MR. BAKER ADMITS HIS BANK HAS $74,000,000 AWAITING INVESTMENT

"BIGGEST MAN IN WALL STREET" ASTOUNDS MONEY TRUST INVESTIGATORS WITH FIGURES HE RATTLES OFF WHILE ON WITNESS STAND

FENCES WITH UNTERMEYER ABOUT RELATIONS WITH HARD COAL TRUSTS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 10.—The millions which the First National Bank of New York has available for investment were disclosed at today's hearings by George F. Baker, chairman of the bank's board, before the house money trust investigating committee.

Mr. Baker, popularly referred to as "the biggest man in the street," testified that the bank had $74,000,000 available for investment, of which $31,000,000 was out in demand loans and $25,000,000 in time loans and discounts. The bank holds $43,466,000 in securities and has gross deposits of about $110,000,000. Counsel Untermyer for the committee led Mr. Baker through a line of questioning which was intended to bring out his closer relations with the railroads in the anthracite fields, usually referred to as the hard coal trust, without developing more than is generally known.

Twice when Mr. Untermyer wanted information of the bank's connection with the First Securities company, the question was held in abeyance until Mr. Baker could confer with his counsel.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 10.—Geo. F. Baker resumed his testimony before the house money trust committee today.

When Mr. Baker took the stand he asked permission to make a statement. "You made me out such a great holder of directorships yesterday," he said to Mr. Untermyer, "that I wish to say that I never became a director or a voting trustee of any company at my own solicitation."

"We have just begun to ask you about your directorships," said Mr. Untermyer. He added that a list furnished by Mr. Baker's bank showed that directors in the First National held 88 directorships in other corporations. In 37 corporations members of J. P. Morgan & Co., and directors of the First National bank, were common directors.

Mr. Baker agreed to furnish a list of the corporations in which he himself was a director. He thought he held about fifty such places.

SILENT ABOUT THE "PRICE."

Mr. Baker testified that the securities turned over by the First National Bank to the First Securities company, were largely of companies in which he was a director or a voting trustee. Mr. Untermyer tried in vain to have him testify that the First Securities company and the First National bank were operated practically as a single concern. The witness did not want to divulge the price at which the securities company sold a part of its Chase Bank stock to President Wilson of the Chicago, Mr. Untermyer did not press the question. Mr. Baker said that despite the sale a practical control of the company lay with the securities company and Mr. Wiggins. He remarked that often a small percentage of actual stock holdings insured control of a large corporation.

Loan operations of the Chase Bank and the First National on the stock exchange were taken up, but Mr. Baker knew little of the details. The interest of Mr. Baker, of the First Securities company, and allied concerns, in the hard coal roads, was discussed. A request for a list of all stock held by the securities company met with a tentative refusal and again the question was passed to allow conference with counsel.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 10.—Mr. Untermyer asked Mr. Baker if he could supply a statement of the accounts by which the First National bank jointly with other institutions handled through syndicate issues of securities.

The witness said his counsel had advised him that to demand this information was beyond the powers of the committee. The facts were now known in detail by the comptroller of the currency and he believed the committee had no right to demand them to be exposed to the public.

A long conference between Mr. Baker, Fisher A. Baker, and former Senator John C. Spooner, his counsel, ended with a request that the question be passed to allow counsel to consider the legal phases.

DEPOSITS OF 100,000,000.

A statement of the deposits of the First National bank was placed in the record. Mr. Baker said he believed the average deposits were about $100,000,000. On November 1, the bank had 149 accounts with balances of $29,876,127.44.

Mr. Untermyer went back to Mr. Baker's opposition to the publicity of bank assets but he was unable to shake the financier's attitude.

WILL ADJOURN UNTIL TUESDAY.

Washington, Jan. 10.—During the luncheon recess Mr. Baker consulted with his counsel about furnishing the committee a list of the transactions in floating securities in which his company had acted jointly with J. P. Morgan and other concerns.

When the hearing was resumed Mr. Baker announced he had determined to furnish that and other data the committee desired if the board of directors of the First National Bank decided that it might be made public. The committee gave him until Wednesday to submit the information.

Then it became apparent that Mr. Baker's examination, which had become detailed and involved might not be finished today. The committee planned to adjourn until next Tuesday and it was said Mr. Baker might be asked to return for further examination.

Mr. Baker said he and E. T. Stotesbury were voting trustees of the Cramp Shipbuilding company of Philadelphia, and had since 1905 named the directors of that company. He was asked in details as to his activities in a number of corporations and in several cases was unable to remember them.

The stock of the First National bank was increased from $500,000 to $50,000,000, in 1901. Mr. Baker said 40 per cent of the increased stock went to individuals and the remainder to the bank stockholders.

"Who were those individuals," asked Mr. Untermyer.

After an argument with Mr. Baker and his counsel, Mr. Baker answered: "Forty thousand shares of that stock at $500 a share were sold to me, and I later disposed of it where it would do the most good."

IS MORGAN "GREAT GENERAL?"

"What is the present price of the stock?"

"About $1,000 a share."

Mr. Untermyer asked if J. P. Morgan held $15,000,000 worth of stock in the First National.

Mr. Baker said he did not want to discuss the "personal affairs of his friends or himself."

"Is Mr. Morgan recognized as the great general in this financial army?" asked Mr. Untermyer.

"That's according to who you ask, answered the witness. "We, his friends, think he is."

"He is so generally recognized?"

"Well, yes."

"And you and Mr. James Stillman are his chief lieutenants?"

"We were during the panic," said Mr. Baker.

"And you dominate the financial situation?"

"I won't confess to that," said Mr. Baker.

Here John C. Spooner, counsel for Mr. Baker, interrupted with a laugh. "He isn't required to incriminate himself, is he?" he asked.

NO "DOMINANT" PERSONALITY.

"Is Mr. Morgan the most dominant figure in the financial world?" persisted Mr. Untermyer.

"He would be if he were younger. I know of no one who is more dominant," replied Mr. Baker.

"There is no dominant figure in finance now," exclaimed Mr. Baker. "There was during the panic but not since the disturbance."

Mr. Untermyer endeavored to trace the relations of Mr. Baker's bank and the Morgan firm.

"Can you give us the name of any issue of security of stock for which you have competed with Morgan and company in the past five years?" he asked.

"No," said Mr. Baker. "We usually divide the issues."

"Can you recall any single transaction of $10,000,000 or more during the last five years that has not involved either J. P. Morgan and company or the First National Bank?"

Mr. Baker could not tell.

MORE THAN 8,000 FLOOD VICTIMS ARE HOMELESS.

Pittsburg, Pa., Jan. 10.—Damage estimated at $1,000,000 was done by the flood in the Allegheny, Monongahela and Ohio river valleys. The flood stage was passed at noon today when the gauge at the Point Bridge registered 21.9 feet, a fall of almost ten feet in 24 hours. Wheeling, Va., suffered severely from the high water, no less than eight thousand persons having been driven from their homes.

Railroad and street railway traffic was interrupted and will not be resumed until tomorrow at the earliest, it is estimated.

STATISTICS ON HIGH COST OF LIVING

Washington, D. C., Jan. 10.—Soaring prices of foodstuffs are pictured in a new set of figures compiled by the United States department of labor from its investigation of the cost of living in 39 American cities.

Between August, 1911, and August, 1912, only two things decreased in price, potatoes and sugar. Meanwhile, everything else advanced.

In Boston, sirloin steak had advanced 24 per cent; in Buffalo, 19 per cent; in Atlanta, 8 per cent; in Chicago, 19 per cent, and in Birmingham, 15 per cent.

The figures showing the advance in prices during the last 10 years show the following increases:

Sugar, 6 per cent; butter, 34; milk, 35; flour, 35; potatoes, 46; eggs, 47; lard, 57; hens, 59; sirloin steak, 62; ham, 63; rib roast, 63; corn meal, 64; round steak, 85; smoked bacon, 100; and pork chops, 105.

NEGRESS GETS FIVE YEARS

London, Jan. 10.—Mrs. Annie Gross, an American negress, was today found guilty of manslaughter for killing Jessie McIntyre, an English actress, and sentenced to five years penal servitude.

On the night of December 1, Mrs. Gross, who lived in the same boarding house as Miss McIntyre, attempted to kill her husband, Harry Gross, a rag-time dancer. Miss McIntyre was present, and a bullet struck and killed her.

The prisoner pleaded that she fired at her husband in self defense. She declared she did not see Miss McIntyre.

A SCHOONER IS DASHED TO PIECES

THRILLING RESCUE OF EVELYN'S CREW OFF NEW FOUNDLAND'S COAST BY FISHER FOLK, WHO USE 300 FEET OF ROPE

St. John's, N. F., Jan. 10.—Captain Burke and the eight members of the crew of the schooner Evelyn were hauled to safety up the steep cliffs at Anbois by the fisher folk of that hamlet last night after the Evelyn had been dashed to pieces on the ledges off shore. The wreck of the Evelyn had left her crew helpless as their boats had been carried away. Hope of reaching shore was slight until a boat manned by fishermen reached the Evelyn's side.

When the transfer of the crew had been accomplished and the boats headed for shore, the wind shifted. The small craft was carried out its course and thrown on a narrow shelf of rock at the foot of the cliffs a mile down the coast. Hemmed in by the rocks on one side and by the rising on the other, the little band seemed without way of escape. But their fight for life had been watched from shore and the fisher folk hurried to the cliffs and dropped a 300 foot rope to the men below, hauling them to safety, one by one.

MAY BRING THE OLIVE BRANCH

El Paso, Texas, Jan. 10.—Earlboro Anya, Mexican consul to Tucson, Arizona, arrived here today to confer with Pedro Las Curdales, Mexican minister of exterior relations. It was intimated by federal officials that Anya comes to present peace proposals made through him to the Mexican government from General Inez Salazar and other rebel leaders.

ACTRESSES WILL MAKE LAWMAKERS RUN GAUNTLET

London, Jan. 10.—When the franchise reform bill comes up in the British parliament shortly, the members of the house of commons will find all the approaches to the chamber picketed with actresses and other supporters of the movement in favor of votes for women.

Throughout the entire day and night the women intend to be present in strength and to buttonhole the members of the house as they pass in and out. The "Actresses' Franchise League," which is organizing the movement, has called for the help of all similar societies in making a peaceful demonstration in support of the adoption of an amendment to the bill intended to give the suffrage to women. They hope to be successful, receive serious consideration is that although the acts of their militant sisters have greatly alienated sympathy from the cause in the United Kingdom.

