When the trial was resumed, however, and the arguments were begun, the principal counsel, Delphin A. Thaw, who came with a large retinue from the city, took the case to the charge of the case, threw down substantial structure of legal inquiry which had been built up, tossed it firmly out of the window, and then proceeded to unseemly and unbecomingly to "beat the law," as the old-fashioned lawyers say. He pictured with all oratorical effect "the wronged girl as 'an angel child.' Thaw was alternately a 'Sir Galahad' or a 'King Arthur,' destroying the case of the defense, and the District Attorney Jerome, an unexpected opponent.

OPIMUM IMPORTER SUES
JAPANESE GOVERNMENT

Victoria, B. C., Nov. 24.—News was received from Tokio that John Hartley, a Britisher who went to Japan in 1864, has brought suit against the Japanese government for one million in damages for having "imposed opium by him in 1875, while allowing Dutch firms and other foreigners to export the drug.

The principle of the Fowler bill is in harmony with two other measures, which attracted considerable attention a year ago. The bill of the special commission of the New York chamber of commerce, which was endorsed unanimously by the chamber in 1906, and the plan of the special committee of the American chamber of commerce, which was endorsed almost unanimously at the annual convention of the association at Atlantic City in September last. The plan of the chamber of commerce proposed to distribute a general fund of $100,000,000 of the banks to the amount of 5 per cent of the capital under each of the rates of

Facts About The Great Majestic Range

It is the only range in the world made of Malleable and Charcoal Iron.

It has, beyond any question of a doubt, the largest and best reservoir.

It uses about half the fuel used on other ranges, and does better work by far.

The Majestic All Copper Nickle Reservoir heats the water quicker and hotter than any other. It is the only reservoir with a removable frame.

The Charcoal Iron Body of the Great Majestic Range lasts three times as long as a steel body.

Being made of non-breakable material, there is practically no expense for repairing the Majestic.

As for baking, it is perfection, not only for a few months, but for all times to come.

A Great Majestic Range lasts three times as long as a cheap range, but it doesn't cost three times as much.

PROOF—We don't ask you to take our word for any of the above statements, but if you will call at our store, a man from the factory, where Majestic ranges are made, will prove to your satisfaction that these are absolute facts, and will show you many more reasons why the Great Majestic Range is absolutely the best that money can buy.

FAT SALARY WAITS THE OKLAHOMA CONGRESSMEN

CURIOUS FREAK OF THE CONGRESSIONAL PAYROLL

Senators Get Money as Salary Dating From Time Previous to Their Nominations for the Job.

(Special Correspondence Morning Journal)

Washington, Nov. 21.—Shortly after the two senators from the new state of Oklahoma and the five members of the house have been sworn in, they will be presented with checks for their salary from the fourth of March last, at the rate of $5,500 a year. This will be in the nature of a fat little "pick up" for these statesmen, as they will become congressmen only a month prior to the convening of the session. In the case of the senators, who cannot be elected until late in November or early in December, their official careers will have been much shorter. The incident is the more interesting, too, because of the fact that they will receive pay for several months as the representatives of a sovereign state, when neither the state itself existed nor had the recipients been even nominated for the office to which they were subsequently elected.

This is one of the many odd things that congress does and it is perfectly legal, for congress has absolute control of its own expenditures and if either house wishes to put any of its members on even footing with those who preceded them it can do so by voting money from its contingent fund for that purpose. In the case of vacancy in either house there may be a lapse of time before it is filled but somebody must draw the full salary and this, as a rule, is presented to the newly elected member. When Senator Fred Dubois came to the senate as the first United States senator from Idaho, on March 4, 1891, he was paid salary accruing before his arrival. As it was voted to him and there was no way to put it back into the treasury, Mr. Dubois was compelled to accept it, though he protested that he did not want a salary he had not earned.

When Ernest M. Pollard, of Nebraska, came to the house in December, 1905, to fill the vacancy caused by the promotion of Mr. Burkett to the senate, he having been chosen at a special election in the July previous, he was paid the salary covering the period of the hiatus in the representation from the first Nebraska district. His constituency was informed of this and the newspapers made an awful hue and cry over it. Pollard tried to return the money, but could not do it. It was a comfortable sum, amounting to $1,851.48 and Mr. Pollard, in order to satisfy the papers making capital out of the transaction, introduced a bill authorizing the treasury of the United States to receive the money. It was referred to the committee on ways and means, but nothing was ever done with it; that would establish too bad a precedent.

