Action of Court in Allowing Members to Be Questioned as to Politics Denounced as Unwarranted.

Georgetown, Ky., Nov. 25.—State's Attorney Franklin intimidated at the Caleb Powers murder trial today that he would, this afternoon, file a motion challenging the entire jury panel in the box on the ground that the jurors were required upon qualifying to state their political affiliations. He contends that this was unprecedented, unwarranted and illegal.

State's Attorney Franklin today filed several sensational affidavits attacking the eligibility of jurors. Some of them quoted jurors Wayland and Fer-

The sensation of the day was an affidavit from Arthur Goebel, brother of the murdered senator, to the effect that W. Wilson, of Williamstown, a republican attorney, went with the sheriff to the county to summon the venire and rode in a buggy with W. H. Green, the brother-in-law of Powers, advising and aiding him in the selection of a venire and that two qualified jurors were summoned by placing themselves in the way of the sheriff on their advice.

At the convening of the court this afternoon the roll call of the second venire from the Grand County Sheriff's Office was taken. The venire was composed of most of them were. On affidavit of Dale Powers a motion for further venire for consideration of the commonwealth affidavits was granted and venue was given until 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The judge then questioned individuals in the charges made by the commonwealth. W. S. Wanland denied any recollection of having said on the day of the Geobel killing that Geobel ought to have been killed and that the senator would be killed before night, or that it would be a bad thing if he were killed. He

John Ferguson denied any recollection of having said that Jack Chinn killed Gaebel.

Juror James W. Elliott admitted that he had said in Williamstown last Thursday:

"If I get on that jury, I'll acquit 'owers."

COLORED PEOPLE AMONG IN COLORADO

By Morning Journal Special Leased Wire.
Denver, Colo., Nov. 25.—A special to the Denver Post from Alamosa, Colo., says that after setting fire to

He stabbed both repeatedly and then fled to the stairway where he met Anderson who had recently been employed as a sawmill engineer at Edith, Mont., and was on his way to his home in Coldwater, Mich. ## COPPER MINES CLOSED BY SLUMP

SENATOR CLARK GIVES HIS VIEWS ON SITUATION

Declares Production Unprofitable At Present Prices; Only Restoration of Public Confidence Can Bring Relief.

(By Morning Journal Special Leased Wire.)
Los Angeles, Nov. 25.—Former United States Senator W. A. Clark, of Montana, who recently visited the copper producing sections of Arizona, was in Los Angeles today. When asked for his opinion concerning financial conditions, he said:
"Financial conditions will show improvement just so soon as people cease suspecting one another, and in that way restore confidence.
"The situation in regard to copper is about the same as it was a month ago. Nearly all the smaller concerns have been put out of business, and there has been a heavy curtailment in the established ones.
"We have curtailed production 50 per cent at Jerome, and 60 per cent in Montana. It is unprofitable to sell copper at 15 cents when it costs 12 or 13 cents to produce it.
"Copper was about the first thing to be hit by the financial stringency, as some had been over ambitious in boosting the price, and the result that production was greatly stimulated. This condition is likely to last until the people release their money for circulation."

INJUNCTION AGAINST PRESSMEN DISSOLVED

Employers' Association Loses Fight to Prevent Strikes by Court Order.

New York, Nov. 25.—Justice McCall, in the supreme court, today denied the application of G. Lawrence Fell, president of the United Typographical Union, for the continuance of an injunction restraining the International Printing Pressmen and Assistants' Union of North America and other allied printers, unions from refusing to carry out an agreement made last January with the typographers. Former Justice Stecker, who recently appeared for several of the printers unions, contended in his argument before the court some time ago that the court had no jurisdiction to grant an injunction and that the business of such a union was illegal. Mr. Stecker declared that men could not be forced to work when they did not want to. Mr. Fell argued that the unions had violated their agreements. Justice McCall in denying the motion for a continuance of the injunction said today that he had serious doubts as to the validity of the injunction, and that he would grant a writ of habeas corpus to the printers.

A Lazy Liver

May be only a tired liver, or a starved liver. It would be a stupid as well as a savage thing to beat a weary or starved man because he lagged in his work. So in treating the lagging, torpid liver it is a great mistake to load it with strong drastic drugs. A torpid liver is but an indication of an ill-nourished, enfeebled body whose organs are weary with overwork. Start with the stomach and allied organs of digestion and nutrition. Put them in working order and see how quickly your liver will become active.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has made many marvelous cures of "liver trouble," by its wonderful control of the organs of digestion and nutrition. It restores the normal activity of the stomach, increases the secretions of the blood-making glands, cleanses the system from poisonous accumulations, and so relieves the liver of the burdens imposed upon it by the defection of other organs.
If you have bitter or bad taste in the morning, poor or variable appetite, coated tongue, flatulence, constipation or irregular bowels, feel weak, easily tired, despondent, frequent headaches, pain or distress in "small of back," gnawing or distressing feeling in stomach, perhaps nausea, and a full list of the "liver" troubles that follow after eating, and know the symptoms of weak stomach and torpid liver, no medicine will relieve you more promptly or cure you more permanently than Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Perhaps only a part of the above symptoms will be present at one time and yet point to torpid liver or biliousness and weak stomach. Avoid all hot bread and biscuits, griddle cakes and other indigestible food and take the "Golden Medical Discovery" regularly and stick to its use until you are vigorous and strong.

The "Discovery" is non-secret, non-alcoholic, is a glyceric extract of native medicinal plants, and is recommended to cure the diseases for which it is advertised. Don't accept a substitute of unknown composition for this non-secret medicine of known composition.

He went immediately to a hotel, where he was given a public dinner, after supper and retired.

SERIOUSLY BURNED BY EXPLODING OIL CAN

Mrs. J. H. Blake Painfully Injured
While Lighting Fire With Oil—Will Recover.

While attempting to light a fire with coal oil yesterday morning, Mrs. J. H. Blake, living at 223 South Edith street, allowed a can of oil to come in contact with the oil can, which exploded, setting fire to her clothes and face and hands. But for the presence of mind Mrs. Blake would undoubtedly have been fatally burned. A tub partly filled with water was standing near and into this Mrs. Blake jumped. Neighbors were attracted by her cries and gave her attention until the arrival of Dr. John P. Pearce. Mrs. Blake was resting comfortably last night, and the attending physician said that the statement that she would lose her hands as a result of the accident is untrue. Mrs. Blake, who is a conductor on the Santa Fe, arrived here last night from the west.

Chicago, Nov. 25.—The city council tonight by a unanimous vote asked the Chicago Law and Order League to abandon its campaign against Sunday saloons and let the question be submitted to a vote of citizens at the next election. In the same resolution the aldermen asserted that the Sunday closing law now on the statute books is "obsolete." The resolution was adopted without debate and by a viva voce vote.

Officials of the league spent today classifying the evidence secured by their volunteer detectives yesterday and preparing warrants against one hundred and forty saloonkeepers. Arrests are not expected before Wednesday.

Council Bluffs, Iowa, Nov. 25.—Senator J. P. Dolliver spoke before the Potawatomi county union club tonight in the new theater in this city, opening the campaign for the re-election of Senator William B. Allison. Senator Dolliver gave much of his address to an eulogy of Senator Allison. Senator Dolliver spoke of what he characterized as attempts to bring Senator Allison into the factional turmoil of the party in Iowa, in which that Governor Cummins had broken faith with Allison, and asking the people to take up the gauntlet for the veteran leader and return him to the United States senate.

NEW AMERICAN SOPRANO MAKES DEBUT IN NEW YORK

In which latter art she is one of the foremost exponents of the modern school of operatic stars. Miss Garden was accompanied to an eulogy of Senator Allison. Senator Dolliver spoke of what he characterized as attempts to bring Senator Allison into the factional turmoil of the party in Iowa, in which that Governor Cummins had broken faith with Allison, and asking the people to take up the gauntlet for the veteran leader and return him to the United States senate.

SHEEP IN ARIZONA GOOD INVESTMENT

Bureau of Animal Industry Man Declares Business Will Be Profitable For Years to Come.

Dr. R. W. A. Walker, of the bureau of animal industry, recently appointed United States sheep inspector, with headquarters in Prescott, advances the opinion that the sheep industry will continue to improve for many years and prove profitable to those engaged in it.

In conversation with a Prescott Journal-Miner representative, he said: "Sheep raising is now one of the important industries of the territory. In my opinion it is destined to prove even more profitable in future years to those engaged in it than in the past. The people of the east are beginning to appreciate good mutton. The demand for it is increasing constantly. This has become more apparent during the past two years. The demand for mutton is also increasing in England. Wool prices are also good."

