ROOSEVELT MIGHTY POOR POLITICIAN BECAUSE HE "STANDS BY FRIENDS"

BRIAN BORU DUNNE TESTIFIED TO OIL INVESTIGATION COMMITTEE THAT THIS WAS DECLARATION OF WILLIAM H. ANDREWS AND IT MADE HIM LOSE DESIRE OF BECOMING A GREAT POLITICIAN.

NEWSPAPER MAN'S TESTIMONY WAS PUNCTUATED BY LAUGHTER

That the testimony given by Brian Boru Dunne, city editor of the Santa Fe New Mexican, before the oil investigation committee at the state capitol was more interesting, more dramatic and more amusing than anything that has been written about "standard oil" was the declaration of members of the committee and of many of the listeners who filled the committee room where the committee met yesterday morning.

For one solid hour Mr. Dunne talked—and at times so rapidly that the stenographers were taxed to keep up with him—and during that hour his narrative was uninterrupted, except by violent bursts of laughter from politicians and others who held their sides or rolled over in their seats as the witness drew picture after picture of the transactions he had with certain well known "New Mexico statesmen," including William H. Andrews, William J. Mills, the late Solomon Luna and Charles A. Spess.

Mr. Dunne declared afterward that he had not written out or memorized a story to tell at all, but whether he used art or not, the climaxes were well arranged from the first one when he waited at the telephone desk to see his name come over the wires as a successor of Fritz Miller in the land office, to the final reply he gave to Mr. Marcos C. de Baca, who asked him if he had rendered service to the oil office. "I did," said the witness, "if we can believe the words of that great poet, Milton, who wrote: 'They also serve who stand and wait.'"

One of the most interesting features of the testimony was the declaration of Mr. Dunne that he lost faith in his "professor of politics," William H. Andrews, when Andrews told him of the D. & R. G. train coming back from Rio Arriba county, that Theodore Roosevelt was a mighty poor politician because he stood so steadfastly by his friends that he weakened himself.

Another declaration which aroused untold ripples of laughter was the surprise Mr. Dunne said he experienced to find New Mexico Republicans talking badly about one another whereas in New York he had found them boosters for the G. O. P. and everyone in the party.

At the conclusion of his testimony, Mr. Dunne was surrounded by members of the committee who shook him warmly by the hand as did also visitors and his counsel, Judge L. C. Collins.

BEGAN AT 10 A. M.

The committee, composed of Major W. H. H. Llewellyn, chairman, Messrs. Toombs, Rogers, Campbell and M. C. de Baca, met at the capitol about 9:20 a. m., yesterday, to continue taking testimony about the "doings" of officials and others connected with the coal oil office of Malaguas Martinez, pursuant to a resolution introduced in the house by Major Llewellyn. This resolution has aroused keen interest throughout the state as it "calls to account" no less than five newspaper men and about thirty-five more men prominent in professional, business, and political circles.

The committee asked for Mr. Dunne, but the subpoena had not been served. Judge Collins, however, was notified, and with Mr. Dunne at once motored to the capitol where the subpoena was served on Mr. Dunne as he stood in the corridor.

DUNNE ON THE STAND.
Then the fun began. Major Llewellyn administered the oath to Mr. Dunne who took his seat at the committee's table. Then Mr. Rogers asked Mr. Dunne if he would tell the story of the oil business as far as he was connected with it.

Mr. Dunne began by telling how he came to New Mexico. He told of meeting John W. Dwight, Republican whip in the house, in Ithaca, New York; how Dwight had talked to him about the great southwest, especially New Mexico.

MET JOHN W. DWIGHT.
The witness said that he became interested in New Mexico, recalling how his father had practiced law in Santa Fe away back in 1876 and that one of Mr. Dunne's sisters had been born in Santa Fe. Mr. Dunne said his father had lived all over the southwest and had been chief justice of Arizona. The witness added that he himself was born in Utah.

Mr. Dwight told Mr. Dunne about William H. Andrews who was Dwight's personal friend, and said he would give him a letter of introduction to Andrews. Mr. Dwight said he had helped Andrews in work for New Mexico and that he felt Andrews would be able to land Mr. Dunne a good political job if Dunne would go to New Mexico and work for statehood.

The witness told how he quit newspaper work in the east and came out to New Mexico in November, 1909. In December, 1909, came up to Santa Fe; Andrews suggesting that Dunne might be made postmaster in the capitol. Dunne said he began work in Santa Fe by getting out a special edition and that the work was very profitable. He said he received letters from Andrews and Dwight saying they were going to work to have President Taft appoint Dunne in the land office at $3,000 per year. The witness told how he sat at the telephone desk in the New Mexican office watching for a dispatch with his name in it. There was much laughter at the picture drawn by the newspaperman.

