PEACE DOVE FLIES TO LONDON WHERE TURKS AND BALKANS MEET

IN MEAN TIME AUSTRIA-HUNGARY SEEMS TO BE PUFFING UP A NEW WAR CLOUD IN DISPUTE WITH SERBIA AND DIPLOMATS SAY THERE IS LITTLE HOPE OF PEACE UNTIL ALL POWERS ACT IN UNISON.

SERVIAN CAPITAL IS BEING HASTILY FORTIFIED

London, Nov. 25.—The plenipotentiaries of Turkey and of the allied Balkan nations held their first meeting this afternoon to discuss the preliminaries for the negotiations for an armistice.

Vienna, Nov. 25.—The result of the visit to Berlin of Archduke Francis Ferdinand, the Austrian heir to the throne, is that in eastern affairs—notably those questions relating to Roumania and the Adriatic sea—Germany, Italy and Austria will march together. This news comes from the "Reichspost."

Preparations for every eventuality have been fully made so that all surprises are guarded against.

AUSTRIA VS. SERBIA.

Berlin, Nov. 25.—Relations between Austria-Hungary and Serbia are so strained that political circles in Vienna have abandoned hope of the preservation of peace, according to the information from a diplomatic source.

Despite official Austrian denials of the reported mobilization of the Austro-Hungarian army, the "Neutimes" correspondent declares that five army corps have been already mobilized.

The Austrian reserves continue to be called out in large numbers. The Austrian government, it continues, resolved not to await the return of the Serbian troops operating against the Turkish troops and an ultimatum against Serbia may be expected in a few days.

MAY MODIFY DEMANDS.
London, Nov. 25.—Beyond an intimation that the victorious invaders are prepared to modify their original demands in regard to the evacuation of the Tchatalja line by the Turks and also to permit the Turkish garrison of Adrianople to march out of that fortress with the honors of war, nothing has been revealed as to the discussions between the delegates.

Unless significance can be attached to the unusually long armistice of eight days reported to have been agreed to there is nothing to give a clue of the probable outcome of the discussions.

While the principals are thus engaged in efforts to arrange a truce between the opposing armies preparatory to a definite peace, preparations elsewhere for possible trouble on a larger scale show no signs of abatement. While the intentions of the great European powers undoubtedly remain peaceful, Austro-Hungarian procedure seems to foreshadow separate action which will render difficult the realization of the plan of Premier Asquith for the settlement of near eastern questions as a whole when the war is over.

Withdrawal of the Austrian warship, Admiral Spain, and of the Austrian contingent of bluejackets from Constantinople and the unexplained departure of an unannounced destination of the Austrian squadron which has been lying at Smyrna, are factors which are disturbing diplomats, who see in a close union of all the great powers the only hope of a peaceful solution.

WHAT SERBIA WANTS.
From Vienna, too, comes the information that the Serbian war office has recalled all the Serbian troops that can be spared from the columns operating in the neighborhood of Pristina and Monastir, and that the fortifications of the Serbian capital are being hastily supplied with heavy artillery. The Austrians deduce from these facts that Serbia is not disposed to yield and a settlement of the Austro-Serbian dispute seems to them difficult, if Serbia's demands are maintained at an irreducible minimum. These were outlined by Premier Pachitch of Serbia this morning. He declared a minimum requisite to Serbia's national development was economic independence and a free and adequate passage to the Adriatic.

GREKS GET CHIOS.
Smyrna, Nov. 25.—The Greeks are reported to have occupied the large Turkish island of Chios, in the Aegean sea and close to this city. It is one of the richest and most beautiful islands of the Levant, with a population of 60,000.

BERLIN SEES PEACE.
Berlin, Nov. 25.—The German foreign office has not deviated from its previous attitude of confidence that an amicable settlement of the Austro-Serbian controversy will be reached.

The Nord Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung, in an inspired note today, denounces the alarming reports which have been in circulation on the Bourse that the position taken four days ago by Russia on the question of Serbia's demand for an Adriatic port had changed. The powers, the note says, have agreed not to anticipate the general settlement of the Balkan problem by taking an individual standpoint on special questions.

The Nord Deutsche also denies that Austria has mobilized five army corps and adds that the report is untrue that an Austrian ultimatum to Serbia via a strip of what was Old Serbia.

This minimum is declared to be wholly incompatible with the Austrian and Italian contention that Albania should be autonomous, as it would cut Albania in two, and confine the autonomous provinces to a stony and poverty-stricken district unable to maintain an independence existence.

CZAR IS HOPEFUL.
St. Petersburg, Nov. 25.—The emperor of Russia and Sergius Zazonoff, the foreign minister, adhere to the belief that a solution of the Austro-Serbian differences will be found as soon as the war has been brought to an end, according to an announcement made in official circles.

A JOB FOR CHARLES.
Bucharest, Rumania, Nov. 25.—A proposal to appoint Prince Charles of Rumania, the son of Crown Prince Ferdinand, to the post of Prince of Autonomous Albania, is to be made to King Charles of Rumania by a delegation of Albanian Mohammedans who arrived here today.

UNCLE SAM IS WATCHING.
Washington, D. C., Nov. 25.—Realizing the possibility of rapid and important developments in the Balkan war, the navy department has slightly changed the itinerary for the cruisers Tennessee and Montana, now on the way to the Orient under Admiral Knight. Admiral Knight, on the Tennessee, instead of going direct from Gibraltar to Smyrna, has headed first for Malta, while the Montana, which was destined for Beirut, has started for Port Said at the entrance of the Suez canal.

POPE UPHOLDS GOVERNMENT IN TUNNEL SUIT
Denver, Colo., Nov. 25.—Attorneys for the government and the Henryly litigation project were notified today that Federal Judge W. H. Pope, of New Mexico, had handed down a decision, holding that the irrigation promoters must take out a permit before constructing the tunnel through a national forest. The decision upholds the contention of the government.

The suit was heard before Judge Pope, who sat in the federal court here for that purpose. Attorneys for the irrigation company say they will appeal to the supreme court.

The Henryly project filed on water to the extent of 700 cubic feet on the Williams Fork of the Grand river, with the plan of constructing a tunnel through the mountain range and bringing the water to the eastern slope for irrigation purposes. A permit to construct the tunnel has been help up for three years.

HAWTHORNE AND BOSTON'S EX-MAYOR ON TRIAL.
New York, N. Y., Nov. 25.—After a series of delays, the trial of Julian Hawthorne, Josiah Quincy, former mayor of Boston, and others, charged with using the mails to defraud investors, in mining stocks, got under way today before Judge Trough in the federal district court. The case of John W. McKinnon, secretary and treasurer of the Hawthorne Mining company, was severed from that of the other defendants at the request of the government.

TWENTY FIVE ESCAPE.
Wilkesbarre, Pa., Nov. 25.—Twenty-five men had a narrow escape from being entombed by a cave-in at the mine of the Barum Coal company near Pittston this afternoon. Twelve men were injured before being rescued, two so seriously that they had to be taken to a hospital.

TWELVE ARE INJURED.
Wilkesbarre, Pa., Nov. 25.—Twelve men were injured in an explosion at the mine of the Barum Coal company near Pittston this afternoon. Twelve men were injured before being rescued, two so seriously that they had to be taken to a hospital.

SPRITED DISCUSSION.
Philadelphia, Nov. 25.—Dr. Anna Howard Shaw was this afternoon re-elected president of the National Woman Suffrage association. The vote was, Dr. Shaw, 291; Laura Clay, Kentucky, 20; Catherine W. McCullough, Illinois, 13; Jane Addams, Chicago, 11. The reelection of Dr. Shaw was made unanimous.

Spirited discussion over the transfer of Maud Wood Park's credentials from the College Equal Suffrage League, to the Massachusetts delegation, drifted dangerous close to a question of veracity at the suffrage convention today. Finally, Miss Carey Thomas,

NO ELECTRIC CHAIR FOR THESE TWO

Salem, Mass., Nov. 25.—Joseph J. Eitor and Arturo Giovanni, who on Saturday pleaded that they be sent to the electric chair if found guilty of the murder of Anna Lopizzo in the Lawrence textile strike, cannot be convicted of murder in the first degree.

Judge Quinn, in charging the jury today instructed that the evidence in the case did not warrant a first degree verdict. If guilty, the verdict, he said, must be second degree murder.

Caruso may be found guilty of first degree murder, but none of the defendants under the form of indictment, could be adjudged guilty of manslaughter.

The jury retired to deliberate upon its verdict this afternoon. If a verdict is not reached by 5 o'clock, court probably will adjourn until tomorrow as Judge Quinn has promised to have the verdict returned within regular court hours if possible.

TWELVE KILLED; OVER 100 HURT.
Waukegan, Ill., Nov. 25.—Twelve men reported killed and more than 100 injured in an explosion in the Starch house at the plant of the Corn Products company here today.

TWO DEAD IN MIDNIGHT DUEL

DEPUTY SHERIFF OF SANDOVAL COUNTY AND ONE SHEEP THIEF ARE KILLED AT ZIA PUEBLO; MOSES ABUSLEMAN MAY LOSE HIS ARM

Terrible indeed must have been the duel fought at Zia Pueblo, Sandoval county, late Saturday night as a noon silver in mid-heaven while the reports of rapid-firing rifles and pistols announced the clash between a band of five sheep thieves and a posse of nine law-enforcers, including the owner of the 300 sheep which led to the trouble.

THE DEAD.
Bautista Lucero, deputy sheriff of Sandoval county.

Manuel Archuleta, one of the alleged thieves.

The only one known to be wounded is Moses Abusleman, prosperous merchant and sheepman living at Jemez Pueblo, and formerly partner of Nathan Salmon of this city.

From the meager details which have been received here today the duel was between a gang of four or five sheep thieves and Mr. Abusleman and deputy sheriffs aiding him in rounding up the robbers. It appears that Mr. Abusleman was informed that Mr. Salmon was being held at his home at Jemez that several prowlers had been seen around his ranch at Zia, fifteen miles south of Jemez. Losing no time, the merchant and deputies made a dash for the sheep ranch, surprising the robbers at work.

Then a terrific fight ensued, a deputy being shot down right after he had made one of the robbers bite the dust. Two bullets struck Mr. Abusleman in the arm, and one of the bullets shattered the elbow.

Mr. Salmon was informed of the affair last evening and at once set out in his car for Jemez with the intention of taking his former partner to a hospital in Albuquerque or bring him here in order that the best of medical attention may be given him. Mr. Abusleman was reported to be in terrible agony as a result of his injuries.