MORE "EXCITING" TIME.

At the same time the militant suffragettes are said to be and all the working-men are electing to provide a more exciting time for members of parliament. Should those members of the house among all classes.

REBELS ROUTED AFTER HOT BATTLE

Mexico City, Mex., Jan. 10.—The rebels this morning had disappeared from the hills about Ayototzingo, 25 miles from here, where yesterday's battle took place. They left during the night before the arrival of federal reinforcements with field and machine guns. A column of 250 was rushed on special trains from the capital last night and these were soon able to dislodge the rebels.

More than 250 men were killed yesterday, counting federals, rebels and non-combatants, according to a reliable estimate.

Furthermore 200 infantrymen from Mexico are said to have been routed and a similar fate is reported to have befallen 100 mounted police.

The battle raged from ten in the morning until late at night. The notorious Genevevo de La O was one of the rebel chiefs.

Chietla, an important town in Puebla, has been taken by the rebels, who are said to have captured three machine guns and 35,000 cartridges.

In the same vicinity "Tuerito" (one-eyed) Morales raided Tochimbucan.

GREEKS HAVE LOST 7,000 MEN STRIVING TO TAKE FORT JANINA

London, Jan. 10.—Rumania practically delivered an ultimatum to Bulgaria today by demanding the cession of Silistria and the territory to the north of a line stretching from there to Kavarna, on the Black sea, according to a news agency dispatch from Sofia.

RUMANIA MEANS BUSINESS.

Paris, Jan. 10.—Rumania decided today to mobilize her army if she does not obtain within 48 hours satisfaction from Bulgaria in regard to the rectification of her frontier, according to a dispatch from Bucharest to the "Temps."

A COLORLESS NOTE.

Constantinople, Jan. 10.—The European ambassadors in the Ottoman capital today succeeded in drawing up a colorless note which probably will be presented on Monday to the Turkish government.

The document guardedly advises Turkey to yield on the question of Adrianople, but no suggestion is made of pressure being brought to bear by the powers to insure the acceptance of this advice.

GREEKS LOSE 7,000 MEN.

Saloniki, Turkey, Jan. 10.—The losses of the Greek troops fighting against the Turks in the vicinity of Janina have been very heavy. To date they have lost 7,000 killed and wounded. The sixth division of the Greek army left here today under orders to assist in the subjection of the Turkish fortress of Janina.

TURKS CAUSE ALARM.

London, Jan. 10.—The threats of Turkey to recall her peace delegates from London to Constantinople and the menace of a Rumanian invasion of Bulgaria tended today to give the impression that the Balkan situation had become more grave within the last 24 hours.

Much was expected from today's meeting of the ambassadors who planned to reach a decision concerning the collective attitude of Europe. Reehad Pasha, the leader of the Turkish peace delegation, today reiterated the immovable determination of the Turks not to abandon the fortress of Adrianople or the islands in the Aegean sea. He said:

TOO ONE SIDED.

"What kind of a conference is this where all the concessions emanate from one side? Had this been known beforehand there would have been no need to go to the trouble of bringing together a peace conference in London."

It is not likely that the peace conference will resume its sittings before next week. Premier Venizelos, of Greece, intends to spend Saturday and Sunday visiting Oxford. Today he lunched with the chancellor of the duchy of Lancaster, the Right Hon. Charles Hobhouse and in the course of conversation emphasized the Hellenic claims over the islands of the Aegean sea, expressing the hope "that the country which under the late William E. Gladstone gave to Greece the Ionian islands, will not refuse its assistance now that the Gladstone disciples are in power."

RUSSIANS ARE AGITATED.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 10.—Orders are expected from the Russian war minister during the next three days retaining with the colors all those time honored soldiers in the army who under ordinary conditions should have been discharged to the reserve two months ago. They will probably be retained until April 14.

It is understood that the failure of the attempt to arrange a joint Austro-Russian demobilization has forced Russia to remain prepared for eventualities. Nevertheless, despite the disquieting reports received from Warsaw, the tone of diplomatic circles in the closest touch with the situation indicates marked optimism.

The reports from Warsaw tell of rush orders for the completion of the fortifications and of agitation among the Russian army officers who are sending their valuables to places of safety.

The publication yesterday of the prohibition against crossing the frontier by foreign armies, although the Russian cabinet authorized the war minister to issue it on November 29, is also regarded as a disquieting sign.

PRICES GO DOWN IN WALL STREET

New York, Jan. 10.—While there was little in the way of general news to justify the change in market sentiment, prices today took a downward course, presumably in sympathy with the weakness of the currency group. Bear operators found the general support and put out moderate lines of important stocks, with special pressure against some of the transcontinental issues, particularly Union Pacific and Canadian Pacific. A sharp fall in the price of copper metal abroad was followed by rumors here that selling agencies were disposing of copper at figures well under the long established official rate of 17.4 cents.

Bonds were steady. The undertone improved but there was little inquiry for the important stocks. American Tobacco advanced 4 points. Guggenheim Exploration fell 3; Chino Copper sixes, which closed yesterday at 183 1/2, broke to 170 in sympathy with the decline in the stock.

The dullness which came over the market discouraged the bulls and bears and even scalping operations were abandoned. Prices of the copper shares ruled close to the low figures of the morning, but the list otherwise was on the mend.

The usual buying for the short account in the closing dealings did not make its appearance and speculation became commonplace. Occasional rallies in specialties were without influence elsewhere. The failure of the steel tonnage figure to arouse interest in the market put a damper on general speculation.

MILITARY ATTACHES WED.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 10.—Captain William A. Burnside, Fourteenth infantry, U. S. A., and military attaché at the U. S. embassy in Mexico City, and Mrs. Olive Belle Warnack, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas B. Clark, of Los Angeles, were married here late yesterday by Justice of the Peace Shelton Bryan. A court balliif was the only witness of the ceremony.

BLOODHOUNDS ON THEIR TRAIL.

Buenos Vista, Colo., Jan. 10.—Samuel J. Sweeney, an embezzler, and Ed F. Kelley, a forger, both sentenced from Denver, escaped from the state reformatory last night. Bloodhounds tracked them into Buena Vista, where the trail was lost.

GREAT JOURNALIST IS DYING.

Kansas City, Mo., Jan. 10.—Colonel Robert T. Van Horn, 88 years old, for ten years a congressman, is suffering from apoplexy and is not expected to live. He founded the "Kansas City Journal."

TWO WOMEN ESCAPE ON "BLANKET" ROPES.

Ogden, Utah, Jan. 10.—Swinging themselves out by a rope made of braided strips of blanket, two women prisoners, during a blinding snow storm, let themselves down from a high second story window of the city jail early today and escaped.

Mrs. Mary McGill, serving 120 days for aiding her husband, John McGill, in drugging and robbing a man, and Mabel Wilson, who had served 18 days out of a 25 day sentence for vagrancy, are the two women who are now being sought by the police.

McGill broke from jail in a similar manner ten days ago. Yesterday he called up Jailor Anderson from a Salt Lake City telephone booth and asked what it would cost to get his wife out of jail.

FORNOFF TELLS OF TRIP TO MEXICO

A WONDERFUL COUNTRY, RICH, VAST AND BEAUTIFUL, DESTINED TO PLAY A GREAT ROLE, HE DE-CLARES.

"The republic of Mexico is a wonderful country—rich, beautiful and vast—destined to play a great part in the growth and development of North America," so declared Captain Fred Fornoff, of the New Mexico mounted police, on his return from a trip to the City of Mexico.

Captain Fornoff went all the way to Mexico's capital for the purpose of getting papers to extradite Chief Andres Calles, who escaped from the state penitentiary and who was arrested at Juarez. Calles made another escape, however, just before Mr. Fornoff reached Juarez. It is rumored that one of his fellow prisoners had a roll of money and assisted Calles and three others to make a "get away." The New Mexico and Texas authorities are going to make a great effort to capture the runaways as one of them is wanted in Texas.

"Despite the reports of the internal strife," continued Captain Fornoff,
"the trip to the capital of Mexico was not exactly a perilous or embarrassing one. It is true that a good deal of time is required to make a journey, the railroad fare of which is only $31
from El Paso. The unsettled conditions in northern Mexico were emphasized by the presence of troops in an armored train which accompanied us from Juarez to Chihuahua. They traveled in an armored steel car, and looked very formidable.

PA-SPOITS ASKED.
"At Samalucia the train stopped and officials asked for passports. If one did not have such credentials, the question was asked: 'Why are you traveling in Mexico?'"

"There was no sleeping car or diner on our train to Chihuahua. One obtained food at station 'eating houses' and while it was hardly equal to that of the Harvey system it sufficed for one's needs. At Chihuahua, however, our train suddenly blossomed forth into a 'Pullman' and we had many comforts in the way of rest and dining a la carte.

"At Chihuahua I called on the charge d'affaires and also on our consul, Mr. Marion Letcher, a cultured Georgian and a good official. I was quite interested in seeing one of the consul's clerical force, young John W. Roberts, of Santa Fe, who appeared in good health. Mr. Letcher made my stay in Chihuahua most agreeable.

"On arriving in the City of Mexico,
I was greatly surprised to find that the war had not marred the beauty of this capital, nor did it seem to greatly upset the thousands of inhabitants of this city of singular beauty and wonderful activity. In the capital one finds English, French, German and Americans in large numbers.
There are clubs for each nationality."

Regarding the war Captain Fornoff said that its ravages seemed confined to the rural districts and that students of the situation declared to him that the present revolution is due to "social unrest" of the lower classes as much as to "politics."

PROGRESSIVES IN BIG FIGHT

THE SENATORIAL BATTLE IN WEST VIR-GINIA WAXING WARM—DAVIS ELKINS A FACTOR—PROGRESSIVES ARE BACKING
EDWARDS.

Charleston, W. Va., Jan. 10. The West Virginia legislature is again in the throes of a senatorial battle which is taking on all the phases of the battle of two years ago, except that at this time the democrats are not in power.

Governor Glascock called a special session of the legislature, to meet last Thursday, to consider important special legislation. The senate, which stands fifteen republicans and fifteen democrats, has failed to organize.
The house, after electing its officers, could do nothing but adjourn over until the senate gets ready for business.

