FRIGHTFUL RAILWAY WRECK HAS OCCURRED ON THE ROCK ISLAND

THIRTY KILLED FORTY MORE INJURED BADLY

Head on Collision Because Operator Failed to Hold
One Train.

HE FLED AT ONCE, BUT WAS SINCE CAPTURED

Majority of Killed and Injured Were Mexican Laborers For the Railway Company.

Topeka, Kan., Jan. 2.—Thirty killed and forty others injured, some seriously, is the estimated result of one of the most terrible disasters in the history of the Rock Island railroad, which occurred just before 5 o'clock this morning, about three miles west of Volland, Wabasha county, when westbound train No. 29 and eastbound train No. 30 met in a head on collision. Most of the killed are believed to be Mexican laborers, who were in the smoker of No. 29. The baggage car skidded over the smoker and crushed down through the roof, literally crushing and smashing out the lives of the men who were in it, the majority of whom were Mexican. Fire followed immediately and five cars of No. 29 were consumed by the flames. It is likely that several bodies were incinerated in these cars and it will be a long time before a complete list of the number of dead can be ascertained. No. 30 left El Paso Monday night and was due in Chicago tonight. No. 29 left Chicago at 8:30 Tuesday morning for El Paso and passed through here at 10 o'clock last night. From the reports received it is evident that No. 29 bore the brunt of the disaster, as the cars of No. 30 were not damaged to such an extent as to prevent them being made up into a train and sent west in place of the destroyed No. 2.

Operator Leaves Dramatic Message.
There is no doubt apparently that the calamity is one that must be charged up to human frailty, and the blame for it goes onto the unfortunate shoulders of John Lyness, who was the operator at Volland. Orders had been issued for No. 29 and No. 30 to pass at Volland. These orders had been sent to the operator at Volland. As No. 29 was running ahead of No. 30 as far as time goes, he should have held No. 29 at Volland. These were the last orders he received and he failed to deliver them. His whereabouts are unknown, as he actually fled before the wreck occurred, and in a rather dramatic fashion told in a few words of the impending disaster. About five minutes before the collision happened he called up the nearest dispatcher and said:
"No. 29 has gone, and I have gone also."
Even with this dispatch at hand, there was no way to prevent the wreck. That was the last word from the operator at Volland, and he has not since been seen.

No. 29 was known as the California fast mail and No. 30 as the Chicago fast mail. Both trains were made up of ten cars each, of all varieties—Pullmans, tourist cars, chair cars, coaches, smokers and baggage cars—and both trains were heavy ones.

Several Injured Will Die.
Of the forty injured in the Rock Island wreck, twelve were seriously hurt and it is feared half of them will die. The Mexicans killed were en route to El Paso to work on the Rock Island road. The interpreter who was with them is among the killed and it may be difficult to learn the names of the killed and injured.

El Pasoan Among Injured.
Among the passengers injured in the Rock Island wreck was R. Sukerman, of El Paso, bruised on head and body.

Operator Captured and Jailed.
Topeka, Kan., Jan. 2.—Operator John Lyness, who left No. 29 get by and caused the Rock Island wreck, has been captured and will be jailed here.

MILWAUKEE SHOWS GREAT PROSPERITY DURING 1906.
Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 2.—For the year 1906 the figures at the clearing house show the unprecedented increase of approximately $60,000,000 over the total figures in clearings during 1905. The average monthly increase in clearing has been $5,000,000 and in October the increase over September was $10,000,000. The total clearings in 1905 were $465,759,461, an increase of $21,000,000 over the previous year. Industries of all kinds are flourishing and a new bank in three months made its showing of business.

PRESIDENT CHOSEN FOR THE PENNSY

James McCrea, First Vice

A. J. Cassatt.

HARRIMAN IS SUMMONED BEFORE THE COMMISSION

Grand Master Hannahan of Locomotive Fireman Refuses Absolutely to Talk

New York, Jan. 2.—James McCrea, director and vice-president of the Pennsylvania railroad, who it was stated is likely to succeed the late A. J. Cassatt, as president of the road, arrived in New York yesterday and had a conference with Henry C. Frick. No official statement regarding the conference has been made public.

The Expected Happens.
Philadelphia, Jan. 2.—James McCrea of Pittsburgh, first vice president of the Pennsylvania lines east of Pittsburgh, was today elected president of the Pennsylvania Railroad company by the directors of that corporation, to succeed the late A. J. Cassatt.

HARRIMAN AND STAFF GO
BEFORE THE COMMISSION.
New York, Jan. 2.—E. H. Harriman, president of the Union and Southern Pacific, and many members of his official staff have been summoned to testify before the Interstate Commerce commission at its session, which will begin here Friday. The investigation, it is believed, will last for many weeks.

GRAND MASTER OF THE
FIREMEN WON'T TALK.
Peoria, Jan. 2.—The adjourned meeting of the grand executive board of locomotive firemen and engineers was still in session at 1 o'clock, and it was announced that nothing would be given out for public until after its final adjournment. When asked if he had received an answer to the ultimatum sent to President E. H. Harriman late last night, John J. Hannahan, grand master, said: "I have absolutely nothing to give out at this time."

CANADIAN FARMERS
WANT TARIFF REDUCED.
Ottawa, Jan. 2.—While admitting that the government has great difficulties in framing a suitable tariff for the farmers in this province have banded themselves together to further reduce the tax on raw materials. They complain bitterly that no reductions have been made on cotton, wool and sugar and at a meeting today Mr. Ercury, vice president of the farmers association stated that there was a feeling throughout the country that a monetary aristocracy was being created which was getting out of touch with the common people. "They were all aware," he said, "that farmers who had previously been voting conservative and high tariff were now liberal." The agitation against the tariff is spreading.

FLORIDA ORANGE CROP
HEAVY DURING SEASON.
Jacksonville, Jan. 2.—Upwards of sixty per cent of the Florida citrus fruit has been shipped for the season and eighty per cent of the orange crop has been forwarded to northern markets. The shipments of fruit have been very heavy since the season opened. Pineapples are now being shipped to New York in large quantities via the Clyde line and celery which is now ripening will be forwarded in large quantities at the end of this month.

WILL REVOKE LICENSE OF TIMBER SALOONS

Carlos Baca, sheriff of Valencia county, is in the city on official matters. He will leave tonight for Ketter, in the Zuni mountains, where he will notify all saloonkeepers that the county commissioners of Valencia county have concluded to revoke their licenses for the sale of liquor in these hitherto very troublesome lumber camps. The saloonkeepers will be informed that the commissioners of Valencia county will hold a meeting at Los Lunas on Saturday, Jan. 19, at which meeting they can appear to show cause why their licenses should not be revoked. Sheriff Baca stated that all the troubles emanating from these lumber camps can be traced to "boozing" and when the men, as is usual on payday, fill up with the corn juice dispensed over the bars out there, a large number of fights usually occur, and some of these fights have in the past and will in the future result in serious misadventure and murder if the traffic is not stopped.

FIERCE FIRE HURTS MANY DESTROYING

Four Boys Stealing Ride

NEW YORK POLICE NEED PISTOL SHOT PRACTICE

Three Are Badly Injured in Wreck on Great Northern Near Macon, Montana.

New York, Jan. 2.—A dozen persons injured, forty families made homeless, a thousand persons driven temporarily from their homes, fifty horses roasted to death and property valued at $200,000 destroyed, is the record today in the worst early morning fire New York has seen for many months.

One big tenement house on West Fifty-third street and a large boarding stable were destroyed. The lack of water pressure is said to be largely responsible for the extent of the losses, which would have been greater had not one of the big fire boats, which draws its supply from the Hudson, come to the rescue.

A great crowd gathered and it was all the police could do to preserve the semblance of order in the streets, and for a time the thieves were given almost a free hand to loot the burned buildings. In two cases the police fired at the looters, but so far as known no one was hit. One negro was arrested after a chase of several blocks, during which the police fired at him repeatedly.

STEPPED BEFORE CHICAGO
FLYER AND WERE KILLED.
New York, Jan. 2.—Elmer Dunn, Clarence Bennett, Wm. E. Casey and William Bell, all of Newark, N. J., were killed last night by the breaking of a coupling pin on the Lehigh Valley train at South Plainfield, N. J. The boys were stealing a ride on the freight train and jumped off directly in front of the Chicago-bound flyer.

WRECK WAS DUE TO THE SPREADING OF THE RAILS.
Helena, Mont., Jan. 2.—Three persons were badly injured in a wreck yesterday of the Great Northern at Macon, Mont. The wreck was due to the spreading of the rails, which caused the entire train, with the exception of the diner and rear sleeper, to leave the track.

RUSSIAN GOVERNMENT
MAKING IMPROVEMENTS.
St. Petersburg, Jan. 2.—Government officials are today allocating to the peasants large tracts of land at very low prices in the regions of Nijni Novgorod, Kostroma and Viatka, where the famine is most acute. The farms are partly stocked on the government loan system. It is plain however that this generous action on the part of the government is to detach the peasants who care little for politics, from the revolutionary movement, by settling the agrarian problem as far as it is solvable. Jews are now being admitted to the technical institutions in larger numbers than ever before and in some cases they now number 40 per cent of the whole. The minister of public instruction has prepared a bill to allow the Jews to open educational establishments on the same lines as all Russian institutions. Compulsory education is also about to be introduced. The government is doing all in its power to relieve the terrible distress but the local governments are piling the supplies and reselling them.

GREAT PROSPERITY CONTINUES IN ITALY.
Naples, Jan. 2.—The prosperity of this country continues as the budget statement shows an unexpected surplus of more than $10,000,000 for the current year with an estimated surplus of $5,000,000 for the next. A great movement is impending towards the relief of taxation and the relief of local finance. At the coming session of parliament a sum of $12,400,000 will be asked for to improve the railways in the country.

DASTARDLY ATTEMPT TO WRECK TRAINS AT SAN ANTONIO

Switch Locks Broken, Tool House Set on Fire and Section Foreman Shot In the Hand.

Special to The Evening Citizen.
San Antonio, N. M., Jan. 2.—With only the motive of getting even with the section foreman for some trivial reason, attempts have been made the past few nights to wreck Santa Fe trains at this place. Switch locks have been broken and switches turned, but fortunately no accidents have occurred as yet.
Last night as the section foreman was repairing a broken lock, a voice from the darkness told him not to do so at the peril of his life. The hardy foreman defied the voice. A pistol shot rang out. The bullet hit the hand that held the broken lock. The foreman, through great presence of mind, saved himself from further shots by kicking over his lantern. The authorities were notified immediately and Ben Williams and several Santa Fe detectives reached the scene last night. Considerable excitement prevails among the native people. The section foreman is a native and the persons suspected of the crime are natives.
Previous to breaking the switch lock last night, the tool house was set on fire, but the fire was extinguished before much damage was done.
All attempts at the destruction of property have been made in the north yards and that is the reason for the theory that the intended injury is more directed at the section foreman than the railroad.

YOUNG WOMAN SHOOTS AT A JUDGE WHILE ON THE BENCH

St. Louis, Jan. 2.—Just after Judge J. A. McDonald, of the circuit court, convened court this morning, Miss Rosa Well suddenly arose from among the spectators and fired point blank at the judge with a revolver. The bullet missed its mark. She was disarmed and arrested. She was a litigant in a case concerning a disputed inheritance which was tried before Judge McDonald two months ago.

Rosa Well, accompanied by her sister, Clara, entered the court room a few moments before the court convened, and took seats quietly among the spectators. The attorney started to address the court, when Rosa, without warning, rose and fired at Judge McDonald. A witness who was seated near her prevented her firing a second time. The woman maintained a perfect calm and a deputy sheriff took both sisters into custody. The judge did not rise from his seat during the excitement. "Take that woman out of the court room," he said and then proceeded with the case before him.

SOME THINGS OF INTEREST IN OLD WORLD COUNTRY

Bushire, Persia, Jan. 2.—A thousand Turkish soldiers, remnants of about 4,000 sent to Nijd Penagiat two years ago to suppress an Arab revolt, returned to Bushire, Asiatic Turkey, in a deplorable condition. Over 2,000 of their comrades died of disease or starvation, and the rest deserted.

