CHANGE MADE IN HARRY THAW COUNSEL

Delmas Demanded Charge of Case on Pain of His Withdrawal.

SEVERAL IMPORTANT WITNESSES INTRODUCED

Judge Overrules Jerome's Objections—Dramatic Scene in Court on Delmas Demand.

New York, Feb. 6.—Interest in the opening of the Thaw case centered in the maneuvers of the counsel for the defense, who was dissatisfied at the manner in which Gleason conducted the case yesterday. As soon as the case was opened Delmas had assumed charge. It was said that Delmas delivered an ultimatum that he would withdraw from the case unless given a free hand to conduct the case in the fight for Thaw's life.

Benjamin Bowman, doorkeeper at the Garden theater, was the first witness. "Few nights after Christmas," he said, "Stanford White came up to me after the show and wanted to know if Miss Nesbit had gone home. I told him she had. He replied: 'You are a liar.' I told him to go back upon the stage and see for himself. When he returned, as he passed me he pulled a pistol from his pocket and muttered 'I'll kill that fellow before daylight.' The witness said he communicated the threat to Thaw.

Witness Cross-Examined. On cross-examination Bowman said the incident occurred on Christmas eve, 1903. He said further he told White Miss Nesbit had gone home with Thaw. White did not mention Thaw by name when he made the threat of killing.

Witness Withdrawn. William C. Howard, a piano dealer, succeeded Bowman upon the stand. He testified he did not know White, but that a man had been pointed out to him as White. Objection was made to his stating his conversation with this man as being no identification of White. Delmas thereupon withdrew the witness until some future time.

Another Introduced. Martin Green, a newspaper man, was the next witness. He was a witness of the shooting of White by Thaw. He said Thaw was very pale at the time, his eyes seemed about to pop from his head and his hair was hanging down upon his forehead. "To the question of your opinion, was his action rational or irrational?" Jerome objected on the ground that the witness was not a competent expert. Delmas quoted authorities supporting his question, but the district attorney contended the decision had been preceded by a later opinion. Thereupon the court ordered a recess until 2 o'clock, during which time the attorneys were to consult authorities.

Delmas Plies Jerome Down. At the afternoon session Justice Fitzgerald overruled Jerome's objection and Green was directed to answer. He said that Thaw's actions were irrational. On cross-examination Green stated he had had no experience with insane persons and he judged entirely from Thaw's conduct. Thomas McCabe, who accompanied Thaw to dinner the evening of the tragedy, testified that he saw Mrs. Thaw pass her husband a note at the table at a cafe. There was a dramatic scene when Delmas called upon Jerome to produce the note. Jerome sat silent and would not reply.

CERTAIN CONDITIONS ALMOST REVERSE OUR POSITION NOW AND IN THE WAR WITH SPAIN

—A SCATTERED AMERICAN NAVY AND A CONCENTRATED, POWERFUL JAPANESE NAVY—JAPS COULD TAKE THE PHILIPPINES AT PRACTICALLY NO COST AND IT WOULD BE ONLY AT TERRIFIC EXPENSE THAT WE COULD RETAKE THEM.

Special Correspondence.

Washington, Feb. 6.—War with Japan would not be the holiday frolic the war with Spain was nine years ago. War with Japan would be real war, and the administration knows it, as evinced by its earnest endeavor to avoid any appearance of inviting a clash.

It is believed here that the financial question will not cause much embarrassment to the Japanese. It is almost cheaper for them to be at war than to dwell in peace. Right now they are equipped perfectly on a war footing. It would cost them nothing at this time to take the Philippines except a few lives—and they are not sparing of lives when the lives are lost in action.

They could hold the Philippines at their ease. It would then be ten times cheaper for the United States to give up the Philippines than to retake them. Japan, unless wiped off the seas, could hold the islands indefinitely. It is declared by some experts.

The positions of the United States now and in the war with Spain are almost reversed. Then the United States had not, as Spain did, remote colonial possessions and consequent divided forces exposed to attack and capture. Now it has, and its opponent has not. On paper our navy is apparently superior to the Japanese navy, but it since sailing Monday night. Both are believed to be held in ice fields. Each has passenger list numbering thirty to forty persons.

SIGNAL SERVICE WILL MAKE BALLOON EXPERIMENTS

Washington, Feb. 6.—General Allen, chief signal officer of the army, is making preparations for most extensive experiments with balloons, airships and aeroplanes, with a view to settling on some system of aerial navigation for the army. Experiments will be held at Fort Omaha, just outside of Omaha, and $50,000 has been appropriated for this purpose. The date has not yet been set. Allen said today he believed this country was far ahead of any other nation in the matter of flying machines and expected some surprises to be developed at the test.

UNION PACIFIC SEPARATED FROM

Southern Pacific Is Probable Outcome of Investigation

BY INTERSTATE COMMERCE COMMISSION'S WORK

Railroads Take Proper Step to Make People Pay Advanced Wages of Employees.

New York, Feb. 6.—The Times today says that it is learned from banking quarters that the controlling interests of the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific railroads are prepared for recommendation by the Interstate Commerce commission to divorce Union Pacific and Southern Pacific properties. Legal proceedings will be contested in the United States supreme court but if adverse decision is rendered the Union Pacific will sell its Southern Pacific holdings, but this will in no way affect the harmonious relations between the two properties and Harriman will control both as James J. Hill controls the Northern and Northern Pacific railroads.

JONES, HE MUST PAY ALL FREIGHT CHARGES.

Chicago, Feb. 6.—The Record-Herald today says: By action taken yesterday the railroads of the country have paved the way to drag back to their coffers the millions they recently handed to employees in the way of increased wages. The shipper is to pay, if the vote now being taken affirms the proposition to increase the minimum load in freight cars. It is difficult to estimate how much this will increase the revenue of railroads, but if the minimum is increased 10 per cent it is estimated that it will mean over $100,000,000 annually. Traffic men declare that while the size of freight cars has been increased two and even threefold, there has been little increase in the minimum load. They claim the increase will not hurt the shipper, while it will add materially to the capacity of the railroads. The roads interested in this move include those east of this city and north of the Ohio river. If the move is successful it will be extended to all the railroads of the United States.

LARGE GATHERING OF KNIGHTS OF MALTA.

Practically the whole membership of the uniformed division are present and the gathering is one of the largest of its kind that ever took place in this country.

UNITED STATES COLLIER VOYAGE.

Brooklyn, N. Y., Feb. 6.—The United States collier Brutus sailed today for Samoa with 5,000 tons of coal. The trip will take four months. The distance is 13,000 miles. The last trip of the Brutus was around the world when she towed the mammoth dry dock Dewey to Manila.

THE PRESIDENT OF COUNCIL ADS US

In Effort to Control Rio Grande by Supporting Appropriation Bill.

MEASURE CARRIES BY HIS MAGNIFICENT EFFORTS

Ruppe Objects to Graft Being Cut Off From Members of the Legislature.

Santa Fe, Feb. 6.—Councilman Sulzer of Bernalillo county yesterday introduced council bill No. 42, for the improvement of the Rio Grande, but which was really an appropriation of $8,000 for the strengthening of the dykes to protect the city of Albuquerque together with the farms north and south of the city, from the annual spring floods, which have so often and so long threatened the city and its tributary territory.

Mr. Sulzer explained the bill and asked for suspension of rules to secure immediate action, as the flood season would soon be on hand.

President Spies of the council called Councilman Carl A. Dailies to the chair and took the floor in favor of the bill. Mr. Spies made an able and convincing speech, as he always does on any subject he may choose to handle. He showed the importance of the effort to protect one of the finest parts of the Rio Grande valley, and paid a fitting tribute to the city of Albuquerque, which single handed and alone had fought the devouring floods for twenty years, and had borne the costs of the fight invaded by the territory. He spoke from personal knowledge and with an enthusiasm born of admiration for the unaided fight Albuquerque had waged. He opposed the placing of the appropriation in charge of the territorial irrigation engineer, but contended that those who had met the issues of threatened inundation for twenty years, knew the most about the problem to be solved, and to them the entire affair should be committed.

President Spies' compliments to the public spirit of Albuquerque were strong and pointed but in no wise fulsome. His argument was not only convincing but irresistible. It carried all before it, and when the vote was taken, the bill passed without a dissenting vote. Councilman Cammeron of Eddy county asking to be excused from voting. The thanks of Bernalillo county are abundantly due to President Spies, and the debt of gratitude should not be forgotten should any opportunity to manifest it ever come Albuquerqueward.

City Assessment Law.

There is a strong sentiment in the territory to re-enact the Meyers bill for the assessment and collection of taxes of the cities, towns and villages of New Mexico. This bill was introduced into the house by Representative Ernest Meyers of Albuquerque in 1903. It has been drawn by N. C. Collier, afterward judge of the Albuquerque district, at the request of the Albuquerque city council. After an earnest contest of two weeks the Meyers bill was passed but the next legislature repealed it before the bill had gone into effect.

Should the bill be passed again, non-progressive and non-resident property holders will be compelled to bear their just due of the expenses of the city, which has made for their property all its value over farm lands. The bill will probably meet with some opposition.

The house held an interesting session this morning, at which the first resolution to pay employees was passed. The amount for the house is $3,352, and for the council $2,294. This is for the first fifteen days of the session. There may follow some changes among the employees, as it is the intention of the house to keep within its share of the $15,000 appropriation.

Council bill No. 22, carrying an $8,000 appropriation for the improvement of the Rio Grande dykes in Bernalillo county, which was passed by the council, is now in the house and will undoubtedly pass.

The judiciary committee has favorably reported to the house Mr. Holt's bill to prevent members from holding appointive jobs while members of the assembly.

Mr. Deniston of Las Vegas introduced a bill today for the creation of Garfield county, or the division of San Miguel, with old Las Vegas as the county seat. This bill is in the hands of the committee on county and county lines.

Moran precipitated another debate in the house by introducing a modifying clause to the Sunday law. Holt and Hartsel made a spirited fight for the measure. It was tabled indefinitely and the house voted not to consider such a measure again.

