WRECKED MINES STILL YIELD ITS VICTIMS

SEVENTY-EIGHT BODIES
RECOVERED AT MONOGAH

Rescue Work Progressing Slowly Because of Danger of Fresh Explosions in Underground Chambers.

(By Morning Journal Special Lensed Wire.)
Monogah, W. V., Dec. 9.—At 11 o'clock tonight a total of seventy-eight bodies had been brought from the two wrecked mines at Monogah. Rescue work while slow was progressing as rapidly as was precaution for the rescuers would permit. It is believed close on to a hundred of the dead will have been recovered by daylight tomorrow.

The fourth day was a repetition of its three predecessors in the matter of pathetic scenes. Hundreds of women remained near the mines all day screaming and crying until they almost collapsed. The bodies of the dead were held today and at all most distressing scenes were witnessed.

Conditions around the mines tonight are worse than any time since the explosion. They are so bad, in fact, that the crowds have dispersed and only a few stragglers are now keeping the gruesome vigil. A mild temperature resulted in a thaw which converted the soil near the entrance into a sticky, dirty mortar, and soon after darkness fell, rain set in and has been almost incessant ever since. The mud is now almost knee deep in places. The rain has also interrupted the make shift telephone and telegraph communication between the mines, this city and the outside world.

EFFORT TO CHECK HEAVY LOSS OF CATTLE

GOVERNMENT PLANS
GREAT CHANGE ON RANGE

Lesson Learned From the Better Conditions Prevailing in the Canadian Northwest.

Chicago, Dec. 8.—"Maybe" those range steers bawling out there in the feed lots would just hate all this warmth and light and band music," drawled a Texas ranchman at the live stock show. He waved his hand inclusively about the amphitheater. "Best critters from the range always have got a bum deal, ever since we began getting in this expensive breeding stock. Plenty of snow and north wind for them in winter—bawled for hours in crowded cars without water—only to get knocked in the head without a smell of high life like this." Out in the cold and snow there were 15,000 tired steers waiting their turn up the runway to the amphitheater. Seemingly no Thanksgiving or Christmas or New Year's brings to the millions of range cattle cause for rejoicing.

And yet, if they did but know it, the millions of suffering steers upon these range lands would cause for a celebration this year, for at last they have found a friend. Alarmed at the frightful loss and suffering during severe winters, the United States government has intervened on behalf of the range cattle and is moving thousands of government troops to bring about better conditions for the live stock which form such a large item in America's annual bill of fare.

Found up with the government's tardy action is the story of the discovery of an $800,000,000 leak in the nation's wealth, of a lesson learned from Canada and of conditions on the range that beggar belief.

For years reports have poured in to the department of agriculture of the suffering and wholesale deaths of cattle left to winter on the range with no other food than the grass that the snow did not cover and no shelter—but many new line fences. Each year the report was worse, and finally, not long ago, the department sent an agent to investigate, and to suggest possible remedies.

The situation he found was frightful. In the last year for which figures are available, 2,687,927 cattle died from all causes, over half of them succumbing from exposure. Over 1,000,000 sheep died from exposure and another million from other causes. Hundreds of thousands of sheep and steers are left to their own devices every winter, when snow and ice cover the grass of the plains (the only fodder for the cattle) and after frantic, futile efforts made by the cattle to penetrate the crusts of ice, with lips and noses torn to the bone and blood freezing in their veins, they mutely surrender to their fate.

This is awful, were it unavoidable, but, according to the report, the most awful part of it need not be. It is not a matter of life or death, but of money. No attempt is made to provide food, water and shelter for the stock, it being calculated that a large percentage of the stock will be lost if the winter be severe and that if there is no expenditure for food, the cattle being made to subsist on the grass of the plains, even a heavy loss of cattle by cold and starvation may be sustained and still leave a profit to the cattle raiser.

The financial loss incurred each year in this way is estimated at no less than $24,000,000. Thousands of frozen carcasses can be seen any spring lying in snow drifts or leaning against the endless fences of the railroad right of way.

Now the "free range" is no more. Yet the range methods persist. No fodder or shelter is provided in a majority of cases and the average rancher expects to find a loss of 50 to 75 per cent of his stock at the end of a severe winter.

The full significance to the wealth of the country of this reckless waste of animal life is only disclosed by a careful examination of recent government figures of the value of cattle. The story they tell is startling.

On January 1, 1907, there were 51,365,731 cattle in the United States, exclusive of milk cows. This was the largest number in the history of the country. The value of these cattle was estimated at $881,557,398. In spite of the size of this figure it is more than $25,000,000 less than the total value in 1901, when there were six million less cattle. In other words, the hardships and losses due to the range winters have not only retarded the growth of the number of cattle in the country, but they have also caused a marked deterioration in the quality of the survivors.

