Engineers Sail This Week to Uncover Region of Fabulous Wealth in Congo Free State Under Concession From King Leopold.

New York, March 5.—Backed by the limitless capital, a large party of engineers is to sail for the Congo Free State to uncover it is prophesied, a mineral region of enormous wealth. At the head of the party will be A. Chester Beatty, associate of John H. Hammond, chief engineer for the Guggenheim Exploration company, and with him will be men almost as well known. In another month another force of engineers will follow, and within the year Mr. Hammond himself will go out to take charge. Their investigations and the development of the property will be made according to the latest and most approved scientific methods, and fifteen months is expected to see the opening of prospects for only gold, copper and iron, but for bitumen, malachite, garnets, rubies and perhaps diamonds. Only the surface of the country has been scratched by prospectors so far, so it is impossible to tell the full extent of the minerals beneath its surface.

When negotiations, conducted through Thomas D. Ryan with King Leopold, of Belgium, ended last summer in large concessions to a group of Belgian-American capitalists, rubber it was thought would be the principal commodity produced by the new company. Rubber, it is known, is expected to be only a minor product if indications are worth anything. It may have been the case when the deal went through, but the mineral value of the concession was only lightly mentioned by the concessionaires and officials at the time. But since the negotiations were concluded a very little has been heard of rubber, while the minerals have been apparently the chief concern. In the company the Guggenheims have been important factors and it is their engineers that have had charge of arrangements for the present expedition.

Of course, no one has yet estimated the exact value of the concession. Its duration is sixty years and the territory includes between 8,000,000 and 9,000,000 acres. One part of it is a strip on the left bank of the Congo to the Tumbi river. In this territory the concessionaires have absolute power. They will be allowed to police the villages and settlements almost as if it were an independent state. They will be subject only to the price stipulated in the concession.

At 7:30 the house was again in session and continued to work until all the bills so far reported had been disposed of.

In addition to the tabling of house substitute for house bill No. 99, the house tabled indefinitely house bill No. 109, an act relative to fees of justices of the peace.

House bill No. 115, an act relative to embalming and transportation of bodies, was also tabled indefinitely.

House bill No. 118, an act relative to justices of the peace, was tabled indefinitely.

House bill No. 122, an act to amend section 805 of the compiled laws of 1897, relative to river commissioners, passed the house with minor amendments, the amendments consisting in adding the counties of Taos and Sierra to the list of counties affected by the bill.

House bill No. 134, an act relative to the payment of salaries of corporations, passed the house by a vote of 13 yeas to 9 nays.

Council bills Nos. 3 and 4, granting to Roosevelt and Aristed, respectively, sections of land in school districts for cemetery purposes, were passed by the house, after considerable debate. The members were anxious to know how these cities usurped the right to bury their dead on the public domain.

The bills were defended by Mr. Mullen. Both were reported favorably by the majority of the committees on territorial affairs, and unfavorably by a minority of the same committee.

Council bill No. 56, relative to the fees of sheriffs, passed the house.

Council bill No. 64, relative to the duties of traveling auditor and which provides for an examination of public and loan associations under the same conditions as banks by the traveling auditor, passed the house.

Council bill No. 65, relative to the qualification of witnesses also passed the house.

Mr. Holt, by unanimous consent, was then allowed to introduce a resolution. He introduced house resolution 10, which provides that Monday, March 11th, is the last day upon which a bill may be introduced in the house except by unanimous consent or under suspension of the rules.

The object of the resolution is to prevent the introduction of bills in the last week of the session. The house then adjourned until Tuesday, at 12 o'clock.

QUAY COUNTY LINES ARE CHANGED LARGELY.

SANTA FE NEWSPAPER MAN LOSES WIFE

Mrs. Grace Lillian Coard, wife of Edwin F. Coard, a member of the staff of the New Mexican at Santa Fe, died suddenly yesterday morning. Mrs. Coard was but 27 years of age and came to New Mexico from Quincy, Ill., in 1904. She was at that time in search of health, for which purpose she preceded her husband, taking up her residence at Las Vegas. Two months afterward she was joined by Mr. Coard, who secured a position with the Las Vegas Optic. Six months ago, owing to his acceptance of a position with the New Mexican, the family moved to Santa Fe, where Mrs. Coard's death took place. Deceased was a devoted Catholic, to which fact is attributed the remarkable composure with which she bore her prolonged illness and with which she met her inevitable end. Mr. Coard left Santa Fe this morning with the remains which will be interred at Quincy. He carries with him the sympathy of a large circle of friends, not only in Santa Fe, but throughout the portions of the territory in which, through his newspaper work, he has made himself favorably known.

Jerome's Loss

Antagonistic to the Presiding Judge Who Denies Jerome's Claim.

PROSECUTION CLAIMED A POINT OF LAW TO BE SO

Clear No Authorities Needed. Judge Said Not Producing Showed Want.

New York March 5.—What promised to be a very dull session of the Thaw trial today was made notable in the court annals of New York by District Attorney Jerome's placing himself in the position of openly defying the presiding judge. Jerome declined point blank to submit certain authorities to Justice Fitzgerald, upon the ground that the question of law involved was so elemental and the authorities so elementary and the authorities so elementary that he must assume the duty to have knowledge of them. "I have too much respect for courts of law," declared Jerome, "to submit authorities on a proposition so elemental."

Fitzgerald admonished the district attorney that it was his duty to submit the authorities called for, and said he would assume that since Jerome declined to do so, he did not know of the existence of any such authorities.

The spectators were thrilled to absolute silence during this extraordinary debate.

Jerome's manner of addressing the court was as defiant as were his words. He seemed thoroughly aroused, and Fitzgerald seemed to retain his judicial calm only with great effort.

The point under discussion was as to whether or not a cross-examination could take a wider scope than was permitted under direct examination. At this point Fitzgerald sustained the position taken by the defense. During the cross-examination declared that the legal assumption before the court is that Thaw is now insane. He said the defendant is to be presumed sane until proven otherwise, and it is the assumption of the law that he continues in that condition until he is shown to be otherwise.

Dr. Wagoner was on the stand during the entire morning's session.

ESCAPED PRISONERS CITY DITCH OWNERS ELUDE THE POSSEE IN PURSUIT*MEN WHO BROKE JAIL AT LAS ANIMAS HEADED FOR NEW MEXICO.

After searching all night, the posse in pursuit of the four men who Saturday night broke out of the county jail here, returned to Las Animas this afternoon without the fugitives, says a dispatch dated at Las Animas. Another effort will be made tomorrow morning by Sheriff Gruber with ten picked men to locate them.

Four men came from the creek, about twelve miles southeast of Las Animas, reported to the posse that they had seen two men corresponding to the description of the two who broke out of the jail about 12:30 o'clock a. m. The campers did not know of the fact of the jail break at the time the men passed them.

It is clear to the sheriff and his men that the four who broke out of the jail have divided into at least two pairs, and the theory of this posse officer is that the men are headed for New Mexico. The posse was greatly handicapped last night, as the moon did not rise until late and the fugitives were given a long start.

TRAFFIC OF WORN-OUT HOISES TO BE STOPPED.

Albany, N. Y., Mar. 5.—The Belgium minister of agriculture has addressed a communication to the municipality of this city requesting them to take measures to put a stop to the sale of worn-out automobiles, which are being sold in the city.