Mr. Dunne then described his disappointment at finding he had not been appointed.

Mrs. G. F. McNitt's report of the remainder of Mr. Dunne's testimony follows:

A VERBATIM REPORT.

By Mr. Dunne:

I was, Gentlemen, I was disappointed. I felt that Mr. Dwight, being the whip of the house and a man whom Mr. Andrews told me was third only, or was the third most important man in the Republican party, being next to Taft and Cannon in power, I thought my friend Mr. Dwight, who had encouraged me to make this journey of two thousand miles to the great southwest, would have been able to land an appointment and the fact I had not lived here long did not seem to make it impossible for such an appointment, as my family had lived here nearly, or over a third of a century. I felt qualified for the position. I had been many years in newspaper work. As a sort of relief of my disappointment a letter came from William H. Andrews, delegate of New Mexico, stating that he was unable to get the position that he wished for me although John Dwight and he had worked hard and, I think he said, had called on the secretary of the interior to land it but that Solomon Luna, who was then as you remember national committeeman from New Mexico, had promised the position to Mr. Miller, and had held out for it but Mr. Andrews stated, "we have arranged to have you appointed oil inspector of New Mexico at a salary of two thousand five hundred dollars a year." It is true the work I had done when I first came to Santa Fe netted me over a hundred dollars a week, but it was more or less hazardous; one could not be sure of making five or six thousand dollars a year and I would have been content to take, say, half that amount, twenty-five hundred or three thousand a year and stay in this charming city.

I was not exactly familiar with the work required by the position of oil inspector, I mean as to what my work would be, but I learned this in newspaper work; that many lines of work can be followed by a newspaper man; he will diligently inquire into the requirements and sedulously work to fill them. I have seen newspaper men appointed to take positions and fill them; I thought although I was not a great chemist I might fulfill the duties of oil inspector. I thought I might fulfill them as well if not better than Mr. Malaguas Martinez who, I was informed, was then oil inspector because I was living in Santa Fe and I could attend to the duties daily without making long trips by wagon and tireless journeys over the D. & R. G. I awaited the appointment of oil inspector. Mr. Andrews then wrote me that he thought it would be made when Governor Mills took his seat, which I, as a newspaper man, understood to be some time in March.

HE SAW NO JOB.

I continued my work as city editor of the New Mexican. I saw Governor Mills when he came here. I attended his reception, I shook his hand, but I didn't see the appointment of oil inspector. (Laughter.) I went over to the reception at the executive mansion.

By Mr. Llewellyn: I think there is a good deal of this—if the committee don't object it is good, I want it to go on, just go on and tell it his own way; it reads like a romance. It is good. If there is no objection, of course, unless Mr. Rogers objects, of course, there is a lot of this—anything that he thought—

By Mr. Dunne: I will become very concise in a few moments.

By Mr. Llewellyn: Just tell it, unless the committee objects, you tell it just as elaborately as you wish. It is interesting isn't it Mr. Rogers?

HON. WILLIAM H. ANDREWS

Former Delegate in Congress From New Mexico, Pronounced by Hon. John W. Dwight, Republican Whip, As One of "The Ablest Teachers of Politics" in the United States, According to Testimony of Mr. Andrews' "Pupil", Brian Boru Dunne, Who Was a Witness Before the Oil Investigation Committee.

OIL INSPECTOR GENERAL DIAZ PROBE MAY BE MADE SEEKS TO BE PRESIDENT

ATTORNEY GENERAL HOLDS THAT POSITION IS PUBLIC OFFICE AND HENCE INVESTIGATION IS PERFECTLY PROPER. MAN WHO OUT-GENERATED MADERO WOULD LIKE TO HEAD MEXICAN REPUBLIC NOW FACING A SERIES OF BATTLES

FUNDS BELONGED TO OFFICIAL HOWEVER AGUAS CALIENTES SCENE OF TROUBLE

The investigation into the office of the territorial coal oil inspector is perfectly proper according to an opinion rendered by Attorney General Frank W. Clancy this morning, but the attorney general holds that under the act creating the office, the monies collected for the inspection of oil, etc., properly belong to the inspector and do not revert to any fund.

The opinion is addressed to "Hon. W. H. H. Llewellyn, chairman of special committee, house of representatives, Santa Fe, N. M." It is in reply to a letter from the chairman, asking for an opinion as to the office in question and the disposition of the funds collected under the old territorial coal oil act.

The opinion of the attorney general is generally conceded, leaves the committee ample room to continue the investigation into each and every branch of the coal oil inspecting business. But so far as the use of the funds are concerned, the opinion would indicate that the attorney general believed the coal oil inspector was the only person accountable for them and that they were the emoluments of his office and not subject to any department of state government, other than the governor, to whom he was required to return a report.