On the basis of the government figures the average value of the cattle of the country on January 1, 1901, was a trifle under $12. If there is no later, on January 1, 1907, the average value had been fenced in and grazed out, the average value was a little over $16, or a depreciation of nearly 50 per cent. As we see, this loss is absolute as well as relative, and the country's cattle are not worth today the price of the smaller herds of six years ago. On the basis of the 1901 values the farmers and stockmen of the country ought at this moment to be richer than they are by $800,000,000. Clearly it is up to Uncle Sam to find some means of putting a stop to this enormous depreciation.

In their first search for a solution of the problem, the government experts turned to Canada, to discover, if possible, how conditions had been met there. Curiously enough, they found the situation entirely different, owing to milder winters and richer forage for the steers.

In Alberta, the coming stock growing province, the warm "chinook" winds, blowing up from the lower Columbia river, lick up the snow and make a season of bright, cloudless days, with occasional scanty snowfalls, broken by frequent and prolonged periods of warm weather. Sometimes the temperature drops very low, but seldom dangerously so, and, anomalously, the average is considerably above the average further south. This cuts down the suffering and loss of live stock to a marked degree.

The problem for the Canadian stock grower is also simplified by the fact that Canadian cattle are free from that other curse of the range, Texas fever, which alone caused a loss of $48,000,000 to $100,000,000 in the United States in 1906. Alberta in particular, owing to its location in the northern latitude, is free from the ravages of injurious insects of all sorts, one of which is responsible for the deadly Texas fever.

But the day of the free range is over in Alberta. The high altitude produces a strong-lunged, hardy breed of cattle with enormous feeding capacity.

Here, if anywhere, the cattle have reason to be thankful, and might be expected to celebrate Christmas if some idea of the meaning of the day should penetrate their dumb intelligence. For, when the stockmen in the states, the ranchers of Alberta have avoided the mistake of overcrowding, which leads to overgrazing, failure of grass and starvation. They have learned the lesson that their own department of agriculture is trying to inculcate, of the enormous profit that is to be made by raising smaller herds of better stock. The results are already evident in the increased shipments to Chicago.

The other day a Missouri short-horn man was at the Chicago stockyards viewing the sea of horns that made up that day's delegation from the northwest. One shipment he noticed in particular, composed of heavy full-fed steers that averaged 1,400 pounds or over.

"I reckon you're from Dakota, stranger," said the Missourian to one of the men who were with the cattle. "No, sir, we're from Alberta," was the patriotic response.

The Missourian was nonplussed. "Stranger, you've got me," he said. "That state ain't on the map."

Definitely the Canadian produced a map and indicated a point midway between Calgary and Edmonton.

"Stranger, you're a long way from home, but if those are grass cattle you've got good grass up there, and what's more, you know how to make cattle."

This is merely one of the incidents that give color to the daily life of the great stockyards, but it is an incident of significance, for Red Deer from which the cattle came, is so far north that in the old school geographies it used to be included in the great white blank that stretched in unbroken desolation to the Arctic ocean. This land now proves to be covered with rich, nourishing grasses, so that it is possible to raise cattle and ship them as far south as Chicago and still sell them at a profit in competition with other steers.

The Canadian Pacific Railway company has orders for 1,500 cars for the shipment of cattle during the month of November alone, making this month's stock shipments the largest in the history of the country. An idea of the quality of the range bred cattle in some of these shipments can be had by noting the prices they brought. A top load recently averaged 1,390 pounds, and sold at $6.10 per cwt. gross, averaging $55.18 per head. A second load, averaging 1,274 pounds, was put over at $5.50, grossing $75.57 and the third load, averaging 1,254 pounds at $5.30, grossing $85.00. The fourth cut, 64 head, averaging 1,159 pounds, sold at $5.40, grossing $53.34. Some medium weight cows averaged $40 at $5.60 per head.

Red Deer is the most northerly point from which cattle have ever been shipped to Chicago as yet, but representatives of Swift company in Alberta predict that the Peace river region lying away to the north of the Saskatchewan valley will within the next decade be the center of an important range cattle industry.

To other words, Canada has no such livestock problem as there is in the United States and the question now before Uncle Sam is whether our western range can be put on an equal footing with that of Alberta, by mitigating the effects of our severe winters.

AWFUL WARNING TO THE OSCULATORS

(Phoenix Gazette.)

A far more dire calamity than the financial stringency is hanging over this unprotected and innocent country of ours, if the words of London medical authorities may be believed.

To be short, terse and to the point, this is due to the unchecked indulgence in kissing.

Pyrothia Alveolaris is particularly noticeable in young people, and there may be dozens suffering from it right now in Phoenix. The horror of it is that it is insidious. At first only a slight loosening of the molars is noticed, then they drop out one by one, the lips draw back, the cheeks sink in, and the poor victim is left a horrible example of one who loved not wisely but too well.

