On Oct. 25, the Chilean media reported that Polish Solidarity trade union leader Lech Walesa had postponed a visit to Chile scheduled this month. Walesa said the objective of his visit to pressure the government for the release of two trade union leaders had already been achieved. Gen. Augusto Pinochet recently granted a pardon to Manuel Bustos and Arturo Martinez, leaders of Chile's largest labor confederation. The two men were sentenced to internal exile at opposite ends of the country for calling a general strike in 1987. Bustos and Martinez, exiled since Sept. 15, 1988, had already served two-thirds of their sentence. (Basic data from Xinhua, 10/25/89)