Personal London Items.
London, Jan. 2.—The Daily Mail quotes a friend of the late Lady Burdett-Coutts as saying that the bulk of her great estate will go to her husband, and that it is unlikely the will contains any large bequests to charity.

General Booth, head of the Salvation Army, will start about the middle of February on a tour of the world. He will go to New York, thence to Canada, and will embark from Seattle for Japan, April 2. The remainder of his itinerary has not been fully planned. General Booth says it is the last trip of the kind he will make.

Russia Has Armed Quiet.
Lodz, Jan. 2.—The lockout of the factory employees here continues, but with the exception of isolated conflicts of a factional character, quiet has been generally maintained. The authorities have exiled seventy-four unemployed persons who took part in the disturbance here recently. Fourteen workmen were killed or wounded in fights between the socialists and

MASSACHUSETTS MAY BUY
BOSTON & ALBANY ROAD.
Boston, Jan. 2.—The cancellation of the lease of the Boston & Albany railroad to the New York Central is demanded in a bill introduced in the legislature today. It is alleged that Massachusetts is discriminating against the New York Central in its favor by provision of the Boston & Albany charter, after the lease has been canceled the commonwealth may purchase the stock of the railroad.

AGRICULTURAL DECADE
IN ENGLAND INCREASING.
London, Jan. 2.—At a meeting of the Royal Agricultural Society today Lord Tredegar, who presided, stated that the decay of English agriculture was due to three causes: First there was the fact of foreign governments maintaining state departments for the assistance of agriculture organized on an extensive scale and amply supplied with funds while Great Britain did little or nothing. Second, there was the fact that foreign food can be brought to the British consumer cheaper than food produced on British soil so that the British farmer is actually at a disadvantage, having to pay higher taxes and rates than the foreigner, and into the bargain more for the cost of moving his goods to the market. Third, there was the fact that everywhere abroad the farmer was protected by a tariff. The meeting decided to frame a bill to protect British agriculturists.

STUYVESANT FISH SAYS INDUSTRIAL CRISIS IS AT HAND

Money Is World-Wide in Its
Scarcity and Wall Street
Is Blamed.

MAN OF SEVENTY KILLS HIMSELF OVER ELECTION

New York, Stuyvesant Fish in a statement for the Journal-Commercial declares that a great industrial crisis is due and that there are many indications of its being imminent.
"Despite the unprecedented output of gold," Fish writes, "money is dear the world over, and dear because of high prices and activity in trade." Other causes for dear money are that Great Britain has not fully made up the losses of the Boer war, that Japan and Russia, particularly the latter, have scarcely begun to recover from their war and their tremendous losses in capital; and because of the calamities of San Francisco and Valparaiso. Wall street is also absorbing more than its share of loanable money. He says that the investing public is staying out of Wall street because of the methods of corporate finance now in use in New York, and that Europe shares the distrust.

MELON HYBRID WHICH RIPENS IN WINTER

California Product Which Is Expected to Revolutionize
Melon Industry.

DOCTOR GETS $2,000 FEE
THO HIS PATIENT DIED

French Court Decides Tradesmen
Must Consider Husbands Means in Selling to Wife.

Los Angeles: O. D. Wilhite, a Boyle Heights horticultural wizard of the Luther Burbank type, has produced a wonderful new winter melon which he believes eventually will revolutionize the melon industry.

The new hybrid, a blend of the cantaloupe and the muscadine, is oblong in shape and weighs ten and a half pounds. In appearance it somewhat resembles the pomegranate. It is a deep orange color, marked with patches and stripes of dark green.

It is a delectable fruit and one that will prove a new triumph for the California fruit grower, and especially appealing to easterners.

The work of propagation and experimenting has been carried on at Riverside, but Mr. Wilhite recently has moved to this city and is now located at 2510 East Fourth street, where he is attempting the development of additional fruit combinations.

AN OPERATION WHICH WAS COSTLY, ALTHOUGH USELESS.

Los Angeles: Dr. Ernest A. Bryant was granted a fee of $2,000 by Judge James, to be paid from the estate of Mrs. Mary J. Latimore, formerly a wealthy widow of Ocean Park.

Dr. Bryant operated upon Mrs. Latimore for appendicitis on September 6. The patient died the following day. It was found that she had no direct heirs and Mary McGrath was appointed executrix for the estate, valued at $86,200. The executrix refused to pay the doctor's bill of $2,500 and he sued to recover.

Physicians testified that $2,500 was not an excessive fee for such an operation. One of them stated that such medical attention was worth much more in "dangerous" cases.

FRENCH IDEA OF WIFE'S DUTIES AND PRIVILEGES.

Paris: A case that is interesting husbands and dressmakers has been decided by the courts. A fashionable dressmaker demanded several thousand dollars for a score of gowns furnished to a woman in two months, and sued the husband and wife to recover. In its decision the court pointed out that even if the husband gives the wife authority to purchase toilet articles it must be presumed that he intends to be reasonable.

It rules that it is the duty of the dressmaker to inquire whether orders given by the wife accord with the husband's financial and social status. Tradesmen are also cautioned to show prudence and reserve when apparently exaggerated orders are given. The court reduced the demand of the dressmaker almost to half.

EXCELLENT BUSINESS IS SHOWN BY LOS ANGELES.

Los Angeles: Bank clearings broke all records in 1906. The total for the year was $578,635,517, against $479,885,298 for the preceding year, a gain of $98,750,219. The clearings for December were $52,715,330, an increase of $10,879,101 over the corresponding month of 1905.

POSTAL CARD WHICH WAS SENT TO SPEAKER CANNON.

Washington: A souvenir postal card, postmarked New York, was received at the capital the other day. It was addressed to "Uncle Joe Cannon, House of Representatives, Washington, D. C." and reads as follows: "Uncle Joe, Joe Foraker will steal all the nigger delegates if you don't watch out."

The writer forgot to put a stamp on the card, and before L. White Busby, secretary to the speaker, could get it out of the mails he had to pay Uncle Sam two cents, owing to there being writing on the face of the card. On the reverse of the card were the counterfeits of two Africans, thick of lip and wide of mouth, each of whom had a ring in his nose. One of them was evidently suffering from toothache, and the other held behind his back a pair of dice, intended to do deadly execution.

CHICAGO'S MAYOR HAS BUT POOR RECOLLECTION.

Chicago: When Mayor Dunne was summoned to tell the jury how hard he, President Shea, of the teamsters' union, and many of the latter's lieutenants worked to secure arbitration of the strike of 1905. Most of the questions were ruled out, but the story was practically told by the interrogations of the attorney for the teamsters accused of conspiracy to use the strike as a means of wrecking business interests they did not like.

The mayor gave a rapid sketch of his career, saying he served thirteen years on the bench, and "now has a job as mayor of Chicago." He could not remember the dates of his election or inauguration, however, and Attorney Cruise, who was an unsuccessful candidate in the same campaign, had to jog his memory.

ORGANIZATION AGAINST THE PRESIDENT IS GROWING.

Washington: Evidence accumulated that President Roosevelt has lost control of the organizations of his party in the southern states, and some others, and that the "old crowd" of republicans, who learned politics at the feet of Marcus Aurelius Hanna, are once more in power there. This, the wise ones say, bodes ill for any candidate for the republican nomination in 1908 who bears the Roosevelt brand, and indicates that a "conservative" will secure the coveted prize.

PRESIDENT DABNEY THINKS ROOSEVELT ALMOST INSANE.

Columbus, Ohio: "President Roosevelt is almost insane on militarism, or at least that is his bid," declared President Dabney, of the University of Cincinnati, in discussing the recent recommendation of the president regarding the establishment of target practice for school children in connection with their studies. Continuing, he said:

"While the president is undoubtedly sincere in what he has recommended, he has let his enthusiasm run away with his better judgment. He has had as much fun out of the Spanish-American war as he would out of a bear hunt, and, no doubt, thinks other people have the same feelings. He has shooting is good in its way, but there are hundreds of other things we need far more in our schools."

MANY WORDS BUT NO MORE DUSTERS GOTTEN.

Washington: A requisition for four turkey feather dusters, received from the land register at Olympia, Wash., was yesterday acted upon adversely by the commissioner of the general land office.

In a thousand word letter the register told the sad story of how a set of dusters in his office had recently been put out of commission. It appears that a careless messenger left them on the register's desk one day, and in cleaning up spilled a quart bottle of ink all over the feathers.

Hence the requisition.

In a 500-word reply the commissioner informed the register that he would have to transact business without dusters for a while.

17,000,000 PEASANTS ON VERGE OF STARVATION.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 2.—The minister of the interior, fearing that the grain contracted for with the firm of Lidal, for the famine stricken peasants would not reach its destination in stipulated time—the 15th of this month—has purchased a supply of 4,150 trucks of grain to be delivered at the various specified railway stations today. Apart from this the government authorities are buying grain for food and seed to be distributed all over the country. Half the supplies ordered for the starving peasants do not reach them. It is stated that seventeen million peasants are on the verge of starvation.

JAPANESE RUSHING TO THE UNITED STATES.

Honolulu, Jan. 2.—Complaints are being made here that the Japanese are overrunning the island and are displacing shopkeepers, contractors, carpenters and tradesmen generally. Hundreds of them are arriving on the island, and many of them make for the American coast. The United States commissioner of immigration who left here a few days ago for San Francisco will call the attention of his government to the matter.

LARGE HERRING FISHERY ABANDONED.

Gloucester, Mass., Jan. 2.—The United States government tug Potomac, after freeing the imperiled herring fleet from the ice, has returned to Boston. The fleet was frozen in off the bay of Islands and when liberated decided to take no more chances but headed for home with almost empty holds. The fishing has been abandoned for the season.

THE TROUBLE IN MOROCCO CO-BECOMING SERIOUS.

Tangier, Jan. 2.—The two thousand armed men ordered by the Maghzen assembled at Fez today under command of Guebbas, Kaid Sia Henry McLean, British commissioned officer, and a doctor of the French military mission at Fez, are accompanying the mission. The sultan will proceed in state to meet the commander in chief notwithstanding orders from the powers to the contrary.

TOURING THE WORLD IN AN AUTOMOBILE.

Mexico City, Jan. 2.—Charles J. Gidden, of Boston, who is touring the world in an automobile, arrived here today from Guyana. Mr. Gidden who expects to travel 50,000 miles in the same car, travels at a rate of nearly four miles an hour. He has a letter of greeting from President Roosevelt to President Diaz, and will have an audience with Signor Diaz this afternoon.

HUNTING ABANDONED IN NORTHERN STATES.

Aiken, S. C., Jan. 2.—Owing to the frost in the north fox hunting has been abandoned. A number of the members of the Meadow Hunt club have arrived here where they will hunt during the season with the pack of Thomas Hitchcock Jun.

SANTA CLAUS COMMERCE A BREAKER OF

Records in New York--Nothing
Ever Known Like It.
In Same Way

CITY'S FOREIGN COMMERCE WAS ACTUALLY FABULOUS

Year Made New Real Estate Record--Odell Will Renew Fight
Supremacy in State.

Special Correspondence.

New York, Jan. 2.—That the remarkable Santa Claus commerce was not confined to New York alone was shown by the tremendous quantity of mail handled at the general post office here during the five days immediately preceding the great winter holiday. In those five days more than five hundred million pieces of mail matter were received and dispatched. Nearly one quarter of this immense number were packages. Hundreds of men, working night and day were practically buried under the great showers of Christmas gifts and Christmas greetings. From every section of the country they came in a flood such as never was witnessed before—mute but at the same time eloquent reminders of the most prosperous and generally observed Christmas season America has ever known. The lands beyond the seas, too, contributed almost more than their share. In the four days before Christmas six great ocean mail steamships brought 10,000 pouches of letters and packages from Europe. This is an increase of 32 per cent over the corresponding four days of last year. The receipts in that period aggregating 7,500 bags. The steamship Majestic alone brought 4,600 pouches. These are not included in the four days receipts as she came in earlier in the week. Her mail cargo was a new record for transatlantic business.

The City's Foreign Commerce.