The opinion of the attorney general is, as follows:

Santa Fe, N. M., Feb. 27, 1913.
Hon. W. H. H. Llewellyn,
Chairman of Special Committee,
House of Representatives,
Santa Fe, N. M.

Dear Sir:

I have today received your letter of yesterday, in which you inform me that, under House Resolution No. 17, you, with four other members of the house, were appointed a committee to investigate all matters pertaining to the office of coal oil inspector, and that the committee is preparing to make the investigation in question wherever you ask, on behalf of the committee, that I give you an opinion in writing as to the office of coal oil inspector and, more particularly, whether the funds collected by the different inspectors in this state are public funds or not.

The office of coal oil inspector was established by Chapter 61 of the Laws of 1905. In the first section of that act the office is established and the method of appointment of the inspector is provided, and in the same section it is further declared to be the duty of the inspector to inspect all oils which are products of petroleum brought into the territory for sale, or used for the purpose of illumination and to mark, stamp or brand each package the degree of fire test and specific gravity of the oil as the result

HOUSE APPARENTLY IS IN FAVOR OF PROBE.

House Resolution No. 21, by Mr. Blanchard—Re It Resolved by the House of Representatives that House Resolution No. 17 be, and the same hereby is, rescinded.

This resolution offered in the house yesterday afternoon shortly after the house met, was promptly tabled by a viva voce vote of the house. Had it been adopted, it would have rescinded the house resolution whereby the special committee is, or was, investigating the coal oil inspector's office. The almost unanimous vote by which the house tabled the resolution, indicates that sentiment in the house is unalterably opposed to dropping the coal oil inquiry at this time and that the members favor the special committee proceeding with the investigation until the whole business has been gone through with.

DOVE OF PEACE AGAIN FLIES OVER LONDON

London, Feb. 28.—A pronounced belief is prevalent in official circles here that peace in the Balkans is imminent. Tewfik Pasha and Hakkı Pasha, representing the Ottoman government, paid successive visits to the foreign office this afternoon, but nothing could be learned as to the nature of the conferences.

Turkey's offer to conclude hostilities on the basis of the cession of Adrianople to Bulgaria has created general optimism. Turkey, it is understood, demands that her frontier line shall be drawn from Midia on the Black sea to Enos on the Aegean sea if she gives up Adrianople, and it is believed that Bulgaria will raise no objection to the proposal.

In the event of peace being arranged, the main terms will be signed on the scene of hostilities and the details filled in afterward by plenipotentiaries in London.

FORD QUESTIONS DARROW ABOUT EXPLOSION

Los Angeles, Calif., Feb. 28.—Cross examination of Clarence Darrow was begun today at his own trial on a charge of jury bribery.

W. J. Ford, assistant district attorney, began his interrogating with questions relating to the explosion in the Los Angeles Times building, October 1, 1910, and ranged over the entire McNamara case.

Objections from Earl Rogers, Darrow's chief counsel, who maintained that Darrow's oath as an attorney prevented him from answering many questions concerning any confidences he may have had from the McNamaras frequently halted the proceedings.

CALLS OIL KING A "SCARECROW"

New York, Feb. 28.—John D. Rockefeller's position in the steel industry was described as that of a "scarecrow" in testimony today in the government suit to dissolve the United States steel corporation under the Sherman anti-trust law.

Minutes of the Carnegie steel were read in evidence which described the late H. H. Rogers, as having tried to induce Mr. Rockefeller to "control the manufacture of steel the same as he does oil" through the sale of his Lake Superior iron ores to the federal Steel company at the time when there was war in the steel industry.

"This was one of the scare crows which induced the Carnegie steel company to buy more iron mines," testified James A. Gayley, former vice president of the corporation.

FIRE DESTROYS OMAHA HOTEL, CREMATING 15 AS THEY SLUMBERED

GAS EXPLOSION IN HOTEL DEWEY CAUSES $250,000 LOSS APART FROM DEATH AND SUFFERING.—AWAKENED GUESTS WERE HEMMED IN AND SOME JUMPED THREE STORIES TO THEIR DOOM

ZERO WEATHER ADDED TO THE HORROR OF THE HOLOCAUST

Omaha, Neb., Feb. 28.—Fire, believed to have been caused by a gas explosion, killed fifteen or more lives here today. The Dewey hotel, a second class hotel, at Thirteenth and Farnam streets, was destroyed by flames, which swept the three story building with a speed that precluded attempts at rescue.

Some of the guests had time to reach the stairways but others were caught by collapsing roof of the structure before they could be rescued from window sills on which they had taken refuge.

Several of the victims jumped or fell from windows and met either instant death or mortal injury.