ANOTHER FIGHT.
According to reports received there has been a stabbing affray at Alamogordo, Otero county, and the mounted police have received orders to be on the lookout for Ambrol Martinez, aged 30, 5 feet 2 inches tall, weighs 145, dark complexion, slight build and looks "mean." He has a scar 1-4 by 3-4 of an inch on the right side of his face between the

DR. ANNA SHAW RE-ELECTED PRESIDENT OF SUFFRAGETTES

Philadelphia, Nov. 25.—Dr. Anna Howard Shaw was this afternoon re-elected president of the National Woman Suffrage association. The vote was, Dr. Shaw, 291; Laura Clay, Kentucky, 20; Catherine W. McCullough, Illinois, 13; Jane Addams, Chicago, 11. The reelection of Dr. Shaw was made unanimous.

Spirited discussion over the transfer of Maud Wood Park's credentials from the College Equal Suffrage League, to the Massachusetts delegation, drifted dangerous close to a question of veracity at the suffrage convention today. Finally, Miss Carey Thomas, of Bryn Mawr, president of the College League, got to the floor to make an explanation.

"Ladies," she said, shaking her fingers at the delegates, "I always tell the truth. If I did not tell the truth, I would have no right to be here." There was a stir, but it quickly subsided. After Miss Thomas had made her explanation the matter was referred back to the credentials committee for further action and the convention took up other things pertaining to the election of officers.

Jane Addams, of Chicago, was unanimously re-elected first vice-president.

ISADOR RAYNER DIED THIS MORNING

FAMOUS MARYLAND ORATOR AND DEMOCRATIC STATESMAN SUCCEUMS TO NEURITIS IN WASHINGTON—A REPUBLICAN WILL SUCCEED HIM.

CONTROL OF SENATE HELD IN BALANCE

Washington, D. C., Nov. 25.—Senator Isador Rayner, of Maryland, one of the leading democratic members of the United States senate and a man whose name was offered to the Baltimore convention by William J. Bryan, as a suitable candidate for the presidential nomination, died here early today at the end of a long illness resulting from continued attacks of neuritis.

Senator Rayner had been in a comatose state since last Wednesday with only one or two slight rallies. His severe illness covered a period of about six weeks, dating from the efforts made in the joint political debate with Bourke Cockran at Baltimore, late in September. Physicians compelled him to retire from the campaign at once after that and he returned to his Washington home, where he died at 1:29 o'clock this morning. For over five years Senator Rayner had been a sufferer from neuritis the attacks often making his work arduous and painful.

CONTROL OF SENATE.

The control of the United States senate after March 4 may hinge on the death of Senator Rayner. The republican, who it is expected Governor Goldsboro will appoint in his place, will hold office at least until the Maryland legislature meets in January, 1914. Senator Rayner's death removes one of the democrats on whom the control of the senate depends in the new congress. With his vote the democratic leaders counted on 49 votes or one more than a majority of the total membership of 96. In any event, 48 votes with the vote of the vice president, in case of a tie, was looked upon as sufficient strength to secure control.

While the democrats still have an apparent strength of 48, the death of the Maryland senator reduces the supposed majority to a point very near the dividing line of party control.

JACKSON MAY SUCCEED.
Baltimore, Md., Nov. 25.—William P. Jackson, member of the republican national committee, will be appointed Senator Rayner's successor, it is believed, although Governor Goldsboro has said he will not consider the matter until after the funeral.

FUNERAL ON WEDNESDAY.
Funeral services will be held at his former residence here Wednesday afternoon. Senator Bacon, president pro-tempore of the senate, will appoint a committee of senators, and Speaker Clark will name a committee of representatives to be present. Interment will be in Rock Creek cemetery, here.

UNCLE SAM GETS SALAZAR'S FINE PROVISIONS

Washington, D. C., Nov. 25.—Three wagon loads of provisions being carried over the Mexican border from Columbus, N. M., for the use of General Salazar's rebel forces, were captured and are being held by General Steever, commanding Fort Bliss, Texas, who today reported the fact to the war department.

The provisions were in charge of Captain Antonio Larra, a rebel, who is said to have purchased them in Columbus with money furnished by Roque Gomez, one of Salazar's henchmen.

General Steever reported that General Salazar, who is advancing upon Casas Grandes, has declared he will capture that town in five days and will be in Juarez within 25 days. The Gulpache ranch in Durango, owned by Americans, has again been sacked by rebels.

STATE'S CASE: STRANGULATION

Goshen, N. Y., Nov. 25.—Attorney Elder began his plea today in defense of Burton W. Gibson, accused of the murder of Mrs. Rosa Menschik Szabo.

"This," he said, "is a case based entirely on circumstantial evidence, no one saw anyone kill this woman. He described his client as a man 'bounced and prosecuted by yellow imaginations.'"

Justice Tompkins interrupted at this point to say that the state's case would have to stand or fall on the charge of strangulation.

Millwaukee, Wis., Nov. 25.—John Schrank, the man who shot Colonel Roosevelt, was taken to the Northern Hospital for the insane near Oshkosh, today.

CHINESE TROOPS TAKE ULISSUTAI

Chicago, Ill., Nov. 25.—The Chinese government troops, under Prince Pihui, a loyal Mongolian, captured the city of Ulissutai, Mongolia, after a two days' battle, according to a Peking dispatch to the Chicago Daily News today. Mongolian seceders have installed Russian telegraph operators on government lines they served and detachments of Russian troops are advancing from various stations toward Urga, the capital and western Mongolia.

The News cable said: "The war of office today made public a copy of a telegram from the loyal Mongol general, Prince Pihui, saying that Ulissutai, Mongolia, had been captured by the Chinese expedition under his command. The first Chinese attack was repulsed and Prince Pihui awaited reinforcements which arrived November 14, from Sinkiang and Shan provinces. After allowing the reinforcements rest two days, he divided the forces and ordered Sinkiang troops to attack from the west and the Shan troops from the south while, he, himself, attacked from the north. After a battle lasting two days, the Chinese were victorious, the Mongolian general being put to flight."

"According to a telegram Kikiana, a city on the Russian side of the northern frontier of Mongolia, the Mongolian government telegraph office at Maimachen, Mongolia, drew out the Chinese operators and installed Russians."

"Russians are sending detachments from various military stations toward Urga and western Mongolia with the avowed object of protecting the lives and property of Russian subjects. It is believed, however, to be a counter move to the Chinese military operations in upper Mongolia."

TERRIBLE SCENE AT WAUKEGAN

Waukegan, Ill., Nov. 25.—The latest news from the scene of the starch house explosion here is that while 12 men are known to be dead and 25 injured have been taken from the burning building to hospitals, it is feared at least fifteen others are still in the starch house. Firemen were unable to quench the flames, which burst from all quarters of the building after the explosion and joined with the employees from the main building and the police in seeking to rescue the injured and remove the bodies of the dead.

So rapid was the spread of the fire that the starch house which is a two story building, 100 by 125 feet, was a mass of flames before the firemen arrived. The efforts of the hose men, after assisting in removing the dead and injured were directed to saving the main building, which was endangered from the fire.

The injured suffered terrible burns and the surgeons and physicians hastily summoned, gave first aid, swathing the blistered and burned workers before they were placed in the ambulance to be hurried to the hospitals. A similar accident occurred nine years ago in the starch house, which is particularly liable to damage.

DEAD NUMBER 23.

Waukegan, Ill., Nov. 25.—The death list later in the day amounted to 23. Twenty-eight of the injured were seriously hurt and some of them probably will die. The damage to the plant amounts to $100,000.

EIGHTEEN HURT IN TROLLEY CRASH.

Montreal, Quebec, Nov. 25.—Eighteen persons were injured in a collision between two suburban trolley cars near here today.

DYNAMITER WISHED TO RIVAL THE GREAT 'FRISCO EARTHQUAKE

"I'LL BLOW LOS ANGELES OFF THE MAP" J. B. McNAMARA IS DECLARED TO HAVE BOASTED—LOCKS OF THE PANAMA CANAL AND FRICK BUILDING IN PITTSBURG, ALSO SCHEDULED TO BE SHOT TO PIECES.

WOULD BLOW UP SLEEPING CAR TO KILL A STENOGRAPHER

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 25.—Witnesses at the "dynamite conspiracy" trial today testified concerning "wholesale explosions" which the McNamaras were alleged to have contemplated, but which were prevented by the arrests of the dynamiters at Detroit and Indianapolis in April, 1911.

McManigal then described his going to Detroit with James B. McNamara to blow up four jobs and their arrest there, which prevented the "wholesale explosions" which were soon to be carried out, he said.

OFFERED BIG BRIBE.
"After we were arrested in Detroit, and while we were on the train going to Chicago, James B. began to yell about being kidnapped," said McManigal.

"Guy Biddinger, a Chicago detective, had us handcuffed. J. B. offered Biddinger $5,000 to let us escape. Biddinger refused. Then J. B. raised the amount to $20,000 saying he would get the amount from J. J. McNamara. He said if Biddinger did not let us off the train there would be a gang waiting for him at Chicago, and they would get him."

"Then J. B. said to Biddinger, 'If you don't take the $20,000 Clarence Burrow will get it, for we will have Burrow.'"

"J. B. begged Biddinger to allow me to go or to allow my wife to go to Indianapolis to arrange to procure the money. I said I didn't want my wife mixed up in it."

"At Chicago we were taken to the home of a detective named Reed. J. B. sent for me and was allowed to talk to me. I reminded him that he had talked too much on the train, that he had told the detectives the Los Angeles explosion was caused by gas, and therefore, he had shown he knew too much. He said he would deny all that. He asked me what we should do. I answered, 'every man for himself.'"

"William J. Burns came to me and I made a clean breast of it to him. Later in Los Angeles, I told the authorities my whole story."

Senator Kern then began cross examining McManigal.

McManigal testified that James B. McNamara admitted he wanted to kill him (McManigal) in the Wisconsin woods. Judge Anderson announced he would not increase the bonds of other defendants and would "pass" the motion for the present.

DYSPEPSIA AND THEATERS FOR MR. WILSON

Hamilton, Bermuda, Nov. 25.—President-elect Wilson suffered today from a slight attack of indigestion, which compelled him to decline an invitation to take a sail on the private yacht of Sir George Bullock, the governor. Mrs. Wilson and her daughter, however, accepted.

Governor Wilson has accepted an invitation to attend an amateur theatrical performance on Tuesday, as the guest of Sir George and Lady Bullock. In referring to the invitation Mr. Wilson said: "I am not bald enough yet to sit in the front row, but I am going anyhow."