"I find a very fair grade of sheep in this territory. The wool growers are a very intelligent class of men, and I notice a disposition among them to improve their flocks by the introduction of thoroughbreds. While the grade of sheep here, taken as a whole, is fairly good, there is much room for improvement. Mutton buyers are anxious to purchase the best on the market, and it is a noticeable fact that they now pass up sheep with wrinkled necks for the better bred muttons."

"It is a mistake to believe that all that is necessary for the improvement of the grade of a flock is to introduce some thoroughbred bucks. In the purchase of sheep thoroughbred care should be taken that the animal has the appearance of good mutton of its

BITTER CONTEST ON GOVERNMENT'S MEASURE

MUSKOGEE CONGRESS
SCENE OF BATTLE

Hard Work and Hard Talking Required Before Convention Declares in Favor of Certificates; Prince Heads Congressional Committee.

(By Will C. Barnes.) Muskogee, Okla., Nov. 25.—The closing days of the Transmississippi congress have been busy ones indeed, but when the session of today closed at noon practically the entire four days' program had been completed, and the great committee dispersed, leaving the newly elected officers and a new executive committee to meet in the afternoon and plan out the work for the coming year.

The debate upon the question of endorsing the administration's plan of selling bonds and certificates brought out an intensely exciting and at times bitter discussion. The resolution of endorsement was introduced by ex-Governor Francis, of Missouri.

The committee on resolutions, refused to act on it and sent it back to the house without any report. Mr. Francis was anxious to leave town on an early train, so the matter was taken up at once to accommodate him.

Governor Francis' speech in favor of the bill was a masterly support of the administration. "Democrat though I am," said he, "I love to honor a man who can meet such an emergency as Roosevelt has this."

Quick to jump to his feet was ex-Governor Alva Adams, of Colorado, chairman of the resolutions committee. In a splendidly eloquent speech he as bitterly denounced the bond and certificate issue as had Francis defended it. Adams said that the one blot on Cleveland's whole administration was his famous bond issue.

Speaker after speaker rose, and the majority democrats—some to support, others to denounce, Governor Francis and his train didn't connect. It was no time for him to leave, and he was in the thick of the fight for three hours. Loud calls for the blind senator from Oklahoma brought Senator Gore out, who took the president to task for the bond business, and plainly set forth his opposition. The delegates from the Indian Territory end of the new state shouted for Senator Owen, who is their guide and minister. To the surprise of all, he took the administration's side in a splendid speech.

"I hate dirty water," said he, "but when my house is on fire I care not what kind of water they use so the fire is put out."

His speech turned the tide, and at 6:50 p. m. a tired and very excited crowd of 4,000 people saw the vote counted that carried the endorsement of the administration by a majority of three to one.

It was a splendid fight, and one worth the whole trip here to witness. Mr. Francis' speech was a masterpiece.

Some on the Philippines. Senator William J. Stone, of Missouri, told us in the morning of his trip to the Philippines this summer. His speech was a grand tribute to the administration and its policy in the islands. He frankly said he went there prejudiced against the whole question. He told how, when he heard of the battle in the Datto crater, where men and women were shot down, he felt the American army was forever disgraced. But after seeing the people against whom they fought, after climbing up the almost perpendicular walls to the crater, he realized that he was wrong; that the army was right and that no one but an American soldier could have climbed up there in the face of such a deadly fire and up such steep steps.

As for General Wood he said he always disliked him, felt he was a pouter, a fakir and unjustly promoted over braver and better men. But, he said, after being a month with Wood he was not only proud of him as an officer and man, but knew him to be a big-hearted, gentleman—an officer and soldier in every sense of the word and a man whom he and all Americans should be proud to honor.

He found nothing to criticize in the management of affairs in the islands, praised the Filipinos and said they should be granted the right of self-government just as soon as it was possible.

Senator Stone is a splendid speaker, rapid in his delivery and forcible in his language. He has a long lock of hair that continually falls across his face, and which he as continually pushes back, after the manner of womankind the world over, and one is forced to wonder if he would lose his inspiration if by chance the long foretop should, unknown to him, be cut off some day, just as he stepped upon the stage to speak.

Prince on Statehood. Ex-Governor Prince made a twenty-minute speech upon statehood for New Mexico, which met with much favor. The governor is well known to all the members of the congress, having been its fourth president years ago and its first vice president at the present time.

He came here right from New York, and leaves tonight for Kansas City.

Shy on Railroad Talk. One thing that impressed me greatly was the absolute desire to avoid any resolution aimed at the railroad. Resolution after resolution was tabled by the committee on the subject of lower fares, higher taxation, control, etc., of the railroads. The general sentiment was that enough along those lines had been done, and it was best to let things settle down a bit and find out just where we were on the whole proposition.

I remarked upon this sentiment in the committee rooms, and Governor Adams said it was all the more remarkable in that probably not a man of the twenty-two members had a railroad pass—which, upon a show-down, proved to be the truth.

Travel is light these days for very obvious reasons, and if times had been better this town couldn't have held the crowd.

As showing the falling off in travel we left Albuquerque on the California limited, and between there and Trinidad there were but six passengers on the entire train. Think of that—for a limited train of six cars.

Now is the good old Santa Fe the only road that has late trains, either. This town has five roads running into it, and not a single through train has been marked up on time on any of the roads for the past three days.

San Francisco was selected for next year's meeting, and J. B. Case, of Abilene, Kas., was elected president for the coming year, with Colonel Ike Pryor, of Texas, as first vice president. Governor Prince will be the chairman of the congressional committee, the most important one in the work of the congress.

A prominent and much sought out figure in the convention was Colonel William ("Coin") Harvey, of free silver fame. "Coin" Harvey's fame, based on his little pamphlet that did so much to arouse sentiment on the silver question during the first Bryan campaign, still lasts, and hundreds shook his hand and welcomed him. He is now a modest country hotel man over in the state of Arkansas, and looks prosperous and contented even if his book's direful predictions didn't come true.

Mr. J. F. Tully, of Glencoe, Lincoln county, arrived on a belated train, making the fourth representative for New Mexico at the convention. Mr. Tully was made vice president for New Mexico.

I must tell you of this wonderful wide-awake city down here in another letter. It's a great city, with a grand country about it, and I heard more than one delegate speak of his surprise at its size, spirit and growth.

EPIC OF THE WEST ON CANVAS

Remarkably True to Life is Painting of the Western Trail in Splendid New "Gadsden" in Douglas.

(Special Correspondence Morning Journal.) Douglas, Nov. 25.—Occupying the most conspicuous space in the wall at the first landing of the grand stairway, midway between the tiled floor of the lobby and the mezzanine floor above in the new Gadsden hotel, which opens Thanksgiving day, is an oil painting, done by a famous Chicago artist, in which is depicted a typical scene along the old southern overland trail. The exact spot selected by the artist in his search for the local color necessary to such a work is a canyon where the big ranch of Colonel John Slaughter, the well known ranchman of San Bernardino, near this city, along which wended the old trail of pioneer days.

The artist has been most happy in handling the color of this section of the southwest. On each side of the trail which is leading up a broad canyon are low lying mountain ranges. The light yellowish glare seen upon the bare mountains of this vicinity when the sunbeams are playing upon them is the interpretation given by the artist with patches of sage brush here and there to one side of the trail. Along the old thoroughfare, which in the early days was the great highway to the west, a half dozen "prairie schooners" are being driven up the winding plains of California.

The artist has been most modest in his brush, preferring to portray simply the color of the country. Had he desired to have turned out a more spectacular work he could have painted Lieutenant Colonel P. St. George Cooke and his Mormon battalion, who in 1845 established the trail, when they blazed the way from Santa Fe to the confluence of the Gila and the Colorado rivers.

Had the artist truthfully have presented these same prairie schooners on the defensive with a band of murderous Indians about them, instead of peacefully moving along the trail, for in the early days the emigrants on this famous trail were ever on the alert for roving Apaches and marauding bands reaching the destination of their golden dreams in the far west. But he was content to paint the west as he has seen it, and only the great warriors that bore the hardy pioneers of those days and their families over the arid plains of California.

WILLIAMS MAN IS UNDER ARREST

Sensation Follows Apprehension of Prominent Attorney Charged With Writing Obscene Letters.