The growth of Raton today is the greatest in its history, on every hand new business houses and residences are being erected and the surveyors are working over time to square up the work for the contractors. Interviews with the leading business men, who have a right to an opinion on the subject, state that without doubt this year will be the most progressive in the city's history and that a year from now Raton will exceed a population of 12,000.

The Seaboard hotel, which is now in course of construction, is nearly completed and will cost in the neighborhood of $40,000. It will be the most imposing and beautiful hotel in northern New Mexico. The building of this hotel will be the means of bringing many people to Raton who are anxious to see northern New Mexico and will not lack in any manner for accommodations.

The Love building, which is just being completed at a cost of several hundred dollars, is one of the great business blocks in Raton, and will soon be occupied by business firms.

The beautiful Raton building, which was completed a few weeks ago, is without doubt one of the finest buildings in this city, and was erected at a cost of a good many thousand dollars and is up to date in every respect and is an ornament to the city. But aside from these buildings, which are well known to all who have watched the progress of this city, many new buildings are in course of construction or are being arranged for.

Mr. White is now erecting a fine new business building, which will be one of the substantial business buildings on Cook avenue.

The new Johnson building, which is now being completed, at the corner of Second and Cook avenue, is also one of the fine buildings now being constructed and will be used as a business block.

Among some of the fine buildings erected lately is the F. Bruggemann building. The new Colorado telephone building, the Raton building, and the Loan block, and Coor's two new buildings, also the Odd Fellows' block, which shows that fine, new, modern and up to date buildings are supplanting frame buildings on every corner in the city. The people have confidence in Raton's future, and with the improvements in the railroad business and the new lines now being built into this city Raton is sure to become a railroad center.—Raton Reporter.

GOOD EVIDENCE OF
RIGHT PUBLIC SPIRIT

We are in E. H. Harriman, president of the First National bank of this city, has offered those who will plant broom corn, a good reward. For every acre when cultivation is finished, $2.50 an acre when ready to harvest, Mr. Fullwood has 1,000 acres pledged, so if all these people want to borrow money as suggested by our banker, he will have to set aside $7,500,000. This is a spirit, however, that the farmers should appreciate. The fact of Mr. Harriman, who so liberally offers to help them encourage the broom industry. We are further informed that a market is being made for the brooms that Quay county can produce right here in Tucumcari.—Tucumcari News.

MORE WATER IS BEING CONSTANTLY DEVELOPED

A fine flow of good water was recently struck in one of the mines at Orogrande, and it is said there is no longer any question as to the abundant supply of water at that place. So it is throughout the entire state. Within the memory of living people the children in New England used to read in their school geography, "The land for a few miles west of the Mississippi river is fertile and productive."

beyond that are high barren water deserts of trees or other vegetation." Since that time civilization has covered the entire country mentioned and the desert has yielded to the growth of crops and cities in a few places, and it is practically certain that water can be found anywhere in the southwest.—Carroll Outlook.

DAMAGED BY FAKE
MINING SCHEMES

The Enterprise will have no quarrel with its "esteemed contemporary" over the recommendation for legislation to prevent the flooding of fake mining schemes in New Mexico. This paper has been urging in previous issues, the necessity for such legislation simply as a matter of protection if nothing else, to the "good name and fair fame" (as Colonel Frost put it) of New Mexico. Every fake mining scheme promoted in New Mexico makes it harder for legitimate promoters to raise money in the east on propositions of merit and were it not for the "black eye" that New Mexico has received in the past by reason of these fraudulent schemes the mining industry of this territory would be much further advanced today than it is.—Silver City Enterprise.

SOME THINGS TOWN OF
ALBUQUERQUE REQUESTS

A petition is being circulated about town among the citizens and it is to be sent to S. Aldrich, the representative of this district in the lower house. The petition has as its purpose the legalizing of the present board. It is also reported that another petition has been in being circulated which has as its purpose the creating of a law which will call for an election of city officers each year. The first mentioned petition is being liberally signed by members of all political faiths, as it is believed that any action taken by the legislature on our town situation will tend to hurry the matter along and a final settlement of some kind can be made which will end the uncertainty of the present situation.

MOST ANYTHING

"It's easy to get $1,000,000," says John W. Gates. Yes, but not to get it from you, John.

"Independence or death!" shouts General Lanyon del Castillo, of Havana. Strange that he makes no mention of a high-salaried job.

It should be understood that when Carlos, the Cuban, demands $2,000 for each appearance he referred to opera, not to police court.

E. H. Harriman says he is more competent than the government to run the railroads. And he's proving it by doing it.

Emperor William wore a war helmet in opening the reichstag. If Bill would attract more than ordinary attention he should have worn a mask and chest protector.

An Omaha gentleman wishes to sign a contract with a religious organization to convert the world. Why not test him by letting him try to convert Omaha. If he succeeds he ought to be given the contract.

Probable Cause. "What was the cause of the feud between Rankins and Spiter?"

"Wal, Rankins sed it war caused by Anna Moody; but I low I've lived hear fer high on t' forty y'ars an never even hear-d tell on her afore."

Just the Other Way. "Willie—I see your father got elected mayor yesterday. It must have cost him a lot of money!"

Clarence—"Well, it didn't. I heard him tell mamma that if he was elected the city would pay dear for his election."

Appreciation. "What did you think of the speaker last night?"

"O, his speech was simply magnificent! It was so exhaustive!"

"Twas, eh?"

"Yes, he exhausted everybody in his audience."

Her Own Name. "Ma," said the inquisitive son, "when you got married did you change your name?"

"Why, of course," the mother replied. "My maiden name was Johnson."

"Then Mr. Smith, across the street, was right about your havin' another name once, only he didn't say it was Johnson?"

"What did he say it was?" asked the mother, smiling.

"I heard him tell Mr. Curtis, next door, he's known you since you was born, and that when pa married you he married a Tartar!"

WEST VIRGINIA MINERS HELD IN BONDAGE BY SYSTEM OF MONEY HEARTLESSNESS

CONSTANTLY IN DEBT TO THE COAL CORPORATION, THE MINER SUBMITS TO CONDITIONS THAT IMPERIL HIS LIFE WHEN HE DIES THE WIDOW AND ORPHANS ARE SHIPPED AWAY.

Copyright, 1907, by the Newspaper Enterprise Association.
(By H. G. Salsinger.)

Special Correspondence.
Charleston, W. Va., Mar. 5.—A story will be told at the legislative inquiry into the frightful coal mining disasters in this state which will astound.

It will be shown that a condition of bondage exists in the mining region—a bondage that accounts for the silent tongues and the dogged submission to conditions of peril in not enforced; that safety devices, costing money, are not installed?

Who is there to complain?

Here are the conditions I find in the coal mine regions of West Virginia, where life is as cheap as dirt: The operator owns the lands, the railroads that lead into them, the houses in which the miners live, and he sells to the miners supplies at whatever prices he chooses. The operator charges a railroad fare of 5 cents a mile and more. His rentals are high and he ejects the tenants any time he wishes. The miners sign a lease for the furniture in their homes. They pay on an average of $15 a month for the furniture and this amount is extracted from their wages, as are the other taxes which the operator inflicts on them. Generally the men are kept so much in debt that it is impossible for them to leave the mine.