WITNESS DID NOT REMAIN AFTER SHOOTING.

Port Worth, Texas, Nov. 25.—Testifying today in the case of John B. Sneed, on trial a second time for the alleged murder of Captain A. G. Boyce, W. A. Weaver, a Bokchito, Oklahoma, lawyer, said he was in the Metropolitan hotel lobby on the night of the killing. When Sneed entered the lobby, Weaver testified he heard someone in a group where Boyce sat say "There comes the now."

The witness said he left the hotel after the first shot was fired, but could not see at whom Sneed was shooting and did not know who made the remark.

The announcement that Sneed probably would take the stand in his own behalf late today brought a throng of women to the court room.

TWENTY-FIVE HURT IN EXPLOSION.

New York, N. Y., Nov. 25.—Twenty-five men were injured today, two mortally, by the explosion of a vat of sulphur in the Union Sulphur mills in the Williamsburg section of Brooklyn. Fire followed and buildings which occupied an entire block, were destroyed. Loss, $500,000.

STABLE FLY IS THE CAUSE OF INFANTILE PARALYSIS

THE DISEASE.

"Infantile Paralysis—a form of spinal paralysis occurring with frequency in young children. One is led to believe it is due to an infective organism. Symptoms: Fever, convulsions, and sometimes vomiting. There may be numbness or tingling in limb or limbs paralyzed. The same disease may attack also adults."—Encyclopedia Britannica.

ITS CAUSE.

"The common stable fly (Stomoxys calcitrans) which is very largely distributed throughout the world is a close cousin of the dreaded tsetse fly of Africa. Its breeding places are fermenting heaps of grass, straw, etc., horse-manure, cow-dung and even garbage."—Harvard Alumni Bulletin.

ITS PREVENTION.

"As this dreaded stable fly has no affection for fly paper or fly trap, and appears early in spring and is the last of the fly family to depart in winter, there is urgent necessity of controlling it by cleanliness in stable and back yard."—Declaration of Physicians.

APPEAL TO SANTA FEANS.

"Now that we have launched the crusade against the tin can I urge upon all citizens also to fight this disease-bringing fly by the removal, as far as is possible, of the causes such as the accumulation of fermenting heaps of grass, manure, etc., and especially garbage. In yard, stable and corral, let us have cleanliness for the sake of public health."—Mayor (also Lopez).

The stable fly distributes the virus of infantile paralysis.

This is the discovery that has just been made by the Bussey Institution of Harvard University and the Harvard Medical School working in collaboration with the Massachusetts state board of health, according to a report sent the New Mexican by Edgar Wells, who is in charge of the Harvard Alumni Bulletin. Mr. Wells visited Santa Fe last year as the guest of Colonel Bronson M. Cutting.

This discovery of the cause of infantile paralysis will doubtless be read with great interest by every man and woman in the country, for the dread disease has stricken many a little child leaving it deformed for life. And the same kind of paralysis attacks also adults.

The Bulletin explains the way the discovery was made and gives some interesting details about the disease bringing fly.

Says the Bulletin:

The knowledge that insects serve as intermediate "hosts" of diseases which attack human beings goes back to the discovery by Professor Theobald Smith, of the medical school, that Texas fever of cattle is transmitted through ticks. Following directly on this discovery came the discoveries that the virus of malaria and yellow fever was transmitted by certain mosquitoes, and that of the sleeping sickness of Africa by the tsetse fly. As a result of these discoveries the United States authorities cleared first Cuba and then the Canal zone of the epi-demies of yellow fever and the constant scourge of malaria which had hitherto made living so dangerous for white men in the tropics.

The fact that these diseases were known to be transmitted through insect carriers raised the possibility that infantile paralysis might also be transmitted in the same way. Acting on this possibility the Massachusetts state board of health, of which Dr.
Henry P. Walcott, '38, of the corporation, is chairman and Dr. Mark W.
Richardson, '89, M. D. '94, is secretary, set on foot in the summer of 1911 a thorough investigation of the disease in Massachusetts through tabulation and careful study of all the cases reported. The active work was put in the hands of Mr. C. T. Brues, instructor in economic entomology in the Bussey Institution, and Dr. Philip A.
E. Sheppard, M. D. '10. Their investigation aimed to determine whether there were any insects whose habits fitted in with the distribution of the disease, both in time and place, as shown by the tabulations of the cases by the state board of health. Study of the cases showed that they occurred during the summer and early autumn, growing more frequent after the middle of the summer, and lasting until well on towards cold weather. There were so many isolated cases that contact was soon seen to be an improbable mode of transmission.

The investigations turned, therefore, with some confidence to the theory of an insect carrier. Starting from a complete list of the biting, blood-sucking and household insects which by their habits seemed suited to carry infection their first step was to eliminate all those which did not satisfy these conditions. Such insects as fleas and bedbugs were ruled out because many cases of infantile paralysis occurred in households where these insects are unknown, and the scattering occurrence of the disease did not agree with the non-traveling habits of these insects. Others that cause painful bites were ruled out, since histories of such bites were not obtained in the majority of cases.
By such reasoning it was possible tentatively to eliminate all insects except one, the common stable fly (Stomoxys calcitrans). This insect seemed to satisfy all the conditions made by the distribution of the cases, so that a strong probability was established that the stable fly is the means by which infantile paralysis is carried from one person to another.

The next step was to see by experiment whether the disease could be transmitted by this insect, under conditions which could be absolutely controlled. It had long been known that monkeys were subject to the disease.
Accordingly the investigation was transferred to the medical school and put under the charge of Professor M.
J. Rosenau. He, working with Mr.
Brues, undertook to determine by experiment on monkeys whether the stable fly can actually serve as a carrier for infantile paralysis. The results have shown that it can.

TRIED ON MONKEYS.

Monkeys were first infected with the disease by injection and then allowed to be bitten by stable flies. After the necessary interval these flies were allowed to bite other monkeys. The first results were negative. Then it was suggested that the monkeys should be watched, and it was found that being expert fly catchers they caught and ate all the flies that were brought into their cage. In the next series of experiments, therefore, the paws of the monkeys were tied. This time, after they were bitten by flies which had bitten other monkeys already infected, they exhibited all the symptoms of the disease in six cases out of twelve. This established the fact that the disease could be carried by these insects.

No principle, however, is regarded as scientifically established until it has been confirmed through repetition of the experiments by other observers.
Accordingly at the request of Dr.
Rosenau, Drs. Anderson and Frost, of the Public Health and Marine Hospital Service at Washington, working on the basis of the facts attained at the medical school, repeated the experiment and proved that the disease which developed in monkeys bitten by infected stable flies was infantile paralysis by injecting another set of monkeys with a culture from the monkeys bitten by the flies. Thus the proof is complete.

The stable fly which has thus been proved such a dangerous enemy to human beings is very much like the ordinary house fly, to which it is closely related and for which it is frequently mistaken on account of its size, somewhat similar coloration, and common occurrence near human habitations. It differs, however, in a number of important respects, both in habits, structure, and distribution.

WHERE FLIES ARE FOUND.

Although the flies are found near human habitations, they do not enter houses so commonly as does the ordinary housefly but rather remain in open and sunny places except when attracted elsewhere to feed. Their normal food consists of the blood of animals, and during its lifetime each fly feeds every two or three days, perhaps oftener, upon some warm blooded animal. The habit of this insect of staying out of doors in good weather has given rise to the popular tradition that houseflies bite before a rain, which is based upon the fact that at such times the stable fly is more apt to come indoors. It bites more commonly, however, out of doors and in bright, sunny weather.
It has been known to bite sometimes at night near an electric light.

The stable fly appears early in the spring and becomes much more abundant after midsummer and persists in considerable numbers late into the fall after the housefly has begun rapidly to disappear.

Both sexes are blood-suckers and become greatly swollen when allowed to feed unmolested. When thus en-gorged they remain sluggish for a time and are apt to rest with their wings somewhat more widely spread apart than the housefly and with the body more distinctly elevated.

If one of the flies is closely examined from above as it rests in this position, the proboscis can be seen projecting horizontally like the pin of a fine black pin directly forward from the lower edge of the head. Viewed from the side, the proboscis is seen to emerge from the lower side of the head and then bend forward at right angles for a distance about the height of the head, in shape somewhat like a bayonet. When sucking blood the proboscis is straightened so that it projects directly downward from its attachment to the head. Since in the housefly, when it is at rest, the mouthparts never project so as to be visible from above, the two species can be thus distinguished.

BREEDING HABITS.

The breeding habits are much like those of the housefly. The eggs, which are distributed in small masses, hatch into a small white maggot which feeds rapidly, increasing in size and molting twice before changing into the pupa or resting stage, from which the adult fly emerges four or five weeks after the egg has been laid. The eggs are laid directly upon materials which will serve as food for the larvae. Fermenting heaps of grass, straw and similar substances, horse-manure, cow-dung and even garbage may serve as breeding places. The relative importance of these different foods is not yet very well known, but it seems probable that it is about in the order named.
Excessive moisture is also particularly favorable for the development of the larvae.

Stomoxys calcitrans is very widely distributed over the earth, occurring abundantly throughout Europe, North and South America, the West Indies, Northern Africa, Asia, Australia, etc.
It is the only member of its genus in the new world, but has a number of cousins in the tropics of the eastern hemisphere. The tsetse fly of Africa is a close relative of Stomoxys.
Whether it is native to North America or is an importation from the old world is difficult to say, but from its wide occurrence, one would be perhaps inclined to think it native to our own region. At any rate it has been in America for a long period.

ITS CONTROL.

The control of the stable fly will probably prove as difficult as that of the housefly and its eradication is obviously impossible. The ordinary fly traps and sticky fly papers which have proved so useful in dealing with the housefly are of no practical benefit in combating the stable fly since it is not attracted to the resinous coating of the paper, nor, since its only food in the adult condition is the blood of living animals, can it be tempted into traps. The "coming and going" fly traps devised by Professor Hodge, however, will undoubtedly catch large numbers of Stomoxys if attached to the doors and windows of stables and barns. The most important control must undoubtedly depend upon the fact that the species develops in manure, decaying grass cuttings, etc. To take care of these in such a way as to prevent the stable fly from breeding in them is a very difficult matter. Nevertheless it should be possible to develop methods which will greatly reduce the number of breeding places for this fly, which is now known to be so dangerous to human beings.

MARY BOYLE O'REILLY OF BOSTON AND THE UNITED STATES--THE STORY OF A WOMAN WHO DOES GREAT, BIG THINGS.

