in the neighborhood of $20,000 salary, expects to have these cases reviewed by the supreme court by next January. The cases will undoubtedly go to the higher court, and precautions have been taken by the district attorney to preserve the right to appeal.

COOLER WEATHER FROM HAIL STORM

Temperature in Albuquerque Went Down Yesterday After Hard Wind.

While most of the surrounding country received rain yesterday afternoon, Albuquerque was visited by a fierce sand storm that swept down from the Manzano mountains in the east. For two hours the wind blew, carrying clouds of dust. About 6:30 the wind calmed and the temperature went tumbling from fever heat to comfortable weather. The cool breeze that blew last night came from off a hail storm 100 miles southeast of the city. There was also a heavy hail storm at Santa Fe, and rain at Las Vegas. A half inch of water followed the hail storm at Santa Fe. It was 8 degrees cooler today at noon than yesterday at the same hour, owing to a cool breeze from the southeast. The mercury went to 99 yesterday in the shade.

Colored Woman Thinks City Ought to Let Her Boy Take His Regular Daily Bath.

Chief of Police McMillan was approached yesterday by a colored woman of unusually large proportions. "Doan you think de city oughter furnish a bath ticket at de natatorium foh mah boy?" she inquired. "He ain't bin feelin' zackley scramshus sence dey stopped him swimmin' in de sakey. Wha' foh dey stop him swimmin', any way?"

Chief McMillan told her he had no bath tickets to give out and referred her to the grievance committee of the council. Alderman George Learnard, chairman. She said her boy had been taking his daily bath in the acequia north of town, but when the health officer inspected the canal recently he ordered the boy to quit it.

ALBUQUERQUE MOTORISTS WERE GIVEN A BOOST

The Albuquerque party composed of R. N. Van Sant, Charles S. White, H. E. (Bill) Zeiser and James M. Riker, which left Albuquerque two weeks ago on a trip to Detroit, has reached Denver and a picture of the party in Van Sant's auto appeared in a recent issue of the Denver News. From the looks of the car and the members of the party the going has not always been smooth. Under the picture appears the following: "Dr. Ralph Van Sant, Charles S. White, H. E. (Bill) Zeiser and M. J. Riker, of Albuquerque, N. M., en route to Detroit in a Chalmers-Detroit '30.' This party was present at the opening of the new scenic route from Raton, N. Reach the City Thru an Ad

Did you ever stop to consider how cheap but how effective a little want ad is in reaching an entire city?

Figure out how much time and money would be required to mail a letter to every one in the city. The postage alone would be $20 for every thousand.

Think how impossible it would be for you to call on each resident personally and talk with him every evening.

Then consider that a want ad not only introduces you to the supper table of every home in the city, but it does so for only a few cents.

Can you think of a more effective or less expensive way to talk with every one in your city--rich and poor alike? Then try an ad in the Citizen and see the result.

Cure the kidneys with the certain and safe remedy Doan's Kidney Pills, which has cured people right here in Albuquerque.

Mrs. J. L. Curd, 410 S. Third St., Albuquerque, N. Mex., says: "I suffered from pains in my back for a long time and when I over-exercised myself or took cold, the trouble was aggravated. My kidney trouble was hereditary as my father died with Bright's disease. About a year ago Doan's Kidney Pills were brought to my attention and taking them for a short time, I was absolutely relieved of the pain in my back and felt better in every way. The merits of Doan's Kidney Pills was so plainly demonstrated to me, that I can with pleasure and confidence recommend them to others."