It was not by her Christmas business alone, however, that New York gave evidence of the most prosperous year in her existence. In every branch of trade, both domestic and foreign, new records undoubtedly will have been made. Present indications point to a tremendous increase in the foreign commerce of the port. An estimate based upon the business of the first eleven months of last year makes it appear almost certain that New York's foreign commerce for the year reached the astonishing total of fifteen hundred million dollars. This will be a clear gain of more than one hundred million dollars over 1905. The expansion of trade at the port of New York in the past decade is strikingly set forth by a comparative table of statistics which has been prepared at the local customs house. It is shown that in the first eleven months of 1895 the imports at New York were valued at $400,977,371, while for the corresponding period of 1906 the entries were $710,318,468. In eleven months of 1895 domestic merchandise sent abroad had a value of $230,202,486 compared with $541,089,467 in the period ended December 1st last.

In all the estimates shown above no figures are included dealing with the volume of foreign merchandise passing through this port. It is estimated that business of this class will add fully $10,000,000 to the year's total. Transshipments at the port for the year are estimated at $51,000,000 more.

New Real Estate Record.

A new record also was established for real estate transactions in the city for the year. In the greater city of 185,000 parcels, valued at $1,345,000,000 changed hands. This compares with $1,300,000,000 in 1905 which in itself was a record. That the smaller individual buyers have made the huge volume of the year's dealings is evidenced by the fact that the average price of parcels has been less than $12,000. The average price for each parcel in 1905 was $17,000. Six hundred million dollars was spent during the year in the development of the city's suburbs, making a record never equaled anywhere in the history of suburban development. One half of this large outlay was spent by corporations for the construction of subways, bridges and other public works to make outlying districts accessible. Private builders lavished $150,000,000 in the construction of suburban homes, and the remaining $150,000,000 was paid for land, practically all of it for home sites. The outlook for this year appears to be far brighter than the record-breaking year just ended. While the huge outlay for public works may not be much greater than last year private building operations promise to show a marked increase.

Franchise Taxes Overlooked.

Should the city succeed in collecting long overdue taxes and other charges assessed against the street railways since 1886 and still unpaid, it would have at its command an additional $24,000,000 for its public works. These charges are mainly for franchise taxes and the pairs made by the city on account of the various street and elevated lines. Of this vast sum, the lines controlled by August Belmont owe nearly two-thirds. The debt of the Metropolitan street railway and its allied lines is just short of ten million dollars for franchise taxes and it has an additional indebtedness to the city for street paving and repairs for the various years since 1896 of $3,400,000. The Manhattan railway for franchise tax and interest, owes more than six million dollars, and the Brooklyn rapid transit on the same account is indebted to the city in the sum of two and three quarters millions. If the incoming legislature investigates street railways, as it possibly may, these figures may be inquired into, together with the reasons for their being so long overlooked by city officials.

Odell to Renew His Fight.

When the legislators assemble for the next annual session there will be missing from the republican councils a figure which had long exerted a tremendous influence on the republican politics of the state and in this city as well. Former Governor Benjamin B. Odell, Jr., who has been outside the breasting since the defeat of the Odell-Quigg faction in the primaries of September, 1905, will be missed from the "Amen Corner." He will not be idle, however, and if current gossip is dependable the men who tore the laurel wreath of leadership from the former governor's brow, will have to watch out sharply for their fences. Even with this year's primaries ten months away, it is said that the little "grocer-man" is preparing for a campaign which he hopes will result in regaining for him the prestige which he lost after one of the bitterest factional fights in the state's history. In anticipation of the fray he has taken apartments for himself and family in the Fifth Avenue hotel, where so many of his battles were fought when he directed the destiny of his party in the state, and there he will spend the winter, and possibly the spring and summer, surrounded by the lieutenants who have remained loyal to him even in his adversity. That it will be a contest between giants, if his reported intention is correct, needs no telling. Odell is a foe worthy of any man's steel. Like Napoleon's drummer boy, he never learned to beat the "retreat." When he goes down, it is with every flag flying, and not a thread in any one of them is white. Aligned against him will be all the tremendous influence of the nation's chief executive, for Herbert Parsons, who will bear the brunt of the fight for the anti-Odell forces, is recognized as Mr. Roosevelt's protégé. And the Parsons regime is firmly entrenched. In addition to the backing of the federal administration they have all the immense state patronage. Both sides are sure that the stakes are well worth playing for. Control of the New York county organization after the next primaries will mean control of the New York county delegation to the spring state convention of 1908, which will elect delegates-at-large to the republican national convention and also elect the state committee to serve through the national campaign. New York county elects a large proportion of these delegates, and with that to begin with, any leader has a big start toward the control of the New York state delegation to the national convention. It remains to be seen that Odell's talent for organization can accomplish against what appears to be almost overwhelming odds.

Big Tim Sullivan Comes West.

Almost simultaneously with the return of Odell to New York comes the report that the city is to lose one of the most unique and interesting characters in metropolitan politics. "Big Tim" Sullivan, for many years one of the dominating spirits in the councils of Tammany, and a leader with a bigger "pull" than any other since the day of Crocker, has, so rumor says, decided to forsake the metropolis for the west. It is said that a line of theatres stretching the continent, in which he has a half interest, will occupy practically all his time, and that the denizens of the bower and its surroundings may have to get along as best they can without the genial presence of the "big fellow" for much of the time in the future. In speaking of Sullivan's theatrical enterprises, one of his friends said: "This thing has grown to be so big that 'Big Tim' has got to look after it himself. There is a gold mine in it and if things work out the big fellow will get more money out of his string of theatres in the west than he can ever get out of politics in New York. This realizes what a wonderful country the northwest is, how fast it is growing, and also how progressive and up-to-date it is. The people out there want just as high class amusement as New York, and he is going to give it to them." "Big Tim" is now on a tour through the west which is expected to last three months or more.

How to Prevent Billious Attacks.

One who is subject to bilious attacks will notice that for a day or more before the attack he is not hungry at meal times and feels dull after eating. A dose of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets when these first symptoms appear will ward off the attack. They are for sale by all druggists.

LONDON NEWS AND GOSSIP WELL SPICED

The Mysterious Miss Smith
Still Stirs Curiosity on the Continent.

NEW LORD MAYOR WANTS SHORT TOAST SPEECHES

English Baronet Keeps an Inn.
Grandsons of King Edward Follow His Example.

(By William True Hawthorne.)

London, Jan. 2.—"Who is Miss Smith?" is a Parisian mystery with a London setting—indeed, a continental environment—which has drawn the interest of half a dozen of the great capitals to its dramatic unfoldings. So far, the developments have led only forward more impenetrable depths of plot and action and the authorities are more and more "in the air" at each succeeding turn. But as detective patience and sagacity are only whetted by the fact that the task takes on a more difficult aspect from day to day, in the end the amazing person now known as plain Miss Smith will doubtless find herself unmasked.

It is the story of a matrimonial agency of a Mme. Guerin and her train of helms and dupes. One of the latter was Dr. Paul Herbert, a London physician. Becoming engaged, through the good offices of Mme. Guerin, to the mysterious Miss Smith, Dr. Herbert was lured to a villa in the vicinity of Paris and treacherously shot by M. Cosbron, who was Mme. Guerin's supposed husband. Dr. Herbert was not dead, as the assassin thought, and he made his way back to Paris and the police. M. Cosbron disappeared, but Mme. Guerin was arrested. She related that both Herbert and Cosbron were in love with her, and that the shooting at the villa was due to jealousy. Dr. Herbert received many letters from Miss Smith, all of them couched in the most affectionate language. M. Sudro, who was taken to London and introduced to Miss Smith, was told she was the acknowledged daughter of a duke with a half million pounds in the Bank of England. He, too, has letters from her breathing passion and devotion. Other young fools who advertised to marry helms have turned over similar love epistles to the police. These letters now turn out to be in the handwriting of Mme. Guerin, slightly disguised. None of these matchmakings with Miss Smith as a principal ever reached the matrimonial stage, but Mme. Guerin herself has had nine definitely known husbands with whom she went through a form of marriage of some kind, and each of whom she afterwards married. One of them, a wealthy Paris corn merchant, strangely disappeared one day, and he is being sought almost as eagerly as Miss Smith. A remarkable story is told of Mme. Guerin's relations with the missing man.

A theory that Mme. Guerin and Miss Smith were identical was promptly exploded by the testimony of both. Mme. Guerin is unmistakably short and rotund, besides being middle-aged. Miss Smith, on the other hand, is described as a "ravishing beauty," though the several lovers men who have seen her in the flesh were apparently blinded by her charms. At all events, they give the police a fanciful rather than a natural description of the lady. Bewitching smiles, "rosy lips," "black eyes that scintillate like diamonds," "raven black hair"—these are all very well in the pages of a modern "yellow back," but they do not assist the puzzled police in the investigation of the lady's name—plain Miss Smith. The only real clue is a photograph of a handsome girl found in Mme. Guerin's apartment, which she admitted was that of M. Sudro's promised bride. The photograph was taken in London. From this the police are led to believe that the lady is an actress specially engaged to play the leading role in the matrimonial comedy. There is some ground also for the belief that the lady may be in Paris music hall "star" who recently married the nephew of the president of the Belgian senate under the name of the president of a South American republic. Theories and clues aside all must admit that Mme. Guerin and Miss Smith present a rare combination of brains and beauty.

London's New Lord Mayor.

Sir William Trevelyan, the new lord mayor, who had already ingratiated himself with youthful London when, as "the children's alderman," he did wonders in making the dingy city habitable for men in many little ways, has now quickly won the good opinion of the grown-ups by declaring for ten-minute speeches at banquets and more public functions. It was at the Savage club dinner, with Dr. Nansen as toastmaster, that Sir William declared his accession from the thrall of endless and prosaic oratory. In a brief and breezy speech, the lord mayor gave a hint of his policy in the matter of official addresses. "I shall give you a sentence," he said, "which I propose to inscribe in letters of gold over the entrance to the Guildhall and in the Egyptian hall at the Mansion house. It is this: 'Nobody likes long speeches except those who make them.' That tablet may be taken down some day, no doubt, but not while I am there. Already I have begun to hate the man who proposed the inevitable toast to the corporation of London, and I am glad that the Savage club has existed for 700 years and yet has no rights, privileges, and traditions to talk about."

Sir William Trevelyan consumed the remaining time of his ten minutes in telling a delightful story about himself. "I had been dining at the Fishmongers' hall," he said, "and I had to catch a train at London Bridge afterward. Unfortunately, I missed the train, and I complained to the cabman that he had not driven fast enough. 'It ain't my fault, sir,' said cabby, 'it's that silly old fool of a lord mayor that has stopped fast driving.'"

English Sympathy for Voight.

The sentence of four years imposed on Voight, the "robber captain" of Koenigsberg, by an unromantic German tribunal, meets with no popular sympathy in England. Voight's exploit in holding up a town set the whole world laughing, and the result of the trial can only be viewed as a sad, unheroic climax to a brilliant adventure. It is not surprising that popular sympathy goes out to the prisoner. A man who brings mirth into a gray world is a public benefactor. Voight is something of a rascal, no doubt; but his superb audacity and his fertility in resource almost make one forget his moral delinquencies. Besides adding to the gayest of nations, he has brought home to the thoughtful Germans the absurdity of making a fetish of the Kaiser's coat. Voight seems to have been dogged by a relentless fate. More than once he turned from a criminal career to live an honest life, and employers for whom he worked gave him an excellent character. But his dead past rose up always to wreck his hope of an honest future. In the eyes of the police he was still a criminal, and as such a person to be hunted from pillar to post. In four months he was told to move on ten times, and he simply found it impossible to live down his past.

Baronet Who Keeps Tavern.

Over the sign of the Rose and Crown, a public house in Woodburn, Bucks, now swings the coat-of-arms of Sir Henry Echlin, Bart., otherwise "mine host." Sir Henry, who succeeds to the title through the death of his brother, Sir Thomas Echlin, has had a somewhat varied career of the wild sort, his youthful delinquencies having culminated in enlistment in the army, and thereafter further disappointing his family by becoming proprietor of a licensed house or saloon. The Echlin baronet is an ancient one, of Scottish origin, and formerly possessed extensive and lucrative estates both in Scotland and Ireland. Very little, however, now remains except a bare title, a succession of profligates having preceded the new holder of the title. Singular to say, he possesses the same name as the first baronet, Sir Henry Echlin—about the only similarity between the first and the last which seems worth recalling.

