MAKING FORTUNES

In his testimony before the interstate commerce commission, E. H. Harriman was forced to disclose the story of the juggling of the stock of the Chicago & Alton Railroad company. When the Alton road was bought the first step was to transfer the property from "The Alton Railroad company" to "The Alton Railway company." As soon as the stock was transferred to the treasury of the new corporation the modern Monte Carlo began his operations. Four of them—Harriman, Schiff, Gould, Stillman—were in the game.

They first put a mortgage on the road of $40,000,000, which was what they paid for it. The next step in high finance was to issue bonds. First they issued $32,000,000 to themselves at sixty-five cents on the dollar. Seven days afterward they sold these bonds at ninety-six cents, putting the profits into their inside pockets. Then these four declared a dividend on the stock of 30 per cent and put that into their pockets. When they got through with the bond inflation they had outstanding over $68,000,000 of bonds ahead of the stock. When they bought the road it had only $9,000,000 outstanding in bonds. Then came the climax. After all the deals in bonds and consolidations, after paying each of the four 30 per cent dividend, after selling the securities from left hand to right and the reaping of untold profits, they began to unload the watered stock. In watering this stock they had capitalized $12,000,000 of losses made by the old directors board. They then piped a part of this water into one of the big New York life insurance companies and part into the Union Pacific treasury. Harriman, as president of the latter company, fixed the price for selling the stock, no doubt to the satisfaction of the four.

This is how "swollen fortunes" are made while you wait, and here is the people's side of this hold-up: The people who patronize the Alton railroad are required to pay interest on the bonds and watered stock of the road—inflated to three times what the property cost. They must pay a return not only upon the millions of inflated securities, but upon the millions in the pockets of Harriman, Gould & Co., because it is the rule that the rates of a railway company must be so adjusted as to pay fixed charges and a reasonable return upon the investment. The courts will uphold this rule. So, then, when it is proposed to reduce the freight or passenger rates on the Alton road, Mr. Harriman's managers point to the road's revenues and make good the claim that it is "barely earning a low rate of interest on the investment."

It is this manipulation of values, this coloring of "made dollars," as Tom Lawson calls them, that has done much to provoke the popular anger. Talk about government ownership! Already—in all equity—the people own the railroads in this country. They have paid for them over and over again—the original cost and big interest. It is slight wonder the people have some notion of supervising and regulating those national highways, that have cost them so much. What ever may be the outcome of the popular agitation, if the country is to stop short of government ownership, one thing the government must do: The government must hereafter be in position to strictly regulate the issuance of all stocks of all railroads.

SOAP AND LOVE MAKING

Douglas Fairbanks, of New York city, makes soap during the day and at night makes love on the stage. And thereby hangs the tale:

Fairbanks has a leading part in "The Man of the Hour" at the Savoy theater. Years ago he was the playmate, in Denver, of Miss Beth Sully. When these two met again in New York they fell violently in love with each other, but there was the stern father. Stern fathers who are millionaires do not as a rule look with much favor on actor sons-in-law. Nevertheless, Fairbanks made his avowal to Sully and asked to marry Beth.

The millionaire rather liked the young man's way. He listened and thought. Among his other property was a big soap factory that needed attention. He thought to try the mettle of this matinee idol and so he offered Fairbanks a chance to learn the soap business. If he should make good at the business, he would be general manager of the property and get the girl to boot. This young American with red blood in his veins jumped at the offer. He went to the theater manager, who had him bound in a contract for five years, and told his story. The manager agreed to release him at the end of this year's season. So Fairbanks now gets up early in the morning, dons his overalls and tends to the tubs at the soap factory. He is learning the business from the ground up. After supper he assumes evening dress and becomes the stage lover. The wedding will take place in June.

The story is a typical one, such a one as no European could understand. In Europe men follow the business of their fathers generation after generation. They cannot adapt themselves to new pursuits. In America every young man is an opportunist and turns his hand to whatever offers. If one can succeed in acting, why not in soap boiling? The reasoning may not be pat, but the thing works—in America.

