BRADLEY CASE PARCELS POST OFFENSES ITS CLOSE MUSKOGEE

EVIDENCE FOR DEFENSE
PRACTICALLY COMPLETE

Uncle of Prisoner Testifies
Concerning Alleged Insanity
in Her Family; Experts on Mind Diseases to Be Called.

Washington, Nov. 22.—The criminal court in which Mrs. Annie M. Bradley is being tried on the charge of murdering her husband, Senator Brown, of Utah, will hold no session tomorrow, and as a consequence there will be no further proceedings in the trial until Monday. When the court adjourned today the defense had practically completed its presentation of proof, very little remaining except the testimony of experts, who will be introduced for the people, showing that when Mrs. Bradley shot Senator Brown she was insane.

Today's proceedings in the case were devoted largely to what may be designated as odds and ends in the shape of testimony. Mrs. Bradley's mother was recalled for the purpose of testifying on a point; several more of the Salt Lake witnesses were examined as to the conduct and bearing of Mrs. Bradley in that city; Mrs. Bradley's uncle, Lyman Shrewsbury, of California, told of instances of insanity and eccentricity in Mrs. Bradley's family. Judge Henderson, Senator Brown's law partner, narrated interviews with Mrs. Bradley relative to her intimacy with Mr. Brown; and a number of Brown's letters to Mrs. Bradley were read. The reading of the letters furnished the most interesting incident of the day. They were filled with mitigated protestations of love and reproaches for interest in other men and they stirred Mrs. Bradley to deep emotion, and, closing her eyes, seemed entirely lost in the memory they awakened.

The defendant was not in buoyant mood during the day. Her manner was dejected, her speech infrequent and her face pale. Evidently there had been a reaction after the conclusion of her testimony. She looked as if she had had a sleepless night.

She was not so depressed, however, that she did not laugh over the testimony of her uncle indicating that her aunt had been jealous of him.

The trial was resumed at 10:30 o'clock this morning with Albert H. Barnes, assistant attorney general of Utah, on the stand.

Judge Henderson, counsel for Mrs. Bradley, announced that the taking of expert testimony would probably not begin before Monday. A hypothetical question that will be propounded to the medical men has been completed.

The examination of all other witnesses will be concluded today, and adjournment taken until Monday. Barnes told Mrs. Bradley visiting his office and telling him that she had promised to marry him and asking him to use his influence with Brown. Barnes said he refused to interfere but he told her that he had thought Brown had been a curse upon her and that he would tell her so, but told the woman that if Brown sent for him he would go.

A little later he sent for him and asked him what he should do. Barnes said he told the senator that if the two children were married, he would be a curse upon them, and he should marry the woman and give the children his name.

He also testified that in his opinion Brown did not intend to marry her, and advised her to go away and in the best of it he said Mrs. Bradley was much impressed at his statement.

He did not consider her insane except on the subject of Arthur Brown. She seemed completely under his influence.

When asked if she was rational he said "yes and no, she never seemed to lose the conviction that Brown would marry her. On all other points she seemed entirely sane."

The next witness was Judge H. P. Henderson, former law partner of Brown. He testified that he had several interviews with Mrs. Bradley. In one of which he told her to stay away from his office.

Henderson referred to the relations between Brown and his wife, declaring that Brown had said to his wife in the presence of himself and Mrs. Bradley that Mrs. Bradley had been a curse upon him and he would not resume his relations with her. He testified that Mrs. Bradley had said to him that she would be a curse upon him and he would not resume his relations with her.

On cross-examination Henderson said in her interviews with him Mrs. Bradley seemed rational though very emotional. He said that Brown was a drinking man. He had seen him a few times so drunk that he staggered.

Speaking of Brown's temperament, he said he was a very odd man, eccentric to the last degree, and always angry with someone.

The last witness of the morning was Lyman H. Shrewsbury, an uncle of Mrs. Bradley. His testimony showed insanity in Mrs. Bradley's family.

COMMERCIAL CONGRESS
DECLINES TO ENDORSE IT

Resolutions Ask Five Hundred Million Dollars From Government For Improvement of Nation's Rivers and Harbors.

[By Morning Journal Special Leased Wire.]
Muskegon, Okla., Nov. 22.—The eighteenth annual meeting of the Transmississippi Commercial congress closed this afternoon to meet in San Francisco next year. A resolution endorsing the parcels post was voted down, amid great applause.