Farewell to cozy corners, secluded conservatory nooks, sentimental twilight and the fire's flickering glow. Young folks may cool all they want to, but the moment they begin to kiss it is all off, for the touch of soft lips may bring on this dental monster that is worse than elephantiasis or the pips.

We hate to break up the social season this early in the game, but, standing on the watchtower, it is our duty to sound a note of warning ere it is everlasting too late.

MODEL FARM FOR THIS WOMAN FINDS EXPERIMENTS WITH THE SUGAR BEET

THINKS SUCCULENT VEGETABLE IS A MINT
Most Profitable Industry That Can Ever Be Started in the Rio Grande Valley, Says Beet Sugar Man

"I have read with great interest the Morning Journal on beet culture," said Carl B. Stow, secretary of the Business Men's association, of 203 1/2 East Central avenue, yesterday. Mr. Stow recently came here from the Big Horn basin country of Wyoming, where he was engaged in promoting the beet sugar industry. Mr. Stow is thoroughly familiar with the subject of raising sugar beets and manufacturing the sugar and his opinion is valuable.

"The development of this industry is of the greatest importance to every business interest in Albuquerque," continued Mr. Stow. "The irrigated land in the vicinity of Albuquerque will some day be divided into small farms of 10, 20, 40 and 80 acres each, but this will not be done until beet culture has become the leading industry. The raising of sugar beets is one of the most profitable and safest industries in the arid region, and they can be successfully raised in any locality where alfalfa grows, providing there is an abundance of sunshine and the grower has absolute control of the water supply. This is essential to the successful raising of sugar beets, it behooves every resident of this valley to do all in his power to encourage the raising of this crop and to make a splendid showing next season. Not only must beet culture be made the leading industry by the farmers of this valley, but diversified farming with an understanding of the proper methods of rotating the crops, are essential to the success of the development of the agricultural possibilities of the country.

"The art of scientific farming and proper diversity of crops should be taught to the farmers of this valley, for the raising of but one kind of crop, or the growing of several crops when not properly rotated, will result unprofitably. Land continually cropped in alfalfa that produces five tons to the acre each season will not increase the value of the farm, for the reason that its value is based upon the amount received from the sale of crops; but the same farm, handled in a scientific manner by properly rotating alfalfa, sugar beets and grain and the feeding of sheep, will nearly double its producing value.

"The establishing of a model farm near this city under the management of some person familiar with scientific farming by irrigation would make a splendid school of instruction for the farmers, and be of great help to the colonization of the land in this valley. The model farm would also be an experiment station where all kinds of agricultural and horticultural products could be raised, and the results of the experiments given to the farmers who would find to be best adapted to this locality.

"If forty acres of good alfalfa land could be purchased by the business men of Albuquerque and a model farm and the farm put under the management of a good man, the sale of pure bred seeds and plants from the place would pay a splendid price to all who contributed towards the establishment of the enterprise. Besides, a model farm and experiment station of this agricultural possibilities of this valley, than any other place in the state, and pure bred seeds and plants to the farmers will result in every man receiving more than double the present yield of all crops raised."

VALUABLE WORK IN LITERATURE OF NEW MEXICO

University Publishes Interesting Study of Famous Spanish Play "Los Comanches" By Prof. Espinosa.

One of the most valuable and certainly one of the most interesting contributions to the literature and history of New Mexico is found in Bulletin No. 45 of the University of New Mexico, just from the press of The Morning Journal.

This bulletin is devoted to a critical study of "Los Comanches," the famous Spanish play of which several manuscripts exist in New Mexico at the present time, one of which is in the possession of Mr. Amado Chavez of this city. The study of the play, the interesting preface and historical notes are by Professor Aurelio M. Espinosa, A. M., professor of Romance languages in the university, whose work in the Spanish has already gained him national reputation among students of the Romance languages. The edition of "Los Comanches" prepared by him, is the first time the work has been reduced to printed form. Professor Espinosa's preface and his introduction in which he deals exhaustively with the history and conditions surrounding the writing of the manuscript makes this bulletin a most valuable contribution to the history and the literature of the territory. It is a work in which every student of the southwestern history cannot be without. The subject is treated in a most attractive way and Mr. Espinosa's preface and introduction are of absorbing interest even to one who has no intimate knowledge of the history or the literature into which he is delving. The work is of the kind which will be of permanent value not only to the university and the territory, but to the literature of the nation and Professor Espinosa's future work will be looked forward to with a great deal of interest. That the University of New Mexico has reached the stage at which it can take up research work of this kind speaks much for its development.

LIFE IS NOT ALL JOY

CAN'T UNDERSTAND PLACE WHERE WATER COSTS COIN
Writes to Albuquerque Grocery House to Find Out If Groceries Cost Real Money Here—And Other Things.

The fame of Albuquerque and her business houses and her low prices is spreading abroad, through the medium of the growing circulation of the Morning Journal.