When J. Hampton Moore was elected to the house from Philadelphia, to succeed Representative Casar, deceased, he, too, found a tidy sum awaiting him. He discovered that he could not put it back. The sergeant-at-arms told him it would lie in the vault to his credit until it rotted. He could draw it out and give it to charity or his conscience hurt him or he could give it back to Uncle Sam as a contribution to the conscience fund, but Mr. Moore's friends laughed at him when he suggested that he would not check against it. Not to do so would put a lot of other estimable gentlemen in bad reputes; for many others had drawn this kind of money, and after some persuasion Mr. Moore, being discreet in financial matters, drew the money standing to the credit of the conscience fund. His salary is the same in either case and he remains a delegate until sworn in as a member.

Senator Frank Purnham Flint, of California, owes his present position as a United States senator and his fortune to the broken political promise of a republican politician. It is the irony of fate that Senator Flint should succeed in the senate to the seat occupied by the man who would have made his election impossible had he kept his promise.

Senator Flint for years had been an active republican and for several years he was apparently satisfied with first one office and then another, none of them being of any great importance. Senator Flint is credited with being the man largely responsible for sending Thomas R. Bard to the senate in 1897, and in reward for his work the story is told that Bard promised Flint that if this promise was made it was not kept. It is said among the members of the California legislature that the senator repudiated it in toto. This so incensed Flint that he retired from politics altogether and for a time he was in hard street financial straits. He had a devoted and level-headed wife, who induced him to remove to Los Angeles and enter the real estate business. Almost the first transaction Flint engaged in was a lucky strike. He began to make money and by the end of the second year he was worth a quarter of a million dollars. Then he branched out into banking and today, while not a wealthy man, is very comfortably fixed so far as this world's goods are concerned.

His old desire for the political fray overcame him, but he aimed high this time and played in his own behalf for the United States senate. His opponent was the senator he had previously championed and the fight was somewhat bitter. As Flint is now in the senate, Bard, of course, lost out. Those who know the real story of this incident point the moral to the tale by saying that if Senator Bard had kept his promise, Flint would today, perhaps, be drawing a modest salary as a government official, and Bard would still have been in the United States senate and one of the party bosses in California. Time brings many strange changes in politics and this is one of the strangest.

EDDY FOLLOWERS BUILD CHURCH IN LONDON

SECRECY SHROUDS SOURCE OF FUNDS

Axe Gets Duckling Undergoing Absent Treatment From Distinguished Devotee of Christian Science.

London, Nov. 22.—The recent opening of the magnificent "First Church of Christian Scientists," near Sloane Square, has again set people talking about Mrs. Eddy's followers, and a good authentic story is being told in the clubs concerning the experience of "a healer" who paid a country house a visit in Ireland not long ago.

The healer, a woman well known in London, noticed on arrival at the Irish house that a duckling in the farm yard had been hatched out very badly deformed. She at once started to "heal" the duckling, which waxed fatter day by day, but still retained a very lop-sided figure.

After a strenuous week of healing she departed with the permission of the hostess to give the duckling "absent treatment."

For three weeks she gave the duckling absent treatment from London, then, after a burst of prayer, she wrote a fervent letter to her hostess, saying she only wanted to hear "The dear little thing was perfectly cured."

Two days elapsed and she received a letter from her hostess containing the following: "So sorry, dear, but we killed and ate the duckling by accident the day after you left us."

The greatest secrecy, by the way, is being maintained about the funds which have built the big church near Sloane Square, but it is an open secret that one of the biggest contributors among the American Christian Scientists has been the American Dowager Lady Abinger (nee McGrath), an Englishwoman. Viscountess Maitland, who is by no means well off, has made sacrifices to contribute to the building fund.

Rev. R. J. Campbell, the famous divine who is almost as well known in America as here, has shocked London by coming out openly in favor of socialism at a mass meeting in the Alexandra theater.

