THREATENS MRS. EVELYN THAW WITH NEW

Evidence From Her Mother's Affidavits Which Jerome Claims to Have.

CONFRONTED BY DR. FLINT WHOM NEVER SAW BEFORE

On Trip to Europe White's Money Was Used Only For Her Mother Says Witness.

New York, Feb. 25.—Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw was called to the stand at the opening session of her husband's murder trial, and without any preliminary statement Jerome plunged into the cross-examination. Mrs. Thaw looked refreshed after her three days of respite and answered the first questions confidently. Jerome, as upon previous days in his cross-examination, continued to jump from point to point in the witness' story.

Jerome continued to hold the menace of documentary evidence before the witness in the form of affidavits from her mother. The witness said she had often been to supper with George W. Lederer and Jack Barrymore. She was confronted in court by Dr. Carlton Flint, but denied positively that she had ever seen him before, or that she had gone to him with Jack Barrymore.

Rules Out Jerome's Question.

Justice Fitzgerald ruled out the question made by Jerome when he asked Mrs. Thaw if Stanford White had not urged her to have Jack Barrymore arrested upon the charge of seduction. In telling of her trip to Europe, Evelyn said that she used some of White's letter of credit, but not all of it. Mrs. Nesbit got it all. Thaw said the money was "poison."

Denver, Feb. 25.—The bodies of Mrs. Benjamin C. Wright and her 3-year-old daughter were found in their home today, while the unconscious form of the husband was discovered in another room. The police theories are a double murder, suicide, or a triple suicide. There is a bare chance that an accident caused the deaths. Some poison was used, the police believe it was cyanide of potassium. Wright was connected with the International Correspondence school of Scranton, Pa.

Bailey Committee Discharged.

Austin, Feb. 25.—The state senate at noon passed a resolution dismissing the Bailey investigating committee before it could prepare a report exonerating Bailey in every particular. The vote was 15 yeas to 11 nays.

Kansas City, Feb. 25.—Judge John W. Wofford, noted for the quaint philosophy he injected into his decisions, died today, aged 63. FLARING BILL POSTERS CAUSE TROUBLE IN BROOKLYN

Brooklyn, N. Y., Feb. 25.—Before magistrate Furlong in the Gates avenue court today, the American Bill Posting company was charged with placing on their billboards posters which incited to crime. The prosecution is at the suit of the Women's Health Protective association. Among the bills brought into court as evidence were large advertisements for "A Millionaire's Revenge," a play which the bill said was founded on the Thaw-White tragedy. A number of clergymen are present to give evidence to show the effect such pictures have on the minds of children and Judge Wilkins of the children's court will also give evidence for the complainants.

MILLION PASSED FOR MESILLA RESERVOIR

This Insures an Early Completion of That Important New Mexico Project.

SENATE OBJECTS TO FOREST RESERVES WITHOUT CONSENT

Beveridge's Amendment For Packers to Pay Expense of Inspection, Killed on Point of Order.

Special to The Evening Citizen.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 25.—The sundry civil appropriation bill passed the house Saturday night, finally. It carries with it the appropriation of $1,000,000 for the Engle dam, which sum is immediately available. This will insure the early completion of that proposition.

SENATE WANTS CONGRESS ACT ON FOREST RESERVES.

Washington, Feb. 25.—When the agricultural appropriation bill was taken up in the senate today the Fulton amendment, providing that no forest reserves shall hereafter be created or enlarged without an act of congress, in the states of Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana, Colorado and Wyoming, was adopted without debate.

An amendment adding $1,000,000 to the appropriation for the improvement of forest reserves was also adopted.

The amendment that hereafter the date of inspection and canning must be placed on the label of meat products, was agreed to.

Beveridge then offered his amendment, placing the cost of meat inspection upon the packers, and as soon as the senate discovered the strength of this sentiment he changed the policy of the Journal by kicking out the office cat, or discharging the office boy. Danny then had absolved himself from the wickedness of the past and became a full-fledged reformer of the white-wing variety.

President Back From Trip.

Washington, Feb. 25.—The president arrived this afternoon on his return trip from Massachusetts.

Beveridge Bill Knocked Out.

Washington, Feb. 25.—The Beveridge amendment to the agricultural bill, placing the cost of meat inspection on the packers, was ruled out on a point of order.

By Prosecution—Mrs. Annie Bradley Pleads Not Guilty—George Granger Executed.

Wallace, Feb. 25.—The state this morning closed its case against Steve Adams, charged with the murder of Fred Tyler, saving for the last hours the testimony of Bulkeley Wells, former adjutant general of Colorado, who told of a confession made to him by Adams while a prisoner en route from Boise to Colorado in custody of Detective Thiele and Deputy Sheriff Johnson. Wells testified that Adams confessed that he helped Simpkins "burp off" two men in the northern part of Idaho, who had been giving Simpkins trouble in connection with lumber claims. Wells denied that any threat was made or any inducement offered to Adams to secure his confession.

Mrs. Bradley Pleads Not Guilty.

Washington, Feb. 25.—Mrs. Annie M. Bradley, indicted for the murder of former Senator Arthur M. Brown, was arraigned here today. She pleaded not guilty and the case was remanded. No time has yet been set for the trial.

HISTORY REPEATS ITSELF OR THE STORY OF JOSEPH'S COAT

How That Many Colored Garment Is Excelled by the Coat of Many Colors Worn by the

ALWAYS CHANGING MORNING PAPER OF THIS CITY

On Every Side of Any Question Where Revenue Could be Found and Only as Long as Revenue Could Be Had.

History does repeat itself, and sometimes the repetition produces a very poor imitation, but nevertheless the resemblance can always be traced. New Mexico, in Danny McPherson, has produced a sort of a modern Joseph, and the Morning Journal serves very well for the coat of many colors. It has backed and hauled, flopped and re-flopped, and sold and re-sold until all track of its winding course has been lost, but as each change has added a patch of a different color to its raiment, even the casual eye can see the rainbow effect.

It was once democratic, under the same ownership, and its flip to the republican party was based upon most flimsy grounds. No matter what the excuse then given happened to be, it wanted to divide the county printing, and came over to get it.

The Journal, published by Democrat Printing Company, Danny McPherson, president, was not a reformer until it found some sentiment in Albuquerque against the Hubbells in the county division matter, and as soon as Danny discovered the strength of this sentiment he changed the policy of the Journal by kicking out the office cat, or discharging the office boy. Danny then had absolved himself from the wickedness of the past and became a full-fledged reformer of the white-wing variety.

He continued to be a reformer, and against the wicked Hubbells, until he thought he saw an opportunity to unload one of his corporations upon the city, at an excessive value. Then Danny put another brilliantly colored patch upon the Journal garment, and he supported the Hubbells.

But as every one is aware The Citizen put a crimp on this scheme and he lost.

Meanwhile the Journal supported Rodey for congress, but the machine bunch took Danny to Santa Fe three days before the convention, and the Journal threw Rodey down for Andrews just three days before the convention met. This added another brilliant patch to the coat, but still another was to come and the Journal went back on Andrews before election and did not support him.

ALL THE LATEST POPULAR, COMICAL AND SENTIMENTAL SONGS OF THE DAY:

"OH! HOW I LOVE BURSUM." "DOWN IN THE RIO GRANDE VALLEY, I LIE." "HOW I SCHEME TO GET THE DOUGH." "HOW THEY KICKED ME OUT OF SANTA FE." "WON'T IT BE JOLLY WHEN EVERY REPUBLICAN LAYS BENEATH THE SOD?"

proportions does not worry him. He has too many patches of varied hues on his coat now to mind another one or two, and every time he adds a patch, he also adds to the revenues of his corporations.

The ancient Joseph was a man of much wisdom, and gave it freely unto the people, but while he was talking with his mouth he did not overlook the opportunity to corner the grain market. His modern imitator in Albuquerque is willing to attract attention by wearing a many colored coat, and he will offer much advice through his mouthpiece. Meaning he will not overlook the main chance, and if the people are foolish enough to listen to him he will corner all those good things he has selected as his reward for this particular fit of reform, in which he is now working.

But there is the Journal, his coat of many colors. There are the republican and the democratic patches, the Hubbells and the anti-Hubbells patches; the Andrews and the anti-Andrews patches; the Rodey and the anti-Rodey patches; the patches that there while it was standing with the robbing of the county on the printing, and the patch put there by several recent little deals, but inside all, the profits go into the one exchequer.

Each change of interest has brought a change of policy and its accompanying patch, and each change has been accomplished by kicking out the poor office cat, or by the discharge of some unfortunate office boy, but all the time the actual management has remained the same—in Danny. And all the time Danny never overlooks the main chance, even while he fools around in the shadow of a great big patch which threatens to make the color of his coat so black that charcoal will make a white mark on it.

Whenever the cause he now espouses so vociferously, ceases to offer bountiful harvests and rewards for Danny and the corporate interests he represents, no doubt he will again change the policy of the Journal, thus adding one more patch to his coat of many colors.

IT WAS A TERRIFYING SCARE FOR THE RAILROAD LOBBY

BUT THE HOUSE AT WASHINGTON FINALLY GAVE THEM THAT LITTLE $9,000,000 "VELVET" ON MAIL CONTRACTS.

Washington, Feb. 25.—"Corrective legislation" that succeeded after much toil and some very painful moments, has passed the house. Here is the story of a "strike" that almost failed.

After two months of supposedly solemn consideration the house committee on postoffices and post roads decided on the 12th of February to report the annual appropriation budget for this branch of the government's business. Also it was decided that the bill should carry certain "constructive legislation." One clause provided for cutting the railway mail pay according to the "Murdock plan," and several other paragraphs provided for other methods of reduction. The total amount of the cut would set the railroads back about $9,000,000 annually.

In conformity with this solemnly reached decision, the committee met and voted to report the bill.

The railroads were apparently taken by surprise. Just why—whether it was carelessness in counting noses, or whether somebody did not stay bought—their lobbyists will have to explain when they are called in on the carpet. The point is they were taken by surprise, and began at once to get busy.

They swooped down upon Washington like a swarm of locusts. They were particularly in evidence about the Willard hotel. So was Mr. Jesse Overstreet of the house committee on postoffices and post roads.

And what do you suppose happened? Let us have it in words of one syllable. Jesse changed his mind. Why did Jesse change his mind?

Well, anyway, he called for a reconsideration of the vote by which this naughty bill had been reported to the house of representatives.

And, it seems, the railroad gentlemen had talked to other members of this committee, for they thought they had more than half of the committee with changed minds.

But they missed their count on a Norwegian gentleman named Steenerson. Mr. Overstreet and the railway lobby gentlemen counted Steenerson against the bill. They did this because Steenerson had said often that he was against the "Murdock plan." But that did not mean that Steenerson was in favor of the railroads taking graft from the United States under the cover of certain mail contracts.

So, when Jesse Overstreet came to call the roll it was found that the vote was eight to eight, instead of nine to seven. So the committee was not able to change its mind, and Steenerson had done, and the bill had to go to the house of representatives, just as it had been planned at the end of those two months' consideration, before the lobby gentlemen came.

At this point the "strike" looked like failure.