In some mines men are discharged

DAILY MARCH OF THE BOY SLAVES.

About the time night gives way to morning you can see the boy miners coming over the hills that surround the mine. At first they are but so many dots against the hillside. Then they grow larger and presently a faint flicker is seen at the head of each. They seem like so many moving toy soldiers. They are stooped, little figures, dirty, shivering, carrying big dinner pails. Some are laughing, others singing, others cursing in the language they have learned from the older miners with whom they associate away down there in the darkness of the mines.

"A man has to let his boys go to work in the mines," said an old miner. "It's the only way to get ahead of the game."

A CHILD TOILER.

Here's a wee bit of a lad who is expected to do a man's work in a West Virginia coal mine. He is standing beside a coal car, which he has filled as the result of his underground toil.

ner, he sends the widows and orphans away at the cheapest possible cost. There is no suit for damages.

The operator sends away and gets another man to fill the dead man's place. He gives him the victim's lamp, his oil, his clothes. If they are not destroyed, and sends him to the mine.

Dead and in Debt.

Two years ago John Atkinson came to America. Back home they were money was lying around the mountains of West Virginia, ready to be picked up. He worked in the mines for some time. Then his wife joined him. The first week she was in the state her husband was mangled in a mine accident. He was laid up for months. Then he was killed. He was in debt. He went back to work, physically unable. He promised his wife that he would buck home as soon as he had settled his debts with the company. Then came the explosion that carried away him and many others.

My husband owed the company for our furniture. He had three-fourths of his debt paid. They made him stay here and pay his debts. He didn't want to lose all he had paid by going away. Now they have taken his life for payment," said Mrs. John Coward, another widow, with five children.

Tragedies of Toil.

"Billy" Hall was killed by a roof caving in, shortly before the Stuart disaster. Hall had the funeral expenses coming to him. The company used his wages for funeral expenses. Joseph Polinsky came to the mine shortly before the disaster. He brought his wife and three minor sons with him. The father and boys came up ten minutes before the accident. His sons were all killed. The company sent the father and mother away as soon as possible.

Child Breadwinners.

Oscar Allen, 17 years of age, was taken from school a year ago and became a miner slave of the world interior because his father was ill and unable to support the boy and the boy's mother. The boy worked hard. Long before the other Americans were at the mine for the day's work, he was there with the early-arriving foreigners. He was one of the dead in the Thomas disaster. The people of Thomas and the company will take care of the invalid father and mother.

"A man has to let his boys work," said a miner. "It's the only way to get ahead of the game."

Several unpaved streets run to the mine. On both sides are long rows of narrow houses. These are where families live in many of the houses.

Crated Flesh and Blood.

A few weeks before the explosion 23 Hungarians, Slavs and Italians were brought to Stuart. They were helpless immigrants, understanding only their native tongue, coming to America to reap some of the promised wealth. They came, headed together like so many dumb beasts in a cattle car—these foreigners who had been snatched by an employment bureau in New York and, it is charged, sold to the mine operators at $2 a head and shipped here at the expense of the operators.

After reaching Stuart they were consigned to two rooms. One of the rooms was fitted up with long bunks fitted up with hay and straw. This was their living room. They ate dry bread and drank black coffee. They were sent into the mine to do work that experienced hands were required to do and of which they knew nothing. They received less than $12 a week and the company got nearly all of this back for rent and exorbitant provision prices.

They had but a few weeks of this prison life when the explosion came. They were caught like so many sheep.

The bunks are now filled again. A new supply of foreigners have been sent to take their places. The work at the mine will soon be on again in full blast.

And such is the existence of miners in West Virginia.

PRESIDENT'S NEXT MESSAGE ON "STATES' RIGHTS" ISSUE

MEETS CHALLENGE OF REPUBLICAN REACTIONARIES—HARVARD SPEECH A PRELIMINARY.

(By Gibson Gardner.)
Special Correspondence.

Washington, D. C., Mar. 5.—The real "live wire" in President Roosevelt's speech at Harvard the other day was that part where he discussed the increase of authority and functions in the federal government.

In that speech will be found a forecast of the next message to congress. Secretary Root calls it "increase of national control." Representative McCall, of Massachusetts, in a speech called it "federal usurpation" and raised "a note of alarm."

McCall and Aldrich and Foraker in the senate call the rate bill, meat inspection, pure food bill and move-of the interstate commerce act were killed in the house committee.

Usurpation and "Sich."

It is remarkable to hear republicans wailing about "states' rights" and "federal usurpation."

"Mr. McCall was one of the few republicans to oppose the rate bill," said a close friend of the president by way of explanation. "He talks now about states' rights. I apprehend that the kind of states' rights the reactionaries have in mind is the right of a state like New Jersey to incorporate a railroad which is to run in Minnesota and the Dakotas, and which claims a right, under its New Jersey incorporation, to do as it blank pleases, with no regulation except that of the stock jobbers or train wreckers who happen to control a working majority of its stock."

It is believed that the above statement reflects fairly well what President Roosevelt has in mind as a reply to McCall's speech.

The president believes that the "federal usurpation" bugbear is the latest effort of the hostile reactionaries to head off the reforms which he is anxious to complete during his term of office. There is still the inheritance tax, and income tax bills he wants to see enacted together with a more strict regulation of the railroads and some similar legislation.

So he will meet the challenge of the "federal usurpation" charge and will join the issue at once.

MORE THAN MONEY TO MANY PEOPLE HERE

This is a message that will bring happiness again into many families and sunshine into the lives of hundreds of disheartened and discouraged men and women here. The work at a little inconvenience, for it can't be bought already prepared. It is a simple home prescription now being made known in all the larger cities through the newspapers. It is intended to check the many causes of rheumatism, kidney and bladder trouble which have made so many cripples and invalids and weakenings of some of our brightest and strongest people. The drugs here have been notified to supply themselves with the ingredients, and the sufferer will have no trouble to obtain them. The prescription is as follows: Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce, and Compound Syrup of Sarsaparilla three ounces. Mix by shaking well in a bottle. The dose is one teaspoonful after each meal and at bedtime.

Recent experiments, even in severe hospital cases, prove this simple mixture the remedy for rheumatism, because of its positive action upon the eliminative tissues of the kidneys. It cleanses the kidneys, strengthens them and removes quickly such symptoms as backache, blood disorders, bladder weakness, frequent urination, painful, scalding and discolored urine. It acts as a powerful stimulant to the entire kidney and bladder structure, puts new life in them and vigorizes the entire tract. It makes the kidneys clean the blood. The Dandelion will take care of liver trouble and constipation, and is fine for the stomach.

All the ingredients, states a well-known local druggist, are of vegetable extraction, making it a safe and harmless prescription at any time. Those who suffer and are accustomed to purchase a bottle of patent medicine should not let a little inconvenience interfere with making up this prescription. Wherever this becomes generally known, states a large eastern publisher, it will ruin the sale of the patent medicines and so-called rheumatism and kidney cures, which is its best endorsement of virtue.