MARY BOYLE O'REILLY.

If you were to ask any intelligent man or woman in Massachusetts "Who's Mary Boyle O'Reilly?" you would be set down as pitifully ignorant.

Her name is the best known Irish name in New England. It opens official locks for her in New York and Washington. It is famous in Ireland. It gives her entire alike in the exclusive Back Bay of Boston, in the offices of governors, senators and presidents, among philanthropists, editors and social workers, in factories and in prisons.

This brilliant woman is the daughter of John Boyle O'Reilly, the famous Irish patriot and poet, imprisoned and exiled for his efforts to free Ireland, and revered as one of the great names of Boston.

"Miss Boyle O'Reilly," as her humble Irish friends in Boston call her, or "Miss Molly," as she is known to many a man and woman in high station, inherits her father's genius and passion for liberty and service. She also inherits—and has earned it, too —the personality and loyalty and love of her race.

What has she done? That would make a long story, for Miss O'Reilly still young in years and in face and heart, is gray in useful action, there are a few of her achievements in the realm of social service.

For seven years she was prison commissioner of Massachusetts, giving her time, effort and sympathy without pay, reorganizing and humanizing the department, preaching prison reform and leaving her imprint on the character and lives of many thousand prisoners.

For eight years she was trustee of the children's institution department of Massachusetts—the official mother of 1,500 children.

Her best known piece of social service was her "baby farm investigation" of 1910, begun and carried on by her alone, at her own expense. She revealed a horrible and widespread system of "farming out" babies in New Hampshire, including starvation and murder of infants, and succeeded in having a law passed to stop the practice.

She has investigated garages, nurseries, cotton factories and laundries, working on a level with hopeless tailors, and has made her work effective in publicity and agitation for corrective laws.

In the "hot wave" of early July, 1911, when the thermometer stood 101 degrees in the shade at the seashore, Miss O'Reilly was operating a bubble in a steam laundry in a Boston basement. She was there to investigate personally the wrongs of laundry workers.

She has written much for magazines and newspapers—her editorial articles and "Mrs. Delchany" stories are famous in Boston—but she has done more.

Against the protests of relatives and friends, and usually at her own expense, Miss O'Reilly has chosen this hard path to make it easier for the less fortunate.

Santa Fe, N. M. My Dear Mr. Stauffer: Governor McDonald honored me as one of the delegates to the Miners congress to be held in Spokane, Washington, on the 25th.

Will you kindly announce in your valuable paper this fact and my inability to attend, owing to the birth of a baby girl at 6:10 p. m. on the evening of the 20th—two girls and three boys now—enough, considering the outlook, for a G. O. P. family. And thus oblige.

RAZOR IN SOCK. IT IS SAID.

Washington, Nov. 25.—Charges of homebreaking and carrying concealed weapons were this afternoon preferred against William Meritt, colored, who gave his address as 1751 Stanton street northwest. Policeman Brawning of the tenth precinct arrested Meritt. When searched at the police station, it is stated, a razor was found concealed in one of his socks.

Meritt, it is charged, visited the janitor's apartment at the Northumberland apartment house, New Hampshire avenue near U street, and had a bundle of clothing ready to take away when he was arrested.

RUBS CARBOLIC ACID ON FACE.

Flint, Mich., Nov. 25.—After having shaved himself preparatory to officiating at a funeral, Rev. George M. Vercoe, pastor of the North Baptist church, picked up a bottle under the impression that it contained peroxide of hydrogen and proceeded to complete his toilet by rubbing some of its contents on his face. It was carbolic acid, and as a result of the painful mistake Mr. Vercoe was obliged to cancel his funeral engagement and place himself under the care of a physician.

FIRE SCARE.

Dowagiac, Mich., Nov. 25.—Mrs. Snyder, wife of a Dowagiac jeweler, placed a chicken on the stove to broil and then forgot all about it in her hurried preparations to accompany her husband to Kalamazoo. The city marshal, in passing the Snyder home, which is in the rear of the store, saw smoke pouring through the transom. He summoned the fire department and entrance was gained through a window. No fire was found, but a column of odorous smoke arose from the charred remains of the fowl upon the eas range.

TEAMSTER SHOT BY POLICEMAN.

Chicago, Ill., Nov. 25.—Pelted with rocks by Irving Farrell, 3153 South Halsted street, a teamster, and several of the Farrell family, Patrolman John Homan of the Thirty-fifth street station early yesterday morning shot and killed Farrell. The latter had been arraigned a few hours later on a charge of setting fire to a newspaper wagon during the recent strike. Last June Farrell's younger brother, Earl, was killed and another brother, Edward, wounded when they attacked Patrolman Williams of the Twenty-second street station. Williams was exonerated.

WILLIE WILL STEAL NO MORE.

Ypsilanti, Mich., Nov. 25.—The father of Willie Ladd, the diminutive lad who stole fountain pens, billiard balls, lead pencils and a paper-cutter, has put a quietus on his son's pilfering activities.

After ascertaining that the boy was too young to be sent to the reform school, the father invented a set of hand straps which are made to fasten behind Willie's back, and are so fitted and adjusted that they hold the little fellow's hands securely to his body, thus preventing him from stealing on the way to school.

When Willie leaves home the straps are fastened and when he arrives at school his teacher unfastens the straps, and refastens them before he departs for home.

Don't Look Old Before Your Time

WOMAN'S delicate system requires more than ordinary care and attention—more care and attention than it is given by the average woman.

Neglect it and it will soon creep in, and the look of old age, sometimes quickly, sometimes gradually follows.

That backache, so common among women, brings with it the sunken chest, the headache, tired muscles, crows' feet, and soon the youthful body is no more youthful in appearance—and all because of lack of attention.

There is no reason why you should be so unfortunate, when you have at your disposal a remedy such as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription—recommended for over 40 years as a remedy for ailments peculiar to women. We have thousands upon thousands of testimonials on file—the accumulation of 40 years—testifying to its effectiveness. Neither nerved nor alcohol are to be found in this famous prescription. WANT TO BE LEADING MAN IN "THE MOVIES?" HERE'S WHAT YOU'VE GOT TO HAVE, AS TOLD BY ONE OF THE BIGGEST.

(By Gertrude M. Price.)

The Daily New Mexican's Moving Picture Expert.

Francis X. Bushman is a brand new kind of a leading man! He learned no dialog! He never acts at night.

Millions of people have seen him, yet few have ever heard his voice!

More than half his roles are played in the great outdoors, where there is neither audience nor applause! Rouge is an unknown quantity in his make-up wardrobe is the least of his troubles!

Yet he probably has more followers than any matinee idol who ever lived. And it is all because—he is leading man in moving picture plays!

What is he like? How does he look? What does he wear? What does he think? Where does he live? Is he anything like the ordinary leading man?

These are the questions we have all been thinking since the moving picture player found a place on our regular list of special friends.

To satisfy my curiosity—and yours—I made a special trip to the big Essanay studio on the outskirts of Chicago to see him.

Francis X. (for Xavier) Bushman looks like an immaculate beau brummed in his every-day street attire.

He is real, not make believe. He is human, not spot-light spoiled.

He looks what he is, a Virginian. His eyes are blue. His brown hair is a trifle curly (the genuine actor brand) and his physique is an athlete's. For four years while he was playing in stock in New York, he was known as the best sculptor's model.

FRANCIS X. BUSHMAN.

Success as a moving picture player, Bushman says, depends on a big quantity of the following qualities:

Nerve. Readiness to take any chance which may add realism to a picture. A thorough knowledge of gesture. A definite personality. Good habits.

An athletic, supple body.

From my own observations I concluded the greatest difference between a photo player (the correct name, by the way) and the ordinary actor is his "realness." The secret is the naturalness with which he works and plays and lives.

Let me pass on to you a few things

NERVE
GESTURES
PERSONALITY ATHLETIC
GOOD HABITS

Bushman told me about his profession.

"The art of moving picture playing is the art of pantomime," he says.

"A man may be ever such a wonder in the regular theatrical production and a complete failure in a moving picture—because he knows little of gesture or the value of action.

Gesture is the photo player's greatest weapon. He must be able to gauge action by seconds. Personality is his one best bet for popularity with the public.

"You can't fake in a moving picture. You just have to live the part."

"The moving picture field is a wonderful one in which to play new characters, but if you've never tried it, you don't know what it means to act without an audience."

Bushman is under contract to the Essanay studio. If anyone were to ask him what he will have to do tomorrow he would probably be as much in the dark as the questioner.

And if someone else wanted him to recount the narrow escapes and dangerous experiences he has already had, he wouldn't know which to tell first. Falling out of burning buildings (which actually burned), jumping off high cliffs, rolling down mountain sides and struggling hand-to-hand with the "villain" are all in a day's work for Bushman.

JIM JEFFRIES IS DISGUSTED WITH THE FIGHT GAME—WONDER WHY?

Says Present Day Boxers Just a Lot of Clinchers and That the Game Has Fallen Into Decay.

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 25.—James J. Jeffries, once world's heavyweight champion, is disgusted with the fight game. He says so himself. Jeff's disgust is based on the loss of clean fighters and the predominance in the ring of the clinchers and rough work artists.

"There is too much holding, clinching and other rough work in the ring today," declared Jeff in a recent interview.

"I was not fighting long before I came to the conclusion that it was of as much importance to me to thoroughly understand the rules as it was to know how to hit a blow properly. I studied them closely and the knowledge I gained was an important factor in helping me win my fights."

"How?" you may ask. In the first place, in all my contests, I was never warned, cautioned or censured by any referee. There never was any occasion for it. I knew the rules and obeyed them at all times.

"Why a boxer should hold I never have been able to understand and when I see one doing so, I cannot help but believe that he is afraid of getting hit. How in the name of heaven can you hurt any one in the ring by holding his hands or arms? You have to hit him to do that."

"The man who leads first always leaves himself open to counters more or less."

"Supposing both men adopt the same method of boxing?" you may ask. "That same thing has happened to me many times and in that case I never hesitated to carry the going to the other man, and it was always under these circumstances that got cut out the worst."

"I won the championship by a counter blow. I also defended my title on four other occasions by a counter. I beat Fitzsimmons with a counter when he was coming to me, and won the championship. I later defended it against him and beat him a second time with a left-hand swinging counter to his body."

"I beat Gus Ruhlin and Jim Corbett each with the same counter and defeated Jim Corbett the first time with a left-hand swinging counter to the chin and put him out with one punch."