Chips From Grandfather's Block.

King Edward's grandsons, the Prince of Wales' young hopefuls, are showing a mind to revive cross-country riding at Sandringham. They have been following the West Norfolk hounds this season with much of the zest which marked the hunting period of his royal majesty's life. Here he rode his last mad dash in the saddle to be first at the death of Reynard, and the West Norfolk hunt therefore has a prescriptive right to the young cavaliers who will ride none the worse by and by for having ridden in their grandfathers' hoof-prints, so to speak. There was always one meet, if not more, in the old days and the appearance of the young princes in the fields augurs that Sandringham is likely to see another series of such gatherings.

DON'T TRY TO STOP AFTER YOU HAVE BEGUN SLIDING

SPIKES CAUSE INJURY.

Outfielder Clymer, of the Pittsburgh club, broke a small bone in one of his legs while sliding to a base in Cincinnati last season and was out of the game several weeks. In commenting upon the injury Manager Fred Clarke said the accident was due to Clymer's spikes being too long. "Clymer made the mistake of starting to slide and then checking himself, which no player ever ought to do," said Clarke. "When a man starts to slide he must go through it or he is liable to trip and turn his ankle. When I was with the Louisville team we went over to Paducah for an exhibition game one day. There were several cripples on the team and I didn't want any more, so on the way over I told the boys I would find any one of them who started to slide during the game. They obeyed orders all right and there was no sliding until the last inning, when I was on second and attempted to score on a hit. When I got near the plate I saw the play was going to be close, so I started to go to the ground. Suddenly I remembered my injunction to the players and not wishing to break my own rule, checked myself. My spikes caught and my ankle turned so that I was out of the game for some time. Players should always go clear through with a slide when they start it. And spikes should not be worn too long."

CHUCK A FEW JAPS IN TO THE SEA, SAYS MUDD

Washington, D. C., Jan. 2.—Congressman Sidney E. Mudd, of Maryland, is eating fire and drinking sulphuric acid on the Jap question. He wouldn't conciliate this side of hell. He'd be pleased to personally blast a couple of Japs into the Pacific ocean and tell 'em to swim for home. Says Mudd: "I do not think that Japanese contentions should be tolerated for a minute in a movement seeking to enforce the admission of these overassertive, smartish, manish fellows into social juxtaposition with the white children of California.

"I would order them out, and peremptorily do it, and if they did not get out without getting fussy about it, I should feel inclined to push a few hundred of them into the Pacific ocean, where their ardent on this primary social question would be substantially cooled.

"I have no more toleration whatever for the insolent demand of those yellow gentry on the Pacific coast to force upon California the institution of mixed schools than I would have for an obnoxious half-breed negro of this country who would advocate such a situation. The fact is, between the mulatto our country here and the California Jap, I have a kindlier feeling for our American mulatto.

"What the Jap wants to be given to understand, and that emphatically, is that we do not hesitate for a moment to give prompt and forcible expression upon his 'chip-on-the-shoulder' brand of insolence and impudence on this or any other question, national or international, that may arise."

THE AMERICAN VOICE

From some obscure source has come the suggestion that unpleasant peculiarities of American voice and speech are due to lack of training, and that they could all be remedied if we would only give our children lessons in talking, just as we give them lessons in singing, spelling and arithmetic. But where in the world is there more training in talking than in this country? What other country has as much of its as we have? What other country has any at all except to meet the requirements of a few vocations?

One often hears tones that are displeasing. They are used by both women and men. It is true that a certain nasality is characteristic of some parts of the country. But it is equally true that the most mellifluous vocalization heard anywhere in the whole world prevails all through our south. It is asserted by some of the most learned linguists also that the purest English spoken anywhere today is spoken in that same section.

The general praise of the English voice is earned by only a small part of the British people, and the rest of them are as far from being models of tone as they are from being up to grammatical standards. It used to be said that the German talks from his diaphragm, the Englishman from his throat, the Frenchman from his palate and the American from his nose. But it must not be forgotten that the American voice, like the American character, is in a process of evolution, combining together all that is best in other peoples. An American child is apt to have a German mother, a French father, an Englishman as a teacher and an Italian girl as a sweetheart. So there can be no physical qualities of either faults or virtues, that can apply to us as a whole people. There is this fact, however, which may or may not be peculiar: The American speaks to make himself understood, and generally succeeds, wherever he may be.

WHERE THE SHOE PINCHES

If the figures given out by the American Weekly Publishers' association are correct, Uncle Sam is "easy" and is in much need of a freight bureau or traffic agent.

The government, according to these figures, during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1906, paid the railroads $32,000,000 more for carrying its mail matter than the express companies paid for hauling one hundred pounds of mail between New York and forty-nine important commercial centers is $3.01. The average rate paid to the railroads by the express companies for a similar service is $2.43. These figures alone explain the deficit in the postoffice department.

It is easy to understand how a Chicago company of capitalists could make the offer to take over the department and run it without cost to the government. By putting the postal department on a business basis the Chicago syndicate would make a handsome profit. For several years Assistant Postmaster General Madden has claimed that the annual deficit is caused by the low second-class postage rates—that on newspapers and periodicals, and has urged congress to increase these rates. The claim is not justified. The deficit is caused by poor business methods, as shown in the high rates paid to the railroads for hauling the mails.

OUR MAGNA CHARTA

Apart from the interests of the several persons, parties to the suit decided the other day by the territorial supreme court, and considered only from the standpoint of the people of New Mexico, The Citizen considers that decision one of the most important ever rendered by our supreme court. That the decision was absolutely unanimous makes it only the more valuable.

The question at issue rose vastly above the mere contention whether certain men or certain other men were entitled to hold certain offices. It was: Has the governor of this territory the constitutional right, at his own option and without responsibility, to remove an official who has been elected to office by the votes of the people, when such official had not been condemned nor even tried by any legally authorized court of justice? This was the question, and the supreme court decided that such action by a governor was usurpation of authority not conferred upon him.

All know that the people of a territory have few enough political rights and privileges; but if their will as expressed at the polls can be over-ridden by the governor wherever and whenever he may choose, then had he better appoint the officials in the first place and save the people the farce of a pretence at electing. Then had the people as free live in a Turkish sultanate, so far as political rights are concerned, as to live in this beautiful sunshine land. As there seems little hope of statehood in the near future, for the sake of ourselves and our sons, every citizen of New Mexico should rejoice at the recent emphatic finding of our supreme court.

OUR WAR BUDGET

Senator Hale, of Maine, a member of the committee on appropriations, stated in the senate just before the holiday recess that "two-thirds of the revenues of this country are devoted to the burden of past wars and preparations for future war." As the expenses of the federal government, in round numbers, are $750,000,000, it follows that in this time of peace, with no desire for war and no prospect of any, this country has war expenditures of $500,000,000, or twice as much as for all other expenditures combined. In this connection, the Washington Herald says that "Europe is an armed camp, but the military expenses of no nation in Europe approximate those of the United States. In very truth, no European nation could stand such a burden. Our army is a mere nucleus compared with the armies of every continental power in Europe. Our navy ranks fourth or fifth among the navies of the world. And yet the taxpayers of the United States contribute annually from their earnings millions more to meet our military expenses than are contributed by the taxpayers of Europe for a like purpose."

Old but no idle, is the description which may be applied to Dr. Elias Weir Mitchell, of Philadelphia, who at the age of 76 is bringing out his eighteenth book of fiction. Literature was his choice when a young man, but on the advice of a litterateur he dropped letters for materia medica. Later, when he had become a pathologist of renown, he considered his own case and advised Dr. Mitchell to become Novelist Mitchell. The result is a novelist-physician, recognized everywhere that the science of medicine is worthy of the term, while the physician-novelist has reputation wherever the American novel can hope for place. He now has eighteen novels to his credit, besides several books of poems, short stories without number and over 100 works on scientific and professional topics.

There will be distributed during the present month of this new year in New York city, interest and dividends aggregating more than $200,000,000. This is the largest sum ever paid out to stock and bondholders in the history of Wall street and marks the end of one of the most prosperous years in the history of the country. While the first half of 1906 was notable for increased distributions to corporate extra dividends, resumption of dividends or beginning of dividends, the second half of the year was even more conspicuous in these respects. Conservatism has been the rule in most of the dividend increases. In the majority of cases the increases have been within the large surpluses shown after the payment of fixed charges.

Henry Clews says that three out of the four great financial centers of the world are distinctly blue at the present time—London, Berlin and New York—where money rates are unprofitably high. Paris is the only one serene and possessed of abundant loaning power just now, and assistance is hoped for from that quarter, especially as Russian financial affairs are beginning to improve materially, as indicated by the government's announcement to call in for payment some of the last issue of her bonds, which France subscribed for under pressure. This action puts Paris in an excellent financial position and makes it the only bright spot of the four great financial centers of the world.

The Rocky Mountain News and the Denver Republican each issued a magnificent New Year's paper yesterday, the first consisting of thirty-nine pages and the second of thirty-six. Both were full of important facts and figures concerning the growth and present condition of Colorado and her chief city.

Governor Vardaman buckled on a brace of "boss" pistols and went to the scene of the Mississippi race riots in the interest of peace. However, he cannot get the Nobel prize until next December.

At Washington it is said there's nothing out of the ordinary in Japs taking measurements of fortifications. It is suspected that there is also nothing out of the ordinary about some of the fortifications.

CONNECTION AND INCREASE OF SUICIDE AND INSANITY

New York is shocked over the fact that 433 cases of suicide have occurred in that city in the last seven months. The rate of increase is said to be greater than ever before. The increase is not confined to New York, but is general throughout the whole country, for the census bureau reports a great increase in the number of insane. There are more than twice as many hospitals for the demented as there were thirteen years ago, and most of them are full. The number of inmates grew from 49,000 in 1880 to 74,000 in 1890, and 150,000 on Dec. 31, 1903. The number of insane in hospitals per 100,000 population increased from 1.6 in 1880 to 18.2 in 1903.

Suicide and insanity are so closely related that increase in the one is naturally accompanied by increase in the other. Perhaps insanity in greater or less degree is more common than most of us suspect. Eminent alienists say that none of us are wholly sane. Many of the world's wisest men are known to have had a tinge of melancholy in their blood and to have been subject at times to periods of great depression.

Napoleon at the beginning of his career was in great financial distress, and was prevented from drowning himself only by the timely pecuniary aid of a schoolmate. Bismarck is said to have declared after the battle of Sadowa that he would have killed himself had the Prussians been beaten. Byron, while writing "Childe Harold," said he would have blown out his brains but for the reflection that it would give pleasure to his mother-in-law. Reasons for self-destruction are often very curious. Men have put an end to their lives to escape toothache or other pains. The dread of disease has been known to affect the mind to such extent that the victim has destroyed himself rather than face it. Josiah B. Riddle, of Jefferson City, Mo., recently killed himself because he was too fat. Irene Boggs, of Atlantic City, took her life because she had a new lavender dress to be buried in. Geo. H. Smith, of New York, believed himself too old at forty-five. Representative Adams, of Pennsylvania, killed himself because he had lost money and found himself with only his salary of $5,000 a year.

One need not be an alienist to be able to see, from these trivial causes and the countless other almost equally trivial ones which have caused the recent epidemic of suicide, that insanity in some form enters into it.

GOVERNMENTS ARE FORCED TO TAKE OVER RAILROADS

Within the last six months Japan has taken over the ownership of six railroads, aggregating about 1,550 miles in length, the combined purchase price being $123,500,000. Plans for the acquisition of eleven other roads have been announced and the transfer of ownership will proceed gradually in the immediate future.

Now Mexico joins the procession of the states that see no other solution than public ownership. For several years the government has had the controlling interest in the Mexican national lines. Now it has made a deal with the American owners of the Mexican Central and several other roads by which all will be merged into one great system with 10,000 miles of track and a capitalization of $225,000,000. The government will hold absolute majority of the stock, and the board of directors of twenty-one members will contain a majority of Mexican citizens, although a local sub-board of nine members will have its headquarters in New York.