Resolutions were passed favoring the establishment of a postal savings bank system by the national government; for an increase of the interstate tariff rates; not to become effective until chance of protest could be made; for an appropriation by the government for better roads for the improvement of rivers and harbors, and for the establishment of a bureau for the improvement of rivers and harbors.

Senator Robert L. Owen, of Oklahoma, introduced a resolution asking the federal government to remove the restrictions from the lands of Indian allottees in Oklahoma after the state courts have provided for the protection of the full bloods.

The resolution was carried unanimously. Other resolutions adopted were:

"Favoring construction of a dry dock in Pearl Harbor, Hawaii; favoring establishment of agricultural experiment station in every congressional district in the transmississippi country; favoring separation of surface lands from the underground minerals on public lands and sale of such surface lands to the federal government to prevent fever among cattle."

An executive committee was appointed with Thomas Walsh, of Colorado, as chairman. The following congressional committee was appointed:

Fred Fleming, Kansas City; H. P. Wood, of Honolulu; Theodore P. Wilcox, Portland, Ore.; Alva Adams, of Pueblo, Colo.; R. C. Kerns, of St. Louis; E. F. Harris, Galveston; and J. D. Phelan, of San Francisco.

FOREIGNERS FLOCK TOWARD UNPRECEDENTED EXODUS OF ALIENS

Taxes Capacity of Outward
Bound Steamers for Europe.

[By Morning Journal Special Leased Wire.]
New York, Nov. 22.—Serious freight congestion threatens all foreign ship departures from the port of New York. The eastward bound steamer travel during the past six weeks has been unparalleled, and the demand for accommodations has been so great that bookings have closed weeks in advance of sailings.

The main of the North German Lloyd, which sailed on Thursday, carried 2,345 steerage passengers, and even up to the minute of sailing there were hundreds of passengers waiting on the piers for accommodations. Bookings for steerage on the Reditz, of the same line, which is to sail Wednesday next, have been closed for several days, and no more steerage tickets are being sold for the Koenig Albert, which will sail November 30 for Mediterranean ports.

European freight at this time of year is very heavy, and with the enormous increase in steamer travel many lines are finding it difficult to handle. European shipments now consist largely of apples, of which 168,176 barrels have been exported so far this season, and 2,200 boxes of apples. These apple shipments will likely continue until after the holidays, and as it is perishable freight, the steamship companies try to handle it.

The eastward bound steamer, or third class, from January 1 to November 15, 1907, is already 10,000 in excess of what it was last year, and both the second and third class figures will be augmented during the next few weeks.

On cross-examination Henderson said in her interviews with him Mrs. Bradley seemed rational though very emotional. He said that Brown was a drinking man. He had seen him a few times so drunk that he staggered.

Speaking of Brown's temperament, he said he was a very odd man, eccentric to the last degree, and always angry with someone.

of student corps. At present no one is admitted to the societies if he is an abstainer, and students when they are initiated are required to drink to the intoxication point.

The indications are that excessive drinking is diminishing rather than increasing in Germany. Holidays and anniversaries are being celebrated more by eating than drinking, because normally the majority of the population appears to be in the habit of abstaining from alcohol.

Workingmen, in celebrating a holiday, like to do so in a manner that gives them more meat and pudding to eat than by partaking of stimulants.

Bearing a fortune of $12,500,000 in gold for the money market of the world, the Mauretania, through three thousand miles of storm-swept ocean, battling every mile of the course to meet and defeat the world's transatlantic speed record of four days, five hours and ten minutes from Queenstown.

The average speed of the passage was 22.1 knots, or 22.5 miles an hour. Her average speed on her record day run of 424 knots, was 25.33 miles an hour.

The Mauretania is 979 feet in length over all, two feet longer than the Lusitania; has a beam of 88 feet; a depth of 8 feet; is 155 feet high from keel to mainmast; draws 37 feet 6 inches of water (mean); has a tonnage displacement of 45,000; an indicated horse power of 24,000; and a speed of 22.1 knots (22.5 miles an hour).

FR. SHERMAN TELLS STORY OF THE MAGDALENE

A Deeply Interesting Lecture
On Confession As Practiced
By the Catholic Church.