Men who work for the coal barons dare not call their souls their own. They and their families are owned by the employing corporations. The men can hardly be said to receive wages. ## MARVELOUS PROSPERITY

The Citizen has received, with the compliments of the Manufacturers' Record of Baltimore, a pamphlet, "America's Amazing Advance," by Richard H. Edmonds. Mr. Edmonds is editor of the Manufacturers' Record, and the article was originally published in the Review of Reviews. As preface to it, Mr. Edmonds says:

Between 1900 and 1907 the value of farm property in the United States increased from $20,400,000,000 to $28,000,000,000, a gain of $7,600,000,000. The total capital of the national banks of the United States is $108,000,000, or only one-ninth as much as the actual increase made in farm wealth in seven years. Moreover, this increase of farm values in seven years is equal to about 60 per cent of the capitalization of all the railroads of the United States built up during the last seventy-five years. What the farmers have done in seven years, which is really the most striking fact in American business history, is typical of the amazing progress and prosperity of the whole country of late years, though in no other lines of development has the advance been quite so wonderful as that of the farmers. The facts about our material development as set forth in the following pages should stir the heart and quicken the pulse of every lover of his country and cause a general rejoicing over our country's ability to make such a magnificent showing in contrast with the poverty and despair of ten years ago. Notwithstanding this unparalleled prosperity there has been developed by demagogic agitation and by well-meant but mistaken zeal of some honest agitators discontent and bitterness, which unless checked will endanger and eventually destroy this universal prosperity. This prosperity of farmers, of merchants, of manufacturers, of mechanics and of day laborers has been the wonder of the world. In its Christmas issue the Manufacturers' Record commented on this situation and pointed some of the reasons why this condition should cause the American people to recognize that this universal activity and prosperity is in itself proof that the country is not being ruined by banks and bankers, by corporations or other business interests which are being so unceasingly assailed.

FRENZIED FINANCE EFFECT

Said Henry Clews, New York banker, in his Financial Review of Saturday: "Values on the stock exchange have undergone a still further decline, which was materially stimulated by the revelations of the recent interstate commerce investigation. While no new facts of importance were developed, the testimony of a nature to excite public opinion and strengthen public hostility to the speculative methods of large corporations and great capitalists."

For nearly two years—or ever since the Equitable disclosures began—this sentiment against "high finance" has been growing both at home and abroad. While these disclosures in the long run may prove beneficial, by preventing a repetition of such operations and allowing stockholders to get their just dues—still, their immediate effect is exceedingly unsettling.

It comes just when some of our large corporations are sorely in need of new capital, and places them temporarily at least in an unfortunate light before the public here and abroad at a time when they must appeal for financial support. The political effect of such disclosures is also harmful, furnishing as it does an abundance of inflammable material which political demagogues are sure to use injuriously at the first opportunity. Moreover, nothing does more to stimulate the socialistic propaganda than evidences of unscrupulous use of great wealth.

NEW MEXICO GROWTH

The Nara Visa New Mexican, published in Union county, and the Urton Record, published in Chavez county, are two of the latest papers to make their entrance on the stage of New Mexico Journalism.

The first in its last issue said: "A Nara Visa well drilled outfit has a contract for drilling ten wells in one neighborhood. Wherever there is a well drilled you can count on an actual settler. There are several drills at work in the country, which is an indication that we are getting the actual settler." The second, in its last issue speaks of its neighborhood in these words: "The sound of the hammer and saw can be heard in every direction. All over the country where six months ago was bare prairie, there are hundreds of buildings going up. The man with the hoe is here, and more such are coming every day. Fifteen settlers filed here last Saturday and almost every day there are from one to a dozen filings made."

New Mexico certainly seems on the upward tide of prosperity, despite the efforts made by a certain class of knoekers to give her black eyes on every conceivable occasion.

New York Journal of Commerce: "You sell to me and I'll sell back to you at a profit, and we'll both sell to the public," seems to be the maxim of high finance. Of course, the compliment is returned, and so the game goes on round a circle, each component part of which profits enormously at the uninitiated's expense. Commodore Vanderbilt's terse epigram regarding the public has evidently become engraved upon the heart (it would be unsafe to say conscience) of our modern Napoleons of finance. The facts disclosed naturally divert attention to the possibility of instituting laws making episodes of this kind illegal. Capitalization, or over-capitalization, of corporations lies at the root of the whole situation, for it is by this means that the public are allured into buying securities that look cheap, but which, in reality, represent wealthier plus the ingenuity of manipulators. President Roosevelt's reported intention to inquire into this vitally important matter becomes, in the light of recent events, not altogether ridiculous.

The Tucuman News says that "the most puerile thing the thirty-seventh legislative assembly has done or likely will be guilty of, was the expulsion of a newspaper reporter from the floor and galleries of the house. This may lead some people to believe that some of the charges he made are true. A better way would have been to pass the matter by without notice." The Citizen has its doubts whether, should somebody's understrapper come into the News office and abuse the editor for everything a purulent imagination could suggest, charging him with things he never thought of and attributing to him the most offensive motives—The Citizen doubts whether the editor of the News, under such circumstances, would pass the matter by without notice, for fear some people might believe the charges true.

Leavenworth Times: "W. J. Starnes threshed 168 bushels of alfalfa on the D. K. Anthony farm this week. This seed was raised on thirty acres of land. Who says Atchison county can't raise alfalfa?"—Atchison Champion. Besides the seed worth $5 a bushel, this piece of alfalfa yielded two hay crops. The editor of the Times believes every farmer in Kansas should put in a patch of alfalfa. Sow it this spring, if it is only five acres. It will pay better than any other crop on the farm.

Carlsbad Current: The Artesia people want a county seat, and while the people of Carlsbad do not wish to see the county divided, they have no word of censure against any fair means used to influence division. If the county is not divided, the bridge will be built later on by Eddy county, and if it is divided, Artesia will build the bridge; so we may expect to see a bridge across the Pecos within a year or two.

You can find some mighty low people trying to get into high places.

RIGHT VIEW TO TAKE OF CORPORATIONS BY LEGISLATORS

In its current issue The Tradesman, a well known industrial publication, of Chattanooga, Tenn., discusses editorially what it terms the "anti-corporation legislation craze," and says it "wishes to sound a note of warning to the people of the south regarding the present tendencies of politicians and legislators to jump on corporations."

Discussing the subject, The Tradesman says: This tendency has reached the stage where a halt is demanded by the best interests of the south. There is a sentiment going abroad that the south is filled with a class who are totally oblivious to the rights of corporations, no matter what kind of character, and that the southern legislators are ready to place all kinds of burdens and even persecutions on corporations just because they happen to be corporations; so it should be evident to all that there is more need than ever before for sane and safe leadership throughout the south to prevent disaster in the hour of success.

We do not believe there is any considerable amount of real anti-corporation sentiment in the south. There is none of that sentiment which would destroy corporate property or deny to it the protection of the law. The people of the south are fully cognizant and appreciative of the value of corporations of all classes. There is a vast difference between anti-corporation sentiment and that sentiment which demands the performance of a specific duty. Just as there are certain duties which the individual owes to society, so there are certain duties which the corporation owes the public from whom it gets its franchise—its right to live and act. The law sees to it that the duties of the individual are performed; equally it should enforce performance on the part of the corporation.

It is rather an "anti-abuse" sentiment which prevails in the south, or certain sections of it where these abuses are most flagrant. For instance, The Tradesman itself says in the course of the same discussion:

It is true that there have been abuses among corporations of a semi-public character, notably the railroads and insurance companies, but these are capable of a rational remedy and only such should be acceptable.