Grouped in four different camps are the forces of the four senatorial candidates. The progressives, who swept the state November 5 with a majority of 22,339 for Roosevelt over Taft and elected the entire state ticket, are standing loyally for William Seymour Edwards, their candidate. Edwards made a splendid fight for the cause and toured the state in behalf of the progressive movement.

Isaac T. Mann, of Mercer county, a coal baron and president of a string of banks, is the candidate of the big interests. He is surrounded by representatives of the Chesapeake and Ohio, Norfolk and Western and Baltimore and Ohio railroads. Their claims receive the endorsement of the standpatners, who turned their support from Davis Elkins to Mr.
Mann.

Davis Elkins, who was senator for twenty-three days by appointment by the governor upon the death of his father, Stephen B. Elkins, believed that the Taft administration was supporting his candidacy until the president consented to extend the leave of absence of Elliott Northcott, of this state, minister to Nicaragua, who immediately assumed charge of the Mann candidacy. This so incensed Elkins that he is ready to throw his influence to any candidate except Mann.

Senator Watson, whose term expires in March, will be the caucus nominee of the democrats, providing John T. McGraw, of Grafton, who was a candidate against Watson before,
does not lead a split in the party.
There is a prospect of this.

With the reactionary party the third party in the state now, and its forces divided between two candidates, and with a prospect of the democrats renewing their factional fight, which was bitter when Watson defeated Mc-Graw for the senatorship, the progressives have by far the best outlook.

One of the most impressive scenes in the capital city is the presence of a host of private citizens, all progressives, who have come to Charleston to insist that their representatives in the legislature confirm their verdict at the polls on election day.

Contrasted with this class of men here for the other candidates, the professional politicians and corporation lobbyists, are these plain business men who have come of their own accord to urge the election of Mr.
Edwards. They meet every night and plan for the work of the next day.
They spend their time visiting the members of the legislature and pointing out the remarkable vote recorded in November.

Edwards consented to stand for the senatorship before the people at a time when other candidates were unwilling to take the progressive end of the fight and take the risk. He had been urged by many to enter the race and after doing so, he went out from county to county and preached pro-gressivism.

Then he also urged the voters to stand by the ticket upon which the coalition had been formed between the progressives and republicans. This resulted in the big Roosevelt vote, re-legating the republican national ticket to third place and made the legislature safely progressive by a majority of twenty on a joint ballot.

Edwards is an independent oil and coal producer. His record as an employer has so pleased the labor people that they are supporting him loyally. He has been interested in schools and a liberal contributor to the uplift of humanity in various ways. Churches of all denominations are behind his candidacy.

Edwards was born in 1856 and grew to manhood among the beautiful West Virginia mountains. He is the son of William H. Edwards, author and naturalist, and is descended from Jonathan Edwards, of Southampton and Stockbridge, Mass. His father and grandfather were the first to develop the rich coal deposits in the great Kanawha valley in West Virginia, where they opened up and operated extensive mines before the civil war.

For more than half a century the Edwards family lived where Mr. Edwards still lives at Coalburg, near Charleston.

He studied at Kanawha and entered Cornell, where he graduated in 1879. Subsequently he studied law under Theodore W. Dwight and received his degree in 1881 from the law school of Columbia University.
In 1882 he was admitted to the bar.
In politics he has been equally active. In 1892 he was elected to the West Virginia house and became the recognized leader of the republican party in that then democratic body.

In 1894 he was re-elected, became speaker, and took an active part in formulating the political policies which have since held the state in the republican column. In 1908 he led the fight for Taft and the continuance of the Roosevelt policies in West Virginia and was chairman of the state delegation at the republican convention.

In 1912 he was one of the six dele-

Stubborn Colds May Lead to Consumption

Did you ever have a cold that would not go away? A cough that persisted, that prevented sleep and made waking hours miserably? Edmund's Alternative is the proper remedy in such cases. Perhaps some simple medicine may be effective where it is only a tickling in the throat; but when your chest is sore and simple remedies don't answer, then take Edmund's Alternative. Neglect often leads to more serious trouble; a case in point follows:

718 Cherry St., Dallas, Pa.
"Gentlemen: In July, 1905, I first noticed the conditions that showed I had Consumption. I lost weight rapidly; had a hollow cough, hemorrhages and very severe night sweats. My brother recommended Edmund's Alternative. In the fall of 1905, I began to take it. At this time I was perfectly well and robust. My appetite is good and my weight has increased from 110 to 140 pounds. Not a trace of my old trouble remains. I will gladly express the praise of this medicine to anyone."

IT IS PUBLIC BUSINESS AND NOT PERSONAL

In an interview with the New Mexican this morning, Harvey M. Shields, of Dawson, chairman of the state board of county commissioners said that a wrong impression had gone abroad concerning the meeting of county commissioners and county assessors now being held in this city.

Mr. Shields was emphatic in his statement that the joint meeting was for one purpose only. That purpose is to meet squarely our tax question and to arrive at a conclusion covering it that will benefit the state.

Mr. Shields said that the two bodies had met in joint session several times during their meeting here, when Attorney General Clancy was called into consultation and that the matters before the bodies for discussion were conveyed with him as advisor.

The members of the two boards desire it to be understood that the salary matter, relating to salaries of county officers has not and will not be touched upon. The meeting was not called for that purpose.

"The salary question," said Mr.
Shields, "will be left entirely to the legislature and the governor."

The following resolution was offered yesterday at the meeting and passed unanimously:

"Resolved that this association does not regard the salary question as a matter for its consideration, and that only such questions as have to do with the public welfare are subjects for discussion at our annual meetings."

COLLIE SHOWS NEAR HUMAN INTELLIGENCE

Uniontown, Pa., Jan. 10.—"Billy," a big, handsome collie dog, belonging to William Smith, of Cheat Haven, took his own life because he had been displaced in the affections of the members of the family by a bouncing baby boy.

"Billy" had always been the pet of the family and the neighborhood. He was pampered and petted until he could not bear to see the members of the Smith family show any friendship for any other animal.

When the baby boy arrived at the Smith home, "Billy" was neglected, and forced to stay in his own quarters most of the time. One day soon after the coming of the baby, "Billy" was allowed to see the little one, and from that time he began to pine when he saw his master and mistress fondle the baby. He left the room and could not be persuaded to return there again.

"Billy" evidently realized the hopelessness of his future life in the Williams family, and determined to end it all. Walking down to the Cheat river, in view of several people, he walked into the water and holding his head under the water drowned himself. When Sol. Clemens, who had seen the dog enter the water, and was struck by his peculiar actions realized that "Billy" was committing suicide he attempted to rescue the animal, but it was too late as "Billy" had finished it.

BEAUTY COSTS HER PLACE.
Wheeling, W. Va., Jan. 10.—Miss Helena Kesterling has been dismissed from her post as physical culture instructor in Bethany college because her beauty was too attractive to boys students.

"Do I find difficulty in finding and keeping a place because of my beauty? Oh, dear, no. I do not even know that I am beautiful or that that had to do with my dismissal."

"I had no idea the trustees objected to the boys talking with me, and I can certainly see no great wrong in it. My meetings with the boys were only casual, and I certainly have never sought their company. I was dismissed merely for that single breach of discipline in going to the postoffice with one of the boys at 7 o'clock in the evening."

Miss Kesterling is a fascinating blonde of 25 years. When she was dismissed and five of her boy friends were expelled, she was told that her good looks were the reason for the action.

GOVERNMENT OWNERSHIP OF OUR RESERVATIONS

Extracts from address of H. S. Graves, the forester, Washington, D. C., read before the Fourth National Conservation congress, Indianapolis, Ind.

"A few cogent reasons for government ownership:

"1. The property is now owned by the nation, and should be administered from the standpoint of national as well as of local needs.

"2. The problem of protection from fire and of timber production in the national forests is one of national scope and can be properly handled only by the government; its solution is a national duty.

"3. The problem of water control is no less a national duty. Nearly all of the national forests lie on headwaters of navigable river or interstate streams. The government is now purchasing lands in the east on headwaters or navigable rivers because of the disastrous results to the public which are following abuse under private ownership. It certainly should not part with title to the same class of lands which it now owns in the west. Every interstate stream presents problems which can be properly handled only through the federal government. The government can not permit the citizens of one state to be damaged by the action or failure to act of citizens of another state. It is of vital importance for this reason alone that property at the headwaters of interstate streams be retained under government administration.

"4. Not only are the interests of the individual states and communities now fully protected, but in many ways more is being done for local communities than would be possible under state ownership. In the long run, as the timber and other resources are brought into use with improving markets, the states will receive from the 25 per cent of the gross receipts now allowed them and the additional 10 per cent appropriated for road improvements a larger amount than would come in from local taxes under private ownership.

"5. The states are not as well prepared, financially or otherwise, to handle the national forests as is the federal government. If the forests were owned by the states and handled in the real interests of the public, there would be substantially the same system of administration as today, at a greater aggregate cost for supervision by a considerable number of independent state staffs of technical men. The financial burden would be far too great for the individual states to assume. The result would be either poor administration and lack of protection, or a sacrifice of the public interests in order to secure revenue to meet the financial needs.

"6. The successful application of forestry demands a stable administrative policy for long periods. This can be secured far better under national than under state control.

"7. A much higher standard of constructive and technical efficiency is possible under national than under state administration. The value of the forests to the public depends directly on the skill with which scientific knowledge is applied to the task of developing their highest productivity. Both in ability to carry on the research work required for practical ends and in ability to command professional services of the first order the government possesses a striking advantage.

"8. As largely undeveloped property the forests need heavy investments of capital for their improvement. Their full productivity can be secured in no other way. The government is now investing yearly in the forests a considerable part of the appropriation made for them. Even if the states did not seek to make them sources of immediate revenue, at whatever sacrifice of their future possibilities, they would be reluctant to expend much for their development.

"9. The states lack both the civil service system and standards of the national government and are exposed to greater danger of being swayed by private interests. In the hands of spoilsmen demoralization would quickly succeed the present high standards of the forest service, while the intimate relation of the forests to the welfare of great numbers of individuals would tend to make their administrative control a highly coveted political prize. At the same time the value of their resources would certainly arouse a cupidly which would be exceedingly difficult to control. Scandalous maladministration might easily follow. The federal government is better watched, farther removed from local influence, more stable, and better equipped with a non-political system and machinery.