In his lecture last evening in St. Mary's hall, Fr. Sherman addressed himself to explain "The Royal Remedy for Evil," that is to say, Confession as practiced in the Catholic church. He began by telling the story of Mary Magdalene, weaving together the scenes of the gospel and placing them out with Christian tradition, bringing the story up to the point where Mary carries to the apostles the news of the resurrection, and then the risen Christ appears in his midst. He quoted from St. John's gospel, chapter 20, verses 18 and 22, dwelling on the time, the place and the circumstances. Christ appearing for the first time officially as conqueror of sin and death, appearing to his assembled church, says to the apostles: "As the Father sent me, so I send you." Their mission, then, is the same as His, said the speaker, "to forgive sins, to uplift sinners, to receive the Holy Ghost. He gives them the third person of the Trinity, the gift of all gifts. Whose sins you shall forgive, they are forgiven them." Now Mary Magdalene listens to these words, and remembering how Christ had wiped sin from her face and had restored her to her better self, had brought her back home to Benany, had given her the great privilege of standing at the foot of his cross to witness His splendid act of self-sacrifice, and to taste His saving merits, Mary now realizes that her privilege is to be extended to all human race. Any and every soul in sin, to the end of time, can go to a representative of Christ, throwing itself at his feet, confessing its sins, as she confessed here at the banquet of Simon, the Pharisee, and can hear from lips empowered by Christ the words of forgiveness: "Do in peace, thy sins are forgiven thee."

Father Sherman dwelt then upon confession as practiced in the Catholic church, stating that the power which Christ conferred upon the apostolic body. He said that public confession, like that of Mary Magdalene can only be expected of rarely magnanimous and religious souls, such as hers is known to have been. The ordinary sinner can not be expected to do so much, but Christ does expect that they should confess their sins, and say that they are sorry for their sins, before they can have the healing balm of absolution applied to their souls.

"This telling of sins in a secret way," said Father Sherman, "corresponds closely to an instinct of our nature by which we feel that it is a relief to unburden ourselves to some trusted friend or adviser. The most trusted friend and adviser of the soul is the priest, who is at once guide, and father and apostle, appointed to hear our sad tale, and to wipe that sin out of our souls.

dened, that Mary had when she heard from the lips of Christ himself, her God and Saviour, those blessed words, "Thy sins are forgiven thee." "Further still, we all know that self-knowledge is the hardest kind of knowledge in the world to acquire. We justify ourselves on account of our self-will, our personal interests, besides our passions cloak and hide the evil in which we are from time to time immersed. Now the man that examines his conscience in the light of God's law and the example of Christ and of his saints who then tells frankly and candidly all that he finds in himself of manifold evil, who opens up his conscience to another—a friend that is calm and quiet, and who can advise him further as to the fulfillment of his duties, that man gains in the light of this examination, and of this manifestation of himself, a self-knowledge which otherwise he never could or would acquire.

"The confessional thus keeps a man face to face with himself, as one looking in a mirror who sees all his defects and deformities. In this way the confessional acts as a great preventive of evil. The average non-Catholic knows that at the end of his life he must render an account to a strict judge, but the judgment day is far off, and there is plenty of time to arrange for that accounting. The Catholic sees in the corner of the church a little tribunal where he is obliged to humiliate himself, and to lay bare the wounds and scars of his soul. This acts as a continual check on the thoughts and desires of an evil character, as well as upon evil actions. Thus the confessional is an enormous bulwark or barrier in the kingdom of Christ for the prevention of evil, as well as for its cure. In fine it is an available tribunal where justice is meted out, where the thief is told to restore ill-gotten goods, and where the thief of honor or of affection—more guilty than he who steals the filthy lucre of the world, is obliged to make reparation—as far as possible—to restore the good name of his neighbor injured by his biting tongue. The confessional thus is seen to be the great work of justice, and of reparation in the world. We see then that it is the judicial branch of the great republic of the soul, a constant living tribute both to the mercy and the justice of our divine Lord and Saviour, tending to strengthen our love of virtue, to cleanse our consciences, to keep us always in the grace and friendship of God, and so to serve as a proper preparation and approach to the holy table where Christ himself is the food and the life of our souls."

ALBUQUERQUE — NEW MEXICO

ONE WAY TO LOOK AT IT.