There must be no arbitrary treatment on either side. If increased traffic justifies concessions in freight and passenger rates they should be made and this fact is easily ascertainable. If any combinations exist that are in restraint of trade, whether of capital or labor, they should promptly and fearlessly be eradicated, but only with an eye to their bearing on the public welfare and not for purposes of permanently injuring any factor on which organized society depends for its prosperity.

Admitting that there have been abuses, The Tradesman proceeds to assert that they should be remedied, but it has ever been contemplated to do it in a rational way. We do not know that otherwise than rationally, though there is, naturally, likely to be a difference of opinion between the corporation and the legislative body as to the extent to which a remedy may go and still remain rational. "Rational" is susceptible of considerable elasticity of construction, but there has been nothing, so far as we are informed, to indicate that legislative bodies are inclined to stretch it to the point of being arbitrary.

But, altogether, it looks as if those who demand remedy of these abuses, and against whom this so-called anti-corporation sentiment is charged, are practically on common ground with The Tradesman in the conclusion of its discussion in which it urges rational remedies for the abuses which, it declares, exist.

It is not a question, then, of anti-corporation; it is simply a matter of an adequate and a reasonably priced public service.—Atlanta Constitution.

EDUCATORS ARE NO MORE UNITED THAN POLITICIANS

Those who argue that the appointment of county school superintendents by a territorial board of education, whose individual members in greater part owe their position to appointment from boards, which boards owe their appointment to the territory's chief executive, who in turn owes his appointment to the president of the United States, would take the public schools out of politics, out of unseemly dissensions, reckon without acquaintance with human nature and without knowledge of the fact that the educational camp is rent by differences more bitter than any political strife among parties and partisans.

For instance, Professor Wilbur S. Jackson in the February Popular Monthly, intimates that the average educator of today is an old fogey who really knows little of educational principles and practices less. Professor Jackson wants to revolutionize the present system of school organization. He goes further to say that even in the best schools of today, "No helpful relations are established among pupils or between them and the teacher; mutual assistance is prohibited, and the teacher is a sentinel to prevent it. The greatest need in life today, on the other hand, is a spirit of helpfulness and in the school-room should it first find root." This is an "enormous moral loss to society," he says of the present system of school teaching, "for the forces of youth are not engaged in upbuilding our social and national life." This is the summing up of this eminent educator's arraignment of the present school system: "The present system that grinds and chafes at every move was developed under archaic ideals; it has become antiquated and in a large measure useless."

Allen Harmon Carpenter in the Bookman says: "Education has become an absorbing theme for more of the intelligent minds outside of the teaching profession than ever before; hence higher standards have been set." The writer regrets the present and growing tendency toward specialization in teaching which unites teachers for the larger duties and sympathies of life. He says: "Teachers now seek deeply into the minutiae of some limited field and all too often lose sight of outside interests, save as they touch their own 'ism.'"

Another educational writer, C. Hanford Henderson, in his new book, "Education and the Larger Life," says: "To be an educator is not then, to be a man merely conversant with the customs and conventionalities of the school room."

There are many just as eminent educators who disagree with the men quoted above and they have a right to disagree. It is, however, because teachers of equal attainments disagree that there are parties and parties within parties in educational circles, that there is wrangling and strife. Naturally, a board of educators leaning toward one school, or one side in education, would insist upon appointing teachers to county school superintendents who are their way of thinking, while those representing another phase of the educational question would insist upon naming their share of the appointees and it is well known that dissensions among scholars are more bitter than any political strife.

Most of the slakes at which men were burned during the medieval ages were erected by scholars. In those days schools were entirely in the hands of ignorant "schoolmen," but no one sighs for those days to come again. The city schools are under the management of boards elected by the people from among the people and the progress and high standing of New Mexico's city schools is a refutation of the assertion that the country schools will never be what they ought to be unless they are placed under the denomination of men who are professional educators by divine right and appointment.

However, these are all minor arguments in comparison with that of popular government. There are people who insist, with some show of reason that they would have a better class of sheriffs, treasurers, governors, legislators, if their selection were left to the territorial board of education, but as long as this is a government for and by the people, it will not come to pass that the bureaucratic methods of Russia will be adopted in the government of the public schools or of any other part of the government that concerns the people as vitally as does the public school system.—New Mexican.

HALF BUSHELS OF OYSTERS

New Mexico Company Big Owners—400 Per Cent Dividend Blocked.

Ex-State Shellfish Commissioner Thompson and his wife, acting as majority directors of a $50,000 company of which they are at present minority stockholders, have declared a 400 per cent dividend upon the stock of the company and have also passed a resolution to sell a large piece of valuable property belonging to the company to obtain funds to pay the dividend, says the New York Sun. The other director, who represents the majority stockholders, has engaged counsel and secured an injunction. There is a counter action instituted by the Thompsons against their fellow director involving an alleged fraudulent transfer of stock. The whole matter is to come up in the supreme court in Brooklyn before Justice Jaycox.

Edward Thompson of Northport, L. I., whose winter home is at 222 New York avenue, Brooklyn, formed a partnership several years ago with Dexter K. Cole, also of Northport, in the wholesale oyster business. During and subsequent to the time he occupied office as a member of the state forest fish and game commission Mr. Thompson acquired land under water at low prices. These lands have increased enormously in value. The firm later was incorporated into a stock company known as the Northport Oyster company.

The property lies near Eaton's Neck, which juts into Long Island Sound northwest of Northport village, Northport Bay, Huntington Bay and Long Island Sound waters nearly surround the neck and the company's lands lie all along that region. They are accounted among the most valuable oyster growing beds in the world. The capital stock of the new company was placed at $50,000, and 500 shares were issued. Mr. Thompson and his wife took 250 shares and Mr. Cole the remaining 250 shares. Subsequently Cole sold his 250 shares to the National Oyster Carrier company, a New Mexico company that carries oysters, opened and packed in ice, to distant places.

Cole, according to the allegations of Thompson in a legal action he has brought, had prevailed upon Thompson to sell five shares of his stock to John Olmstead, superintendent of an oyster opening company in Norwalk, Conn., promising, according to Thompson, to sell an equal amount of his own stock so that he and Thompson should always control the management of the Northport Oyster company. When Thompson ascertained that Cole, as he alleges, had not sold five shares of his stock to the Norwalk party, but had sold his entire holdings to the Oyster Carrier company and had bought the five shares from Olmstead, thus giving to the Oyster Carrier company and Cole a majority of the stock, there was a fight for the control of the company. He and Cole were each represented by themselves and Cole, who is manager of the Northport Oyster company, as typ of the three directors at the last annual meeting, held in August.

There are said to be half a million bushels of oysters, seven-year-olds, lying in the beds. These are worth, upon a rough estimate, $500,000. Thompson thought he and his wife were to be frozen out of the concern, and he called a meeting of the board of directors and declared a dividend of 400 per cent upon the capital stock, or $200,000. To provide funds for the payment of the dividend, he called a meeting of the board of directors and declared a resolution was passed, it is alleged, providing for the sale of about 900 acres of the oyster lands.