Council bill No. 27, for the relief of Torrance county, providing a territorial loan of $2,000 for the district court, was sent by the speaker to the committee on finance for a report this afternoon. It will probably become a law by Wednesday, unless the governor does not sign it.

Ruppe introduced a bill as an offset to the Holt measure, providing that no member of the legislature can hold or accept an appointment either from the governor or the legislature. It went to the committee on judiciary.

Studley introduced a bill for the regulation of the practice of medicine and for an examining board, which was also sent to the committee on judiciary.

Both houses are in session this afternoon.

WAR WITH JAPAN RED WAR, NOT LIKE THAT WITH SPAIN

Foe of 1898 and Possible Foe of 1907 Compared.

UNITED STATES AND SPAIN IN 1898.

POPULATION—United States, 70,900,000; Spain, 18,000,000.

AREA—United States, 3,602,990 square miles; Spain, 419,920 square miles.

NATIONAL DEBT—United States, $1,785,000,000; Spain, $1,750,000,000.

ARMIES—American, 28,290 regulars, well trained; Spain, 123,180 regulars, ill trained. United States called 269,000 volunteers; Spain had a reserve of 1,000,000, and nothing to arm them with.

NAVIES—United States, 86 vessels, including 4 first-class battleships, 1 second-class, 2 armored cruisers, 2 fast protected cruisers, 6 monitors, 11 small protected cruisers, 12 gunboats and 15,425 men. Spain, 137 vessels, including 2 battleships, 9 armored cruisers, 5 modern protected cruisers, some gunboats, and 24,727 men. Hardly a ship of Spain's was in first-class condition to fight.

DIVISION OF FORCES—United States, all forces at home except 4 protected cruisers, 2 gunboats and 1,508 men in China. Spain had 6 small cruisers, 3 gunboats and 1,794 men in the Philippines; in Cuba, 50,000 regulars, 30,000 volunteers and 10,000 police, 153 guns, and 4 cruisers, 2 destroyers and 2,600 bluejackets; 5,000 regulars, etc., in Porto Rico; 7,000 regular and 4,000 volunteer troops in Philippines.

UNITED STATES AND JAPAN IN 1907.

POPULATION—United States (with Islands), 94,000,000; Japan, with Formosa and Korea, 60,000,000. Area—United States, with Islands, 3,756,885 square miles; Japan, with Formosa and Korea, 229,655 square miles.

NATIONAL DEBT—United States, $925,000,000; Japan, $1,250,000,000.

REVENUE—United States, $695,000,000 annually; Japan, $133,000,000 annually.

ARMY—United States, 100,000 regulars, well trained; 167,700 militia; citizens available for military duty, 11,000,000; guns, 10,000. Japan, 350,000 veterans of Manchuria; 810,000 reserves; militia available, trained and enthusiastic for military duty.

NAVY—United States, battleships 29, armored cruisers 12, monitors 10, protected cruisers 22, unprotected cruisers 16, torpedo boats and destroyers 56, submarines 9, transports, etc., 118; 34,500 men, 6,300 marines. Japan, battleships 26, armored cruisers 13, protected cruisers 29, unprotected cruisers 28, torpedo boats and destroyers 130, submarines 10, transports, etc., 162, and 33,000 men.

DISPOSITION OF FORCES—United States, 4 battleships, 7 cruisers, 5 torpedo boats, 15 gunboats scattered in far east, Philippines and on the Pacific coast; remainder of naval forces on Atlantic coast; bulk of army at home, except 28,000 in Philippines, some in Cuba and a few in Hawaii. Japan, all forces in Japan, Korea, Manchuria and Formosa.

is scattered nearly as much as the Spanish navy ever was, and cannot be concentrated anywhere without leaving exposed points that must be guarded. For instance, even if it is practicable to take from the Atlantic all the vessels that would be needed to dominate the Pacific, there would at once be a dangerous insecurity of the Atlantic coast.

Hawaii is not fortified, and cannot be if hostilities open soon. Any reinforcements started to the Philippines would mean to precipitate the attack on the islands. In fact, a war with Japan would not only be a difficult one, but a long one and perhaps a very humiliating one.

On the part of the United States military operations would be very expensive, much more than the war with Spain, which cost $162,000,000. Of course these views are not pleasant, but they are some of the more cautious and pessimistic ones expressed by students of the war game.

Special Correspondence.

New York, Feb. 5.—With the presidential campaign little more than a year away, democratic leaders are busily figuring out the best plan of action to follow in opposing either Roosevelt or the Roosevelt ticket, which certainly will be presented by the republican party.

For many months it has been a certainty that the name of William J. Bryan would figure prominently in the democratic national convention, but Mr. Bryan's attitude on railroad matters, in speeches made on his return from abroad, alienated much of the south and has raised serious question in the minds of many as to the advisability of his nomination. It also is practically certain that the name of William R. Hearst will figure in the convention, but Mr. Hearst will not be nearly as strong a candidate for the presidency as he would be if he would be elected governor here last November.

For a long time there has been a growing sentiment in favor of naming a southern man as the democratic standard-bearer. This sentiment has been crystallizing around the name of David R. Francis, of St. Louis, former governor of Missouri, and known internationally as the president of the St. Louis exposition of 1904. Mr. Francis is looked upon by democrats generally as an excellent candidate upon whom both conservatives and radicals could unite. Then, too, Missouri is regarded, geographically, as an ideal state to go to for a candidate.

Missouri always has been ranked as a southern state, although really a border state. Still, it voted with the "Solid South" presidentially until Roosevelt broke up the combination. In the last campaign, there is reason to believe that New York and other eastern states would take very kindly to Mr. Francis' selection, and many southern democrats have expressed their satisfaction at the suggestion of his nomination and the reward it would confer on the democracy of the south for its long continued party loyalty.

Passing of August Belmont.
Possibly the most interesting event of the last few weeks, not only to the financial world but to New Yorkers generally, was the passing of August Belmont from first rank in the local traction field. Through the generalship of Thomas F. Ryan, Mr. Belmont is being pushed rapidly to the background and Ryan men, who but surely, are absorbing the power that for a brief time was in Mr. Belmont's hands.

It was not many years ago that Mr. Belmont, famous as the son of his father, entered the local traction field at the instance of John R. McDonald, who then had secured the contract for building New York's first subway. Mr. Belmont, aided by Andrew Freedman, finally succeeded in convincing Mr. Belmont that it would be a good proposition to finance the building of the great tunnel. Shortly after he joined the enterprise, Mr. Belmont began to imagine that he was a natural born traction manager. He purchased the Manhattan elevated lines and joined them with the Interborough company, which was to run the subway. Then Mr. Belmont, jealous of the credit that had been given to Mr. McDonald for building the subway, made it uncomfortable for the latter and quickly forced him out of Interborough affairs. Mr. McDonald allied himself with the rival Metropolitan interests, which controlled the street surface line of Manhattan and the Bronx, and which were dominated by Thomas F. Ryan. The Metropolitan contingent then became rival bidders of the Interborough for future subway work.

Belmont, far too small to carry the weight of the traction situation on his own shoulders, soon was forced to make terms with Ryan, and the result was a combination of the Interborough and Metropolitan interests in the Interborough-Metropolitan company with Mr. Belmont nominally as president. This was a concession to Mr. Belmont at the beginning, but it amounted to little.

How Shonts Came In.
As the Consolidated "Inter-Met" company progressed in its career it soon became apparent that Mr. Ryan had taken Mr. Belmont completely into camp, and that, figuratively speaking, the fall Mr. Belmont had swallowed the small Mr. Belmont. All of the unpleasant features of the combination were quickly passed over to Mr. Belmont, while all of the real advantages were retained by Mr. Ryan and his friends.

This was further emphasized a few days ago when Mr. Belmont, through the "persuasions" of Mr. Ryan, was dropped from the presidency of the "Inter-Met" and Theodore P. Shonts, chairman of the Panama Canal Commission, succeeded him. Mr. Shonts is distinctly a Ryan man and his election largely was brought about by Paul Morton, whom Mr. Ryan took from President Roosevelt's cabinet, where he was secretary of the navy, and made him president of the Consolidated Life Assurance society. Mr. McDonald, whom Mr. Belmont ungraciously had sought to kick out of traction affairs, was made vice president of the "Inter-Met" at Ryan's desire.

Mr. Belmont, by courtesy of the Ryan contingent, was permitted to continue as chairman of the board of directors, but the financial world sees in every move his gradual relegation to the background. Now the "Inter-Met" held firmly in hand by Ryan, will have a free hand in building the next subways and Mr. McDonald will do the work.

Ryan and his friends now control every foot of elevated, surface, and underground railroads in all the boroughs of Greater New York. Mr. Belmont's success as a "traction man" is about as great as was his success in the affairs of the Louisville & Nashville railroad.

To Purify the Rivers.
Several public-spirited citizens are conducting a comprehensive campaign for purifying the Hudson river and other waters of the state, which today are so polluted with sewage that they are a menace to health.

This work is being done by a special committee appointed by the Merchants' Association, with Edward Hatch, Jr., as its chairman. Mr. Hatch's associates on the committee are J. Pierpont Morgan, John V. Cuyler, George C. Whipple and Albert Vander Veer.

This committee is taking steps to check pollution of all state waters, and especially of the Hudson. Its engineers have estimated that 455,000,000 gallons of sewage are discharged into the water in the neighborhood of New York every twenty-four hours, and the amount of drainage due to rainfall is about 24,000,000 gallons, making a total of 695,000,000 gallons of drainage waste which the river and harbor receive daily. All of this eventually should go out to sea, but under present conditions the harbor is not properly flushed except during freshets in the Hudson. As a result, large quantities of refuse are spread over the bay and left on the shores between long intervals of heavy rains. This is apparent, not only in the scum over the harbor, but in great banks of holmwood refuse on the harbor bottom and floating on the surface.

Mr. Hatch's committee is at work on legislation, both in New York and in New Jersey to provide proper outlet for sewage of the Hudson valley and of the Potomac valley, without having it dumped into the waters immediately surrounding the city. The committee also is seeking to prevent the contamination of the Hudson river ice supply. It is also at work to compel not only the state of New York but the state of Vermont to properly safeguard Lake Champlain.