The New York Commercial, in reviewing the action recently taken by the administration to relieve the money market, says the president's declaration in his letter to Secretary Cortelyou approving the bond-and-certificate sale are timely enough, true enough and of course reassuring and helpful at the moment. They reveal at the same time the cavalier optimism of the man, his essentially superficial view of the financial situation. The banks are all right, the country all right, he says—"everything lovely, and the goose hangs high." There is really only one thing to be done, he declares—get normal! "All that our people have to do now," is the Roosevelt prescription, "is to go ahead with their normal business in normal fashion and the whole difficulty disappears; and this end will be achieved at once if each man will act as he normally does and as the real conditions of the country's business fully warrant his now acting." But how, in the name of common sense, can a business that has been weeks and months getting into an inherently abnormal condition be made normal at the wave of a hand? Or a "fashion" that is badly distorted and twisted and mixed up be rendered normal and normal and all right in twenty-four hours? This is fair humor—one of the agencies that helped to produce the abnormal standing back and advising the people to get normal again quick.

SOCIALISM IN ENGLAND.

Our latest European advice give us to understand that socialism is at present the principal issue before the British public. The country is aroused by the controversy, extending far beyond the special conditions of the recent municipal elections in England and Wales, which sent the extremists to the rear in the majority.

Britons are waking up to the astonishing demands of socialism—the abolition of the monarchy, the disbanding of the standing army, the enforcement of direct taxation upon land as the sole source of public revenue, public ownership of food supplies, the nationalization of railways and all trusts, the foundation of industrial dwellings, where the tenant shall be charged rent based solely upon the cost of construction and maintenance, the opening of state pawnshops and state restaurants, universal old age pensions, state insurance and the repudiation of the national debt. These were the economic demands of the socialist candidates who within the last two weeks have offered themselves to the suffrages of the electors in hundreds of the principal towns of Great Britain.

Their social demands, it is said, include not only the disestablishment of the Church of England and the Church of England in Wales, but also a repudiation of the sanctions of religion and a formal recognition by the state of the legality of the communal relation in marriage, or "free love," such as Victoria Woodhull advocated in this country. There are, of course, many socialists who advocate the economic demands of the party, while rejecting some of its social demands. They are democrats rather than socialists in the German sense. They recognize the existence of a deity and respect the obligation of the marriage tie. What is happening in England is a slow but sure cleavage between the moderates and the extremists in socialism, the former rejecting the most offensive features of social communication, although retaining the doctrine of a communication of property.

IN THE FAR-OFF FUTURE.

For the benefit of some of our very intemperate temperance friends, we want to have it very distinctly understood that the following article—every word and syllable of it—is copied from that very prominent and respectable journal, the Washington Star, which, for more than fifty years has been regarded as the staunch friend and advocate of temperance, morality and religion.

The official reports of army officers continue to confirm the belief that the health and morale of American soldiers are being much injured by pernicious whiskey drunk in saloons. It is a fact that the average soldier is a good deal more than a little worse for wear when he comes back from the front. The reports of the army surgeons are not in dispute. The reports of the army surgeons are not in dispute. The reports of the army surgeons are not in dispute.

If alcoholism and vicious diseases in the army since the abolition of the sale of beer in post canteens. These figures are exceedingly plausible and support with common sense.

"Some time in the far-off future there may be a race of troopers, battlemen, doughboys," etc., that will not drink, smoke, chew or utter an occasional curse word, but when such a race comes upon the earth the millennium will have also come, and here will be no need of soldiers. Wars will be over and guns will be rusty relics of a long gone past.

"If the military authorities succeed in keeping a true soldier's thirst so well regulated and so gently tamed that it will be appeased with beer the cause of temperance will have made enough advance for one or two generations. If army troops, both for officers and enlisted men, can be reduced to beer a good deal of ground will be gained. With so much reason in favor of the sale of beer in post canteens, and with no reason at all against it, it is surprising that there are any anti-temperance."

"If this illogical and ill-advised attitude for the soldier's welfare goes much further the vegetarians will ban the soldier's beef and pork, the diet cranks will cut out his coffee, the mental scientists will insist that alcoholic shall not be blown and that guinea and blue-mass be abolished, and the Society for the Prevention of Purity will say to the soldier: 'Thou shalt not fight.'"

It is suggested that the Mormon leaders have been supplied with a new revelation; the Gentile voters did it.