A LITTLE MATTER

"A little matter of $2,000,000," said E. H. Harriman, the other day, "doesn't amount to much one way or the other." Harriman was in the witness chair. He sat there five hours while the government's cleverest lawyers tried to entrap him into compromising admissions in connection with his railroad wizardry of the past ten years. In the questions and replies references to millions of dollars were bandied back and forth as if such sums were insignificant. It is true that the railroad juggler finally found a City of Refuge in practically the same reply as that made by H. H. Rogers a year ago, saying, "I refuse to answer," but this was not until he had made the statement that stands out so vividly from the mass of testimony.

"A little matter of $2,000,000 doesn't amount to much one way or the other." It doesn't? How many safety devices would it have installed on those railroads? How many wideawake employees would it have paid to take the places of the tired men chained to throttle and switchboards? How many lives would it have saved? How many tired working girls would it have refreshed and helped, bringing strength to their tired bodies and happiness to their wearied hearts? How many children would it have placed in school, and helped to mold into good and honest and able citizens?

If $2,000,000 is a sum of such inconsequence, why not admit that you were sadly thoughtless in the past, and use it now to make this world we live in better and healthier and happier? Because he did not mean it when he said it. It was only a pose. The words rang as insincerely as some of the methods by which that fortune was amassed. One good thing Harriman did say: "I am going to retire at 60," he nodded. "One year more and I'll be out of it all."

The Evening Citizen is accused by its morning contemporary of attempting to run a newspaper without having any newspaper men about the place. Faith, and w'd ye listen to that, now! From Danny Macpherson! Ye gods and little fishes!

The Morning Journal approves Councilman Duncan's revenue bill—provided it is "changed around" so as to entirely alter the meaning.

The Journal complains that The Citizen is giving it too much attention these days. Being forced into retractions and having to crawlfish every morning over last week's misstatements has evidently seriously upset somebody.

HOW THE CLIMATE OF KANSAS HAS MATERIALLY CHANGED

The United States weather bureau maintains stoutly that the climate of Kansas has not changed. Marsh Murdock, the editor of the Wichita Eagle, who was in this state making observations upon the weather and other things long before the weather bureau had any concern as to what was happening in Kansas files a dissenting opinion. In the Eagle he says:

There have been decided changes in the climatic conditions of Kansas, and numerous ones, and these changes are to be more marked in the future. While there has been no perceptible increase in the annual precipitation, the rainfalls differ greatly from what they were, even twenty-five years ago. The seasons have changed, the summers and winters, the falls and springs. There is a greater humidity. We have dews and fogs regularly now, and in an increasing degree, where twenty-five or forty years ago these were exceptional, and in occurrence retarded very much as the time between the drinks of the two Carolina governors.

Single downpours, and formerly of from four to eight inches, at long intervals, have been succeeded by gentle and frequent rains by frequent drizzle-drizzles, of a fraction of an inch, succeeded by equitable, general, widespread rains of not more than one to two inches. Winter blizzards are less frequent, and the summer "hot-wind" is becoming a mere memory. These are a few of the changes referred to, and perceptible within a dozen years last past. These, and other facts touching changes in the climatic conditions of Kansas, observed of every old settler, render the prophecies and warnings of the chief of the weather bureau, touching the present and future of western Kansas, untimely if not silly. If anyone has the temerity to doubt the foregoing assertions, he is respectfully referred to the crop statistics of Kansas for the past ten years.

As to the principal, if not the single factor to which the climatic changes of Kansas are attributable, it is hardly necessary to name it. Everybody knows what it is. The plow. The plow that has broken up the thousands of square miles of hard and dry glebe of the buffalo ranges; the plow and its results and accessories in the way of unending hedges and innumerable groves, orchards and a million fields whose loosened soil now drinks up every drop of rainfall, giving it up again through evaporation and green growing crops for the greater humidization of the atmosphere; the plow in that heretofore great Oklahoma area of grass lands to the south of Kansas; the plow which is converting the plains of No Man's Land and the Texas Panhandle into cultivated fields; all these, together with the equalizing electrical agencies from the steel rails with which the state is gridironed, the electric wires, the ever-increasing volume of smoke of the locomotive, the factory and the home chimney, and the home itself, are all accessories to and agencies in the changing climate of Sunflowerdom.—Leavenworth Times.