Accounts of the number of persons in the building differed to such an extent that accurate estimates of the death list were impossible today. The register of the hotel burned and some of the hotel employees said that many of the lodgers were not registered. At noon only about 25 out of sixty persons estimated to have been in the building, had been accounted for definitely, but it was known that a score or more of those who had escaped left the neighborhood without revealing their identity.

Zero weather hampered the firemen and added to the suffering of the injured.

Several business firms had quarters in the building and their losses added to those of the hotel owners brought the financial damage to about $250,000.

So suddenly did the flames reach every part of the building that few of those asleep on the different floors had time to reach windows, and none were able to get to the fire escape. One man, Charles Cummings, a bartender, who had a room on the Farnam street side of the hotel, opened a window and plunged from the third story to the sidewalk. He struck headfirst on the concrete walk, and was killed.

Mrs. C. E. Wilkins, who with her sister, had a room on the second floor, facing the alley in the rear, dragged her sister, Miss Alice Bonnevile to the window. There Miss Bonnevile collapsed and Mrs. Wilkins was forced to jump for her own life. Two police men broke her fall but she was badly injured. Her sister's body is in the ruins.

James D. Nold, night clerk, was the last living person to leave the building. He opened the door of his office on the second floor, when he heard an explosion and was driven back with a puff of smoke and flame. He attempted to arouse a few guests on that floor but was forced to go to the street almost overcome to save his own life.

TURNS IN ALARM.

A block watchman, who had entered the office of the Adams Express company, which is located in the hotel building, to report, discovered the fire and turned in a still alarm by telephone. He rushed out and found the clothing store of Raphael-Pred company in flames and turned in a second and third alarm by phone, which brought out the entire downtown fire fighting force. When the firemen reached the scene, the building was a mass of flames, and firemen saw a number of persons at windows in the two upper stories. Before ladders could be raised, however, the roof began to cave in on the unfortunates and not a single person was rescued by the ladder men.

ONE OF THE HEROES.

Izels Steiss, paper carrier, was one of the heroes of the fire. He was preparing to start with his morning route and was one of the first at the fire. Even before the firemen arrived, he rushed into the building and began assisting the night clerk to arouse those asleep in the building. He helped drag several half-dressed persons from the building and then, half suffocated, went to a nearby drug store where Albin P. Smith, a night clerk, administered a stimulant. Steiss stepped outside and collapsed, entirely overcome from the effects of the smoke. He was carried to an ambulance and removed to the emergency hospital, and later revived.

Jesse Nold, who represents the man-

THAT TELEGRAM HERE? SPEAKER HEARS FROM MR. VAIL TODAY.

Quite a flurry of excitement swept over the house when it was whispered about this afternoon that Roman Liberto Baca, speaker, was at last in receipt of the mysterious telegram, alleged to have been written by some house member to himself and which Mr. Vail in a telegram to the New Mexican and in response to a house resolution, had said he would send.

The speaker said that he would read the communication from Mr. Vail before the house adjourned today unless the routine of business or an unexpected adjournment prevented. He would not discuss the telegram and apparently no member of the house, even those reputed to be closest to the speaker, had so much as an inkling of WHAT HOUSE MEMBER wrote the now celebrated telegram. Mr. Vail, it will be remembered, is president of the Western Union Telegraph company and of the American Telegraph and Telephone company and is a high official residing in Boston where his offices are located. A picture of Mr. Vail is published in the New Mexican today. The New Mexican will publish Mr. Vail's latest communication in full as soon as the speaker makes it public.

BOWMAN TOOK ROSE OFF WHEN SENATE ACTED

John Bowman, member of the senate and chairman of the committee on enrolled and engrossed bills, arrived late yesterday and the senate had received the well wishes of its chaplain and had read the journal.

But all work was suspended when Mr. Bowman entered the senate chamber while the senators started in admiration at a large pink rose which adorned the coat lapel of the belated member. It was as large as a small cabbage and the senator presented all the grandeur of a real hot house. Just before the senate was ready to adjourn, Mr. Holt presented a resolution from the committee on rules and State Senator Isaac Barth, who always is looking out for proposed changes in the rules, asked that it be read in full for the information of the house.

It simply recommended that hereafter, any member of the senate who caused a cessation of senatorial duties by appearing in the senate chamber, adorned with flowers, badges, ribbons or other fancy decorations, should be escorted to the lobby by the sergeant-at-arms and undecorated.

Whereupon Mr. Bowman hastily stowed away the cabbage rose in the recesses of his desk while Mr. Holt moved that the resolution be referred to the committee on revision. Mr. Barth, however, amended to refer the resolution to the committee on enrolled and engrossed bills and the senate unanimously acquiesced.