"The underlying purpose of the proposed transfer of the national forests to the states is really not to substitute state for federal control, but rather to substitute individual for public control. Its most earnest advocates are the very interests which wish to secure such control. The object of the whole state rights movement as it affects the national forests is to transfer to private owners for speculative or monopolistic purposes public resources of enormous value. Retention of these resources under public ownership is needed to protect the people from abuses which are every day being demonstrated on lands over which the public has already lost control. The proposition is one which the people as a whole would repudiate in an instant if they understood what is proposed. The only danger lies in the fact that some legislation adverse to the national forest system may be passed when the public as a whole is ignorant that it is planned or does not understand the meaning. Vigilance in the defense of its interests and intelligence in the perception of the true character of masked attacks upon those interests are of fundamental necessity if the public is to protect itself."

LEADER OF 1,000,000 "HOBOES" THINKS HIS JOB IS BETTER THAN TAFT'S.

There are in this "land of plenty" and this "time of unexampled prosperity" 1,000,000 hoboos—not tramps or bums, but men who want work and are hunting for it from city to city, from farm to railroad track, from ditch to lumber camps. And their leader is Jeff Davis of Cincinnati, Chicago and wherever he happens to hang up his hat.

Jeff Davis recently succeeded James Eads Howe of St. Louis, the millionaire friend of the man-out-of-work, as president of the International Brotherhood Welfare association.

Jeff's father was a first cousin of the president of the southern confederacy.

Jeff looks and acts more like the prosperous young business man than the conventional hobo. He's a young fellow not over 30, clean shaven, well-mannered, neatly dressed, and could go out any day and hold down a good paying job, but he prefers to devote himself to his 1,000,000 hoboos.

At the Chicago hobo headquarters, a little frame building entirely surrounded by flop houses, "soup kitchens" and employment agencies, Jeff explained the distinction between tramps with lazy wanderlust, bums who are down and out, and hoboos, who want work.

"Sometimes the best hobo gets to be a tramp, and sometimes he gets down to the bum grade if death or work doesn't come around soon enough," he added.

He had just received a clipping from a hobo out in Oregon. Jeff tucked this verse up on the wall while several hoboos were standing around waiting to be hauled out to join the pick and shovel gang on the Great Northern:

He built the road, with others of his class he built the road—
Now o'er its many a weary mile he packs his load;
Chasing a job, spurred on by hunger's goad,
He walks and walks and walks and walks
And wonders why in hell he built the road,

On the wall hangs the official hobo guide to American cities. The hobo scans it more eagerly than his wealthier brother reads his Baedeker before he sets out for the old world. Before each city is the hobo signal. A cross means that the city is all right, that there's a chance to get work there, and the police won't arrest an unemployed man for being unemployed. A dot within a circle means that a man hungry for work must be careful. A circle within a circle means "danger—stay away!" Only two cities are in that class now—Atlanta, Ga., and Oakland, Calif.

"There wouldn't be a single man who wants work out of a job," says Jeff, "if the rich factory owners hadn't enslaved women and children."

"When once the nation makes it a crime to wring dollars out of the flesh and blood of children and women then men will have plenty of work and can support their women and children."

In Cincinnati Jeff has a pretty young wife who says she is prouder of his being president of those 1,000,000 unemployed men than she would be if he sat in the White House. Jeff feels the same way about it, too. Otherwise he would be going to work at an office and coming home at night to a pretty little fat, instead of living the hobo's life.

"I couldn't be of any use to the fellows if I didn't stay right by them and live as they do," explains Jeff.

Mrs. Martin Tells About a Painful Experience that Might Have Ended Seriously.

Riversville, W. Va.—Mrs. Dora Martin, in a letter from Riversville, writes: "For three years, I suffered with womanly troubles, and had pains in my back and side. I was nervous and could not sleep at night.

The doctor could not help me. He said I would have to be operated on before I could get better. I thought I would try using Cardui.

Now, I am entirely well. I am sure Cardui saved my life. I will never be without Cardui in my home. I recommend it to my friends."

A FLOGGING BEST PUNISHMENT

Philadelphia, Jan. 10.—Judge Kinsey, a common pleas judge who presided over the juvenile court today, wants a whipping post for dishonest boys. He said so from the bench and he created no small excitement among the women, who are strong supporters of the juvenile court, and who hope to reform the young offenders through kindness rather than by punishment by the rod.

The remark was called for when Walter Phillips, 15 years old, was arraigned on a charge of stealing $1,015 from George Brass, his grandfather. The boy's mother died last June and his grandfather took him to raise. The grandfather is not a strong believer in savings banks, so kept some of his surplus funds in a trunk. The grandson found the hiding place and began pilfering from the hoard.

He always was supplied with money and he informed his grandfather that he got it "by beating the stock market." When the grandfather went to add to his hoard he had a sneaking suspicion that the boy's "stock market winnings" came from his savings. Investigation proved this to be true and the boy was arrested.

When Judge Kinsey heard the facts he said: "You are a fine specimen of a boy. I certainly wish we had a whipping post here. If we did I would order that you get twenty lashes a day for thirty days." The boy was sent to an institution.

HID THE MONEY IN FALSE TEETH

Pittsburg, Pa., Jan. 10.—A fit of coughing exposed the hiding place of a ten dollar bill that a matron of police had been diligently seeking, while searching Mrs. Mary Benner, who was arrested charged with extracting the note from the pocket of M. Carter, an old man whom she knew.

Mrs. Benner laughed at the police matrons who were searching her and defied them to show any evidence against her, saying that she had no money excepting a few cents.

One of the searchers, thinking the woman might have the money hidden under her tongue, started jabbing his finger in her mouth. This brought on a fit of coughing, which loosened her false teeth and exposed the end of the missing ten dollar bill.

When the banknote was taken from its hiding place it was found to be carefully folded, and investigation showed that it had been resting in a small cavity of the woman's false teeth between the roof of her mouth and the plate of the teeth.

Carter, who was arrested with the woman, said that she had taken $15, but had returned $5, and told him no one could ever find the other $10. The woman was sent up to the workhouse for 30 days.

FOUR NO-HIT GAMES IN 2464---THESE MEN PITCHED 'EM.

When a major league playing season ends, the eight clubs comprising the league have played 1232 games, theoretically—sometimes they forget to play a game or two at the far end when the games make no difference in the standing of the clubs involved.

Thus, the two major league organizations play each year 2464 games. Each team plays 154 games, half at home, and half on the road.

And out of this number of exhibitions of the national sport in the major organizations, in 1912, but four were "no hit" contests—only four pitchers defeated their opponents without giving a hit.

Of the quartet one was a veteran of 11 years, two were recruits and the fourth had been playing big time just about long enough for the pin feathers to begin sprouting.

Three of the "no hit" games were played in the American league and one in the older organization.

The veteran pitcher was George Mullin, who, for the first time since he joined Detroit, pitched a no hit game, July 4, against St. Louis. Six men reached first, five walking and one on an error. Detroit won, 7-0.

On August 20, Carl Cashion of the Washington club, pitched a six inning no hit game against Cleveland, winning 2-0.

Jeff Tesreau pitched the only no hit game in the National, against that slugging crew, the Phillies, September 6, the Giants winning 3-0.

DOES FRED CLARKE MEAN TO PLAY?

Pittsburgh, Jan. 10.—Unquestionably there is something doing in the Pirate camp. The release of Mike Donlin to the Philadelphia club and the asking of waivers on Ham Hyatt mean the removal of two .300 hitters, and as yet there has been said or done nothing that would indicate why this should be. With Mike and Ham gone by the boards, the only reliable pinch hitter on the Pirate staff is one Frederick C. Clarke, manager and retired (?) left fielder.

Does this, then, indicate that Clarke honestly and truly means to return to the game? The writer knows that Fred had all sorts of trouble remaining on the bench last season; he knows that more than one game could have been won had the boss decided to take a crack at the ball, and he knows, too, that with Clarke on the job again there would be a greater feeling of confidence among his players.

Clarke hasn't yet announced that he will get back into harness. When he announced a year ago that he was through as a player he spoke as though he meant just what he said. Recently in New York, however, he refused to place himself on record as intending to stay out of the game this year, and from remarks he allowed to drop it was gathered that he has more than an idea of working when the 1913 season rolls around.

Pittsburghers without exception hope that the Corsair chief will forget about his resolution to retire. He is still a comparatively young man—40 or thereabouts—and his work during the 1911 season was as good as ever it was. With him in the game, the other players seem to fight harder—there is more spirit displayed and the results are better.

Had Fred played regularly last season the world's series money would have been split between the Pirates and Red Sox. That has been our opinion all along, and we must be shown before we will consent to change it.

The fact that Clarke has decided he can spare both Donlin and Hyatt would indicate that he has something up his sleeve. It is known that he is banking strongly on the ability of Artie Houtman to "come back" next season; but even so, where is the slinger that is to enact the role of Colonel Pinch? Has Clarke some star in view, or does it mean that he is going to do stunts himself? We're for the latter guess.

THE COLTS FOR CONNIE MACK

Philadelphia, Jan. 10.—Upon Byron Houck and Carl Brown, Manager Mack of the Athletics is planning much hope and faith for the 1913 gallop for the American league rag.

Both youngsters last year, for their first time out in fast company showed enough stuff to warrant the belief that they will be rated as two of the best young slappers of the Johnson organization this coming summer. Near the far end of the 1912 season, Houck was going much better than Brown, and the bandy-legged lad then looked and gave promise as being a most likely hurler for Mack to treasure for his next season's fight.

Brown, too, appears to have the stuff and if these two live up to expectations and Coombs, and Plank hurl the same kind of ball during '13 as they did last year the Elephants are going to be a mighty formidable club in the box.

Then too Mack has Bender to fall back on. While the chief was not a howling success last summer he surely can be depended upon to go in and work his head off the coming year and when the tall lanky Indian is right no club will back the Athletics' outfielders against the fencers to play for the batters. Assuming these five twirlers delivered what is expected of them the Athletics will possess as much strength in the middle of the diamond as they did in 1911. Pennock is another asset who might be of much value to the A's for he will surely be carried along until Mack decides upon his future.

NEW SCHEME FOR CATCHERS.

Young pitchers to be effective need catchers of more experience than is possessed by the corps of receivers that Stovall intends to use, says Henry P. Edwards in the Cleveland Plain Dealer. The departure of Stephens will make Alexander the veteran of the squad, and Alexander has served in the big league only a few months. Snell is an out-and-out novice and will perhaps be farmed out. To help Alexander, Stovall has three catchers from the minor leagues, who may fill the bill mechanically, but will be lacking the knowledge of the strong and weak points of American league batters.