SOME FACTS CONCERNING SUGAR PRODUCTION AND USE

From a statement recently made by the bureau of statistics it appears that the people of the United States consumed about 6,425,000,000 pounds of sugar last year. The cost to the consumers was somewhat more than $300,000,000. In the matter of quantity this is an increase of 50 per cent within ten years. There is not only an increase in the quantity consumed but as well an increase in per capita consumption. During the '70s we used from 40 to 50 pounds per capita; during the '80s, from 50 to 60 pounds; during the '90s, from 60 to 70, and we are now using between 70 and 80 pounds.

An interesting feature of our sugar business appears in the item of domestic supply. In 1896 that source, including Hawaii, gave us 24 per cent of the total. In 1904, including Hawaii and Porto Rico, it gave us 33 per cent. Last year our home cane fields and beet fields and our insular possessions gave us 40 per cent of the total. For many years we have taken practically the whole of Cuba's output, and have made up the deficiency in our total requirement by purchases of European beet sugar and the cane product of other lands, notably Java. Cuba supplied us last year with 42 per cent of our consumption. Only 18 per cent came from other countries, as compared with 30 per cent only two years ago.

The domestic beet supply is now an appreciable quantity. The 80,000 ton output of 1900 was increased to 200,000 tons last year, or a little more than 10 per cent of the total supply. For the first time in its history the domestic beet output exceeded the output of domestic cane. Out beets and our cane gave us 20 per cent of our total, and our insular possessions gave us another 20 per cent.

Including Cuba, whose interest is vital, four different groups are concerned by the American sugar situation. These are (1) the American government, which receives a little more than $50,000,000 a year in revenue from the tariff on sugar; (2) our domestic and our insular producers, to whom that tariff is a direct benefit to the extent of about $50,000,000 a year; (3) the consumer, who is interested in lower prices, and (4) the Cubans, who are so largely dependent upon the American market for their livelihood. In an article in the Inter-Nation for January Mr. Edwin F. Atkins, of Boston, the owner of a large plantation in Cuba, works out this problem along an interesting and probably correct line.

With a general assumption of the continuance of present political and fiscal conditions, Mr. Atkins says:

"To all appearances our importations of foreign sugar, other than Cuban, will soon end, and from that time, if domestic and Cuban production keeps pace with increased consumption, as is anticipated, a differential to Cuba would protect her against other countries and reduce cost to consumers in the United States." He holds that "the protection of even the Cuban rate (about 1.35 cents a pound) now gives the domestic sugar producers so large a margin of profit that they can well afford to drop prices below Cuba's cost in order to market their goods." He claims that in the almost certain event of the reduction of competition to our domestic product and the Cuban product a very material reduction could be made in the present Dingley rate.

Should that be done two results should follow: There should be reduction in selling prices and important increase in consumption. The initial loss of revenue to the government would soon be offset by increase in imports from Cuba. Increased demand should stimulate domestic production. The Dingley rate, practically a maximum rate, would keep out the sugar of other countries if Cuba were given a differential, or what might be regarded as a minimum, rate. This differential would virtually assure to Cuba a market for her product, and so divide the market between her output and our domestic supply.

The argument is certainly worth a careful consideration by the authorities.—New York Sun.

MRS. M. MEDLER RE-ELECTED PRESIDENT

Albuquerque Women's Club
Begins Fifth Year in New Club House.

The Women's club of Albuquerque held its fourth annual business meeting in its handsome new club house on West Gold avenue, Friday afternoon. It is with a feeling of much pride that the women have so handsomely a home of their own in which to begin their fifth year's work.

At the meeting yesterday the annual election of officers was held and resulted as follows:
President—Mrs. Margaret Medler.
First Vice President—Mrs. Byron Ives.
Second Vice President—Mrs. H. B. Ray.
Recording Secretary—Mrs. Daly.
Corresponding Secretary—Mrs. Schaffer.
Treasurer—Mrs. D. A. Bittner.
Auditor—Miss Jessie Bridg.

Custodian—Miss Lou Lee.
Historian—Mrs. John Cannon.
Press Reporter—Mrs. G. E. Wilson.
Critic—Mrs. A. M. Whitcomb.