It was a victory for the minority member from Bernalillo county, Mr. Holt declared there was nothing personal in the resolution. A New Mexican correspondent who tried to interview Mr. Bowman was told to "beat it."

The rose worn by Mr. Bowman was a handsome affair.

SILENTLY HE WORKS FOR SAN JUAN

EDWARD EVERETT YOUNG, APOSTLE OF IRRIGATION, CAME HERE WITH LETTERS TO GREAT POWERS THAT BE.

There are and there have been "apostles"—some of political purity and some of some other order.

An "apostle" seen daily at the capitol, usually seated at the press table, is Edward Everett Young, now of Aztec, San Juan county, and he is an apostle of irrigation. While young in name he is old in experience such as San Juan county needs—helpful, progressive legislation.

Mr. Young is a newspaper man who has seen long years of service in the great city of Chicago. He has had large experience in public affairs and is a courteous southern gentleman. His friends say he has not a chemical trace of "the lobbying habit" but that he is a worker for the development of a very important part of New Mexico.

BRINGS LETTERS.
When he came here at the opening of the legislature Mr. Young brought the following letters:

THE AZTEC BOARD OF TRADE.
Aztec, N. M., Jan. 9, 1913.

"To His Excellency, Governor William C. McDonald:

"To the Officers and Members of the New Mexico State Senate:

"To the Officers and Members of the New Mexico House of Representatives:

"And to All to Whom These Presents May Come:

Greetings:

"San Juan county, being highly favored by Providence, and bounteously and richly endowed in natural resources, has come upon a time when it realizes the imminent need of much useful, constructive legislation by our legislature, to enable it to come into its own. To this end the business interests of the county have decided to send an authorized representative to

EDWARD EVERETT YOUNG.

Santa Fe to attend the 1913 session of the legislature, and to co-operate with honorable W. H. Chrisman, our representative, in a common effort to secure what we sorely need in the way of helpful, progressive legislation.

"The commercial and business interests of this county, coupled with the horticultural, agricultural, sheep and cattle interests, have united on Honorable Edward Everett Young as the man best qualified by experience and natural bent, to aid in this important work. Our county knows no politics in this common effort for its common welfare.

"We bespeak for Mr. Young in his delegated capacity, a patient and kindly hearing, and the civic and patriotic co-operation of all good people interested in the enactment of proper laws for our beloved new state. All courtesies extended to Mr. Young will be appreciated by the people of San Juan county, irrespective of politics.

"Respectfully yours,

"FRED BUNKER.

"President Aztec Board of Trade.

"C. R. BEERS, Secretary of Aztec Board of Trade."

HIS WORK HERE.

Mr. Young was instructed, before leaving Aztec, to work specially for measures, viz: Irrigation to abolish possible monopoly in water; bill making arroyos public drainage channels, conducting waste and flood waters back to original channels; the exemption from taxation, of irrigation companies for six years; the re-establishment of a state immigration bureau; a bill creating a county publicity fund by a popular vote of qualified electors; beneficial legislation for sheepmen; memorial to President-elect Wilson and the U. S. congress asking redress from unjust land laws as administered in the west by the department of the interior; a better and more equitable method of state taxation; and an equitable and just county salary bill.

Experience in other and larger fields enabled him to establish influential connections early in the session, and since that time he has represented a silent force which has worked night and day for the constructive and urgent legislation needed. He is proud of the friendship and co-operation of Governor McDonald, Speaker R. L. Baca and President E. C. de Baca of the senate. In voicing San Juan county's appreciation of such valued appreciation of such valued co-operation, Mr. Young said today: "It has been my good fortune to be associated with the leading men of the

Believes This Will "Cure Lung Troubles"

Consumption is a flattering disease—that is one of its chief dangers. Those who have it are rarely willing to acknowledge the fact. If this trouble is present, it is no time for trifling. If a so-called "cold" has long persisted; if a cough is present that keeps you awake, or any of the symptoms are present, such as fever or night sweats, weakness and loss of appetite, and perhaps some raising of mucus—do the sensible thing:—Take Eckman's Alternative—as Mr. Bowersworth did.

Bowersworth Green, "C. Y. R. No. 4." "Gentlemen: I wish to say for your Alternative that I believe it to be a medicine of unequalled value for all Bronchitis and Lung Trouble. The Spring of 1908, I had a severe cough for six months. I tried all the medicine that my doctors recommended to me, but no results came for the better. I had night sweats, and would cough and spit until I got so weak I could hardly do anything. But, at last James Deering of Glasgow, Tennessee, insisted that I try your medicine. In one week's time there was quite an improvement in my condition, and after I had taken several bottles, I felt as well as ever in my life.