(Special Correspondence Morning Journal.) Williams, Ariz., Nov. 25.—This town received one of the sensations of its life this week with the arrest of C. P. Silvernail, a well known attorney, on the charge of having written and mailed some fifty obscene letters to various citizens of Williams, all reflecting seriously on the character of some of the most highly respected ladies of the town. The letters were of a criminally licentious nature and evidently written with the object of revenge. After detectives had worked on the case for some time a bunch of officers went to Mr. Silvernail's place and arrested him, finding incriminating evidence after a search among his papers. He was placed under a $1,500 bond and finally taken to the Flagstaff jail for safekeeping.

NEED OF ATTENTION TO VISITING STRANGERS

REAL ESTATE MAN MAKES VALUABLE SUGGESTIONS

Organization Needed to Show People Interested in Albuquerque and Vicinity, What Advantages Offers.

"Hardly a day passes," said a well-known Albuquerque real estate man yesterday, "that I do not have a call from some man from other states who is interested in Albuquerque, and more particularly in the farming lands in this section of the Rio Grande valley. Very often I find time to take these men for a drive through the valley, showing them what advantages farming in this district offers. From these trips I very often get many suggestions so far as my personal business is concerned, for my business is almost entirely in city real estate; but when a man means business and is looking for a home, it seems a shame to allow him to go away to some other locality simply for lack of attention. Albuquerque is fairly well advertised, although we need more advertising of the right sort, and what we need is a well organized advertising campaign, such as has been launched by Oakland, Cal., and many other western cities."

However, as a result of the advertising we get, a great many people are coming here, and more and more men are coming who are looking for farms. No single individual, and no half dozen individuals, even though they are engaged in the real estate business, can afford to show these men through the valley, and it seems to me that the time has come when we should make some provision for taking care of this matter, which is one of the greatest interests to all Albuquerque. Nothing can do more for the upbuilding of this city than a thriving farming community around us. When the Rio Grande valley farming lands are developed, Albuquerque will be a city, and we can afford to let the city grow itself. Until that time comes we ought to do what we can to hasten it.

"I am aware that the Commercial club membership is comparatively small, and that the club is under heavy expense, so that at present it can not afford to spend large sums of money on work of this kind. It seems to me that the time is here, however, when the club should make an effort to strengthen its working power. The foundation for this is of course in increased membership, and at present I see no other way than to reduce the monthly dues for associate members. I believe that a small reduction in the present dues would bring a very largely increased membership at once, and when the members are secured the rest can quickly be brought about. This reduction, I believe, would be far more than made up in the number of monthly dues paid. But whether the club is in a position to undertake work of this kind and carry it out or not, it should be done, for whether it is done by the club or a chamber of commerce, or what kind of organization, the arrangements to take care of visitors who mean business are becoming a vital necessity here."

THEY ALL READ IT FROM CHICAGO TO THE COAST

Morning Journal Busy Breaking a Few Records On the Santa Fe Route From One End to Another.

In proportion to its circulation,
more copies of the Morning Journal are sold by the Harvey system than of any other paper between Chicago, Los Angeles and San Francisco.

More copies of the Morning Journal are sold on Santa Fe trains to the Mexico and Arizona than of all the other New Mexico and Arizona newspapers combined.

The demand for the Morning Journal is growing rapidly on the Santa Fe trains. At present 250 copies are sent out by the local office of the Harvey news service alone, and the twelve news butchers under direction of Mr.
Otto Hahn, local news manager for the system, have their hands full attending to the calls for the only daily newspaper in New Mexico.

When the through trains are started over the El Paso cutoff, nearly half a hundred copies of the Morning Journal will be at once placed on sale on the trains, and the number will increase rapidly as the demand increases.

The Morning Journal is the first fresh newspaper passengers on the California limited get after entering New Mexico. It is kept on file on the limited and is given to one of the most popular features of the limited service through New Mexico.

The reason
The Morning Journal prints the news.
It's a fact.
It is the only paper in New Mexico that comes anywhere near telling the people everything that is happening, while it is happening.

The Morning Journal's full length report of the Associated Press is more than three times as large as any other telephone news service in the two territories.

Included in the article are short sketches of
M. H. Deane, Charles Gent, Oliver Perry Wiggins, Smith Simpson, Major Llewellyn, Max Frost, Elieko, Baca and others. The paper contains a good many interesting anecdotes connected with early days in New Mexico.

DUNNIGAN STILL IN JAIL WAITING FOR BAIL

Judge Craig Orders Him to Supply a $300 Bond to Keep the Peace Before Being Given Liberty.

Maurice J. Dunnigan, the railway mail clerk who was arrested Sunday on complaint of Miss Annie C. Mon-ley, a dry goods clerk, who charges that he threatened her life because she refused to accept his attentions, is still being held in jail in default of bond. Dunnigan and his attorney appeared before Judge Craig, in precinct 26 court, yesterday afternoon and pleaded not guilty to the charge carried in the western. Miss Monley appeared and told the court she story, a very disagreeable story of annoying attentions, culminating in Dunnigan's threat of kill her on Sunday morning.

During the hearing, the evidence Craig ordered Dunnigan to supply a $300 peace bond, in default of which he was remanded to jail. Late last night he had not been able to supply the bond.

Miss Monley is almost prostrated as a result of the threats and the publicity following Dunnigan's arrest. According to her story he has been frequently in her room for more than a year, and she had made plans to leave the city within a short time in order to escape him. The opinion of the police as to the condition of Dunnigan's mind has been strengthened as a result of the hearing. At one time the two were engaged, but this engagement was later broken off by Miss Monley. Dunnigan, however, refused to accept the young lady's decline and persisted in pressing his suit.

Miss Monley has borne the affair in silence for some time in an effort to escape publicity. She is an attractive young woman of pleasing appearance and address, and an accomplished musician. She had planned to go to Germany in the near future to complete her musical education.

SANTA FE OFFICERS IN ALBUQUERQUE

Numerous Officials From East and West Arrive in City On Regular Tour of Inspection Monday.

There was quite a little gathering of prominent Santa Fe officials in the city yesterday.

C. W. Kouna, superintendent of transportation for the system, was in the city en route to Los Angeles and San Francisco.

S. L. Bean, mechanical superintendent of the coast lines, also arrived here from Los Angeles.

W. H. Sharpe, general superintendent of the western grand division, with two of his assistants, James Karn, of the New Mexico division, and Frank L. Myers, of the Rio Grande division, came in on No. 2 yesterday and returned to Winslow on No.
1 last night.

W. H. Brown, district passenger and freight agent, and W. P. Garfield, traveling freight and passenger agent, both with headquarters at El Paso, were here in conference.

All of the officials are on a monthly inspection tour.

Locomotives, passenger and freight cars, and other equipment for the Tonopah and Tidewater railroad, the road which runs from Ludlow, Cal., to Tidewater, Nev., connecting with a branch road to Goldfield, have been passing through Albuquerque recently lately. The Tonopah and Tidewater road has been in operation a short time. On December 3 the Santa Fe will inaugurate a through passenger service from Los Angeles to Goldfield, via Ludlow and Tidewater.

The fact that the Tonopah and Tidewater line, which is allied with the Santa Fe, will make its terminal at Goldfield, Cal., means much for that little town. The Santa Fe has erected a handsome depot there, and it is reported that the Harvey system will erect a hotel, as the hotel facilities at present are very limited.

HAIR OFF.

Facts About the American Indian's Healthy Hair.

The American Indian accustomed from time immemorial to go bareheaded in all kinds of weather is never troubled with falling hair or baldness.

The close atmosphere caused by our "civilized" head-gear is conducive to the breeding of infinitesimal germs which dig into the scalp and thrive on the sap of the hair-root.

This true cause of baldness is of recent discovery and explains the non-success of all hair-growing preparations. Baldness as a functional disorder.

Newbros' Herpicide is a direct ex-terminator of the germ. It destroys the cause and permits the hair to grow as nature intended.

BRITISH BECOME WAR INEVITABLE IN FAR EAST

AMERICA MUST FIGHT
JAPAN, LONDON PREDICTS

Sailing of Battleship Fleet and Military and Naval Activity in Nippon Cited As Evidence of Coming Conflict.

(By Robert Broderick.)

London, Nov. 24.—In the English naval circles the belief is spreading that in spite of President Roosevelt's assurances to the contrary, the American battleship squadron is to stay in the Pacific indefinitely and is not going there merely for maneuvering purposes.

A proof of this, English naval officials say, is the fact that the American government has ordered more than twice the amount of coal necessary for the cruise of the fleet.

Two hundred thousand tons of American coal are to be shipped from New York, via the coast, to twenty-three large British steamers, but although this would be an ample supply for the fleet during the whole cruise, it must be remembered that an equal large amount of Welsh coal has been ordered from English firms.

