THAW WILL NOT BE PUT ON STAND

Prisoner Was 36 Years Old
Today--First Witness
Insanity Expert.

HE TOLD VERY PLAINLY MENTAL TROUBLE OF THAW

Brain Operated Like Ship in Wind
Without Rudder--Balance
Wheel Gone.

New York, Feb. 12.—The counsel for Thaw unexpectedly announced last night that it would take about two days more to put in its direct case for the defense. This, of course, does not take into consideration the cross-examination of Thaw's witnesses by Jerome, but indicates plainly that Thaw will not go on the stand.

What is regarded as an important document in connection with the trial, it is understood, was obtained yesterday by Jerome from Abe Hummel. It is a photographic copy of the statement which Evelyn Thaw testified that Hummel dictated when she went to his office with White. It is understood that it charges Thaw with having ill treated her and even beat her. Jerome and Hummel met in a restaurant yesterday, and a brief conference followed, during which Jerome made a number of notes.

Although today is Lincoln's birthday, it was decided to hold court. It is also Thaw's birthday. He is 36 years old.

Alumnus Introduced.
New York, Feb. 12.—The first witness in the Thaw trial today was Dr. Britton D. Evans, superintendent of the state insane hospital at Morris Plains, N. J., which, he said, contained on an average of 1,800 patients. He first saw Thaw on August 4, 1906, in the Tombs, and had visited him eight times.

Knew What He Talked of.
Dr. Evans said that as a result of his first three visits he reached the opinion that Thaw was of unsound mind. As a result of his last five visits, he says, he reached the opinion that Thaw's mental condition, while still impaired, had improved over the condition during the first visits.

Evidence of Brain Storm.
Dr. Evans testified that on his first visit, August 4, Thaw exhibited a peculiar expression, glaring of the eyes, restlessness of the eye, suspicion of his surroundings and of me, nervous agitation and restlessness such as comes from severe brain storm, common in those who have recently gone through explosive or humiliating condition of mental unsoundness. He exhibited delusions of a personal character, exaggerated ego, and along with them delusions of persecutory character. He thought himself of importance and believed himself persecuted by a number of persons. These symptoms, he said, were characteristic of several mental diseases.

Adolescent Insanity Indicated.
One of those mental diseases indicated by Thaw's actions, Evans declared, is adolescent insanity. Adolescent insanity the patient exhibits no marked symptoms, "but when stress comes," Dr. Evans took a declaratory tone of voice, "the man does not break down as an ordinary man would. There is complete loss of mental balance, explosive condition of the brain, reason becomes dethroned, will power is lost and the brain is operating as a ship without a rudder does in the wind. The balance wheel is gone. The acts of such a man are not the acts of a normal man, but show him to be guided by stress and disease. His mind has left its moorings and yielded to the diseased conditions."

LIEUT. BURBANK RELEASED FROM FEDERAL PRISON
Leavenworth, Feb. 12.—Ex-Lieutenant Sidney S. Burbank was released from the federal penitentiary here this morning after nearly fifteen months' imprisonment and started for Indianapolis, where he will visit a brother for a few days. He declined to make known his plans. Burbank said that later he would make a statement of his case that would create a sensation in army circles. His engagement in 1903 to a prominent society woman of Leavenworth precipitated a suit by his Philippine wife, who was granted separation and Burbank ordered to pay $50 a month for the support of their child. Later Burbank was tried by court martial and convicted of embezzling the company's funds and of other conduct unbecoming an officer and gentleman.

COALING RECORD BROKEN BY ENGLISH FLAGSHIP.

London, Feb. 12.—The battleship King Edward, flagship of the Atlantic fleet has taken 1,069 tons of coal in one hour forty-five minutes. The previous highest record was that of the Goliath, of the Channel fleet when 1,430 tons were shipped in five hours thirteen minutes. Both vessels coaled from the floating depot at Southampton.

COMPETING FOR SHATING CHAMPIONSHIPS.

Newburg, N. J., Feb. 12.—Some of the fastest skaters in the United States are competing in the skating championships at Orange Lake, near here today. There are four Canadian competitors, and several from Chicago and St. Louis.

LEGISLATURE IS DOING GOOD WORK

Several Important Bills Were Introduced Today in Each House.

RESUME OF BUSINESS OF YESTERDAY'S SESSIONS

There Will Probably Be Severe
Conflict on County Division.
Especially of San Miguel.

Special to The Evening Citizen.
Santa Fe, N. M., Feb. 12.—The council this morning after a brief session began considering council bill No. 13 introduced by Mr. Duncan, which provides for the assessment and collection of taxes, etc.

This bill is better known as the "tax bill." Duncan is president of the board of equalization and the bill defines the powers of the board clearly. The council made several changes of minor importance in the measure today. The bill is being taken up section by section and considered. When the council has finished, it will practically be equivalent to the passage of the measure by that branch of the assembly.

Mr. Duncan presented a petition from San Miguel county residents today, asking that the fee system in county offices be abolished and a salary basis established generally. The petition was referred to a committee. The council passed council substitute bill No. 11 today, which provides for the taxation of sleeping cars, the standard cars on a basis of $5,000 each and tourist on a basis of $1,500 each, the rate of taxation to be $1.50 per $100. One-half of these taxes go to the territory general purpose fund and one-half to the expense fund of the counties through which the cars are operated. The council tabled the original bill by Sargent.

The legislative assembly will probably take a trip through Torrance county on a special train over the Santa Fe Central Thursday of this week. House bill No. 19, introduced by Mr. Baca, providing for the erecting of an electric light plant at the penitentiary, is in a committee of the council. It carries $20,000 appropriation.

Mr. Duncan today introduced council bill No. 22, by request, an act relative to the assessment of bank stock, which is in the hands of the finance committee.

Mr. Chavez introduced a bill relative to the support of destitute persons in charitable institutions and hospitals. Governor Hagerman signed the house joint resolution, No. 5, providing for pay of extra employees and contingent expenses, which passed the assembly Saturday night. It carries about $2,000 for the five days in excess of the first fifteen days of the session.

The house voted to delay the trip to Torrance county until Dallas was able to go, on Thursday. The time was occupied this afternoon with reports of committees. The council is considering the tax bill in committee.

IMPORTANT SESSIONS DURING YESTERDAY

Santa Fe, Feb. 12.—Several bills introduced in the house were the chief features of the session of the legislative assembly here yesterday. Most important perhaps is a bill assenting to an act of congress known as the Adam's act, relative to the increased annual appropriation by the federal government for the agricultural experiment station in connection with the agricultural college at Mesilla Park. The act requires that the legislature shall assent to the conditions under which this money becomes available but authorized the governor to assent until the legislature should convene, did he see no objection.

By the terms of the Adam's act, an appropriation amounting to $5,000 and increasing gradually each year is available for the use of the experiment station until the amount totals $15,000. The bill introduced by Mr. Holm is as follows:

AN ACT ASSENTING TO THE PURPOSE OF GRANTS OF MONEY AUTHORIZED BY AN ACT OF CONGRESS ENTITLED "AN ACT TO PROVIDE FOR AN INCREASED ANNUAL APPROPRIATION FOR AGRICULTURAL EXPERIMENT STATIONS AND REGULATING THE EXPENDITURE THEREOF, APPROVED MARCH 16, 1906."

Be it enacted by the legislative assembly of the territory of New Mexico:

Section 1. That the assent of the legislative assembly of the territory of New Mexico is hereby given, in pursuance of the requirements of section 2 of an act of congress entitled, "An act to provide for an increased annual appropriation for agricultural experiment stations and regulating the expenditure thereof, approved March 16, 1906," commonly known as the Adam's act, to the purpose of the grants of money authorized by such act and to the carrying out, within the territory of New Mexico, of all and singular the provisions of said act.

Sec. 2. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

This bill passed the house by a viva voce vote and will undoubtedly pass the council as soon as it comes before that body.

Three Important Measures.

Three important measures, particularly to the legal fraternity, were also introduced in the house by Mr. Holt and are now in the hands of the proper committees.

One is a bill to repeal sections 1241, 3439, 3440 and 3447 of the compiled laws of 1897 and for other purposes. This bill provides that if any person maliciously attempts to secure an indictment or to cause a criminal prosecution or causes another so to do, he shall, upon conviction thereof be punished by a fine not less than $25 nor more than $1,000, or by imprisonment in the county jail for six months or by both such fine and imprisonment.

In the trial of a criminal case, if the court is satisfied that the case was instituted maliciously or without probable cause, the court may at its discretion tax the costs against the prosecuting witness and said witness shall stand committed until the costs are paid.

Another bill of interest is one in which a witness in a criminal case pending in any court must upon request of the court, give a written recognition bearing two or more good and sufficient sureties to be approved by the court for his appearance as a witness in such a case. After having complied with these conditions, any witness who may fail to appear when the case is called on to appear shall be subject to an attachment to be issued by the court.

The third bill, which will do a great deal towards aiding in the arrest of criminals and their detention until evidence can be produced against them, is an amendment to section 3433 of the compiled laws of 1897, relative to the issuance of a warrant upon information and belief. The amendment provides that such a warrant may be issued upon affidavits based upon belief or information when such affidavits are approved in writing by the district attorney for the county in which said affidavits are executed.

This amendment modifies the present law so that a sheriff who is morally certain that a person is guilty of some crime, may secure a warrant without committing perjury. It often happens that criminals escape because eye witnesses or persons willing to swear to a warrant, cannot be found promptly. If the projected amendment becomes law, this condition will be obviated.

County Division Agitation.
Representative Abbott of Santa Fe yesterday presented in the house, his ninth petition from the people of Torrance county against the proposed change of county lines under council bill No. 15 by Mr. Dallas, which provides for the abolishment of Torrance county and the creation of a new county with the county seat at Willard instead of Estancia. These petitions, which bear several thousand signatures are now in the hands of the house committee on county and county lines. The committee held an interesting open session following adjournment of the house yesterday evening and the subject of county division and the creation of new counties came up for general discussion. Maps of the proposed changes both in Torrance, San Miguel and Eddy and Chavez counties were presented. There is a strong party of business men here from East Las Vegas to lobby in favor of the creation of the new county of Garfield. There will probably be a hard fight on this matter in both the house and council than on any other measure likely to come before this session. Both division and anti-division have strong constituents.

Councilman Dallas Ill.
Councilman Carl A. Dallas of Torrance county, is ill and has not been in attendance at the council sessions for several days. His condition is not considered serious, however, and his friends say he will be on duty when his constituents need his aid. Representative Price Walters was excused from attendance at the sessions of the house yesterday owing to illness.