"We now have a demonstration of international consciousness for the first time in the history of the world," he said, "and if unfortunately it comes to pass that we have a great railway strike, I think we shall find that the workmen of Germany, France and the United States will show an interest in the English workman in some practical form."

"You have been told that socialism is anti-Christian," he added. "I deny that and I deny that it is atheistic and materialistic, or that it stands for free love and the breaking up of family life; that it will lead to the destruction of property and the maintenance of the idle and vicious at the expense of the thrifty.

"Socialism starts with the assumption that whatever is practical is practical to do. I will admit that there have been socialists who preached the doctrine of free love, but I would point out that the doctrine has been preached by people who called themselves Christians and wanted to remain so."

"Socialism would interfere drastically with the laws of marriage and divorce which at present deal harshly with the weaker sex. In family life it would compel the parent to fulfill his obligations to the children. Socialism is actually a swinging back to the first preaching of the gospel of the kingdom of God on earth."

Mr. Hiram Maxim does not believe in the statement of Thomas A. Edison that he has invented an electric storage battery, which will place automobiles within the reach of every one. "Mr. Edison has brightened my life," he said to an interviewer. "He has been inventing a storage battery ever since Adam was a little boy, and I have been putting off buying an automobile all that time simply because I thought I should be able to buy one of Edison's electric cars."

"I have grown old waiting, and if Edison's battery is not ready by next year I have determined to buy an ordinary gasoline car, so that I may help to make life a horror to those who live in the country."

Speaking on the danger of socialism the other day, Lord Rosebery said: "I understand that if I fall into a state of poverty and decay I should be entitled to some small allowance for the rest of my life. You treated that as a kind of jest and perhaps a year or two ago I should have been inclined to treat it as a distant prospect not worthy of immediate practical consideration."

"But events move fast. Legislation is not standing still. There is a class, a section of my fellow citizens and subjects, who, if they had their way, would reduce us all to a condition in which the aims of the guild of which I am now an unworthy member, would be by no means unwelcome."

The guild which Lord Rosebery refers to is that of the Bonnetmakers and Dyers of Glasgow, of which he was recently made an honorary freeman.

The latest discovery in the never-ending inquiry into tuberculosis is that there are two distinct varieties of the disease, one of which is progressive and generally fatal, and the other tending to spontaneous cure. This remarkable fact is given forth in the second interim report of the royal commission on tuberculosis, which contains an account of experiments carried out by Dr. Cobbet at the experimental farms for the study of the disease.

It was discovered that the tuberculosis virus obtained from human beings must be classified in two "breeds," and the effect of each variety was the same when introduced into a cow or a rabbit—that is to say, the more virulent was fatal both to the cow and the rabbit, and the milder variety was comparatively harmless to both animals.

The mild virus, even when given in large doses, produced in every case only slight local effect, which tended to die away spontaneously, while the virulent form was very powerful, rapidly fatal, and general in its effects.

The result of the experiments is to prove that bovine and human tuberculosis are the same disease, divided in a mild and a virulent form, thus finally disposing of Koch's theory to the contrary. It is, therefore, still important to stamp out bovine tuberculosis as a step towards freeing the human race from the scourge.

The discovery, of course, raises the important question, in treating a patient for consumption, which variety is he suffering from? To decide, provide data on which to decide this great series of experiments. The discovery also provides a clew to the many puzzling cases of the disease which have confronted the medical profession.

MINERS DISCOVER TEMPLE CAVE OF THE INDIANS

Prehistoric Relics of Immense Value Unearthed in Giant Arizona Catacomb, Which is Only Partially Explored.

Penetrating an unexplored cave, of wonderful dimensions, filled with Indian curios and weird relics of bygone ages of the red man, and a deposit of guano that exceeds in magnitude anything heretofore discovered in Arizona, was an expedition of Wiley Holladay, S. L. Dodge and Martin Tighe, who are developing a claim four miles south of Indian Hot Springs in the Graham mountains of Arizona.

According to reports, the miners were driving a tunnel in the mountain side, which was several hundred feet long. When the smoke and debris of a shot had cleared away the other day they were somewhat surprised to find the breast of the tunnel had disappeared and nothing but impenetrable darkness met their gaze, giving back to them with audible articulation the hollow echoes of a giant tomb.