It is the general belief here that President Roosevelt, foreseeing that a war with Japan is inevitable, is some time desiring it to come soon, partly because Japan is still weak financially after her war with Russia, and partly because a war coming just before his presidential election would surely force him to accept office for another term which is supposed to be his secret ambition.

That Japan is not unaware of the danger of the situation is proven by the fact that the shipyards of that country are turning out cruisers and battleships as fast as their capacity will permit, and nearly all the new battleships are of 22,000 tons, or 4,000 tons larger than the Russian war ship which she has added to her navy some cruciers of the British-Terranova type, a very large number of torpedo boats.

Then, curiously enough, Japan is showing feverish haste in what is termed completing the fortifications of Formosa, and in the island of Hiroshima considered a millionaires around her neck. A large naval harbor capable of accommodating the biggest battleships being constructed on the eastern side of the island, and a torpedo station on the southern side, while Japanese engineers are working night and day on the fortifications on the southern and eastern sides, those of the Pacific coast of the United States.

Railroad construction is also proceeding at a pace which is remarkable in view of what are considered the possibilities of the island.
Another significant point is that enormous stores of provisions and ammunition are being accumulated on the island, and no real explanation of this fact is forthcoming.

Another fact which shows that British business men consider war, if not likely, at least possible, is the circumstance that the underwriters who have insured the British fleet are carrying the cost of the insurance in the Pacific in the Pacific have inserted in the policies the clause that they are to be null and void in case any vessel is captured and sunk by a belligerent.

The giant battleship, Dreadnaught which it had been hoped was to be the pride of the British navy, is a disaster, as it has proven to be absolutely unmanageable, all details for the admiralty the fact that the Dreadnaught has been modified, and new rudders, new propellers—three successive sets of the latter have been fitted, and the ship is now being fitted with the object of overcoming those qualities which make it impossible either for the ship to maneuver with ordinary ships or to enter a harbor as that at Sheerness.

As an anchored fortress the Dread-naught may be of value as a harbor defense ship, but she will evidently never travel far from home.

The great international horse show, at which American horses achieved triumphs last year, will be repeated in London next year. It will again be held at Olympia, Kensington, and passing through the city, the show will cover it with the work of the middle of the fashionable London season.

The management are prepared to spend $100,000 on the occasion, and $50,000 in prizes—the largest sum ever offered at any horse show in the world.

During the New York horse show there will be a contest between a division of British horse breeders with the most prominent American and Canadian breeders with a view to America being again strongly represented at the London show.

A romantic piece of secret history of the French Second Empire was hidden behind a prosaic lawsuit heard in the London courts last night, the story of Elizabeth Howard, the beautiful Englishwoman who was believed by the Emperor Napoleon III.
before his marriage with Eugenie de Montijo, to be the daughter of the disgraced division of her fortune disposal of $700,000, which once belonged to her.

Elizabeth Howard was a famous London demimonde in the sixties and seventies. She was an extremely beautiful woman, wealthy and fascinating, and she kept a sort of "salon" in London for fashionable men. During her career in London, Napoleon's nephew, the great emperor, frequented her house, and was given financial assistance by the beautiful Elizabeth.

When he became president of the republic, he installed Miss Howard in apartments at St. Cloud, took her with him on his journeys and gave her the position of a morganatic wife, although she was not a princess.

The legal question to be decided was the division of her fortune disposal of $700,000, which once belonged to her.

The lovely Elizabeth was naturally furious. She threatened to publish the emperor's letters to her and to expose his amours to all the world.
Her apartments were twice ransacked by the secret police for possession of her dangerous letters. The secret was kept.

Finally she was induced to keep quiet with a present of $1,250,000 and the title of Countess de Beauregard.
Afterwards she married Clarence Trelawney, an Englishman serving in the Austrian army. Their marriage was dissolved by divorce in 1885, and Mrs.

Trevelyan died the same year.

Her son, whom Napoleon had created Count de Bechevet, married a littled Hungarian, and died last August.
From his death arose the present suit to settle the disposal of his mother's wealth, derived partly from Napoleon's generosity, partly hush money and partly the handsome settlement from Clarence Trevelyan.

The fact was brought out in court that very little of the money would remain for the three children of the Count de Bechevet, because the estate was heavily encumbered with mortgages held by an insurance company, which petitioned the courts for the settlement.

Lord Roberts is very much interested in a new mechanical target
which he hopes will make the English soldiers the best marksmen in the world under actual war conditions.

The invention has been donated to the British nation by the inventor,
Mr. Solano, and it is to be kept safely guarded from foreign spies.

The Solano target consists of a bank of earth, twenty-four or thirty-six inches high, of sufficient thickness to stop a bullet. The effect of the green background of European landscapes is gained with grass, sand or brown-grey soil, gives the effect of an Indian background, while stones or gravel roughly represent a rocky,
mountainous background, as seen at a distance. Across these different strips of earth, little toy models of infantry, cavalry, and guns can be disposed in any formation, with other objects incidental to any particular landscape or to warfare.

Instead of firing at a black speck on a piece of white cardboard, the marksmen are given the model hills and valleys of various countries in which he may be called on to shoot.

With the war target a man learns to shoot at the mark which he will see in the field, and he is not confined to a speck of color difficult to discover, to calculate distance from,
and difficult to aim at because it merges into the background.

The war target, therefore, is devised first, to train the soldier's eye to discover his enemy as he will appear under the conditions of war; second, to teach him to judge his distance from his enemy—when he has sighted him—as he will appear in war, and third, it aims at training the soldier to hit the difficult, infinite number of marks which a modern "invisible" service uniform.

A Swiss engineer named Cortesey, who has lived in this country for several years, has patented a remarkable model of a turbine engine which it is claimed will revolutionize marine engineering.

A working model, which weighs only thirty pounds, develops 12 horse power when driven at 4,000 revolutions a minute, and 16 horse power at 5,000.

The patentee proposes purchasing an obsolete torpedo boat, which he intends to fit with the new type of engine, and send it down the Clyde at a speed hitherto unknown.

The invention has been patented in every country, and a company to work it has been registered at Somerset House.

The Excelsior Mining and Development company, operating mines in the Silver Hill district, near Orogrande, has gone into the hands of a receiver.
It is alleged that the company's assets are $200 with liabilities of $7,000. Judge Mann, of Alamogordo, appointed H. H. Major receiver.

Another fact which shows that British
business men consider war, if not
likely, at least possible, is the circumstance that the underwriters who have
insured the British fleet are carrying
the cost of the insurance in the Pacific

ested in a new mechanical target
which he hopes will make the English soldiers the best marksmen in
the world under actual war conditions.

The invention has been donated to the British nation by the inventor,
Mr. Solano, and it is to be kept safely guarded from foreign spies.

The Solano target consists of a bank
of earth, twenty-four or thirty-six inches high, of sufficient thickness to stop a bullet. The effect of the green background of European
landscapes is gained with grass, sand
or brown-grey soil, gives the effect
of an Indian background, while stones
or gravel roughly represent a rocky,
mountainous background, as seen at
a distance. Across these different
strips of earth, little toy models of
infantry, cavalry, and guns can be
disposed in any formation, with other
objects incidental to any particular
landscape or to warfare.

Instead of firing at a black speck
on a piece of white cardboard, the
marksmen are given the model hills and
valleys of various countries in which he may be called on to shoot.

As Thanksgiving approached it became evident that the grand Thanksgiving benefit ball of the Non-Sectarian Benevolent society will be the most successful and brilliant affair of the kind on record. The hearty cooperation of every one should be given to the public spirited ladies who have the affair in charge to the end that the ball may be a great success, both socially and financially.

Dr. D. M. Carns is expected home this week from Magdalena and vicinity, where he and his brother, Lee Carns, a well known stock broker of Pittsburgh, Pa., have been hunting. Mr.
Carns goes to El Paso and then to San Diego, Cal., sailing from there around Cape Horn and to New Orleans, after which he will start on a tour of the world. During his stay in Albuquerque Mr. Carns was so charmed with the city that he invested considerable money in real estate here.

CRYSTAL HAS BEST
RIPE OF SEASON

With such a really clever show as the Crystal presented last night and with no opposition, as was the case last week, the little modern continuous-decked with costly and glittering apparatus and cages. The dogs are well trained and amusing and do many surprising feats. As to the Australian cockatoos, they are a hit. Either portion of the act would make a complete number of itself.

Mr. Joe R. Scott's illustrated song for this week is a touching and nicely pleased illustrated song called, "A Little Child Shall Lead Them."