Newspapers and Thaw Trial.
Never in the history of criminal trials have such elaborate arrangements been made to furnish news to the newspapers as those made for the trial of Harry K. Thaw for the murder of Stanford White, now in progress in the criminal courts building. Great cables have been run into the court room to communicate with the cables of the telegraph operators, each cable containing nineteen wires, and each wire connected directly with a news association or a newspaper office. One London paper has the exclusive use of two of the wires.

In addition to the telegraph service there are a score of telephone booths set up conveniently to the courtroom. They are solely for newspaper use. One London paper has an exclusive telephone wire for its continuous use. Even these facilities are insufficient for all purposes, and fully 100 messengers and telegraph boys are constantly in service running copy. Fully 200 reporters, artists and special correspondents representing papers all over the world sought accommodations to report the trial, but only a third of them were admitted to the courtroom.

State Societies Form Club.
So many different state societies have been formed in this city that, under the initiative of the Michigan society, steps have been taken to bring all of these organizations together in a movement to establish a permanent club in which each society can make its headquarters.

Leading in the movement are the Michigan, Ohio, Indiana and Pennsylvania societies. These plans already have been drawn by an architect for a building to equal that of any club house in the city. Provision has been made for an auditorium and banquet hall which will seat more than 1,000 guests. It is planned to have a raised platform at one end and arrange handomely finished boxes along the sides. Coats-of-arms of the various states, intermingled with university and college colors, will adorn the basis of the plan for decoration.

Each state would have a separate committee room for its state society and state university, and in each room would be placed newspapers and periodicals from the state in question. This movement shows more plainly than anything else the extent to which men from all states of the union have been flocking to New York during the past decade of general national prosperity. Today there is scarcely a state in the union that is not represented in the metropolitan by its state society composed of natives and citizens of the state who now make their home in the metropolis.

More Restriction on Insurance.
Profiting by the experience of the recent elections of the New York and Mutual Life Insurance companies, steps have been taken to induce the legislature to prevent the use of policyholders' money in future companies for the elections of directors. Steps also are being taken to have policyholders' money in canvassing the vote.

Present estimates of the cost of canvass of the December 13th election vary from $75,000 to $100,000 for each company. The inspectors of elections in the companies show every disposition to string out the proceedings as long as possible, and it is interesting to note that each of the inspectors, of which there are six in each company, draw compensation at the rate of $35 a day or $210 a week. There is no chance of finishing the canvass in either company for several weeks yet.

Morgan's Famous Art Collections.
J. Pierpont Morgan's famous collection of art objects, through the gradual acquisition of the last ten years and which is now in the South Kensington Museum in London, is likely to be brought to New York and placed in the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

Sir Casper Purdon Clarke, director of the Metropolitan, has been urging Mr. Morgan for some time to take this step. In the Morgan collection are about thirty large cases of rare art objects, including bronzes and marble reliefs. There is also a fine collection of Henri II ware and a number of valuable examples of ecclesiastical metals, enamels and Limoges.

There is also a celebrated Eros, a bronze Cupid of large size, and one of the most beautiful examples of antique bronze known. It cost Mr. Morgan $20,000.

Race in Construction.
Pedestrians along lower Broadway each day are interestingly watching the progress of a novel race by building contractors. Each contractor is rushing work on a twenty-four story building and each contractor now has his men at work on the twenty-third story.

One of the buildings is to be occupied by the United States Express company and is in Rector street, just off Broadway. The other structure is a short distance away and is known as the West Street building. Each structure is to cost over $3,000,000. In addition to these buildings many other skyscrapers are in course of erection in the financial district and its vicinity. When completed, the buildings now in course of construction will be worth fully $50,000,000.

Slot Machines Tabooed.
The Rapid Transit commission has decided not to allow slot machines on the stations of the new Lexington avenue subway. It is to be excluded on aesthetic grounds, along with the shrieking poster and other forms of advertising art.

The newsstand is the only concession to the utilitarian spirit which the commission is willing to make. The gold-framed poster will probably not be missed, but the slot machine unquestionably has many friends.

According to the authority that knows all about it, the machine takes in 7,500,000 cents a year on the various stations of the present subway. About one person in every ten who travel dailies with it long enough to find out whether he's going to get his money's worth or not.

LAS VEGAS COMMERCIAL CLUB TURNED DOWN

SANTA FE DECLINES TO RE-OPEN HOT SPRINGS LINE: NEVER BROUGHT MATERIAL PROFIT.

In answer to a petition of the Las Vegas Commercial club to the Santa Fe, requesting the company to re-open and operate the Las Vegas Hot Springs line, W. B. Jansen writes the following letter:

Topeka, Jan. 29, 1907.

Mr. G. A. Fleming, Secretary, Commercial Club, Las Vegas, N. M.

Dear Sir: In the absence of President Ripley, your communication of the 24th has been referred to me. I think there is nothing I can do to the people of Las Vegas about our experience in the operation of this branch that they do not now know. The service at present in effect is, from the standpoint of passenger earnings, even more than we can afford to maintain, and any increase in the passenger service on the branch means direct and no inconsiderable loss of money.

So far as your state affairs and other public enterprises held at the amusement park in question are concerned, we are looking upon the proposed inauguration of such passenger service between the town and park as seems to be necessary during the period of such fair, etc. But I think, beyond this, the Commercial club and the people of Las Vegas should not ask us to go.

It is true that we have advertised the Hot Springs and the Gallinas Canyon, but it is true also that this has never brought us any material direct profit, and with the hotel closed up, as was absolutely necessary, there seemed no requirements for other service than that we are now giving.

If I am in any way wrong about this, please advise me. I have asked our people to look into the matter and I shall try and ascertain the facts, and if I find I am wrong I shall write you further.

Yours truly,

W. B. JANSEN.

Rome: Considerable interest is manifested in high circles here regarding an attempt which is being made to annul the marriage of the young Duke Della Salle. In 1905 the duke, while at Athens, fell in love with a beautiful but poor girl named Marika Karanos and made preparations to marry her. The duke's father, however, was strongly opposed to the match and took steps to prevent the union of the young people. While the wedding was in progress the young duke was suddenly called away by an urgent message and went to the French consulate. What transpired there is not definitely known, but it appears that the young duke was adjudged a lunatic and as such was conveyed to Vienna. The father of Marika immediately began an investigation of the bridegroom's disappearance, traced him to Vienna and went there and conducted him back to Athens, where the duke and Marika were married according to the rites of both the Greek and Roman churches.

Some months later an agent of the old duke succeeded in winning the confidence of the newly married couple and eventually induced the young duke to go to Paris and make his peace with the family. From that time all trace of the young duke has been lost. His father has applied to the vatican authorities here to annul the duke's marriage to Marika. The latter appealed to the pope, but received an unsatisfactory answer, and later, with her newly born daughter, the young duchess came to Rome and is demanding justice from the vatican. The old duke, on hearing of Marika's arrival here, offered her money, but the duchess, although suffering from poverty, refused to accept anything from her husband's father. That is how the affair stands and the reply of the vatican is anxiously awaited.

PAPER COMBINE AGAIN
TO BE PUT ON GRILL
Washington, Jan. 29, 1907.
The investigations will not only affect newspapers, which pay $25,000,000 annually for the paper they consume, but also book publishers and bookbinders, writers and other paper manufacturers who consume at least $71,000,000 worth of paper.

The General Paper company of Chicago, which was a selling corporation, organized under the laws of the state of Illinois, and the mills controlled by it, scattered among Illinois and other paper-making states of the west, was dissolved some months ago as a result of judicial proceedings instituted in Minnesota. The institution of the suit was followed by a 30 per cent reduction in the price of paper to newspapers, according to information given to the attorney general.

Now the department of justice has again been informed that the price of paper has been raised and that a new combination of ownership of the mills and the mills themselves has been organized which takes the place of the trust declared unlawful.

The new combine has been formed under what is known as the Parks pooling system. There is no new ownership of property and the penalty plan of insuring against overproduction has been superseded by a method of paying smaller mills to shut down when the market is so heavily stocked that the price is menaced.

The monthly report of the director of the mints shows that the total coinage executed at the mints of the United States during January was $7,236,820, as follows: Gold, $6,525,000; silver, $248,000; minor coins, $463,820. BRAVE GIRL SAVES HER SPANIEL FROM MAD DOG.
Fargo: Without regard to her own personal safety, a young woman fought a mad dog in front of the Robb-Lawrence building and prevented the animal from biting her pet, a pretty little spaniel that was trotting at her heels. The fearless act of the young woman was witnessed by several men, who were standing in the office of the city hall, but before the police could be notified and an officer sent to the scene, the mad dog had disappeared. Officer Coleman spent several hours looking for the animal, but was not successful in his search.

It was about 6 o'clock in the morning when a dog was seen running frantically down N. P. avenue. At least five dogs got in the way of the mad dog and were bitten. One of the dogs sustained an especially severe wound, the flesh being torn from a large part of its back.

Kicks Dog in the Ribs.
Just before the mad dog reached the Robb-Lawrence building a young woman, followed by a spaniel, stepped out of the hallway. The dog apparently saw the woman approaching and sprang from behind its mistress. The latter grabbed the little fellow and pushed him back of her. She turned just in time to meet the onrush of the mad dog with a well directed kick in the ribs. The canine toppled, and having regained its feet and promptly renewed the attack. Again the young woman planted the tip

REAL LIFE DETECTIVE STORY

The Case Of Mr. George Edalji

BY THE GREATEST LIVING CRIMINOLOGIST

SIR A. CONAN DOYLE

CHAPTER III.