With lights and ropes an investigation was commenced and it was discovered that an underground cave of wonderful dimensions had been penetrated, with an undoubted hidden passage way, which, as yet, has not been found. From the tunnel entrance the men lowered themselves to the bottom of the subterranean cavity by an improvised rope ladder.

They found gigantic deposits of guano, in which were buried large quantities of Indian arrows and blocks of wood seen together with sinews, probably taken from the deer. They were in a broken and decayed condition, and it would be hard to determine the use to which they had been put by the Indians. Other Indian relics of a very interesting nature were found and the research has not been completed. A portion of the collection has been sent to the Smithsonian Institution and other parts to schools in the territory.

It is believed that the temple was occupied as a temple or secret meeting place by Indians of long ago and that the natural entrance has been blocked by a rock slide. An effort will be made to locate and reopen the original passageway, and then the cave will be given more thorough exploration.

THINGS LOOK BETTER.

Taken in connection with the removal of Llewellyn, the announcement that Solicitor General Hoyt is coming to New Mexico for the special purpose of making a thorough investigation of the condition of things existing here, has more than ordinary significance. The business which the assistants to the attorney general have been doing at Santa Fe, and which has attracted such a large share of public attention, really belonged to the office of the district attorney, but as he wasn't big enough to do it the administration had to send special attorneys here from Washington to attend to the matter, and the revelations which they have caused to be made have created such a stir that the solicitor general is now coming out himself to look into the affair. It is a more important business than any one at headquarters realized in the beginning, and it is good for the territory that it is now about to be attended to in an able and business-like manner.

Mr. Hoyt, the solicitor general, is known to be a thoroughly efficient officer, and one of the ablest men connected with the legal department of the government, and the people of New Mexico may rest assured that it will not take him long to get at the bottom facts in the case.

The thread trust made a profit of $15,000,000 last year when thread was retailing at from three to five cents. Now that the price has been raised to six cents flat, what will the harvest be?

The New York Tribune gives Santa Claus a hint to the effect that if he is up to date this year he will employ an airplane in seeking easy access to chimneys instead of the antiquated sleigh and reindeer.

And now comes an Italian financier, the foremost in his country, and declares that the banking systems everywhere are antiquated and out of date. He proposes an international conference on the subject.

There comes a story from Pittsburgh to the effect that a man in that town is willing to spend two million dollars in a contest for a seat in the United States senate. Our delegate may soon have "a call" from Pennsylvania—for the good book tells that "where the carcass is," etc.

The New York papers publish a full list of the owners of the boxes in the charmed horseshoe at the Metropolitan opera house who are expected to occupy them the coming season. And the Boston Herald thinks it would be interesting to know about how large a proportion of them feel the pinch, but have to keep up appearances.

Says the New York Sun: The reappearance of the Hon. Tom Taggart, of Indiana, full of political wisdom and prophecies, will recall to students and survivors of the early Parker era of national affairs that Mr. Taggart is the chairman of the democratic national committee. That fact of the historical accuracy of which all the annuals and almanacs vouch, may have escaped the public memory.

When the retiring governor of the territory of Oklahoma refused to ride in the carriage with the incoming governor of the state of Oklahoma, the public could not resist the conclusion that the territorial governor had been guilty of a gross violation of the proprieties of life. But now, after reading the inaugural address of the governor of the state of Oklahoma, the public can not avoid the conclusion that an apology is due the late territorial governor for having judged him wrongly.

It is evident that the fight is on in earnest in Ohio. Senator Joseph Foraker does not propose to give up his hold on the state without a struggle, and he will therefore try to take the Ohio delegation to the republican national convention away from Taft. The first step to that end was the endorsement of Foraker by the executive and advisory committees of the Ohio League of Republican Clubs. The strength of the Foraker machine when it comes to the manipulation of practical politics should not be underestimated. Its head is an old hand at the political game. He is a fighter and has been through many a political battle. He not only has a fine organization behind him, including politicians big and little down to ward workers, but he will also have a great deal more outside help than the general public is aware of—though the Taft fellows know something about it.

A LARGER VIEW OF JUSTICE.