According to the statement made by Minister of Finance Limatour to congress the danger that the lines would be dominated from the United States and run, not in the interests of Mexican industries, but of foreign railroad systems, is what has compelled the action. Incidentally he expects great benefits in the way of transportation peace and fair dealing at home, but he made it clear that the government did not act of its own desire but because it felt forced to take measures for protection.

It is well enough known that the state railroad lines in Europe were acquired by the governments mainly out of military considerations, and even Japan had military needs in mind in its new projects. Always it is compulsion in one form or another, war or peace, foreign or domestic, that forces governments to enter such undertakings. And this is as true of the present conditions in the United States as anywhere else. It cannot be insisted too often that the conditions which will decide the outcome in this country arise solely from the actual manner in which our railroads are conducted, and that the railroad managers have their fate entirely within their own hands.—Chicago Record-Herald.

CULTIVATE YOUR MIND INSTEAD OF YOUR NERVES

(By Ella K. Dearborn, M. D.)

Most nervous people are so because they cultivate nerves.

It is quite likely an unwise mother began the undoing of the child's nervous system by saying: "Floyd is so nervous that he just can't control himself; if he gets to crying, he can't stop," and Floyd believes this himself; and after he is 10 or 12 he is ashamed to cry, he takes it out in growling.

Every little annoyance or disappointment excites his wrath. Waiting for a street car makes him cranky all day. He has no self-poise with which to protect himself from the friction incidental to the average business career. Small obstacles look great to him. Each little care is a load to woe. The man is wretched, and he makes his family unhappy also. A nervous woman is bad enough, but a nervous man is worse.

One may cultivate tranquillity quite as successfully as he cultivates nerves, and the result is well worth the effort. The cumulative effects of efforts in self-control go far in developing strength of character; self-discipline is good for one; get in and bulldoze yourself out of some of your petty meannesses.

Teach the growing child self-restraint and self-reliance. If you are too old (you only think so) to work any reforms in yourself, at least be fair to the children, and do not start them out in the business world handicapped by fractious nerves. Lengthen the outdoor play spell, and shorten the indoor time for study.

MUDGE DENIES RUMOR OF CHANGE

From the Rock Island to the Presidency of the Santa Fe Railroad.

H. U. Mudge, second vice president of the Rock Island railroad, denies the report that gained circulation in Topeka Saturday, to the effect that he had resigned from the Rock Island to become president of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe railroad.

The report printed in the Topeka State Journal Saturday gained quite widespread circulation in the general offices of the Rock Island and the Santa Fe, both at Chicago and Topeka. The State Journal telegraphed Mr. Mudge for a confirmation or denial of the report and he answered as follows:

"I have not resigned and have no intention of doing so."

The Kansas City Times Sunday morning printed the following story from Chicago:

"Chicago, Dec. 30.—The revival of the rumor that H. U. Mudge, now second vice president of the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific railroad, is to return to the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe, may be responsible for another rumor and that is that J. E. Hurley, now general manager of the Santa Fe, is to shortly give up his connection with that road and accept a high position with the 'Big Four'."

Mr. Hurley came to Chicago last Thursday and although it is generally understood in railroad circles that there are several important changes being considered in the operating department of the Santa Fe, none of the rumors, especially so far as Mr. Hurley is concerned, can be confirmed.

"Should Mr. Mudge return to the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe, it is understood that it will be as President Ripley is to be made chairman of the executive committee. Already anticipating Mr. Hurley's retirement, the rumors are thick as to his successor."

Frederick C. Fox, now general superintendent of the grand eastern division, is slated to become general manager. Mr. Hurley became general manager of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe system east of Albuquerque nineteen months ago, having risen from the ranks to that place.

J. E. Hurley is in Chicago where he has been for several days in conference with a committee of railway general managers and representatives of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers relative to the change of the latter for increased pay and shorter hours.

He was asked by telegraph to confirm or deny the reports that emanated from Chicago that he was slated to go to the Big Four railroad.

Mr. Hurley replied that the report was absolutely without foundation, that he had no intention of leaving the Santa Fe and that likewise there was nothing to the story that he intended going with another road.

"THE MARRIAGE OF KITTY" PLEASES A BIG HOUSE

THE PERFORMANCE WAS SOME IMPROVEMENT OVER THAT OF A YEAR AGO.

A year has added a sparkle and dash to "The Marriage of Kitty." Miss Gair acted with more confidence last night than when she was here last winter, and the straight way with which she did things was pleasing. The only change in the cast of the company since its last visit here was in the character of Sir Reginald Reilze. The paint and the make-up were the same, but Sir Reginald was different, and the change apparently is for the good. Harry H. Roche, who filled the role with all the peculiarities and frumpiness and denseness of an Englishman, has just enough of the "John Bull" stock in him to produce the character as it is intended to be produced.

The play itself presents many very ludicrous situations. Our friend Sir Reginald, is made the victim of a rich uncle's will, leaving him 1600 pounds a year if by such a date he is married. This marriage, however, must be with a Puritan, not a widow. Sir Reginald, imagines himself in love with a thing in skirts, tall, painted and dressed in passionate colors, who is in love with his money. Sir Reginald's solicitor devises the scheme of the marriage of Kitty, a divorce a year hence and then the marriage, which the uncle in his will opposes.

Though the character of Madame de Semiano is itself repulsive, the adroitness with which Miss Elsie Baird fills it, makes one love the woman. She is very jealous of Sir Reginald's money and for fear that she will lose it, it is with the utmost difficulty that the marriage of Kitty is arranged. Kitty in reality is a very charming creature. She is fresh in mind and body, but must have employment and she enters in to the marriage for the money there is in it. But because of her natural appearance, she must disguise herself into a half-witted old maid of rural mannerisms. The change is made on the stage with telling effect. As she says, it is easy enough for women to make themselves ugly, but hard to make themselves pretty. It takes only a twisting of the skirt, a knotting of the hair and a crossing of the eyes to transform the charming Miss Kitty into a "St. Hephzibah."

It is a year after when Sir Reginald calls at the home of the wife of his clandestine marriage to make arrangements for a divorce, and for the first time, he finds her a very charming woman. He actually loves his wife. The adventures cause some little grief to this happy realization of man and wife, but it all turns out as it was not intended in the beginning, and the audience can not help but be pleased.

A big house greeted the performance last night.

GANS KNOCKED HERMAN OUT EASILY

The New Year's Fight at Tonopah Ended in the Eighth Round.

Special to The Evening Citizen.
Tonopah, Nev., Jan. 1.—6:29 p. m.—Gans knocked Herman out in the eighth round. The fight began at 4:05 p. m. and ended at 4:26.

ASSOCIATED PRESS ACCOUNT.

Joe Gans fought through the "dope" today, says an Associated Press dispatch last night from Tonopah, Nevada. After playing with Herman for eight rounds, the champion landed a full right swing on the point of Herman's jaw, and Chicago's favorite fighter went to the mat a beaten man. It was apparent from the start that Herman had no chance. Gans blocked his blows with the greatest ease, and at no time was Gans worried in the least. In the first round Joe started to feel things out. Herman was willing to fight but the champion stalled him off. In the second round Gans started to open up. The kid's attempts to land all ended in failure. Gans blocked Herman's leads with glove and elbow and when the opportunity presented itself, shot right and left jolts to his opponent's face.

The third and fourth rounds were repetitions of the second. It was plain to be seen that Herman, the short ender, the "under dog," was the favorite with the crowd. When the kid landed a blow the crowd cheered wildly. Gans only drew the applause when he fought his cleverest.

In the fifth round Gans, having measured his man, slowed down. This was the only round where Herman made any showing. The kid waded in and swung hard rights and lefts to the champion. Gans appeared careless and a number of the blows landed. The crowd cheered madly for the Chicagoan at the end of the round.

The sixth and seventh rounds were all Gans'. In the eighth Gans started out by feinting and drawing Herman's fire. They nodded around the ring until Gans worked his opponent into a corner. Joe feinted with his left, and the kid swung wildly with his left. He left an opening. Like a flash Gans whipped a left, and then a stinging right flush upon the point of the jaw. Herman dropped like a log with his face buried in his hands. He lay motionless at the edge of the ring. Gans walked away. It was all over.

Nate Lewis, Herman's manager, ran around the ring to where the kid lay, and begged him to rise. Herman heeded not the words; he was senseless. At the count of ten, Lewis and Adam Ryan carried their protégé to his corner, where three minutes passed before he came to. Herman was outclassed from the start to the finish. He never had a chance, and he will never have a chance when he meets a man of Gans' calibre.

The fight was not without its incidents. The heaviest betting developed in the second round when the men were milling it. Hereby when the gong sounded, Herman heeded the bell and stepped back from a clinch. Gans, not hearing the bell, landed a hard right on the kid's neck. The crowd rose to its feet and hissed and shouted. What he had done, like the gentleman that he is, Gans faced the crowd and made public apology. Not content with it, Gans went to Herman's corner and, grasping the kid's hand, explained that he had not heard the gong. Hence changed to clear the air, Gans changed to his left, and the fight and he came to Herman said:

"There is no getting away from it; the best man won. I made the best fight that was in me against a superior man. I cannot deny that he is the better man and I do not begrudge him his victory."

Gans bore his easily won honors with the best of grace. "It was just as I expected," said the champion. "I had Herman outclassed. He was game but he never had a chance to win."

DUKE CITY TO HAVE THE BEST BAND

American Lumber Co. Organization Will Contain Musicians of Professional Repute.

Albuquerque is to have best band between Kansas City and Los Angeles. It will be officially known as the American Lumber Company band and the organization is to be affiliated with the Ellis orchestra.

The band will be made up almost entirely of professional musicians. Most of the men who will compose its instrumentation are veteran players who have traveled the world over with some of the best circus bands in the business. They will come from all over the country. A single advertisement placed in a theatrical publication which has a professional field has brought more favorable replies from professionals who want to come to Albuquerque than Leader E. K. Ellis and Manager R. W. Reynolds have time to answer.

The new band will probably be well organized by the first of February, although it will probably be practicing before that time. There will perhaps be some minor changes to make and some new men may be added before the first of next month, when it is thought the band will be ready to fill any kind of an engagement. The men who will play with the new organization are expected to be able to read the "stave" at sight. All that will be necessary is practice, under the capable direction of Mr. Ellis, the leader.

The new band will have twenty-four pieces, and perhaps more. The number has not been definitely decided upon at this time, possibly there will be twenty-seven. Several of the musicians are already en route to Albuquerque. A solo cornet player has left Chicago for the Duke City with him in the last forty-eight hours; a baritone man departed from the City of Mexico, where he has been playing with the Carl Hagendorf orchestra, for Albuquerque, yesterday, and "Old Hank" Young, who has "boomed" his way around the world several times with a bass drum, which instrument he has played in most of the big circus bands, is en route to Albuquerque from New Orleans. Young has had thirty-two years' experience on the road. A French horn soloist and a tuba player are also coming from Chicago, while Charles A. Taylor, a young man from Mt. Vernon, Ill., who is a cornet player, has been written for in response to his application for a place in the band.

Arrangements are under way to secure the hall over the Insley Cycle company, on Gold avenue, for a band room. The place is admirably adapted for the requirements of the musical organization. It was originally intended for a lodge meeting place and was used for that purpose for a number of years. The place consists of a large hall and two smaller rooms. The hall will be used as a band room, one of the smaller rooms will probably be converted into a club room for the band men and the other will be used as an office for the Ellis orchestra and band.

Manager Reynolds announces that a public rehearsal will be given by the new band once a month, to which the general public will be invited. No admission to these rehearsals will be charged.

The organization of the new band will perhaps revive the old time rivalry that formerly existed between Las Vegas and Albuquerque in the matter of musical organizations. Time was when Las Vegas boasted the best band in the territory. Once the Meadow City musical capture prize at Denver Albuquerque was competed, so did other cities in the territory, but the judges decided Las Vegas had the best band. Now Albuquerque proposes to have the best band in the southwest, and indications point to a realization of it.

AN OLD VETERAN OF THE CIVIL WAR

DIED AT THORNTON EARLY
YESTERDAY MORNING—MAJOR S.
H. BOGARDUS THE VICTIM.