And now for the letters. They were signed by various names, but the more important purported to come from a young schoolboy, named Greatorex. This youth denied all knowledge of them, and was actually away in the Isle of Man when some of them were written, as well as on Aug. 17, the date of the Wyrley outrage. It is a curious fact that this youth, in going up to Walsall every day to school, traveled with a certain number of school fellows upon the same train, and that the names of some of these school fellows do find their way into these letters. In the same carriage traveled young Edalji upon some few occasions. "I have known accused by sight for three or four years," said Greatorex at the trial, "he has traveled in the same compartment with me and my schoolmates, going to Walsall. This has not occurred many times during the last twelve months—about a dozen times, in fact." Now, at first sight, one would think this was a point for the police, as on the presumption that Edalji wrote these anonymous letters it would account for the familiarity with these youths displayed in them. But since Edalji always went to business by the 7:30 train in the morning, and the boys took the same train every day, to find himself in their company twelve times in one year was really rather more seldom than one would expect him to find in their compartment as into any other.

"THERE WILL BE MERRY TIMES AT WYRLEY IN NOVEMBER, WHEN THEY START ON LITTLE GIRLS," THE LETTER SAID.

and he seems to have been in their company but not of it. Yet the anonymous writer knew that group of boys well, and the police, by proving that Geo. Edalji had known them, seemed to make a distinct point against him.

The "Greatorex" letters to the police are all to the effect that the writer is a member of the gang for maiming cattle, that Geo. Edalji is another member, and that he (Greatorex) is prepared to give away the gang if certain conditions are complied with. "I have got a devious face and can run well, and when they formed that gang at Wyrley they got me to join. I knew all about horses and beasts and how to catch them best." "I would say they would do me in if I faked it, so I did, and caught them both lying down at ten minutes to three, and they roused up; and then I caught each under the stomach, but they didn't spurt much blood, and one ran away, but the other fell." "Now I'll tell you who are in the gang, but you can't prove it without me. There is one named 'from Wyrley,' and a porter who they call 'and he's had to stay away, and there's Edalji, the lawyer." "Now I have not told you who is at the back of them all, and I shan't unless you promise to do nothing at me. It is not true we always do it when the moon is young, and the one Edalji killed on April 11 was full moon." (It is worth mentioning here that there was no outrage at all within a week of that date.) "I've never been locked up yet, and I don't think any of the others have, except the captain, so I guess they'll get off light."

I would draw attention in passing to the artistic touch of "ten minutes to three." This is realism, as done, as no mutilator on a dark night could readily consult his watch nor care to remember the exact hour to a minute. But it corresponds closely to the remarkable power of imaginative detail—a rather rare gift—shown in the boxes of 1893-95.

In the next letter, also to the police, the unknown refers to his previous communication, but is a good deal more truculent and abusive than before. "There will be merry times at Wyrley in November," he says, "when they start on little girls, for they will do twenty wenchies like the horses before next March. Don't think you are likely to catch them cutting the beasts; they go too quiet, and lie low for hours, till your men have gone. Mr. Edalji, him they said was locked up, is going to Brum on Sunday night to see the captain, near Northfield, about how it's to be carried on with so many detectives about, and I believe they are going to do some cows in the day time instead of at night. I think they are going to kill beasts nearer here soon, and I know Crags Keys farm and West Cannock farm are the two first on the list. You bloated blackguard, I will shoot you with father's gun through your thick head if you come in my way or go sneaking to any of my pals."

This letter was addressed, like the last, to:

The Sergeant,
Police Station, Hednesford,
Staffordshire.

bearing a Walsall postmark of July 19, 1903. Edalji is openly accused of the crimes in the letters, and yet the police put forward the theory that he himself wrote them, and founded upon the last sentence of them, which I have quoted so far, and which sounded so formidable in his indictment, viz., of while Edalji was receiving these scurrilous letters, and while the police were receiving others accusing the young lawyer, you were naturally asking why did he not take some steps himself to prove his innocence and to find out the writer? He did, as a matter of fact, everything in his power. He offered a reward of £25 in the public press—a reward, according to the police theory, for his own apprehension. He showed the police the letters which he received, and he took a keen interest in the capture of the criminals, making the very sensible suggestion that bloodhounds should be used. It seems hardly able to the prejudice of the police had risen to such a point that both of these facts were alleged as suspicious circumstances against him, as though he were endeavoring to worm himself into their confidence, and so find out what measures they were taking for the capture of the offender. I am quite prepared to find that in these dialogues the quick-witted youth showed some impatience at their constant blunders, and that the result was to increase the very great malevolence with which they have regarded him, ever since their chief declared in 1895: "I shall not pretend to believe any protestations of ignorance which your son may make."

It is this seditious youth who touches neither alcohol nor tobacco, and is so blind that he gropes his way in the dark, who is the dangerous barbarian who scours the country at night, ripping up horses. Is it not perfectly clear, looking at his strange, swarthy face and bulging eyes, that it is not the village ruffian, but rather the unfortunate village scapegoat, who stands before you?

"In the next chapter the mystery deepens. While the Edalji house is surrounded by police another horse is butchered."

POLITICAL SCANDAL

IN BRITISH COLUMBIA

Vancouver, B. C., Feb. 6.—Proceedings are now pending against the late minister of lands and works, Hon. Green, who will be charged with having received a bribe of $37,000 shares in the Transcontinental Syndicate, of which Sir Joseph Caron is one of the chief promoters. It is alleged that the former minister in exchange for favors granted by the department, to the syndicate, was asked to name a suitable person to hold shares for him in trust. The syndicate, it is alleged, became dissatisfied with the way Green treated it and exposed the transaction to the executive council. Despite this knowledge of corruption, which the government is said to have in May last, it allowed Green to retain his cabinet seat till last December. Documents dealing fully with the case are now in possession of the authorities.

OPPOSITION DELAYS SUNDAY LAW

Committees Getting Busy—Reports Coming In—Beach Introduces Resolution.

The legislative assembly was in session yesterday afternoon, the principal feature being a lively debate in the house upon the enforcement of the Sunday closing law brought up by the unfavorable report of the judiciary committee on Mr. Beach's bill to modify the law. Mr. Holt, Mr. Abbott of Santa Fe, Mr. Ruppe and Mr. Hudspeeth took part in the oratory. The bill was finally tabled indefinitely. The proceedings of yesterday sessions are as follows:

THE COUNCIL.

Twelfth Day—Tuesday Afternoon.

Pursuant to adjournment the council met at 3 o'clock this afternoon. President Spies in the chair. Following the invocation, the chief clerk read the roll, all responding present. The council was occupied the forepart of yesterday afternoon's session listening to the reports of the permanent committees.

THE HOUSE.

Twelfth Day—Tuesday Afternoon.

Pursuant to adjournment the house was called to order at 2:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon by Speaker Baca. The roll was read. Absent, Mirabal. The chief clerk then read the journal of the preceding session and it was read a second time in Spanish by an interpreter. Upon motion duly seconded and carried, the journal was ordered approved as read.

The committee on judiciary Mr. Holt chairman, reported favorably upon house bill No. 14, an act prohibiting conspiracy against trade and recommended the bills passage. The judiciary committee also reported unfavorably on house bill No. 10, an act to modify the Sunday closing law. The report of the committee on judiciary was adopted after a speech by Mr. Beach in defense of his measure.

House resolution, No. 4 was introduced by Mr. Beach, a measure to instruct the governor to use his influence in having district attorneys enforce the Sunday law.

There followed a debate lasting for half an hour in which Mr. Beach plied the onlookers with his arguments. Mr. Holt, Mr. Abbott, Santa Fe, Mr. Ruppe and others. Mr. Beach maintained that the law was enforced strictly in some districts and not strictly enough in others. Mr. Holt maintained that it could be enforced easily enough if the officials did their duties. Mr. Abbott said that the people should elect their district attorneys so that they could regulate the enforcement of the law. Mr. Ruppe defended himself on a charge of violating the law by selling cigars on Sunday. He created a laugh by saying he smoked cigarettes and did not know whether he was actually selling cigars or not.

House bill No. 42 was introduced by Mr. Abbott of Santa Fe, an act to exempt charitable and religious institutions from making annual reports and paying fees therefor. The bill was read the first and second time and ordered translated printed and referred to the committee on judiciary.

House bill No. 43 was introduced by Mr. Gallegos—an act to amend chapter 2 of the session laws of 1901, relative to filling vacancies in county offices. The bill was read the first and second time and ordered translated, printed and referred to the committee on territorial affairs.

House bill No. 45 was introduced by Mr. Walters—an act to amend section 114 of the laws of 1903, relative to domestic and foreign corporations. The bill was read the first time and ordered translated, printed and referred to the committee on corporations.

House bill No. 46 was introduced by Mr. Walters—an act relative to religious, benevolent and charitable organizations. The bill was read the first and second time and referred to the committee on judiciary.

House bill No. 47 was introduced by Mr. Holt—an act to provide for the revision of the laws of the territory. The bill was read the first and second time and ordered translated, printed and referred to the committee on judiciary.

Mr. Abbott, of Santa Fe, then asked permission, which was granted, to introduce a petition of 1,000 signers asking the assembly to oppose the changing of the county seat of Torrance county. The petition was received.

Under the order of bills on their third reading, house bill No. 14 was read in full by the chief clerk. It is an act relative to corporations and monopolies previously introduced by Mr. Holt. Upon motion of Mr. Holt, duly seconded, the roll was called.

THE PARTY CAUCUS

In union there is strength, and organization is the embodiment and maintenance of union. In a representative government, those holding to certain general and paramount principles, form a party. Such party with-out organization is an inert, ineffective and ineffective conglomeration of atoms. The same party organized is an instrument of vast power, all parts working in unison, towards a single aim, directed as by a single purpose, and irresistible in proportion to magnitude. The more thorough the organization, the more effective the party.

The republican party of the United States owes as much of its success to its thorough organization as it does to the ability of its leaders, and to the superiority of its tenets in behalf of human liberty and national prosperity. This party organization begins in the precinct, passes through the county, district, state, and on up to the national organization at Washington. The more thorough the organization in each successive step, the more effective, the final result at the national capital. But all along the line is the caucus. The people or party cannot act in a body either locally or nationally. They must select representatives to act for them. As the series advances the number decreases. The primaries elect their representatives. The states elect such representatives to congress. When congress or the legislatures meet there are caucuses. The representatives of the people meet, consult and conclude as to the best measures to carry out the principles of the party. Non-fidelity to the party caucus reads the recalcitrant out of the party. How else could it be? The caucus represents the concentrated will of the party, and he who sets himself in opposition to the will of the party is certainly unworthy of party affiliation, and should be cast into outer darkness. If any one wants to run an independent party, wants to oppose his party, is unwilling to support the old party in the decisions of the party caucus, let him be anathema maranatha—the accursed of the accused. He has no right to claim party affiliation, and therefore no right to respect or honor from his party.