I desire the world to know that I firmly believe that your Eckman's Alternative will cure any case of lung trouble if taken before the last stage. I will gladly write personally to any party wanting information in regard to your wonderful medicine." (Signed: Bowersworth.)

A. C. BERTHESWORTH. Eckman's Alternative is effective in Bronchitis, Asthma, Hay Fever, Throat and Lung Troubles, and in upholding the system. Does not contain poisons, opiates or harmful drugs. ## HARMONY IS THE ONLY WATCHWORD

Byron L. Connell, editor of the Raton Reporter, of Raton, is in the city today, representing by proxy the Hon. James T. Fulton, the regularly elected chairman of the Democratic county central committee, from Colfax county. Editor Connell is desirous of creating harmony in Colfax county and is here to go before the state Democratic central committee which meets tomorrow and petition the committee to recognize the election of James T. Fulton, or in the event the committee cannot agree on him to select a third man, outside of both the Dr. C. B. Kohlhausen and Hon. John Morrow factions, who will work to keep the party together and in working order. Editor Connell is taking a central stand in the fight for clean politics, open camps, equitable taxation and those issues which mean progress to the city of Raton and county of Colfax. The Raton Reporter though a dyed-in-the-wool Democratic newspaper, is at this time without authorization and support of the Democratic organization of Colfax county, and to the end that would get the Democrats of the county together explains Editor Connell's presence here at this time.

DUNNE TELLS STORY OF "NEW MEXICO OIL"

By Mr. Rogers: It is all right. He can tell what he knows.

MR. DUNNE CONTINUES.
I didn't try to court favor with Governor Mills. I thought, even if I should think that necessary, that it would be inadvisable as I had Mr. Dwight, the whip of the Republican party, back of me and the delegate in congress; I thought those two cards were sufficient to get the position which Mr. Andrews had suggested, apparently. It never entered my mind to come out to New Mexico to take the oil inspectorship; I had my mind made up for a federal position that would last at least four years.

Over at the executive mansion one evening at a reception, I have forgotten which it was, I think it was soon after Governor Mills had been inaugurated, in my capacity as newspaper man walking around and as also one of the social faces of Santa Fe, I met face to face, properly introduced, the Honorable Solomon Luna, national committeeman of New Mexico. I had read of Mr. Luna in the Albuquerque Journal; I had heard him discussed in Albuquerque as a man of great power, as a man who, with William H. Andrews, had the territory of New Mexico by the heels. Mr. Luna was very courteous. He said to me, winking his eye, "Mr. Dunne, I know Mr. Dwight; they call him your Uncle John. Mr. Dwight is a friend of mine. Mr. Dwight says 'you boys have got to fix Dunne up with a position or I will see you don't get statehood. That is what he said,' said Luna. I said, "Mr. Luna, that is very kind of Mr. Dwight," and I ended the conversation. I did not wish to participate in an effort to deprive New Mexico of statehood after a sixty years struggle. I should never have insisted upon Mr. Dwight keeping that promise if he made it to Mr. Luna. I saw many people in Santa Fe but I didn't see the oil inspectorship. (Laughter.)

I wrote Mr. Dwight, I wrote Mr. Andrews. I have not been a world speed recordist. I have not a high record on the typewriter, but I can write, I believe, twenty or thirty letters a day without much trouble. I kept the typewriter busy. I had one in my room and had one in the office. I think I kept both Mr. Dwight and Mr. Andrews busy reading letters. "Why can't I get that position promised me?" I received letters from Mr. Andrews and a few from Mr. Dwight. They didn't seem to understand the hitch themselves. Mr. Dwight said so in one letter.

MR. SPIESS CALLS.
If I remember rightly (a newspaper man should have a good memory) about the middle of April, 1910, while I was working on the New Mexican I was informed that Mr. Charles A. Spiess wished to see me in an adjoining office. I left my desk and went into the adjoining room. You remember the old building of the New Mexican on the plaza. I said: "Mr. Spiess, what do you wish?" Mr. Spiess smiled at his accustomed Spiess-like smile and said: (Laughter.) "Mr. Dunne, I talked to the governor, as far as I remember that is the conversation, 'I talked to the governor.' Of course I knew the governor was Mills. There were lots of ex-governors but Mills was governor. He spoke to me about some position with the oil office for you. It has been arranged to pay you $500.00 a month." I was not very pleased to see my $2500 a year position had simmered down to $600 a year and I told Mr. Spiess so. He said "where did you get the idea you were to get $2500 a year?" I said "from Mr. Andrews." "Why," he said, "Mr. Andrews is a confounded liar; you can't believe him." (Laughter.) This annoyed me very much as I had just left a city where I met the Republican leaders, where they worked in such perfect harmony and spoke such nice things about each other in hall and in the press that I was shocked to hear Charles A. Spiess speak of the delegate of New Mexico as a liar. I said, "Mr. Spiess, I understood this promise was made in Washington, made to Mr. Luna, made by Mr. Mills." He says, "you can't believe anything Andrews tells you. Wasn't any promise at all about that?" I said, "what is this position," meaning the $50 a month; "well," he said, "you are to do some clerical work, something of that kind, write letters in the office," he said; "your salary will be charged up to the expense account. You needn't say anything about it. Good-bye Mr. Dunne—good-bye Mr. Spiess." I left him feeling a profound disappointment coming over me again. (Laughter.)