People who venture presidential predictions a year in advance are quite as unreliable as the long-distance weather prophets.

The proceedings of the Bradley trial show that a murdered man does not stand much chance against a pretty woman, with plenty of tears on tap.

It would seem to be a clear case of the "unconscious mind." Attorney General Fall resigned several days ago, and hasn't become conscious of it yet.

Why doesn't the government consult ex-Banker Walsh, of Chicago? He seems to have known several ways to expand the currency, and get it into circulation.

The Herald has an editorial on "New York's two million dollar opera house." But we don't aim that high; that ten thousand dollar armory would make us quite happy.

Anent the presentation of that great diamond, the Washington Star fears that South African generosity, with gems may yet cause the ruler of Great Britain to be irreversibly referred to as the king of diamonds.

Temperance people tell us that woman suffrage in Finland promptly brings a prohibitionist triumph, and the New York World adds: In this country wide regions are going as dry as Sahara without woman suffrage. And there you are.

Christmas shopping has already commenced in the east, and the papers tell us that from the multitudes that crowd the department stores it is plain that the currency famine hasn't hit everybody. And a glance at the crowded business streets of Albuquerque would cause the beholder to think that the alleged famine had not been heard of out here.

Now that the extent of the financial failure of the Jamestown exposition is pretty definitely figured out, the position of the government as the largest creditor becomes a matter of anxious consideration. The government's loan to the exposition was $1,000,000, of which a little more than $100,000 has been repaid. The other $890,000 is now a charge against a borrower with a deficit of about $2,000,000. In addition to its loan, the government was put to an expense. It is figured, of about $1,440,000. It seems to have "penned out" a good deal like our fair, and the creditors have to hold the bag.

Letters to the Morning Journal from public spirited citizens in every part of the territory, go to show beyond any question that our people regard the irrigation congress as an affair that concerns every portion of New Mexico, just as much as it does Albuquerque. And that is correct. Of course, this place will feel the benefit of it first, but as an offset to that the town will have to shoulder a mighty big load in the matter of preparing for and entertaining the congress, and when it is all over the fruits of the meeting will be gathered by all sections of the territory alike. It will be the biggest thing that ever occurred for the whole of New Mexico.

kept by respectable and law-abiding citizens. Remember, I am not advocating or endeavoring to uphold the many smaller joints which should not be tolerated in any respectable community.

I believe the liquor license should be raised, but not such an extent as makes it prohibitive and injurious to the city. We have, I believe, approximately 25 saloons, from which the city derives a revenue of $250,000 annually. Cut this down to four or five saloons, paying $1500 each per year and see where your revenue is.

Another very prominent factor in this issue is that the saloonkeepers who are able to pay this high license, instead of patronizing a home industry, purchase their beer either in St. Louis or Milwaukee. Where is the southwestern brewery (prosperous Albuquerque brewery) that employs a large number of men, and one of our principal industries, going to get off—whose revenue is derived from the smaller saloons?

If the city council would assess the brewers of Lemp, Anheuser-Busch, Pabst, A. B. C. and other foreign makers of beer, a revenue of $1000 annually for each company's beer they bottled and would then be doing something toward helping such industries to locate here instead of driving them out. A license of $1000 for each company to the $400 license paid the territory making the total cost of saloon license $1000 would be more sufficient to pay the city's light and water bills, and would be sufficient to maintain a number of joints which are now running in the city—besides equating the revenue formerly collected from the saloon table.

This is a matter that should be gone into very carefully.

Albuquerque, Nov. 22 FAIR PLAY.

As Seen From the Oblique Angle

The curious attitude of the dear old Albuquenses toward certain kinds of public questions in which a little morality and honesty may be shown, is shown quite clearly in the following editorial relating to the Saloon Chief, Chairman H. D. Burroughs of the territorial committee, and the recent jury fixing cases in Santa Fe. Just why these three should be mixed together in the same column, it is difficult to make out, but it is clear that the Albuquenses are not very far from the mark.

It is suggested that the Mormon leaders have been supplied with a new revelation; the Gentile voters did it.