The election of Mrs. Medler to the office of president was the fourth time this honor has been bestowed upon her, and this time the members of the club show their appreciation for the untiring efforts on the part of so progressive a president.

There is not another woman's club in the southwest with as handsome a home as this one. Its outward appearance is such as to attract attention, and the interior is no less attractive. The rooms are so arranged that the entire building may be thrown into one spacious auditorium, thus making the building especially well adapted for the use of a hall or ball room. It is the only building in the city with a ball room on the first floor.

The finishings of the interior are very pretty. The woodwork is of a light color, giving an air of freshness to the rooms, and the walls and furnishings are in keeping with the same.

Perhaps the most elaborate piece in the entire building is the large mantle and grate in the main auditorium. This is constructed from pieces of lava brought from the lava beds west of the city. From appearance of the huge grate one might think that it alone was sufficient to give warmth to the entire building, but a furnace has been installed in the basement to aid in this.

Aside from the main auditorium and the smaller room adjoining on the east, there is a kitchen and pantry, complete with gas stove, shelving and plumbing. In fact, the whole building is modern in every particular, and the lighting, which is furnished by electricity, is exceptionally good. The main room has two handsome chandeliers, as beautiful in design as one is apt to find anywhere.

The rooms are to be decorated with Indian curios and rare pieces of art. Already there are a number of handsome pictures on the walls, and others have been donated, but not as yet placed. One picture which will attract more than ordinary attention because of its being the work of a local artist, is that donated by Mr. and Mrs. Ira D. Cassidy, and which is the handiwork of that gentleman. The picture is one of a woman's head, and is artistically done in water colors.

The women will be glad to receive any contribution that citizens may care to make in any way to decorate the building. They now have a good start toward a library, any books of reference, fiction or art will also be received with thanks.

STOCKMEN TO MEET AT MAGDALENA MARCH 27

PUBLIC DOMAIN WILL BE DISCUSSED—IMPORTANCE OF RANGE CANNOT BE UNDERESTIMATED.

Special Correspondence.
Magdalena, N. M., Feb. 28.—The Cattle and Horse Protective Association of Central New Mexico will hold its sixth annual meeting at Magdalena, N. M., on Wednesday, March 27, 1907.

The aims and purposes for which this society of stockmen was organized are too well known to require comment. The work of the association during the past six years has been of material and far-reaching benefit to the stock interests of central New Mexico. Stockmen and all others interested, including cattle and horse buyers, commission men, merchants and broadly speaking, everyone having at heart the best interests and progress of our territory, are cordially invited to be present.

The importance of government supervision of the public range cannot be overestimated, and now is the time to carefully consider the effect which it is likely to have on the stock industry, and it will be one of the most important questions before you to take such action as may favorably influence legislation in our favor.

The forest service which now administers so much range in New Mexico within forest reserves will be represented for the direct interchange of ideas with stockmen.

Cattle buyers are invited to be present from outside points. There will be morning, afternoon and evening sessions.

W. H. MATSON IS CALLED TO THE WEST

Passed Away at Noon Today—
Many Friends Mourn
His Demise.

After months of suffering from ailments attendant upon old age, Wilford H. Matson, one of the most highly respected citizens of Albuquerque, died at his home, 824 South Edith street, at 1:30 this afternoon.

Mr. Matson's death, while not wholly unexpected, comes as a severe blow to his immediate family and as a shock to friends throughout the city. Deceased had been in ill health for several years, and while those outside the family circle did not fully realize the end was so near, the relatives at his bedside this morning knew he could not survive the day.

Deceased was born at Casanova, N. Y., in 1833. On May 18, 1859, he married Miss Mary F. Hosford, and they came to New Mexico in 1895, settling in Albuquerque, which place has since been their home. Five children were born to them. One son and one daughter have proceeded their father in death, and three sons, with their mother, survive. The surviving children are as follows:

W. H. Matson, Jr., of San Francisco; J. E. Matson, of Troy, N. Y.; and O. A. Matson, of this city. The latter, engaged with his father in business in this city.