MEMORIALIZE CONGRESS

The Citizen would again call the attention of the territorial legislature to the importance of memorializing congress to investigate the Salton sea question before restoring the Colorado river to its former bed.

This matter is exciting attention in California, Arizona and Utah, as well as in New Mexico. California and Arizona papers are giving much attention to the question. The Utah legislature has already sent a memorial asking that the formation of the sea be not impeded by government effort; and since The Citizen published the able article from Mr. O. E. Cromwell, some time since, this paper has received a number of communications showing that the people of New Mexico are fully awake to the important influence which such a vast inland sea, almost upon our borders, would doubtless exert upon our climatic and commercial conditions.

It is true that the end-man of the Albuquerque morning paper's aggregation of burnt cork amateurs has attempted to ridicule the question, it being entirely above his comprehension. But that was to be expected. A silk purse cannot be made of a sow's ear. But that by the way.

That there are vast possibilities involved in this effort of nature to return to the old conditions in the southwest, every thinking man must realize. Whether nature shall be aided or opposed in this effort, can be determined only by scientific study of past and present weather phenomena. The general government alone is prepared to investigate the problem in all its bearings, and the legislature of New Mexico should ask that this be done.

HOW JAPANESE LIVE

A Mrs. Smith, of Berkeley, Cal., writing to the San Francisco Chronicle and evidently speaking from personal knowledge, recently said:

So far as I am aware, no one has noticed or questioned the statements of the president as to the up-to-date civilization of the people of Japan. The people he judges are the type he meets in Washington, educated, venerated with politeness, and clean, and by the prominent statesmen and soldiers who have been educated abroad. Even these still sleep on the floor while in Japan, eat with chop-sticks, and put their hands up their sleeves to keep warm in winter. These advanced people, not as yet have any way to keep warm except by wearing extra clothing, nor any system of sewage other than open canals, as seen to a disgusting extent in Tokyo. Pocket handkerchiefs are unknown to any class of Japanese. The people—the real unvarnished Japanese—still live as in feudal times, from which they are removed by less than seventy years. Their requirements are covered by a few dollars monthly, their cleanliness is entirely superficial, and there are probably not more than a million out of the whole sixty millions who have ever heard of America. Their religion is a cheerful Buddhism. The chief characteristic of Japan is a painstaking imitation. Their honesty simply is not, and their only great characteristic is their patriotism.

The Cincinnati Price Current is authority for the statement that the total number of animals slaughtered at Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City and Omaha, the four principal commercial slaughtering centers of the United States, has increased in a greater ratio than the population since 1889. In that year there were 2,688,000 cattle, 1,476,000 sheep and 12,699,000 hogs killed at the places named. In 1906 the number killed had increased to 4,994,000 cattle, 6,116,000 sheep and 25,600,000 hogs. In the meantime the population, which was 61,289,000 in 1889, only rose to 82,143,000 in 1906. Here we have an increased meat supply of over 100 per cent, and an expansion of population of less than 40 per cent. Then, too, it is a well known fact that the laboring and salaried classes of the country cannot afford to consume more than half as much meat as they did eighteen years ago. Why, then, should prices be so high? The solution doubtless lies in the effort of the packing trust to add to its millions by raising prices at home and by increasing its exports to foreign lands.

Daily Opie: It is no exaggeration to say that Senator Foraker's efforts to make political and presidential capital out of the Bransville riot has cost the country millions of dollars. Scarcely twenty-five working days yet remain for this congress, and not a single appropriation bill has been passed, and all because of the intrusion of Senator Foraker's maneuvering for the southern republican delegation. The appropriation bills for the war, state, navy, postoffice and interior departments will aggregate eight hundred millions of dollars and should have the most careful and searching consideration of congress. It will not now be possible to give them the necessary scrutiny because of the time taken by Mr. Foraker in an effort to make himself solid with the rotten borough nominating districts of the southern states.

Many people imagine that they can count any amount, but it is a simple matter to prove that our limit is very low. If a person should count continuously day and night at the rate of 200 per minute, he could count 32,000 in an hour; 288,000 in a day; 195,120,000 in an average year. At this rate he could reach 19,512,000,000 in 100 years, which is longer than most people live. It would take about 2,500 years to count a trillion at this rate.

New Mexican: The Philadelphia Record recently contained a scurrilous libel in editorial form on the people of New Mexico. This libel was taken up by the New Mexican and treated as it should have been. Now comes the Albuquerque Fakir Journal, reproduces it and holds it up as the truth, thus adding the Philadelphia Record, about as rotten a democratic sheet as there is in the United States, in slandering and libeling the people of New Mexico. That is a way the Fakir Journal has. It could not do anything else if it would, and would not if it could. Like a toad, it feeds upon newspaper slime and muck.

All for Albuquerque means also Albuquerque for all. This includes the great essential of home trade. No man can be for Albuquerque who makes his money here and spends it elsewhere.

HOW HERO OF BOER WAR BECAME A NEW MEXICAN

To lose a country and find a wife may not be a bad trade, even if it does involve descending from the seats of the mighty to the position of a fourth class postmaster in a little hamlet on the very outskirts of civilization.

This is, in capsule form, the real life romance of Gen. Benjamin Johannis Viljoen, postmaster of Chamberino, Rio Arriba county, New Mexico. Ten years ago his name was a household word wherever the printing press is known, as the captor of the aspiring but premature Dr. Jameson, the South African raider. With equal success he fought the Basuto savages, receiving his reward in the shape of a seat in the Volksraad, or senate, of the Transvaal republic.

With De Wet and Botha he aided in the shattering of British military idols from the start almost to the finish of the Boer war. Like Napoleon, he was sentenced to banishment for life on the lonely rock of St. Helena, and when amnesty was offered he preferred perpetual exile to taking the oath of allegiance to the crown against which he had borne arms. With such of his kinsmen as chose to follow his uncertain fortunes, he started on the long "trek" to the southwestern land of promise, finding a comforter and helpmeet before he reached his journey's end in a sympathetic lass of Illinois.

Benjamin Johannis Viljoen, now engaged in the humdrum occupation of selling two cent stamps at Chamberino, was born at Woodhouse, Eastern Cape Colony, 28 years ago. In 1886, when but a beardless boy of 18 years, he caught the gold fever and joined the rush of eager Argonauts to the Rand. The goddess of the mines did not smile upon his labors and in 1890 he gave up prospecting to enter the service of the Boer government as assistant public prosecutor. He still longed for adventure, and three years later he became organizing officer of the volunteer militia, with the rank of lieutenant, rising gradually until he became major. His first leap into the spot light was made in 1896 when he gained international renown as leader in the capture of "Doctor Jim," whose misfortune was that he made his spectacular move just a little too soon.

For his services at this time Viljoen was promoted to the position of commandant of the burgher, or citizen, forces of Johannesburg. His mettle having been tried and found true, in 1897 he was intrusted with leadership of an expedition to Swaziland.

During the latter stages of the heroic Boer struggle for independence against an overwhelming weight of numbers and material resources, Viljoen captured many armored trains and kept up an unceasing campaign with the object of harassing and worrying the enemy, while his compatriots, De Wet and Botha, were co-operating elsewhere. Two months before the last shot was fired he was ambushed at midnight, while crossing the British border with a small escort. His horse was shot under him and he was severely wounded, making his capture easy. He was sentenced to banishment for life on the island of St. Helena, where he was confined until in the fall of 1902. He was then paroled and returned to South Africa to bid farewell to the land for which he had fought in vain, to save old ties, and to gather together the little that belonged to him that had escaped the general confiscation. He was one of the "irreconcilables," steadfastly refusing to accept amnesty at the price of swearing allegiance to the king. A few faithful followers, bound to him by ties of blood, elected to accompany him into exile, and together they set sail for the Land of the Free, arriving in New York in December, 1902.

The exiles found the hearts and homes of America open to them and selected New Mexico as their land of opportunity. On his way to his new home Gen. Viljoen forewore his allegiance to the Red God of War, meeting a red cheeked girl of Illinois in St. Louis and surrendering unconditionally to the dimpled deity of love. He has lost his country, but he has found a wife, who now rules jointly with him over the postoffice at Chamberino; and if the shadows of past greatness sometimes haunt him in her sympathetic arms he banishes regret.—Denver Republican.

ELECTRIFICATION OF STEAM RAILROADS IS GROWING

It was reported from New York a day or two since that trains for Yonkers from New York Central station were being hauled by electric motors, and that henceforth all locals on the route would be handled that way.

The work of electrification for this terminal has been in some respects the most important ever undertaken by any railroad. There are more than 600 train movements daily on the five mile section that leads to the station and eight miles of switch tracks. Electrification is carried out on two divisions of the road and will extend ultimately thirty-four miles to Peekskill and twenty-four miles to White Plains. It has been figured that there would be a slight annual saving by the use of electricity instead of steam, but William Mayer, Jr., points out in the Review of Reviews that the prime question with the company was not one of economy. Electricity gives very distinct advantages, such as freedom from smoke, higher acceleration and greater facility in train movements. So in other cases it has been adopted because it answered much better to growing needs than steam.

Mr. Mayer gives as an example the experiment of the Lancashire & Yorkshire railway between Liverpool and Southport. He says that there are fourteen intermediate stations via this stretch of road, and that the managers, owing to largely increased traffic "found themselves confronted with the necessity of enlarging the platforms at the terminal stations or of adopting some more flexible means of moving the trains in and out of the stations than that afforded by steam locomotives." Other considerations also favored electricity. The change was made, and for a comparison between the "before and after" the following is presented:

"Under steam conditions the running time of a train making all stops between Liverpool and Southport was forty-four minutes. Express trains twenty-three minutes. There were then but thirty-six trains in each direction per day. Since the introduction of electric traction the time of trains has been reduced to thirty-seven minutes, while the number of trains has been increased to seventy in each direction. The speed of express trains remained the same as before. Owing to the improved train service, also, there has been a large influx of business men to the residential districts north of Liverpool.