But when the matter came to the house Mr. Overstreet introduced an adroitly drawn resolution, the effect of which was to eliminate the $9,000,000. Nobody had to go on record in voting for this resolution, so it went through with a jump.

LARGE MEXICAN RANCH PURCHASED BY CAPITALISTS.

Jersey City, Feb. 25.—The Rancho del Muertos, one of the largest ranches in Mexico, has been purchased by a company of eastern capitalists. The company, of which Dr. Annearley, the London promoter, is at the head, was incorporated here today with a capital of $200,000. The amount of the purchase money has not been disclosed, but it is said to be in the neighborhood of $170,000. The company intends breeding and raising cattle on a large scale.

PRES. HARRIMAN DENIES THAT HIS ROAD

Was Used For Purposes Speculation in Buying Stock of Other Roads.

SUPREME COURT DECIDES FOR STATE RAILWAY LAWS

Railroads Predict Financial Crash Is Coming Because of Railway Agitation by People.

New York, Feb. 25.—The investigation of the financial operations of the Harriman group, through the Union Pacific railroad, undertaken by the Interstate Commerce commission, in behalf of the United States government, was resumed at the federal building today. E. H. Harriman, president of the Union Pacific, was the first witness and under the examination of Frank Kellogg began an explanation of the financial operations of his company, commencing with the issue of $100,000,000 of convertible bonds in 1901 for the purchase of stock in the Southern and Northern Pacific.

To Improve Income.

Harriman denied that he and his associates had been speculating in securities. Their purchases were reinvestment of proceeds of their sales of Northern Pacific. They were not made for the purpose of securing control of the roads in question but to improve income.

Ignorant of C. & A.

Milburn, of Harriman counsel, interrupted Kellogg in his effort to obtain from Harriman the names of the individuals who sold Chicago & Alton stock to the Union Pacific. Milburn claimed that such questions are not within the scope of the Interstate Commerce commission. It was announced that the commission would confer on the question of its powers and decide this afternoon.

In the meantime the examination of Harriman as to the Chicago & Alton stock, which was the subject of the investigation, was continued. Harriman denied either knowledge or participation in the sale of $10,000,000 of bonds of the Alton at 96 cents to the New York Life Insurance company.

SUPREME COURT SUSTAINS STATE RAILROAD LAWS

Washington, Feb. 25.—The cases of the Union Pacific and Burlington Railroad companies against the various county treasurers of the state of Nebraska, involving the tax rate upon the property of railroads and calling into question the administration of Nebraska's state tax law, were decided adversely to the railroads by the United States supreme court today.

Texas Commission Sustained.

Washington, Feb. 25.—The United States supreme court today decided the case of the Gulf, Colorado & Santa Fe railroad against the railroad commission of Texas, involving the state freight rates, favorably to the state.

Must Proceed Thru Commission.

Washington, Feb. 25.—In deciding the case of the Texas Pacific vs. the Cotton Oil mills at Abilene and Cisco, Texas, favorably to the railroad company, the supreme court of the United States today held that the common law right of individuals to make complaint through the courts against railroads for discrimination, which existed before the enactment of the Interstate Commerce law, had been destroyed by that enactment. The court therefore held that complaints must be made through the Interstate Commerce commission.

RAILWAY PRESIDENT HAS FEEL OF DEPRESSION TIMES

New York, Feb. 25.—President William Truesdale of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western in a published interview today is quoted as saying that a campaign of agitation against the railways, having its origin in high executive authority, is being waged throughout the country. At the same time there is a spirit of unrest and distrust regarding the general financial conditions and a continuation of our great prosperity.

He says we are living in a time of as great inflation as during greenback days following the Civil war. The prices of labor and commodities cannot go forever increasing without a day of readjustment. He believes there is some justification for public hostility against railroads, but he adds that no universal law is claimed. The tendency to go to extremes will so check and impede the operation of railroads as to affect general business. Then all will suffer together.

UNITED STATES IMPORTING JAPANESE COAL

Tacoma, Wash., Feb. 25.—A Japanese steamer is discharging a large cargo of coal here and other steamers are now on their way across the Pacific with supplies to relieve the great shortage on the west coast. The scarcity of coal has greatly affected the traffic and shipping in the Puget Sound, as the tugs cannot bring in vessels, now lying outside, without coal. As Japan is not prepared to export any considerable quantity of coal to this country the present importations will only afford temporary relief, so the outlook is anything but bright. Besides the car shortage the coal famine on the Pacific coast is also due to the inability of the American mines to produce supplies fast enough to meet the growing demand. Though the country's annual output has increased 130 per cent during the past ten years the demand is always far ahead of the supply. Arrangements are now being made for large shipments from Australia.

CHICAGO'S SUB-TREASURY OUT $200,000

Discovered Wednesday Last but Thought For While It Must Be

MERELY A BOOK ERROR BOOKS FOUND CORRECT

Believed That Theft Has Been Definitely Located on Taker of the Money.

Chicago, Feb. 25.—The Tribune says today that one of the largest, of not the latest thefts from the United States treasury has been unearthed in Chicago. Between $175,000 and $200,000 was stolen from the local sub-treasury last week. The money disappeared, leaving no trace. The authorities here and in Washington have been working night and day on the robbery ever since the discovery.

The money was stolen either a week ago last Saturday, or else last Sunday or Monday. The loss was discovered Tuesday. All the money was in large bills, being denominations of $1,000, $5,000 and $10,000. It was first believed to be an error of bookkeeping, but on checking up it was found to be robbery. Two clerks are suspected, but nothing tangible has been found against them.

May Be Bookkeeping Error.

Chicago, Feb. 25.—When interviewed today in regard to the robbery of the local U. S. sub-treasury, Treasurer Holdenweek admitted that a theft of $175,000 had been perpetrated, but refused to go into details. "It is true that what I and other government officials believe to be a gigantic steal has been perpetrated in the sub-treasury," he said. "The amount I believe will be $175,000. At present I cannot go into details as to what work we have done in the case. We discovered the shortage last Wednesday when the books of the sub-treasury were balanced for the day. There is a possibility that the shortage is due to an error in bookkeeping, but I am inclined to believe that a robbery has been committed."

Says Definitely Determined.

Sub-Treasurer Holdenweek declared later in the day that it had been definitely determined just where the shortage occurred, but he declined to say as to where it had been traced.

CONVENTION OF LUMBERMEN IN FLORIDA TODAY

Jacksonville, Fla., Feb. 25.—Among the associations that are represented at the annual convention of the Georgia-Florida Lumber Trade association, which commences of New York, and the following: New York Lumber Trade association of New York City; the Lumbermen's Exchange, of Philadelphia; the Wholesale Lumber Dealers' association, of New York; the Yellow Pine Exchange, of New York; and the Boston Lumber Trade association. From the southern states there are over three hundred delegates making the convention the largest of its kind ever held. The principal matter for discussion will be the present rules for the grading and classification of yellow pine but other important matters in connection with the industry such as freight, prices, etc., will receive full consideration. The representatives of the northern associations are the Georgia Lumbermen's Association and will be hospitably entertained during their stay here.

ARCTIC WHALING SOON TO BE ABANDONED

Dundee, Scotland, Feb. 25.—Owing to the failure of the whaling industry in the Arctic the Dundee Whaling Co., the largest of its kind in the world, at its annual meeting today, decided to abandon the work and wind up the company. Whaling in the Arctic is now practically a lost calling. In 1815 there were 164 British vessels engaged in the industry and a bounty was allowed on all oil and whalebone brought into a British port. Three years ago four hundred whales would be considered a fair take for the season but last year the combined fleet only took seven. The price of whalebone in London at present is $12,500 a ton.

HARRY WOODS MAY DIE; LOPEZ ESCAPES

Special to The Evening Citizen.

Thoreau, N. M., Feb. 25.—At noon today nothing had been heard here from the posse, composed of several Ketcher lumbermen, who left Ketcher Saturday morning in search of Julian Lopez, the native who shot Harry Woods at Ketcher Friday night. Lopez took flight immediately after the shooting, going south in the woods. There seems to be a determination on the part of the better element of Ketcher to stop gun toting and if Lopez should be captured, it is very likely that he will be strung up as an example. Woods is not expected to live. His left lung is perforated and he has had several hemorrhages.

(By Alfred W. Greeley.)

Close students of the daily press cannot have failed to notice the increasing number of freak cults that are springing up throughout the country. Practically every state is furnishing a contribution. Chicago has its Gluckites, with their ideal of perfect children as a solution of the world's ills; Ohio, Kansas and Texas have within the year past incubated several colonies, including two attempts at an Adamless Eden, and in New Jersey and New York enthusiastic socialists have tackled the problem in a variety of ways.

The "Holy Rollers" continue to flourish in various parts of the south and west. Theosophy claims an increasing number of adherents, and the various strange cults of New England are sharing and benefiting in the wave of moral unrest that appears to be sweeping over the country. No doctrine so humble but it can find supporters; no prophet so crazy but he can attract converts. And it is significant that this ferment among the unstable minds is also in evidence in socially conservative quarters, both political and religious. It is the inevitable reaction from an excess of material prosperity, and it is seen not only in the civic awakening in the so-called "lost" states, but in the "bosses," but also in the remarkable religious revivals that are being carried on in fervent appeal in every part of the country. When, as recently in Cleveland, men leave their business to march in huge processions chanting hymns and psalms, it shows that the movement is more than ephemeral hysteria.

Kentucky's Great Revival.

While the progress of this nationwide revival is being conducted in the large cities with conservative enthusiasm, yet reports from isolated country districts show a tendency toward the passionate frenzy that characterized the camp meetings of the first half century of the nation. In the country press now and then one finds references to the "jerks," and to the "holy laugh" in descriptions of successful revivals, and other eccentricities are mentioned as legitimate and commonplace. These uncouth words are the names of practices that have persisted with conservative tenacity in the more backward portions of the country for more than a century and the mental states they denote are as highly prized by the "believers" as Nirvana by the Buddhists.

It was in Kentucky in the early days of the Nineteenth century that the "jerks" had their origin. Then, as now, a wave of moral unrest was sweeping over the country. The war of independence had shattered old ideals that had died a stubborn death with federalism. French leonism had made thousands of converts in the new nation, and the old Puritan and caste landmarks were submerged. Then as now a multitude of freak social organizations sprang up like mushrooms, their leaders preaching new dispensations and new ideals. And, of course, legitimate religious activities were vitally quickened.

A Stronghold of Satan.
No section of the country held out less promise of becoming a religious vineyard than Kentucky. The inhabitants were the cowboys of 1800. Pious visitors were horrified at the drunkenness, vice, gambling, fighting, and endless duels. The hostman, says McMaster, was more dreaded than the Indians. He was reckless, fearless, and law-despising, and was commonly described as half horse, half alligator, and tipped with a snapping turtle. Preachers called Kentucky stronghold of Satan.

In 1799 a young minister on his way to Ohio, turned aside to attend a sacramental meeting on the Red river. He was asked to preach, and did so with astonishing fervor. His auditors were strangely moved. Tears streamed down their faces and one woman began to shout. The exhortation was continued for hours, and at the end the floor was "covered with the slain." Their cries far more terrible to hear. Some found forgiveness, but many went away "spiritually wounded" and suffering unutterable agony of soul.