EARTHQUAKE IN SPAIN AND OTHERS PREDICTED

London, Feb. 12.—The second session of the recent parliament of the present reign, which promises to be full of interest and importance as a consequence of the projected liberal attack upon the house of lords and the introduction of an installment of home rule for Ireland, was opened by King Edward this afternoon, with all the imposing ceremonies which have attended these functions since his accession.

The speech from the throne foreshadowed a full and busy session, devoted to Ireland, army reform and temperance, apart from the overwhelming question of the house of lords. After the usual reference to the good relations prevailing between Great Britain and other powers, the speech deplored the loss of life resulting from the earthquake at Kingston. The king expressed his gratitude to the United States for assistance rendered the sufferers in Jamaica.

"Serious questions," said the king, "affecting the working of our parliamentary system, have arisen. Some unfortunate differences between the two houses. My ministers have this important subject under consideration with a view to the solution of the difficulty."

The rest of the speech was devoted to the proposed licensing bill, the object of which is to diminish the drink evil; proposals for improvement of the army organization; Irish local government, and the education questions, together with a number of minor measures.

Block Island, R. I., Feb. 12.—The steamer Larchmont, of the Joy line, with many passengers bound from Providence for New York, sank off the northwest side of Block Island early today, after colliding with the three masted schooner, Harry Knowlton, off Quonochontaug. The passengers and crew from the steamer took to the boats but it is feared that some may have lost their lives either by drowning or freezing as the temperature was below zero. The schooner's bow was cut away and her captain ran her ashore west of Quonochontaug to prevent her sinking.

The crew of seven men, including Captain Haley, reached the shore safely in their own boats.

The cause of the collision is unknown. The night was clear but there was a strong northwest wind and the sea was rough. When the first boats came ashore from the steamer, it was found that some of the occupants were dead. In the confusion it is not known whether they were pulled from the water after drowning or whether they were frozen to death.

The Knowlton sailed from East Port and was bound from South Amboy for Boston with coal. The Larchmont left Providence last night for New York. She carried a crew of about fifty and had some passengers aboard.

Fully 180 People Lost.
Only 19 out of an estimated total of 150 to 200 persons survived the sinking of the Joy line steamer Larchmont in Block Island sound last night, according to an estimate made at 2 o'clock this afternoon. Of those saved eight were passengers, six men and two women, and the rest were members of the crew including Captain McVey.

Many Were Frozen to Death.
In the boats which carried the survivors were several passengers who were frozen to death during the trip from the wreck to the landing. It is impossible this afternoon to fix the number of dead. Captain McVey estimated the number of passengers at 150 and crew at 50. On the basis of these figures the number of those who perished is placed at 181. Bodies of victims are constantly being washed ashore. By noon 18 were taken from the water.

Death Loss Enormous.
Block Island, Feb. 12.—Capt. Geo. McVey, of the steamship Larchmont, said to the Associated Press today that he had on board between 150 and 200 passengers, when the collision occurred, and only eight of these escaped with their lives. At the same time he said fourteen bodies had been washed ashore, making twenty-two passengers accounted for.

Saddest Reports Confirmed.
Providence, Feb. 12.—The principal Joy line office in this city at 10 o'clock this morning was without definite information concerning the loss of life in the sinking of the steamer Larchmont. A private message, however, received from Block Island, says that fourteen bodies have been washed ashore. The Joy line officials estimate there were about 150 passengers and the crew numbered about thirty.

Sank Within Ten Minutes.
New York, Feb. 12.—Captain McVey, of the Larchmont, communicated with the Joy line officials in this city by telephone from Block Island early this afternoon. He said the Larchmont sank within ten minutes after the collision. After cruising about in an icy gale from 11 p. m. to 8 a. m. today, he landed on Block Island. Close behind his boat another landed, bringing fifteen dead and eight dying passengers.

Claimed Five Picked Up.
New York, Feb. 12.—It is said at the Joy line offices here that word had been received that a fishing schooner had picked up one of the Larchmont's boats containing five passengers and the body of another, who had died of exposure.

Washington, Feb. 12.—The president today sent in the following nominations:

Receiver of public monies at Douglas, Wyo., Samuel Slaymaker; register of land office at Douglas, Wyo., John W. Price.

Neither Was Discussed.

Washington, Feb. 12.—It was generally expected that at today's cabinet meeting the two subjects of general moment, the Japanese school question and the work of the joint American-German tariff commission, would receive consideration, but it can be stated on high authority that neither of these matters was discussed.

LAST FRIDAY AND NOT SINCE BEEN HEARD OF

New Britain, Conn., Feb. 12.—High officers of the Savings Bank of New Britain state that there is a big shortage in the accounts of William Walker, the missing treasurer of the bank, and that the bank's own officers up to noon had discovered a shortage of $150,000. Examinations of the bank's affairs continues and the officers say the shortage doubtless is much larger. The disappearance of Treasurer Walker occurred soon after the bank examiner visited the bank last Thursday. At that time Walker said he was ill and would be at the bank later. He did not appear again and early the next morning went to New York. Since then he has not been seen.

London, Feb. 12.—Turning his gift of divination from fiction to fact, Sherlock Holmes has taken on a lease of life that bids fair to be as full of notable achievements as the career snuffed out by his untimely—or was it timely?—literary death.

His investigation of the Edalji case and its review in a series of newspaper articles has so stirred the public mind that mass meetings are being held to determine free pardon and an inquiry into the manner of his trial and conviction, with sentence to seven years imprisonment.

Mr. George Edalji, a law graduate, was a practicing solicitor in Staffordshire, where a series of midnight outrages, involving the maining of horses, sheep and other farm animals, excited a public mind. Anonymous letters written figured in the matter, and it was these letters which first directed suspicion toward Mr. Edalji. However a more direct charge—that of maiming a horse—was brought against him, and he was sent to prison. Sir Conan Doyle characterizes the case as a gross miscarriage of justice, and after reading his analysis of the evidence the public is convinced of the correctness of his view.

Starting on his investigation without any preconceived opinion—having become interested in the problem it presents almost by accident—Sir Conan Doyle is led to the firmest conviction that evidence given against Mr. Edalji was entirely inadequate, open to suspicion where it looked strongest, and utterly inconclusive in the fact of the inherent weakness of the case for the prosecution and the impregnable alibi established for the defense. A verdict of guilty upon such evidence would have been impossible in a higher court, and it is a disgrace to the English judicial system that a conviction so arrived at should be allowed to stand. The inquiry of the proceedings burst on the public the moment Sir Conan Doyle, full of confidence as ever in his deductions and still imbued with his infallibility, announces the results of his study of the case.

Home secretary Gladstone, who sits in judgment on cases alleging miscarriage of justice, is being showered with protests and petitions on behalf of Edalji, and has given audience to Sir Conan Doyle, but forcing the hand of the home office is rarely brought about. It was the home office that stood out against the sentiment of the world in the Maybrick case and that yielded so reluctantly in the Beck case—another instance of flagrant injustice—and it is unlikely that Sir Conan Doyle, influential as he is, and backed by public feeling as he also is, will succeed in having the case reopened. Nothing will come of the agitation, it is predicted, until the wrongs of Edalji are voiced by some one in parliament who will get up the case properly and find an opportunity to inform the Commons adequately about it. As there are serious questions involved, the home secretary will climb down from his lofty position of indifference to what the public wants, and the Edalji case will receive the sympathetic consideration, thanks, all the same, to Sherlock Holmes.

Lost Will Found.
The finding of a lost will has brought a windfall of three-quarters of a million for John Elliott, of Sunnyside, Cheshire. It was the last testament of James Goddard Lear, who died in 1901. He was believed to have died intestate, and his brother, Charles Hutton Lear, was appointed administrator of the estate. Dying two years later, the brother, Charles, left his own fortune of upward of half a million to his friend, John Elliott, expressing the hope that he would give effect to any directions possibly left by his late brother, James, with respect to the property. After six years the latter's will has just been discovered and admitted to probate. It shows that James left the whole of his property to Charles, and that therefore it was Charles who gave effect to the directions of the estate left by Charles to his friend, Elliott, who thus becomes the possessor of the joint fortune of the Lear, through the mere tie of friendship. The story loses none of its strange interest from the fact that, while a friend of Charles Lear, the beneficiary was not even acquainted with the man of the last will.

Counterfeiters Fight Desperately.

A desperate struggle in a counterfeiters' den in the Bethnal Green section of London was described in court when Charles Croyney and Mary Sullivan were arraigned on the charge of making counterfeit coins. Surprised at work in their "mint," the prisoners had offered no resistance, but made a frantic effort to commit suicide on the spot. While the detectives were searching the room for evidence, Croyney seized a saucer containing a liquid used in counterfeiting and put it to his lips. He was seized by the throat to prevent him from swallowing the stuff. He fought like a tiger, but was choked into a state of insensibility and an emetic forced down his throat. "It's no use," shouted Croyney. "You can't help me. It's cyanide of potassium, and I've swallowed enough to kill a dozen men." Meanwhile, the woman counterfeiter had also made desperate efforts to get hold of another saucer of the liquid, but two of the detectives closed with her and held her fast. They were removed to the police station, where the services of a surgeon were required to dress the wounds received in the unavailing fight for death, for it proved that Croyney had not swallowed cyanide, the most fatal of poisons.

In court Croyney made a not ungalant attempt to shield the woman. Addressing the magistrate, he said: "This woman is entirely innocent. She only returned a few minutes before the police broke in. It's the first time she has ever seen such a thing. I couldn't get the stuff out of her way in time." As the police had found some spurious coins in the Sullivan's possession, Croyney's spirit of self-sacrifice had no satisfactory result, but on his supplemental plea that Mrs. Sullivan had two little children to care for the magistrate said he would allow her bail, while Croyney was remanded for trial.

Collision With Iceberg.

Collision with an iceberg ten miles long and fifteen hundred feet high is the latest story of fearful adventure at sea. The four-masted vessel William Nottingham, with a cargo of timber, was rounding Cape Horn when its crew met with the most terrifying experience of their lives. It was shortly after midnight when, through the heavy mist, the man at the lookout discovered a huge object just ahead. The Nottingham was plunging through the waves in a fifteen-knot breeze, and before the helm could be put hard-a-port she crashed into the iceberg. She struck with such force that all hands below were thrown out of their bunks, and rushed on deck, thinking that the ship was foundering. Huge blocks of ice broken off by the shock came tumbling down on the deck, and but for the great deckload of timber, the Nottingham might have been sunk. This protected the vessel, and the ice rolled off into the sea. As there seemed no hope of saving the vessel, the crew took to the lifeboat. They managed to get out of the ice pack into the open sea, where they were rescued by the next morning. Through the haze they saw their vessel, firmly wedged in the iceberg, which stretched miles away on each side and towered mountain high above them. Such monsters of the sea are encountered only in far southern latitudes, having their origin in the frozen continent about the south pole. Blocks of ice were still crashing down onto the deck of the vessel, but when later this ceased the crew succeeded in making their way through the pack and got aboard the Nottingham again. For three days they worked to get out of the grasp of the iceberg, during which time they had no sleep. Finally the vessel slipped off into the water and floated out into the open sea. She was found to be leaking badly, but the donkey-engine pump kept the water from increasing, and the Nottingham made the nearest port.