The heavy portion of the bill fell to the lot of Mr. Richard Mandell, a most peculiarly gifted character actor, who, with the assistance of Harry De Voy, presented the main climax and associate scenes of the great psychological play, "Dr. Jekyll and Mr.
Hyde." Mr. Mandell makes his wonderful changes in full view of the audience, and they are truly remarkable.
Every one interested in psychology will be drawn toward the Crystal this week to study the unique creation and the curious still attend to witness the awful horror of the thing.

Two very good moving pictures complete the bill.

While a bunch of Navajos are serving thirty days in the Socorro jail for being game hogs, it is reported that numerous other bands are ranging through the mountains killing off the deer right and left. A systematic search is being made for such redskins and the authorities are determined to stop the slaughter of the game.

Facts About
The Great Majestic Range

It is the only range in the world made of Malleable and Charcoal Iron.

It has, beyond any question of a doubt, the largest and best reservoir.

It uses about half the fuel used on other ranges, and does better work by far.

The Majestic All Copper Nickel Reservoir heats the water quicker and hotter than any other. It is the only reservoir with a removable frame.

The Charcoal Iron Body of the Great Majestic Range lasts three times as long as a steel body.

Being made of non-breakable material, there is practically no expense for repairing the Majestic.

As for baking, it is perfection, not only for a few months, but for all times to come.

A Great Majestic Range lasts three times as long as a cheap range, but it don't cost three times as much.

PROOF—We don't ask you to take our word for any of the above statements, but if you will call at our store, a man from the factory, where Majestic ranges are made, will prove to your satisfaction that these are absolute facts, and will show you many more reasons why the Great Majestic Range is absolutely the best that money can buy.

PRESIDENT'S IDEAS
STIR UP THE DEMOCRATSINTERESTS SAID TO FAVOR CENTRALIZATION

Strong Demand for New Government Departments of Art, Education, Mines and Mining.

[Special Correspondence Morning Journal.] Washington, Nov. 22.—The speciousness that President Roosevelt has delivered during the past summer have indicated a policy on his part looking to the centralization of more power in the federal government at Washington, and this attitude of Mr. Roosevelt has been the cause of considerable criticism, particularly on the part of those democrats who still adhere to the time honored doctrine of "states rights." Those, however, who have given some study to the question of centralization of power are compelled to admit that the responsibility for the trend of public sentiment in this direction, so far as public sentiment has in any way been moulded, is due in a great measure to the arguments of influential men in both parties who are seeking legislation that will be of material assistance to certain industries in which they are interested and the development of ideas of which they are prominent exponents. Much along these lines probably will be attempted during the coming session of congress, just as it has been attempted in the past. This centralization scheme finds expression in propositions that have been made from time to time looking to the creation of new cabinet portfolios, and today there are four different propositions for increasing the official family of the president, which means that the people behind these moves desire federal control over the matters that don't properly come within the purview of such cabinet members.

Wanted—American Art. Art and education are looked upon by many influential people as a matter of such importance in American life that there should be a department devoted to its management and development. Only recently Ambassador Henry White, at Paris, made the statement that there was no art in this country; that its proper development had been sadly neglected and that the American idea was crude and in need of careful training. Geraldine Ferrar, the American prima donna, educated abroad, after a short tour of her native land, returned to Europe and declared that the American people had no appreciation of music and were lacking in the artistic sense. She said she would never sing again in her native land because of this want of appreciation.

course, he refers to the high duty on works of art brought in by private owners, although there is no duty on such things when purchased and imported into the country for public institutions where they will be exhibited free to the people.

Proponents of education declare that the system of education in this country is a hodge podge of a little of everything and that no two institutions of learning work along the same lines. They say that proficiency in one section of the country does not necessarily mean proficiency in another and that a comprehensive system, which contemplates there should be a department of education and art having control of a great national museum, national theater, national art gallery, the control of the central government, higher education could be secured along the same line that is worked out in the government aided institutions of Europe.

There also is a considerable element among which may be included many of the railroad companies that have suffered the effects of state legislation, the control of the central government, and with the adoption of the general scheme looking to the greater development of the inland waterways, this great question should be under the control of an executive officer who should have peculiar fitness for dealing with the immense interests that would come under his supervision. Those who advocate this department hold that the interstate commerce commission, a quasi-judicial body, is not competent to deal with the great problems forced upon the country by reason of the interstate character of such commerce and that with a federal department presiding over this enormous industry state lines would be still further wiped out and a central body, the creation of which would be beneficial both to the transportation companies and the general public. Prominent among the advocates of this department is Representative J. Hampton Moore, of Philadelphia, who will prepare and urge a bill in the coming congress for the creation of this cabinet position.

The western members of congress, regardless of political affiliation, are clamoring for a department of mines and mining. For years they have urged the creation of a bureau to preside over the work but now they are insistent that the mineral interests of the country have developed so rapidly that mining as a department will suffice. The respective committees of the two houses of congress, they say, are not capable of dealing with the problems involved in the development of the mineral resources of the great west, of Alaska and of the American colonial possessions. As an example of the geological survey, which they contend, is made a side issue and the country suffers by reason of the lack of proper federal supervision, not only of the methods employed but of the administration of the mineral lands of the country with a strong secretary and the additional legislation that would come with the institution of such a department. It is claimed that capital would invest thousands of dollars in mines and mining where hundreds are now grudgingly invested.

People Tell Each Other About Good Things. Twelve years ago few people knew of such a preparation as a Powder for the Face. Today the name is known all over the world. It has been sold year after year by one gratified person to another, there are millions who would go without a day's life without the daily use of Allen's Face-Powder. It is a clean, wholesome, healing, antiseptic powder, in its shade, the skin, which has given red and comely to tired and aching feet in all parts of the world. It cures while you walk.

During several sessions the medical profession had urged the creation of a department of public health with a secretary at its head. There is today a national quarantine law, and the spread of yellow fever, small pox, diphtheria, cholera and other contagious diseases is prevented through rigid quarantine laws. Still, there is a conflict between the various states on this matter of quarantine and because of these conflicts of authority and of opinion there are diverse regulations, to the detriment of the people, their enforcement is relaxed while in others the restrictions are made unduly severe. The medical practitioners assert that such conditions should be avoided and far better sanitary arrangements enforced if the whole question were turned over to federal authority. Under existing conditions some states establish quarantine regulations that hold ships in port a certain number of days for the protection of the people, while in others a higher altitude no quarantine whatever is imposed. This enables passengers from infected ports to land and immediately return south by rail, carrying their infection with them. There is no means of detecting the passengers or crews of such vessels until they have landed, and those advocating a federal quarantine department point to this as an instance of how the situation could be controlled if the whole matter were in the hands of the federal government.

The writer makes no attempt to say whether it would be wise or unwise to create the cabinet position, but merely calls attention to the fact that they have been suggested and are being urged. The fact that they are being urged shows that the people themselves, and not the president alone, are thinking in the direction of centralization of power. They may not realize that what they advocate means such centralization, but every argument put forward in favor of these various propositions is an argument for the very policy on the part of the president.

FOUR HUNDRED MEN
AT WORK IN YARDS

The San Bernardino Sun says: Nearly 400 workmen are now employed on the Santa Fe improvements in this city—this force being entirely outside of the regular shop force of the company. New work is going forward with a rush in all parts of the yards here, new tracks going in and new buildings going up.

Yesterday fully 200 men were employed on the contracts held by Carl Leonhardt on the roundhouse and machine shop. 100 more were pushing the new yard improvements, a gang of 20 men were getting the new water service in shape, an equally large number was busy on the storeroom, and others were at work on minor tasks. A force fully as large as this will be maintained for some time. All of which means a large amount of money regularly turned loose here aside from the regular Santa Fe pay-rolls.

The track changes are going forward rapidly. The new freight lead at the east end is now complete and now in use. Yesterday workmen were putting in what is known as the new north lead, from the east end of the yards to the network of tracks inside the ship enclosure.

CROP STATISTICS
FROM ALL THE
WORLDCOMPREHENSIVE SCHEME OF VICTOR EMANUEL

United States at Present Has Only Accurate System of Gathering Crop Statistics in Existence.