This was the beginning of a revival that has no equal in the history of the country. The excitement spread like a prairie fire throughout the state. Men fitted their wagons with beds and provisions and traveled fifty miles to camp upon the ground and hear this magnetic minister preach. Other campmeetings were established. Historians of this period say that neither distance, lack of houses, nor scarcity of food nor daily occupations prevailed to keep the people away. Families of every Protestant denomination hurried to the camp ground, leaving crops half gathered, every kind of work undone. Cabins were deserted and in some large settlements not a single soul remained.

Camps in the Forest.

The camp meeting was always held in the forest near some church. A rude stage was erected at the end of a clearing and around it the stumps and fallen trees were utilized as benches for the auditors. About the clearing the tents and wagons were arranged in rows like streets. The playing, preaching, and exhorting would sometimes last for seven days, and would be prolonged every day far into the night. Men, women and children took part as exhorters. The old records tell of a little girl of seven who sat upon the shoulder of a man and preached to the multitude until she sank exhausted on her bearer's head. It is related that an Indian Greek boy of twelve mounted a stump and exhorted until he grew weak, whereupon two men supported him, and he continued his preaching until further speech was impossible. Scores of "sinners" fell prostrate before him.

It was at these meetings that the "falling exercise," the "jerks," and the "holy laugh" had their origin and became part of the religious worship of the time, persisting in isolated localities down to the present day and breaking out with fresh vigor in the new wave of revivalism. The "falling exercise" is thus described by McMaster from investigation of the original documents:

"At no time was the 'falling exercise' so prevalent as at night. Nothing was then wanting that could strike terror into the minds weak, timid, and harassed. The red glare of the campfires reflected from hundreds of tents and wagons, the dense blackness of the flickering shadows, the darkness of the surrounding forests, made still more terrible by the groans and screams of the 'spiritually wounded,' who had fled to it for comfort; the entreaty of the preachers, the sobs and shrieks of the downcast still walking through the valley of the shadow of death, the shouts and songs of praise from the happy ones who had crossed the Delectable mountains, had gone on through the fogs of the Enchanted Ground, and entered the Land of Beulah, were too much for those over whose minds and bodies lived imagination held full sway. The heart swelled, the nerves gave way, the hands and feet grew cold, and, motionless and speechless, they fell headlong to the ground."

Fell by Thousands.

This was the "falling exercise," and in a moment crowds would gather around them, praying and shouting. Some lay still for a moment, passed through frightful twitching of face and limbs. At one camp meeting so many fell that, lest the multitude should tread upon them, they were taken to the church and laid in rows. At another camp meeting it is recorded that 3,000 people had the "falling exercise" at the same time. Some beat the floor with their heels; some shrieked with agony, bounded about like fish out of water. Many rolled over and over for hours at a time. Others, recovering, would spring wildly to their feet, jump over stumps and benches and disappear in the forest. Some lay for twenty thousand people at times would be present at one camp meeting.

It was not long before the nervous excitement took more terrible forms, exhausting itself in the "jerks," the "holy laugh," and the barking exercise. The "jerks" began in the head and spread rapidly to the feet. The head would be thrown from side to side so rapidly that the features would be blotted out and the hair would snap. When the "jerking" reached the other parts of the body the sufferer would be hurled over hindrances that came in his way and finally dashed upon the ground to bounce about like a ball. It is said that at many of the camp meetings, saplings were cut off breast high to people to "jerk" by. Marvelous tales are told of scoffers and cynics, particularly physicians, who were attacked by retributive "jerks" and bounced and dashed about until they cried for mercy and were converted.

Entire Community Demented.
Travelers in Kentucky at the time say that the entire community seemed demented. The high nervous tension and the morbid excitement drove many insane. Men dreamed and saw visions. A peculiar prevalent form of mental disorder was "treating the devil." Men and women who had been arrested to the highest frenzy of excitement fancied themselves dogs, went down on all fours and barked until the voice refused to act. During this outbreak, it was a common sight to see a half a dozen or more men around a tree barking and yelping. They had "treated" the devil and were driving his satanic majesty out of the community.

One of the weirdest and most uncanny features of this strange revival was the "holy laugh." Sometimes, under the strain of exhortation, the preacher would suddenly break out into uncontrollable laughter. In a moment, as if by contagion, his great crowd of auditors would follow him, until thousands would join in a Titanic laugh that shook the depths of the forest with hoisterous guffaws. It became a recognized part of the revival service after 1803, and can be found in isolated districts of the south even now.

A strip of territory extending from Vermont on the east, through central New York to Pennsylvania was during the first fifty years of the republic a remarkably fertile breeding ground for all manner of freak cults. The lake country in particular was saturated with the bacillus of innovation. Innumerable prophets sprang into the limelight and issued dispensation, in practically all of which new relations of the sexes were declared by "divine inspiration." In the district Dorrillism, Mormonism, anti-Masonry, the Rochester Brotherhood, Spiritualism, the Oneida Community, the Pilgrims, and a host of forgotten minor cults germinated and thrived. And it was in this district that the great reforms voiced in prohibition, abolition, and woman suffrage found courageous leaders and aggressive co-workers. It constitutes a remarkably interesting problem in the effect of an environment that would have fascinated the genius of Buckle.

Thrashed the Holy Prophet.
Dorrillism was one of the first of these fungus social growths. A stout cane wielded by a vigorous veteran waxing colony out of business and out short the career of a prophet whose propaganda, if undisturbed, might have rivaled, if not prevented, the birth and evolution of Mormonism. It is alleged that Dorrill's temporary success was inspiration for Joseph Smith.

Soon after the close of the war of the revolution there appeared in the neighborhood of Guilford, Vt., a deserter from the British army by the name of Dorrill. He was a man of little education, but of considerable personal magnetism. He had been endowed with a powerful aversion to hard work, and had acquired a smattering of Bible lore. In addition to this, he had a strange influence over women, and his tastes, like those of most "prophets," were strikingly polygamous.

The rapidity with which he gained converts, particularly among the women, was a cruel shock to the conservative New Englanders of position and substance. He preached the doctrine that there were no hell other than the one on earth, and produced many Bible texts to prove that men were free to act as the spirit moved, particularly in their relations with women. The Dorrillites wore wooden shoes, because their leader declared that leather was injurious to the health. Milk and vegetables were their only diet; to eat meat was a contamination and a sin. Opposition to war was one of their tenets, derived from the Biblical "Thou shalt not kill."

Their Worship an Orgy.

Their weekly worship was described by their critics as an orgy. Strange religious observances were mixed in with feasting and dancing. For Prophet Dorrill was somewhat of a neopagan withal. Fiddling, singing and embracing were the chief features of cult's religious ceremony. Innovations that particularly scandalized the susceptibilities of the pious Vermonters.

As the cult grew by leaps and bounds, Dorrill's vaulting ambition outdid itself. He declared that both he and his followers were immortal, and that he himself was possessed of supernatural attributes and powers. His word was absolute law, in which all land and property, and women to a certain extent, were held in common, with Dorrill as the high priest and, in reality, the only owner of the community's property. He was an absolute dictator, but with craft enough to keep his dupes satisfied and pleased by providing for their physical comfort and pleasures, but at the same time exacting arduous labor from them that made it possible for him to live on the fat of the land. His disciples made the colony prosperous, and a large number of churches were built. As time passed, he attracted into the ranks of his cult not only the hoi polloi of the countryside, but also made many converts among the respectable farmers and prosperous townsmen.

But at the height of his success as a prophet he was rapidly nearing his Canossa. His colossal egotism was his undoing. Declaring that he was possessed of supernatural powers, he boastfully asserted in his sermons, which attracted great crowds, that his body was invulnerable, as well as immortal. Neither bullet nor blow, bludge nor blade, could harm, nor even touch him; his oft repeated defiance from the pulpit, while his converts believed and wondered.

Stout Cane His Undoing.

One fateful Sunday Capt. Ezekiel Porter, of Guilford, attracted by curiosity, attended Dorrill's service. He was a scarred veteran of the revolution, and was mentally equipped with a rude, cynical logic. When Dorrill reached the dramatic climax of his sermon, with the words, "No arm can hurt my flesh; no weapon can take my life," Capt. Porter was ready with a still more direct anticlimax—a scared veteran of the revolution, and was mentally equipped with a rude, cynical logic. When Dorrill reached the dramatic climax of his sermon, with the words, "No arm can hurt my flesh; no weapon can take my life," Capt. Porter was ready with a still more direct anticlimax—a scared veteran of the revolution, and was mentally equipped with a rude, cynical logic. Porter was ready with a still more direct anticlimax—a scared veteran of the revolution, and was mentally equipped with a rude, cynical logic.

With a stout rattan cane in his hand, Porter strode rapidly to the pulpit, gripped the astonished prophet by the slack of the prophetic breeches, stood him on his head in the twinkling of an eye, and while he was in this undignified position bestowed upon his anatomy several vigorous kicks. The Prophet yelped and howled, and his disciples, Dorrill to his feet, grabbed him by the coat collar, and gave him such a drubbing with the rattan cane that the prophet, writhing in agony at every whack of the stick, shrieked for mercy.

When Porter was satisfied with his logical demonstration, he made Dorrill confess to the stupefied audience of dupes that he was an impostor, fraud, and an all-around scoundrel.

A year afterward it was difficult to find a single person who would confess having had any connection with the worship of Dorrill, and as dead as the worship of Osiris, and the erstwhile "immortal" and "invulnerable" prophet settled down to the real business of life as a humble cobbler in a neighboring village.

CRYING FOR HELP.

Lots of It in Albuquerque But Daily Growing Less.
The kidneys cry for help. Not an organ in the whole body so delicately constructed. Not one so important to health. The kidneys are the filters of the blood. When they fail the blood becomes fouled and poisonous. There can be no health where there is poisoned blood. Backache is one of the first indications of kidney trouble. It is the kidneys' cry for help.

Head It.
Doan's Kidney Pills are what is wanted. Are just what overworked kidneys need.

They strengthen and invigorate the kidneys; help them to do their work; never fail to cure any case of kidney disease. Read the proof from an Albuquerque citizen:
Mrs. E. Fournelle, living at 403 S. Broadway, Albuquerque, N. M., says: "I have suffered from Doan's Kidney Pills to a great many of my friends and acquaintances, and they have learned of a valuable medicine and, like myself, appreciate it exceedingly. Two years ago I took Doan's Kidney Pills, using them in three boxes, and was cured of pain in my back, a trouble which I had for a good many years. I was also greatly relieved of rheumatism at the time and have never been bothered with this complaint since. There is no question as to the value of Doan's Kidney Pills. For sale by all dealers. Price 50c. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., Sole Agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other."

White Plains, N. Y., Feb. 25.—Owing to the efforts of the Daughters of the American Revolution an appropriation will be applied for from the legislature for the purpose of purchasing the Fiero homestead here and preserving it for the nation. It was in the Fiero homestead the constitution of the United States was first read and close to it is the site of the famous court house which it is also proposed to preserve as a memorial and as the birthplace of the United States. Senator Carpenter has taken charge of the matter.