Insurance Against Servants.

The relationship between mistress and maid has been made closer under the workmen's compensation act—on the side of the mistress, at least. It should be explained that the new law makes employers of domestic servants liable for all accidents arising out of and in the course of employment. The legal liability is a heavy one, and small householders especially dreaded its enforcement, but now the happy thought of insuring against accidents to servants has solved the difficulty. Companies are springing up in all quarters and employers are in a hurry to effect these compensation risks. For indoor male and female servants there is only the one premium—five shillings a year against all risks. The policy is so drawn that compensation can be claimed without question for all accidents whatsoever, thus doing away with all litigation or dispute, while relieving the employer from all liability under the law. The premium covers the full wages of the servant from the date of the accident and medical expenses up to $25. For outdoor servants—gardeners, grooms and coachmen, but not chauffeurs—the rate is from seven to ten shillings a year.

Lame Back.

This ailment is usually caused by rheumatism of the muscles and may be cured by applying Chamberlain's Pain Balm two or three times a day and rubbing the parts vigorously at each application. If this does not afford relief, bind on a piece of flannel slightly dampened with Pain Balm and a quick relief is almost sure to follow. For sale by all druggists.

HOW PEOPLE OF OKLAHOMA
WORKAgainst New Mexico, as Told by Eye Witnesses of Nefarious Transaction.FORMER CONVICT HAS
HYPNOTIZED YOUNG GIRLSome Trials of New Mexico Man Who Wanted to Get Married in El Paso, Tex.

Carlsbad, N. M., C. W. Beeman, president of the Pecos Water Users' association, and A. A. Beeman and W. U. Dannelley, the latter two being prominent business men of Carlsbad, have just returned from a business trip up the valley and when returning from Amarillo they took passage on one of the homesteaders' excursion trains which run down into New Mexico regularly.

On this train there were five coaches loaded with homesteaders, and after they had pulled out of Amarillo the train was boarded by two well dressed men who said they were Oklahoma land agents. These Oklahoma men would go through the cars and get a knot of the homesteaders interested in conversation and tell them that the country from Amarillo down as far as Lakewood was all fine country, fine grass land, fine fruit and alfalfa land, etc., but when they got to Lakewood it was no use to go any further, as there was nothing down there but alkali flats, and that Carlsbad and Pecos and all other places below Lakewood were no good and were fast reverting to a desert stage, having no artesian wells and no water except alkali water. These remarks were iterated and reiterated, the Carlsbad men following the Oklahoma fellows, and challenged them to prove their statements. Then the Oklahoma men saw that they were about to be exposed as fools, and promptly drifted and left the homesteaders to act upon their own volition, but it was then too late.

Many of the homesteaders on that train had tickets through to that place, but every one of them got off the train at some point north of Carlsbad, not one of the bunch of homesteaders reaching the destination to which they had bought tickets.

GIRL HYPNOTIZED BY FORMER CONVICT

Kenosha, Wis.: On the ground that the girl was hypnotized and, therefore, not responsible for her actions, District Attorney Baker and Chief of Police Hare released on parole Annie Rumble, aged 18, who had been held as the accomplice of Fred Lichtensteller, said to be a notorious thief. It is claimed Miss Rumble is completely in the power of Lichtensteller. The girl is a daughter of Charles Rumble, a Lake Geneva farmer. When she was 14, Lichtensteller began working as a teamster in the neighborhood. Since the day he met her, he is claimed she has been a slave to him.

Lichtensteller is a former convict, but notwithstanding this, after Miss Rumble had known him a few days, she accompanied him to Kenosha to be married to him. Her father reached Kenosha and tried to prevent the marriage, but could not force the girl to return home with him. When she did finally return she remained but a short time and then fled in the night to join her lover.

Before the coming of Lichtensteller, it is said, the girl had been of a religious nature, but she was unable to overcome his influence over her. Miss Rumble admitted she had been with Lichtensteller in several robberies and had resided with him for months.

Many letters which passed between the two were seized by the police and these showed the power the man had over the girl. Miss Rumble bared her heart to the man in these letters and pleaded with him to release her from the spell that bound her.

When she was arrested, Lichtensteller was in Milwaukee, but she managed to telegraph him to flee, and he has not been captured. The young woman returned to Lake Geneva with her father. Bonds had been furnished to assure her appearance in court when demanded.

TRIALS AND TRIBULATIONS OF NEW MEXICO MAN.
El Paso, Texas: Summoned to the court house shortly after 9 o'clock at night, the county clerk was requested to issue a marriage license to Tom McCreary, of Ochita, N. M., and Maria Martinez, of El Paso, the stockman wanting to get married and having failed to get the license before.

McCreary first went to Justice Marshall, and when asked for the marriage license said he had forgotten all about that necessary document. The accommodating judge helped him over this difficulty, but others followed over which the justice had no control. After the ceremony the groom left his bride, and once upon the street he soon became lost, not being acquainted with the city. As he failed to return for the waiting girl Policeman Wilson escorted her to a suitable hotel.

Before McCreary could find his bride he had to call upon some friends to assist him in locating the policeman. At due time the happy couple were united.

RENEWED EFFORTS FOR OIL IN TOYAH FIELD.
Carlsbad, N. M.: The coring and well drilling outfit in charge of F. Z. Caracristi was sent down the Toyah oil and sulphur fields. It required twelve teams to take the outfit down.

It is now proposed by Dr. Caracristi to exploit the field further for oil as well as to make sufficient borings to fully determine the depth and extent of the sulphur deposits and to make thorough tests for artesian water throughout the region.

Very encouraging reports are coming in from the Toyah fields with the company now operating there, which has been carrying on its work unostentatiously for more than a year past while meeting with many mishaps and backsets.

The company at Toyah had already developed some three or four shallow wells which were yielding at the rate of 15 barrels of lubricating oil a day, having been pumped steadily for ten hours a day without any perceptible diminution in the yield. A letter from Dr. L. A. Brice, president of the company, who is now at the Del Pino sanitarium, says:

"You need not expect anything startling soon, as we will not try for deep oil until we get money enough out of the shallow wells to pay us to go deeper. These are the actual facts. I would not mislead you or any one else in regard to the field."

Since this letter was received it has been learned that Judge C. R. Brice, a prominent and wealthy lawyer of Carlsbad, has succeeded in reorganizing and financing the company, advancing largely the necessary funds himself, and active work in the fields is now being pushed and there will soon be ten more wells being pumped in the Toyah field in addition to the ones already being.

The contractor for the tract, which has been obtained by Capt. T. B. H. Hasse of Marion, Ky., is now in the field.

MAN WHOSE WIFE DIED AFTER AN OPERATION ARRESTED AS A SUSPECT IN THE DRAMATIC MURDER OF DR. CHARLES W. TOWNSEND, OF STATE ISLAND—CIRCUMSTANTIAL EVIDENCE THAT, IF TRUE, SHOWS GREAT DOUBLE TRAGEDY.

Special Correspondence.
New York, Feb. 11.—As a suspect in the mysterious murder case, resulting from the shooting of Dr. Charles W. Townsend, a prominent Staten Island physician, the police are holding a little, wizened-faced man, scarcely over five feet high. He is John Bell, a trolley conductor, who was arrested after he had made an attempt to hide.

Later his name was disclosed, and the circumstantial case they have against him was considered so strong that the police have abandoned all other calculations.

Townsend was killed between three and four o'clock on the morning of Jan. 26, 1907. The man who committed the homicide entered his bedroom, where he lay beside his wife, ordered him to get up, and then shot him. On the evening of Jan. 25, 1906, just a year before the killing of the doctor, the prisoner's wife, a young girl with whom he had eloped two years before, was taken ill. Dr. Townsend was called and she was removed to a hospital. The doctor immediately operated, and at 4 o'clock the following morning she died.

Bell has been torn with sorrow and anguish ever since her death, and it is alleged that he has talked bitterly against the surgeon.

If Bell killed Townsend, the police claim, the deed was planned in a manner dramatic in the extreme. A year after the death of his wife, almost to the minute, the physician breathed his last.

To strengthen their belief that they have produced a man, the detectives have produced a letter, discovered in the house in which Bell was arrested. It is addressed to his brother Howard. In it the prisoner refers to his dead wife and writes in a manner that seems to indicate that he contemplated suicide. The police look on Bell's reckless condition of mind as a circumstance.

FIRST UNITED STATES SENATOR ELECTED BY POPULAR VOTE REACHES WASHINGTON---SAYS HE'S THERE TO MAKE GOOD

SENATOR - ELECT JONATHAN BOURNE, WHO HAS BEEN CHOSEN BY OREGON, TELLS OF THE REMARKABLE NEW LAW WHICH THAT STATE HAS JUST GIVEN A TRIAL--AFTER THE PRIMARIES MADE HIM THE CHOICE HE WENT AWAY, BUT WON OUT.

(By Gilson Gardner, Special Correspondent.)

Washington, D. C., Feb. 12.--The first United States senator ever elected by direct vote of the people has arrived in Washington and he is the subject of much curiosity. His name is Jonathan Bourne, Jr., and he comes from Oregon.

"Yes," said Senator-elect Bourne, when I asked him about his election, "I find wherever I go there is great curiosity about this new scheme by which senators are elected by the people. I have been up in New England, and even in Canada. And everywhere I go there are the same questions."

"Does the Oregon law really put the matter directly up to the people?" Mr. Bourne was asked.

"Directly, and in just as binding a way as in a presidential election. Our law works. I am here as a testimonial of its working powers. I am here in spite of the opposition of the bosses and the influences which ordinarily control the bosses. After the people had expressed their choice at the primary elections and the regular elections in April and June, I went away and stayed away. I was convinced that the law would work, and I wanted to give it a fair chance. I have been away for six months--in fact have not been back--and yet I received 89 out of 90 votes in the legislature. I received a lot of votes which were not under any pledge to me."

"Was this not a personal tribute?" "Not at all. It is merely a tribute to the intelligence of the people in adopting such a law. It was the law and the principle they had in mind. I just happened to be the man who had made the fight to get the law. So they made me the candidate to test it out. My election is merely an opportunity."