Aside from these two cases, Mr. Mayer speaks of electrification on a suburban division of the Northwestern railway of England, on the Italian Mediterranean railway, the West Jersey & Seashore branch of the Pennsylvania railroad, the Long Island railroad and the New York, New Haven & Hartford. It is proved conclusively that under certain conditions the change is highly desirable, but "the broad question of the entire displacement of steam locomotives by electric traction on railways for passenger and freight traffic is still open." Even so, it is a revolution in expert opinion. Whenever, ten years ago it would have been difficult to find one steam railway engineer ready to admit the possibility of the ultimate more or less general electrification of steam railways it would today be almost as difficult to find one who will deny the strong probability of such a consummation within at most two decades.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Amusements

Rose Melville, as "Sis Hopkins," pleased a crowded house at the Elks' theater last night. She was ably assisted by a company of ten clever players. For the past eight years Miss Melville has been identified with the role of "Sis" and she appears to have grown into the character until her name is almost a synonym for it. Press and public have paid a well deserved tribute to Miss Melville's ability and her appreciation of it is reflected in her faithful work. Little remains unsaid when you attempt to analyze Miss Melville's capability. She is an artist, with all that implies.

The play itself has merit. It is a picturesque pastoral play in three acts and a strong vein of humor interest runs through it. That is why the piece has survived the years while other similar affairs have been resurged in different guises or forgotten altogether.

"Sis Hopkins" is a wholesome play. A breath from "Indiana" it tells the story of a country maiden the daughter of "Pa Hopkins," a prosperous farmer. She is an old fashioned girl whom some say around the country side, half witted. But her father loves her. He gives her the lower "eighty" on the farm as a dowry. Addison Vibert, representative of corporate interests, tries to secure right of way through the Hopkins farm, discovers the land is rich in oil. He seeks to obtain it for himself. Failing to secure it by other underhand methods he woos "Sis," who is blossoming into an attractive young woman at a seminary. Mistaking her infatuation for the man for the divine spark, "Sis" consents to sign papers which give him possession of the land. Then she overhears his declaration of love to another and realizes her mistake at the crucial moment.

The signature of "Pa" Hopkins is forged to the paper. The old man loses his reason while "Sis" is in Europe putting on the finishing touches to her education. But she returns in the nick of time to claim her own.

She turns to Ridy Scarboro, the sweetheart of her girlhood days, who has, meantime, developed from a farm boy into an able lawyer. He has been instrumental in preventing Vibert from getting possession of the land. She loves Scarboro and realizing her passion for Vibert was only an infatuation, she tantalizes him upon her return only to turn him down for the lawyer. Here is a bit of superb acting. Pa Hopkins' reason returns and "they live happily ever after."

Miss Melville's support is capable and good looking and the play is well staged, a car load of scenery being used.

Fay Lewis as Tibbie Standifer, a charity scholar at the seminary, and Grace Kimball, as Margery Melrose, a seminary girl, have lines which they deliver well.

J. T. Ray as Obidiah Odum, an Indiana product, does a rube dance in the specialties, which makes a hit. Florence Webster, Frank C. Hartwell, Gilbert Fitzgerald, Mary Atheling and Florence Webster are others in the cast.

"A MESSENGER BOY," FEB. 6. "A Messenger Boy" was the attraction at the Kinney opera house last Tuesday night and a large audience was present to witness the production, which was the best that has appeared in Memphis this season. Geo. D. Sweet in the title role, C. P. Coast as the Count Cordino, and Miss Beatrice Terry as Roxie, the wife, became favorites with the audience by their excellent acting. Miss Terry possesses a beautiful soprano voice and her vocal numbers were well received by the audience. The remainder of the company was capable and the audience was well pleased with the show.—Memphis Times.

CRESTON CLARKE, IN "THE RAGGED MESSENGER," FEB. 9. Jagger Jules Murry has the laugh on those wisecracks in the theatrical world who predicted that he would be unable to find a worthy successor to "Monsieur Beaucaire" as a vehicle for Creston Clarke this season. In "The Ragged Messenger" Manager Murry secured one of the most talked about plays of the present season. The play so general in its application that the theater-goers of every community in which it has thus far been presented have imagined that it was written solely with their own particular environments in mind. Its success has been a great financial one as has been the triumph of Creston Clarke in its leading character, John Morton, the clergyman, artistically.

"The Ragged Messenger" will be seen at the Elks opera house on Saturday night, Feb. 9.

CHARLES HANFORD AS "JULIUS CAESAR," FEB. 11. Charles B. Hanford on the occasion of his appearance at the Elks' opera house, on Monday, Feb. 11, will afford play-goers of this city an opportunity to witness a representation of the historical tragedy, "Julius Caesar," which will be memorable from several points of view. Mr. Hanford has for a number of years contemplated a revival of this great drama. In his present enterprise are concentrated the experience and study, as well as the pecuniary resources which Mr. Hanford has accumulated not only in his later years of success, but in his earlier training as a member of the Booth-Barrett combination. A sentimental as well as an artistic interest attaches to the enterprise, as it was his performance of "Marc Anthony" which made Mr. Hanford a celebrity in the theatrical world. The production which he has arranged will rival even the complete and splendid scenic equipment which was provided for the Booth-Barrett tour.

BROOKS AND CHILDREN RETURN FROM NEW YORK

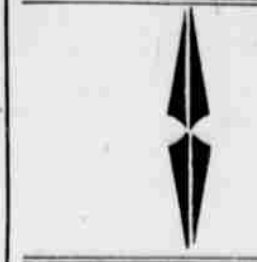

Geo. L. Brooks and Attorney W. B. Childers, who went to New York on the 17th of January as a committee from the Albuquerque Commercial club to confer with capitalists regarding proposed industries for New Mexico, have returned home, bringing most gratifying tidings. Though they were loath this afternoon to speak of the promising success of their pilgrimage, neither "Booster" would discuss the matter in detail previous to making a report to the directors of the Commercial club. A meeting for this purpose was called at 3:30 o'clock and in session as The Evening Citizen goes to press. It is the firm belief of both Mr. Brooks and Mr. Childers that New Mexico and Albuquerque especially will be the beneficiary

POST MORTEM EXAMINATION TO DISCOVER CAUSE OF DEATH

Principal Witnesses of Berardinelli Shooting Testify Before Coroner's Jury Which Meets Again This Evening.

PRINCIPAL WITNESSES.
L. Gradi, merchant, resides at 217 North Third street.
James Coleman, shoe polisher, resides above 119 1/2 Railroad avenue.
D. Catalano, laborer, resides 219 1/2 Mountain road.
B. Toti, merchant, resides 217 North Third street.
Dr. Nacumull and Dr. Hust, whose offices are in the N. T. Armijo building.

The coroner's jury convened Monday evening by Justice of the Peace W. W. McClellan, to inquire into the circumstances of the death of Benedetto Berardinelli, who was shot on North Third street, shortly before noon Monday, after viewing the body of the slain man at the undertaking establishment, where it was removed after death, met this morning at 10 o'clock in the office of Justice McClellan, in the city building, precinct 26, where the testimony of four witnesses to the shooting was carefully taken. Drs. Nacumull and Hust conducted a post-mortem examination of Berardinelli's body at the undertaking rooms this afternoon. They will report their findings to the coroner's jury, which meets this evening at 7 o'clock at the city building, after which the jury will return its verdict. Reporters were excluded from the post-mortem this afternoon. Ben Bothe was unanimously chosen foreman of the inquisitorial body, which includes Noble Trimble, Otto Berger, A. Tegner, Hugh Trotter and John Hart.

Their Stories All Agree.
The stories of the four witnesses are substantially what has appeared in The Evening Citizen. Mr. Gradi is perhaps the most important witness. He and Dr. Catalano were familiar with the circumstances which led directly to the killing. James Coleman and B. Toti were eye witnesses to the shooting. Coleman was a block and a half away when the shot was fired. He said he thought the man was playing a game of hide-and-seek with the pistol, and saw the smoke of the pistol and Pettine's victim stagger toward the door of the Toti & Gradi store. Mr. Toti knew the quarrel was about a letter, but he was not familiar with the first quarrel. He saw the shooting and heard what the men said before it transpired.

All of the witnesses with the exception of Coleman saw Pettine mount his wheel and ride away toward the business part of the city. They thought they were present when he returned and asked Berardinelli if he wanted to fight, and heard him say, "I am ready to fight you now." Then they testified that Pettine drew a revolver from his pocket and fired, as Berardinelli, after declaring, "You have a gun, but I am not afraid of you," advanced upon him.

All of the witnesses saw Pettine run away after the shot was fired, leaving his bicycle leaning against a post where he had placed it when he returned to the store. The letter to be translated into English. Chief McMullin was present at the inquest this morning and produced the letter over which the killing is alleged to have occurred. Mr. Gradi, upon being asked by Justice McClellan to translate the missive, which was written in Italian, declared that it was difficult to give an exact English version of it. He stated, however, that it was very defamatory. Justice McClellan said he would have it translated into English in the interim and give it to the jury to read when it meets this evening. Chief McMullin also had other letters known to have been written by Pettine. He said there was a similarity in the handwriting of the anonymous letter and those in his possession, although he was not expert enough to be positive that the letters were written by the same person.

Wife is Grief-Stricken.
A reporter for The Evening Citizen called at the Berardinelli home, 1101 North Second street, this afternoon. It is a modest little home, one story in height and comfortably furnished throughout. The house, which is frame and adobe, has apparently been built but a short time.