This is one fact of interest. Another as pointed out by Walter Jaffa, of the Jaffa Grocery company, is that there are places in the sunny southwest where conditions aren't as happy as they are in Albuquerque, and people who are not as comfortably fixed for the winter as they might be.

All this is superinduced by the letter which the Jaffa Grocery company received yesterday from a town over beyond the Texas border, written because the woman who wrote it had seen the advertisement of the Jaffa Grocery company in the Morning Journal. The letter illustrates several things and if it didn't interest on its own account, it follows: To the Jaffa Grocery company, Albuquerque, N. M.

Some one handed my husband some newspapers, the Albuquerque Morning Journal. We have just moved here from Nelson, Nebraska, have been here just a month; I think it is a beautiful country, but it is the dearest place I ever lived. Everything is so high here and I don't know yet whether or we will locate here or not. We have to buy water. That is something I never heard of before. We live in a little shanty and pay ten dollars a month for it and you can throw a small dog out at the cracks. The climate is fine and this town is on a boom but we pay double here for everything to what we did in Nebraska. But it was cold there. We wanted to get in a warmer climate. Well, the first thing is, do you send out if you don't, perhaps you have a list of your groceries and can send me one of them. I want to order my groceries if I can't get them of you. I have got them from Kansas City. I cannot buy them here now; will it be asking too much of you to write to me if there is any timber there not any here. What is house rent and if people buy water there. Of course we won't rent anywhere long but we want to be satisfied before buying. Then follow considerable detail as to the members of the family, wages, societies, schools and many other details, the letter closing with another appeal for a price list of groceries. The Jaffa company proposes to supply this demand.

San Jose Mkt CONVENTION HALL COMMITTEE NAMED

NINE BUSINESS MEN IN CHARGE OF THE WORK

Instructed With the Important Duty of Finding Means to Give Albuquerque the Right Building At Once.

The convention hall is on the way. Albuquerque has to have it and Albuquerque is going to get it. Everybody is agreed of the necessity, and this being recognized, everybody agrees that the sooner it is off the mind of the municipality, the sooner will we be able to do something else worth doing.

This is the attitude found everywhere in Albuquerque business circles, and which resulted yesterday in the appointment of a joint committee of nine members who are entrusted with the work of devising and supplying ways and means to so enlarge the proposed armory as to make it adequate not only for the irrigation congress convention but for all other conventions of national importance which may be secured for Albuquerque in the future. The committee is composed of three members of the Commercial club, three from the board of control of the irrigation congress and three from the territorial fair management, as follows:

From the club—Mayor Frank McKee, R. H. Collier, cashier of the State National bank; W. S. Strickler, vice president of the Bank of Commerce.

From the board of control—Hon. O. N. Marron, Berthold Spitz, of B. H. H. and company; D. A. Maupherson, of the Morning Journal.

From the territorial fair—M. L. Stern, Stern, Sions & Co.; J. H. O'Reilly, manager of the Occidental Life Insurance company; Attorney Felix H. Lester.

First Meeting This Afternoon.

The first meeting of this joint committee is to be held this afternoon at 4 o'clock in the parlors of the Commercial club, and each and every member is urgently requested to be present.

Very Fastidious.

The new gold coins have reached Phoenix at last. We do not like the way to be the forerunner of the government, but the new coinage is a fright. If it were precipitated upon the public in any other circumstances—say when money was more plentiful, criticism would be harsher.—Phoenix Republic.

ALBUQUERQUE — NEW MEXICO

WE MUST MEND OUR WAYS.

Since the memory of man runneth not to the contrary, we have had road supervisors in New Mexico—one to each civil precinct—and likewise the memory of man runneth not to the time when any of these numerous supervisors ever did anything toward the making or mending of any road, unless it might possibly have been immediately in front of his own door.
And even in that case the testimony would have to be unusually substantial to have any effect upon the public more than the provoking of a smile. The plain truth is, we have never had any country roads, but the time has now come when we must turn over a new leaf.

We believe the last legislature changed the law on this subject, so as to make it provide for a road supervisor, or overseer, from each county commissioner district, instead of from each precinct, thus putting under charge of that official enough public business to make it an object for him to attend to it, and fixing his compensation at three dollars a day for the time he works, so as to warrant him in giving the necessary attention to it. The law as it stands seems to be able to meet the emergency, and as every man in the district under forty-five years of age, is obliged to work a certain number of days each year on the roads, or furnish a substitute, the necessary labor would seem to be at hand, so that all that is necessary now to give us some passable roads in the county, is to appoint the supervisors, and let them call out the people and go to work.

And this should be done without any further delay. The National Iri-gation congress will meet here next summer, and all the members will want to drive around more or less to see what the adjacent country looks like—and what sort of an impression of us would they carry home with them if we should drag them over such apologies for roads as we have now? Here is a center of population over two hundred years old, and not a mile of improved road anywhere in the whole region. Persons coming from places where the country roads leading in all directions are kept in fully as good order as our city streets, would certainly not be very favorably impressed by an exhibition showing such a great want of enterprise and public spirit, not to say civilization.