"I am here to make good. If I make good there will be no question about my return. And to make good I will have to make good with the people. I can't serve anybody but the people. So long as I look after their interests I will be as certain of my continued return as I am that I am here now."

Mr. Bourne paused before he added: "Under our new law the senator from Oregon will have to play politics with his brains, not his pocket-book. He will have to give his best thought to the service of the people, or they will hold him to account."

Jonathan Bourne, Jr., who has been chosen for the six-year term, beginning March 4, is a smooth-faced man of about thirty years of age. His most characteristic feature is his firm, straight mouth, though there is a suggestion of a smile in the width of his mouth above the temples. It required a man of patience, brains and firmness to make the fight he made for this law.

For the past ten years Jonathan Bourne, Jr., has been a sort of joke with the Oregon machine politicians. Now there are no Oregon machine politicians, and the joke is extinct. There are no conventions--no middle men--no bosses for the corporate interests to buy. Jack Mathews, who was the boss of Senator Mitchell's machine, has just immigrated to San Francisco, where he has gone into the "real estate business."

The fight really began with the adoption in 1897-8 of an initiative and referendum law. But, in spite of this, the legislature has been able to dodge the issue in regard to senators, until Jonathan Bourne, Jr., started out a year or two ago to get a primary election law, which would permit a pledge by candidates for the legislature to their constituents to some particular senatorial candidate. This law was passed, and it has put an end to corporate and corrupt control of senatorial elections in Oregon.

"I AM IN WASHINGTON TO MAKE GOOD. AND TO MAKE GOOD I WILL HAVE TO MAKE GOOD WITH THE PEOPLE."--U. S. Senator-elect Bourne, of Oregon.

Other states, attracted by the Oregon success, are beginning to sit up and take notice. Senator La Follette has secured a copy of the act and is thinking of recommending its adoption in Wisconsin. A measure almost identical with the Oregon law is under consideration in Idaho. The state of Washington is working on a similar law, and it is being agitated in Iowa and some other western states.

OREGON MAKES 'EM SIGN.

Portland, Ore., Feb. 12.--The feature of the "Oregon plan," which provides for election of United States senators by what is almost a popular vote, is what is known generally here as "Statement No. 1" in the direct primary nominating election law. After providing that the nominations shall be by petitions and with the secretary of state, the law contains this provision:

"In case of an elector seeking nomination for the office of senator or representative in the legislative assembly he may include one of the following two statements in his petition; but if he does not do so, the secretary of state or county clerk, as the case may be, shall not on that account refuse to file his petition."

STATEMENT NO. 1. "I further state to the people of Oregon, as well as to the people of my legislative district, that during my term of office I will always vote for that candidate for United States senator in congress who has received the highest number of the people's votes for that position at the general election next preceding the election of a senator in congress, without regard to my individual preference."

If the candidate be unwilling to sign the above statement, then he may sign the following statement as a part of his petition:

STATEMENT NO. 2. "During my term of office I shall consider the vote of the people for United States senator in congress as nothing more than a recommendation, which I shall be at liberty to wholly disregard, if the reason for doing so seems to me to be sufficient."

There were seventy-five candidates for election to the legislature of Oregon in June. Of this number fifty-six decided to sign "Statement No. 1."

It is obvious that signers of Statement No. 2 will always be very much in the minority.

GOVERNMENT OF THE PEOPLE AND BY THE PEOPLE IN OREGON.

(BY JONATHAN BOURNE.)
First United States Senator Elected By Popular Vote.

Oregon is making great strides toward the American ideal of government of the people and as directly as possible by the people.

The state has adopted the initiative and referendum in both state and local government and in such form that legislative bodies are dependent on the people, while the people are independent of and superior to legislative bodies in law-making, nominations and elections.

Laws proposed by the initiative petition and enacted by the people without and independent of action by the legislature, enforcement of their will in the election of United States senators, and the grant of practically absolute home rule in cities and towns in all their purely municipal affairs, are the latest, and I hope and believe by no means the least successful efforts of the people in their determination to absolutely and directly govern our country and to make every officer their servant in fact as well as in theory.

WHY POLICE REPORTERS SIN.

An Anonymous "Pome." (With Apologies.) A visitor fair in dulcet tone, Had asked "I wonder why it is Police reporters sin?" The typewriters cease their click, As the proofman's murmurs cease, While every eye is turned upon The man who does police.

"We labor very hard," he said, For every cent we earn, And if we work all day and night There's no one gives a darn. We're always broke amid the smoke And din of precinct Twelve And dig the whole blamed live-long day After which we have to delve.

"In giving us assignments, sure, You ed. will say, While looking at us coolly, 'You were scooped again today! You must certainly brace up! And then he adds another drop To Marah's bitter cup."

"He cons his book and looks up-- He always looks askance-- And says, 'Oh, well, I suppose You may have another chance' After which he ends his satire As he starts in on this song, 'Hike over to the city jail Let me know if aught goes wrong."

"Then stop in on the mayor: Ask about the paving deal-- I know he'll sign the ordinance When the council moves the wheel. And see the city lawyer: I think you have the face To get a long opinion On the city building case."

"Take a look in an Larnard, Also John and Isherwood, Ask them if they think The sewer scheme is good. Drop down the street to Borders-- John Jones, they say, is dead, And ask which office he was at At the casket head."

"Interview Maynard Gunsul and Other Boosters on the round To Adams', and ask Strong If the relatives have been found. Wind up at the Alvarado. See who's stopping there; And if Pellow's in, just speak to him About Sunday's bill of fare."

"The court house man is sick abed; I wish you'd do the courts, And later in the day just Reel off a yarn on sports. A base ball league is in the wind. If it doesn't die of croup, Now chase along. Remember, I won't stand another scoop."

"The' all is wrong you chase along The dirty, dusty street, With nervous hands and throbbing head And tired and aching feet. And finally you are very blue And just about all in, As you turn toward the sanctum To commit a verbal sin."

"You have to spin a 'pome.' So the paragrapher said, And write about a college game. Also do a column head; Fix up a line about a show That you will never see. And 'Constant Reader' wants to know Who wrote that 'Sweet Marie.'"

ARE TAKING LESS PATENT MEDICINES NOW

A well known authority states that there are more cases of kidney trouble here now than ever before, while recent reports show that more people succumb each year to some form of kidney disease than any other cause.

When there is sickness, examine the urine. Rheumatism is only a symptom of kidney trouble. It is nothing more or less than excessive uric acid in the blood, which the sluggish, inactive kidneys have failed to sift out, leaving it to decompose and settle about the joints and muscles, causing intense suffering; frequently resulting in deformity; often reaching the heart when death ensues.

Pains across the back, frequent, painful and suppressed urination and other symptoms of weak bladder are not the only signs of kidney trouble, many cases of stomach disease, headache, pain in the heart, inactive liver etc., are but symptoms; the cause of which can be traced to feeble, clogged kidneys.

The physicians for the insurance companies always carefully examine and report on the condition of the urine. It is a certain sign of sickness or health of the human body. A test of the urine should be made by every man and woman at least once each year. A simple test is to void a small quantity of urine in a bottle or glass and let it stand over night; next morning, if there is a reddish brick-dust sediment, or white, fleecy substance present, either consult some reputable physician or take a good vegetable treatment. The following prescription is recommended highly in these cases, and if desirable the sufferer can mix it at home. Any good prescription pharmacy has the ingredients, which are harmless and inexpensive: Compound Kargon, one ounce; Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Shake well and use in teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime. Where any of the symptoms enumerated above are present, good results are sure to follow immediately the use of this simple prescription.

THE VALUE OF PERSONAL KNOWLEDGE

Personal knowledge is the winning factor in the culminating contests of this competitive age and when of ample character it places its fortunate possessor in the front ranks of

The Well Informed of the World.

A vast fund of personal knowledge is really essential to the achievement of the highest excellence in any field of human effort.

A Knowledge of Forms, Knowledge of Functions and Knowledge of Products are all of the utmost value and in questions of life and health when a true and wholesome remedy is desired it should be remembered that Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., is an ethical product which has met with the approval of the most eminent physicians and gives universal satisfaction, because it is a remedy of Known Quality, Known Excellence and Known Component Parts and has won the valuable patronage of millions of the Well Informed of the world, who know of their own personal knowledge and from actual use that it is the first and best of family laxatives, for which no extravagant or unreasonable claims are made.

This valuable remedy has been long and favorably known under the name of--Syrup of Figs--and has attained to world-wide acceptance as the most excellent family laxative. As its pure laxative principles, obtained from Senna, are well known to physicians and the Well Informed of the world to be the best we have adopted the more elaborate name of--Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna--as more fully descriptive of the remedy, but doubtless it will always be called for by the shorter name of--Syrup of Figs--and to get its beneficial effects, always note, when purchasing the full name of the Company--California Fig Syrup Co.--printed on the front of every package, whether you call for--Syrup of Figs--or by the full name--Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna.

MONUMENTAL HYPOCRISY

How utterly hopeless the anti-republican organ of this city has become, in its fight upon everything republican, can plainly enough be seen in its silly falsehoods and floundering efforts at abuse of republican leaders. Its latest efforts in these lines is to be found in its having thrown a fit because the republican house deemed it wise to pass a bill against attempts at official bribery.

It declares the bill to be a great insult to the legislators themselves as well as to the territorial officials. The legislators who passed the bill ought to be the best judges as to whether they were insulting their own integrity, and not the blatant democratic organ which has not ceased in its insulting tirade against the republican majority in the legislature, for a single moment since that body assembled. It has charged them with nearly every vice and crime known in its peculiarly rich vocabulary of billingsgate. That it should not become so excessively solicitous lest the republican majority should impugn their own integrity, can but expose its hypocrisy and nauseating lack of honesty or honor, or even common decency. The members of the legislature are able to look out for their integrity and to protect it even from the slanderous assaults of the democratic daily of this city.

Then, too, the number of times in which that same daily has charged New Mexico officials with bribing legislators, and New Mexico legislators with being bribed by the officials, sometimes with money and sometimes with office, would not come short of filling a very large volume. According to that paper itself, such bribery is possible; indeed, it has sworn such bribery to have occurred time and again in the history of New Mexico. Hence, it may possibly occur in the future, and as the legislature is not enacting laws for itself, but for the future, the passage of this law is timely and seemly. At any rate, such a law will prevent all unprincipled papers like the anti-republican organ of this city, from befouling legislators and territorial officials in the future, as they have done in the past, by their favorite charge of barter of office for coveted legislation.