The life of Wilford H. Matson was one that affords consolation for his loved ones to look back upon. Ever since attaining his manhood he had stood for what was right and just in mankind, and when the call came made for young men to go to the front in the Civil war, he answered the call and served his country with credit through that memorable conflict, being honorably discharged at its close. Mr. Matson was a member of Company E, 28th Connecticut Infantry.

Because of his continued illness, which might be said to have dated back to a time before he came to this city, the deceased was unable to follow his characteristics as he might have done otherwise. He did, however, form a wide circle of true friends, in both business and social circles, and those men who knew him most intimately can best tell of his admirable traits.

The two sons who are absent have been telegraphed for, as have also other near relatives, and the funeral arrangements will not be completed until after their arrival. It is thought, however, that the funeral services will be held Tuesday morning.

TRINIDAD RAISES $3,000 FOR BASEBALL THIS YEAR

Billy Paget Tells Cavanaugh to Get in Line—Make Boosters Out of the Browns.

"Candy" Jones brought Manager Cavanaugh of the McIntosh Browns, word this morning from Billy Paget, manager of the Columbia hotel at Trinidad, and also manager of the new baseball club of that place. Billy Paget would be there with a cracker-jack team the coming season and that he wanted Albuquerque to do the same. The merchants and sports of Trinidad have come through with a subscription of $3,000 for the season, which will guarantee the support of a good team. They intend to make a "boost" club out of it, to boost Trinidad and it and at the same time have a five dollar team with some good players. Billy Paget says that it is very essential that Albuquerque as well as Las Vegas get in line with these places in a way to make good sport and make base ball pay, to a certain extent, too.

Cavanaugh was asked if the Browns would boost the McIntosh Browns to Santa Fe to get the style bill passed. His answer was: "Well, they went up last summer and got the money, and they can do it again, any time." The base ball spirit is stirring the country over now and it is time Albuquerque was doing something along that line, too.

The Morley Solitaires meeting, held last night, was so poorly attended that the committee for the meeting postponed action until some future date.

SPANISH BULLION COMPANY BEING PROBED

POSTOFFICE DEPARTMENT MAKING INVESTIGATION—OFFICER UNDER ARREST.

Special to The Evening Citizen.
Silver City, N. M., Mar. 2.—During the last few days a postoffice inspector visited Silver City and looked into claims made by the Lost Spanish bullion mining company, that they had discovered an old Spanish mine with many miles of workings on Bear mountain, just north of this city.

The Security Investment and Mines company of Denver has been selling big blocks of stock in this mine all over the United States, reports say $60,000 worth.

The principal officers of this company were arrested in Denver by the postal authorities for alleged fraudulent use of the mails and placed under $5,000 bond.

The mine claimed to be an old Spanish mine, known to have existed for many years, is thought by people here to be just a natural cave several miles in extent.

This company has for several months sent glowing prospectuses over the country claiming to have opened up hidden treasure vaults of the ancient Spaniards.

UNCONSCIOUS FOR FEELING LIVES

Curtis McCullum May Recover—Nature of Injury Yet a Mystery.

A week ago tonight Curtis McCullum, of Las Vegas, was carried to St. Joseph's sanitarium in an unconscious condition. He was picked up near the Santa Fe tracks at Sunnyside, and brought to Albuquerque on train No. 7. Reports from the hospital this morning indicate that the man is in practically the same condition that he was when found. He has never regained consciousness for a moment since the mysterious occurrence which caused his injury, yet he lives.

Physicians are of the opinion that something is pressing upon the left side of McCullum's brain which is evidenced by his unconsciousness and the manifested tendency to jerk his head always in the same direction in his occasional spells of delirium. What it is or where it lies though is a problem they have so far been unable to solve. There is practically no exterior evidence of its location.

McCullum, who came here from Las Vegas, has been keeping constant vigil at the bedside of his husband, anxiously awaiting a change for the better.

The physicians are now of the opinion that McCullum has some chance to recover. His long period of unconsciousness and the fact that the injured spot cannot be located, however, is regarded as little less than remarkable.