[Special Correspondence Morning Journal.] Washington, Nov. 22.—As the result of the development of the idea of an American citizen and the activity of the American government supplemented by that of King Victor Emmanuel of Italy, the beneficial operations of our own agricultural department, in collecting and disseminating crop information and statistics for the benefit of our own people is to be transformed into a world work. A moment's consideration of this project will show every farmer and agriculturalist that if all the nations of the earth combine to obtain and circulate accurate data as to the condition of the crops, the value of those crops will depend entirely upon the law of supply and demand and not upon the price arbitrarily fixed by speculators in New York, Liverpool, London, Paris or Berlin. The idea of the International Institute of Agriculture was conceived by David Lubin, of Sacramento, Cal. He worked out the general scheme and pointed out to the government at Washington the benefits to be derived by concert of action on the part of all countries. Mr. Lubin was advised to have some European government take the initiative, and armed with letters giving him a proper introduction, selected Italy as the place and started for Rome. The scheme was appreciated at home by the Italian foreign office, a protocol was prepared and subsequently was signed by forty independent countries and five British colonies.

Mr. Lubin some time ago was appointed by President Roosevelt as the American member of the permanent committee which will be stationed at home and in charge of the work of the institute. He is now in this country conferring with the authorities and getting his instructions. The members of this institute have absolutely no diplomatic or political status. The protocol signed by the powers confines their duties to agricultural affairs solely. The Italian foreign office this month issued a call for the permanent committee to meet in Rome next April. This committee will consist of one representative from each country and will prepare and digest plans for the work of the institute. Suggestions have been coming in from many governments, and the Italian foreign office is now in possession of a large number of official papers that will give the committee abundant material upon which to go to work to carry out the general scheme to which the various nations are committed. The conclusions of the permanent committee will be submitted to a general assembly consisting of a larger number of delegates from the powers, which delegates will have power to negotiate treaties binding upon their respective governments.

The United States today is the only over-seas nation having a comprehensive and thorough system of gathering crop statistics. As everybody knows, the monthly reports indicating the character of the cotton or tobacco crop are awaited with interest, and cotton, particularly, the world over, because this country supplies the bulk of that staple. Upon this report the prices are put up or depressed, as best suits the operations of the big speculators. The same is true of grain, although in that case the world's price is largely fixed in Liverpool. Under the operations of this international institute, these crop reports are to be supplied by every government, and when the wheat report from this country, for instance, is available, a similar report will be in the hands of the institute from every other wheat producing country on earth. This will give the world accurate information as to the grand total of production of any particular grain. In this way the operations of speculators in grain will be checked and it will be impossible for them to arbitrarily fix the price, regardless of the conditions in any particular country. It matters little whether the estimate would be a little short or a trifle large, as the whole world would have the advantage of the general estimate. The price would be fixed by the inevitable law of supply and demand.

It also is the purpose of this institute, as its operations become developed, to take up the study of the conditions and adaptability of the soil in the various countries for the growth of certain crops; to study and report on the diseases of animal and vegetable products under the general betterment of conditions everywhere and the protection of one part of the world from the infected conditions that may exist in another part. If the scheme is outlined by Mr. Lubin, who in Washington recently is carried to its logical conclusion, this international institute will be of incalculable value to the American people. Under present conditions the price of grain, for instance, is forced down on reports of enormous crops in the Argentine Republic or in Transcaucasia, while the real truth as to crop conditions there may not be known for weeks after the "bears" in the grain market have won the profits of their raid. Such manipulation of prices, it is believed, will be impossible under the new international arrangement.

Already the European nations are preparing for the collection of their information. The French government is well advanced in its work, and the plan meets with the hearty approval of the agriculturalists of that enterprising nation. In Great Britain also and her colonies this portion of the preparatory work is well along. The same is true of Italy. In Germany these preparatory steps are not so well advanced, but the government is prosecuting them with a determination of doing its share as speedily as possible in adding its crop information to the general fund at an early day. In Russia, of course, where the headway has yet been made, but the importance of dealing fairly with the grain growers of Russia's great wheat belt is so apparent that arguments are not necessary to convince that government of the necessity of acting promptly. The international institute promises to work out great results for the American tiller of the soil.

ALBUQUERQUE—NEW MEXICO

EFFECT OF BAD MANAGEMENT.

The democratic party throughout the country has generally been regarded as the most striking "frightful example" that could be furnished of the fatal consequences of bad management, but the republican party in New Mexico presents a case in this line which makes it necessary for the national democracy to take a back seat. The democratic sympathy with the cause of secession put a handicap upon the democratic party during the last half century, such as would be very difficult if not impossible for the best and ablest of managers to carry successfully, but the republican party in this territory never worked at such disadvantage. On the contrary, all the conditions have been in its favor. The territory is naturally republican, by a very strong majority, and nothing short of a genius for blundering and wrong-doing on the part of republican managers could make it otherwise. And such genius has been in evidence so long that no one with any knowledge of existing public sentiment believes there is any prospect of republican success in New Mexico at the next election, without a radical change of management. The gang of corruptionists at present in control of the party machinery have practically put the republican organization of the territory out of business, and every time an effort has been made by the decent elements of the party in favor of better conditions, those who constitute the machine have been able to defeat the movement through the abuse and betrayal of the confidence which the president has reposed in them, and as a matter of course, every experience of this sort puts the party at a still greater disadvantage.

There are republicans in New Mexico who believe that in his over-indulgent course toward the men referred to, the president has been "playing politics," and stood by these men because he wanted to get the six votes of the territory in the national convention. But to say nothing of the wrong that such a statement would do the reputation of the president of the United States, any man of ordinary intelligence can convince himself that it is not true if he will only stop long enough to look at the matter from the ordinary level of politics. Mr. Roosevelt used to have the reputation of being a shrewd politician, and it is not in evidence that he has lost any of his former shrewdness, therefore if he were governed merely by a desire to get the votes of New Mexico in the convention he would "stand in" with men whose standing and influence with the people of the territory would enable him to get the votes for him; but instead of that he has stood loyal to these gentlemen of the territorial machine, because he believed them to be his friends, and true to him, whereas they have simply been trading upon his friendship to further their own schemes of corruption and wrong-doing—and meanwhile it would seem like an impeachment of his perceptibility to assume that he were not aware of the fact that they had become so unpopular in the territory that they could not influence anything.

It is simply a case of friendship, and one of the most highly commendable qualities in any man is that of standing firmly by his friends, though evil as well as good report, but when it comes to an undoubted and notorious fact that his friendship is being used as a cloak to cover up political rottenness and chicanery which he abhors, it is time to call a halt.

And it really looks as though the president were beginning to get his eyes open to the true state of affairs at last. The removal of Cleveland ("Reignation" we believe, is the polite word) is a very hopeful bow of promise, and if the president in the kindness of his heart, thinks it is actually necessary and proper for the government to support the major, let him give him a good, flat place, anywhere outside of New Mexico, and in which he will have nothing to do but to draw his salary. He has excellent qualifications for such a position, and will be able to acquit himself creditably.

IT HAS THE RIGHT RING.

A sentiment expressed by Governor Hughes some time ago seems to have the right ring. He was being entertained at a public function by friends up in Vermont, and in the course of an address which he delivered on the occasion he told his hosts something about what he had learned while in office concerning the relation between friendship and politics. Of course the governor believes in friendship, and in all its loyalties and sacrifices, as much as anybody, but with an earnestness that must have been not less distasteful than shocking to any old-school politician among his auditors he dwelt upon the ease and certainty with which an administration can be corrupted through recognition of an obligation to grant official favors to those whose claim is campaign help in time of need.

"The friend," he said, "who comes to me and asks me to use my office to grant him favors falls far below the standard for friendship that I set up. We have to learn in politics that friends should not ask and friends should not give that which the people, if the facts were known, would not readily have them bestow." The old school—which has many survivors—had and has other notions, and did and will raise the cry of ingratitude against anybody who repudiates the claim of partisan service. The utter irrelevance of such service to the efficient and honest performance of public duties is beyond the comprehension of the members of that school, and their fiercest hatred is aroused when the man whom they "made" is that, elected or helped to elect—refuses their requests for place and patronage on the ground that he is a trustee, not of a party, but of the public.

WHAT ARE THEY FOR?

Precise details of the treasury plan to restore normal conditions in the money market are still unobtainable—so the New York Herald tells us, and when the Herald, with its almost unlimited means and machinery for getting the news is unable to dig it out, it is hardly worth while for others to try. The bankers, who, after all, are the people most closely concerned, do not even know the essential characteristics of the short term treasury certificates.

Will they be available as currency, or as reserves, or as security for public funds or as the basis of a new issue of bank notes, the Herald inquires, and then adds: Until information on these points is forthcoming it is impossible to form an idea touching the probable influence the measure will exercise on the situation. That such indispensable information was not given out simultaneously with the announcement of the Roosevelt-Cortelyou scheme appears to indicate either that its authors were in a desperate hurry to show the people that the administration was doing something or else that the treasury certificates are intended not for home but for foreign consumption.