Stovall's experiment will be watched with interest by other managers, who have always argued that a big league club absolutely needed one old catcher who was the owner of baseball brains, particularly if the club in question had none but young hurlers.

BUNTY PLAYERS HIGH GRADE

"Bunt Pulls The Strings" is coming to Santa Fe soon. Manager Stanton, of the Elks' theatre, announces it will be here for one performance, the night of Friday, January 17.

"Bunt Pulls The Strings" is the most talked of play in America, and its coming to this city is a theatrical event of the greatest magnitude. It is safe to say that every resident of Santa Fe who is at all interested in the theatre and its affairs has heard of "Bunt," and, of course, heard favorably, for Graham Moffat, three act comedy of Scotch life and manners has received nothing but the highest praise at the hands of critics everywhere. "Bunt" first took London by storm, playing at the Haymarket theatre in the world's metropolis for more than two years. The play ran nearly two years at Collier's comedy theatre, New York, and over six months at the Princess theatre, Chicago.

Since beginning its road tour, early in September, "Bunt" has been played in such cities as St. Louis, Detroit, Cincinnati and Minneapolis, drawing capacity houses everywhere. The role of Bunt is played by Miss Molly McIntyre, whom William A. Brady, the American producer of "Bunt," discovered, with the aid of Mr. Moffat, the author, in London. She is an Inverness lassie of rare charm and formerly was leading lady of the stock company of the famous Theatre Royal, of Glasgow. Her rapid but well-deserved rise to popularity has been nothing less than wonderful.

Among the other members of the "Bunt" company, all of them fresh from the "Hielands," are William Lennox playing Weelum Sprunt, Miss Jean Burnett as Simpson, the crabby old maid whose intrigues necessitates the pulling of the strings; Nelson Ramsey as Tammas Biggar, father of Bunt; Neil McNeil as Rab Biggar, Bunt's brother; Carrie Le Stoye, as Elen Dunlop, the "perpetual bride; Lenore Phelps as Teenie Dunlop, niece Elen; W. H. Rotherman as James Gibbs, the minister's man; James B. Emmett, as Dan Birrell, the village policeman; Clara Coleman as Maggie Merger, the village gossip, and a number of others, eighteen in all. They have been described as "A cast without a flaw," interpreting "Bunt Pulls The Strings" with such clever naturalness and charm that the performance is an unmitigated delight.

JACKSON IS NO HOLDOUT

Columbia, S. C., S. C., Jan. 10.—No, I am not holding out for a salary increase," said Joe Jackson this afternoon, when questioned in regard to published reports that he had threatened to refuse to report to the Cleveland club on account of a difference in view as to salary.

"I have not yet received a contract from the club," continued the great slugger, "but when it arrives, in a few days, I am sure it will be satisfactory. I expect to sign and return it at once."

Jackson says that President Somers volunteered the assurance that he would get a raise in salary before he had broached the matter. Joe expects his contract to be in the neighborhood of $6000. Last season he received $500, with a bonus of $1000 for hitting better than .350. He praises the Cleveland club and the fans of that city, saying:

"I am strong for Cleveland, for the Cleveland club, and the folks of the city generally have been good to me. Naturally, I am appreciative, and I won't be sorry when the time comes for me to play some more baseball for Cleveland."

Jackson is at his farm near Greenville, where he hurried at the close of the playing season.

FARM PRODUCTS IN OUR STATE

DIRECTOR DURAND GIVES THE FARM PRODUCTS OF NEW MEXICO, WHICH GIVES INTERESTING READING FOR THOSE WATCHING OUR AGRICULTURAL CONDITIONS

Director Durand, of the bureau of the census, gives statistics of farm products for New Mexico as follows:

DAIRY PRODUCTS.

The number of farms in New Mexico reporting dairy cows on April 15, 1910, was 15,809, but only 10,206 reported dairy products in 1909. The number of dairy cows on farms on April 15, 1910, was 32,923. The amount of milk reported was 6,816,000 gallons. The butter made on farms in 1909 was valued at $162,000.

WOOL.

The total number of sheep of shearing age in New Mexico on April 15, 1910, was $2,895,000, representing a decrease of 13.2 per cent, as compared with the number on June 1, 1900, ($3,334,000.) The approximate production of wool during 1909 was 3,033,000 fleeces, weighing 16,994,000 pounds and valued at $3,132,000.

POULTRY PRODUCTS.

The total number of fowls on New Mexico farms on April 15, 1910, was 532,000. Of the 19,540 farms reporting fowls, 5,888 did not report any eggs produced. The production of eggs actually reported for the year 1909 was 2,273,000 dozens, valued at $522,000. According to the twelfth census report the production of eggs in 1900 was $40,000 dozens, the value being $157,000.

ANIMALS SOLD OR SLAUGHTERED

The total value of domestic animals sold during 1909 was $10,000,000 and that of animals slaughtered on farms $842,000, making an aggregate of $10,842,000. This total, however, involves considerable duplication, resulting from the resale or slaughter of animals which had been purchased by the farmers during the present year.

The value of the cattle, including calves, sold during 1909 represented nearly three-fifths of the total value of animals sold, and the value of sheep sold represented nearly one-third of the total.

CROPS.

The total value of crops in New Mexico in 1909 was $8,902,000. The combined acreage of crops for which acreage was reported was 632,769, representing 43.1 per cent of the total improved land in farms (1,467,191 acres). Most of the remaining improved land doubtless consisted of improved pasture, land lying fallow, house and farm yards, and land occupied by orchards and vineyards, the acreage for which was not reported.

The general character of New Mexico agriculture is indicated by the fact that about one-fourth (26.7 per cent) of the total value of the crops in 1909 was contributed by cereals, and about one-half (50.1 per cent) by hay and forage. The remainder, representing 23.2 per cent of the total, consisted of potatoes and other vegetables and fruits and nuts.

VEGETABLES.

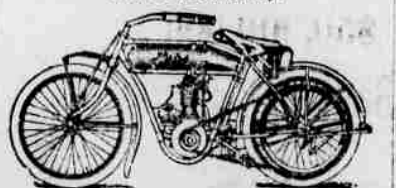

In 1909 the total acreage of potatoes and other vegetables was 14,660 and

CASTRO'S CASE IS PUZZLING

New York, N. Y., Jan. 10.—The writ obtained by the attorneys of the Venezuelan ex-president a week ago was returnable today in the United States district court. United States District Attorney Wise urged that the writ should be quashed because Castro's case was incomplete and because the court should not interfere with the immigration authorities.

Before Judge Holt reached a decision on the district attorney's motion, the question arose whether Castro should be released under bond until a decision has been reached by the board of inquiry at Ellis Island. Mr. Wise contended that to give Castro his liberty at this time would establish a bad precedent and defeat the purpose of the immigration law. The question of bail, therefore, became the principal one at issue, and Judge Holt suspended his decision regarding the writ of habeas corpus and asked the attorneys to file briefs. Castro dined at a restaurant and then returned to Ellis Island.

CASTRO IS ANNOYED.

George Gordon Battle, who appeared for Castro presented an affidavit in which the Venezuelan described his preliminary examination on the day he was taken to Ellis Island. Castro said that he had been asked any number of extraordinary questions and had refused to answer inquiries regarding the international relations of Venezuela and the confiscation of property there. He also was told by the board of inquiry, he said, that he must answer these questions if he was to remain here, but that he need not answer if he would consent to return. Under these conditions he announced his willingness to leave on the steamer which sailed last Saturday.

BOTH COLES ARE JAILED

Charged with grand larceny, W. W. Cole and C. C. Cole, of Santa Fe, have been arrested in Wichita, Kansas, and now are in jail there awaiting extradition papers which will bring them back to New Mexico.

This is the news received in dispatches to local authorities and it comes close on the heels of other "developments" of the past few days.

Some time ago W. W. Cole came here from Oklahoma and purchased the Star Livery barn from Mr. Creath. Mr. Cole expressed the determination to "re-stock" the barn. Mr. Creath left town. On Friday evening Mr. Cole also left town, taking with him a dozen horses and five wagons from the livery stable. It is said he stopped at Senator B. F. Pankey's ranch near Lamy and traded off the five wagons for a pair of horses and a pair of mules. Then he is alleged to have shipped his 14 horses and pair of mules to Wichita.

His plan to dispose of horses in Kansas and buy new ones did not arouse suspicion for Mr. Cole did not take any horses or saddles belonging to people who board their ponies at his livery, it was said. But the arrival of a telegram yesterday for certain bank officials stating that Mr. Cole should be arrested and mentioning something about alleged "fraudulent paper" caused a stir. Mr. Creath who sold the barn, arrived here yesterday and with others he has been asking the whereabouts of the Coles. It is said that C. C. Cole is a brother of W. W. Cole and that they traveled together on their "restocking" tour. The Star Livery is said to have been doing a fine business and just why the new manager, W. W. Cole, should have marched away with horses and wagons, remains to be explained.

LIVELY ROW O'ER TAFT'S NOMINEES

Washington, D. C., Jan. 10.—Republican senators this afternoon declined the proposition made to them by the democrats to appoint committees from both sides of the senate to consider President Taft's nominations to office.

Senator Martin, chairman of the democratic caucus, said after receiving the decision that he would probably call a caucus of democratic senators for tomorrow to consider what steps should next be taken.

Washington, Jan. 10.—Confirmation of some of President Taft's recent appointments is expected in the senate within the week. Democratic leaders, working on a plan permitting endorsement of some of the appointments without approving all, believe they will reach a basis to confirm some of the nominations without action on those they regard as most objectionable.

Suggestions of a republican filibuster against all legislation, including appropriation bills, unless the democrats confirm all appointments, have met objection by republican leaders on the ground that the republican administration would suffer most if appropriation bills were held up. It is expected that the republicans will not agree to any formal compromise before going into executive session, but will endeavor first to force action on all appointments. Failing in that some basis of agreement may be arrived at. An executive session will undoubtedly be taken as soon as the Archibald impeachment trial is disposed of.

EX-GOVERNOR ADAMS WOULD BE SECRETARY.