From general debility, superinduced by old age, that warrior of the great civil strife, Major S. H. Bogardus, passed away in death at his home in Thornton, Sandoval county, at 1 o'clock yesterday morning.

As he was a member of the Carlton post, Grand Army of the Republic, of Santa Fe, his remains will be taken to that city, and his body will probably be given a rest in the national cemetery located at the territorial capital.

Major Bogardus was known to all the old timers of this section of New Mexico, he having resided at Santa Fe and for the past twenty-five years at Thornton, known in those early days as Wallace, which was the division point on the Santa Fe road for a number of years before the division was moved further south to Albuquerque. For a number of years the deceased was postmaster at Wallace, and he also held the positions of station agent and depot watchman for the Santa Fe there until his advancing years prevented active labor. He was an old soldier of the civil war with a fine record, serving out his enlistment of four years and taking part in some of the great battles between the north and south. He went to the war as a private in a New York regiment and was mustered out a major. The deceased was about 80 years of age.

BERNALILLO COUNTY DISTRICT COURT

Vigil Will Sue Stroup For County Superintendent's Salary.

OFFICERS FILE THEIR BONDS
Attorneys Are Offering Evidence
In City Building
Case.

Taking as grounds the verdict of the territorial supreme court returned in the case of the sheriff's office, wherein the court held that Governor Otero had no authority to remove T. S. Hall from office, suit will be filed tomorrow by Estadio Vigil to recover the emoluments of the county superintendent's office since his removal. County Superintendent A. H. Stroup will be made the defendant to the suit, which will be for an amount of several thousand dollars.

Attorneys for Vigil are preparing papers in the case today. W. C. Heacock will appear as head counsel for Vigil.

This suit has been held up pending the result of the treasurer and sheriff cases, and the fact that it is being filed now in face of the fact that new trials have been asked in the other cases, shows that the attorneys for Vigil do not believe that the request for new trials will be granted.

City Building Case.
The city building litigation is occupying the attention of Judge Abbott today. All three suits brought by Armijo and Otero against the city for rent and possession of the city building have been combined as one case. The attorneys for the city are endeavoring to show that A. J. Henry was in authoritative possession of the property when the city ousted it from him. It is barely possible that all the evidence will be given to the court by this evening.

Valencia County Officials File Bonds.
Hon. Solomon Luna and Carlos Baca, treasurer and sheriff of Valencia county, filed bonds today in the office of the Second district court. Mr. Luna gives two bonds, one for $44,000, and the other for $15,000, the National Surety company appearing as surety for both.

The bonds of Sheriff Baca, one for $6,000 and the other for $3,000, are signed by the same surety company.

CHURCH, CLUB AND SOCIAL MEETINGS

Mr. and Mrs. C. N. Davis of 1025 East Copper avenue, entertained a large number of friends at dinner yesterday.

The annual roll call and business meeting of the Baptist church will be held in the church this evening, at 7:30 o'clock. All the members of the church are urged to be present.

Miss Irmie Gansul, of Chambersburg, Pa., who has been the guest in Albuquerque of Maynard Gansul and wife, leaves tonight for Roswell, where she will visit her mother and another brother, Bernard Gansul.

Mrs. W. C. Barnes, wife of Secretary Barnes, of the cattle sanitary board, departs today for Los Angeles, where she will make a visit before returning to her home in Las Vegas. Mrs. Barnes has been the guest in this city of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. McGuffey.

Twelve lady friends of Dr. and Mrs. C. H. Connor gave them a pillow shower at the doctor's handsome new offices in the N. T. Armijo building yesterday afternoon. The affair was in the nature of a surprise but the ladies were hospitably received and after a pleasant social hour light refreshments were served. A number of pretty pillows were left on the new office couch, which are invitingly suggestive of repose.

At their home on south Third street, Mr. and Mrs. Maynard Gansul received yesterday afternoon in honor of Dr. Irmie Gansul, a sister of Mr. Gansul, who is here from Pennsylvania on a visit. Assisting Mr. and Mrs. Gansul in receiving were Miss Myrtle Gansul, Dr. E. J. Alger, Mr. Samuel Pickard, Mr. Roy Stamm, Mrs. John F. Pearce, presiding in the dining room while among those assisting in the other rooms were Messdames A. H. McGuffey, Felix Lester, M. O. Chaboud, A. J. Mayo, Misses Elizabeth Willey, Betty Willey, Gladys Childers, Hazel Mayo, Mildred Fox. Yuletide decorations covered every mantle piece and chair, and the perfume of fresh flowers filled the reception rooms. The attendance was a crush of society.

Two receptions took place yesterday that mark epochs of this season in Albuquerque society. One was that of the Albuquerque Woman's club in honor of the opening of the new club house, which has just been completed on west Gold avenue. Decorated and arranged with the taste of which only women know the art, every room was thrown open yesterday to many visitors. The parlor, with its splendid fireplace of lava, the banquet room, with its sideboards and the kitchen with its machinery of turning out things that appeal to the person of good taste—even the epicurean would be pleased with this charming and well arranged and thrown open and admired under enthusiastic explanation of the ladies themselves. Refreshments were served, and there was launched a new era in the lives of the few brave and worthy women who have toiled to build themselves a home. The building will ever be a monument to their work.

TOLSTOY ARRAGNS REVOLUTIONS OF RUSSIA IN SCATHING LANGUAGE

THOUSANDS KILLED AND ALL RUSSIA REDUCED TO BRUTALIZED AND EMITTHERED DESPAIR BY A GROUP OF PEOPLE WHO ARE NOT ONE TEN-THOUSANDTH OF THE TOTAL—THE REVOLUTIONISTS, HE SAYS, ARE PARASITES ON THE MASS OF THE PEOPLE, SUCKING ITS SAP, ROTTING UPON IT AND COMMUNICATING TO IT THEIR OWN CORRUPTION.

NOTE—The following is the second article by Count Tolstoy on the Russian revolution. In the next article Count Tolstoy takes up his address to the mass of the Russian people.

(BY COUNT LEO TOLSTOY.)

(PART 2)—TO THE REVOLUTIONISTS:

By revolutionists I mean those people—beginning with the most peaceful constitutionalists and extending to the most militant revolutionists—who wish to replace the present governmental authority, otherwise organized and consisting of other people.—LEO TOLSTOY.

You, revolutionists of all shades and denominations, consider the present government harmful, and in various ways, by organizing assemblies (allowed or prohibited by government), by formulating projects, printing articles, making speeches by unions, strikes and demonstrations, and, finally (as a natural and inevitable basis and consequence of all these activities), by murders, executions and armed insurrections strive to replace the existing authority by another—a new one.

Though you are all at variance among yourselves as to what this new authority should be, yet to bring about the arrangements proposed by each of your groups, you stop short at no crimes: murders, explosions, or civil war.

You have no words strong enough to express your condemnation and contempt for those official personages who struggle against you; but it should not be forgotten that all the cruel acts committed by members of the government in their struggle with you are justified in their eyes, because they, from the czar to the lowest policeman, having been educated in unlimited respect for the established order, hallowed by age and tradition, when defending this order, feel fully convinced that they are doing what is demanded of them by millions of people, who acknowledge the rightfulness of the existing order and of their position in it.

So that the moral responsibility for their cruel actions rests not on them alone, but is shared by many people. You, on the other hand, people of all sorts of professions—doctors, teachers, engineers, students, professors, journalists, women students, railway men, laborers, lawyers, merchants, land owners, occupied till now with special pursuits which have nothing to do with government—you, who are not appealed to or recognized by anyone but yourselves, having suddenly become indubitably aware of the present organization needed by Russia in the name of this organization (which is to be realized in the future, and which each of you defines in his own way), take upon yourselves alone the whole responsibility for these very terrible acts you commit, and you throw bombs, destroy, murder and execute thousands have been reduced to despair, embittered and brutalized. And what is it all for? It is all because among a small group of people, hardly one ten-thousandth of the whole nation, some have decided that what is needed for the very best organization of the Russian empire is lately said; while others say that what is needed is a drama chosen by universal, secret and equal voting; a third party say that what is needed is a republic; and yet a fourth party declare that what is needed is not an ordinary republic, but a socialist republic. And for the sake of this, you provoke a civil war!

You say you do it for the people's sake, and that your chief aim is the welfare of the people. But the hundred millions for whom you do it, do not ask it of you, and do not want all these things which you, by such means, try to obtain. The mass of the people does not want you at all, but always has regarded, and still regards you, and cannot but regard you, as useless grubs who in one way or another, consume the fruits of its labor and are a burden upon it.

Only realize to yourselves clearly the life of this hundred million Russian agricultural peasantry, who, strictly speaking, alone constitute the body of the Russian nation; and understand that you all—professors and factory hands, doctors, engineers, journalists, students, land owners, women students, veterinary surgeons, thousands of lawyers and railway men; the very people so concerned about its welfare—are harmful parasites on that body, sucking its sap, rotting upon it, and communicating to it your own corruption.

Only imagine vividly to yourselves these millions, ever patiently laboring, and supporting your unnatural and artificial life on their shoulders; imagine them possessed of all these reforms you are hoping to obtain, and you will see how foreign to this people is all that you are aiming at, professedly for their advantage. They have other tasks, and see more profoundly than you do the aim that is before them; and they express the consciousness of their destiny, not in newspaper articles, but by the whole life of a hundred million people.

But no, you cannot understand this. You are firmly convinced that this course folk has no roots of its own, and that it will be a great blessing for it, if you enlighten it with the latest science you have read, and by so doing make it as pitiful, helpless and perverted as you are yourselves. You say you want a just organization of life, but in fact you can exist only under an irregular, unjust organization. Should a really just organization be established with no place for those who live on the labor of others, you all, landlords, merchants, doctors, professors and lawyers, as well as factory hands, manufacturers, workshop owners, engineers, teachers and producers of cannons, tobacco, spirits, looking glasses, velvet, etc., together with the members of the government—would starve to death.

What you need is not a really just order of life, for nothing would be more dangerous for you than an order der in which everyone had to do work useful to all.

Only cease to deceive yourselves; consider well the place you hold among the Russian people and what you are doing, and it will be clear to you that you struggle with the government in the struggle of two parasites on a healthy body, and that both contending parties are equally harmful to the people. Speak, therefore, of your own interests; but do not speak for the people. Do not lie about them, but leave them in peace. Fight the government, if you cannot refrain; but know that you are fighting for yourselves, not for the people, and that in this violent struggle there is not only nothing noble or good, but that your struggle is a very stupid and harmful affair.

Your activity aims, you say, at making the general condition of the people better. But that the people's condition should be better, it is necessary for people themselves to be better. This is as much a truism as to heat a vessel of water all the drops in it must be heated. That people may become better, it is necessary that they should turn their attention ever more and more to their inner life. But external public activity, and especially public strife, always divert men's minds from their inner life; and, therefore, by perverting people, always and inevitably lower the level of general morality, as has everywhere been the case, and as we now see most strikingly exemplified in Russia.

Reflect on this, especially you, young people, who are not yet immersed in the sticky mud of political activity. Shake off from yourselves the terrible hypnotism you are under; free yourselves from the life of this pseudo-service of the people, in the name of which you consider everything permitted to you; above all, think of the highest qualities of your soul, demanding of you neither equal and secret voting, nor armed insurrections, nor legislative assemblies, nor any similar stupidities and cruelties, but solely that you should live good and true lives.

The third section of Count Tolstoy's article is an address to the mass of the Russian people. For convenience sake this address, a masterly, fervent piece of work, is divided into two parts, the first of which will be published this week.

INCORPORATION ACT PROVES ATTRACTIVE

Receipts of Territorial Secretary's Office Increased. Favorable to Mining Men.

When Territorial Secretary J. W. Reynolds will have completed his report on incorporation fees received for the quarter ending Dec. 31, a large increase for the year 1906 will be shown over 1905 and an even greater gain as compared with 1904. It will be several days yet before accurate figures can be given for the purpose of making comparisons by calendar years in the number of corporations organized and the amount of revenue derived in fees therefrom. The territorial secretary's office is guided in its reports by the federal fiscal year which begins on July 1 instead of the territorial fiscal year commencing on December 1.