Then let us "get a move" on ourselves and do something before the company comes. It is a work that does not call for any capital, and requires only a little American public spirit. During the spring and summer the country people are busy with their crops and their duties, but at this time of the year they have plenty of leisure, and this is just the time for the work to be done.

A CROP FOR THE DESERT.

A certain Dr. Landone, of Los Angeles, has undertaken to submit for three weeks upon the edible cactus which has been denatured—or, more strictly speaking, despoiled—by Lau-terburk, and widespread interest in the result of the experiment has been aroused throughout the country. In this instance, the Kansas City Journal says, there has been a reversal of the usual form of scientific experiment, for instead of "trying it on the dog," Dr. Landone is testing the nutritive value of the spineless cactus by experiments on himself in order to demonstrate its worth as a food for cattle. Ordinarily, new things are fed to the gatekeepers and rabbits first, and, if they survive, human beings are then given a turn.

It is announced that Dr. Landone is in no sense a nature faker or food faddist. He is not eating the cactus because he likes it better than beef-steak and charlotte russe. If he were pinned down to it, he would willingly admit that he would rather have a good old-fashioned Irish stew or New England dinner. But in the interests of science he is putting those succumbent temptations behind him, and is putting the cactus inside him.

TWO DELEGATES—OR MORE.

The call for the next republican national convention has been prepared and issued by the national committee, and was printed in full in the columns of the Morning Journal yesterday. In the matter of appointing delegates to the convention, the call says:

"Said national convention shall consist of four delegates at large in congress; two delegates from each congressional district, and two from the territories of Arizona, New Mexico, Hawaii, the delegates from the District of Columbia and two each from Alaska, Porto Rico and the Philippine islands."

The same language has sometimes been used in other calls, but when six delegates from each territory have presented themselves, the secretary of the committee has put the names of all of them upon the roll, and for that reason the territories have come to regard themselves as entitled to six. As a matter of fact, however, a territory, which can not vote for president, is not really entitled to any vote in the nominating convention, and its delegates have been admitted merely as a matter of suzerainty, or courtesy, on the part of the states which have to do the voting. The admission, however, has grown to be so common that the delegation of six has come to be regarded as a matter of course, and Mr. Luna, knowing that six have commonly been admitted when but two were apportioned, assumes that the same practice will obtain this year, and said in reply to a telegram of inquiry from the Morning Journal, in regard to the matter:

"The call is as in former years.
Territories two delegates. But it is understood that New Mexico and Arizona send six delegates each, who will be seated."
But we fear that Mr. Luna is mistaken. True, the call is the same as in some former years, to the extent of giving the territory only two delegates, and then when the six presented themselves the secretary of the committee allowed the matter to pass, by default, and put all their names on the roll. But it will be observed that the present call has a special clause providing specifically against such cases, which says:

"In any case where more than the authorized number of delegates from any state, territory or delegate district are reported to the secretary of the national committee, a contest shall be deemed to exist and the secretary shall notify the several delegates so reported and shall submit all such credentials and claims to the whole committee for decision as to which delegate reported shall be qualified in the temporary roll of the convention."

DISCOURAGING—IF TRUE.

The Washington correspondent of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, who usually "gets there" in the matter of the news, sends his paper a report of the statehood situation which is not at all encouraging. He says, in effect, that the party leaders at the capital have determined that there shall not be any statehood legislation by the present congress, and that it is understood at the same time, that the republican party will not favor the admission of any more new states until after the census of 1910. If that report is well founded, the party leaders have made up their minds to let us rest as comfortably as we can on the shelf for the next three years.

"Fore warned is fore armed," and the more opposition there is to obdurate to statehood the harder we must work for it. In this struggle there must be no such word as fail.
In the vocabulary of New Mexico, it is not at all strange that the putting forward of our liberties and our honor, as our "leading citizens," should create more or less disgust in the minds of respectable people who would otherwise befriend us, but that doesn't mean that we should give up the struggle. On the other hand, it means that we should put forth still greater effort to show the world that such men have been forced upon us, that they do not in any sense represent the decent citizenship of New Mexico, and that the people of this territory will know them "higher than Gilead's kite," as soon as they can get a whack at them at the ballot box. It is mainly on account of the disreputable specimens that have been put on exhibition at the national capital that public opinion in the east is loath to endorse our application for admission to the family of states, and that only means that we must fight all the harder to show the world that it does the people of this territory gross wrong to hold them responsible for such an exhibit. The very strongest reason our people have for desiring statehood is that it will give them the power to redeem the good name of New Mexico from the disgrace that has thus been put upon it.