Denver, Colo., Jan. 10.—A resolution endorsing ex-Governor Alva Adams for the position of secretary of the interior in President Wilson's cabinet, was introduced in the senate. Another resolution protests against the action of the interior department in refusing ditch rights the government forest reservations. Among the bills introduced was a measure providing a 2 per cent tax on all incomes of more than $20,000 a year. A bill introduced by Senator S. S. Belle of Pueblo, would repeal both the miners eight hour laws adopted at the November election. The bill contains a clause declaring that this action is necessary for the immediate preservation of health and public safety.

The house adopted a memorial to congress protesting against the proposed removal of the army post from Fort Logan and urging its enlargement to a full regimental post.

E. ANDREWS IS EXPECTED TO RECOVER

Further information regarding the serious accident which disabled Edgar Andrews, of Bonanza, has just been received.

While attending to assessment work on one of the mines at Bonanza on January 4, a blast prematurely exploded, blowing off the left hand and destroying the left eye of Mr. Andrews and otherwise seriously injuring him. Mr. Arthur P. Towne, of Cerrillos, who was in the tunnel with Mr. Andrews at the time was miraculously uninjured and hurried Mr. Andrews out of the tunnel, rendering prompt first aid and probably saving the life of Mr. Andrews.

Word was at once sent to Mrs. Andrews, at Cerrillos, and she hurried to the scene, but the sight so unnerved her that she collapsed and was unable to render any assistance. Mr. Andrews was taken to the hospital at Albuquerque, where everything possible was done by Mr. Towne and the three attending physicians to relieve the sufferer. Two operations were immediately performed, when the left eye was removed, the left hand dressed and several pieces of bone above the left eye removed, some of which almost pierced the brain. While it will be some days before the crisis will be reached, the fortitude displayed by Mr. Andrews encourages his physicians, who believe he will recover.

$100,000 A YEAR TO WIN SETTLERS.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 11.—The state board of immigration will ask the 1913 session of the legislature to appropriate $100,000 for bringing settlers to Minnesota and to carry on a general campaign of publicity. This intention is contained in the annual report of the board compiled by Commissioner J. H. Maxfield. The appropriation heretofore has been $25,000 a year.

THAT CONSERVATION

Somebody has said that the truth is sometimes the blackest lie. Which is quite true. Truths can be stated in such a way as to give the opposite impression from that which is the fact.

Ed. H. Thomas has written an article for Pearson's Magazine on "Conservation as Practiced." He approves of conservation, but "not in the way it is practiced." There are certain indications in it that he approves of the Ballinger (Cunningham) kind of conservation in opposition to the Pinchot kind.

Friend Thomas quotes volumes of statistics. He has the figures from official reports and documents of all kinds. The figures seem to be correct. Nevertheless they are misleading.

For instance, he states in reference to a coal land withdrawal in Whatcom county, Washington, that "through departmental ignorance of geographical conditions, Bellingham, a city of 20,000, was included in the withdrawal."

This sounds awfully bad. As a matter of fact, everyone knows, or ought to know, that all land withdrawals specifically except from their operation all lands held in private ownership within the tract included in the withdrawal. This is necessarily so. Everybody knows that land within a city's limits is in private ownership. And so, of course, in making this withdrawal, the interior department did not and could not withdraw the city of Bellingham, and Thomas knows it, or should know it.

Thomas states that "total timber sales for seven years have averaged less than 9 per cent of the annual new growth while a $3,000,000 annual deficit piles up." This is quite true. It is also true that the forest service is selling all the timber that the market will absorb at market prices.

The lumber men are probably not taking any more timber than they can sell at high prices. If, however, the forest service should reduce its stumpage price to lumber dealers below the average market price, the result would be that the lumber dealers would purchase at a lower price from the government, sell at the same old price to the consumer, and pocket the difference.

Fine for the lumber dealer, but not much benefit to the consumer or the government. On the other hand, if the forest service went above the average stumpage price, the result would be that private forest owners could increase their price to meet the government price and the lumber trust would simply boost the price to the consumer some more. And so on.

Thomas dilates on the ignorance of the forest officials in issuing instructions to a forest ranger in 1899. It happens that 1899 is just six years before the forest service had control of the national forests.

Thomas deplores the withdrawal of forest land in Alaska and thinks the lands should be open to "coal land development." He says the cancellation of the Cunningham claims shows "bad faith on the part of the government."

It may be remarked in passing that Ed. T. Thomas is editor of the Seattle Post-Intelligencer, which was the personal organ of Secretary Richard Achilles Ballinger during the fight to oust Ballinger from the interior department. Ballinger appointed as his private secretary the Washington correspondent of this paper, and one of his most intimate friends, E. C. Brainard, was at that time the managing editor of the paper.

The Post-Intelligencer consistently defended the Cunningham claimants and fought Pinchot and the conservationists. Now appears its editor, who favors conservation, but "not in the way it is practiced." Of course not.

WHAT IT MEANS

When the members of the legislature assemble next week and come to answer to themselves the question, "What are we here for?" let it be remembered that they are not here for the purpose indicated by that question when asked by Senator Plimack, of Texas, at the Chicago convention, from which time the phrase became a part of American slang.

Too long, New Mexico has been held back by private interests. She has not been given a chance.

Everyone knows this who has watched the course of events and paid any attention to the work of the successive legislatures. The manner in which legislation has been manipulated has been an outrage. The welfare of the state has been lost sight of, and neglected. There has been no attempt to build up, only along certain lines which led to individual profit and advantage.

There is no use attempting to deny this fact, and today it is universally recognized.

A change of sentiment has taken place which is nation-wide, and it has invaded New Mexico. The sentiment is not incoercible. It is not dangerous. It is not destructive. It is a sentiment that would seek to build. It is a sentiment in favor of progress. It would distribute opportunities, not concentrate them. It would give all citizenship an equal chance. It is the principle of a square deal. That is all.

It would be well for our members of the legislature to remember this. The state needs now their very best work and an exercise of the spirit of loyalty to their interests.

They are the state's representatives. They should not be here for personal or private interests. They should not be influenced by the paid representatives of other interests than those touching closely, the people of the whole state.

Their work will be watched with intense concern.

THE TROUBLE APPETITE

A missionary was urging a lazy heathen to arouse and do.

"Why trouble myself?" asked the heathen.

"If you work you can make money."

"What for?"

"With money you can buy property, enlarge your life and become a great man."

"What for?"

"Why—why, then you will be happy."

"But I'm happy now," returned the heathen.

The tropics are full of optimism of this sort. That's why there's nothing doing there. There is too much comfort and sunshine. It takes fog and rain and snow to make men hustle.

It is a mistake to suppose we ought always to be happy and free from trouble. We need to be miserable sometimes. Happiness is the reaction, pleasant but temporary.

The human heart has strange appetites. It must have its sorrows, its tragedies and tears and bitter herbs.

Like the old woman who "loves our murders" in the newspapers, we want blood in novels, and we pay $1 for a seat in the theater when there is to be tragedy and 25 cents to see a comedy. And we want the preacher to give us fire and brimstone occasionally.

We all want pleasure. But there is another want fully as imperative. We want trouble. We may think we don't but we do.

Never in the history of New Mexico, as a territory or as a state, has the opportunity been so ripe as now for such legislation as will aid in growth and prosperity. The responsibility is pressing.

The way is open. We are hampered now in our growth, with lands tied up, untaxed; great resources lying dormant, left unproductive; properties not assessed what they should be, or transferred to other owners; land grants taken from the courts and given to the people who have a right to them. In other words, open New Mexico to immigration.

Let the motto constantly in the minds of the members of the legislature be, "For the Good of the State."

THE VALLEY RANCH

AS THE BYSTANDER SEES IT

BY ARBITRATION.

Santa Fe feels grieved. So does the A. T. & S. F. Railroad company. That is a condition often existing between individuals as well as corporations. One way to settle differences of this nature is by arbitration. Of course, another way is that so often resorted to by boys—make faces at each other for a minute, pass a few unkindly and rude remarks, and then bluff, bang and someone gets hurt. After it's over there are still unkind feelings besides the bruises. It is better to try arbitration first, and if that fails, why then—

The action taken by the Chamber of Commerce the other night seems to the bystander, most judicious. Let both sides present their case.

A Santa Fe railroad official remarked the other day: "They have not heard our side, yet."

No, nor has the railroad company heard ours, entire. Inasmuch as both sides have something to explain, the plan of meeting to talk it over is likely to bring the best results.

The railroad officials say that they have done much for Santa Fe in the way of extensive and effective advertising, and that they have always endeavored to make this one of their drawing cards, always having it prominently mentioned in their folders which go all over the country.

What they say is true.

It is also true that this old city, with its rich treasures, has done much for the A. T. & S. F. Railroad company. Santa Fe has given the road a constantly increasing business. Our merchants have been steady and loyal customers. We have a rich storehouse of treasures beyond that of any city in the United States which brings much travel. So, we have done our part too.

Neither party to this disagreement really wants to get along without the other. Antagonisms between a railroad and point on its line do not help either party. An adjustment is the best thing. But Santa Fe feels that she has been discriminated against and that injury has resulted. She feels that she is entitled to consideration and that recent action on the part of this company is not quite a square deal. All things considered, it's best to arbitrate.

THOSE THEORIES.

Every now and then, some fellow comes along with a new theory which he springs on the public, about something that has happened or is going to happen, and the theorist goes on to tell learnedly how and why certain things happen as they do.

Now, a congressman, James M. Curley, solemnly declares that "beer, not patriotism caused the dumping of the tea into Boston harbor back in 1773. The beer theory was knocked by John W. Carberry, of the Boston Globe, who says it was patriotism all right, that caused the tea dump, and if there really was any artificial stimulant it was rum punch."

Why can they not let our history go as it has been taught us, and as we know it was. That early history was full of such wonderful sacrifice and courage and patriotic fervor. It has never been equaled in romance and sentiment and patriotism by any nation in the world.

A little time ago some gink said that they never did throw the chests of tea overboard and now comes a member of congress and says the real motive or influence was beer. There is not anything witty in the statesman's remark, if that is what was intended, and there is not any sense in it. It seems as if the whole tendency today is to belittle the past, to take all the romance and beauty from that old history so full of the spirit that has built nations and given us the best in life.

One of these days these funny men will be invading the west and telling us that our long cherished history of the conquest of this section is bunk, and the Governor's Palace in Santa Fe was no such thing. The only reason they don't do this is that they do not know enough of the west and its history to comment on it at all.