I have been a newspaper man, gentlemen, but I may have a temperament that is characteristic of the Irish race; being somewhat credulous I really believed they were going to give me a position so I rushed over to see Governor Mills. I had no trouble to see the governor. It seems to be difficult in the east to see governors and presidents, but out here it was easy. The first question I said to Governor Mills was, "what do you think of Mr. Spiess coming and telling me this man Andrews is a liar?" He said "pay no attention to Spiess." He seemed annoyed with me as I repeated it. He said: "He has had some fuss with Andrews, don't bother about that."

Then I asked the governor: "Why don't I get this appointment?" "What appointment?" "Why, oil inspectorship. I want to be oil inspector." He said there wasn't any promise of such an appointment. "Why," I said, "no promise of an oil appointment? Why I am so informed that that was promised me by my friends Mr. Dwight and Mr. Andrews would let up and let Mr. Luna reappoint Mr. Fritz Miller." Mills said: "Why, your name wasn't mentioned in Washington."

AN ABSOLUTE PROMISE.
I went out still more disappointed, I communicated with Mr. Andrews and Mr. Dwight and I received prompt reply I think; one letter from Mr. Andrews saying: "Have nothing to do with Mr. Spiess, it is none of his business. He didn't make the promise. The promise was made to John W. Dwight and Delegate Andrews." Mr. Dwight wrote and said they made an absolute promise. Governor Mills promised it and Luna acquiesced in the appointment of oil inspector at $2500 a year and he wrote that two thousand five hundred with a pen, signed his name to the letter and I have the letter and a lot more. I went back to Governor Mills. I don't know how many times I visited him, but at one time he informed me I wasn't a citizen of New Mexico. Coming from a man who was former chief justice of New Mexico, and an astute lawyer, I thought perhaps there was something in it. So I wrote Andrews. Andrews wrote back: "Oh he is just trying to put you off; nothing in that business." He put me off successfully, I must say. (Laughter.) I as much as informed Mr. Andrews that Governor Mills was putting me off successfully if such a compact was made in Washington with Mr. Luna and Mr. Andrews and the governor of New Mexico.

"A FLIM-FLAM GAME."
In one letter Mr. Dwight said, as far as I remember, "If those gentlemen out there are trying to work a flim-flam game, let us meet them out in the open." Finally I told Governor Mills that Dwight said the position was promised me. He talked then, I forget what he said exactly, but he talked about fixing it up when he got things adjusted. I met him on the street and he said something about "I will fix that matter up pretty soon." I didn't like the time he took to do it. A check came for fifty dollars. I took it and didn't cash it for a while. I took advice from one or two friends and they said: "Why of course; did you ask them to give you this money?" I said: "No, not in the beginning, they fixed this up themselves." "Any work attached to the office?" I said: "I was told I could do clerical work." I asked Mrs. Chapman on more than one occasion if I could do any writing of letters. I was quite familiar with that kind of work, most newspaper men are. As far as oil inspecting was concerned, I didn't understand I was to do that though I think I could have learned to do it as well as the average oil inspector or deputy of New Mexico. (Laughter.)

I believe I made quite a fuss over this failure to appoint me. I didn't go talking it around—Spiess had asked me not to say anything about it. He told Mills that: I said I didn't like that, not to say anything about it. "He said: 'I don't care if you say anything about it,' so I thought if the governor had stood back of this thing it must be all right; I thought if the former chief justice of New Mexico stood back of this thing it must be legal; I thought if John W. Dwight and Mr. Andrews approved of any method they made to give me a position it would be all right, so I cashed the check. I did it in the open—the check seemed good—I got the money on it. As far as I remember they paid those checks for about four months, perhaps five months, at fifty dollars a month. I wrote Andrews telling him I didn't like this business much. I have always been energetic; I have tried to earn my money. I think I have over-earned what I did get in this world.