At the home were Mrs. Berardinelli, widow of Benedetto Berardinelli, and a stepson, Benedetto Berardinelli, whom she had raised from infancy. Mike Berardinelli, a brother of Benedetto Berardinelli, and Louis Napoletano, a cousin, arrived here yesterday from Santa Fe, in response to telegrams. Toni Cachilaviani, a son-in-law, is expected to arrive here from Pueblo, Colo., in time for the funeral, which will be held from the Immaculate Conception church tomorrow morning, at 9 o'clock. Father Mandiari is officiating. The burial will be at Santa Barbara cemetery.

Mrs. Berardinelli was all but prostrated with grief over the violent death of her husband, which was an unexpected blow. It was difficult for her to make any lengthy statement and this was most urged. Numbers of friends have been calling at the home since the death of her husband and offering their condolence. She stated that she cannot reconcile herself to the sad situation.

Benedetto Berardinelli, her husband, had been a resident of Albuquerque 18 years. Mike Berardinelli stated. They moved to Albuquerque from Santa Fe eighteen years ago and had resided here continuously since.

Mr. Berardinelli had numbers of friends in Albuquerque. He was a hard working stone mason and contractor, and he leaves his widow in comfortable circumstances, having his life insured in a fraternal society. The home at 1101 North Second street is without incumbrance and this also goes to the widow. Her eighteen-year-old stepson is learning the barber's trade at a local barber shop.

Sheriff Conducts Search.
All day yesterday mounted men scoured the country surrounding Albuquerque for trace of the fugitive Pettine, and in the evening the search was abandoned until this morning, when it was again resumed. Sheriff DeForest Armijo conducted a searching party, while Assistant Chief of Police Kennedy headed another. It was reported last night that Pettine's trail had been struck near Bear canyon late yesterday afternoon and followed until darkness intervened. It was the intention to take it up again this morning. This report has not been verified. Sheriff Armijo was out today making further search. It is supposed he is in the neighborhood of Bear canyon.

The sheriffs and police throughout this part of the country have received notice of the reward that will be paid for the apprehension of Pettine and there is hope that he will eventually be taken.

STORMS DELAY SHIPMENT OF CATTLE

Market Is Strong. Cows and Heifers Showing Particularly Strong.

Special Correspondence.

Kansas City, Feb. 4.—Bad storms yesterday and today covering Kansas and the west and northwest, will no doubt restrict receipts this week, although there is a fair run of cattle today, 11,000 head. The market is strong to 10c higher today, buoyed up somewhat by the prospective light receipts for the next few days, and values may be fictitiously inflated before the week is over should marketing be seriously hampered, as now seems likely. The market closed last week stronger, cows and heifers showing most strength, and butcher stuff is likewise selling best today. Fed steers sell mainly at $4.35 to $5.00, numerous cows to choice lots at $6.00 to $6.50, cows $3.00 to $4.50, heifers $3.25 to $4.75, bulls $3.00 to $4.15, stockers $2.40 to $4.60, feeders 3.75 to $4.80, a few choice high bred 1100 pound feeders lately at $5.00 to $5.25. Of course, receipts from the range country are very limited, but all kinds, whether fed or stock grades, are selling most advantageously. Recent heavy cattle losses in the northwest will have an important bearing on beef cattle prices later in the year, and is already acting as an incentive toward purchases of stock cattle on the markets.

Mutton supplies are fairly liberal, but continue to run less than at this time last year. The market remained steady on good stuff last week, but medium and common grades shaded downward. Supply is 6,000 head today, market steady and active, bulk of lambs selling at $7.25 to $7.50. Light lambs were in disfavor first of last week, but are now in better demand, 64 pound lambs selling at $7.40 today, and prime lambs would likely to reach $7.65, equal to the top last week. Yearlings sold today at $6.50, about like recent sales, wethers worth $5.40 to $5.75, ewes $4.75 to $5.20, fair to good ewes around $5.00.

NO FREIGHT DIS- CRIMINATION FORELPASO

State of Texas Lays Heavy Hand on Traffic Manager. Concessions Result.

Special to The Evening Citizen.

El Paso, Feb. 6.—In the state of Texas, the seaboard differential rate bears about the same relation of discrimination to a number of Texas cities as the terminal rate operates unjustly on San Bernardino.

El Paso is one of the cities which has just escaped from the oppression of the differential rate.

According to information received by A. W. Cheesman, general agent of the G. H. & S. A., the seaboard differential to El Paso will be abolished and El Paso placed on the same basis as Texas common points. The change will take effect February 21st on first-class shipments, and on the 26th on commodities.

The rate is the lowest ever given El Paso and is the same which the chamber of commerce has urged for the past two years. A year ago the chamber petitioned the interstate commerce commission to place El Paso on a basis with Texas common points, but the petition was never acted upon.

The reduction now comes voluntarily and is a great surprise to El Paso business men. A reduction of twenty cars on the 100 pounds from New York to El Paso is made under the new table. The following rates which are the rates from New York proper to San Antonio, will apply to El Paso: $1.54, $1.35, $1.19 and $1.08 for the first, second, third and fourth class, respectively, instead of $1.74, $1.54, $1.38 and $1.29, respectively.

WORKMEN PREPARING FOR CONVENTION

Benefit Lodge No. 2, A. O. U. W., has taken preliminary steps for preparation to entertain the Grand Lodge A. O. U. W. of New Mexico and Arizona, which meets in Albuquerque in the fall. It is expected to be the biggest meeting of the kind ever held in this part of the southwest and the Duke City will have in the neighborhood of 300 visitors during the meeting date for which has not been definitely decided upon at this time. It will probably be held some time in October, however. An executive committee appointed to have charge of the meeting includes Will Long, chairman; George Griegoldt, E. W. Kille, J. P. Shuffelbarger, E. P. Weed, J. J. Votaw and R. H. Hawkins. This committee will talk over plans at a meeting Monday night in the lodge rooms.

CUT-OFFS WILL SHAKE UP THE TIME CARD

Ottawa Cut-Off Is Causing Topeka Grief—Freight Trains Operate on Belen Cut-Off.

A time card meeting is going to be held in Topeka in the near future that is likely to result in a shake up all along the line, effecting particularly the Topeka-Kansas City trains and branch line trains in Kansas. The Ottawa cut-off is causing all the trouble, the Santa Fe being able to get to Kansas City from Newton in seventeen minutes less time than via Topeka.

The cause of the shake-up on the transcontinental trains is the Belen cut-off.

Regarding the new time, which will be opened shortly, the Topeka Journal says:

The Belen cut-off connects the Panhandle line of the Santa Fe at Topeka, Kan., with the main line at Rio Puerco, N. M. Besides shortening the Santa Fe's main transcontinental line its construction has reduced the grade of the road and several large grades that existed on the main line in Colorado and New Mexico will be avoided by the use of the cut-off.

The operation of trains on this cut-off places Wichita on the main line of the Santa Fe. Trains will be operated south from Newton to Wellington and over the Panhandle line to Topeka, and thence over the cut-off.

In order to make possible the operation of through trains south from Newton and over the Panhandle branch, the Santa Fe has been working for the past few months on the improvement of this stretch of track. The line from Newton through Wichita to Wellington has been newly ballasted. This work has been completed. The line from Wellington to Woodward is now being relaid with new and heavier steel. This work has been completed as far as Kermitt, the first station in Oklahoma south of Klawia.

Some time ago another contract was let for the rebuilding of the rest of the line from Woodward, Okla., to Topeka, Kan. This work will be completed early in the spring. Wood, Hancock & Doty are the contractors.

TORRANCE COUNTY SEEKING LOAN

Unless council bill No. 27 becomes law before tonight it will be necessary to close the term of the Torrance county court. The bill was introduced by Councilman Dales and authorized a loan by the territory of $2,000 to the county of Torrance for the purpose of paying the expenses of the court. The money in the county treasury being at present insufficient to meet the demand. The matter is a most important one as there are a number of murder cases to come up for trial in the county, among others those of Domingo Valle, now in the penitentiary for the killing of Francisco Chavez two years ago and Jap Clark, the cowboy, charged with the shooting of one of the county's deputy sheriffs.

The bill makes the loan repayable in five yearly installments, bearing an annual interest charge of 5 per cent. As the territory has aided other counties in this way in past years it is believed the bill will pass without opposition.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY TO HOLD MEETINGS DURING LEGISLATURE

Special to The Evening Citizen.
Santa Fe, N. M., Feb. 6.—The Historical Society of New Mexico will hold two public meetings during the session of the thirty-seventh legislative assembly, one on Tuesday evening, Feb. 19, and the other on Tuesday evening, Feb. 26. Through the courtesy of the house of representatives these meetings will be held in the chamber of that body at the capitol building.

The proceedings will be varied and interesting. Among those who will take part will be Prof. W. E. Garrison, on "Archaeological Subjects," Col. R. E. Twitchell, on "A Coronado Celebration," Judge A. J. Abbott, on

"Pueblo Indians," Prof. Espinosa, on "The Spanish Language in New Mexico."

At one of the meetings the subject of Pike's expedition will be prominent. Last year Colorado devoted a whole week to its Pike centennial celebration, when really the occasion belonged more to New Mexico than to Colorado. "Pike in New Mexico" will be the subject here.

At the first meeting President L. Bradford Prince will tell of the advances made by the society in the last two years, and it is hoped that the new rooms in the Palace may be used in re-arranging the collection before that time.

The sheriffs and police throughout this part of the country have received notice of the reward that will be paid for the apprehension of Pettine and there is hope that he will eventually be taken.

HORSE PLUNGES THROUGH PLATE GLASS

Workmen are today repairing the damage done to the plate glass fronts of S. E. Newcomer's book store and Schutts' candy store by a runaway horse owned by L. Gradi yesterday afternoon. The horse literally ran through two large panels of plate glass, which measure 5x10 feet respectively, smashing the third of similar dimensions to small bits. The remarkable part of the occurrence is that the animal escaped with only a few scratches. The damage is estimated at more than $100.

The plate glass will have to be ordered and pending its arrival wooden sashes containing common window panes will be utilized.