TAUGHT BY EXPERIENCE.

"The world is my oyster," I said long ago.

But now that my tresses are gray.

I no longer fancy I'm all of the show.

I see what a small part I'm playing.

I trust not appearance, though pleasant to be.

Nor let self-complacency blind me.

When a girl is apparently smiling at me.

I look to see who is behind me."

—Lippincott's.

But that age when one thinks "the world is my oyster," was a delightful age and every mother's son of us passes through it. We see things in a new way in that age and see ourselves away up there among the big and famous people. We feel that we can just do anything with this little old world that we want to.

It is good to have these ideas, though. They act as a sort of inspiration, for if we knew at that age, what we know in later life, there would not be much encouragement to go on, unless from the beginning we are content to play a very small part.

Yet, even when that time comes, there is a great deal to live for, and a great deal to do—worth doing, too. Things look different—very different at the two stages of life, but the time when the illusions have all vanished, and we see things as they are has as much inspiration in it, though in a different way, as the sunny days of childhood when everything looked so bright and gay with promise. We can make it look about as we want to even when the silver begins to tint our domes, you know, but things never look so bright after about twenty-five summers have passed us. It is buoyant youth that gave us the start, though.

STAGE DRIVER IS FROZEN

Roswell, N. M., Jan. 10.—Roswell and the Pecos valley is still within the grip of the ice king. The lowest drop in the thermometer registered at the government station was six degrees below zero. The weather, however, has been clear.

For the first time within the memory of many the Middle Berrendo river north of town three miles, was frozen over.

Plumbers have been the busiest people in the city the past week. Many pipes have burst and flooded homes.

Suffering among those living in tents has been intense, and the Elks charity committee, W. H. Stine, chairman, has spent much time furnishing fuel and clothing and grub to the destitute. The Salvation Army has also done great charity work.

Only one misfortune from the ranches out on the plains and in the foothills has been reported so far.

This was the serious condition of the Lincoln stage driver—Francisco Cordova. His lips, feet, hands, ears and cheeks were frozen.

The story of Cordova is that of the westerner too sure of his grounds, and conditions to overstep the limits of human endurance and not considering the severity of the blinding snow in the dark.

He started out from here Monday morning with the stage to take the mail to the Picacho hill, where he turns it over to the driver who returns back to Lincoln. Cordova returning to Roswell. The snow was blinding, and drifted to three or four feet. He did not reach the big hill until five o'clock. The other driver had come horseback and wanted Cordova to stop at a ranch three miles distant, but Cordova thought he ought to come on and return with the United States mail, thinking that he could brave the fury of the storm.

The wind, snow and darkness descended upon him.

He thought he could make it to the old stage stand back to within twenty miles of Roswell. He lost the road and directions of all kinds and wandered in the storm all night. He was found about eighteen miles west of Roswell by a searching party that had been sent out to find him.

PLAYED COWBOY. SHOT SISTER

Detroit, Jan. 10.—"I've shot, I've shot," cried little five-year-old Violet Schaner, 292 Denton avenue, Hamtramck, throwing herself into her mother's arms.

She had been playing "Cowboy and Indian" with her eight-year-old playmate, Steven Tyborski, in the kitchen of his home at 296 Denton avenue, while his mother was shopping.

The game became more exciting and waxed more realistic. Steven remembered the hiding place of a revolver, which he immediately brought into the game. Not knowing it was loaded, nor realizing the danger, he pointed the weapon at the little girl and pulled the trigger.

The bullet passed through the forearm into her side, struck a rib over the heart and glanced off.

With the blood streaming down her white dress she staggered to her home, two doors away, crying piteously for her mother for help.

Edward Alfred, a porter at C. J. Faber's saloon, who was passing the house, carried the child to Dr. Carmichael's office from where she was conveyed to Harper hospital, a few minutes later. An X-ray photograph was taken to locate the bullet.

It was found, however, that the shot had glanced from the rib, and had come out of her side.

For several hours after the accident the boy could not be found, until after a diligent search he was found hiding beneath his bed, crying bitterly with remorse for his act, and hysterical from fear that the village marshal was coming for him. The girl is resting easily and unless complications arise, she will be out in a few days.

ROUTE OVER OLD TRAILS

Deming, N. M., Jan. 10.—G. M. Sadler, having bought the fluor spar mines of the American Fireman's Mining company has begun the operation of the property, putting a force of twenty men and spar will be shipped to the Colorado Fuel & Iron company, Pueblo, Colo., at the rate of five hundred tons per month. This spar is noted as the purest in the world, running above ninety per cent calcium fluoride. It is used by the Colorado Fuel & Iron company as a flux. The mines are located twelve miles from Deming at the foot of the Cook's range. The shipping point is Florida station. Besides the workings of the old company, Mr. Sadler is working a number of new locations, which are most promising.

Delegates from the southern tier of counties in New Mexico met at Deming Tuesday night, to route the Southern Automobile Highway through New Mexico. The route agreed upon includes Lordsburg, Silver City, Deming, Las Cruces and tentatively from Cruces to El Paso. The New Mexico Auxiliary for this association was organized with W. S. Cox, of Silver City, as vice-president, and Francis E. Lester, of Las Cruces, as state organizer. The meeting of the entire association with representatives from every state traversed will be held in Asheville, N. C., February 15th next. Dr. Hoffman, of this place, was appointed a committee on resolutions. The resolutions adopted dealt largely with the historic trails through this portion of New Mexico, and bring out the fact that Cabeza de Baca traversed this region as early as 1539, starting from Culicán and going north through what is now the state of Sonora crossing into what is now Grant county, crossing Luna county near the point where Deming now stands, and from thence to a point on the Rio Grande about where Las Cruces is now situated. The resolutions also call attention to the fact that the Old Butterfield trail traverses this particular section, giving an auto route through here an added historic interest.

BIG LOOT WAS JESSE JAMES'

Memphis, Tenn., Jan. 10.—Kid Dalton, former member of the James boys and Dalton gang of bandits, says that the $37,000 found by George Hardsook, a laborer working on a pipeline trench near Claremore, Okla., was part of $70,000 taken in a Missouri Pacific train robbery in 1874 near Mosseret, a town that has been abandoned.

"The robbery was made one night in October," said Dalton. "The gang was led by Jesse James, and with him was Dick Little, Jim Cummins, Jim Collins and four others. Collins and Little boarded the train at a water tank just west of Mosseret."

"They got nearly $70,000, most of it being in $20 gold pieces, considerable in silver and the remainder in greenbacks."

"They escaped to a ravine, where the swag was to be divided. Deputies pressed them so hard, however, that they separated to meet at an Indian camp, Clairmore, I. T. United States marshals got wind of their whereabouts and began to surround them."

"The silver and gold was so heavy it was troublesome, and as all had to get away quick, Jesse James buried the money near a big tree. The remainder was taken to a place on the bank of the Little Blue river, Missouri. Some of the gang returned to Indian Territory after the swag, but the markers had been moved, and as it was not safe to dig around there much, they gave it up."

ATTENDED QUEEN. DANCED TO FAME

London, Jan. 10.—Maud Hobson, the first "Gaiety Girl," is dead.

Her real name was Jennie Manson. She was an Australian and the niece of John Hollingshead. She created the title role of the "Gaiety Girl" with which production she toured America. Miss Hobson married Captain Haley, of the British army, with whom she went to Honolulu where her husband became the premier of the Hawaiian Kingdom and she was appointed the maid of honor to Queen Liliuokalani.

Miss Hobson met Robert Louis Stevenson in Samoa. After the death of her husband she rejoined the English stage.

Woman's Beauty is Based on Health

To Have Health, Bowel Movement is Absolutely Necessary—How Best to Obtain It.

If woman's beauty depended upon cosmetics every woman would be a picture of loveliness. But beauty lies deeper than that. It lies in health. In the majority of cases the basis of health, and the cause of sickness, can be traced to the action of the bowels.

The headaches, the lassitude, the sallow skin and the lusterless eyes are usually due to constipation. So many things that women do habitually conduce to this trouble. They do not eat carefully, they eat indigestible foods because the foods are served daintily and they do not exercise enough. But whatever the particular cause may be it is important that the condition should be corrected.

An ideal remedy for women, and one especially suited to their delicate requirements, is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which thousands of women endorse highly, among them Mrs. Nora Robertson, 13 S. 11th St., Lincoln, Neb., and Mrs. Ann E. Edwards, Correctionville, Ia., who have it constantly in the house to meet such emergencies. All the family can use Syrup Pepsin, for thousands of mothers give it to babies and children. It is also admirably suited to the requirements of elderly people, in fact to all who by reason of age or infirmity cannot stand harsh salts, cathartics, pills or purgatives. These should always be avoided for at best their effect is only for that day, while a genuine remedy like Syrup Pepsin acts mildly but permanently.

MRS. NORA ROBERTSON

It can be conveniently obtained at any drug store at fifty cents or one dollar a bottle. You will find it gentle in action, pleasant in taste and free from griping, and its tonic properties have a distinct value to women. It is the most widely used laxative in America today and thousands of families are now never without it.

If no member of your family has ever used Syrup Pepsin and you would like to make a personal trial of it before buying it in the regular way of a druggist, send your address—a postal note will do—to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 115 Washington St., Monticello, Ill., and a free sample bottle will be mailed you. Results are always guaranteed or money will be refunded.

has yet been discovered leading to a knowledge of the whereabouts of William McMath, the dairyman and proprietor of the large ranch two miles southeast of Raton, from where he suddenly disappeared last Thursday morning.

For a time, it was feared that some serious accident had befallen Mr. McMath, but the failure of several days of search to give any clue to his disappearance has led many to believe that worry over financial difficulties is responsible for his conclusion to get away from business worries, at least for a time.

Mr. McMath left the ranch house about 10 o'clock Thursday morning in work clothes with the expressed purpose of feeding the hogs. On failing to reappear, a search was instituted and later Sheriff Hixenbaugh and deputies gave much attention to the work of unearthing some clue. Preparations were made to drain the large irrigation reservoir near the house in the fear that Mr. McMath and accidentally fallen through one of the several air holes cut for watering stock, but the impossibility of recovering a body under a foot or more of ice after draining the reservoir, together with the growing presumption that the missing man had gone elsewhere, led the searchers to give up the attempt.