The Oyster Carrier company, represented by Cole, was present at the meeting when the large dividend was declared. Cole consulted attorneys, secured an injunction, and justifiably restraining the sale of the large dividend until all parties can be heard in court upon the merits of the action.

Meanwhile, Thompson, through his attorney, John L. Hill, secured an injunction against Cole, restraining him from exercising any of the rights of the five shares of stock until the matter of its transfer is cleared up. Thompson says a five-acre stock of stock were obtained by fraud.

G. L. Brooks, of this city, is president of the National Oyster Carrier company. In the foregoing article, the legal tangles mentioned, Mr. Brooks said: "There is nothing in the claim that Captain Cole secured his five shares fraudulently, the latter being one of the most honorable men living on Long Island. He does not care to be a party to a lawsuit in any event, this question in no manner affected the holdings of the National Oyster Carrier company. When Mr. Thompson undertook to sell off 900 acres of land for $200,000, I objected and went to New York, accompanied by W. B. Childers, and we had the dividend and sale stopped by injunction. Whereupon Mr. Thompson and his wife were willing to listen to reason and were prevailed upon to make a reasonable settlement, with the result that within the last fortnight they came to an amicable understanding selling their interests and stock in the Northport Oyster company to Captain Cole and the National company. The National company by this deal is now the owner of nearly all of the stock of the Northport company."

Mr. Brooks also stated that the settlement was highly satisfactory to the National Oyster Carrier company.

Mr. Brooks and his son, L. C. Brooks, who is now in New York, have now become directors of the Northport company. The favorable termination of the difficulty will be gratifying news to Albuquerque stockholders.

George Washington Ward, D. C., custodian of the city pound, who was this morning the subject of comment by a contributor to the Morning Journal, feels that he has been placed in an unfair position before the public. He was highly indignant when the story was brought to his notice at the city building.

CITY BUILDING COMMISSION TO BE VOTED ON IN APRIL

Alderman Hanley Suggests Joint Committee With Ladies---City Physician Says Doctors Fail to Report Contagious Diseases.

Though only a short session was held, the regular meeting of the city council last night was a very interesting one, and some important business was transacted.

The first thing given attention was a committee of the Woman's club, composed of Mrs. G. E. Wilson and Mrs. Margaret Medler. Mrs. Wilson was the spokesman for the club, and acting upon a resolution previously passed by that body, she asked the council if there was not an ordinance prohibiting the carrying of guns, and if there was not, could not the council frame up and pass one at an early date? The women were very anxious that this nuisance be abated at as early a date as possible, and to have special attention paid to the carrying of guns by boys.

The women were informed that no such ordinance existed, but City Attorney Hickey stated there was a territorial law regarding the discharge of fire arms within the limits of any settlement. He thought this statute should cover the case in Albuquerque completely. Alderman Hanley then moved that a case be referred to a committee who should meet with a committee from the Woman's club and the two bodies decide upon the most advisable steps to take in the matter. His motion carried.

No Games in Streets.
Shortly after the above had been dispensed with, an ordinance was read, which prohibits boys playing ball, marbles, "shinney" or any game whatsoever in the streets of the city. Some of the aldermen thought the clause, "any game whatsoever" too stringent, as it would prohibit innocent and harmless games, and practically would deprive the boys of the use of the public streets. The ordinance was then amended so that it will read, "or any games of a similar character."

City Physician Speaks.
City Physician Carns next had the floor for several minutes, and in his talk stated that several cases of contagious diseases had not been reported to him, and that because of this neglect on the part of attending physicians the homes, where the disease was found, were labeled with caution notices. Dr. Carns stated that several cases of measles were to be found in the city, and that because people did not consider the malady a dangerous one, the parents often did not call a doctor, and because of this the home was not labeled and the disease could easily spread over the city. The doctor stated emphatically that measles were dangerous, and that more deaths resulted from this disease among younger people than almost any other disease. "Eighteen cases of measles have been placarded and the homes quarantined within the last two days," stated Dr. Carns.

In his monthly report, Dr. Carns stated that forty-one deaths had resulted in this city during the month of February. The causes of so heavy a mortality record were numerous, though consumption claimed a majority of them. Others died from pneumonia, measles, small pox, and three died from other causes.

City Engineer Gladding's report opened the way for a lengthy discussion on the sewer question. Mr. Gladding reported that during the month of February the line and grade had been given for 664 linear feet of six-foot sidewalk and 362 feet of seven-foot cement sidewalks. Mr. Gladding said that the western part of the city was being investigated by him to determine the most economical way of caring for the sewerage in this section, and that a survey had been made of the eastern section to discover if there was not some means by which the Highlands sewer could be connected to the river without first entering the lowlands.

Pavement Before New Sewer.
The mayor then asked Engineer Gladding if he did not believe that the present sewerage system could be repaired so as to be adequate for the city for several years to come. He stated that the question of paving the streets seemed of more importance just now than the sewerage question, and that all of the business men in the city were very anxious to have steps taken in this direction. Mr. Gladding said he saw no reason why the present system could not be made to serve for many years to come, and it was then proposed that the engineer be sent to El Paso to investigate the material and system that city is using in paving its streets. Alderman Hanley in part settled this discussion by stating that he had heard from El Paso, explaining all about the work being carried on there. He stated that bituminous asphalt was being used. The matter was further discussed, and Mr. Gladding may yet be sent to El Paso to study the methods in use there. Some of the aldermen thought it would be worth his while to go and see the work being carried on.

To Vote on Bond Issue.
Ordinance number 365, authorizing an election to be held for the purpose of voting on the proposition of bonding the city for $300,000 with which to build a new city hall, was passed, and the date for the election was set for the third Tuesday in April, 1907. It was stated that the bonds could readily be disposed of at 4 1/2 per cent interest.

PICTURE MACHINES CAUSE MUCH LITIGATION

First Chapter in Showell—Starr Differences—$600
Outfit the Cause.

At his office in precinct 13, this afternoon, Judge Craig is endeavoring to unravel the rights of parties litigant from a skein of legal technicalities and tangled circumstance. The affair is a damage suit in the sum of $50 which Mrs. Clara Starr, of 216 Gold avenue, seeks to interpose as a counter claim against a debt of $23, which she admits she owes J. C. Showell and wife, who are in charge of the Moon photographic studio, on Railroad avenue.

It is a part of the litigation hinted at in a story published by The Evening Citizen last Friday. The case was to have been heard yesterday afternoon, but owing to a slight indisposition which prevented Judge Craig's presence at the office, it was postponed until this afternoon.

A second suit involving the title to certain photographic chattels and sound will be heard before Justice W. W. McClellan tomorrow. This is the outgrowth of the differences which are receiving the attention of Judge Craig this afternoon. A third suit by Mrs. Starr against the Showells for damage to her Gold avenue gallery, when officers, armed with replevin writs sent out by the Showells, took down the partitions in her gallery and took a camera, lens and other goods, which she says she purchased of the Showells, will probably follow when the existing differences will have been adjusted.

What It Is All About.
Evidence adduced before Judge Craig this afternoon appears to show that last January Mrs. Starr purchased the photograph gallery and all its appurtenances which the Showells conducted on Fourth street, between Railroad and Gold avenues. The purchase price was $400. She says she paid $31 down and the balance of $29 was due on February 16. The Showells executed a bill of sale and she took possession of the property, which included certain board partitions in the studio, a camera and lens and about 600 negatives. Later Mrs. Starr was advised that the gallery partitions were fixtures and that no title to them could pass.