UNIONS TO DEFEND

ALLEGED MURDERERS.
Boston, Mass., Feb. 25.—A mass meeting of the different labor organizations in this city was held yesterday for the purpose of inaugurating a fund for the defense of the three officials of the Western Federation of Miners who have been confined in prison on a charge of murdering the governor of Idaho. A fund of about $100,000, it is expected, will be collected by the labor unions of the country.

NICARAGUAN MINISTER

Washington, D. C., Feb. 25.—Senator Louis Corea, minister from Nicaragua to the United States, and Miss Leah Bell Flemming, daughter of Colonel and Mrs. Robert J. Flemming, were married Saturday night in the home of the bride's mother in this city. When the announcement of the engagement was made recently Washington society was surprised as Miss Flemming, who is not 19 years old, has just graduated from a fashionable academy and was a debutante of the present season. Miss Flemming, who is an heiress, was one of the most popular girls of the year's set, is an accomplished linguist, and has already been involved in a romance dating back to her school days. The romance of the Nicaraguan and the beautiful Mrs. Dunlop Jordan, of Macon, Ga., is still a subject of comment. Senator Corea is said to be twenty-two years his bride's senior, and is regarded as one of the handsomest men in the diplomatic court at Washington.

CANADA TO SUSPEND

ALIEN LABOR LAW
Ottawa, Ont., Feb. 25.—The department of labor today is considering a petition for the suspension of the alien labor law in order that America may be allowed to work in Canada in spring. This action is asked for because of the scarcity of labor for railway construction work, as the contractors cannot import laborers from Britain and other parts of Europe. The application is being opposed by several labor unions. Big pay is offered by many lines especially in the northwest.

PURITY—
Results—that's it
See What a Dime Will Do

We gladly welcome the Pure Drugs Law, because it agrees with our thoughts and methods. Cascarets meet its every requirement and always did since the day they were first invented and put on the market. PURITY, QUALITY and MEDICINAL MERIT have been the principles on which Cascarets were made and marketed.

We doubt if in all the world of medical science and therapeutic manufacture better SKILLED CHEMISTS and more carefully selected constituents could be employed than in the making of Cascarets.

The RESULTS prove it. No other Bowel Medicine on earth has reached in history the tremendous approbation and patronage accorded Cascarets by the American People, a testimonial of GENUINE MERIT and satisfactory results, for surely no sensible person would buy an article more than once, unless satisfied, or recommend it to others if not convinced of its virtues.

The sale of Cascarets at the present time is over ONE MILLION BOXES A MONTH, a fact that ought to convince anyone of the satisfaction given to millions of our friends and patrons. It is just this kind of example placed before you that ought to induce you to try a little box of Cascarets and be CONVINCED of its value and effectiveness. After this harmless, inexpensive experiment you will see the reason for the unequalled popularity of this preparation as a true PERSONAL and FAMILY MEDICINE, and this realization will urge future use when necessary.

You ask you to take a DIME BOX with you, and "WHILE YOU SLEEP THEY WILL WORK" and make you feel well and happy. We back our request by our GUARANTEE, and if you're not pleased, your purchase-money will be returned to you for the asking. Such has been our Faith in the efficacy of this pure, clean, sweet, mild, harmless but forceful little fragrant tablet, so easy to buy, so easy to carry, so easy to take, so easy in its action, that we do not hesitate to offer this guaranty to the world, and make good on it.

Cascarets not only are the best medicine yet discovered for the treatment and cure of Chronic Constipation and all its dire consequences, but also a splendid PREVENTIVE OF DISEASE caused by bacteria and other germs in the Bowels. There are more serious troubles that have their origin in irregularities in the food channels than any other cause, and Cascarets by thoroughly cleaning out the stomach and intestines and PURIFYING in an antiseptic way, keep you perfectly safe from such fearful diseases as Appendicitis, Peritonitis and other deadly inflammations caused by retention of indigestible food in the passages.

REDUCE REVENUE ON

EMERALDS FROM BRAZIL.
New York, Feb. 25.—A decision of great importance to precious stone dealers in this country was handed down today by the United States general appraisers reserving the action of the port appraiser in imposing advances aggregating 75 per cent on emeralds imported from Brazil. When the emeralds reached this port they were sent to the appraisers warehouse, where they were turned over to the diamond examiner for appraisal. The official found that the stones had been invoiced in a lump sum without segregating the emeralds according to the value of each stone. In other respects the evidence before the examiner warranted him in reporting to the appraiser that the stones were under-valued 75 per cent. Col. Fowler, the appraiser, exacted duty on that basis. The importer took an appeal and produced evidence to prove that the original invoice prices were correct and that the entry should be liquidated according to the values placed upon them by the exporter. The general appraisers admitted the emeralds on the valuation contended for by the importer.

BRIDGE PLAYING WEST VIRGINIA PAYS 27 CENTS PER RULES SEASON IN CAPITAL

Much of Society Has Flown South--But Few Engagements Announced.

(By Catherine Allman.)
Washington, Feb. 25.—Part of Washington's social contingent has been flying to southern resorts to get the benefit of balmy air and sunshine and to participate in the merry rivalry of gorgeous raiment. But the wise virgins, scripturally speaking, as befits these Lenten days, who have profited by experience, have discreetly remained in town to enjoy the quiet, leisurely affairs where they have time to renew old friendships and are not placing their social prestige in jeopardy by appearing in the same gown twice.

Bridge rules supreme, and thrifty maids and patrons are playing for points and honors wherewith to indulge in some cherished bit of spring finery for the adornment of their fair selves. Woe to the poor unfortunate who has the temerity to accept an invitation to play bridge without knowing the fine points of the game, for her social future is endangered if she causes her partner, who is doubtless a leader among the powers that be, to lose a game. Society can overlook mesalliances, wink at faux pas and a few other misdeeds that are sold in the French because no one knows what they mean in English, but stupidity at bridge is an impossible barrier, a bar sinister, a crime in the social calendar that cannot be forgotten, and "climbers" will please take notice.

Even the president and Mrs. Roosevelt deserted the capital for a few days this week, but scarcely for the purpose of escaping social obligations. Accompanied by Mrs. Longworth and Miss Ethel Roosevelt, they went on a merry jaunt to Massachusetts to visit their two sons, Theodore, Jr., and Kismet, who are attending school in that state. Like all other college students, they are able to come home only for the holidays, and the president and Mrs. Roosevelt, who grow homesick for these two lively members of the family, slip away from official cares and social duties to spend a few quiet days with their boys. Mrs. Roosevelt's health has been unusually good this winter; she is fresher than ever before and has a bright color that is very attractive. Her gowns this season have been made more elaborately and in especially becoming colors, so that her youthful appearance has been remarked upon by all. Our first lady has little fear of exciting comment by wearing the same gown on various occasions, but, on the contrary, wears her favorite costume as many times as she wishes, a fashion that extravagant ladies might follow to advantage had they the good taste and common sense to do so.

Lent is the season of engagement announcements, but this year there seems to be a strange dearth of Cupid's pranks, for, with the exception of Miss India Bell Fleming's approaching nuptials with Don Luis Corea, which will take place next Wednesday, there is no evidence that any other of the many fair debutantes who were launched on this season's galleys have met similar happy fates. True, girls nowadays put off their weddings until they have had one or two seasons here and in New York, followed by greater triumphs across the water; for the American debutante fully realizes in her wise little head that the world is hers, and she has a well defined longing to see it all before she marries. Afterward—well, she can see it again.

Yet it speaks badly for Washington leaues that at least charming buds should be plucked by outsiders. There is Miss Katherine Elkins, daughter of the senator from West Virginia, one of the prettiest as well as one of the most desirable catches of the season, from every standpoint. She is a famous horsewoman and possesses the distinction of being the only active woman member of the Cross Country club, located at The Plains, Fauquier county, Va. This club, of which E. H. Harriman was the principal promoter, is an organization of millionaires, and in order that it may be kept exclusive and untainted from the common herd, the initiation fee is $10,000 and the yearly dues $2,000. Miss Evelyn Walsh is another popular young lady who from all appearances escaped unscathed from the fascinations of Washington's marriageable bachelors. She is the only child of Thos. F. Walsh, whose wealth is such that he could dress the fortune-telling young women in diamonds from top to toe, supposing him guilty of such execrable taste. The Misses Shonts, who came here with an established prestige of a successful London season, and created a furore in Washington's coterie of souls-elect, bid fair to dance away as gayly as they came, leaving a path strewn with broken hearts, or at least wounded affections. And thus runs the whole list, until one feigns would question, "Has Washington no match-making mamas?"

HAIR DRESSER AND CHIROPODIST.

Mrs. Bambini, at her parlors, No. 209 West Railroad avenue, is prepared to give thorough scalp treatment, to hair dressing, treat corns, bunions and ingrowing nails. She gives massage treatment and manicuring. Mrs. Bambini's own preparation of complexion cream builds up the skin and improves the complexion, and is guaranteed not to be injurious. She also prepares a hair tonic that cures and prevents dandruff and hair falling out; restores life to dead hair; removes moles, warts and superfluous hair. Also a face powder, a freckle cure and pinup cure and pile cure. All of these preparations are purely vegetable compounds. Have just added a vibrator machine for treatment of scalp, face and cure of wrinkles. It is also used for rheumatism, pains and massage.

GOVERNOR OF THE STATE ADMITS INEFFICIENT LAWS—MORE THAN TWO-THIRDS OF ITS MINES INSPECTED NOT ONCE A YEAR.

(Copyright, 1907, by the Newspaper Enterprise Association. (By H. G. Salsinger.)

Charleston, W. Va., Feb. 23.—Instant action for the protection of workers in the mines of West Virginia is demanded as a result of the amazing revelations disclosed since the recent disasters, which wiped out the lives of 127 miners since January 1, 1907.

After a thorough investigation in the coal districts, I find that: The mine operators disregard even the fundamental precautions. The state's mining laws are absolutely inadequate. The operators disregard even those.

J. W. PAUL,
Chief Mine Inspector of West Virginia.

The operators of a single shaft mine were working five times as many men in it as the law allows, and he did not interfere. An explosion killed 87 men in this mine. Paul says he has not men enough with which to inspect.

solutely inadequate. The operators disregard even those.

The state's inspection is a mockery. It costs West Virginia twenty-seven cents per miner per year. Over two-thirds of the mines are not visited even once by an inspector.

The Authorities Aroused.

Governor Dawson admits that the laws are inadequate. The state mine inspector frankly says that his department falters at the mammoth task of providing even conventional supervision of all the underground industry.

The crisis has reached the legislature. A joint committee is now investigating the recent disasters to find out the causes and devise relief for miners and the people of the state.

The bald figures which confront the committee are terrifying. In 1906, more than 250 men were killed in mine accidents, an average of six out of every 1,000 men employed.

Double Death Rate.

The death rate this year promises to be twice as large unless West Virginia's inefficient laws are remedied. Its state mine inspection forces fortified and more rigid examinations of mines made.

Here is the official record for mine fatalities for the past ten years. It is given to the public for the first time:

Killed by roof falling..... 739
Killed by mine cars..... 112
Killed by gas explosions..... 93
Killed by all other causes..... 281

Total.....1,275
The largest number of deaths occurred by falling in of roofs and men being run over by mining cars. The public hardly ever hears of these, as the casualties come singly.