"How often do you see a boxer counter these days? Few can tell what a counter really is. It is usually rushing in with head down and slam bang away without the least effort to block, duck, or jump away from a blow. They swing from all positions and all angles and it is getting to be quite a common thing to see a boxer stand with his right foot forward.

"It is a wild rush and immediately a clinch and then a lot of slam bang on each other's backs with the open hands. The slapper is fast coming to his own. When nowadays you see a boxer hit and drop his man for the full count in one punch? These things were a common occurrence years ago and unless a boxer could do this when he had a good square crack at his man, he was not considered a good fighter."

"In my early fights I was constantly hurting my hands and thumbs. I used swings principally in those days and did not turn my hands properly when hitting. When I learned to hold them correctly I never received an injury to them, but still stuck to the foolish idea of bandaging my hands."

"I came to the conclusion that this also was a bad practice as I figured that I never wore them while training and there should be no good reason for doing so during a contest, so discarded them and never had the least trouble after."

"Good foot work is seldom seen these days. Many seem to think that the more a boxer dances and jigs around the ring the cleverer he is on his feet."

"Did you ever watch Jim Corbett, Abe Attell or Joe Gans? Any of these three great boxers could make you miss a blow by moving their feet an inch or two."

"Painting is also a joke. Jim Corbett was the peer of all men at this art, and it surely is an art in itself. Corbett could, by feinting, make most any man hit any kind of a blow he wanted him to strike, and knowing this, it was an easy matter to counter."

"Referees are also somewhat to blame for the backward move in the boxing game. While many thoroughly understand the rules, they are powerless to a certain extent when it comes to enforcing them. But if they were more determined and hesitated less about disqualifying boxers for breaking the rules, they would soon bring it back to the real thing, the manly art of self-defense."

"I will get McIntyre, not as a fighter, but as an outsider, as he believes Harry will make good in the outer garden."

Joe O'Brien is being mentioned as a probable candidate for the presidency of the National League. Bob Brown, of Louisville, however, seems to be a favorite for the place.

Hal Chase is touring the east with an all-star basketball team. Bud Sharpe, ex-manager of the pennant-winning Oakland team, has signed to act as scout for the Boston Nationals.

Some questions baseball fans are asking are these: "Will Tinker be traded?" "Will Bodie go to the Athletics for Chief Bender?"

President Perry, of the Los Angeles club, denied he sought Frank Chance as manager of his team.

Felix Chouinard, formerly outfielder of the Chicago Americans, who belongs to Des Moines, says he will quit baseball to go into business.

Mordecai Brown, who still belongs to the Cubs, does not believe his pitching days are over. He is still being sought by Terre Haute to manage the "Tots."

TIGERS MAY LOSE DUBOC

Boston, Nov. 25.—Jean Duboc, star pitcher of the Detroit club, has received an offer from the Paris club of the French Union Baseball league to coach that team for a period of five years, and that it is now a question with him whether he will accept or not.

It rests largely with whether he gets a sufficient increase in salary to make the Paris offer less attractive. The sum offered by the Paris club, he says, is $3000 more than he has already asked the Detroit club to give him next season. Duboc has been visiting in Haverhill, Mass., and left for his home in Montreal.

He said he felt confident the Tigers would give him a satisfactory increase in salary, and that he preferred to remain on this side of the Atlantic. Duboc says that he is not the only major league player approached by the Frenchmen. Andy Coakley and Tommy McCarthy, of Boston, have also received offers to go to France.

EVERS MAKES FIRST TRADE

Chicago, Nov. 25.—Johnny Evers' maiden trade as a major league manager was announced today. The Cubs traded Tom Downey, formerly shortstop of the Reds, and later with Philadelphia, for Eddie McDonald, third baseman of the Boston Nationals, who was chased to the Sacramento team of the Coast league before the end of the 1912 season.

Evers will use McDonald as a utility infielder and is certain he will make good. McDonald refused to report to the coast team and has been a member of the hold-out class since.

Manager Evers left today for Troy, N. Y. Joe Tinker, who wants to be the Reds' manager in 1913, says he has reached the stage where he doesn't care what happens. He made this statement after learning that Garry Herrmann had refused to trade four players to the Cubs for Tinker.

Tinker will sign Harry McIntyre, former Cub pitcher, in the event he is made Cincinnati manager. Tinker

IS FULTZ IN WRONG

BY J. ED GRILLO.

President Dave Fultz of the Base Ball Players' Protective association, does not appear to be familiar with the facts of two cases of injustice which he points out to show how the players are getting the worst of it.

Jack Knight and Jim Delehanty are the two players picked out as having suffered by reason of the high-handed methods of the magnates, and yet when the facts of the two cases mentioned are considered it would seem that neither Knight nor Delehanty has the slightest reason for protest.

Knight came to Washington under an old Washington contract which called for a salary of $4,000. He did not report until a few days before the season opened, and was not in condition to do himself justice. Griffith was trying to build up a team of youngsters, most of whom were not drawing fancy salaries. He considered it an injustice to these players to allow Knight, a high-salaried man, to sit on the bench, for he was unable to play, and after carrying him along for a couple of months, sold him to the Jersey City club, which, of course, cut Knight's salary. Knight was himself responsible for this state of affairs. Had he taken any interest in his work he might have filled a position regularly on the team, and continued in major league base ball, drawing as much salary, if not more, than he signed for with New York.

"Did you ever watch Jim Corbett, Abe Attell or Joe Gans? Any of these three great boxers could make you miss a blow by moving their feet an inch or two."

"Painting is also a joke. Jim Corbett was the peer of all men at this art, and it surely is an art in itself. Corbett could, by feinting, make most any man hit any kind of a blow he wanted him to strike, and knowing this, it was an easy matter to counter."

But if they were more determined and hesitated less about disqualifying boxers for breaking the rules, they would soon bring it back to the real thing, the manly art of self-defense."

The policeman cautioned the men to cross the street to the east side, but Harder attempted to run over him. The officer released his hold on the horse and mopped him around a bit. Neither the alleged ignorance of traffic laws nor their picturesque costumes had any effect on the magistrate. He set Harder back $5 and discharged the other three with a reprimand.

While "Rube" Marquard, baseball pitcher, and Blossom Seelye, in private life Mrs. Joseph Kane, were strolling down Broadway last night near the corner of Twenty-eighth street, their enjoyment of the bracing air was interrupted by the sudden advent of a lawyer who served the actress with papers in a suit for absolute divorce brought by her husband. The complaint named Richard Marquard as co-respondent. The Giants' pitcher is now involved in two suits as the result of his friendship with his vaudeville partner. He yesterday filed in the supreme court his answer to the other, which is for $50,000 and brought by Kane, who alleges the alienation of his wife's affections. "INFAMOUS LIE" DECLARES DEBS

Terre Haute, Ind., Nov. 25.—Eugene V. Debs, indicted by the federal grand jury at Girard, Kansas, Saturday, appeared at his home today, refuting the report that he had started for Fort Scott, Kansas, on hearing of the indictment. Speaking of the case, Debs said: "These indictments are based on an infamous lie. There never was any attempt by the officers of the 'Appeal to Reason' to induce any witnesses to leave anywhere. I have recently been the candidate of the working classes for the presidency. I suppose I can now be the candidate of a capitalist class for the penitentiary. Were the whole truth about conditions in the Fort Leavenworth prison known the world would stand aghast."

VARITY MAY GET BEQUEST

Denver, Colo., Nov. 25.—Arguments were heard today by the state supreme court in the case involving the estate of the late Andrew J. Macky, of Boulder, valued at several hundred thousand dollars. An effort is being made to secure a large sum for the benefit of the University of Colorado. Litigations were that at the conclusion of arguments the case would be taken under advisement.

FIFTY MEN IN MINE DISASTER 30 RESCUED

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Nov. 25.—Fifty men were caught behind a cave-in at the No. 2 mine of the Barnum Coal company at Pittston today. Thirty of them were taken out, some of them seriously injured. Others managed to make their own way out. It is not known as yet whether any more men are in the mine. Rescuers are at work.

eye and ear. He is wanted for murder.

KILLED AT LAMY.

The report that a man was killed in a shooting affray at Lamy was denied today by Justice J. M. Garcia, who investigated the death of a Spanish-American there. The man's name was Rafael Cabrera and he was struck by an east-bound Santa Fe train. The man was brought here and died a little after midnight Saturday.

REPORT FROM ALBUQUERQUE.

The Associated Press dispatch from Albuquerque has a different version of the shooting, stating that Archuleta was a deputy sheriff. Says the dispatch:

"Albuquerque, N. M., Nov. 25.—In a pitched battle with a band of sheep thieves, Saturday night, at San Isidro, 45 miles from Albuquerque, Pablo Lucero and Manuel Archuleta, deputy sheriffs, were instantly killed and Moses Abousleman, a wealthy sheep raiser, was seriously injured."

"Abousleman and the officers, with a posse of nine men were in pursuit of the thieves who had stolen three hundred sheep from the Abousleman ranch. The posse had lost the trail of the thieves and had given up the chase."

"At dusk they sighted a camp fire. Without thought of danger they rode up and were shot down. The thieves escaped into the mountains where they are being pursued by a strong posse."

NEW YORK LETTER.

New York, Nov. 25.—The West Side court resembled a scene from the western cattle country yesterday as four Sixth avenue "cow punchers" ambled into court with clinking spurs, gaily colored shirts and Mexican sombreros. The men were charged with disorderly conduct by Daniel Sullivan, a traffic officer, who arrested them at Broadway and Forty-fifth street for riding bronchos north on the west side of Broadway. They gave their names as William Harder, Kansas City; Frederick Cox, Muskogee, Okla.; Charles Bennett, San Juan, Tex., and John Roy, Mexico, Mo.

The policeman cautioned the men to cross the street to the east side, but Harder attempted to run over him. The officer released his hold on the horse and mopped him around a bit. Neither the alleged ignorance of traffic laws nor their picturesque costumes had any effect on the magistrate. He set Harder back $5 and discharged the other three with a reprimand.

While "Rube" Marquard, baseball pitcher, and Blossom Seelye, in private life Mrs. Joseph Kane, were strolling down Broadway last night near the corner of Twenty-eighth street, their enjoyment of the bracing air was interrupted by the sudden advent of a lawyer who served the actress with papers in a suit for absolute divorce brought by her husband. The complaint named Richard Marquard as co-respondent. The Giants' pitcher is now involved in two suits as the result of his friendship with his vaudeville partner. He yesterday filed in the supreme court his answer to the other, which is for $50,000 and brought by Kane, who alleges the alienation of his wife's affections. Marquard says Blossom Seelye "never manifested any love or affection for her husband," and of course, if there wasn't any affection Mr. Marquard couldn't possibly alienate any.