Speaking of Mr. Forsaker's candidacy, as announced by him a few days ago, the New York Tribune
says:

Mr. Forsaker, in voting against the Hebrew law, broke with all his republican colleagues in the senate and all his associates in the Ohio delegation in congress, ignored the formal request of the Ohio legislature and tax counter to the wishes of the great majority of the republicans of Ohio and of the people of Ohio without respect to party. His present whether it wants to re-elect him or not, and it is entirely credible on his part that he purposes to stand or fall on his record and offers to submit to the voters the issue raised by his continued opposition to the administration and its policies. His campaign will be a wholesome test of public sentiment and throw much light on the claims made both by his defenders and by his critics.

The Philadelphia Record hears that the unavoidable William J. Bryan met with a warm reception on his appearance in the house at the opening of congress. But by all accounts the reception savored less of enthusiasm on the part of the democratic members than of a Christian spirit of resignation.

ALBUQUERQUE WOOL CENTER

WOOL SCOURING MILLS TO DOUBLE CAPACITY

Albuquerque Men Purchase Plant of Tucumcari Scouring Mills Which is Now On Way to This City.

If there has ever been any doubt that Albuquerque is the center of New Mexico's great wool industry, it is removed by the announcement made last night by Mr. J. M. Wilkinson of the Albuquerque Wool Scouring Mills, that that establishment proposes to at once double the present capacity of its scouring plant in this city which during the present year is handling more than six million five hundred thousand pounds of wool.

The Albuquerque Wool Scouring Mills have purchased the entire scouring plant of the Tucumcari Scouring Mills, which is now being packed at Tucumcari for shipment to Albuquerque. To accommodate this new machinery, which exactly doubles the capacity of the present mills, a new building of the same size as the present mill will be erected, the ground for the building to be broken in March, so that the new plant will be ready for business by the beginning of the scouring season of 1908.

There is a good deal of significance in this announcement. Thus far there have been two big scouring mills in New Mexico, which have handled practically the entire clip of New Mexico and much of the Arizona clip. The announcement means that there will be but one scouring plant in the territory, and that one at Albuquerque. It means that Albuquerque becomes the center of the wool industry in the southwest.

The Albuquerque mills purchased the Tucumcari mills from Brown & Adams, of Boston, principal owners of the property.

During the season of 1906 the Albuquerque mills handled more than 5,000,000 pounds of wool. This season this was increased to more than six and a half millions, so that the capacity of the plant has been seriously taxed. Enlargement was imperative and the Albuquerque men have met the demand. The Albuquerque mills are employing this season eighty-five people, all of whom make their homes here. The doubling of the plant means more than double this pay roll. It means that by the next scouring season the wool mills will be one of the largest industries in the city, and in New Mexico.

"Our chief trouble," said Mr. Wilkinson last night in discussing the enlargement, "is with the sewerage. When you consider that in scouring six and a half million pounds of the tremendous amount of dirt we have to handle, you can see what we are up against. It is necessary for us to use six or seven sets of sewerage before the water goes into the sewers, and this means a very heavy expense. Our greatest need now is for proper sewerage facilities, and this need will become very pressing as we double the capacity which we will have by next season. We will be able to take care of it but a modern sewer system is a pressing need with us."

SEA GOING PULMAN ON FLORIDA EAST COAST ROAD

CONNECTING CUBA WITH UNCLE SAM'S LAND BY RAIL

Wonderful Railroad Uses Road-bed Which Coral Insects Began Building Hundred Thousand Years Ago.

(Special Correspondence Morning Journal.) New York, Dec. 9.—In the early days of next January it will be possible for the first time for Americans to make an ocean journey by rail. From a comfortable seat in a parlor car the traveler will be able to look out on one side across the rolling billows of the Atlantic and on the other side over the blue waters of the Gulf of Florida, the two connecting directly beneath the tracks which support his train. The tracks themselves will be invisible, of course, so he can enjoy the novel sensation of going to sea by train.

Here and there the voyager by ocean railway will cross diminutive coral keys and at intervals he will traverse larger islets through groves of tangled palms. He will be set down at length on Knight's Key, the southernmost point in the United States, reached by rail and the temporary terminus of the only seafaring railroad ever built. There he may step aboard a fast steamer and in a few hours later land in Havana, having traveled all but 115 miles of the distance from his starting point by train.

The effect, so far as the traveler is concerned, will be the same as if a wonder-working genie should pick up the Pearl of the Antilles and move it a hundred miles nearer to the United States. The journey to Cuba from New York or Chicago or any point in the eastern half of the country will be shortened in point of time nearly one-third. Leaving New York on any wintry evening the traveler will be able on the second afternoon to step ashore in the Cuban capital, having made the entire trip in less than forty-eight hours.

This will be made possible by the opening to traffic of a section of the "railroad at sea" that Henry M. Flagler has been pushing out over land and sea along the thickly dotted line of coral islands that curves from the Florida mainland southwest to Key West. When work was begun, about two years ago, it was announced that trains would be running in three years, but so rapidly has construction gone forward that already more than two-thirds of the distance has been covered, and the line is almost ready to be opened for more than 100 of the 154 miles of its projected length.