Inspection Doesn't Inspect.

There are 740 mines in West Virginia. Some cover as much as 12 and 15 miles. It requires two and sometimes three days to inspect these mines. There are seven state inspectors and one chief inspector.

Only 225 of the state's 740 mines are inspected a year, on an average. The law requires that a mine be inspected every three months. This is a physical impossibility. The number of inspectors is too small.

A low estimate of value of mines of the state is $112,500,000. They give employment to 55,000 men, 22,000 of whom are union men.

The state's mine inspecting department costs $15,000 a year. That's what West Virginia pays for the protection of 55,000 wage earners.

Two years ago Chief Inspector W. J. Paul asked for five more inspectors. He said he needed them. They gave him two more.

Money Rules the Mine.

The operator runs his mine for the financial returns for him. The cheaper the labor, the more money in his pocket. He knows that every repair costs money and may delay work. So he lets go the repairs, putting the matter in fortune's hands. He believes in luck. Other operators do the same thing, no accidents happen to them. Why should accidents happen to him?

He generally manages to find out when the mine inspectors are coming. Years of experience have taught him how to deceive the inspectors. It's part of his business.

The official bombardment has started. Governor Dawson is leading the attack. Will West Virginia's legislature answer the cry of the beeping orphans and weeping widows in shrouded cabins on the hills and mountains of fair West Virginia? They are waiting.

GOV. DAWSON ADMITS THE WEAKNESS OF STATE LAWS

(By H. G. Salsinger.)

Charleston, W. Va., Feb. 23.—I called on Governor W. M. Dawson at the executive office and laid before him the facts I had gathered in the coal mining region—the terrible facts that showed the cheapness with which human life is held in the state of West Virginia.

Governor Dawson is aroused to the situation and proposes to give it his closest attention. He said that the laws are inefficient.

Said the governor: "The laws are inefficient because they do not give the mine inspectors sufficient authority.

"Because they do not safeguard from blasting off in gaseous mines.

"Because they do not provide sufficient penalty for violation of state mining laws.

"Because they do not allow the mining department to prescribe sufficient rules to make mines safe.

"Because they compel the mining department to come into court and secure injunctions to close up dangerous mines. In the meantime the operator can do as he pleases and an explosion may occur.

"Because the laws do not compel the fire bosses to be appointed and examined by the state. The supreme court held some time ago that operators were not responsible for deaths or accidents in mines where the fire boss' negligence was the cause, because the state laws made the fire boss a necessary adjunct to the mine, and he is therefore the state's agent and not the operator's. The state does not designate who shall be fire boss, but simply says that there must be a fire boss.

"Because the operator can give the job to any man he wants, whether that man is efficient or inefficient. Added the governor:

"The laws should provide for a thorough examination which every man must take before he can become fire boss. He should be thorough and competent before such an appointment can be given him, and the governor should make that appointment, since the state laws compel the fire bosses to be part of the mine's officials.

BOBBIE'S ESSAY ON THE LITTLE BEE

(Written Especially for Mr. Walters.)

Bees is the cute little things that fly from flower to flower and take out the sweetness for you and for me. then it is honey.

when bees was made, there Maker sed to them Now, I have made you very small without no muscles with which to hit and without no hands on which to put boxing gloves, so I will fix you up another way. I will put something in yure body that will make the bravest man retreat, it will be called a stinger and it can do the work. so the little bee was glad and started rite out practising until now it can lick even Mister Jeffries.

the first bee was in the Garden of Eden, sitting on a wild flower, when Adam came along. Adam sed Give me that flower, my wife wants it to pin on her dress, but the bee sed No, this flower is too big to pin on her dress, git a littel flower that will show moss of the dress, then Adam got mad and sed Nevertheless I will talk the flour & the bee sed Not without a determined struggle; after sed struggle, which only lasted three (3) seconds, Adam said "Stung!"

once I was stung by a black hornet, which is a kind of bee & a very bad kind, the last of this essay is a poem:

Of all the insects in this world
Ide soonest be a Bee,
Ide fly rite at a big police
& watch him twenty-three (23).

OLD SORES FED AND KEPT OPEN BY IMPURE BLOOD

A great many people have an idea that old sores exist merely because of a diseased condition of the flesh where the ulcer is located. They patiently apply salves, powders, plasters and other external applications, but in spite of all such treatment the place refuses to heal. Whenever a sore or ulcer does not heal readily the blood is at fault; this vital fluid is filled with impurities and poisons which are constantly being discharged into the place, feeding it with noxious matter, which makes it impossible for the sore to heal. Old sores may be the result of an inherited blood taint, or the effects of a long spell of sickness, or again the circula on may be contaminated with the collections of refuse matter which the different members have failed to expel through the channels of nature. Whatever the cause the blood becomes steeped in poison and a cut, bruise, scratch or other wound often develops into a sore, fed and kept up by these impurities, causing it to eat deeper into the surrounding tissue, inflaming, festering and causing pain. External applications can only keep the sore clean; they cannot cure it. Keep the sore clean; they cannot cure it. Keep the sore clean; they cannot cure it.

trouble because they do not reach the blood. S. S. S. cures Old Sores by going to the very bottom of the trouble, driving out the impurities and poisons and purifying and building up the entire circulation. When S. S. S. has removed the cause the blood becomes rich and healthy, the sore begins to heal, new flesh is formed, the place scabs over and is soon permanently healed. Hunting for Trouble.

"I've lived in California 20 years, and am still hunting for trouble in the way of burns, sores, wounds, boils, cuts, sprains, or a case of piles that Bucklen's Arnica Salve won't quickly cure," writes Charles Walters, of Alleghany, Sierra county. No use hunting, Mr. Walters; it cures every case. Guaranteed by all druggists.

STRAWBERRIES ON WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY

After the fruit and watermelon season is fully open it is nothing unusual for the friends of a country editor to bring in specimens from their gardens and orchards, says the Roswell Record. But this year Geo. L. Wyllis has them all beaten. Today he brought the editor of the Record a small mess of ripe strawberries, grown outdoors without glass on the sunny side of his home in Roswell. The watermelons, however, will not be ripe until the usual time.

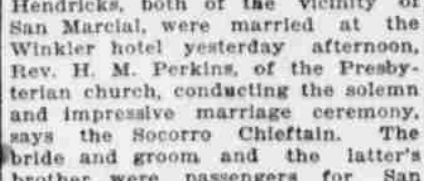

Lame Back.

This ailment is usually caused by rheumatism of the muscles and may be cured by applying Chamberlain's Pain Balm two or three times a day and rubbing the parts vigorously at each application. If this does not afford relief, bind on a piece of flannel slightly dampened with Pain Balm, and quick relief is almost sure to follow. For sale by all druggists.

COMPARE THE TWO

According to reports in many exchanges, farmers in the extreme northwest are suffering severely from the intense cold this winter. They are having an experience the like of which is seldom known even in that rigorous climate, where winter sets in early and continues long. The worst stories of suffering come from Canada, though our own outposts are feeling the deprivation of fuel and the hardship of a winter for which they were unprepared. Railroads have been unable to rush fuel into a territory where fuel was most needed, owing to snow blockades, hence the very thing the settlers most needed was the thing denied them.

In Canada the horrors of the fuel famine are most disastrous. There they not only have no coal to burn, but the country being newer the inhabitants are poorly equipped in every way to maintain themselves. Stories of deaths by freezing and of homesteaders burning their houses bit by bit to keep warm excite the sympathy of those who know only by hearsay of the hardships of pioneering on the wide northern frontier. With the demolition of their homes, the destruction of their live stock and the consumption of their grain in lieu of fuel, the settlers of the northwest will believe by spring that their homes in the new country are won at a hard cost.

Here in New Mexico the weather for the entire fall and for the winter thus far has been delightful. Stock has done well out of doors, families have needed but a small supply of fuel in most parts of the territory, and every prospect is for an early and fruitful cropping season and one of our very best grazing seasons. Why should an American migrate to Canada instead of coming to the southwest? Canada has done more advertising than we have.

RIGHTS OF BACHELORS

The Washington Post becomes very serious and quite indignant over the numerous bills aimed at bachelors which are now before the legislatures of the states. It declares this "butting into what is nobody's business except the victim of the assault has never before been so bold, so audacious, so gross as now."

In fact, the Post maintains that a man has a divine right to marry or remain single as he chooses, and that his motives are his own concern. Possibly, also, it thinks that the number of children a man chooses to have after his marriage is solely his own affair.

An exchange, in commenting on the foregoing, finds difficulty in understanding just why a man, who has had no choice as to his presence in this world, is under any obligations to force the uncertainties of life upon others, and thinks the reason is known only to the doctor whose livelihood is at stake, and the person who needs the marriage fee. However, the rulers, who want men to face bullets and pay taxes, might also know.

Man knows nothing beyond the border lines of this life, and what he finds between is seldom such unmixt bliss that he is especially blameworthy if he hesitates to be responsible for willing it to another or others. More especially is this true if as a single man he realizes that it also means that he must inflict himself for life upon some innocent and unsuspecting maiden, or maybe get inflicted himself.

Rather than put a tax on bachelors, they should be given a reward of merit card for encumbering the earth but once, and not imposing their personalities by inheritance upon future generations.

THE INS AND OUTS

The El Paso Herald, a republican paper in an overwhelmingly democratic town, favors the holding of a mass meeting to nominate a citizen's ticket for city offices. The Evening News, which is democratic, says it is perfectly natural for the republican paper to do this, and then the News adds:

"Conspicuous members of the 'down and out' society, who realize that their past records do not entitle them to consideration by the democratic party, and republicans who have no right to expect a place at the democratic pie counter, naturally turn to a 'citizens' organization in a hope of getting that which they can not obtain from any other source. But democrats who have worked long and hard for party successes and who have always been faithful to the party, do not accept readily such suggestions. They prefer to stand in line with loyal party workers and see that none except true democrats are solicited for positions of public trust."

In the foregoing extract read republican where it says democratic, and democratic where it says republican, and the reader will have an exact description of politics in Albuquerque or any other town. The party which is out, aided by members of the dominant party having no expectation of getting in, are always calling for citizens' tickets, for elections without politics, for reform of the other fellows. This method is so old and so universal that it is surprising any can be found to be deluded by it; and yet, like badger fights, it springs perennial. Perhaps the minority finds it to be either this or nothing.

A man named Melchior, who died in Seattle recently, left $50,000, the sum of a lifetime's hardships and savings, and decreed in his will that all the money be spent in building a tomb over his remains. That is about as narrow an ambition as any man could well have—the piling of stones over his decaying skull, the building of a costly mausoleum over his rotten bones. Fifty thousand dollars, if properly used, would do a vast lot of good in the world. It would buy fifty worthy people a decent home apiece. Put out on interest it would provide free scholarships for half a score of struggling men. It would do a work of charity so long as the world stood. What a fool, to waste his good money in a graveyard! He had no right to do it. A spendthrift says to you: "Here is a thousand dollars. It is all mine. I can do with it as I like. I'll put it in the fire and burn it up." What is your answer? You say: "You may have the legal right, but you have not the moral right to do this thing. The world has gotten over the idea that a man may do what he pleases with what he calls his own. That $1,000 belongs to society. It cost somebody something. It represents somebody's sweat and toil, somebody's privations and short dinners. You shall not throw the money away." But this Melchior would not only throw away $50,000 of society's capital, but would build a monument to his own egotism.