The New Mexico incorporation law which became effective early last year has many advantageous features which capitalists have not been slow in recognizing and it is having the desired effect of attracting outside investors.

Law One of Best in Country. Secretary Reynolds is of the opinion that this new law governing corporations in New Mexico is one of the very best in the country by reason of its comprehensiveness and liberality. He gives some interesting facts concerning it and what has been achieved since it became operative in an interview as follows:

"The results which have been attained during the past two years have demonstrated very clearly the wisdom of the last legislative assembly in passing what is known as the General Corporation Laws of 1905. The act in question is patterned very closely after the New Jersey corporation law, which is regarded by authorities as one of the most comprehensive and at the same time liberal statutes upon the subject which exists in any of the states of the union today. The particular advantage derived by the people of New Mexico from the adoption of this comprehensive act is the fact that almost every section has been subjected to interpretation by the courts, not only of New Jersey, but in a great many instances by the supreme court of the United States. As the act itself contains specific provisions to cover almost every phase of corporation organization and management, the advantage to be derived by New Mexico corporations in following such a statute is readily discerned.

Has Many Liberal Features. "Among the liberal features of this act which make it especially attractive to prospective incorporators may be mentioned the provisions which enable the directors to issue stock for property or service, thus enabling persons who have valuable properties of any nature to turn their holdings over to a corporation and receive in payment therefor such proportion of full-paid stock of the company as the board of directors may determine proper. Another feature which is attractive particularly to the promoters of mining corporations is the provision which allows the incorporators to file a certificate of non-liability, and thus do away with any question as to the liability of the stockholder upon stock held by him, beyond the amount of capital subscribed at the time the business is started. The exhaustive treatment of the subject of consolidation, or merger, of corporations carrying on the same or a similar business, the complete provisions for dissolution of corporations which may wish to close up business; as well as the provisions which are made for putting insolvent corporations into the hands of a receiver are all worthy of special study by any one interested in corporations and their management.

Objects For Which Act Was Passed. "At the time this act was passed it was hoped that the liberal and comprehensive provisions of the statute would attract prospective incorporators, and that numerous corporations would be organized in New Mexico, not only for the purpose of conducting business here, but elsewhere as well. This hope has not failed in its fulfillment, as will be observed from the fact that prior to January 1, 1905, the average annual income derived by the territorial treasury from incorporation fees was about $10,000. In 1905, although the provisions of the act were not generally known until after the publication of the session laws in that year, the receipts from corporation fees were $10,550.50, while in 1906, since the provisions of the act have obtained a more general publicity, the territorial treasury will receive at least $14,000.

"It is possible that this act might be further improved by a few minor amendments which would correct discrepancies, real or apparent, now existing in certain portions of the law, but upon the whole this legislation has been suggested from time to time and it is understood that some action will in the near future be taken in the matter. This is a result of a scarcity of laborers in Mexico.

Of the 365 days in the ordinary year there are 131 holidays. They are as follows: Sunday, 52; saint days, 52; solemn feast days 16; holy days, 3; national feast days, 3; family feast days, 6.

On these days the Mexican laborer refuses to work. In these days and times when labor is scarce, the cutting out of more than a third of the time for holidays works a great hardship. There is no country in the world which observes so many holidays as Mexico. More than one-half of the population observes these holidays strictly.

TO ABOLISH HOLIDAYS IN OLD MEXICO

It is said that it is probable a law will be passed abolishing many of the holidays in Mexico. Such a movement has been suggested from time to time and it is understood that some action will in the near future be taken in the matter. This is a result of a scarcity of laborers in Mexico.

THE HINDU INVASION A MENACE

Victoria, B. C., Jan. 2.—If one is strolling down the streets of Victoria meets a beturbated, bushy-whiskered Oriental, one no longer turns to stare. He is as common a sight these days as the Japanese or Chinese.

For months the Hindoos have been arriving by the hundreds from the Orient, and continuing on to the states with the intention of settling to earn a livelihood. The immigration has increased to such an extent of late that the flood of Oriental has come to be considered a grave menace to the interests of white labor and pressure is now being brought to bear upon the government to take some action with a view of checking the influx.

Hindoo and Mohammedans, though despising one another, are alike crossing the Pacific as fast as boats can carry them, and a dark east Indian face now passes almost unnoticed in the crowds upon the streets. They come not as servants or laundrymen, but as laborers. Work on the railroad or any other sort of manual labor is what they are seeking. The first consignment found things to their liking and have since been sending messages to the Orient urging their fellows to follow their example and ship for America.

SLOAN DOES NOT LIKE SECRETARY HITCHCOCK

And Claims That He Is Being Persecuted Instead of Prosecuted.

From Denver Post, December 31.

"It is simply putting into operation what is known in Russia as the 'third section' procedure. In other words, it is persecution instead of prosecution."

These were the words of Dr. John H. Sloan of Santa Fe, N. M., who was in Denver last week. He is under indictment of a federal grand jury charged with perjury and subornation of perjury in connection with certain coal land entries.

Dr. Sloan has been a resident of Santa Fe for nearly a quarter of a century and is one of the best known and most popular of the citizens of New Mexico. He is under indictment of the board of county commissioners of Santa Fe county for a long term of years and he also served the public as mayor of the city of Santa Fe.

"This is not the usual general denial," said Dr. Sloan. "I can and will prove that there is not a word of truth in the charges; but I do insist that the justice done me is but part and parcel of the system of Ethan Allen Hitchcock, secretary of the interior, who is himself under investigation on charges a thousand times more serious than those that have been made against me.

"Did you know that there is not a single special agent of the general land office who is not a foreigner? There are Kovakis, Maurovitchs and names like that found all along in the lists of his special agents. The one he sent to New Mexico is Delzendorf. How does that sound?"

"I can only figure it out in one way. Hitchcock put in several years as a representative of this government in Russia. He must have employed these foreigners for the reason that he probably surmised that no true American would do his work."

"But here's the situation: A number of men and women of small means make declaratory statements pursuant to taking up about 1,500 acres of valuable coal land. When it came time to file on the land, or lose the right to do so by time limitation, they were unable to pay the $20 per acre which must be paid at that juncture. I offered to lend them the money needed, at 8 per cent interest, taking mortgages on the land, to secure me for my money and my interest. They also gave me power of attorney, so that I could lease the lands should opportunity arise.

"Now, the entries were bona fide entries. They were made individually by those who filed. My money was paid on these lands—a sum reaching near $30,000.

"This was in May, 1903. The government has held and has used my money since. Patents on some parts of the land have already been issued and the rest will be issued and then my mortgages will be in effect—but they are not now. It was expressly stated in the instruments that the mortgages could only mature two years after patents were issued.

"When here came this Delzendorf and he secured affidavits from persons—scarcely known to anybody—to the effect that the filings were not made in good faith and that I was party to the fraud.

"There was no semblance of fraud about it. I loaned money on interest because I thought it a good investment. I think so still. I was sure a business transaction and nothing else can be made of it."

MARKET LETTER

Special Correspondence. "Cattle receipts last week were only 19,000 head, holiday week cutting the run down to a minimum as usual. Packers found themselves confronted with many urgent orders that they had not figured on, and the result was a scramble for killing grades and prices 15 to 20 cents higher. Offerings from the range country were confined to a small number of medium grade Colorado stockers at $3.75 to $4.00, cows only a little above canners at $2.75 to $3.15, Panhandle stockers $3.40 to $3.55, cows $2.40 to $2.55. The supply today is 9,000 cattle, including 250,000 calves. This is 115,000 cattle and 17,000 calves greater than were ever received here in a year previously, last year having exceeded other previous years, just as it was itself eclipsed by 1906. Total value of live stock of all classes received here during 1906 was $142,000,000.

Sheep and lambs advanced 10 to 25 cents last week, most gain on yearlings and lambs. Run is 6,800 today, market 10 cents lower. The offerings from Colorado have not been very good quality lately, selling at $6.50 to $7.15, weighing 60 to 64 pounds. There is nothing good here today from Colorado or the west. Kansas fed western lambs sold at $7.50 today, bulk of lambs above $7, some 85 pounds fed western yearlings at $6.25, light Mexican yearlings worth up to $6.50, wethers $5.00 to $5.65, ewes $4.65 to $5.35. Total sheep receipts here during 1906 were 1,615,000 head, an increase of 300,000 head over last year, which was the greatest year in sheep receipts previous to 1906.

SHOT DOWN BY A SALOONKEEPER.

Geo. Jewell was shot Sunday night at Portal, Dona Ana county, by A. B. Roswell, a saloonkeeper. Roswell, it will be remembered, was the man who killed C. E. Reed in his saloon at Portal last spring. Jewell was killed in the same saloon. Particulars of the trouble which led to the shooting have not been received.

GIRL INJURED AT ALAMOGORDO LAUNDRY.

Miss Emilia Borunda, daughter of Pancho Borunda, was badly injured by accidentally being caught in the mangle machine at the Alamogordo laundry, says the News. Her left hand got caught and the arm was pulled into the machine and the hand and forearm was badly crushed. Dr. Miller was called and it is understood that the hand and arm will be saved from amputation, though the girl will ever have a crippled hand.

BUMPED FOR A MILE OVER THE TIES.

Rev. Father Cellier, of Springer, relates a rather rough and peculiar experience while coming up from Roy over the Dawson road last Saturday, says the Stockman. On the way and while the train was running at an ordinary rate of speed, the car in front of the one he occupied with a number of other passengers jumped from the rails and rode along on the ties before it was noticed by the train crew. It must be, at best, a rough piece of track along there not to have noticed the difference between a run over the ties and rails.

BOUND OVER FOR PASSING BOGUS COIN.

Pedro Valparaiso, a young native, who says he is 29 years old, was given a hearing before Justice Bailey on the charge of passing a bogus coin for $10 at the Star bakery, says the Roswell Record. The supposed coin which he is accused of passing was a souvenir that had an imitation of a United States ten dollar gold piece on one side and a coin of the same denomination from Argentine Republic on the other. He was bound over to the federal grand jury with a bond of $750. Being unable to secure that amount of bail, the defendant is in jail.

WILL PLANT TWO HUNDRED ACRES TO ALFALFA.

F. J. Short of Greenfield, Iowa, is at Artesia. He is the gentleman who bought the Harry W. Hamilton farm some months ago. He has begun planting 200 acres of alfalfa, and when this is completed all the 450 acres will be under the succulent lucern. The Butler well rig moved out yesterday to drill another artesian well on the premises. Mr. Short is arranging matters to bring his family to Artesia next year when he will make extensive improvements on his farm. The place is one of the best in the valley for its size and is certain to prove a profitable investment to its owner.

BIDS FOR GOVERNMENT WORK TUCKED DOWN.

After having advertised for bids three successive times for the erection of the girls' home at the United States Indian training school near Santa Fe, Superintendent Clinton J. Crawford was forced to turn down the bids again because they were too high. Another change in the plans will be made and other bids will be asked for. M. M. Sundt, contractor of Las Vegas, was awarded the contract for the erection of the new mess hall, his bid being a little less than $16,000. The contract for an addition to the warehouse and for the erection of a lavatory were awarded to August Reingardt and Carlos Digneo, contractors of Santa Fe, for $2,900 and $3,000 respectively.

A VERY OLD WOMAN DEAD AT TUCSON.

Death claimed Tuesday, last week, the oldest resident of Tucson, and, without doubt, one of the oldest persons in the world, when Mrs. Salano M. Sosa passed away of old age, says the Tucson Citizen. Mrs. Sosa was 111 years old and had been a resident of this county for sixty-nine years. She was the mother of Mrs. M. McKanna.

She died Tuesday morning at 8 o'clock after an illness of but a short time. Notwithstanding her advanced years, Mrs. Sosa was bright mentally almost to the hour of her death.

She was born in Cocoposa, Sonora, on Christmas day, 1795. When she came to this vicinity sixty-nine years ago, there was no settlement in what is now Tucson. The soldiers had not yet reached that section and the Apache Indians were bloodthirsty then and were on the warpath, as they were in later years. The settlement at that time was at San Xavier Mission, although the old adobe church across the river was in use.

CONVICTS FROM SAN MIGUEL COUNTY.