The horse is owned by L. Gradi, who conducts a feed store and grocery on North Third street. The animal started west on Silver avenue and turned north at the corner of Second street. In front of the postoffice it collided with a dirt wagon and disengaged itself from the delivery vehicle which was turned completely over.

With a most of fright the animal ran into the entrance of Newcomer's book store, where it fell, regained its feet and dashed through the show window which is plate glass. Inside the show window it plunged through the thin partition which separates the displays of the book store from the candy store, carrying out two panels of plate glass. The horse was then stopped.

The force of the attack on the windows almost carried the window sashes with the glass.

Many people who saw the affair thought the horse was going to enter the front door of the book store before it plunged through the windows.

NEW SANTA FE ENGINES ARE CORKERS

Are Even Larger Than Famous 929, Which Took World's Fair Prize.

The Baldwin Locomotive works is turning out a new type of engine for the Santa Fe. These new engines are known as the sixteen hundred class oil burners, and are built to climb the heavy grades in the mountains.

The first of this new class arrived in Emporia recently. It is eighteen feet from the track to the top of the boiler. This class of engine is to be even larger than the famous 929, which took the prize at the St. Louis world's fair for the largest engine in the world. The 929 weighed 180 tons, while the new engine weighs 192. The new class has ten drive wheels, the wheels being six feet in diameter. They are to be compound engines with all of the latest improvements in their driving gear.

The firebox contains clay balls about ten inches in diameter. The oil is turned among these and lighted. These clay balls become intensely hot, giving a much more even heat than coal. One man could not shovel coal fast enough to feed a furnace the size these new engines contain, and keep it hot enough to pull a train.

An engine of this size costs the Santa Fe $20,000, and the repairs are twice as expensive and heavy as on any other engine. These new engines are to pull heavy trains further west.

IMPROVEMENTS ABOUT SANTA FE SHOPS.

By the public little is known of the splendid improvements being made by the Santa Fe in their shops here, says the Raton Ranger. A new brick building forty by ninety feet has been finished, this is called the power house. It contains three one hundred and fifty horse power boilers and a complete heating system which furnishes the boilers with hot water thus enabling them to produce their full working power.

A massive engine drives two seventy kilowatt generators that produce electricity for welding, electric cranes, lights and other uses. The large air compressors will be driven by the generators and a thorough compressed air system is being installed, one hundred pounds of air being available in any part of the works.

Near the power house are two immense stand pipes. One sixty-four feet high and twenty-four feet in diameter, the other fifty-four feet high and thirty feet in diameter. Near these tanks a large settling basin built of cement has been made, thirty feet in diameter and thirty-five feet in depth. The waste water will flow into this basin from which it will be pumped into a large tank for the impurities to settle and will then be forced to the smaller tank where it will be ready for use again. This means a saving for the company of many dollars spent for water.

SANTA FE CUT-OFF

TO OPEN FEBRUARY 15TH. The Santa Fe announces that the new cut-off will be ready for operation about February 15. The completion of this new line will afford the Santa Fe a new transcontinental route between a point on its line in Kansas and this city and will be used exclusively for its through business to and from California. The Southern Kansas division and the Pecos Valley line will be used as links in this new route, which will traverse the Panhandle of Texas, instead of by way of La Junta, Colo., and down through New Mexico, as at present.

The importance of this new line will not only be that it will save about twenty hours time for passenger trains between Chicago and San Francisco, but it will also mean an enormous saving in cost of operation. The heavy grades of the La Junta route have long been the source of heavy cost. To cut down the time between Chicago and San Francisco twenty-four hours is an achievement of which the advocates of the new route are very proud. It is stated by officials of the road that there is no question about being able to reduce the time that much and it is not unlikely that the actual running time of the passenger trains may be still shorter than is now estimated.

E. P. & S. W. CONDUCTOR FORGOT HIS WIFE

A lapse of memory on the part of Conductor Dewey of the E. P. & S. W. Wednesday, threatened the disruption of a happy family, says the Roy Spanish American. He had taken his wife on this run for company and when the train arrived at Roy Mrs. Dewey decided to spend the twenty minutes stop here in the depot depending on her husband to inform her when it was time to leave. When the time arrived for the train to leave, Conductor Dewey had forgotten that he had a wife. With his customary "all aboard" he swung himself on the train and was gone. After going about four miles, in going through the train, he missed a passenger, and then realized that he had a wife waiting for him in the Roy depot. With the usual presence of mind of a man who is constantly subject to perilous positions, he realized there was but one thing to do in such an emergency.

DIAZ REQUESTED TO SUPPRESS BULL FIGHTS

Death of Celebrated Montes Has Moved Mexicans to Stop Cruel Sport.

City of Mexico, Feb. 6.—The awful death of Montes, the famous Spanish bull fighter, by being gored by a bull in the Plaza de Toros in Mexico city, has aroused in the federal capital a strong sentiment against the cruel sport. The result of this feeling is a petition which is being circulated and in which President Diaz will be asked to suppress bull fighting by law.

For years there has been growing up a strong feeling against the sport and this recent tragedy has apparently crystallized it into action. The press reports from Mexico City say that the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals in the capital has been enlisted in the anti-bull fighting crusade. Among the men who have been foremost in this movement is Lic. Jose Lopez Portillo y Rojas, a member of congress, who has published at his own expense a pamphlet entitled "Abajo los Toros," which is a most forceful presentation of the arguments against the amusement.

JAPS INVADE CALIFORNIA IN BIG BUNCHES

It looked like the advance guard of the Japanese army early last evening, when fully seventy-five Jap laborers marched single file down Third street from the direction of the Santa Fe station, says the San Bernardino Index.

They were headed for a Japanese lodging house in lower Third street, where they were lodged for the night like rats in a hole. The Japs were evidently laborers and will stop temporarily at the hotel until their agent finds them work.

OFFERS REWARD OF ONE THOUSAND DOLLARS

WELLS-FARGO SEEKS TO CAPTURE BASTION BULLION ROBBERS.

San Bernardino, Cal., Feb. 6.—One thousand dollars is offered for the arrest and conviction of the man or men who stole the two bars of bullion from the Wells-Fargo office at Barstow, and recovery of the bullion.

The company has a standing offer of $300 for the capture and conviction of the thieves, but $1,000 is offered in lieu of the standing offer in this case.

The bullion was originally shipped from the G. F. Cotton mines at Searchlight, Nev., and not from the Randsburg mines, as was erroneously reported at the time of the robbery. One bar weighed 236 ounces and the other 159 1/4 ounces.

The offer of the large reward indicates that the detectives of the express company have been unable to discover any trace of the robbers, and the bounty may be earned by the county officers.

Hunting for Trouble. "I've lived in California 20 years, and am still hunting for trouble in the way of burns, sores, wounds, boils, cuts, sprains, or a case of piles that Bucklen's Arnica Salve won't quickly cure," writes Charles Walters, of Allegheny, Sierra county. No use hunting, Mr. Walters; it cures every case. Guaranteed by all druggists. 25c.

COPPER MINED BEFORE COLUMBUS WAS BORN

IMPLEMENTS AND ORNAMENTS OF COPPER DISCOVERED IN PREHISTORIC MOUNDS IN CENTRAL AMERICA.

Copper was mined on Isle Royale, in Lake Superior, many years before Columbus was born, says the Copper Era. Prehistoric races used the metal for their implements and ornaments. The copper occurred in native or volcanic rocks and the primitive miners dug it out with no better tools than stone sledges. Much prospecting was done, judging by the numerous holes and pits. No less than 50,000 of the crude tools used in the early days have already been recovered. Great masses of native copper have been unearthed; many of these had been worked for fragments of the metal, as cutting with the crude implements was almost impossible. A mass weighing 12,000 pounds was carried away in a vessel by the primitive miners. In later years mass copper, like that from Isle Royale, was eagerly sought, but no copper of importance was found. Many articles made from Isle Royale copper are still being found in mounds and graves throughout the country, even as far away as Central America.

W. G. Urton and sons have cleaned up the business relative to last year's apple crop of their thirteen-acre orchard northeast of Roswell, says the Record. The total receipts from the orchard were $4,614.42. The total expense for pruning, spraying, irrigating, gathering, marketing, etc., was $2,159. This leaves a balance of $1,885.87 an acre. The orchard is eleven years old. These figures speak for themselves and explain why Pecos valley orchard land is more valuable than corn or wheat bearing land.

DISCUSSING AUTOMOBILES AT ANNUAL SHOW.

Chicago, Feb. 6.—Following on the three days session of the mechanical branch of the Association of Licensed Automobile Manufacturers which was held during the Madison Square garden show, at which some very important mechanical subjects were discussed, the engineers and factory superintendents of the association held a meeting in the Chicago Athletic club today. The gathering which was largely attended, is for the purpose of not only giving an opportunity to further inspect the individual cars of the association members, but to make comparisons at the Chicago show between the cars deriving the co-operated benefits of the thirty-two leading engineers of the country, and those not receiving the results of this work. The subjects mostly considered today were clutches, springs, shock absorbers and carbureters. It is expected that the discussions will bring forth some interesting and radical changes in methods pertaining to these specific parts.

Home Insurance the Best

WE CANNOT refrain from again saying something about Home Insurance. Every time that the proposition presents itself of the tremendous amount of money that is being sent out of New Mexico and Arizona for life insurance to eastern cities, the conviction comes home with increased force that a home company ought to be patronized and the money remain in the West.

The revelations of the past year of the way the enormous surplus of the big Eastern companies has been handled and speculated with ought to emphasize the fact that the people of the West should stop pouring their money into Eastern channels when it can be placed in home insurance, and every dollar of it kept and invested at home.

It is gratifying to note that home insurance is year by year receiving more and more its just deserts. Statistics show that during the past year home companies far exceeded foreign companies in the amount of business written. Why cannot this same record be made here? It can if every individual who takes out a policy the coming year will carefully weigh the proposition of the value it is to keep his insurance at home before he puts his name to the application of any insurance company.

The Occidental Life Insurance Company of New Mexico and Arizona is owned and controlled by the leading business men of the two territories, and offers exceptional opportunities to ambitious and capable men and women to sell its policies.