A folder issued by the Commercial club of Roy, N. M., and printed by the Spanish-American at that place, will be a revelation to all who see it for the first time. We all have heard, and accept it in a general way, that New Mexico is being developed agriculturally at a wonderful rate; but it is only when something comes to us like this Roy folder that we really begin to realize the actuality of the wonder. Well printed, forcefully written, tellingly illustrated—the folder itself is a revelation; while the facts it contains make an old-timer like this writer sit up and rub his eyes, to determine whether he is not dreaming. Any one interested should send for a copy.

There is such a thing as a natural born bulldozer, and there is such a thing as a fool acquiring the habit after birth. The first is a misfortune, the second is idiotic. Practically it makes no difference whether the unfortunate habit is congenital or acquired. The result is the same. The bulldozer is personally a nuisance, while he is a detriment to any community in which he resides. Albuquerque is unfortunate in having on its morning paper an aggregation of bulldozers, the most vicious and idiotic the sun ever shone upon.

DELIRIUM OF GIVING BUT NOT AT ALL IN RIGHT DIRECTION

The army of settlement workers who some years ago entered upon their task in the great cities with such splendid hope and optimism are becoming discouraged. They went into the slums to carry by example and teaching, by personal contact and association new ideals, higher ambitions and a better view of life.

They have become so impressed with the utter degradation of their surroundings and the hopelessness of effecting permanent results that they are possessed with despair and oppressed by the sheer magnitude of the misery and debasement they find. They have as a rule become themselves social anarchists and feel, as Upton Sinclair expressed it, that they are but standing on the brink of hell and trying to quench the fire with snowballs.

These people of the slums, working all day in sweatshops under conditions and at a wage that keep them at the animal level, have no means for beautifying their homes, no possibility of comforts, no encouragements and indeed no homes. There is no message to bring to them; they can be elevated only by a change of conditions beyond the power of settlement work.

The United States has been possessed with a delirium of giving, and an awful, deadly disregard of the cause which creates the need. Two of its citizens in the past few years have poured out $250,000,000 in public benefactions. Not one dollar of this has gone to relieve the miserable, pressing monotony of the lives of the extremely poor. Not a dollar has gone to give them better and cleaner habitations, for hospitals, playgrounds for the children or clubhouses to provide social centers.

Senator Beveridge has shown how general is the prevalence of child labor, not alone in the cotton mills of the south and the mines of Pennsylvania, but in most of the industries, especially of the east. The little fellows, almost babies, who sell papers, black boots and run errands on the city streets; the little, naked boys who pack cloth in New England bleaching vats; the 80,000 children, most of them girls, who work in the textile mills; the deliberate importation of children for work in factories, and the total of 1,700,000 under fifteen years of age who are breadwinners, do not these prove the charge that America has no regard for its children?

Again we are told that 7,000,000 women are now among the country's wage-earners, and that in no city is the general wage large enough to protect a large proportion of them from recourse to vice.

This all comes of that subordination of the state to business that says the federal government must not interfere in these matters; they must be left to the states, which in their smaller entities are largely the creatures of overgrown wealth—wealth which is bidding for a quiet conscience and seeking to turn away the face of public disgust and hatred by pouring out a part of the millions won through just such conditions.

Of what use are libraries and colleges, scientific research and higher education to a people whose babies are forced to work side by side with their parents? What use are they to men and women ruined in body, mind and soul by a social condition that after crushing out of them the last vestige of hope, goes on unchanging to wreck the lives of their offspring?

The country is top-heavy with wealth and learning; it needs to mend its foundations, if it would be what it boasts—the land of hope, of liberty, of equal opportunity and of freedom from oppression—Duluth News Tribune.

OUR BRITISH COUSINS LEAVE

LIQUOR AND TURN TO TEA

There has been a decline of nearly 2,000,000 barrels of beer in the annual consumption of the United Kingdom during the past six years, notwithstanding that the population increased by 2,000,000.

Official figures for the fiscal year 1906 give the amount retained for consumption at 32,405,000 barrels, or 27.9 gallons per capita. This decline of 11 per cent has taken place entirely in the English and Scottish consumption, since that of Ireland exhibits a slight actual increase over the six years previous. That the people of the United Kingdom are not making up for their beer frugality by imbibing more spirits is shown by the statistics, from which it appears that the total annual consumption of spirits decreased from 1.1 proof gallons to nine-tenths of a gallon. The spirits retained for consumption in the 1906 fiscal year was 24,487,000 gallons of home made and 6,735,000 foreign. Measured by the population, the decline in the amount of British spirits consumed is about 15 per cent, whereas in respect to foreign spirits it is about 29 per cent. Furthermore, the practice of private brewing has decreased enormously in the last decade. The sale of beer to the trade is being centered in the hands of the large producers. English journals draw as a deduction from these figures that the habits of their people are improving.

The British are evidently giving up alcoholic drinks more and more and becoming still greater tea drinkers, their imports of tea for home consumption having been for the first seven months of 1906 155,767,710 pounds, an increase of over 10,000,000 pounds above the same period of 1905.—San Francisco Chronicle.

HOW RISING TIDE OF GOLD HAS

AFFECTED WORLD AFFAIRS

January's report of the production of the Rand district of the Transvaal indicates that the gold output of 1907 is likely to exceed that of 1906. The Rand's production for January was $11,657,000. As the tendency is upward with a good deal of steadiness, month by month, the prospect is that the output of that field for the calendar year will amount to about $150,000,000, and may go higher than that.

The Rand is the most productive of the world's gold fields. It contributed in 1906 about $119,000,000 of the world's aggregate. The United States stood second, with an output of $96,000,000. As the world's total gold production for 1906 was about $400,000,000, and as the United States is also increasing its output this year, the chances are that the 1907 gold yield will go considerably above $425,000,000. There has been a steady gain in the world's aggregate ever since the close of the Boer war, which permitted the mines of the Rand to reopen. The average increase of each year over its predecessor has been about $25,000,000.

With an output of $400,000,000 for 1906, the gold production has doubled since 1896, when Bryan made his first canvass for the presidency, and it has practically quadrupled since 1884, the year of Cleveland's first election. This immense expansion has had two important consequences. It has permitted several countries to adopt the gold standard in the past dozen years, Mexico being the latest of them to make this change. It has helped to quicken all sorts of industries and to send prices and wages up. These effects have been felt in all the great countries of the world, but particularly in the United States. There is a fear in some quarters that the production may continue until gold gets to be too cheap for its present uses as a basis for currency, and a general standard of values. This apprehension, however, is likely to turn out to be illusory. The tremendous expansion in enterprise all over the world, which is partly a cause and partly a consequence of the gold expansion, will probably absorb all the new gold that comes to hand, and prevent it from dropping to the silver level.—Globe Democrat.

GROUNDS UPON WHICH LARRAZOLO CLAIMS CONTEST

Judge W. C. Heacock has returned from Raton, where he spent last week looking after the interests of Delegate Andrews in the taking of testimony in the Larrazolo-Andrews contest case.

"In this district as well as in other districts, where the democrats have claimed that frauds were committed in the late election," said Judge Heacock, "the testimony does not sustain the complaints. For instance, one young man was brought before the court, who testified that he was not of age, but it could not be shown that there was not a man by the same name in the district that was of age, the man taking testimony himself admitting that he did not know every voter in the precinct.

"In another instance it was alleged that a man whose name was found on the registration lists was dead, but it was not shown that there were not other men in the precinct by the same name. After three months' time it is very easy to be unable to find many voters who were there at the time of the election. The inhabitants of the camps are continually changing, the miners going and coming all the time, and upon this condition of things the democrats have hoped to build a contest."

The Brotherhood of St. Paul will give one of their very interesting entertainments at the First Methodist Episcopal church, evening of Thursday, Feb. 28, at 7:30 o'clock. This will be an open meeting for ladies and gentlemen and will consist of public installation of members, followed by a banquet, after which a fine musical program will be rendered and a paper on "Woman" will be read by Mr. David Stewart. This will be a companion paper to that read by Miss Hickey on "Man." Tickets 25 cents.

TOOK GUN AWAY FROM VARSITY STUDENTS

Two Los Grigios Natives Arrested on Complaint of College Men.

Lawrence Lee and Albert Clancy, two well known young men, appeared before Judge Craig last night and swore out a complaint charging Antonio Samora and Salvador Garcia with larceny from the person. Samora and Garcia live at Los Grigios. They were arrested by Deputy Sheriff Fred Heyn and lodged in the Bernalillo county jail. This afternoon a preliminary hearing of the case before Judge Craig was continued owing to the absence of material witnesses. The defendants gave bond for the appearance Saturday and were released.

Back of the arrest, it is said, there lies a story of a disagreement between Lee and Clancy and the defendants. The latter are natives. The natives are said to have received Lee and Clancy of the possession of a shot gun. The affair occurred near the American Lumber Co. mills, where Lee and Clancy were shooting yesterday afternoon.

One report has it that the young men became involved in a difficulty with the natives and that one of them drew a knife while the other took the shot gun. This report lacks verification.

Considerable interest attaches to the case owing to the social prominence of the young men who are students at the University of New Mexico.

Both young men are athletes and have been identified with athletics ever since they entered the University. Clancy is a nephew of District Attorney Clancy, while Lee is a nephew of City Clerk Harry Lee. Samora and Garcia are related to well known native families of Los Grigios. They had no difficulty in giving bond.

Quite a number of witnesses will appear at the preliminary hearing, it is said. The trial was set for Saturday, so that the young men, who are students at the University, may not lose time from their studies.

PROPOSE TO BUY COMMERCIAL CLUB

It is believed that an effort will be made to buy the Commercial club building. The parties behind the movement are J. S. Darden, of Denver, who will be associated with local people, should the deal be made. The proposition is one wholly speculative, it is understood, the club property being much enhanced in value since the postoffice site was chosen directly across the street north of the club building. The Commercial club stock is owned by a large number of club members. The $25,000 bond issue of the club is owned by the A. Grunfeld estate.

RECORD CAR ORDERS COMPEL ENLARGEMENT OF SHOPS.

Pittsburg, Feb. 25.—Not including the New York Central order placed today, orders for steel cars aggregating more than $160,000,000 are now in the hands of the steel companies here. Exclusive of the present orders it is certain that during the coming month further orders to the extent of $30,000,000 or more will be received. It is thought that owing to the difficulty railroads have in borrowing money, their orders for cars are not as large as they would otherwise have been, still the enormity of the work to be turned out has started Pittsburg. All furnaces are working full time, as the orders on hand will keep all plants running up to the end of the current year. The Standard Car company is duplicating at Hammond, Ind., at a cost of $5,000,000, its Butler plant, and increase in car shop capacity is in order everywhere.

PITTSBURG SUFFERS DESTRUCTIVE FIRE.