Sheriff Cleofes Romero of Las Vegas and Deputies A. A. Sena and L. A. Dril, arrived in Santa Fe yesterday with four prisoners found guilty and sentenced to terms in the territorial prison at the recent session of the Fourth judicial district court for San Miguel county, Judge William J. Mills, presiding. They were turned over to the prison authorities and will enter upon the new year in convict garb. The prisoners were: William C. Brown, age 23 years, sentenced to two and a half years in prison for having stolen property in his possession. Brown is a negro and this is his second term in the New Mexico penitentiary.

Santiago Padilla, age 24 years, sentenced to two and a half years in prison for robbery.

Samuel Neumuth, age 37 years, sentenced to one year in prison for forgery.

J. P. O'Brien, age 18 years, sentenced to one year in prison for attempting to aid prisoners to escape from jail.

BOTTOMLESS LAKE IN PECOS VALLEY.

East of the Pecos river and some twelve miles from Roswell are three or four "bottomless lakes," said to be nearly a thousand feet deep. These lakes seem to have been formed by the crust of earth and rock over a given space sinking and the water rising to within a few feet of the surface of the ground. Since the unusual snow storm, which fell here last month, it has been discovered that a similar lake, about 500 feet in circumference, has suddenly appeared on the farm of a Mr. Ditto, two miles west of Lake Arthur. The water level stands about three feet below the surface of the ground. The lake is almost circular. Although a lake 166 feet long has been used to its full length in an attempt to sound this lake, the bottom of it was not reached.

HORDES OF JAPS WORKING IN MEXICO

On Mexican Central, and Trouble Experienced in Securing Laborers.

A dispatch from El Paso, dated December 30, says: Four hundred Japanese laborers were brought north on last night's Mexican Central passenger train and were distributed along the Chihuahua division, where they will be used on the section gangs.

The importation of the foreign laborers along the division is necessitated by the lack of native workmen who are needed on the road. Japanese are being employed by the Mexican Central and all other roads of Mexico to supply the labor demand that is becoming an important factor in railroad building in the republic.

The Japanese are being put to work alongside of the native workmen who are employed. It has been necessary to introduce these foreigners in the railroad owing to the scarcity of Mexicans who can be induced to labor on the line.

Wednesday the Sierra Madre sent 65 Japanese out of Juarez to Temasalc, where they will be employed to work on the extension of the road that is about completed between Temasalc and Madera, formerly called San Pedro Springs.

Swarms of Mexican laborers have migrated back into their native land from this country since the cold weather has set in and they have most all gone to the Laguna country.

The wages paid by the railroad companies in the United States have been so low that the laborers who do not pay taxes are not able to support their families in their own country.

The Mexican Central, but being difficult in securing laborers for the section gangs and it is said that they may be forced to import foreigners from the coast line, as the Southern Pacific has done in the recent past.

Albert McCready has been appointed road foreman of engines of the first and second districts of the Albuquerque division of the Santa Fe and Santa Fe (coast line), vice James Englehart, resigned.

Charles P. Neill, United States commissioner of labor, who has been in Texas for several days, trying to settle the firemen's strike of the Southern Pacific railroad, arrived at Albuquerque today. He says that his efforts to bring about a settlement of the strike were unsuccessful.

Effective at once, T. E. Purvis, Jr., is appointed superintendent of motive power and car departments of the Rio Grande, with headquarters at the Durango shops, Denver. J. D. Kenworthy is appointed assistant general freight and passenger agent, with office at Pueblo.

The other morning as No. 4 was going through a station near Kingman, Ariz., a Mexican threw a rock at the train. The rock went through the cab window, striking the fireman, D. V. Norris, on the hip, and badly cutting it, so that he has to be under the doctor's care.

M. P. Cheney, road foreman of engines, has been transferred from Needles to the Los Angeles division, and W. Reid, from San Bernardino, at present the road foreman there, is to take his place at Needles. This transfer was to have taken place some months ago, but has been delayed until the present time.

HALF MILLION DOLLAR FIRE CAUSED BY BOYS AT DEPOT.
Fire completely destroyed the roundhouse and storehouse of the Mexican International railroad at Monclova, December 29. The fire was started by two boys, who were playing with a lantern near the storehouse, where the oils and other combustibles were kept.

It is stated that no investigation was ordered, as it was perfectly plain to the officials that it was a hoodoo which did the business.

GREATEST FRENCH NOVELIST SIZES UP THE AMERICAN GIRL

FAMOUS PAUL BOURGET, IN AN ESTIMATE TRULY GALLIC, SAYS AMONG OTHER THINGS THAT THE GRASS WIDOW CHAPERON IS "IT" IN AMERICA—COMPARISON WITH THE GIRL OF FRANCE IMPOSSIBLE—ENJOYS HER LIBERTY TO THE LIMIT.

(BY PAUL BOURGET.)
Of the French Academy; Poet, Critic, and Novelist.

Special Correspondence.
The first thing that strikes the traveler who has heard much about the young woman of America is the absolute impossibility of distinguishing the married from the unmarried.

The oft commented fact that they come and go unattended would not suffice to establish this confusion. The similarity goes further. They wear the same jewels, the same dresses, they have the same independence of laughter and speech, the same looks, and same gestures, the same full-flowered beauty, and thanks to the invention of the "chaperon" there is not a theater or restaurant party or a tea where they do not go, always alone and at the invitation of any man they know well. The quality of this official supervision is measured by this other fact that the young girl in whose honor the bachelor gets up a party generally selects her own chaperon.

The younger the chaperon, the more she is appreciated. The youthful widow and the grass widow—the woman separated, divorced, or only momentarily parted from her husband—all the ideal requirements of the part.

This habit of self-governing without interference is displayed in the singular assurance stamped on their countenances.

One of the pleasantest men in New York, a poet, had the idea of forming a museum of miniatures in which were to figure with their consent all the professional beauties of the city. I remember examining with a rapturing glass this hundred pretty and refined faces, trying to guess those which had passed through marriage and those which had not. But it was impossible. And, indeed, what could marriage bring them which was not already theirs? Duties, a husband to tolerate, children to look after, a house to care for.

Today the young girl bears the weight of none of these chains. She knows this, and also that she is enjoying her best period. She will not acquire liberty through marriage, and will have less opportunity for amusement. So, as a rule, she marries late. If it is not quite so for her, as for the young Parisian who breaks with his bachelor life, it is a little beginning of abdication.

Most do not try to blind themselves to the fact. "We must have our fun before marriage," one of them said to me. "How can we know what will come afterward?" The divorce proceedings which the papers publish from time to time prove that this young person had as much common sense as beauty.

From a French Aspect.
At the first glance this absolute independence makes all these girls look alike. It is from them that French authors have constructed their stereotyped types of Americans for novels and plays. She was built up in the simplest way, with bad manners and a simple heart and there was the doll on its legs. Yet it was but a doll, and the two elements composing it are equally false.

The young American woman, when we see her among us, may appear to us ill-mannered because we compare her with the conventional type of our own girls which, he said in passing, is not very true to life either. Seen at home and from near at hand, we understand that the American girl's independent ways belong alike to the best and the worst breeding. After a time, however, we distinguish among them, and very clearly, the one who is fast and the one who is not.

As for simplicity, when we Frenchmen apply this word to girls, we always take for granted that the only question in the world which appeals to them is love. We esteem love essential to their existence, since they are women. We speculate on what they dream of love, what they know of it, and our measure of their innocence, of their purity of soul, lies exclusively in the answer. It is inferred that their knowledge of life is in harmony with that revelation alone.

The Measure of Love.
This measure cannot be applied to the American girl; since for her, as for the American man, love usually takes the second place in her thoughts. To know whether or not she will marry according to her heart, whether she will not have a romance, more frequently does not enter into her calculations. Even for those who seem to try the hardest to please, and who abuse most of physical coquetry—they are rarer than the French believe and commoner than the Americans acknowledge—this relation with men represents, nine times out of ten, only a feature of social life. It is a means of assuring triumphs of self-respect, of becoming what the newspapers call "prominent people in society," by the number of adorers.

Such coquetry is not as dangerous for them as it would be elsewhere, on account of the reserve of the American men on one side, and on the other the American woman's penetrating comprehension of masculine character.

They have begun to live so very early in intimacy with men that they are with the latter just as the children of a circus rider are with horses.

PAUL BOURGET

SOMETHING ABOUT THE GREAT FRENCHMAN WHO HAS THE NERVE TO TACKLE THE AMERICAN GIRL.

Paul Bourget is now a man of 55, who has been over ten years a member of the French academy, and who has made his fame in literature. He is the author of such novels as "Un Crime de Amour," "Un Cœur de Femme" and "Complications Sentimentales."

In 1895 he published his impressions of this country after a tour, under the title of "Outre Mer." He has the reputation of understanding human nature second only to Victor Hugo. He is a writer of the psychological school and an analyst in style and tendency. He is the most widely read of the present day French novelists. He is marked in his admiration for the English.

JOHN DENAIR HAS RESIGNED FROM SANTA FE.
It is generally reported that Superintendent John Denair, at Needles, has resigned his position, to take effect in the near future. He has been on a leave of absence for the past six months, and has large land interests in the San Joaquin valley, and is heavily interested in some valuable mining property on the desert. He has concluded to leave the service, to devote his time to his private interests.

Tramway Superintendent at Needles, and C. G. Fleury acting as tramwaymaster. These appointments were made by the new Superintendent Denair has a large number of friends among the railroaders who will be sorry to see him go.

FORT BAYARD, N. M., DEC. 24. Dangers of a Cold and How to Avoid Them.
More fatalities have their origin in or result from a cold than from any other cause. This fact alone should make people more careful as there is no danger whatever from a cold when it is properly treated in the beginning. For many years Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has been recognized as the most prompt and effective medicine in use for this disease. It acts on nature's plan, loosens the cough, relieves the lungs, opens the secretions and aids nature in restoring the system to a healthy condition. Sold by all druggists.

We Have Made No New Resolutions

Old habit still clings and will dominate the policy we shall pursue through 1907—the habit we formed at the beginning of our business career of serving our customers faithfully. For our old friends and the numerous new ones 1906 brought us we still retain the old habits that brought us all success—that of aiding them in spending their shoe money to the best advantage. Just at this period when the increased cost of materials is such a temptation to skip a little we stick as close as ever to the quality habit. So when you buy our shoes you need have no misgivings about their future. We guarantee satisfaction.

Deputy Sheriff Montoya unravelled a profound (?) mystery for A. E. Clark, a Parajito merchant, on New Year's day. En route to Parajito from Albuquerque Monday Clark accidentally fell from his wagon and a friend who found him lying stunned in the road took him to his home. The team disappeared and Clark came to Albuquerque and reported at the sheriff's that he feared his team and wagon had been stolen. Deputy Sheriff Montoya accompanied Clark to his home where the team was found locked in Clark's corral and the wagon stood nearby. Nothing was missing. Another friend had found the outfit and taken them home, apparently while Clark was at the home of the party who discovered him lying in the road.

DRUG STORES WILL CLOSE ON SUNDAYS

PHARMACISTS CONCLUDE TO CLOSE BETWEEN HOURS OF 1 P. M. AND 6 P. M. SUNDAYS.

Beginning January 6th, the drug stores of this city will close during the hours between 1 p. m. and 6 p. m. on Sundays, and the public will do well to remember this new regulation. Though at first this will strike some as inconvenient its justice to the storekeeper is apparent as there is no class of business which requires so much of its proprietors and employees as does the pharmaceutical line. Reasonable rest is essential to all men and it is with this end in view that the druggists of Albuquerque have decided on this step.

OUR annual January sale is a demonstration of our belief in making merchandise move in season. Some lines that remain practically intact must share the fate of broken lots and sizes in this January clearance. Goods that have been too high class for the majority of buyers must move back into the ranks of the lower priced. Excess stock must diminish, and our method of bringing this result about is the ready knife that cuts deep into prices.

In a few days we will announce some startling price-reductions on all of our left-overs.

In the meantime, call in if in need of any Clothing or Furnishing Goods and we can convince you quickly that our store is the best place for you to obtain these goods. All of our Suits, Overcoats, Underwear, Hosiery, Sweaters and other Winter Furnishings are offered at cut prices.