"SPOT" BROWN SUSPECTED OF ROBBERY BOX CARS

"Spot" Brown, bartender at the Red Light saloon, was arrested by Santa Fe deputies, while staying lodged in the Bernalillo county jail in default of $250 bail. Brown and Charles Bryant are suspected of complicity in the looting of Santa Fe freight cars at Riberia, thirty miles south of Las Vegas. Bryant is held at the city jail pending investigation. A large part of the swag taken from the cars was concealed in the rear of the saloon where Brown tends bar.

HARRY WOODS MAY SURVIVE HIS WOUND

Lopez Is Still at Large—Would be Murderer Is Stepson of Jose Padilla.

Mrs. H. A. Mitchell, of 519 West Marquette avenue, is in receipt of a letter from her mother, Mrs. J. H. Woods, of Ketchikan, who says that Harry Woods, the young man shot at Ketchikan the latter part of last week, will likely recover. Though seriously wounded, Dr. C. J. Caffin, the attending physician, says that Woods' chances are favorable.

Julian Lopez, who did the shooting in the case of Jose Padilla, the Ketchikan saloon keeper, who was shot from ambush near Ketchikan last summer and is still at a local hospital recovering from his wound. Lopez fled to the forest after the shooting of Woods, and is still at liberty, though the people of Ketchikan have offered a reward of $200 for his arrest.

Harry Woods is 19 years of age, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Woods, who have lived in the Zuni mountains for the past seven years. Previous to going to Ketchikan, the Woods lived at Gallup. The unfortunate young man is well and favorably known throughout McKinley county and his friends are thoroughly aroused over his unprovoked shooting by Lopez. Woods had gone to a box supper at Ketchikan with his sister, and had had no difficulty with Lopez at his standing in the street. The shooting of other people watching a fight that was taking place between two lumberjacks, when Lopez, who was also among the onlookers, shot him through the chest, the bullet perforating the left lung and passing entirely through his body. The body will probably be shipped home for burial.

U. N. M. DRAMATIC CLUB DELIVERS THE GOODS

"Out West" by the University of New Mexico dramatic club, drew a large crowd to the Casino last night, and with the performance was a great success. The characters most in evidence were Judge O'Gooligan by Elwood Albright, and One Lung Chinaman, by Ralph Tascher.

These two were especially good, each acting his part with the deliberation of a veteran. Miss Doris Hunting made a pretty "Jess" and Miss Jessie Mordy appeared to a good advantage as a wife of a good looking, handsome, while Miss Belle Franklin made a "Matilda," of whom Hugh Bryan, as the duke with "dough," had ample reason to be afraid.

TUCSON HAS NEW CLAIM AGAINST ST. AUGUSTINE

(By C. H. TAYLOR.)

Tucson, Ariz., Mar. 2.—Besides being first in adobe and first in population among Arizona cities, Tucson is now claiming to be the oldest European settlement in North America.

Whether or not this claim is well founded, it is evident that Tucson, with its narrow, crooked, dusty business streets and one-story mud shops has been neglected in history.

"Treasure Land," a valuable volume on Arizona, maintains that this city, still rich in ancient picturesque ruins, is older than either of the two contestants for first honors—Santa Fe and St. Augustine. The author's statement in this connection is interesting. He says:

"Conceding Santa Fe's claim of 1605, and also paying due veneration to the antiquity of St. Augustine, we claim priority for Tucson. According to authentic records, Marcos de Niza and the negro, Estevanico, explored Arizona in 1539, passing through the Santa Cruz valley and the city settlements. He made such a wonderful report on the country, which he swore to, that the question of establishing a settlement in that section was seriously considered, and in 1552 the matter was reported favorably and the settlement ordered established.

The proof of this is said to be contained in a stained and time-worn document, written on vellum, signed by his Catholic majesty, Charles I of Spain, and V of Germany, the successor of Ferdinand and Isabella, the patrons of Columbus, and countersigned by the viceroy of Mexico.

The document, which is in the fair, round hand of Marcos de Niza, was only discovered recently among the relics of the ancient mission, San Xavier del Bac, nine miles south of here, and was forwarded to Washington, in whose custody it now is, on the date of the vellum is 1552, and allowing three years for good measure, the date of Tucson's settlement would be 1555, at which time St. Augustine was merely a strip of coast line and Santa Fe but a prairie dog village.