When the Showells moved from the Fourth street studio to the one on Gold avenue they took with them the negatives which Mrs. Starr claims. Later Mrs. Starr was advised that the gallery partitions were fixtures and that no title to them could pass.

The following is a letter from one young man:

"I want to enter a protest in behalf of the several thousand boys in Albuquerque against the ordinance that was passed last night by the city council."

"I say right now that if the city council expects to keep the boys from playing in the city streets, they ought to provide public playgrounds such as are provided for the boys in other large cities, and in this move I think every boy in Albuquerque will agree with me."

"Now, I wish the city council would relent and take pity on us poor kids just in mid-season."

ARRESTED FOR HOLD- ING UP NEW YORK SALOON

Bartender, Who Exchanged Shots With Masked Man, Identifies Robber.

John Fischer, the young man who was arrested by Assistant Marshal Kennedy last night on a charge of having attempted to "stick up" the New York saloon on Second street, will probably be given a hearing late this afternoon before Judge Craig.

Meantime he is in jail pending investigation of other features of the case. The Evening Citizen stated the afternoon following the occurrence that the police had in mind the party who attempted the performance and who exchanged shots with Pete Zito, bartender at the New York saloon, and Fischer was the party they had in mind.

Since, Chief McMillin and Assistant Chief Kennedy have been doing a bit of investigating and they are persuaded that they have sufficient evidence to bind Fischer over to the grand jury.

"Blackie" McIntyre, who has been under surveillance for some time was taken in charge yesterday and sweated by the chief and his assistants. He admitted that he was asked by Fischer and others to assist in the job and that he finally consented to stand across the street from the saloon and see the fun.

When confronted by Fischer, however, McIntyre denied that he had ever seen him, after he had declared positively that Fischer was the man who did it.

Pete Zito has identified Fischer as the man with whom he exchanged the shots in the saloon when the attempt was made to hold it up.

Fischer is about 25 years old and is a painter by trade when he works. He has been leading about the Gloria saloon on First street, a resort which the police say has an unsavory reputation. The proprietor of the Gloria, Joe Doran, is charged with being implicated in the robbery of the Indian, Lucero, who lost $500.

WILFORD H. MATSON
LAID AT REST

The last sad rites over the body of Wilford H. Matson were held at the Methodist church at 2 o'clock this afternoon. The funeral procession, which left the Matson home on South Edith street at 1:30, was a long one, consisting of sorrowing relatives and friends. At the church Rev. J. C. Rollins delivered a most comforting sermon, and then the G. K. Warren post, No. 5, G. A. R., had charge of the remains. The Woman's Relief corps attended the funeral in a body.

WASHINGTON'S NEGRO LIFE GROWING AS SOCIAL

Capital of the World. Having At Jamestown Only Twelve Already Outranked All Years After the First Others in America. English Settlement.

(By Catherine Altman.)

Washington, D. C., Mar. 5.—Society is busy engaged in having a good time these latter days, and those who have been to the capital lands thinking to avoid a slump in social things at the national capital are now looking back with a blush of shame and a tear of repentance, not to add a faint greenish tinge of envy at the uninterrupted succession of smart little dinners, occasional small dances, jolly informal luncheons followed by the always fascinating and sometimes lucrative game of bridge. These are just the sort of affairs that do not get into the papers, but which are the making of the social fortunes of aspirants with ambitions to be invited to dine at functions of lesser magnitude, but of more distinction than official receptions and charity balls.

Lady Susan Towles, an accomplished English person formerly connected with the British embassy, and famous for her barbed shafts of criticism, called Washington a "village."
It is society, "quaint and picturesque really," and referred to the white house reception as "three ringed circuses," all of which was doubtless very witty, but was certainly untrue, for it is safe to say that Washington ranks with the European social centers with every prospect of speedily outdistancing London, Vienna and even aspires to the proud title of Paris, as capital of the world. It is preeminently a city of leisure, steadfastly setting its face against the encroachments of labor and industry that might mar its beauty or disturb its tranquility with the roar of mills and turning of factory wheels. Even blase New Yorkers, who, it is said, go to Paris when they feel that their city is too dull, find in Washington season too alluring to resist and are not content with merely leasing residences here, but build permanent homes to dip into the social pleasures and dabble in drawing room politics.
The Belmonts, the Vanderbilts, the Wadsworths, of New York have permanent homes here for the winter season, while Chicago, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, St. Louis and Boston are all represented by such people as the Leithers, the Phipps, the Boardmans, the Cuffs and the Andersons who form a colony in themselves of wealth and exclusiveness.

There has also been a notable increase of foreigners who came to enjoy the hospitality of the national capital and to marvel at its beauty and its undeniable culture, supposed to pervade only those European capitals which have grown old and de-cayed, or possibly, ripened like Cam-embert and Roquefort cheese.

An amusing little story is breathed in inner circles of an English woman who came here and created something of a flourish during her rather brief sojourn in the city. Her host, an American gentleman of customary culture and extensive travels boasted that in all the lands he has visited he has seen no better built and surpassed in grandeur and simplicity out own capital. With pardonable pride, therefore, he took the guest one perfect morning to the White house, a pair of spanking span of trotters up Pennsylvania avenue and slowly round past the statue of Washington, stopping in pleasant anticipation to hear her admiring comment.

Calmly she raised her lorgnette, serene in her consciousness of being the best dressed in the crowd, and abusing a confidence—calmly I repeat, she raised her lorgnette and silently she surveyed the noble edifice from its broad sweep of stairs to its stately dome. Her host, realizing her emotion preserved a sacred silence waiting until she had found the inadequate words, and then—she spoke:

"Neat, isn't it?" she said smiling sweetly.

"Let's go home!" replied the host.
The official set has ceased its penitentialed long enough to evince a prody world in the fact of the incoming of the two new ambassadors and the two new cabinet ministers. The British embassy has undergone a thorough overhauling and in fact is now ready to receive its occupants upon their arrival here. Mrs. Bryce is a very brilliant woman whose mental force is sure to be felt in society and with the distinguished services and prestige of Ambassador Bryce, they are sure to become the most important members of the diplomatic circle.
Mrs. Bryce is keenly interested in all woman's work clubs, suffrage, etc., and it is more likely that she will give an impetus to a movement that has so far not met with much encouragement from American society women, who seem to think that have all they desire without the trouble of voting for it. It is expected that she will establish a salon here and gather round the British embassy the intellectual life and genius of the capital.

founding of the first settlement at that place, therefore the colored race is to have an important part in the international celebration in commemoration of that event, celebration known as the Jamestown Ter-centennial exposition which opens on Hampton Roads, near Norfolk, Virginia, April 14, this, and the Jamestown Exposition company set aside a choice tract in the exposition park for negro building purposes, and the general government appropriated the sum of one hundred thousand dollars for the erection of a negro building and the expense of collecting, maintaining and returning exhibits. To further the work and control the building, concessions and exhibits, the Negro Development and Exposition company was organized under the laws of the state of Virginia, and this company has been hard at work for months past, engaging an interest in the matter, all over the union. Several states have made appropriations, and negro exhibits from nearly all the states will be displayed in the negro building.