The building of this remarkable ocean highway is regarded by Mr. Flagler as the crowning achievement of the great development he has been carrying on in Florida. Though he has long been prominent in the state's industrial enterprises, Mr. Flagler's real work—or, at least, that in which he takes the keenest interest—has been transforming the eastern half of Florida from a barren waste of sand into a thriving industrial section and the winter playground of the country's only counterpart in the United States of the far-famed Riviera of Europe. Though sometimes spoken of as a hobby, his development of Ponce de Leon's land of perpetual youth has been conducted as a business enterprise, pure and simple.

According to Mr. Flagler, himself, the scheme of carrying his railroad line out across the coral islands to Key West and of conveying his trains from there by rapid car ferries directly to the Cuban capital, first took tangible shape in his mind during the Spanish war. At that time the certainty of closer political and trade relations between this country and Cuba became evident, as did the commercial and strategic importance of some means of quickly reaching the island republic from the United States. The dream grew in Mr. Flagler's mind and he directed that a survey be made by engineers to determine whether such a road as he imagined could be constructed. When the voluminous reports, estimates, drawings and blue prints of the engineers were submitted, Mr. Flagler declared that the project was feasible. "I want to know," said Mr. Flagler, "whether the road is to be built or not."

"Yes, it can," replied Mr. Parrott. "Then go ahead and build it," Mr. Flagler directed.

That was in 1905. Since then the dirt has been flying ceaselessly. Immense pile drivers have been sinking foundations, huge dredges have been sucking up sand from the bottom of the sea to construct a road bed, and an army of between 5,000 and 4,000 men has been pushing its way steadily southward from Miami out over the waves and the tiny islands towards Key West.

There was no precedent in the history of railway construction for the building of this sort of a road. Consequently the difficulties were many and the triumph to be won was great. In the first place, it was necessary to assemble a veritable navy, including steamboats, tugs, lighters, hundreds of barges and bauxites, launches, floating derricks, pumps, pile drivers and repair shops, for since this was to be a railroad at sea, sea craft had to be utilized chiefly in its construction. The Florida keys traversed by the line are mostly uninhabited and afforded neither shelter nor support for the army of men employed. It was necessary to establish camps, transport supplies, build hospitals for the sick, and establish reading and club rooms in which the workers could find relaxation from the monotony of their isolated lives. In some cases big house-boats or floating dormitories were anchored in protected spots to serve as living quarters. Even the drinking water must be transported in huge tanks on barges a distance of a hundred miles or more.

Nearly all the building materials, including the ingredients of the concrete, the timber for piling, the heavy steel for abutments and the crushed stone for the rip-rap work put in as a protection against the action of the waves, were brought to the points where the work was being done by tugs and steamers. Only the ballast or filling for the roadbed was secured on the spot. On the various islands the material was crushed by rolling and breaking up the coral rock, which makes a bed of gleaming white. Where the line crosses over water filling was obtained by the use of huge pumps which sucked up sand from the bottom and dropped it into the pit. Thus the engineers forced Old Ocean to yield not only the right of way, but as well, part of the construction material.

CLAYTON SWEEP BY DISASTROUS FIRE
Bank, Restaurant, Two Stores and Saloon Destroyed for Loss of $100,000.

Clayton, N. M., Dec. 9.—Fire Saturday night destroyed the First National bank building, a restaurant and two stores and a saloon, and for a time seriously threatened the business section of the town. The fire originated in the restaurant, which was located in the block adjoining that in which the other burned buildings stood. The bank is opened for business this morning in temporary quarters.

WASHING WITHOUT WATER.
Is Like Trying to Get Rid of Dandruff Without Herpicide.
Did you ever see any one trying to wash themselves without soap or water?
If you did what would you say of him?
It is every bit as foolish to try to get rid of dandruff and to prevent hairiness by feeding the germ which cause it, with Cantharides, Vaseline, olive oil and similar substances which form the principal ingredients of most so-called Hair Growers.
Newbro's Herpicide is successful because it attacks and kills the parasitic germ which feeds on the hair roots.
It is the original and only genuine scalp germicide manufactured.
Sold by leading druggists. Send 15c in stamps for sample in the Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich. Two sizes, 5c and $1.00. B. H. Briggs & Co., special agents.

The United States grand jury has brought in indictments against A. B. Hardin, one of the richest cattle owners of Humboldt county, Nev., for the illegal fencing of government lands. An indictment was also brought in for the same offense against C. W. Riley, a heavy land owner of the same county.

ESTANCIA VALLEY IS FLOURISHING.