It is known that Mr. McMath has recently worried considerably over the fact that he had assumed a heavy obligation in the purchase of his ranch which had been taken over last summer from its former owners under a heavy mortgage. His inability to meet expectations in making the dairy farm give the returns he had hoped for is believed to be responsible for his disappearance.

Mrs. McMath has been completely prostrated by the disappearance and is unable to account for her husband's strange act—Raton Range.

A STRANGE DISAPPEARANCE

Faginaw, Mich., Jan. 10.—Myrtle Whitmore, of Henlock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allison Whitmore, came to Saginaw, December 9, with the intention of going to Chesaning to visit friends. She never reached there and since then nothing has been heard of her by her parents.

Since then her father has used every effort to find the slightest clue, but to no avail.

Miss Whitmore was seen that evening in the Pore Marquette railroad station and told a friend she was on her way home. The day she left Henlock she cashed a check for $125 and the fact that she had so much money led the father to believe that foul play might have caused her disappearance, but the police who have conducted a search for the girl are not inclined to favor it.

It was thought that Miss Whitmore might have gone to an aunt living in California, but a wire asking for information informed the anxious parents that Myrtle had not arrived.

GIRL CHLOROFORMED IN BERTH.

Cincinnati, Jan. 10.—Evelyn Stewart, 19 years old, of Jacksonville, Fla., was found unconscious and suffering from chloroform poisoning in a Pullman berth on a Big Four train bound for Chicago to Cincinnati. Her hands were bound behind her with a cresset string. A bottle of chloroform was found in the berth.

When doctors attempted to arouse her the girl exclaimed: "Did he get me this time?" according to Dr. F. A. Grossman, a railroad physician. At the Seton hospital she refused to explain her remark. She said she had been in New York and Chicago. Her purse contained $46.

Park City, Utah, Jan. 10.—Mrs. Mary C. Holland, city recorder, who last night refused to resign at the request of the city council following the discovery of a shortage in her accounts, today changed her mind and handed in her resignation. Mrs. Holland's resignation came as unexpectedly as her first refusal.

According to councilmen, it was understood that she was to hand in her resignation with the return of the money that would balance her books, but upon making good this amount she would not quit her office for the simple reason that she did not have to.

Mrs. Lucy Garvin has been appointed her successor.

As a result, the railroad will install several improvements.

RATES WERE MAINTAINED

Washington, Jan. 10.—Oral understanding to maintain rates between the Lamport and Holt line, the Houston, the Prince line, the Harbor line and the Weir and Boyd line, carrying commerce between New York and Laplata, Montenegro, has existed since January, 1912, according to testimony of Paul G. Gerhart, New York agent of the Prince line today, before the house merchant marine committee. He said, he further testified, had another understanding with lines doing business between New York and South Africa. In the Laplata trade, he declared, there were no rebates and no division of territory.

"The time was when New York agents of the lines were permitted to make rates on certain articles," said Mr. Gerhart. "Now they are made in London."

"When was that change made," asked Representative Humphrey. "I should say about two years ago."

"Rate cutting is a most unfortunate position to be in," replied Mr. Gerhart. "You can't run steamers unless on a paying basis. You can't do it on a paying basis except you have an understanding against cutting rates. We have had some bitter experiences."

William E. Halm, New York agent of the Houston line, testified that a London "conference" controlled the New York rate to South Africa.

"I must say that the freights are pooled," he testified. Subject to that conference were the Houston line, the Hanna line, the Union Clay line and the American-African line.

ABOUT "FIXING" RATES. Chairman Alexander asked whether the Houston line was in any agreement regulating freight or passenger traffic between the United States and Laplata. Rates for this trade, the witness said, were made in New York at conferences between representatives of the various steamship lines, although no written agreements were entered into. The conferences, he said, were held once a week on the floor of the stock exchange or wherever the representatives happened to get together.

In fixing rates, the witness added, an effort was made to keep them on a parity with rates from Germany and England.

Mr. Halm declared that his company had not given rebates on outgoing cargoes from the United States for many years.

"I know nothing about rebates on cargoes from Argentina to the United States," said the witness, "but I know from correspondence that rebate arrangements exist."

Representative Humphrey wanted to know whether there were any agreements between railroad and steamship companies as to through rates.

Mr. Halm said, as far as he knew, no such agreements were entered into.

ROCKEFELLER WILL BE MET BY MEDICO

Washington, D. C., Jan. 10.—The money trust committee of the house today ordered Chairman Pujo to send a physician to meet William Rockefeller, returning from Bermuda, as soon as he reached Miami.

The physician will endeavor to ascertain whether or not the oil magnate is physically able to testify.

HAS DECIDED TO LEAVE. Nassau, New Providence, Jan. 10.—Win. Rockefeller has decided to leave here today on board the steamer Miami for Miami, Florida.

Washington, Jan. 10.—Mr. Pujo, declined to make public his plans for intercepting Mr. Rockefeller or name of the physician to be employed by the committee.

FIRECRACKER BURNED STABLE.

Pottsville, Pa., Jan. 10.—It wasn't a direct incendiary who fired Otto Collier's big stables at Branchdale and imperiled 58 mules, as heretofore supposed.

It was a smart chap at a shooting match who attached firecrackers to a pigeon's legs and set them off so the bird would be too lively for a rival shoot.

The pigeon got safely away from the gunner and flew to the stables, with part of the burning crackers still attached. When the bird alighted the hay was ignited, and a loss of $6,000 followed.

TO CURE CRIME THROUGH MIND.

Boston, Jan. 10.—Prof. G. Stanley Hall, president of Clark university, speaking before the American Sociological society said that psychologists were looking toward the day when science would be used in the examination for vocational and criminal tendencies, and serve the purpose of rectifying morbid brain processes and sending the youth in the right direction.

IRON AND STEEL SCHEDULE IS DISCUSSED

Washington, Jan. 10.—The iron and steel schedule was taken up today by the house ways and means committee when it resumed hearings on tariff revision. Two days probably will be devoted to this important section and many prominent steel men will be heard. The proposal to put printing presses on the free list instead of a 30 per cent ad valorem duty, as under the present tariff, brought a protest from James E. Bennett, of New York, representing twenty-two printing press manufacturing companies. He maintained that the present tariff should stand.

Chairman Underwood told the witness the democrats were seeking a tariff for revenue and "not to protect profits." That there was no disposition to maintain a tariff unless there was some revenue to the government. The witness contended that the business was being run on a small margin.

OPPOSE CUT ON LEAD. Washington, D. C., Jan. 10.—Rocky mountain lead mines opposed the proposal of a cut in the tariff on lead to a flat 25 ad valorem. Frederick Burbridge, of Seattle, Washington, testified that there was less than 5 per cent profit in the capital invested in the Coeur d'Alene lead mines, which he represented. He wanted at least to have the new rates remain on a specific basis instead of being changed to ad valorem.

The Coeur d'Alene mines, productive and non-productive, including the subsidiary features of the industry, employed 5000 men and the Coeur d'Alene country was dependent upon the lead industry, he said.

Speaking for the Utah lead producers, George Ritear, of Salt Lake City, advocated continuance of the specific tariff at not less than the present rates.

WANTS IT RAISED.

Washington, Jan. 10.—Edwin Radford, of Brooklyn, wanted the tariff on gold leaf raised from 35 per cent ad valorem to 50 per cent and said any reduction would result in reducing the wages of working men.

"How many men do you employ?" asked Representative Palmer. "Two."

"And you would have us levy a greater tax on gold leaf to protect these two men?"

"Not mine alone, but others in the business."

The witness saw possible invasion of Germans in the American market.

ZINC DEFENDED. The zinc industry presented a block of argument against the removal of the tariff on zinc. Otto Ruhl, of Joplin, Mo., said there was no mining industry in the country so free from monopoly or combination. F. Samuels, of Wallace, Idaho, speaking for the Coeur d'Alene zinc industry, expressed the same views.

The attitude of the International Association of Machinists union in New Jersey toward the democratic proposal to put printing presses on the free list was voiced by Hugh V. Reilly, of Newark, who agreed with the manufacturers that the present

TARIFF IS BIG QUESTION AT CONVENTION

Albert S. Watzfelder, of New York City, appealed for retention of the tariff of 15 cents a pound and 60 per cent ad valorem on tinsel braids and similar products on the ground that they were luxuries and do not enter into the cost of living.

RICH, YET STARVED TO DEATH?

Oscala, Mo., Jan. 10.—The body of Mrs. Mary Hughes, 60 years old, was found in her poorly furnished cottage at the village of White Crossing, near here, today. The body showed signs of emaciation caused by hunger, but $75 in money was found in her possession, while $400 in gold pieces was found sewed up in an old quilt. Among her papers were found a certificate of deposit for $4,000 in a Kansas City bank and deeds to real estate in Kansas City and Montana.

Little is known of the woman at White Crossing. She came to the village four years ago, but always remained aloof from her neighbors. Her few acquaintances believed she was in abject poverty until today. Montana was supposed to have been her home before coming there. Although there were no indications that her death was due to other than natural causes, the coroner is investigating to determine whether she died of starvation or sickness.

CONGRESS IS ASKED TO INVESTIGATE TWO JUDGES.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 10.—A congressional investigation into the conduct of United States District Judge John C. Pollock of Kansas, and United States District Judge A. S. Van Valkenburgh, of the western district of Missouri, was asked for in a resolution presented to the house today by Representative Borland, of Missouri. It is alleged that they appointed three receivers for the Kansas Natural Gas company, a pipe line, who were "friendly to the interests, design and purposes" of that company and the United Gas Improvement company of Philadelphia, which controlled it.

"PROF." NICHOLS IN DENVER. Denver, Colo., Jan. 10.—Ernest Fox Nichols, president of Dartmouth College, arrived here today on a trip to California. He addressed the chamber of commerce at noon.

KETCHELL WILL FIGHT TOMMY MURPHY FEB. 22. Chicago, Jan. 10.—Steve Ketchell today sent a telegram to James Corbett, at San Francisco, declaring his willingness to fight Tommy Murphy in the California City February 22. He expects the match to be made.

Globe-Wernicke
Sectional Bookcases

ONCE books either overcrowded limited shelf space or empty shelves yawned and waited for books. When one bookcase overflowed, a new one was purchased, and its gaping shelves were gradually filled. That was before the Globe-Wernicke period in bookcases. Now, books and their shelves come together. The bookcase grows space with the library. This is the modern way of building a library. This is the Globe-Wernicke idea.