James J. Hill, the famous railway president, delivered an address on the present condition of things in the financial and commercial world, before the Commercial club of Kansas City a few days ago, which it is said, abounded in good hard sense, and sound business advice throughout, and was, taken all in all, just such a talk as might be expected from such a level-headed man as Mr. Hill. What he asked for the railroads, at the hands of the government and the people was all expressed in the following few lines:

"A larger view of justice, a better appreciation of what the railroads of the United States have done, and are doing, and a settled policy of fair, reasonable and liberal treatment and protection for the future."

Commenting upon the foregoing words of Mr. Hill, the Kansas City Journal says: Surely no request could be fairer than one for fairness, and the fact that such a plea is necessary does not reflect credit upon those to whom it is made. The railroads and other business interests of the country are not coming to the lawmaking powers with specious schemes, with propositions of graft and double-dealing, with demands for special privileges and the violation of the rights of others. They are not objecting to intelligent legislation which is regulative and not punitive. The danger and injustice of most of the 179 anti-railroad acts which have followed the signing of the White House "Big Stick" is that the lawmakers did not know how to proceed or when to stop.

No fair-minded man will say that the evils of five years ago exist at the present day. Rebates and other special favors have been abolished. But the legislatures keep on belaboring corporations that are not committing any of the offenses against which the early legislation was aimed. Confiscation, senseless denunciation and causeless malice have usurped the functions of fairness and the clamor of the multitude has caused legislators to suspend their judgment and enact laws that they do not themselves regard as reasonable.

Only the larger view of justice, for which President Hill speaks, can atone for some of the mischief already done and prevent greater mischief in the future.

HOLIDAY BUYING.

Shop early. The woman who shops early is in better temper to make judicious selections, has more time to devote to making purchases, a less rumpled assortment of goods to choose from, and above all is apt to receive more effective and considerate service from the clerks. Women are prone to making early-shopping resolutions and are also prone to breaking them. Really, the results might be worth the effort of a good trial.

In addition to the utilitarian feature of early shopping, there is the humanitarian feature. A New York woman has formulated the following rules for Christmas shopping:

- "First—Do as much as possible of your shopping before December 1."
- "Second—Have it all done one week before Christmas."
- "Third—Shop early in the day."
- "Fourth—Carry home as many parcels as possible."
- "Fifth—Do not ask to have parcels delivered on the day of purchase."
- "Sixth—Do not shop during lunch hours, thus shortening the hour for the clerks."

There is so much common sense in these rules that all women might adopt them with profit to themselves, the merchants and the clerks.

"UNCLE REMUS."

The critics of Mr. Roosevelt should take home from this dinner at the White House for "Uncle Remus," says the Washington Star. As the president is studying the genial philosophy of Mr. Harris, he must be in part instructed by Mr. Rabbit, and Mr. Rabbit, it will be remembered, was famous for "laying low." That policy is frequently recommended to the president. If he would only "lay low" and think more has often been the wish of those bewailing his incessant action and speech. The written word has made a deep impression on the times, but now that the president has heard the word spoken by its author under the happy influences of the dinner table, its effect should be very great on him. The sluggard is advised to go to the aid for wisdom and example. If the president prefers Mr. Rabbit, and needs him, we should all approve.

There was a decrease both in the export and the import trade in October, but whether this condition was connected to any extent with the financial situation is uncertain.

Why the Wireless Cannot Beat the Cable

At a meeting of the stockholders of the Western Telegraph company, Limited, held in London on October 26, Sir John Wolf-Barry, K. C. B., one of the most prominent engineers in Great Britain, who presided over the meeting, said in his address:

"After the recent statements in the newspapers about the proposed early opening for commercial business of a wireless system of telegraphy between Ireland and Canada, you may, perhaps, expect me to offer a few words on the subject."

One might not, we are told, so prophesy until one knows, and I am by no means anxious to intrude my opinions. On the other hand, however, I have been asked for my views as your chairman by several respected shareholders, and I feel it to be somewhat of a duty not to refuse to say what I think on a subject which touches our interests, though I should have preferred to adopt the safer and more congenial policy of silence and the awaiting of the verdict of the logic of events. But as I have been invited to express my opinion, I feel bound to say at once that, as far as I can judge, I do not look upon any system of wireless telegraphy as a serious competitor with our cables.