The Wolford Stock company last night presented "Dora Thorne," a romantic melodrama, which was thoroughly enjoyed by a comfortable audience at the Elks' theater. This evening the company presents "Mystic Mountain," a dramatization of Opie Reid's famous novel, "Len Gansett." DEAD CAT THROWER
WORK

Residents of Highland Register
 Vigorous Roar as to Sanitary Condition of Premises in That Part of the City.

Second only in baseness to the dog poisoner is the hurler of felines that have passed into rigor mortis. There is something revolting not only in the disrespect for the dead shown by these persons but in the disregard for his neighbor's peace of mind and of factory contentment. The cat has many faults. His ill timed concert frequently drive sleep from the eyelids of the weary toiler and he offensively swipes the family headpiece from the back of the head. But it is only common decency to bury a cat when he is dead. It is the act of a scoundrel to surreptitiously drop the dead animal from the fence into your neighbor's yard.

The residents of the Highlands, since City Health Officer Quier went out of office, have been flooding the police department with complaints that neighbors have been neglecting to inter departed cats, dogs and fowls and have been placing them in other people's yards. Various complaints have been made to the effect that garbage is allowed to accumulate and premises permitted to get in very unsanitary condition. All of which, it is felt, is an offense to the nostrils and a menace to health. Something should be done about this matter at once by the city council, for whoever is now entrusted with the duty of cleaning things up is woefully negligent.

One guilty individual who had deposited two puss cats in a neighbor's yard, was charged with the deed and threatened with prosecution, upon which he somewhat shamefacedly removed the remains and buried them.

The people in the Highlands say that nothing ought to be done to enforce a general clean-up and should be done quickly. Most of the complaints have come from South Edith and South Arno streets.

EVIDENCE TO BE PLACED BEFORE GRAND JURY

Immigration Inspector Leaves
 For Alamogordo in Connection With Charges Against Alleged Procureur.

W. H. Green, local immigration inspector, leaves today for Alamogordo, N. M., to attend the session of the federal grand jury which convenes Nov. 25. He will stop at Isleta and El Paso before reaching Alamogordo.

Mr. Green is the important witness in the case of the government against Lola Valdez, accused of unlawfully importing Anita Shatt into New Mexico for immoral purposes.

While on business in the eastern part of the territory a month ago Mr. Green arrested both women at Sunnyside, N. M., taking them to Alamogordo, where they were arraigned before a federal commissioner and then bound over to the grand jury.

McFarland succeeds Schumaker. Mr. Green has received information to the effect that F. W. McFarland, acting chief of the immigration service at El Paso, will succeed T. F. Schumaker, who is transferred to the department of justice as chief of the naturalization bureau in Denver, Colo.

Chief McFarland has been in the immigration service of the department of commerce and labor for over six years, and about a year ago he was transferred to the El Paso office from Helena, Mont.

Mrs. Deane will serve refreshments Saturday afternoon at the Variety 301 South Arno street.

TEMPERANCE RALLY AT OPERA HOUSE ON SUNDAY

Woman's Christian Temperance Union Will Observe the Day in Accordance With Call Issued by the National Body.

The Women's Christian Temperance Union of Albuquerque will observe "World's Temperance Sunday" by holding a Sunday school temperance rally Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the Elks' theater. All the Sunday schools of the city are requested to be present and take part in the program. Everybody is invited to attend and bring the children. The full program will be published later. Mrs. C. E. Vaughn, superintendent of the Sunday school department of New Mexico W. C. T. U., has issued the announcement of this rally in accordance with the following general call, issued by the national union.

The fourth Sunday in November of each year has been designated "World's Temperance Sunday School Sunday."

The highest ecclesiastical bodies of all denominations have given recognition to this day. The appointment is also made by the international Sunday school convention, through the international lesson committee, and provision is made for the world's Sunday school temperance lesson.

The drink curse is a world-wide and young people in particular should be taught that it is against the nation and a sin against God. It is fitting, therefore, that the subject be presented from both national and personal points of view.

We therefore call upon all pastors, Sunday school superintendents, and teachers, all W. C. T. U. workers in the Sunday school and all friends of temperance teaching in the Sunday school to make the observance of World's Sunday school temperance Sunday a notable occasion. Let it be the great annual temperance field day for the Sunday schools of the world.

MRS. WILBUR F. CRAFTS, Superintendent Sunday School Department, W. C. T. U.

MRS. STELLA B. IRVINE, Superintendent Sunday School Department, National W. C. T. U.