This latter view may be the correct one. It is known that negotiations with the Bank of France for a gold loan fell through in consequence of the negotiators' inability to give a guarantee of the United States for the repayment of the loan. As the treasury certificates are based on the credit of the country they may be acceptable to the Bank of France as the security required. Color is lent to this assumption by a report that the project has met with the approval of Mr. J. P. Morgan, who has been concerned in the French negotiations. If, therefore, the treasury certificates were issued merely to provide a security for French gold there would be no particular necessity to arrange immediately the details of a plan for their utilization in the United States. Should this surmise be well founded, Mr. Roosevelt's plan may yet prove efficacious in relieving the money stringency. Perhaps, says the Herald, the public would have greater faith in it if recent events had not proved Mr. Roosevelt to be somewhat unfamiliar with financial matters. Had his knowledge in this respect been greater, he would never have tried to "monkey with a buzzsaw" in the way he has done, no matter how sincere might have been his desire to correct abuses and effect reforms. It is to be hoped that Mr. Roosevelt, taught by bitter experience, has learned the wisdom of making haste slowly in financial reconstruction, but until some indisputable evidence of this desirable change of methods is forthcoming, the people may be excused for regarding his relief measures with apprehension, if not with distrust.

If the treasury certificates are the result of a last understanding with the Bank of France, Mr. Roosevelt's plan will meet with general approbation. If, however, they are designed merely to draw hoarded money from his hiding places the plan may prove a serious blunder, as it will simply place the government in competition with railway and industrial enterprises in the home money market.

Loeb Evasive About That Bear Hunt

A Washington dispatch says, Secretary Loeb has returned from Wyoming shrouded in mystery and proceeded by a report that he had shot a bear, a black-tail deer, several mountain goats, some mountain sheep, and a flock of jack rabbits. The mystery arose over Mr. Loeb's refusal to shed light on the report.

"I have had 'em loaded on a dray and smuggled into the back entrance so as to avoid the appearance of boastfulness," said he.

"But was it a bear you shot, Mr. Loeb?" "It was a case-wary," he replied frivolously. Later he went so far as to confide to some intimate friends that while he had shot a bear it was not to be counted as a kill, because he had not slain the bear according to Hoyle. He refused to explain what he meant by this and hence a legend grew up that he had caught the bear in a net before shooting it and had then been informed by old inhabitants that nets were barred in Wyoming. Another rumor had it that he caught the bear with a hook and line. These exaggerated accounts subsequently shimmered down into a report that Loeb did not kill the bear in a hand-to-hand fight with his bare hands and consequently was not disposed to regard it as a worth mentioning in the view of the present White House standards. Very few of the president's intimates think it a good form to boast of killing a bear unless one has bitten it to death.

Nor would Mr. Loeb confess to the black-tail deer, the mountain goats, the mountain sheep or the jack rabbits. "How much game did you shoot, anyway?" asked one baffled inquirer. "I shot as many as I thought advisable," replied Loeb oracularly. There is a good deal of curiosity about what his new era in White House gunnery portends. Hitherto, modesty and mystery have never enshrouded a White House shoot. Some are disposed to regard Loeb's modesty as an oblique favor for somebody higher up, but the favorite theory is that Loeb shot more game than the president and thinks that in the interest of a peaceful life in the White House it would be better not to dwell on that fact.

Things to Forget.

If you see a tall fellow ahead of a leader of men marching fearlessly and proudly, and you know of a tale whose mere telling would give your head to in anguish, would cause grief and sorrow and lifelong dismay, it's a pretty good plan to forget it.

If you know of a skeleton hidden away in a closet, and guarded, and kept from the day and whose showing, would cause grief and sorrow and lifelong dismay, it's a pretty good plan to forget it.

If you know of a thing that will darken the joy of a man or a woman, a girl or a boy, that will wipe out a smile, or the least way annoy a fellow, or cause any gladness to clove, it's a pretty good plan to forget it.

The people of Arizona welcome Governor Joseph H. Kibbey back after an extended conference with President Roosevelt, says the Douglas Dispatch. Already the people of Arizona have heard with pleasure of the result of his mission and he returns to us with the promise of the president that he will do all within his power for single statehood for Arizona.—Arizona Gazette.

That "Statehood Dope."

According to the Arizona Gazette, there was to be some exceedingly warm statehood dope handed out to the people of Arizona, on the return of Governor Kibbey from his interview with President Roosevelt down in Mississippi. The hopes of Arizona had been raised to the top round by the intimation of the Gazette as to what good news the governor would hand out on his return to the banks of the Rio Salado, consequently there was disappointment when Governor Kibbey failed to give any definite words from the president which would indicate an early realization of our statehood hopes.—Bisbee Review.

Chronic Bright's Disease may have been an incurable disease in the past, but it is certainly curable now. M. L. Walley, the druggist, tells us of a remarkable recovery in this city. There was no question about the genuineness of the case. The patient, a lady, is connected with one of our prominent families. She was in a hospital swollen with dropsy and the abdomen was so much enormous quantities as to solidify in the tube.

Death was expected daily by the physician and family, when she was put on a specific from California that was alleged to be curing Bright's Disease in that state. The results created great astonishment. Symptoms began to subside and recovery was then gradual but finally complete. The patient has since actually passed for insurance.

The peculiarity of the treatment is that it does not require surgery. The patient in question taking over eighty bottles. The discovery of the new specific is said to be a lineal descendant of Robert Fulton, who gave us the first steamship.—Auburn, N. Y., Daily Citizen.

Another recovery by Fulton's Renal Compound. The lady's name is Mrs. R. Lester Bell.

time the fight to better conditions in that city. There is a growing sentiment in favor of closing the saloons on Sunday, and we expect to see the democrats win in Tucson on that platform. The effect of increasing the saloon license would be to further curtail the number and thereby lower the cost of police service.—Bisbee Review.

FARMERS ENJOYING UNPRECEDENTED PROSPERITY

SEVEN BILLIONS WORTH OF PRODUCTS LAST YEAR

Secretary Wilson Declares Workers in America Fare Better Than Did Royalty in Days of Queen Bess.

"Our American workmen today fare better than Queen Elizabeth did," said Secretary Wilson, chief of the government department of agriculture, in explaining the extraordinary development of farming in the United States. "Queen Bess couldn't begin to buy things which are found on the table every day in the homes of prosperous American workmen. He has the best cuts of meat, the choicest potatoes and a wealth of fruit and vegetables which the queen of England, with all her money and influence, could not possibly have secured a few generations ago."

"Our farms," said the secretary, who is quoted by Raymond in the Chicago Tribune, "were never as valuable as today. In spite of a reduction in a number of the most profitable crops, this has been a variegated year. Production has decreased in many respects and yet the general run of prices has been such that farmers are overwhelmed with their own prosperity. I estimated last year a general farm production of more than $6,500,000,000. The total will run a good deal over $7,000,000,000 this year. The farmer is prosperous chiefly because workmen in the cities are all employed at high wages. Laboring men are getting much better prices for their work than ever before and the result is they are spending their money for better living than they were ever accustomed to, and far better than is the lot of the laboring man in any other nation in the world."

Justifies Policy of Protection.
"The republican policy of protection of the laborer and the manufacturer has been more than justified by the results of the last ten years, so that now the skilled laborer in certain favored lines of mechanics, who needs only a few years' preparation for his work, is frequently better paid than lower grade professional men, who have to put in years of study before they are competent to undertake their specialized work."

"It is, of course, true," said Secretary Wilson, who is recognized as the greatest expert in the world on agricultural problems, "that we have surplus farm products and are able to dispose of them abroad. The time seems to be rapidly approaching, however, when we may not be able to keep pace with the demands of our increased population. The farmer has been enabled to meet the demand made upon him, in spite of the scarcity of labor in agricultural districts by the use of improved machinery. If farms were run as they used to be run there would be a terrible deficit today in our food supply. The farmer now, however, is adopting new methods and the latest machinery. Where I used two light horses my boys on the farm now have four heavy ones, and where I plowed once furrow they plow two. Their harrows are two or three times as wide and they use machinery which was not even dreamed of two or three years ago. We used to cut our hay with a mow-mower, dried it, tossed it into cocks, laboriously pitchforked it into a haystack or stacked it by hand. Now a wagon drives across a field with a loader trailing behind it. Machinery throws the spread-out hay on a wagon, which is driven to the barn, where powerful tongs bite out half a load at a time and dispose of it almost without human labor."