But to look at it from another standpoint. If the position of the democrats be well taken, why not say that every statute on the books against bribery in elections or of witnesses or jurors, or against the commission of any other crime, is an insult to the integrity of the commonwealth? Are the territorial officials and the legislators so high-toned, so immaculate, so far above the ordinary common people, that it is an insult to enact laws making them amenable thereto for the commission of an offense, which if committed by an ordinary private citizen would subject him to conviction for a felony? In short, the position of the opposition is that the common "keener," to use the favorite expression of the Journal, should be promptly convicted and punished for bribery, while the high-toned territorial officials should be immune and free to use the political patronage at will, without let or hindrance or regard for decency. Such may never have been done in the past, may not be contemplated now, and may not be likely in the future. But one thing is certain—such a law would render its commission impossible at the present and in the future.

How much the morning paper opposes the law may be gathered from its abuse of Mr. Holt, concerning whom it engaged in common, contemptible lying. It stated that Mr. Holt was removed from the office of district attorney. He was never removed, was never asked to resign, and is district attorney now. But then no one is surprised at the intentional inaccuracies of the morning paper.

NOMINATION BY ELECTION

The Leavenworth Times addresses the legislature of Kansas on the question of direct primaries. Its remarks are so applicable here as well as there, that The Citizen quotes them in full. The Times says: In proceeding with its deliberations upon the direct primary the Kansas legislature is already assured that the people of the state want a direct primary law. There has been no attempt to dictate what the nature of the measure shall be and the members are therefore free to work out according to their own lights a law that shall be in every respect satisfactory. The result of the experiments with the direct primary in other states will be an invaluable guide to them, and with its help they should be able to frame a plan of primary elections that will prove wholly adequate and acceptable.

Logically these primaries should be held at the same places on the same day and under the direction of the same judges and clerks. This would reduce the cost of such elections to the minimum.

But the purpose of the direct primary is to retain the idea of party regularity, at the same time eliminating the bossism which has heretofore been so common, by allowing the people directly to make the nominations, and the party regularity will be destroyed unless in the cities the primary voter has previously been compelled to signify his party preference.

Whatever may be the other provisions of the direct primary law, it should contain one requiring the statement of party preference from each voter, and he should be denied the privilege of a voice in making nominations for any party other than that which he has stated to be his choice.

ALL SAME AS JOURNAL

The Roswell Record is showing its kinship in purpose and disposition, if not in blood, with the morning anti-republican organ of this city. A more ridiculous falsehood or a more vicious effort to injure New Mexico by slandering its capital city, would be difficult to duplicate even from the maudlin utterances of the Albuquerque anti-republican organ itself, than that which appeared in a recent issue of the Record. However, that paper differs from its crony here in being avowedly democratic from top to bottom, while the Albuquerque organ is a wolf in sheep's clothing. But here is what the Record said:

"It sounds like exaggeration, but a Roswell man who recently returned from a trip to Santa Fe says the situation is more desperate than a Chicago labor strike. He would not be surprised to hear of the assassination of the governor, the attorney general or any other man who dares befriend these officials. Every stranger going to the town is under constant espionage by an army of detectives employed by the gang of grafters, and it is known that there are ex-convicts and cut-throats enough loitering about the capital to execute almost any crime that might be imagined. The Record believes, however, that such talk is made at Santa Fe merely to frighten the friends of the governor and keep them out of town."

New Mexican: The house of representatives Thursday defeated Councilman Sulzer's bill appropriating the sum of $8,000 for the construction of dikes in the Rio Grande valley north of Albuquerque, from the territorial irrigation fund, and did this in very short order. The reasons for this action are given as follows: One, that this appropriation would be unfair and inequitable to other parts of the Rio Grande valley, and the other that there was great doubt as to its legality and the power of the assembly to make it. These reasons are strong enough to demand careful investigation. The New Mexican favored the proposition at first glance, and if the appropriation can legally be made it still believes this should be done. There is considerable in the contention that there are many places in the Rio Grande valley north and south of Albuquerque that need similar protection, and that the appropriation of the morning anti-republican organ of this city claims that the republican organization of the legislature is going to pieces, and Captain Littlefield Ruppe is reported to threaten that he will explode a bomb this week which will wreck the band wagon. As the war-like captain was the last to climb into the band wagon, he should beware that he does not hoist himself with his own petard. As to the organization's going to pieces, the vote overruling the governor's veto, of $2 to 3, one being absent, would seem to indicate the overcrowding of the band wagon rather than the loss of any occupants.

$8,000 for the particular point north of Albuquerque would be excessive and unfair, considering that the entire amount available in the fund is only $13,000. Notwithstanding this last contention, it might be well to reconsider and make the appropriation if this can be done legally. The other point might be waived and other sections of the Rio Grande valley might come in at a future time for their share.

KENTUCKY AUTHORESS ON MARIE CORELLI'S VOTE IDEA

Among the many comments called out from American women by Marie Corelli's recent diatribe against woman's ballot, there has been none brighter than that of the Kentucky authoress, Mrs. Lida Calvert of Obenchain, better known by her pen name of Eliza Calvert Hall. After quoting Miss Corelli's declaration that if a woman has "the mystic power to enthrall and subjugate man," she does not need the ballot, and her assertion that she herself now controls fifty men's votes, Mrs. Obenchain says:

We are all familiar with the picture of the hen-pecked husband whose wife wants to vote, but will not some cartoonist show us these fifty hypnotized Englishmen meekly marching to the polls to execute the will of a woman who does not want to vote? When Sir Roger de Coverley, found himself "enthralled" and "subjugated" by that widow with the finest hand in the country," he still retained enough common sense to realize his condition, and aptly described himself as a "captivated calf."

A woman has a right to influence a man's political views by appealing to his reason, but to enthrall and subjugate a man by appealing to his senses, and to send him thus befuddled to the polls is to make of him a "captivated calf."

Think of Miss Corelli and her "captivated calves," and then think of a husband and wife in Colorado walking to the polls side by side, one voting the democratic ticket, the other the republican, and each respecting the other's right. Wouldn't you rather be the Colorado man than the captivated English calf?

As a matter of fact, however, we think Miss Corelli is drawing on her imagination when she says there are fifty men whose votes she can direct. Woman-like she over-estimates her "mystic power to enthrall and subjugate" men.

Kentucky women understand the art of enthralling men, but I never knew one who could make a democrat vote the republican ticket or vice versa.

Some years ago there was a very exciting election in Kentucky. One of the candidates was bitterly opposed to many women. One of these was lamenting to a friend that she could not get her husband to promise not to vote for the objectionable candidate.

"Look up all his clothes on election day, so that he can't go to the polls," suggested the friend.

"Look up his clothes!" was the reply. "Why he would go to the polls naked!"

This man probably voted wrong, but at any rate he was not a "captivated calf."

The franchise is not given to a man in order that he may express the political views of his wife, his sister, or his maiden aunt. It is conferred on him that he may express his own views; and, as this is a republic, "a government of the people, by the people, for the people," and as women are people, the wife, the sister and the maiden aunt should have the right to express their views without the preliminary performance of subjugating some weak man.

Miss Corelli, an anti-suffragist, argues for a woman's right to express her opinions through a man who gives up his own opinions in order to express the woman's. I, a suffragist, argue for a man's right to express his own opinions unsubjugated and unenthralled by any woman. Curious? Not at all. A woman who respects her own rights will always respect a man's rights, and a woman who boasts that she can direct fifty men's votes in any way she chooses, would be likely to make her husband wash the dishes and tend the baby while she wrote a "Romance of Two Worlds."—Leavenworth Times.

AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE ON WHEELS FOR NEGRO FARMERS

A sort of agricultural college on wheels is the scheme by means of which the Tuskegee institute people are reaching the shiftless negro farmers, at least as many of them as the Jesup wagon can travel around to. Booker T. Washington tells about it in The World's Work.

"It is not enough," says he, "to get the sons and daughters into the institute. Something must be done for the fathers and mothers if the condition of the race is to be bettered. This problem is being solved in a large measure by the Jesup agricultural wagon, made possible through the generosity of Morris K. Jesup."

"The wagon itself and the harness were made at the school by our own students, and two large mules were purchased. The outfit includes different kinds of plows and planters, a cultivator, a cotton chopper, a variety of seeds, samples of fertilizers, a revolving churn, a butter mold, a cream separator, a milk tester and other appliances useful in making practical demonstrations."

"The wagon method has the immense advantage of going direct to the man in the field, where improved methods can be adapted to his particular conditions. We carry our implements out into the field. After he has plowed a few furrows we hitch up one of our improved plows."

"That may be a good plow for some," he says, "but for me, give me that old sower."

"We use our plow for a few minutes and then ask him to compare the amount of work done and the kind of furrow. After that we can hardly get away from him. They often try to borrow our implements, and one man insisted that we remain until he could plow over his cotton."

"When we come upon a man slowly plowing out his cornfield, we take out the cultivator and show him that he can make seven furrows where he is making one, and with the same animal. So convincing have these demonstrations been that many have at once bought improved implements. It generally means that boys behind the plow handles may stay in school longer."

"We often find the farmer's wife and children out in the field scattering fertilizer. A distributor taken from our wagon shows him that there is a quicker and a better way, and his family may at the time be free to do something else."

"The operator in charge of the Jesup wagon pays as much attention to the kitchen as to the field, for experience has shown us that the wife must be taught as well as the husband."

"After the Jesup wagon has in this way made the rounds of the large and small farms of a community a mass meeting is held in the open air at some central point."

NEW JERSEY, A STATE UNABASHED, RETURNING "SYSTEM" DRYDEN, IN SPIRIT TO U. S. SENATE

THE WATERING CAN STATE FOR THE TRUSTS SELECTS BRIGGS, REPLICA OF DRYDEN, AND THE KINGS OF "VESTED INTERESTS" REJOICE.

Special Correspondence.

Trenton, N. J., Feb. 12.—Out Dryden; in Briggs! That is what they have said in New Jersey, the mother of trusts, the "traitor state," as L. Stettens puts it.

For Briggs, State Treasurer Briggs, Chairman of the State Republican Committee Briggs, Frank O. Briggs, Dryden's political legatee, they call him, has been selected as Dryden's successor in the United States senate, and the vested interests are singing Hallelujah!

FRANK O. BRIGGS.
Nominated by the Republican Legislature of New Jersey to succeed John F. Dryden.

Briggs is John F. Dryden all over again, on a smaller scale. He believes in the sacred name of finance. He was Dryden's leading advocate until the latter retired from the race on account of his health, the doctors say, but really because he knew his defeat was certain.

The senators and assemblymen who bolted Dryden were back in the caucus which nominated Briggs, but they were back with the distinct understanding that if Dryden was selected they would refuse to abide by the caucus. The reform wing and the bolters were standing as solid as possible for someone, they cared comparatively little who, radically different from Dryden, but Briggs' nomination shows that the ring is practically as powerful as ever.