Some years ago I said the same thing, and nothing has since occurred to alter my views, nor do I think that those of the experts whom we then consulted have become different. At that time the length over which wireless messages were sent was perhaps 300 or 400 miles, but I then said that I did not put any bounds in that respect to the development of science, and that greater distances would probably be compassed. The fundamental difficulties and imperfections of wireless telegraphy, however, remain, in the want of certainty of transmission, the want of secrecy, and in the confusion which must occur when numerous messages are not conveyed by a direct conductor, such as telegraph cable or land line, from point to point, but are thrown with great violence up into the ether, into which they radiate in all directions, to be disentangled and interpreted at the other side of the globe.

I am well aware that by tuning or sympathizing the receiving instruments to the wave length of the sending instrument, some of these difficulties of publicity and confusion can be met, and to a limited extent this is the case.

Secrecy, however, is only really attainable by long and third parties abstain from tuning their instruments to intercept the messages—a process which, I am told on the highest authority, presents no difficulty. It is also evident that confusion of simultaneous messages in the ether can be lessened by tuning, but here again we must remember that the number of gradations of tuning is limited to an extent which renders it incompatible with the requirements of a large telegraphic business. I believe that some 25,000 paying words pass to and from this country, by cables during a busy hour, and we know that New York expects to receive and answer stock exchange telegrams with London in four or five minutes. After making all allowances for possible tuning, I can not but think that the confusion in the ether will be worse confounded if any considerable number of wireless messages are attempted.

With regard to certainty of transmission, I believe that many disturbances of the ether by natural causes must always be encountered, and that the longer the distances attempted the more formidable will be the difficulties from atmospheric or magnetic causes.

Then, again, I understand that a wireless sending station of high power, as is the case with telegraphy, by continuous cables and wires, be at the same time a receiving station, or, in other words, messages can not be sent and received simultaneously; and if this be so, I foresee the greatest difficulties in dealing with one of the matters which causes constant trouble with any system of telegraphy—namely, the elimination of doubtful signals. For these and other reasons, I do not look upon a wireless system as a serious competitor with cables. I am as much an admirer of the wonderful results obtained by wireless telegraphy as any one, and appreciate most highly the efforts of those who have shown the way in this very interesting development of science, but I remain of my original opinion as to its practical effect on cable enterprise—so far, at least, as I can form a judgment under the abnormal conditions of secrecy which have from the first enshrouded the operations of those who have the conduct of the wireless system.

Wireless telegraphy will assuredly be of great value to the world in certain localities and for certain purposes, but I think that, instead of being harmful to cable enterprise, it may, on the contrary, be an assistance. Indeed, we are now engaged under our concessions from the Portuguese government, in an important subsidiary wireless installation for moderate distances in a locality in which a system of cables is for various reasons difficult and undesirable. It was well said that if the order of discovery had been reversed and cables had come second in point of date to a wireless system, it would have been universally recognized that cables were a fundamental and enormous improvement, eliminating difficulties under which a wireless system must labor.

And This In Our Land of Plenty.

A poor little wail, who was one summer taken to the seashore, together with some fresh-air-fund children, had wandered to a quiet place and was surveying the ocean with great interest.

"Why, little girl," said the philanthropist who had planned the outing, "you are entirely alone! Don't you want to play with the other children?"

"No, sir," was the reply. "I'd rather look at the ocean. There's such a lot of it, an' it's the only time in me life I've ever need enough of anything."

THE ALMANAC announces with some asperity that the remarkable stories it has been circulating about the resignation of Curry are "fakes pure and simple." As the automatic self-selecting card brander the Almanac has them all skinned.

Governor Curry is held in high esteem by the president and has entire confidence.—The Almanac.

This is a rather roundabout way of casting a foul aspersions. Who ever insinuated Curry didn't have the confidence of the president?

Oh, no. It is due entirely to the "prestige and standing" of the Hon. Em Comptometer and his Almanac.