"I have just returned from a short stay in the Estancia valley," said Professor Tinsley to a Morning Journal representative yesterday. "and I find conditions there to be extremely favorable; much more satisfactory, in fact, than could have been hoped for at the beginning of the season. Rain has been abundant and the soil is in good condition. Some of the crops planted by the newcomers are not the ones best adapted to the soil of that part of New Mexico, but these crops are doing well, nevertheless, and the results in potatoes and vegetables of all kinds are surprising."

"It is an interesting and very significant fact that more than 4,000 acres of wheat have been planted in the Estancia valley this fall. This does not represent a single large establishment or series of large plantations, for not a single lot includes more than sixty acres. But the wheat is scattered from one end of the valley to the other, and when it is considered that the lots are all under sixty acres, it is easy to see how many farmers it takes to plant four thousand acres. The valley is settling up rapidly. One of the most encouraging signs over there is the steady demand for relinquishments. In this valley, as in every new district where there is a rush for homesteads, there have been speculators who have taken up homesteads with the expectation of selling out. These relinquishments are now being sold rapidly, and there is a steady demand for them. During my stay in the valley a party of twelve farmers came in and was informed that every one of them had bought a relinquishment and proposed to settle."

Will Talk Sugar Beets.
Professor Tinsley was a delegate to the last national irrigation congress in San Francisco, and he was one of the most active delegates in bringing the congress to Albuquerque. During his tour of the county Professor Tinsley will be asked to give particular attention to the sugar beet industry and to talk to the people on the benefits of engaging in beet culture.

EASTERN WOOL MARKET SHOWS IMPROVEMENT

Market Still Quiet, Although Buyers Are Showing More Activity in Boston.

Bradstreet's says of conditions in the Boston wool market:

The market is still quiet, though there has been an improvement in the inquiry from manufacturers, especially those making woolen goods. Many sample books have been let out, some of them resulting in business, while other sales are pending. Manufacturers are still buying only in small lots as actually needed. There are few forced sales, and for the most part these lots are of good grade. The market continues to gain in strength from day to day on the improvement in the financial situation, the easier money markets and the unexpected firmness in foreign markets on good grades of wool. All fine grades have advanced in foreign markets during the week, although low grades are again lower. The purchases this year in Australia for the American account were only about 10,000 bales, against 50,000 bales last year, and this assures holders of domestic wools that all their stocks will be needed before the next crop becomes available. Stocks in local dealers' hands are small, and consist largely of clothing wools, staples having been well cleaned up. One lot of staple sold during the week at 22 cents for a medium grade. Clothing territories sold mostly at 18 to 20 cents by fine medium. Fall Texas is in better demand, a sale being recorded of 150,000 pounds at 20 1/2 cents, with the choice grades in the lot at a higher price. Sales are quiet, though there is a better inquiry for quarter bales.

Muscular Pains Cured.
"During the summer of 1905 I was troubled with muscular pains in the instep of my foot," says Mr. S. Podlar, of Toronto, Ont. "At times it was so painful I could hardly walk. Chamberlain's Pain Balm was recommended to me, so I tried it and was completely cured by one small bottle. I have since recommended it to several of my friends and to whom speak highly of it. For sale by all druggists."

PETBONE HEARING ON TODAY

Attorneys Reach Agreement As to Evidence to Be Admitted Which May Shorten Trial

Boise, Idaho, Dec. 9.—By agreement of attorneys for the state and defense in the Petbone case today the trial was continued until tomorrow morning, when the opening statement for the prosecution will be made by James H. Hawley.

The stipulation was agreed to partially because Senator Borah can not reach the city until tonight, and partially that a stipulation between the state and defense as to certain evidence may be drawn. This stipulation will provide that the testimony on the explosion in the Bradley residence at San Francisco, given at the Haywood trial shall be admitted as evidence in the Petbone trial, and it is understood that the testimony of a number of Colorado witnesses will also be covered in the stipulation. By this procedure the trial will be greatly shortened and the state spared the expense of bringing witnesses from other states.

Finance and the Markets.
Nations about a metropolitan newspaper shows more plainly a high degree of organization than an accurate and comprehensive report of the world's markets. As might be expected, the Record-Herald's coverage of the field in the same satisfactory manner that is characteristic of the paper's entire news service, is also worth in London, what money and stocks are worth in New York, and wheat and the other grains are worth in Chicago, Kansas City, Minneapolis and the other markets and presents in addition accurate information on the events and conditions that determine these values.

The Record-Herald is the only morning paper in Chicago having its own special correspondent cover the New York stock market. George S. Beach's letters report the daily movements of the New York stock and money markets in a way that shows the writer's close association with the men who rule in those affairs in Wall street. Equal attention is devoted to the Chicago stock and financial markets and to the daily movements of prices on the Board of Trade. The "Speculative Gossip" and the notes that record Wall street's LaSalle street happenings, contain many a line that shows a bit of the real "inside" history of the various markets. The Record-Herald makes it a point to cover in full the financial reports of companies and corporations and devotes particular attention to banking interests in Chicago and the west.