Briggs is Dryden's man Friday. He has not had much chance to exhibit himself before the whole people, but it is a safe bet that he will manage to wrap the Drydenesque toga carefully around him and follow in the footsteps of his political father. He will not contribute to the winter scenery, as Dryden did, with lovely, solemn, white-whiskered, pure in heart to look at trimmings. Dryden was not eloquent, he was not literary, he was not a student, he was not a man of sentiment, but he had one of these financially pickled consciences. The vested interests had him jugged up for regular use. And why should not his legatee be similarly preserved?

Gov. Stokes wanted the nomination. Stokes would have been a good man. When he was elected governor, he resigned from a railroad board of directors, and New Jersey gasped for breath. They are unused in New Jersey to patriotism of this brand.

It was rumored that the caucus would stampede to Stokes, but it didn't. It did as it was told, and selected Briggs, and nobody will ever dream of severing his official connection with those things that New Jersey stands for—the trusts, the "system," the vested interests and all the rest of her idols.

CHARLES B. HANFORD AS MARC ANTHONY

Shakespearean Not Quite up to Expectation—The Performance Was Well Attended.

Whether it was because the audience gave him a chilly reception or whether he had been over-wrought by his press matter, Charles B. Hanford did not appear to be at his advantage as Marc Anthony in "Julius Caesar," at the Elks' opera house last night, as he did a year ago in "The Taming of the Shrew."

It might be said that Hanford as an actor is a better master of women than of men.

It will be conceded that the character is an awkward one, with but one exception—when he buries Caesar and speaks to the Roman rabble. It is unbecoming for man to weep, and Hanford's grief over Caesar's dead body was far from fetching.

The characters of Marcus Brutus and Calpurnia by George C. Gunther and John M. Kline were highly worthy of praise. Kline entered into the character of Calpurnia with a spirit though he lived it. His voice was clear and forceful and to him was handed the homage of the audience. Frederick Hand as Caesar had very much the appearance of a waisted Roman gladiator, his long and ungainly figure contrasting with the fair beauty of Portia, played by Miss Dronah, which is Hanford spelled backwards.

The company of twenty-two people was balanced well. A wealth of special scenery assisted the production.

THIEVES ROB CLOTHESLINE OF RAIMENT IN THE NIGHT

MRS. JENNIE DREER HANGS APPAREL TO BREEZES—THIS MORNING SOME IS MISSING.

Mrs. Jennie Dreer, who lives on South Arno street, appeared at the office of Chief of Police McMillin, in the city building, this morning, with a complaint that some one had robbed her wash line of various and sundry garments last night. She said she had washed the clothes and hung them out to dry yesterday, leaving them pinned on the line last night. This morning several suits of underwear were missing.

The chief detailed a patrolman to look into the matter, giving him instructions to arrest all suspects and to lock them up pending investigation.

The thieves probably made a hurried visit to the clothes line, as several articles of apparel were found strewn about the back yard, where they had evidently dropped them in their haste to get away. It is thought something frightened the persons while they were busy with their petty knavery.

MORTUARY

C. A. Tillotson.

C. A. Tillotson, formerly employed at this point by the Santa Fe Railroad company as a telegraph operator, died a few days ago at Phoenix, Ariz., of tuberculosis. Mr. Tillotson came to the southwest from Montreal, Canada. While in this city he made many friends, who will regret to know that he has at last succumbed to the malady from which he had hoped to recover through the agency of this climate.

Patrick Lyons.

Patrick Lyons, for several years a resident of Taos and well known throughout the northern part of this territory, died last Saturday of heart disease, at his home in that place. Mr. Lyons was the father of Mrs. Frank Staplin, wife of the chief clerk of the house, in the present legislature, and was one of the pioneers in this portion of the country. He was in the eightieth year of his age and his long life was more than ordinarily eventful. Born and brought up in Ireland at a time when conditions there were anything but congenial, he left his native land and came to America, almost at once deciding upon the west as his future home. With that end in view he joined an immigrant train and crossed the plains to Montana, finally enlisting in the United States army. He first came to New Mexico in 1856 as a soldier in Kearney's army, participating in several battles with the Indians and later serving in the civil war. His career as a soldier lasted for a period of ten years, after which he engaged in mining and cattle raising in Colfax county and in various parts of the territory. During the last few years he has lived in retirement at his home in Taos.

The many old time friends of Mr. Lyons, and especially his comrades of the civil war, will greatly regret his loss. His death adds another to the list of New Mexico's old settlers now so rapidly disappearing.

Charles Sumner Blyther.

Charles Sumner Blyther, Albuquerque manager for Dun's mercantile agency, died of complications at his home, 521 South Walter street, last night. The funeral will be held from Border's undertaking parlors tomorrow morning, at 10 o'clock. The burial will be at Fairview cemetery. A widow survives Mr. Blyther. For the past fifteen years Mr. Blyther had been connected with the Dun mercantile agency, with which he has held responsible positions at intervals in Arizona and New Mexico. About a year ago he moved to Albuquerque with his wife from Denver, Colo., and has since resided here. He made a wide circle of friends in Albuquerque, who will share the bereavement of his sorrowing wife.

The PARENTS OF ABE LINCOLN

By IDA M. TARBELL

Among the many wrongs of history—and they are legion—there is none in our American chapter at least which is graver than that which has been done to the parents of the mother of Abraham Lincoln. Of course I refer to the widespread tradition that Lincoln was born of that class known in the south as "poor whites," that his father was not Thomas Lincoln, as his biographers insist on declaring, but a rich and cultured planter of another state than Kentucky, and that his mother not only gave a fatherless boy to the world, but herself was a nameless child. The tradition has always lacked particularity. For instance there has been large difference of opinion about the planter who fathered Abraham, who he was and where he came from. One story calls him Enloe, another Calhoun, another Hardin, and several different states claim him. Only five years ago a book was published in North Carolina to prove that Lincoln's father was a resident of that state. The bulk of the testimony offered in this instance came from men and women who had been born long after Abraham Lincoln, had never seen him, and never heard the tale they repeated until long after his election to the presidency. Of the truth of these statements as to Lincoln's origin no proof has ever been produced. They were rumors, diligently spread in the first place by those who for political purposes were glad to belittle a political opponent. They grew with telling and curiosity enough, two of Lincoln's best friends helped perpetuate them—Messrs. Lamon and Hendon—both of whom wrote lives of the president, which are of great interest and value. But neither of these men was a student and they did not take the trouble to look for records of Mr. Lincoln's birth. They accepted rumors and enlarged upon them. Indeed, it was not until perhaps twenty-five years ago that the matter was taken up seriously and an investigation begun. This has been going on at intervals ever since, until I venture to say that few persons born in a pioneer community, as Lincoln was, and as early as 1809, have their lineage on both sides as clearly established as that of Abraham Lincoln. It takes indeed, a most amazing credulity for any one to believe the stories I have alluded to after having looked at the records of his family. Lincoln himself, backed by the record in the Lincoln family Bible, in the first authority for the time and place of his birth, as well as the name of his father and mother. The father, Thomas Lincoln, far from being a "poor white" was the son of a prosperous Kentucky planter, a man of honorable and well-established lineage who had come from Virginia as a friend of Daniel Boone, and had there bought large tracts of land and begun to grow up with the country, where he was killed by the Indians. He left a large family. By the law of Kentucky the estate went mainly to the oldest son, and the youngest, Thomas Lincoln, was left to shift for himself. This youngest son grew to manhood and on June 18, 1806, was married at Beechland, Kentucky, to a young woman of a family well known in the vicinity, Nancy Hanks. There is no doubt whatever about the time and the place of their marriage. All the legal documents required in Kentucky at that period for a marriage are in existence. Not only have we the bond and the certificate, but the marriage is duly entered in a list of marriage returns made by Jesse Head one of the best known early Methodist ministers of Kentucky. It is not to be seen in the records of Washington county, Kentucky. There is even in existence a very full and amusing account of the wedding and the fanfare which followed by a guest who was present, and who for a year after was accustomed to visit Thomas and Nancy. This guest, Christopher Columbus Graham, a unique and perfectly trustworthy man, a prominent citizen of Louisville, died only a few years ago.

But while these documents dispose effectually of the question of the parentage of Lincoln, they do not, of course, clear up the shadow which hangs over the parentage of his mother. Is there anything to show that Nancy Hanks herself was of an clear and clean lineage as her husband? There had been nothing whatever until a few years ago, through the efforts of Mrs. Caroline Hanks Hitchcock of Cambridge, who had in preparation the genealogy of the Hanks family in America, a little volume, was published, showing what she had established in regard to Nancy Hanks. Mrs. Hitchcock had begun at the far end of the line—the arrival of one Benjamin Hanks in Massachusetts in 1595.

She discovered that one of his sons, William, moved to Virginia, and that in the latter part of the eighteenth century his children formed in Amelia county of that state a large settlement. All the records of these families she found in the hall of records in Richmond. When the migration into Kentucky began, late in the century, it was joined by many members of the Hanks settlement in Amelia county. Among others to go was Joseph Hanks with his wife, Nancy Shingley Hanks, and their children. Mrs. Hitchcock traced this Joseph Hanks, by means of land records, to Nelson county, Kentucky, where she found that he died in 1793, leaving behind a will, which she discovered in the records of Bardonia, Ky. This will shows that at the time of his death Joseph Hanks had eight living children, to whom he bequeathed property. The youngest of these was "My daughter Nancy," as the will puts it.

Mrs. Hitchcock's first query, on reading this will, was: "Can it be that this little girl—she was but nine years old when her father died—was the Nancy Hanks who sixteen years later became the mother of Abraham Lincoln?" She determined to find out. She learned from relations and friends of the family of Joseph Hanks still living that, soon after her father's death, Nancy went to live with an uncle, Richard Berry, who, the records showed, had come from Virginia to Kentucky at the same time that Joseph Hanks came. A little further research, and Mrs. Hitchcock found that there had been brought to light through the efforts of friends of Abraham Lincoln all the documents to show that in 1804, Nancy Hanks and Thomas Lincoln were married at Beechland, Ky. Now one of these documents was a marriage bond. It was signed by Richard Berry, the uncle of the little girl recognized in the will of Joseph Hanks. Here, then, was the chain complete. The marriage bond and marriage returns not only showed that Nancy Hanks and Thomas Lincoln were married regularly three years before the birth of Abraham Lincoln, thus setting forever at rest the story of Lincoln's illegitimacy, but they showed that this Nancy Hanks was the one named in the will. The suspicion in regard to the origin of Lincoln's mother was removed by this discovery of the will, for the recognition of any one as his child by a man in his will is considered by the law as sufficient proof of paternity.