Mrs. John Astor occupied the Astor box at the Metropolitan opera house last evening for the first time in several years. On the death of John Jacob Astor the box came into the possession of Vincent Astor. With Mrs. Astor was Lady Moyra Cavendish, who is staying at the Ritz-Carlton hotel. She came yesterday from Golden, B. C. Mrs. Astor was gowned in white satin, trimmed with silver spangles. In her hair was a black aigrette. Her jewels were pearls and sapphires. Lady Cavendish was gowned in black and white.

An indication that a truce has been declared between the Shuberts and David Belasco was the discontinuance yesterday of three damage suits aggregating $450,000 brought by the Shuberts against Belasco. When Mr. Belasco was sued last summer by an East Side barber for alleged plagiarism and was compelled to testify before trial, he blamed the Shuberts for causing the litigation.

Jerry J. Cohan, parentally responsible for George M., is also responsible for this story:

"Several years ago the Four Cohans arrived in a little southern town to play a one-night engagement. At the station we got into a carriage that must have been at least 100 years old, pulled by a horse of about the same age, and driven by an excellent counterfeiter of Uncle Tom."

"This aged person considered it his duty to tell his patrons all about everything within our range of vision. We passed an artesian well which had recently been put down. The water, as we afterward learned, had been analyzed and found to contain hydrochlorates in considerable quantities. 'Dis yere,' said our guide, 'is a artillary well that we jus' done got. Dey scandalized de watah yestiddy and his plum full ob hydrophoby.'

Denver, Colo., Nov. 25.—News has been received here of the death at Sorata, Bolivia, on October 25, of Emile Charest, a Colorado pioneer, who was associated with the late David H. Moffat, in mining ventures in the early days of the state. Charest came to Colorado in 1872. He was a French Canadian.

Those who are to be married are as follows: Miguel Gorman, Jr. and Miss Clara Valdez, of Santa Fe, who will be married Wednesday by Monsignor Fourcheau; Lorenzo Trujillo and Miss Rafaelita Portillo, who will also have the monsignor tie the nuptial knot; Guadalupe Jiron, brother of county commissioner Jiron, of Pojoaque, and Miss Juanita Garcia, of Santa Cruz; and Ferdinand Armijo, of Pena Blanca and Angelina Gorman, of Santa Fe, will be married by the vicar general here Wednesday.

Simply call up 213 W. and we will be glad to take care of your usual or unusual wants. Zook's Pharmacy.

The Day Before Thanksgiving Dinner—On the day before Thanksgiving, Wednesday, November 27, from 11 a. m. to 5 p. m. the ladies of the African Methodist church will serve an "Old-Fashioned" Thanksgiving dinner, consisting of the delicacies of the season for 35 cents, at 237 San Francisco street, in the Capital City bank building. No pains have been spared in making this dinner the best in every respect. It has been prepared by some of Santa Fe's best cooks. One of the special features besides the dining room decorations, will be the "business people's hour" from 12 to 1. Special seats reserved for ladies. You can not afford to miss this gastronomic treat of the season. We are expecting you.

"Santa Fe is Growing" has been said time and again, but is there better proof of it than the development of certain business institutions here? Take the pharmacy of John N. Zook for example. Five years ago, Mr. Zook opened his drug store on the west side of the plaza, some where near the middle of the block. He conducted it by himself, employing a boy to deliver orders. The business grew with the city and Mr. Zook moved closer to the Plaza and San Francisco corner, and sent to Pennsylvania for Jack Collins. Both pharmacists worked under great strain for two years and as business increased by leaps and bounds Mr. Zook moved again, some 20 feet nearer the corner, until now he is right next to the Capital City Bank. Today, Mr. Zook has a second assistant, forming with him, a trio of pharmacists. The new hustler is Frank Treichler, of Norristown, near Philadelphia, and a graduate of the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy. Mr. Zook has built up this business in five years and his success is due probably to three factors: Quality in drugs, prompt service, and a very fortunate selection of his co-workers. Mr. Treichler will be welcomed by the friends of Mr. Zook and Mr. Collins.

MORE PENSIONS

Our old friend, Andrew Carnegie, has discovered another way to spend some of his income.

He has turned aside, for a time, from the establishment of his bookless libraries; attention to the establishment of his fruitless peace fund; the Carnegie Institute fund of Pittsburgh; the advancement of teaching fund; and now he wants to establish a corporation providing for the pensioning of ex-presidents.

This endowment gives $25,000 a year to our ex-presidents as a pension, and a similar amount is to be given their widows as long as they do not marry.

This is not in keeping with the principles upon which our government is founded, nor is it in line with what we have been taught belongs to a true democracy.

It is Mr. Carnegie's money, however, and if he wants to pay it out to pension men who have been chief magistrates of this republic, that is Carnegie's own business. If it were to be taken from a fund drawn from the people, or by legislative enactment, it would be an outrage and a blow at democracy.

We boast of our equality of citizenship. We have no kings, nor dukes, nor counts, nor rulers by inheritance.

We are even contemplating restricting the term of presidential service to a single term of six years. We are striving to hold to the tenets of a true democracy.

We have bestowed that our presidents are but citizens of the republic, honored for a time, a brief time, and that after their time of service they return once more to the ranks of plain citizenship.

Just why a citizen who has served as president is entitled to a life pension is not easy to see, and just what special value the ex-presidents would be in devoting their unique knowledge gained in public affairs to the public good, free from pecuniary care, is difficult to discover.

There are always plenty of men, it is to be noticed, who are willing to be president without the prize of a life pension attached. There never has been a scarcity of patriots ready to be sacrificed. There never will be, and looking back over the list of ex-presidents, who lived for a time after leaving the presidential office, those worth $25,000 a year to the people are very, very scarce, and few of them could earn half that if left to his own resources, nor would the service rendered the people be worth the cost.

One would have to stretch imagination a long ways to make it appear that Andy Johnson could be worth $25,000 a year to the people, or Rutherford B. Hayes, or John Tyler, or Millard Fillmore, or Franklin Pierce, or James Buchanan, all of whom lived for a number of years after the expiration of their terms. The future may hold more.

To the man who has not money enough to be a philanthropist, but who is close enough to the people to see their needs and suffering, it seems as if a corporation to help the worthy poor who are starving would be as valuable as one to furnish pensions to ex-presidents.

But, in this instance, it is Mr. Carnegie's own money to do with as he likes, and he has shown clearly that he takes greater pleasure in building monuments to Carnegie than to giving aid to the hungry and needy, no matter how worthy they be.

WISHES ARE WINGS

Wishes are wings.

Upon them we mount to what heights we will.

The boy who longs for the sea and whose heart leaps at the roar of the breakers and thrills at sight of a sail is building his own ship.

The youth who sits spellbound by the words of the orator and makes the solitude eloquent with his own declamations is erecting his own rostrum of pulpit.

The child Napoleon playing ceaselessly with his wooden soldiers was making a new map of a continent.

Opportunity? It is generated within himself.

Environment? Soul purpose goes through that as a flame goes through a sheet of tissue paper.

But the wish must be genuine, soul-deep.

The artist cannot by mere wishing have the colors arrange themselves upon his canvases. The wish must be virile enough to be a source of ceaseless effort and consummate skill.

We become what we wish to become and we do what we wish to do, not through wishes that are shallow and fleeting fancies, but earnest, constant yearning of the soul.

The scientific theory regarding the evolution of the eagle is suggestive. The dream of flight was there before the wings. Through generations of ceaseless longing, slow but sure development and adaptation went on until at last the eagle on mighty pinions soared triumphantly aloft toward the sun.

There is hardly any obstacle, hardly any limitation, that mind cannot overcome.

Soul will find its own, as surely and as irresistibly as the homing dove finds its roost, the bee the clover, and the seed-shoots the light it seeks.

THAT CHRISTMAS LIST

The worry and harrowing losses on working girls and others of modest means in meeting the annual "Christmas list" has resulted in the formation of an "anti-Christmas present" organization in Chicago under the leadership of Dr. Lena K. Sailer. A number of well known clubwomen have joined in the crusade.

It is high time that some check was placed on the grind of this business, as it has grown to be, of feeling obliged to make a return of last year's gift. Many a working girl or person in modest circumstances, is harried and worried at this season of the year. This move is not to destroy the Christmas present or put a damper on good-fellowship, but to keep the joy of Christmas and eliminate the burden it has come to be, in some respects. Would that the Chicago movement would become general.

The political kaleidoscope is likely to present some fancy colors in the next few months, and indeed, in the next four years. Already gossip is lively as to the relationship to exist between Wilson and Bryan. Willie Hearst has prognosticated and sees Bryan at the helm of the old ship of state, with pirates on board and mutiny rampant. According to the Hearst program the country has ahead as pretty a melodrama as was ever set on the political stage, with the curtain going up about March 1.

Carnegie is certainly an anomaly. The making of armour plate and harboring of the dove of peace, do not seem to be exactly in accord. But his effort in the former occupation has been so successful that his failure in the latter is not of so great account, perhaps.

The meanest man has been discovered. He made his wife pay his poll tax and then went out and voted against woman suffrage. This was in Virginia. If they ever get suffrage in the Old Dominion, that man has some thing coming to him.

They have unearthed chafing dishes in the ruins of Pompeii. And we thought the chafing dish was modern. Next thing we know they will be digging up evidence to prove that there were joy riders in Roman life.

AS THE BYSTANDER SEES IT

ANOTHER LESSON.
The other night at the movies there was a picture giving a chapter out of real life. A man had gone wrong. He had paid the penalty with a term in the penitentiary. He was now looking for work. He found a position in a factory. A detective saw him, informed the proprietor of his record, and the man was discharged.

This is really what happens in life. The practice has grown in this country and probably the world over, to close the door against a man who has committed a crime, no matter if he has paid the penalty and is trying to make good. It is one of the most pitiful things in life. Today it seems to be considered a duty of the prosecuting attorney to convict. His duty as defined by the statute is lost sight of. He is after a record of conviction. It is the desire for victory for himself. This is true as well of the detective of our day. Once he has arrested a man he is an enemy to that man always and blocks his chance to win out in life at every angle of the road. Human nature is frail. We all commit errors. The only difference is in the degree, but we would consider it an injustice if our errors were never forgotten and we must pay the penalty for the balance of our lives.