CAR SHORTAGE MAY COST GROWERS $1,000,000

2,000 Cars of Fine Fruit. It Is Figured Never Will Reach Market.

Riverside, Mar. 2.—One million dollars will be the cost for the fruit shippers of this vicinity if the present rate of car shortage continues throughout the remainder of the season. Orange shippers from Riverside up to Monday night were 1145 cars. On the corresponding date last year 1520 cars had been shipped. The crop this year is believed to be the largest ever awaiting harvest and shipment, and yet the car shortage is 375 cars compared with the shipments last year.

Fifteen cars, refrigerators, reached Riverside today on the Southern Pacific and Santa Fe roads. There were more than enough oranges to fill these. The car shortage for the season at Riverside alone is estimated now at 1500. It is likely to be much larger, for the railroads now frankly admit that they face a condition and not a theory. In the face of these admissions it is feared that at least 2,000 cars of the Riverside district crop will never reach its market.

At the present general rate of price of $1.10 a box, 362 boxes to the car, a shortage of 2,000 cars will mean a loss to Riverside growers of over $1,000,000, or, to be accurate, $1,012,000. The saving which will result from the new tariff between California and Denver will be more than eaten up by increased freight charges. Were it a real gain to the shippers it would be a mere speck toward offsetting the immense car shortage loss, for it is estimated that only about $90,000 would accrue to the growers under the new rates.

Following the rain of last week came warm sunny days, causing much puffing of gilt-edged fruit, which, but for the car shortage, would have been picked and in the eastern markets long ago. This morning another heavy shower fell in this section, followed immediately by clear, almost hot weather. More puffing is certain. The sizes are also out of all proportion to last year, averaging in the neighborhood of a hundred, while last year the average was about 150. Fine fruit, ready for markets, must remain on the trees and grow and wait out of the profitable stage, because the Southern Pacific and Santa Fe have betrayed the growers.

PLAN TO INCREASE FREIGHT RATES ON STEEL AND IRON.
A proposition to increase the freight revenues of the railroads centering in the Pittsburgh district $25,000,000 per annum, says a recent dispatch from that city, at the same time boosting the rates of steel and iron, is being considered by the transportation companies. Within the past forty-eight hours there has been a secret meeting of general freight agents, attended by representatives of the freight companies and of all the railroads in the iron and steel district, including the Pennsylvania company, Pittsburgh & Lake Erie, Wabash, Erie, New York Central, Baltimore & Ohio, Lake Shore and others. The reasons given by some lines for the contemplated advance is that operating expenses of the railroads have been greater. The companies granted a 10 per cent. wage increase to some of their employees last fall, and of course, this increased operating expenses, but the Pennsylvania representatives deny that the freight rates are to be boosted to make up for the wage advance. Rates on all iron and steel material will be advanced if the increase goes through. This will not be a straight 10 per cent advance, but will be a varied scale, averaging 10 per cent.

YOKUM SEES NO CAUSE FOR SUCH GENERAL ALARM.
The Frisco management on Wednesday of this week awarded a contract to the Baldwin Locomotive works for ten new passenger locomotives, and twenty-five consolidated for delivery this year. This new equipment involves an outlay of $1,000,000, but it is needed to meet the growing demands of the traffic on the system.

President Davidson was called unexpectedly to Chicago to meet Chairman Yokum, who arrived in that city from New York. Mr. Yokum does not view the railroad situation with quite so much alarm as some officials. "I do not believe the country is going to the dogs," he is quoted as saying, "nor that we are going to have a financial crisis. I do not mean by this that the railroads are not being hurt by the two-cent legislation, and by other hostile legislation. They are being injured severely and it ought to stop, but I do not believe that everything is going to the bad. The railroads are bound to spend all the money they can get in order to take care of the present phenomenal business of the country."

KANSAS WILL PAY $10,000 FOR RAILROAD EXPERT.
The senate committee on railroads of the Kansas state legislature has reported favorably a bill which provides for a railroad expert, a position which pays $10,000 a year. It is the general feeling that the board of railroad commissioners can know nothing of railroad rates and that the services of an expert is required to make the board effective. This appointment of the expert is given to the board. Railroad experts come twice as high as state officers, for that reason a salary of $10,000 a year is provided.