Now what sort of people were Thomas Lincoln and Nancy Hanks? It has been inferred by those who have made no investigation of Thomas Lincoln's life that Nancy Hanks made a very poor choice of a husband. The facts do not entirely warrant this theory. Thomas Lincoln had been forced from his boyhood to shift for himself in a young and undeveloped country. He is known to have been in spite of his poverty a hardworking man, a man of good habits. He was temperate and honest, and his name is recorded in more than one place in the records of Kentucky. He was a church-goer, and, if tradition may be believed, a stout defender of his peculiar religious views. He held advanced ideas of what was already an important public question in Kentucky, the right to hold negroes as slaves. One of his old friends has said of him and his wife, Nancy Hanks, that they were "just steeped full of notions about the wrongs of slavery and the rights of men, as explained by Thomas Jefferson and Thomas Paine." These facts show that he must have been a man of some intelligence. He had a trade and owned a farm. That the two people who endured their hardships and made in spite of them a home where a boy could conceive and nourish such ideals and enthusiasms as inspired Abraham Lincoln from his early years should have their names darkened by unfounded suspicions is a cruel injustice against which every honest and patriotic American ought to set his face. If in carrying out the noble project of making a National Park of the Kentucky farm where Thomas Lincoln and Nancy Hanks made their first home the directors do nothing more than to set forth the facts of the parentage of Abraham Lincoln they will justify their undertaking.

SCOTT-LINDEMANN NUPTIALS

J. R. Scott and Mrs. George Lindemann were quietly married at the home of W. G. Mearns, 219 South Second street, shortly before 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon. They departed for St. Louis on Santa Fe train No. 1 last night, where they expect to remain for a month. Only the immediate relatives of the groom witnessed the ceremony, which was performed by Father Mandarini, of the Immaculate Conception church. Mr. Mearns is Mr. Scott's brother-in-law. Although the wedding had been anticipated for some time it came in the nature of a surprise yesterday to many of the acquaintances of the young people, although their immediate friends appear to have had "inside" information about the happy event.

The home of the bride's parents is at St. Louis. She is a partner in the business of the popular Leonard & Lindemann music house, on Gold avenue, and is popular. The groom is a stenographer to T. E. Purdy, Albuquerque agent for the Santa Fe Railroad company. He is also identified with the management of Colombo hall, on North Second street, and other interests. Mr. and Mrs. Scott have many friends in the Duke City, who wish them unalloyed happiness.

BEATS ALL DOG SHOWS YET KNOWN JUDGMENT FOR $925.25

More Than 3,000 Entries, Fullerton Wins Long Standing Suit For Cattle Sale Commission.

New York, Feb. 12.—The largest dog show ever held in any part of the world opened here at Madison Square Garden today. The entries reach a total of 3,075. The show is held under the auspices of the Westminster club and is considered one of the most important events of its kind in the world. The largest show in Europe is that of the Kennel club of London, but the largest number of exhibits at any of the London shows only totalled 1,795. There is a great increase in the number of fox hounds shown. The recent organization of the masters of fox hounds association, composed of nine hunts in Pennsylvania, seven in Virginia, five in Maryland, four each in Massachusetts and New York, and three in New Jersey, shows conclusively that the sport of following the hounds is growing in this country, and with this has come the necessity of keeping up the packs by breeding and importation. There is also a great increase in the Boston terrier class, nearly two hundred more having been entered this year than last. The number of pomeranians is doubled, and there are big increases in the classes for English setters, and sporting dogs. Other breeds showing substantial increases are deerhounds, pointers, collies, Dalmatians, French bulldogs, Welsh terriers and the various kinds of toy terriers. Among the dogs on exhibition there are some of the finest and most famous dogs in the respective classes including some of the champion blue ribbon winners of many European dog shows. The list of prizes is larger than ever in the history of bench shows. Nearly $20,000 in special prizes have been offered by individual contributors and the regular show prizes amount to $15,000 more. That makes the grand total of $34,000 in cups, trophies, bowls, medals and cash prizes. The two new breeds, the Rosemeath terrier and the Papillon, or butterfly spaniel are shown. Another interesting feature of the show will be the exhibition and judging of the packs of hunters which will take place on the closing day. Each pack consists of five couples and they will be put through their paces in the arena of the garden. Among those who have offered special cups or prizes are Henry Whitney, W. K. Vanderbilt, Gould Brookline, General Fitzgerald, S. Peters and the C. S. Guthrie memorial cup. In addition the Westminster Kennel club offers $1500 in prize for the best pack of American fox hounds, as well as $750 for the best pack of beagles. The Ladies Kennel Association of America is prominent in its list of specials and cups, and as many as forty are offered by the organization.

This arrangement and other matters will be discussed at the "Booster" meeting this evening, at 8 o'clock, at Zeiger's hall, corner Second street and Railroad avenue.

"SPRIG AND PINTAIL" ARE ON THE WING

SPORT GOOD AT SAN ANTONIO, N. M. SO HARRY JOHNSON SAYS.

Local sportsmen were more or less excited this morning at the array of wild ducks displayed in front of a Railroad avenue market. They were selling for forty cents apiece and there appeared to be plenty of takers. A few mallards were noticed in the assortment, but most of the fowls were of the "sprig" and "pintail" species. The "sprig" flight will be shorter this year than usual, it is said, on account of the weather. The ducks displayed at the market were shipped in from San Antonio, where the shooting is said to be excellent.

In the Bernalillo county district court today, Judge Ira Abbott rendered a decision in the case of W. S. Fullerton, of Albuquerque, against H. T. Mayberry, of Socorro county, giving judgment in favor of the plaintiff, Fullerton, who sued for certain commissions on the sale of cattle. The amount of the judgment was $925.25, being 50 per cent commission on the sale of 1,779 head of cattle.

The suit was originally brought in the year 1905 and the case has been hanging fire in the court ever since. Attorney E. W. Dobson appeared as Mr. Fullerton's attorney, while the defense was represented by Attorneys Heacock & Lowery.

Other Matters. The First National bank of Albuquerque, by Attorney H. F. Reynolds, has brought suit against the Jura Trias Copper company, Thomas J. Curran and G. W. Stubbs, asking judgment on a promissory note for $3,000.

Nell B. Field has filed suit against Alberta Luna, Susana Luna y Ortiz, Dolores Baca de Luna and Atanasio Montoya, as trustees. J. M. Archuleta, Jr., and M. Y. Gomez have brought suit against E. M. Sandoval and Josefa M. Sandoval. It is alleged in the complaint that the defendant overdraw his account with a Sandoval county firm, of which he was a member, to the extent of $1,087.80, and for $893.40 of bills which they allege were not included in the final winding up of the partnership in which the plaintiff was interested with the defendant.

COUNTY PRISONERS DIG UP TWO RIFLES

COUNTY COMMISSIONER SPRINGER'S PROPERTY BURIED PLACE OF U. S. ARTILLERY.

While digging a ditch on the property of County Commissioner Manuel Springer in Old Albuquerque yesterday, a prisoner from the county jail working with a chain gang, unearthed a Shays rifle of the style used by the United States cavalry twenty years ago. Today a second gun of the same kind was unearthed at the same place. Both guns are in very good repair, considering the length of time they have laid in the ground. The find has caused no little speculation. The question "how did the guns come to be there?" is heard on all sides. Major H. R. Whiting, who is probably better posted on the early history of Albuquerque than any one else living here now, says that he believes that the rifles were buried at the same time with the cannon, which were uncovered in the same vicinity several years ago. These cannon were buried by some regiment of cavalry, which hid the guns from the enemy after hearing that their own troops had been defeated and that the enemy was coming toward the fort. There was a fort in Old Albuquerque years ago. The rifles just discovered have the appearance of having been covered with grease or some other oily substance before being buried.

Deming Shootists Were Best Shots. Deming, N. M., Feb. 12.—By the score of 219 to 297, the El Paso Gun club lost the silver cup to Deming at the competitive shoot here Sunday. The high wind blowing was not favorable to the visiting marksmen, who were not accustomed to it, but it did not interfere with the work at the Deming Gun club. The best score made for El Paso was by Pennebaker. The score of the Paso City team on the cup shoot was: Hitt, 45; Rand, 44; Bulwer, 43; Pennebaker, 43; Campbell, 32. The Deming Gun club has to win the cup again before retaining it. The cup was put up by the Silver City Gun club, but the shooters from that place have only shot once for the trophy.

The El Pasoans are in hope the Deming club will come to this city some time this month to decide who shall retain possession of the cup.

EXTRA SESSION OF SENATE MAY BE RECEIVED CLOSED

Called by Santo Domingo
Treaty Shall Not be Acted on by March 3rd.

Special Correspondence.
Washington, D. C., Feb. 12.—The republican managers of the senate are most anxious to avoid a special session of the senate if they can do so without neglecting the public business. The public business in this case pertains more to the affairs of the little Dominican republic than it does to the United States, and it all grows out of the arrangements made by Mr. Roosevelt something more than a year ago, in which this government undertook to collect the customs of the island republic, agree to a portion of the funds and apply them to the liquidation of the foreign debt.

This action was taken under a treaty negotiated by the state department but which the senate has refused to ratify, and therein lies the possibility of a special session. Owing to vigorous democratic opposition, action on this treaty in committee has been impossible, but the administration considers the matter so important to the peace and welfare not only of Santo Domingo, but of the United States, that the president has said he will call the senate together after March 3 if it does not ratify this treaty before the adjournment of the present session.

Meanwhile a new and much more simple convention has been negotiated, one that deals merely with the financial question and omits all reference to the Monroe doctrine, guaranteeing sovereignty and other things that democrats say mean the swinging of the "big stick." Through the presentation of this new treaty the president hopes to obtain democratic support and ratification within the next month, as the president is as anxious as anyone else that when congress adjourns at the time fixed by the statute there will be no occasion to compel the senate to remain here. But inconvenient as it may be and undesirable as some senators think such a session is, the president is understood to be determined that this new treaty shall be ratified and that this government shall continue as the fiscal agent of Santo Domingo, with the full assent of the senate.

Brownsville Investigation.

The opening of the Brownsville investigation, authorized by the senate after a debate covering a period of almost two months, indicated that the inquiry could never be completed even within a period equal to that required for discussion of the subject in the senate. The first day's hearing, which was entered upon by the committee, was devoted entirely to the examination of one of the non-commissioned officers of the discharged battalion, without concluding his testimony. If this is to be the average rate of speed, members of the committee fear that it may be the middle of the summer before the task is completed. Just how many witnesses may be called is unknown, but from what Senator Foraker has said it is believed upwards of one hundred men may appear before the testimony is completed. So far as the task beginning to appear that members of the committee are already suggesting that the evidence be taken by sub-committee to be subsequently read and passed upon by the full committee. This will probably be the arrangement for the taking of the greater part of the evidence. Under such an arrangement it is pretty certain that Mr. Foraker will be one of the members of the committee constantly on hand to represent the discharged men, and that Chairman Warren, of the committee, will personally look out for the administration side of the investigation. The inquiry probably will be more extensive than any investigation held by a senatorial committee in many years.