Of course when a man has gone wrong and then continues in and does not try to make good when he has paid the penalty, he cannot expect help nor sympathy, but if he does try, it is a pity that he cannot be given a chance. If that theory of life had been carried out when we were kids, and our parents had been still unforgiving after that blistering spanking, but were still looking for a chance to catch us again, there would be even worse men and women in the world than there are now. That kind of corrective spirit does not help. That was a big lesson given by the movie.

THAT CHRISTMAS LIST.

The annual list of Christmas gifts that is before us in waking and sleeping hours at this time of the year and stays with us up to Christmas eve, is looking us in the face again. We have a few people on the list to whom we want to send just a remembrance, a little better than a Christmas card, but not a gift that breaks us.

I remember mentioning Bill Brown's pretty brochure in this connection and those dainty pictures of Miss Massie. On Saturday night I saw another.

We are all wanting to boom Santa Fe and advertise the old town through the east. Here's a way to kill two birds with one stone,—give a pretty gift and advertise Santa Fe.

All at once, after a dearth of local post cards, we now have a bountiful supply. Fischer has just put in a line and they are beauties. They are the dull finish and the coloring touches the perfection point. They include views of the town and its surroundings. Fischer is putting these up in photo album style and they certainly make a most attractive gift at small cost, at the same time, doing just what we are all trying to do,—boom the city of Santa Fe, and call attention to it.

These pictures of Fischer's are really gems from an artistic standpoint and they do seem to fill a niche that is just now vacant.

It is a fact that outside of the rail road folders that are issued by the Santa Fe and D. & R. G., there is little illustrated stuff that goes out, bringing Santa Fe to the front and giving the attractive features that can be given in no other way.

I mention these pretty albums both for the purpose of giving a method of helping the town to get noticed and from a sympathetic spirit, hoping to ease the worry of those who are facing the Christmas list and do not know how to get rid of it short of temporary bankruptcy and nerve racking worry.

THE CITY LIGHTS.

Some time ago I remember mentioning the fact that the lights on some of our main streets have burned out and had been out for some length of time, making long stretches of absolute darkness which in a less peaceful city than Santa Fe might result in great danger to pedestrians.

When attention was called to this matter through this column, Manager Owen told the Bystander that if the people along these streets and avenues would send in word to the office that these lights had been burned out and that the streets were not being properly lighted that he would give the matter immediate attention and not a night need pass before these burned out lights would be replaced.

An instance of what might occur when the lights are out even in the central portion of the city was il-

AN ANALYSIS OF THE VOTE

AND THE RESULTS FROM IT

(By Gilson Gardner.)

Washington, D. C., Nov. 25.—According to returns received by the clerk of the house of representatives, the democratic strength in the next house will be approximately 285 members, out of a total membership of 435, a majority of 155.

The total opposition will number only 138, including republicans, progressives and independents.

The democrats refuse to make any difference between progressives and Taft republicans, and in making up their official lists all are being listed as "republicans."

Of course, when the congressional directory is made up, each of these 138 men will be required to state his party affiliation. Here will come the rub. A lot of republicans were elected with endorsements by the progressive party, and as a result of pledges that they will support progressive measures. Now they will be asked to go on record officially as "progressives" or "republicans." They must choose their party designation; they cannot straddle any longer.

The best estimates obtainable at this time place the number of real progressives elected at approximately 55. It is impossible, however, to say whether there will be more or less than this number. On this basis, the republicans would number approximately 105.

The overwhelming number of democrats in the house would seem to indicate an overwhelming democratic vote in the country at large. This, however, is not the case. If there were proportional representation—that is, if each party were represented in congress according to the total number of votes cast by the party—the congressional lineup would be very different.

Instead of the figures above, the house would be made up of 180 democrats, 125 progressives, 96 republicans, 26 socialists, 6 prohibitionists and 2 socialist-laborites.

The total number of votes cast in the election was approximately 15,200,000. There were divided approximately as follows: Democrats, 6,500,000; progressives, 4,500,000; republicans, 3,500,000; socialists, 1,000,000; prohibitionists, 250,000; and socialist-labor, 50,000. These figures are estimated in round numbers.

If the various parties were entitled to representation in congress in proportion to the number of votes cast, which is the only logical system, their representation would be as set forth above. The democrats would have 41.5 per cent of the membership, the progressives 28.5 per cent, republicans 22 per cent, socialists 6 per cent, prohibitionists 1.5 per cent and socialist-labor 0.5 per cent.

Under the present system, a majority of the voters of the country are controlled by a minority. The democratic party polled only 6,500,000 votes, as compared with a combined opposition of 9,200,000. This opposition is not really represented in congress. The socialists, prohibitionists and socialist-labor parties have no representatives, while the republicans, who polled a million votes less than the progressives, have approximately 100 members as compared with the 35 members of the progressive party.

The illogical character of our system was recognized by the framers of our constitution. As long ago as 1787 in the constitutional debates, James Wilson said: "The justice of the general proposition of proportional representation has not, in argument at least, been yet contradicted."

Nor has it been contradicted since then. We have gone on in a casual sort of way, without examining the practical operation of our system.

The problem is one for the states. There is no constitutional barrier. Every state has the power, if it desires, to elect its members of congress at large and to provide for proportional representation.

WHY IT SUCCEEDS

Because it's For One Thing Only, and Santa Fe People Appreciate This. Nothing can be good for everything. Doing one thing well brings success.

Doan's Kidney Pills are for one thing only. For weak or disordered kidneys. Here is Santa Fe evidence to prove their worth.

Albino Ortega, College St., Santa Fe, N. Mex., says: "For several years I had trouble from my back and kidneys. It was hard for me to work, owing to pains in my loins and a sudden movement aggravated my trouble. My rest was disturbed by a too frequent desire to void the kidney secretions and the passages were scanty and painful. Public statements given by local people who had used Doan's Kidney Pills with effect, induced me to try them. I found relief at once and after I had finished the contents of one box, my back was free from pain. My kidneys are now normal and I feel better in every way."

Growing Children Need Good Bowels

Give a Mild Laxative Occasionally to Insure Regular Bowel Action.

As a child grows older it requires more and more personal attention from the mother, and as the functions of the bowels are of the utmost importance to health great attention should be paid to them.

Diet is of great importance, and the mother should watch the effect of certain foods. A food will constipate one and not another, and so we have a healthy food like eggs causing biliousness to thousands, and a whole some fruit like bananas constipating many. It is also to be considered that the child is growing, and great changes are taking place in the young man or young woman. The system has not yet settled itself to its later routine.

A very valuable remedy at this state, and one which every growing boy or girl should be given often or occasionally according to the individual circumstances, is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. This is a laxative and tonic combined, so mild that it is given to little babies, and yet equally effective in the most robust constitution. At the first sign of a tendency to constipation give a small dose of Syrup Pepsin at night on retiring, and prompt action will follow in the morning. It not only acts on the stomach and bowels but its tonic properties build up and strengthen the system generally, which is an opinion shared by the parents of

of the Maxwell Irrigation Land company. The bear, very much alive, is in a strong pen at the camp, and is being fattened for the feast.

A short time ago some hunters in the hills west of town caught a big brown bear in a trap, and after an exciting fight in which one of them narrowly escaped death from the claws of the vicious beast, the bear was made secure with ropes and led captive to the home of the hunters. Gilbert Brothers heard of the bear, and determined to give the boys in their camp a treat. So they bought it at a fancy price and have it secure in their camp.

A number of Maxwell people have been invited to enjoy the Thanksgiving feast with Mr. Gilbert and his men, and doubtless the camp will entertain a number of distinguished guests on that day. The bear is two years old and weighs about 200 pounds.—Maxwell Mail.

MABRY BACK.

Senator Mabry has again assumed the editorial reins with the Clovis Journal. Mabry always did run a live paper, and judging from the Saturday of the senator he is going to do it in the present instance. He makes his bow as follows:

Our policy?

It's simple as can be. We propose to make first of all, a newspaper. News, while it is news, and all of the news written without bias or color is the first and foremost mission of the "New" Journal. Politics, of course, play a more or less prominent part in the life of all real newspapers and it is needless to say that the Clovis Journal will continue to be democratic in faith, supporting the principles of the party all of the time and the conduct of the party when it is right—which ought to be all of the time.

The Journal is going to be placed back in the ranks where the big weekly newspapers belong. The Clovis Journal is going to establish a rule to come out on one day certain of each week and to reach every subscriber regularly. Advertisers must take notice; and they can assist us in keeping good this promise by getting copy ready at time agreed upon. Otherwise the paper goes to press without them. We propose to make service to the Journal's subscribers subordinate to nothing.

Watch the big paper grow!

A GROWING INDUSTRY.

While the climatic advantages of Silver City are being made known to an increasing number of people, there are many who know Silver City only as the home of an important one of the best flocks of pure bred Angora goats in the whole world, that of W. A. Heather.

Every few days a row of crates on the sidewalk in front of the express office, each containing an Angora and billed to widely divergent points, indicates that the fame of the flock is still spreading, and that the flock is making good with former purchasers.

Mr. Heather has so far shipped out over two hundred head of pure-bred Angora breeding stock, and the present season has not more than fairly started. The animals went to many different points in Arizona and New Mexico, as well as more distant states including one shipment to New Hampshire.

The one great difficulty that confronts the Angora breeder in the United States is the fact that he is unable to improve his animals by the admixture of foreign blood. Turkey and South Africa are the two great mohair producing countries, and both have prohibited the exportation of live stock. This ought to be sufficient grounds to make the importation of their mohair into this country impossible.

New uses for mohair are being found every year and the demand will undoubtedly keep pace with the supply. As a material to mix with wool to add to the wearing qualities, and particularly the luster of woolen cloth, mohair is being now generally used with success.

Mr. Heather's success as a breeder of high grade Angora stock has been marked, and it has been the means of drawing attention to Silver City and its products.—Silver City Independent.

WOMEN AND CHILD WAGE SLAVES AND FILTH-REEKING CONDITIONS FOUND IN AMERICA'S GREAT FOOD CANNING INDUSTRY

The New Mexican today begins a story of American industry that has never been told. It is the story of the canners. And you will probably agree that it is as big and startling as the story of the packing houses told a few years ago by Upton Sinclair.

This, however, is no romance. It is grim human facts. It tells of a "jungle" of real people where women and children are the prey, giving violence flows a stream of social pollution and disease.

The story is not pleasant. But you will want to read it, for it concerns you and your food and the future of your country.