WORK BEGUN ON EL PASO UNION DEPOT PARK

CHARGED WITH INSULTING LONE STAR STATE'S FLAG

St. Louis Society Man, Who Is President of a Colorado Cattle Company, Accused of Rolling Cabbage on Stage of Theater.

St. Louis, Mar. 2.—An act not down on the program at the Garrick theater will have its final hearing in police court, where James H. McLean, a young society and business man, president of the Circle "M" Cattle company of Ridgway, Colo., was released on bond today to reappear March 7. Dan S. Fishell, resident manager of the Garrick, is the complaining witness.

It all happened Wednesday night, at the climax of the second act of "Sam Houston," with Clay Clement in the title role. Amid the waving of flags and the cheers of the "supers," "Sam Houston" was calling on the patriots to defend their country. The Alamo was about to fall. Suddenly a cabbage rolled upon the stage, in the view of the entire company and the thrilled audience. It might have been a lemon, from the effect it produced. The scene paused and wavered, and was lost. The audience forgot their duty as patriots and their cheers. Then, to make matters worse, came a large ball of paper pulp. It looked enough like a cabbage head to pass for one. The scene was spoiled.

James Arbuckle, president of the Latin-American club, who, with his family, occupied a box, called Manager Fishell and told him that McLean, who was sitting in another box with two companions, had rolled the cabbage and the paper ball.

Manager Fishell asked McLean to leave the theater. The two went to the box office to get McLean's money, and a fight followed. It seemed to witnesses to be general, with James Arbuckle, Fishell, George Bulcher and McLean engaged. A man whom nobody knew struck at Fishell and was knocked down by Belcher. James Arbuckle accused McLean of insulting the flag of Texas. In the mix-up McLean went down, protesting that he was innocent of being a vegetable roller. Arbuckle is said to have knocked McLean down, with the exclamation, "I'll teach you." McLean was unconscious outside of the theater for eight minutes. Then he was taken to the city dispensary, where he was treated for his face. At the police station bond was furnished for him by John P. Collins, former state senator. McLean denies that he rolled the cabbage, and says he will spend $5,000 to convict the man who hit him.

NEWS FORECAST OF THE COMING WEEK.

Washington, D. C., Mar. 2.—The fifty-third congress will expire by limitation at noon next Monday and already many of the senators and representatives are leaving for home, a number of them never to return to Washington to sit in the halls of congress.

On Monday George B. Cortelyou will be sworn in as secretary of the treasury to succeed Leslie B. Shaw, and James A. Garfield, for several years corporate secretary, will take the office to be vacated by Secretary of the Interior Hitchcock.

The trial of the Standard Oil company of Indiana, on the charge of receiving concessions on shipments of oil from Whiting, Ind., is set to begin next Monday.

The new British Columbia parliament, with a large conservative majority resulting from the recent election, will meet for its first session next Thursday. The financial differences between the federation and the province and other important matters to come up will attract considerable attention to the session.

Home Insurance the Best

WE CANNOT refrain from again saying something about Home Insurance. Every time that the proposition presents itself of the tremendous amount of money that is being sent out of New Mexico and Arizona for life insurance to eastern cities, the conviction comes home with increased force that a home company ought to be patronized and the money remain in the West.

The revelations of the past year of the way the enormous surplus of the big Eastern companies has been handled and speculated with ought to emphasize the fact that the people of the West should stop pouring their money into Eastern channels when it can be placed in home insurance, and every dollar of it kept and invested at home.

It is gratifying to note that home insurance is year by year receiving more and more its just deserts. Statistics show that during the past year home companies far exceeded foreign companies in the amount of business written. Why cannot this same record be made here? It can if every individual who takes out a policy the coming year will carefully weigh the proposition of the value it is to keep his insurance at home before he puts his name to the application of any insurance company.

The Occidental Life Insurance Company of New Mexico and Arizona is owned and controlled by the leading business men of the two territories, and offers exceptional opportunities to ambitious and capable men and women to sell its policies.