Cured of Bright's Disease
Mr. Robert O. Burke, El Paso, N. Y., writes: "Before I started to use Foley's Kidney Cure I had to get up from twelve to twenty times a night, and I was all bloated up with dropsy and my eyesight was so impaired I could scarcely see one of my family across the room. I had given up hope of living, when a friend recommended Foley's Kidney Cure. One six-cent bottle worked wonders and before I had taken the third bottle the dropsy had gone, as well as all other symptoms of Bright's disease." J. H. O'Reilly Co.

CONTRACT LET FOR SAN BERNARDINO MACHINE SHOP

Will be 120x150 Feet in Size and One of the Most Completely Equipped in the Wide
West.

The contract for the construction of the great machine shop to be erected by the Santa Fe in San Bernardino, it is understood, has been awarded to Carl Leonardt, of Los Angeles, who is now engaged in the erection of the roundhouse and putting in the foundations for the transfer table extension and the machine shop.

Contractor Leonardt was awarded the job of putting in the foundations for the machine shop at the same time the roundhouse contract was closed, but the job of putting up the machine shop building has been awarded alone and separately. The company will furnish the structural steel for the big shop, and shipments of this material are expected to arrive daily, having been on the way from the manufacturers for more than a month.

This great machine shop will be 120x150 feet in size, or of fully twice the capacity of the present shop, and will be equipped with the very latest machinery for the purpose, being constructed to handle the immense locomotive nose in use. When the present shop was built, though but a few years ago, the engines used by the Santa Fe on the west end were quite diminutive as compared with a majority of those of the present, so that it is a very difficult task to handle the big engines with the present machine shop equipment.

The putting in of the foundations for the big building is now in progress and as soon as that is completed the work of raising the structure itself will be commenced.

The big roundhouse is rapidly looming up and something of an idea of the immensity of the structure when it is completed may now be gained. The forms are up for the entire height on several stalls, and the outlines of the building are now discernible.

New Claim Agent.
Mr. R. P. Gibbs arrived from Los Angeles Wednesday morning to take the position here of claim adjuster for the Santa Fe. Mr. Gibbs is an experienced man in his line, having been with various railroads in the east for many years, and but recently with the Pacific Electric Railway at Los Angeles. Mr. Gibbs is accompanied by his wife and two children. Mr. R. W. Ertch, the retiring claim adjuster, leaves for Colorado Springs to spend a well-earned vacation with his family, after which he will report to Topeka for assignment elsewhere.—Winslow Mail.

The work train which has been hauling cinders on the second district for the past three months, has been taken off as the work of ballasting is pretty well along and it is considered advisable to wait until the frosty weather is past. The cinder ballasting on this part of the Santa Fe forms one of the most perfect piece of roadbed in the country.

Operator Job and wife have gone to Winslow to take charge of the Post telegraph office, relieving C. B. Howard, who returned to his home in Flagstaff.

TO AILING WOMEN.

A Little Sound Advice Will Help Many Sufferers in Albuquerque. No woman can be healthy and well if the kidneys are sick. Poisons that pass off in the urine when the kidneys are well are retained in the body when the kidneys are sick. Kidneys and bladder get inflamed and swollen, crowding the delicate female organs nearby and sometimes displacing them. This is the true cause of many bearing-down pains, lameness, backache, sideache, etc. Uric poisoning also causes headaches, dizzy spells, languor, nervousness and rheumatic pain.

When suffering so, try Doan's Kidney Pills, the remedy that cures sick kidneys. You will get better as the kidneys get better, and health will return when the kidneys are well. Let an Albuquerque woman tell you about Doan's Kidney Pills.

Mrs. H. Adair, of 817 South Edith street, Albuquerque, New Mexico, says: "Whether my symptoms indicated kidney trouble or not, I was not certain, but nevertheless from reading about Doan's Kidney Pills I was given a desire to try them to see if they would not afford me at least some relief from the pain between and just below the shoulder blades. While on my feet or sitting around, I did not feel the slightest inconvenience, but when I would sit down, the pain would assert itself and at times was very severe. The use of one box of Doan's Kidney Pills brought relief that warranted my having a high appreciation of this medicine."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-McIlburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

BIG IMPROVEMENTS BY THE SANTA FE AT WILLIAMS

Arizona Town Will Be One of Prize Stations on West End
When Extensive Work is Completed.