February 14, the anniversary of the birth of Frederick Douglass, was selected as the proper time for the ceremony of laying the corner stone of the mammoth structure, and on this date a large number of representatives, men and women of the colored race assembled with the exposition officials at the Ter-Centenennial grounds to witness the ceremony. The master of ceremonies was Secretary Shepperd of the Jamestown exposition. Barton Myers, governor of ways and means of the exposition, formally tendered the site to the Negro Development and Exposition company and in conclusion said it was his hope and belief that the building displayed in the building would show to the world a better classification of the negro race, so that the entire body of colored people may not be called upon in future, as they have in the past, to bear the blame which public opinion attaches to them on account of the action of a degraded element of the race.

After invocation by Rev. A. Bingham, D. D., of Richmond, the officers of the Masonic grand lodge of Virginia then placed the stone in position with the usual ceremonies of the order. The stone bears the inscription, "Negro Building." Following the Masonic service and music by the band from the Hampton Industrial Institute for colored youth, several addresses were made. The first was by W. Isaac Johnson, president of the Negro Exposition company. Other addresses were made by Giles K. Williams, general of the company on the subject,
"History of the Negro Exhibit"; Mrs. A. M. Curtis, fiscal agent, on the subject, "Negro Womanhood"; R. T. Hill, treasurer, on "Financing the Exhibit"; R. Kelsor, field agent and general secretary on "Together we stand"; and Thomas J. Calloway, the chairman of the executive committee, on "What the Negro Will Show."

The negro building, which was designed by W. Sidney Pittman, a young colored architect of Washington, D.
C., is 125 by 250 feet, two stories in height and of colonial design, and will cost about fifty thousand dollars.
It is to be completed in sixty days and ready for the installation of exhibits which are to be arranged in three collections. The first will be mainly along the lines of agriculture, horticulture, mechanical, liberal and fine arts, domestic science, education, inventions, professions and literature.
The exhibits will be a surprise to many visitors who have become possessed with the idea that the colored race is altogether servile and without capability of high intellectual attainments. The worst side of negro life and character has been promulgated and paraded and his faults laid bare, and it is fortunate that the Jamestown exposition offers an opportunity to present the race in a respectable and irrefutable evidence in contradiction of the misnomer.

Found at Last.

J. A. Harmon, of Lizzemore, West Va., says: "At last I have found the perfect pill that never disappoints me; and for the benefit of others afflicted with typhoid fever and chronic constipation, will say, take Dr. King's New Life Pills." Guaranteed satisfactory. 25c at all dealers.

MAHARA'S MINSTRELS ON THURSDAY NIGHT

Coming to the opera house—Mahara's big minstrel carnival in a revival of old-time minstrelsy, also modern. The one big singing show of the season, carrying a dozen dusky Crosby girls for the chorus. Elegant seaside singing in first part, song hits, quartets, sextets, octets, marches, drills, cake dancing, buck and wing dancing, funny comedians who make you laugh—more show in five minutes than the ordinary companies give in one hour. A big strong olio of pleasure, specially selected scenery, electrical effects, concluding with a one act opera, "Dusky Maidens." A show that is clean and entertaining; nothing to offend the most fastidious. A show that one can bring a mother or sister to without being offended with anything bordering on profane.
The Mahara minstrels will give a big street parade on the day of the show.

is to love children, and no home can be completely happy without them, yet the ordeal through which the expectant mother must pass usually is so full of suffering, danger and fear that she looks forward to the critical hour with apprehension and dread. Mother's Friend, by its penetrating and soothing properties, allays nausea, nervousness, and all unpleasant feelings, and so ordeal that she passes through the event safely and with but little suffering, as numbers have testified and said, "it is worth its weight in gold." $1.00 per bottle of druggists. Book containing valuable information mailed free.

GRANDMOTHER OF EVELYN THAW IS PRISONER'S FRIEND

Spokane, Wash., Mar. 5.—"No jury of good men would convict my grand-child's husband. From all I can hear he was a good man and I believe he did right when he put an end to White, who, I guess, was a bad man."
So spoke Mrs. Eliza Jane McConky
Nesbit, grandmother of Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, who has been living in seclusion here during all the excitement following the search for her as a witness in the Thaw trial.

Mrs. Nesbit is 81 years old. Her face is wrinkled like old parchment.
Her sight is dimmed, but her hearing is good. She keeps her small room in which she cooks and sleeps, neat as a pin. She was moping when she was interviewed, and stopped her work just long enough to show her old album and explain whose photographs it contained. She also exhibited an old Bible, made in 1848, in which was recorded the date of the birth of herself, husband and all her children.

She said Evelyn's father, Winfield Nesbit, was a prominent lawyer before his illness, which lasted a long while. She has a large life-sized photograph of him hanging on the wall. It shows him with full beard.

Mrs. Nesbit last saw Evelyn when she was 15 years old. The aged woman is bitter against the mother of Evelyn Thaw and blames her for all of the girl's trouble.

SHORT TALKS BY L. T. COOPER. INTERNAL PARASITES.

Cooper's New Discovery has taught me many things. Not least of which is that parasites or tape worms as they are called are responsible for an immense amount
of suffering.
Thousands of these creatures
have been brought to me by people who have taken
the New Discovery and know
that an immense amount of supposed stomach trouble is caused in reality by one of these parasites. A man or woman may be afflicted in this manner for years and not realize the true cause of their suffering. When I first sold Cooper's New Discovery I did not know that the medicine would remove this trouble. I have since found that it invariably does so. The following letter is a fair sample of the symptoms as experienced by an individual thus affected:

"I was always tired. My stomach bloats and the slightest exertion made me sick, weak and dizzy. My appetite was variable and a good night's sleep was unknown to me.
When I awoke in the mornings I had a bad taste in my mouth and a coated tongue. I heard of the wonderful benefits that were being derived from Cooper's New Discovery, and decided to try it."

"The horrible tape worm, sixty feet long that had been sapping my life away, passed from my system alive and squirming after I had taken three doses. Now I have a splendid appetite, every trace of stomach trouble has disappeared and my digestion is good. I sleep well and am gaining in strength every day." Nick Emmerick, 1344 Louis Ave., Milwaukee, Wis.

Home Insurance the Best

WE CANNOT refrain from again saying something about Home Insurance. Every time that the proposition presents itself of the tremendous amount of money that is being sent out of New Mexico and Arizona for life insurance to eastern cities, the conviction comes home with increased force that a home company ought to be patronized and the money remain in the West.

The revelations of the past year of the way the enormous surplus of the Big Eastern companies has been handled and speculated with ought to emphasize the fact that the people of the West should stop pouring their money into Eastern channels when it can be placed in home insurance, and every dollar of it kept and invested at home.

It is gratifying to note that home insurance is year by year receiving more and more its just deserts. Statistics show that during the past year home companies far exceeded foreign companies in the amount of business written. Why cannot this same record be made here? It can if every individual who takes out a policy the coming year will carefully weigh the proposition of the value it is to keep his insurance at home before he puts his name to the application of any insurance company.

The Occidental Life Insurance Company of New Mexico and Arizona is owned and controlled by the leading business men of the two territories, and offers exceptional opportunities to ambitious and capable men and women to sell its policies.