Pittsburg, Feb. 25.—A disastrous fire broke out in the Derby Desk company's building today. The flames spread to two adjoining buildings and the three buildings were practically destroyed. During the fire one woman and two men were injured, but not seriously. The loss will be several hundred thousand dollars.

After the betrothal the ball will be held and it is intended to devote the proceeds to the benefit of the proposed German hospital.

McCOLLUM HAS SMALL SHOW TO RECOVER

Wife and Three Babies in Poor Circumstances at Las Vegas.

Special to The Evening Citizen. Mrs. Curtis McCollum, left here this afternoon on train No. 1 to be at husband's bedside. She sent him a letter to the lumber camp a week ago, informing him that his oldest daughter, Alice, aged 18, had broken her arm. She thinks McCollum was trying to catch a train to come home when hurt. She had not heard from him for some time. They have three children and are in poor circumstances.

No reply has been received here by Chief McMillin to the message he sent City Marshal Ben Coles of Las Vegas regarding the discovery of a man believed to be Curtis McCollum, of Las Vegas, in an unconscious condition along the Santa Fe tracks near Sunnee Saturday night. The chief has written a personal letter to Mrs. McCollum, 912 Prime street, East Las Vegas, with additional information about the man, who lies at St. Joseph's hospital in an unconscious condition.

Mrs. McCollum's address was secured from letters and papers found on the person of the unfortunate individual. These were turned over to Chief McMillin by Dr. Carns, the city physician, after the man was removed to the hospital.

Among the letters is one from Mrs. McCollum to her husband, in which she writes of being in straightened circumstances. It mentions that their little daughter had suffered an accident, which resulted in the fracture of one of her arms. Three sums of money, amounting to $35.10, were found on the man's person. Ten dollars of this sum was sent to the wife at East Las Vegas. It was a bill found in an unmailed letter in the inside pocket of his coat. The chief believes he had intended to send it to her.

McCullum has been identified by Paymaster Baker of the American Lumber Co., as a man who worked for the company at Camp No. 6 at Ketter. There is little room for doubt about his identity as the letter and papers indicate.

The engineer on Santa Fe train No. 3 saw the man lying beside the road bed near Sunnee late Saturday night. Sunnee is a siding station between Albuquerque and Gallup. He stopped the train and the man was brought to Albuquerque and conveyed to St. Joseph's hospital.

When a reporter for The Evening Citizen called at the hospital this morning, McCollum was still unconscious. He has not regained consciousness since he was found. Occasionally he raves somewhat, and his incoherent utterances, resulting from a fractured skull, the fracture of the head. There is no outward indication of a blow which might have caused the fracture, however, according to the doctor. The left eye is discolored and the physician believes the injury might have resulted from the injury which fractured the skull.

Dr. J. F. Pearce, who has charge of the case at the hospital, said this morning that McCollum is suffering from a brain concussion, resulting from a fractured skull. The fracture of the head. There is no outward indication of a blow which might have caused the fracture, however, according to the doctor. The left eye is discolored and the physician believes the injury might have resulted from the injury which fractured the skull.

McCullum's face is a mass of small abrasions and there are two rather shallow cuts, one of which is on his lower lip, while the other is on his left cheek. The physician in charge of the case believes these minor injuries are older than the one which fractured the skull. At least, he says they look older. A half pint flask of whiskey was among the things found in McCollum's clothing. There was slight indication that he had been drinking at some time previous to the injury, which might have been sustained by falling from a train.

The foul play theory is not given much consideration by the police because of the finding of money on McCollum's person.

The most puzzling part of it all, however, is the fact that there is no outward indication that the skull is fractured although indications show that it is. McCollum has small chance to recover.

BRIEF SYNOPSIS OF THE NEW MEXICO HOMESTEAD LAW

All men and single women over 21 years of age, widows, deserted wives, and persons under the age of 21 years who are the heads of families, who are not the owners of more than 160 acres of land, who are citizens or have declared their intention to become citizens of the United States, are qualified to make a homestead entry.

Not later than six months from date of entry the homestead claimant must establish his residence upon the land, and after fourteen months from date of entry, if he has resided upon and cultivated the land for the last eight months, can commute, or pay for the land at the rate of $1.25 per acre, when claimant will receive a patent to the land from the government. If claimant does not wish to commute, he can reside continuously upon the land for five years, and upon filing proof that he has done so, will receive a patent to the land.

Soldiers' Rights. Soldiers who served in the war of the rebellion, the Spanish or the Philippine wars, and who have the time of their service, not exceeding four years, counted as residence on the land.

Deceased Claimants. If a homestead claimant dies, the land goes to the widow, if he leaves one; if not, to his heirs. Neither the widow nor the heirs are required to live upon the land, but must keep up the improvements.

Soldier's Widow. The widow of a deceased soldier who never used his homestead right, can make a soldier's homestead entry, and is required to reside personally on the land for one year. If the widow of a deceased soldier has died or again married, his minor children, through a guardian, can make a soldier's homestead entry.

Leave of Absence. Any homesteader, who by reason of failure of crops, sickness or any other unavoidable casualty, is unable to make a living for himself and family on his claim, can secure a leave of absence not exceeding one year. When a leave of absence is granted, the time the settler is absent must be made up at the end of the five years' residence and cultivation required by law.

There is yet vacant government land in the valley, but none very close to any railroad station, and it requires a survey to locate it with any degree of certainty.

FIRE IN CENTRAL SCHOOL BUILDING

BELL WENT DING, DING, AND THE CHILDREN ALL MARCHED OUT.

The fire drill of the Central school building was given a fair test this morning, and proved to be all right. Some small bits of paper which had fallen through a little hole in the floor of Mrs. Bowers' room, the sixth grade, became ignited from some unknown reason. The smoke coming through the little hole into the room, causing an alarm to be turned in to the fire department. An irrepressible young man, who is one of Mrs. Bowers' pupils, explained what happened then in the following language: "The bell went ding, ding, and we all marched out." The chemical extinguisher kept in the building was turned through the hole and the blaze was put out before the arrival of the fire department.

DOMINGO LUMBER CO. BEGINS OPERATIONS

The new 50,000 feet capacity sawmill of the Domingo Lumber company, in Cochiti canyon, Sandoval county, began sawing wood on Saturday. A shingle mill with a capacity of 100,000 shingles a day, was also set in operation on Saturday.

The lumber will be hauled by wagons to the railroad at Thornton, a distance of about twenty miles. A good road has been made along the old Bland trail, and the company has taken a contract to build a new bridge across the Rio Grande two miles north of Pena Blanca, at the site of the old bridge, which the river is now running around. The new structure will be 600 feet long.

For the transportation of the lumber to the railroad the Domingo company has just received a carload of Texas horses, averaging from 1,000 to 1,400 pounds in weight.

GENERAL HUGH CAMERON ON HIS WAY TO ALBUQUERQUE

Kansas Hermit, Pedestrian at 80, Stops in Kansas City--Walking to Duke City to Thank Governor Ross For Voting Against Impeachment of President of U. S.

Gen. Hugh Cameron, the "Kansas hermit," of Lawrence, was an unexpected and a welcome visitor yesterday afternoon at the monthly meeting of the Old Men's association, says the Kansas City Journal. With his 80 years sitting as lightly on him as 30 years might be expected to sit, the gallant old soldier attracted attention every step of his way through the city. He had walked in from Lawrence, being on his way, afoot, to Albuquerque, to call on former Senator E. C. Ross, of Kansas, now a printer, and to thank Ross for casting the deciding vote that prevented the impeachment of President Johnson. General Cameron wore a Canadian stocking cap, a raincoat and overalls as outer garments. He carried two small telescopes. His clear pink and white skin and his patriarchal beard made him an object of attention.

"I am 80 years of age," the general told the members of the Old Men's association, "and each twenty years I take a long tour. This time I am walking to Albuquerque. Here is my proclamation and platform," said he, handing to the secretary of the meeting a document which for a preamble had a petition for the end of partisanship, and concludes with this fourth twentieth century announcement, which he stated some time ago would be issued yesterday:

"On this day, sacred to patriotism, I, as hermit of Kansas, make this, my fourth twentieth century announcement.

"In my first twentieth century announcement I advertised an important walk of over 4,000 miles. In my third, I advertised an important run for the legislature of Kansas as the competitor of W. R. Stubbs, the great Kansas 'boss buster'."

"In this one, I desire to announce my purpose to inaugurate a pilgrimage to Albuquerque, N. M., to emphasize the expression of my gratitude to Almighty God and E. C. Ross for his vote against the impeachment of a president of the United States while acting in his capacity as senator from Kansas. For which courageous, wise and patriotic act that saved this great state and this great nation from a stigma vile, terrible and vast, he was maligned, vilified, boycotted and ostracized."

"He was the victim of that party spite, and that sectional hate engendered by the border troubles, and the land and salary grab spirit of that time, which spirit fomented riot and bloodshed, secession and war and made the coinage of greenbacks and a new word necessary. This expression of gratitude and acknowledgement of gratitude is made cheerfully and without shame before men—men who never attempt to bribe and bamboozle their franchised fellow citizens—men who would not bribe, impeach nor assassinate the people's chosen rulers as well as those who would."

"I also acknowledge my gratitude to those masterful minds who formulated and enacted into law our great American magna charta, including the maxims of true liberty, and also with pride I acknowledge my gratitude to him, who was first in war, first in peace and first in the hearts of his countrymen, for defeating the British king in his attempt to destroy the validity of this important enactment."

General Cameron is a national character, being well known to New York news writers. At the outbreak of the civil war he enlisted as a private in the Second Kansas cavalry, and rose to the rank of captain. He afterwards helped raise the Second Arkansas cavalry, and was made lieutenant colonel of it. He fought with that regiment for two years. When at Holly Springs, Ark., he was put in command of a brigade and while he had no set battles while acting as a brigadier general, he made some highly important strategic movements. He was the only commander who ever brought any of the men of the great southern cavalry leader, General Forrest, into camp alone. General Cameron, while on one of his raids, caught Forrest's bodyguard, killed twenty-five of them and captured Captain Merritt and Sergeant Foush.

After General Cameron's speech, the association's quartet, composed of S. M. Philbrook, F. M. Furgeson, Prof. W. H. Leib and Alexander Holland, gave several musical numbers. Rev. T. B. Marvin, chaplain, pronounced the invocation and an address of welcome was delivered by President Holsmeyer. An address, "Glory of Old Age," was delivered by Rev. Fred V. Loos, of Liberty. F. M. Furgeson, secretary of the association, read a memorial to the late Col. G. W. Warder, and later delivered an address on George Washington. Prof. W. H. Leib sang two solo numbers. Miss Maude Holsinger offered an instrumental number, and a vocal solo was sung by Miss Mattie Taylor. The entertainment closed with a song, "Washington," composed by F. M. Furgeson, and sung by the audience to the tune of "America."

GOULD BOILER MAKERS GIVEN ULTIMATUM

Must Return to Work Before Tomorrow at All Shops or Leave the Service.

The following bulletin has been posted at all Missouri Pacific shops, where boiler makers have been on strike:

"St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 21, 1907.—To Boiler makers, Boiler maker Apprentices and Boiler maker Helpers: As the wages paid boiler makers and boiler maker apprentices have been equal to that of machinists and machinist apprentices for years past on this system, your committee in St. Louis were offered, on Feb. 13, the same rate of pay which had recently been granted the machinists and machinist apprentices, which offer was declined.