The Santa Fe Improvements now under way at Williams are among the most important on the west end. A big force of men is now at work putting in several miles of new side track. A trainload of cinders a day is being brought in for ballasting the new track, which will be completed in thirty days. The five-stall roundhouse is rapidly approaching completion and will be ready for business by the first of the year. It will be one of the best roundhouses on the system.

Work on the fine new Harvey house and station is in progress with a large number of men at work. Many thousands of dollars are being spent in the improvements here and will result in making Williams one of the most important stations west of Albuquerque.

Clovis, New Mexico, is the New Santa Fe Division Townsite, Situated Nine Miles West of Texico, New Mexico, on the Belen Cut-Off

The surface of the land on which the townsite is located is level. Clovis is situated in the best portion of the level plains country and is in the center of the best dry farming and stock raising section of Eastern New Mexico. All this land is settled upon by homesteaders who are improving their land. The Santa Fe Land Improvement Company have 213,000 acres of railroad scrip land, commencing five miles north of Clovis, New Mexico, which is considered the finest farming land in Eastern New Mexico. This land will shortly be open to homesteaders and sold in small tracts on terms to suit purchaser. The country around Clovis, New Mexico, will command trade for fifty miles to the north, thirty miles to the east, twenty miles to the south and twenty-eight miles to the west. There is a settler on every 160 acres, which assures its future rapid growth and permanency. Clovis is on the main transcontinental line of the Santa Fe which is called in this territory, the Eastern Railway of New Mexico, or the Belen Cut-off. Clovis will be the division for the main line of the Santa Fe, the Pecos Valley line and the Brownwood Extension, thus making it a Division Point for three distinct lines of the Santa Fe System.

The Pecos Valley tracks will be taken up between Texico, New Mexico, and Cameo, New Mexico, and be moved west eight miles to make Clovis the northern division point of the Pecos Valley line. The Brownwood Extension will be run out of Clovis which will give a through line from California to Galveston, Texas. The Railroad Company has retained 320 acres for railroad purposes and there are extensive machine and car shops being erected at Clovis. Clovis will be the first division point west of Amarillo, Texas, and the Santa Fe have just completed a twenty-one stall concrete roundhouse, graded miles of siding and yards, are erecting a $30,000 concrete two-story depot and a $62,000 two-story Harvey hotel and $40,000 three-story recreation building for railroad employees. The recreation building will have a standard library, pool and billiard halls, swimming pool, auditorium and living rooms for railroad employees. All these buildings are of solid concrete and the latest style of mission architecture. The Company is drilling ten large wells to secure all the water that will be required for railroad purposes, the supply being inexhaustible. The Railroad Company will erect a one-hundred ton ice plant for icing refrigerator and passenger cars.

The concrete coal chutes, costing $42,000, are half completed and are the largest west of the Mississippi river. There are numerous other railroad improvements to be started, but the engineers' reports have not been completed and we cannot give data on the same. As soon as the Belen Cut-off and connecting lines of Clovis are completed, the Company will put all of its extra California fast passenger, freight and perishable fruit traffic on this line, which will be the shortest between Chicago and Southern California and Galveston, Texas, and New Orleans, Louisiana, and Southern California. It will also carry all the Pacific and Oriental mail which is now being largely handled by the Rock Island and Southern Pacific.

Clovis has two national banks with $25,000 and $35,000 capital, respectively. There is a water, electric light and ice company located in Clovis, owned and controlled by railroad officials, with equipment now in operation. A complete telephone system is in operation connecting with all adjacent towns and the long distance lines. There are thirty-five business houses, six hotels and rooming houses, four lumber yards, three livery stables, cold storage and other buildings already erected. Clovis has nearly eleven hundred population, is four months old and growing very fast. If you are looking for a business location or a new town for investments, look the situation over at Clovis. The lots being offered for sale are all residence lots and can be purchased at from $70 to $90 per lot, one-half down, the balance in six months at 8 per cent interest. On all sales over $500 10 per cent discount is allowed. On all cash sales, 10 per cent discount allowed. Clovis will make a city of ten thousand in a few years. This is the best proposition ever offered in New Mexico for small investors and now is the time to purchase these lots, as the prices will double within six months' time.