Machinery Offsets Labor Scarcity.
"Use of all of this labor-saving machinery on the farm has enabled production to keep reasonable pace with the increase in population, thus offsetting the scarcity of labor caused by the fact that men are attracted to large cities, where they pay prices for work with which the farmer cannot possibly compete."

"Few people understand the extent to which the prosperity of the farmer has gone. It sounds like a fairy tale, and yet it is true, that farmers of the west and cotton growers of the south today are supplying money to run big business houses of Broadway. The farmer does not speculate in stocks. He has learned to hang on to his product at times, and his means of marketing are better than they used to be, but he is not personally interested in the rise or fall of stock values in the east, and he can generally supply the money to move his own crops nowadays. Crop moving money is frequently only a return to the farmers themselves."

Taboo Wheat for Corn and Cattle.
Speaking of the change in agricultural conditions in the west, Secretary Wilson said: "Farmers in Illinois and Iowa can no longer afford to raise wheat in large quantities. It is more profitable for them to raise stock, and so they raise corn and cattle. Development of our arid regions in the west through the progress of irrigation schemes ultimately will supply the entire demand for wheat by the states east of the Missouri.

"Up in the Dakotas and in the northern wheat districts, they adopted at first a ruinous policy. This was to raise wheat one year and then let the land lie till the fall of the next year. The real necessity was for a leguminous plant which would stand the severe northern climate, so that it might not be necessary to let the land lie idle for a year. If it could be sown in clover roots of course it would be utilized when plowed under and yet a profitable hay crop could be secured at the same time. We secured the entire north until at last we found a clover at Tomsk, in Siberia, which fulfilled all necessary conditions. That seed has been put in the hands of all our experimenters and the work of supplying our northern wheat belt with a clover crop for off years is now practically accomplished."

"The greatest necessity for the development of agricultural products in the United States," continued the secretary, "is in the south. We are endeavoring to teach the people there some modern methods. In this respect they are far behind the north, and colored agriculturists in particular need instruction in the rudimentary process of scientific farming. They need to grow more corn for their own use, so they will cease depending on the north and they will still have a vast amount to learn in dairying and in the production of poultry and eggs."

Clovis, New Mexico, is the New Santa Fe Division Townsite, Situated Nine Miles West of Texico, New Mexico, on the Belen Cut-Off

The surface of the land on which the townsite is located is level. Clovis is situated in the best portion of the level plains country and is in the center of the best dry farming and stock raising section of Eastern New Mexico. All this land is settled upon by homesteaders who are improving their land. The Santa Fe Land Improvement Company have 213,000 acres of railroad scrip land, commencing five miles north of Clovis, New Mexico, which is considered the finest farming land in Eastern New Mexico. This land will shortly be open to homeseekers and sold in small tracts on terms to suit purchaser. The country around Clovis, New Mexico, will command trade for fifty miles to the north, thirty miles to the east, twenty miles to the south and twenty-eight miles to the west. There is a settler on every 160 acres, which assures its future rapid growth and permanency. Clovis is on the main transcontinental line of the Santa Fe which is called in this territory, the Eastern Railway of New Mexico, or the Belen Cut-off. Clovis will be the division for the main line of the Santa Fe, the Pecos Valley line and the Brownwood Extension, thus making it a Division Point for three distinct lines of the Santa Fe System.

The Pecos Valley tracks will be taken up between Texico, New Mexico, and Cameo, New Mexico, and be moved west eight miles to make Clovis the northern division point of the Pecos Valley line. The Brownwood Extension will be run out of Clovis which will give a through line from California to Galveston, Texas. The Railroad Company has retained 320 acres for railroad purposes and there are extensive machine and car shops being erected at Clovis. Clovis will be the first division point west of Amarillo, Texas, and the Santa Fe have just completed a twenty-one stall concrete roundhouse, graded miles of siding and yards, are erecting a $30,000 concrete two-story depot and a $62,000 two-story Harvey hotel and $40,000 three-story recreation building for railroad employees. The recreation building will have a standard library, pool and billiard halls, swimming pool, auditorium and living rooms for railroad employees. All these buildings are of solid concrete and the latest style of mission architecture. The Company is drilling ten large wells to secure all the water that will be required for railroad purposes, the supply being inexhaustible. The Railroad Company will erect a one-hundred ton ice plant for icing refrigerator and passenger cars.

The concrete coal chutes, costing $42,000, are half completed and are the largest west of the Mississippi river. There are numerous other railroad improvements to be started, but the engineers' reports have not been completed and we cannot give data on the same. As soon as the Belen Cut-off and connecting lines of Clovis are completed, the Company will put all of its extra California fast passenger, freight and perishable fruit traffic on this line, which will be the shortest between Chicago and Southern California and Galveston, Texas, and New Orleans, Louisiana, and Southern California. It will also carry all the Pacific and Oriental mail which is now being largely handled by the Rock Island and Southern Pacific.

Clovis has two national banks with $25,000 and $35,000 capital, respectively. There is a water, electric light and ice company located in Clovis, owned and controlled by railroad officials, with equipment now in operation. A complete telephone system is in operation connecting with all adjacent towns and the long distance lines. There are thirty-five business houses, six hotels and rooming houses, four lumber yards, three livery stables, cold storage and other buildings already erected. Clovis has nearly eleven hundred population, is four months old and growing very fast. If you are looking for a business location or a new town for investments, look the situation over at Clovis. The lots being offered for sale are all residence lots and can be purchased at from $70 to $90 per lot, one-half down, the balance in six months at 8 per cent interest. On all sales over $500 10 per cent discount is allowed. On all cash sales, 10 per cent discount allowed. Clovis will make a city of ten thousand in a few years. This is the best proposition ever offered in New Mexico for small investors and now is the time to purchase these lots, as the prices will double within six months' time.

WOOL TRADE DAILY CURTAILED

Boston, Mass., Nov. 25.—Trade in wool during the past week has been curtailed by the financial stringency. Scarcity of money and uncertainty as to the future have been responsible for holding up several good-sized trades that have been under inspection and exhaustive tests. These hold-ups are probably but temporary, and the cause is not directly the necessity for ready money, but rather that the prospective buyers are not certain that there will be a market for the product of the wool a few weeks or a few months hence, and even if they were successful in finding a market there is an uncertainty as to the ability of the purchaser to promptly pay for the goods, says the Wool and Cotton Reporter.

Trade in all grades of wool has been of a hand-to-mouth character, no one seeming to have the courage to branch out on account of the uncertainty of the future. The present is giving no particular worry except as the pessimistic view of altogether too many people influence the trade in the direction of unusual conservatism. Any assurance that conditions would be no worse six weeks or eight months hence would be the sign of a liberal purchasing of wools, and Boston dealers have supplies in their warehouses, but through lack of courage and uncertainty as to future financial conditions they refrain from buying at the moment, except in such piecemeal quantities as will enable them to keep along from week to week. No stock is accumulating in mills, and this fact is a strengthening feature in the wool trade, notwithstanding the light trading of the past few weeks.

FINANCE AND COMMERCE

New York, Nov. 25.—The stock market showed no disposition at any time today to follow up the advance of Saturday. The movement seemed to be considered ill-advised on second thought on the ground that a resumption of an active advance in stocks would be premature before the banking operations of the country have been restored to normal. An early resumption of cash payments by the banks all over the country is now looked for with growing confidence, but the conditions which this resumption may disclose are awaited before seeking to enter on speculative commitments. There was a renewal also of some of the urgent liquidations in special stocks which was such an unsettling factor in the whole market last week. The selling out of loans was the accepted explanation of the weakness, which was especially pronounced in Missouri Pacific. It was thought that the weakness of this stock might owe something also to the change in personal relationships involved in the working out of contests for control of related railroad properties. Dividend possibilities also came inevitably into the question of the wide decline in that stock. The whole flat of railroad stocks was more or less affected by this consideration, which was given weight by the contents of the regular weekly reports from railroad traffic officials. These were quite uniform in the admission of arrears of railroad traffic were worked off or being rapidly cleared up and that idle freight cars were accumulating. Published estimates of the extent to which working forces had been cut down in London and enterprise made a formidable showing and coupled with the heavy outward tide of returning foreigners pointing to the same conclusion had a depressing effect on sentiment. On the other side of the account was a strong advance in copper, both in London and New York. Attention was attracted also by reports of the large number of revocations of orders in various lines of wholesale trade. This was regarded as significant of the extent to which the first forces had been cut down in industrial enterprises, which made a formidable showing and coupled with the heavy outward tide of returning foreigners pointing to the same conclusion had a depressing effect on sentiment.