"On Feb. 1 the boiler maker helpers were given an increase of 1 1/2 cents per hour, and the committee was offered an additional 1/2 cent flat increase per hour, making a total of 2 cents flat increase per hour for all boiler maker helpers. This offer was also declined.

"On Feb. 15 the committee ordered all boiler makers, boiler maker apprentices and boiler maker helpers to suspend work in the boiler shops at all points on the system.

"All boiler makers, boiler maker apprentices and boiler maker helpers are hereby notified that unless they return to work on or before 7 a. m., Feb. 26, they will no longer be in the service of this company, and they can obtain the wages due them on application to their foreman or master mechanic, and should remove their personal effects from the premises of the company.

IF STYNER RECOVERS HE WILL BE REINSTATED

That the Mexican Railway company is ready to reinstate former General Manager Styner, should he recover from the wounds said to have been self-inflicted, is the statement of a man just from Mexico, who has been in close touch with the officials of that road, says the El Paso News.

It is his statement that it is reported that at the time Mr. Styner tendered his resignation he had been dispirited for a protracted time. The acceptance of the resignation was with the intention of reinstating Mr. Styner and the entire trouble seems to be at bottom the irregular habits of the railroad man, otherwise one of the most competent in the republic.

Naturally the despondency incidental to the resignation and the effect of the dispirited reduced Mr. Styner to an unnatural condition, and it is now thought that while in this condition he made the attempt upon his life.

The report that the truth of the affair will probably never reach the United States is made more than usually likely, since the orders of which he is a member are assisting in keeping the matter quiet.

W. T. Province, superintendent of the Chihuahua division of the Mexican Central, went south in his private car this morning. Mr. Province was rather reticent in discussing the alleged attempt at suicide of his former chief, Mr. Styner, and beyond saying that he had received no word from Mexico City he did not care to say anything about the affair.

VANDERBILT OFFICIAL

THIRTEEN 2-CENT SERVICE
Railroad officials everywhere are thoroughly stampeded with fright over 2-cent passenger rate legislation. Today two conferences were held in Chicago for a discussion of the subject and one in St. Louis, the latter being by the presidents of the southwestern railroads. In Chicago, Warren J. Lynch, passenger traffic manager of the New York Central lines west of Buffalo, gave out a remarkable interview, which was in effect a warning to the state of Illinois that if the people demanded 2-cent fares they would certainly get a "2-cent service." This interview was issued after a conference between passenger officials of all Illinois lines, at which they determined to exert every possible influence to defeat 2-cent legislation in this state. Mr. Lynch's interview may be taken as fairly expressing the thought and the disposition of all railroad passenger officials upon the subject of 2-cent fares in the middle west or west.

RAILWAY MAIL CLERKS

MUST PAY FULL FARE

The discovery that railway mail clerks are not exempted from the provisions of the anti-pass law recently enacted by the South Dakota legislature, and which already has gone into effect, having contained an emergency clause, created a sensation among the railway mail clerks here and elsewhere in the state whose routes are in South Dakota. By the oversight, it now is a violation of the law for the mail clerks to ride on the trains and handle the mails of Uncle Sam without paying full fare. Some of the conductors are collecting full fare from the railway mail clerks, while others are passing them until they can receive instructions from headquarters. In the cases of the mail clerks who are required to pay their fares, they pay out for this purpose about as much as their salary. If ap-

NEWSPAPER MEN HAVE LESS LIBERTY

In Europe Than in America—Story Told by Representative Bartholdt.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 25.—Newspaper men in Europe are not treated as men of ability, intelligence and in every way the equals of statesmen as they are in this country, said Representative Bartholdt, of Missouri, the other day, in relating some of his experiences while a member of the recent international conference at The Hague.

Mr. Bartholdt is the president of the American branch of the Inter-parliamentary union. Just after the conference at Brussels had adjourned word came of the signing of the treaty of peace between Japan and Russia. The information came too late for the conference to take any official action, but quite a number of the members were in the chamber where the sessions had been held, when the cards of men representing five of the leading Parisian newspapers were carried in to Mr. Bartholdt.

DID GRIM MAFIA DO AWAY WITH MUSIC HALL QUEEN

Beautiful Young Actress, Murdered After She and Her Child Were Deserted by Her Titled Lover.

Special Correspondence.
Napier, Feb. 25.—Is the Mafia responsible for the death of the beautiful music hall queen, Mlle. Louise Baldi, who, betrayed by a nobleman, son of a wealthy mine owner, was finally deserted and died in agony after becoming a mother?

The romance in the life of Mlle. Baldi is like that of scores of young girls who seek the stage as a means of livelihood. She was beautiful, of charming manners and innocent. This made her an immediate favorite.

Forced into this life in order to support her poor parents, she soon became known as the music hall queen of Italy.

When she met Count Tommaso Pintaro, it was a case of love at first sight. The enraptured couple wished to marry. There were violent objections on the part of the count's wealthy parents and threats to disinherit him.

Finally Louise, with all the passionate trust of the southern Italian woman, consented to become what is known in America as his common law wife.

When the time came that Louise was forced to leave the stage, the couple lived for a time upon the bounty of her poor father, who could earn but $2 a week. Then a babe was born, and soon the count disappeared. Next day two men and a nurse, who claimed to be envoys from the count's family, arrived and took charge of affairs.

Louise had been gaining strength. Now, under the care of a too attentive nurse, she gradually waned away and died, suffering excruciating pain.

Her family, suspecting a plot, reported the case to the police and arrests were made. It is believed that the attendants upon the unfortunate woman were members of the Mafia, to which organization the count is known to belong. Sensational testimony is expected at the trial.

"Tell them to walk right in," said Mr. Bartholdt, accustomed to meet newspaper men as his equal and in his own committee room in the capitol. "But it is not permitted that newspaper men shall come in here," meekly suggested an attendant. "Why, how is that, we see representatives of the American press anywhere in our country," observed Mr. Bartholdt. The attendant simply shrugged his shoulders and remarked that it was against the rules.

Mr. Bartholdt went into the corridor to meet the reporters and throughout the halls he said he heard loud shouts of "vive Roosevelt" and "vive America," indicating the warm feeling of the newspaper men for the part they knew our president and the American people had played in bringing about peace between the two powers. When Mr. Bartholdt was asked for an expression of opinion on the result of the efforts of Mr. Roosevelt, he said, in telling this story, that he forgot for a moment where he was; it was an unusual thing for European papers to interview public men for expressions of opinion, this being almost distinctly an American newspaper method of treating the news of the day.

Wishing to say something complimentary to the French press and yet quite innocuous, Mr. Bartholdt replied that "The capital of the world had for that day at least been transferred from Paris to Washington." This was a reference to Paris pleasing to the newspaper men but the fact that the London papers might not agree with the implied compliment did not lessen their gratefulness to Mr. Bartholdt in receiving them and giving an "expression of his opinion." Mr. Bartholdt stated that he was amazed next day in Paris to find that the Paris press had so far patterned after American dailies as to run his very short interview in big type across the top of the front page.

An incident occurred in the senate recently that illustrated the characteristics of Senator La Follette of Wisconsin, the man whom the republicans have unsuccessfully tried to haze because of his refusal to be amenable to party discipline. During the morning hour when miscellaneous business was under consideration, a certain senator, who is known to be very close to one of the large railroad interests of the country, moved over to the desk next to that of Mr. La Follette, and engaging him in conversation, remarked that if he (La Follette) pushed his bill limiting the hours of labor of railroad employees to the detriment of some of the measures in which the speaker was interested, no opportunity would be neglected to pursue the senator from Wisconsin so long as he remained in the senate.

Turning to this senator, whose name would be recognized all over the country if it were printed, and talking in the same low conversational tone, Mr. La Follette used a number of words that would not look well in print, declaring that for sixteen years he had grown fat on that kind of talk and the threats of the men who were the personal property of railroad corporations. If there was any pursuing to be done Senator La Follette said he would do a little of it himself and intimated that when the opportunity arose he would expose the senator in debate. Subsequently this senator found it convenient to explain what he meant and to apologize, but Mr. La Follette declared he cared nothing for the apology and the explanation did not explain.

For weeks Mr. La Follette had been after Chairman Elkins of the Interstate Commerce committee to call a meeting to consider his bill relative to the fixing of railway values in connection with the enforcement of the rate law. Mr. Elkins succeeded in avoiding Mr. La Follette, but the Wisconsin senator finally cornered the chairman in one of the corridors and exacted a promise that a meeting should be called. Mr. Elkins protesting that it was too late in the session to do anything. Accompanying that chairman to the committee room Mr. La Follette saw the notices to members of the committee were written, and then set about notifying democratic members and a crowd of friendly republicans of the importance of being present. The result was that a favorable report was ordered on the bill, but one of the republican members changed his vote and then moved a reconsideration. The bill will come up at a regular meeting this week and will be favorably reported. Mr. La Follette says there are enough votes in the senate to pass it.

The press dispatches announce that the first trolley sleeper ever run in the United States has been put on a line between Decatur, Ill., and East St. Louis, by way of Springfield, the capital of Illinois. The man who is responsible for this innovation in electric railway travel, is Congressman William B. McKinley, of the Champaign, Illinois, district. Mr. McKinley is a man of great wealth and has made it largely through his genius in building electric lines and power plants and consolidating them into a system that has gradually extended in a network of tracks over all of central and southern Illinois. Mr. Mc-

Kinley is one of the most unassuming men in congress, as well as one of the most popular. He is a warm personal friend of Speaker Cannon, whose district adjoins his own. When the congressional campaign committee was re-organized last year Mr. McKinley was elected treasurer and it was through his wide acquaintance with men of affairs throughout the country that the sinews of war were obtained with which to conduct the campaign for the sixtieth congress.

Discussing the feasibility of making trolley sleepers pay, Mr. McKinley one day said he would take a try at it just for the sake of the experiment. Orders were issued for the construction of two cars. They immediately became popular and the entire urban system of Central Illinois is now to be equipped with these new adjuncts to electric railway transportation.

Home Insurance the Best

WE CANNOT refrain from again saying something about Home Insurance. Every time that the proposition presents itself of the tremendous amount of money that is being sent out of New Mexico and Arizona for life insurance to eastern cities, the conviction comes home with increased force that a home company ought to be patronized and the money remain in the West.

The revelations of the past year of the way the enormous surplus of the big Eastern companies has been handled and speculated with ought to emphasize the fact that the people of the West should stop pouring their money into Eastern channels when it can be placed in home insurance, and every dollar of it kept and invested at home.

It is gratifying to note that home insurance is year by year receiving more and more its just deserts. Statistics show that during the past year home companies far exceeded foreign companies in the amount of business written. Why cannot this same record be made here? It can if every individual who takes out a policy the coming year will carefully weigh the proposition of the value it is to keep his insurance at home before he puts his name to the application of any insurance company.

The Occidental Life Insurance Company of New Mexico and Arizona is owned and controlled by the leading business men of the two territories, and offers exceptional opportunities to ambitious and capable men and women to sell its policies.