Enormous Pension Payments.

In the debate in the house on the service pension bill, the interesting fact was brought out that a grand total of $3,320,800,000 has been paid out in the shape of pensions on account of wars in which the United States has been a party. Over three billions of this sum is on account of the civil war and twelve millions in round numbers, as a result of the war with Spain.

The service pension bill practically gives a pension to every veteran of the civil war and the war with Mexico, now living, who was in either service for a period of three months and who has reached the age of 62 years. According to the pension office the increase in the cost of pensions by this legislation will amount to about $15,000,000 for a time. There are now pensioners to the number of 148,000 between the age of 62 and 70 already drawing pensions who will be entitled to increases under this law. Between the ages of 70 and 75 there are today about 30,000 veterans. The "unknown" army of veterans aggregates about 100,000 and the commissioner of pension believes that fully one-third of this number will file applications under the new law. This government in addition to the amounts paid out for pensions on account of the civil and Spanish wars, has contributed to the support of its citizens in the way of pensions, $70,000,000 on account of the revolution; $45,440,750 on account of the war of 1812 with England; $7,637,268 on account of the Indian wars; $36,622,848 on account of the war with Mexico, and $4,707,519 growing out of the service of the regular establishment.

Official Season at Washington.
D. C. in Blaze of Fashionable Glory.

(By Catherine Altman.)
Washington, D. C., Feb. 12.—The social game goes on at the same old merry place, and the fact that Ash Wednesday looms in the near future seems to have given an added zest to the festive gaieties. The season of official entertaining closed in a resplendent blaze of glory when the army and navy circles were received at the white house on Thursday night. This reception is second in brilliancy only to the one given to the diplomats at the opening for the season, and like most good things is reserved for the latter part of the official program. For who can resist the fascinations of a dashing uniform, not to mention the youth and gallantry, worldly courtesies and "savoir faire" that go with it? The guests came early, and the stately old home of presidents was again radiant with beauty, music and laughter. Formality was laid aside, young lieutenants dashed about paying eager court to popular belles, supercilious captains gazed upon the scene with tolerant condescension and deigned to drop a word here and there to ladies who frankly sought to entertain these lordly cavaliers, while majors and colonels, inclined to ebullient and giddy young debutantes indulged in airy persiflage, paid glowing compliments and grew young again amid the scene's festivities. The president and Mrs. Roosevelt seemed in unusually good spirits and joined heartily in the merriment. The evening line was depleted, as has been the case all winter, but the Blue Room was full of especially honored guests, who were guests of Secretary of State and Mrs. Root.

The Shouts Farewell Ball.
Preparatory to leaving Washington, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Shonts gave one of the most important private dances of the season from a social standpoint. The entertainment was in honor of their two young daughters who have been the recipients of so much attention throughout the winter. The lower floor of their large house on New Hampshire avenue was arranged for the dancers, pink being the dominant color note of all the appointments, roses and orchids being used in effective and lavish decoration. The floor was danced, Mr. George Howard leading the cotillon. The favors were exceptionally pretty and there was a great variety. For the ladies there were silver hatpin holders tied in pink ribbons, tiny gold-fish pendant from the ends of thread-like ribbons or pink, novelty cushions of lace decorated with Dresden rosebuds; French handbags of embroidered brocade, Japanese dolls and Chinese fans. The men guests received silver pencils, tiny ivory birds in Chinese carving, mounted hat brushes, flat Jap fans, ivory shaving pads, and miniature Panama hats tied in pink ribbons. Mrs. Shonts wore a creation of pink satin the bodice of which was draped with black maline fastened to the corsage with two beautiful silver roses. Miss Theodore Shonts wore a handsome gown of white satin with hand embroidered pink roses embellishing the low cut bodice and trained skirt. Miss Marguerita Shonts was charming in a gown of white satin paillette in white tubing marked in tiny brilliants in a dainty rose design. Among the guests were the German Ambassador and Baroness von Sternberg, the Ambassador from Russia and Baroness Rosen, the Danish minister, the Hon. Mand Paucofote, Representative and Mrs. Longworth, Mr. Marshall Field, and Mrs. George Vanderbilt.

Vulgarity at Large.
Appropos of the numerous collisions that have been the favorite mode of entertainment for the past month, it is said that the favors in many cases have brazenly shown the utilitarianism of the age, shocking many of the guests, who nevertheless less consent to accept the trifles. At one notable entertainment given by newcomers to the Washington colony of outsiders the bells received pique hats with gorgeous curling plumes feathered boas and muffs and silver mounted chateleine bags, while their partners received emerald practical souvenirs of the joyous occasion, consisting of salt cases and umbrellas. One hostess with more generosity than good taste gave full sets of exquisite French underwear, shocking her conservative guests, many of whom, however, would consider a dozen pairs of silk hose as rather an ordinary favor to be given either at dances or at card parties.

HAIR DRESSER AND CHIROPD.

Mrs. Bambini, at her parlors, No. 209 West Railroad avenue, is prepared to give thorough scalp treatment, do hair dressing, treat corns, bunions and ingrowing nails. She gives massage treatment and manicuring. Mrs. Bambini's own preparation of complexion cream builds up the skin and improves the complexion, and is guaranteed not to be injurious. She also prepares a hair tonic that cures and prevents dandruff and hair falling out; restores life to dead hair; removes moles, warts and superfluous hair. Also a face powder, a freckle cure and pimple cure. All of these preparations are purely vegetable compounds. Have just added a vibrator machine for treatment of scalp, face and cure of wrinkles. It is also used for rheumatism, pains and massage.

A Valuable Lesson.

WILL SPIRIT OF VAN LOO FEAST WITH HIS FRIENDS?

Artist of Cincinnati, Who Left a Will He Promised His Spirit Would Provide For a Banquet at Which He Would Be Present If It Were Possible.
Cincinnati, O., Feb. 11.—"I hereby give, devise and bequeath to the Cincinnati Art club the sum of $250 to pay for a dinner to be given in the club rooms, as soon as practicable after my death, to the members of the club. If there is such a thing as the spirit of the dead returning to earth (which I do not believe), I shall be with the boys on that festive occasion."
Such is the remarkable provision in the will of the late Leon Van Loo, a prominent artist of Cincinnati. When the will was read it was found that a large number of requests of paintings from his collection and various sums of money had been left to many of his old friends in Belgium and in Cincinnati. He remembered both his society friends and those who had done favors for him.

LOVE OF CONVICTS WON BY GOOD THINGS FROM KITCHEN

Fort Bayard in 1874---Why Men in Chains Attended Funeral of Mrs. Phelps. The Captain's Story.

Chaplain Bateman has been in correspondence with Capt. P. E. Phelps, a retired army officer now living at Urbana, Ohio, and has gained some very interesting information concerning the early days of Fort Bayard, says the Silver City Independent. He has learned that the present line of officers' quarters is the third in the history of the post. The first quarters were made of logs and slabs, the second were erected of adobe and the present line is not over twenty years old, the cottages being, of course, quite recent.

Captain Phelps is now taking steps to have the grave of his wife, who died in the long ago at Fort Bayard, marked with an enduring headstone. A brick tomb, now fallen into decay, for many years covered the sacred spot.

"There was," writes the captain, "a tender interest in the tomb and fence which may interest you. Bayard was a military prison for New Mexico and prisoners were sent from many of the posts of that region. I was adjutant and in charge of the prison and prisoners. When Mrs. Phelps was buried, March 16, 1874—a cold, stormy day—I was astonished to see all the convicts carrying the ball and chain under guard at the grave. I went east very soon with my two children—the baby died at Fort Union on route—and when I came back in 1875 I was equally astonished to find a brick tomb and a neat picket fence, and more so when the commanding officer told me the convicts had asked permission to build both, and to show they were not trying to get out of work, they asked to be allowed to build it on Sundays—the only day of rest they had. I knew it was from no love of me, for I had convicted most of them of their crimes. He gave me the name of the spokesman, and on sending for him he asked me if I ever noticed that my tobacco was seldom any cold meat in my house. He explained that when working in the quarry blasting rock Mrs. Phelps used to coax the sentry to allow four prisoners to sneak into the kitchen at a time, where she gave them whatever there was to eat and some of my smoking tobacco, an article which cost $2 per pound. She would stand guard while the prisoners ate, and if I approached she would give the warning and they would get back to the task of breaking rock as quickly as possible. This spokesman kept a roster, so all could know when each man's time came to enjoy the luxury.

"When she died they asked permission to attend the funeral and afterward built the tomb as a token of respect and gratitude for her goodness to them."
The old prison which confined these prisoners has been located and stood just south of the round magazine and enclosed an area now partially covered by the present guard house. The prisoners' quarters were within a compound, encircled by a high adobe wall, of which not a vestige now remains.

MRS. CARPENTY DE- SERVED BY HUSBAND

Mrs. R. Carpentry and little eight-year-old daughter came to Eaton from Cimarron Tuesday, in search of her husband, who had come to this place some days previous, says the Raton Gazette. Upon arriving here it is alleged that she found her husband had left for parts unknown, and before leaving had drawn from one of the banks a considerable sum of money. The poor woman was completely out of funds, and was at a loss what to do. She was furnished lodging, and city officials endeavored to locate the missing husband. Telephone messages to Dawson and other points have failed to discover any trace of the man.

Home Insurance the Best

WE CANNOT refrain from again saying something about Home Insurance. Every time that the proposition presents itself of the tremendous amount of money that is being sent out of New Mexico and Arizona for life insurance to eastern cities, the conviction comes home with increased force that a home company ought to be patronized and the money remain in the West.

The revelations of the past year of the way the enormous surplus of the big Eastern companies has been handled and speculated with ought to emphasize the fact that the people of the West should stop pouring their money into Eastern channels when it can be placed in home insurance, and every dollar of it kept and invested at home.

It is gratifying to note that home insurance is year by year receiving more and more its just deserts. Statistics show that during the past year home companies far exceeded foreign companies in the amount of business written. Why cannot this same record be made here? It can if every individual who takes out a policy the coming year will carefully weigh the proposition of the value it is to keep his insurance at home before he puts his name to the application of any insurance company.

The Occidental Life Insurance Company of New Mexico and Arizona is owned and controlled by the leading business men of the two territories, and offers exceptional opportunities to ambitious and capable men and women to sell its policies.