And the vital, gripping truth of it will make you read it, for it is written by a brilliant and devoted woman who lived and worked for daily wage in this jungle and breathed its miasmic vapors.

This is the era of tinned food. Living in cities, herding in flats, we lack gardens, poultry yards and preserving kettles. The can opener is the symbol of modern cooking. Meat, vegetables, fish, fruit, jelly, everything comes out of cans. The cannery replaces in a large part the individual kitchen. And for kitchen helpers the housewife has thousands of nameless, voiceless workers in hundreds of unknown factories.

We need to know every step of the process by which food reached our tables. But what do we know of these factories?

The can we open to prepare supper—where was it made? Who gathered the material? Who prepared it? Under what conditions? We do not know.

Did filth or poison enter the can from factory floor, machine, vat or atmosphere?

Were the workers who handled the food clean themselves and free from offensive disease?

Did they have light, air, the elementary things of comfort and sanitation?

Were their living quarters decent, permitting moral and physical cleanliness?

Did they get enough pay to keep well and decent?

Were they helpless women and children?

Did they toil long hours at exhausting tasks?

Have human lives and human souls gone into these cans?

All these questions Mary Boyle O'Reilly will answer in a series of remarkable reports written for the New Mexican. She will tell you that not all of the canneries are bad, but many are. She will tell you that the worst conditions are found in the canneries of the West.

I chose to study the canneries of New York because central and western New York is the metropolis of the canning industry of America—an industry which employs hundreds of thousands of people in a season and represents an investment of more than a hundred million dollars.

Miss O'Reilly, who is the daughter of John Boyle O'Reilly, the famous Irish patriot and poet, is eminently qualified to write this story. She has lived and worked in the canneries of the West, and she has seen the worst conditions which amount to a national scandal.

fitted for the task she assumed. She was distinguished as prison commissioner of Massachusetts, as a free lance investigator and social worker in many fields and as a writer for newspapers and magazines. Her account of the canning industry is the result of a thorough and detailed investigation extending through the summer and fall, during which time she personally worked in the factories.

Every statement she makes is carefully weighed, every fact substantiated and provable by data in possession of this newspaper and by corroborative official data filed in New York.

(By Mary Boyle O'Reilly.)

I am a working woman unlike my sisters only in this—fortune has made me a chronicler of facts.

No motive underlies this study save the wish to help the helpless, the desire to do for other working women what they cannot do for themselves.

It was to give these mute toilers a voice that I became one of them, and as Mamie Riley, a bread-line worker, sought for jobs in the canneries of the fertile Genesee and Mohawk valleys in western New York.

All canneries in the United States are not bad. Women and children are not slaves and filth is not the rule in many American factories where fruit and vegetables are packed. But I found after an inquiry among government and state officials that there are noisome canneries in the east, in the south, in a belt across the middle west and on the Pacific coast—not so because of the slave-driving of women and children and because of the filth with which they reek. Not some conditions which amount to a national scandal.

NEWS OF THE STATE

WE ALL UNDERSTAND.

The editor of this department went to Clovis Friday and for two hours or more submitted to the tender caresses of a knight of the drill and forceps, and as a result, he is very much "hors-de-combat." And if the items which appear in these columns this week possess a certain amount of incoherency and are more hazy and discursive than usual, blame it to a head throbbing with pain, rather than to a sudden falling off of ability to furnish the goods.—Havenor Gazette.

THE RIGHT SPIRIT.

The people of this section and Montoya in particular, can claim the distinction of being as a whole the most hospitable and open hearted people on the globe. A stranger within our gates is made to feel welcome by every man with whom he comes in contact and a heartfelt hospitality is extended him that seems to be second nature with the people of these parts. This is as it should be. It will populate this valley with hundreds of new comers who might otherwise go to "greener pastures."—Montoya Republican.

HOME DESTROYED.

George Finley's house on his ranch northeast of town was destroyed by fire Monday, with all its contents except one dresser. Mrs. Finley had gone to the barn and was absent but a few minutes. When she returned the house was in flames and filled with blinding smoke. She had two small children to look after and no help at hand, and was unable to do much in the way of removing contents of the house. There was no insurance and the loss falls pretty heavily. They are now living in the house on an adjoining place owned by Mr. Shaw.—Estancia News-Herald.

THE KID AND THE CAT.

Mintie Beasley, 10 year old son of Mr. Otto Beasley, whose farm is situated at the base of Palomas mountain, three miles out, is wearing the belt as the champion boy trapper of the valley. To attest his ability as a true professional, in his line, he had on exhibition at his father's blacksmith shop, in Montoya, Monday of this week, as fine a specimen of the bob cat family as is usually found in any section of the state.

There is a bounty of $2, given by the state for the capture of each bob cat, which Master Mintie will claim, beside the reputation attained as the champion trapper of the younger generation of the valley.—Montoya Republican.

IT'S NO JOKE.

The J. L. has in the office a catalog of a complete canning outfit of 1500 to 2000 cans capacity which costs at the factory $75. The cans would cost about two cents apiece, so with an outlay of about $500 a cannery can be put in here at La Lande that would easily take care of all the fruit and vegetables raised in our community during the summer months and in the winter season the same machinery could be used to can rabbits.

Kentucky, Kansas and Nebraska are each preparing to can and market their rabbit crop and no state has more rabbits than we have and for the good of our farmers we should have fewer. This canning rabbits is not a joke, as some have thought, and we are losing heavily by not having it in operation now. Let's get our heads together once on this proposition.—La Lande Leader.

A SERIOUS ACCIDENT.

Al Watkins had his chest mashed in, several ribs broken from the spinal column and his knee and ankle wrenched by being thrown from a horse he was riding while rounding up his cattle on the range south of town.

Drs. Hoffman and Paine were rushed to the place of accident in an automobile, and did effective work in making Mr. Watkins easy. The physicians say that while the injuries are bad, they feel that they are not necessarily fatal.

The accident was caused by the horse he was riding striking a hole, throwing Mr. Watkins and the animal falling upon him. It was almost a miraculous escape from instant death. The friends of Mr. Watkins awaited anxiously the exact details of the accident, as when the word was first brought to the city it was reported that his back was broken.—Deming Headlight.

"One day he said to me that Postum had been recommended and suggested that he would like very much to try it. I secured a package and made it strictly according to directions.

The purchasers are said to be Denver and New York capitalists. OFFICIAL NEWS.

Governor McDonald of New Mexico, had notified the United States embassy in the city of Mexico to ask President Madero for the detention of Calles.

And now the governor of New Mexico has issued the following order, deemed necessary to conduct the case against Calles successfully:

"Executive Office, Santa Fe, N. M. 'Whereas, Andres Calles, convicted of the crime of murder in the district court of Grant county, New Mexico, and by that court sentenced on May 21, 1901, to the penitentiary of New Mexico for life, and thereafter committed to said penitentiary to serve said sentence, did, on November 18, 1912, escape from said penitentiary and is still at large.

"Now, therefore, all sheriffs, mounted policemen and all other peace officers of the state of New Mexico, are hereby directed and commanded to arrest and take into custody the said Andres Calles wherever found and immediately after such arrest bring the said Andres Calles to the said penitentiary at Santa Fe and deliver him to the warden thereof, to the end that such sentence may be duly executed.

"Done at the executive office, in Santa Fe, N. M., this 23d day of November, 1912.

WILLIAM C. McDONALD,
 Governor of New Mexico.

It is well remembered by certain Santa Feans that during the administration of Governor Curry it took just six months to extradite a citizen of New Mexico who had been arrested in Mexico and who seemed to get in and out of jail about every week.

COUNTING THE STATE VOTE.
 The canvassing board, composed of Governor McDonald, Secretary of State Lucero and Chief Justice Roberts met at the capitol this morning to canvass the returns of the state election held November 5. But it was found that despite all the efforts of the clerical force of the state secretary's office, seven precincts were still unaccounted for officially. Two were lacking in Taos and one each in San Miguel, Sandoval, Otero, Chaves and Lincoln counties. The board thereupon adjourned until Wednesday morning when it is thought all of these precincts would be in.

The delay is believed to have been due to the disregard of instructions sending returns to the county clerk instead of mailing them to the secretary of state.

DISCUSS EL RITO SCHOOL.

After a brief meeting this morning, the board of regents of the New Mexico Spanish-American Normal School at El Rito, adjourned until 3 o'clock this afternoon to meet in the office of the attorney general and have the governor present. All of the regents with the exception of Col. Venecio Jaramilla, are here. President Francisco Delgado stated this afternoon that the matter of insurance on the destroyed building and the question of erection and location of the new building will be discussed. Many reasons are being advanced why this famous Normal school should be located in the capital, making it centrally located and at the same time affording the Spanish-American teachers ample opportunity to keep in touch with educational matters of interest and value to them when they start out on their career of teaching in New Mexico schools. Santa Fe is more than the capital; it is a seat of learning and there seems no reason why this Normal school should not be located here, declared many Santa Feans today. Socorro has the School of Mines; Silver City has a normal school and Las Vegas a Normal University; Albuquerque is the seat of the State University and Las Cruces of the College of Agriculture and Mechanical Arts; Roswell has the Military Institute and Springer the Reform school. Where does Santa Fe come in? It is true the school for the deaf is located here but why not have a normal school here, especially when it is for Spanish-Americans, since this city is the treasure house of Spanish traditions, and romance?

The company's headquarters are at Carlsbad, with Armstrong and Botta, lawyers, as the statutory agents. The stockholders have subscribed $200,000 as follows: E. R. Lyon, Carlsbad, 6,967 shares; John C. Collins, Artesia, 6,967 shares and John S. Crozier of Carlsbad, 6,967 shares.

Canon City, Colo., Nov. 25.—Laurio Garcia, under sentence of death for killing Policeman Charles Brockman, of Ft. Collins, has been granted a stay of execution and his case is now before the supreme court for review. A decision in the case is not expected for several months. Originally, Garcia was sentenced to be hanged the week beginning November 24. The cases of Bob Harris, of Otero county, for the killing of the city marshal and a deputy at Rocky Ford, and of George King, under death sentence for the murder of George Jackson, also are before the supreme court for review.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 25.—Reports that the gravity of the European situation had brought about a change in British diplomatic plans and had indefinitely postponed the departure of James Bryce from Washington, were denied at the embassy here today. As announced at the time of Ambassador Bryce's resignation, his departure will depend on the settlement of the Panama canal situation and the adjustment of Great Britain's protest against concessions to American shipping. The ambassador stated today that the European situation had in no way affected his proposed retirement and that no change had been made in his plans.