If I remember rightly Mr. Andrews came back, finally came up here to Santa Fe and met me at the hotel and said he was going to fix this thing up. He called on Mills, so he told me, and there was lots of fussing and fuming and stewing around as Andrews called it. Finally Andrews informed me Governor Mills said he would allow me a thousand dollars a year, that was the best he could do. Then the payments jumped from $50 to $83.33. Sometimes the checks were made, I think, for $83, sometimes the money was given in currency. I still hoped for a federal or some other position that would take me out of newspaper work. I kept on hoping.

I went through that year, 1910, 1911 came along and there was talk of Mr. Burke being very ill and that there would be a vacancy in the postmaster's office. I tried to get it. One time Andrews had written me: "Don't bother about the postoffice, I don't want you in there; you can do better as oil inspector and have time to write stuff." By "write stuff" I understood he meant print articles and get up interviews and things that would be of interest to the people of New Mexico and possibly to Mr. William H. Andrews and to the Republican party.

The struggle for statehood came. I worked very hard for statehood doing all I could as a newspaper man. Finally I got tired of this arrangement and went down to Albuquerque to see Andrews. I said: "When are you going to land my job? I can do better elsewhere. The glamour of seeing the burros pass through the plaza had passed away; (Laughter) the pleasure of living in a high altitude has been mine and I seek a lower climate." Mr. Andrews and I, think, one of the members of this committee occasionally was in the room. Mr. Andrews went to another room. He said: "Dunne, don't you think of quitting, we are on the verge of statehood. I will get you a position when I get into the United States senate." I said: "Andrews, when will that be?" (Laughter.)

I went back to Santa Fe. I might say that while I have written articles about Mr. Andrews and occasionally an interview with Major Llewellyn and with other people, I have written articles with Democrats and those who are now Progressives; I do not remember ever having received a nickel from Mr. Andrews for any work I have done that might have tended towards his candidacy for the United States senate. I paid my railroad fare to Albuquerque; I paid my hotel bill. Perhaps Andrews paid for the dinner and I think Major Llewellyn was present at the dinner at one time; he may have paid for all of us. Mr. Andrews was very suave, told me lots of nice things John Dwight had said about me and again said "don't leave New Mexico." I said: "I want to leave here, I can do better elsewhere." "Don't leave New Mexico at this time," repeated Andrews.

Payments from the oil office stopped suddenly. I didn't feel it was my duty to go up and ask Mr. Martinez "why don't you come through." I didn't ask Mr. Martinez to make this arrangement. I was willing to serve hard work in the office; Mrs. Chapman had told me there was no work there. I didn't think it my duty to ask Mr. Martinez to oust Mrs. Chapman and install me. I thought if the arrangement suited the chief executive and the oil inspector, the law was complied with. Once Mrs. Chapman told me that this money went to the oil inspector. I presumed he had charge of it. I do remember that when the payments didn't come I wrote Andrews about it at certain times. He generally said: "Well, they will come through all right."

Towards the fall of 1911 Andrews came out here and possibly you gentlemen know that he was prominently mentioned as candidate for the United States senate. There was also some rumor that if he went Mr. Dunne would be his secretary, a rumor I denied because I never had any intention of being secretary to Mr. Andrews in Washington.

Mr. Walter, editor of the New Mexican, sent me on a trip with Mr. Andrews up to Tierra Amarilla, Rio Arriba county. As I understood it my duty was to write up that county and I think I was given the liberty to say a few kind words about Mr. Andrews. I wished. I still had the hankering to get into politics. John Dwight had told me that of all the people who could instruct a young man in politics, in the political game, he thought Mr. Andrews was one of the ablest educators. (Laughter.) Mr. Dwight said: "If you can get in with Andrews you can learn all that there is about the political game. Mr. Andrews has been chairman of the Republican central committee in Pennsylvania. Now, Dunne, I don't need to tell you any more; you know what that means, to be chairman of the Republican central committee in Pennsylvania?"

I was getting a little worried as to the amount of political knowledge that would be beneficial to me that Mr. Andrews was imparting and on the trip coming or going, I think it was coming back from Tierra Amarilla after we spent three days there; I told Andrews that as far as I knew the oil department was about $250 behind in its payments to me. He said: "What's that?" I said: "Yes." "Well, I will see about that at once; if you don't get it now you will never get it after we get statehood." I said: "Well, I have just told you that." Then suddenly something happened to make me tire; to make me no longer long to enter politics or to get any further instructions in politics from Mr. Andrews.

ANDREWS CRITICIZES "T. R."

Discussing how politicians do things Mr. Andrews told me (now I will try to quote his words as accurately as my memory will permit) that Mr. Theodore Roosevelt was a mighty poor politician (laughter) and I said, "Mr. Andrews, why?" As a newspaper man who had worked in Washington I had a little bit better opinion of Mr. Roosevelt's ability as a politician. Mr. Andrews said: "He is a poor politician; he sticks by his friends, and I said 'what?' "He sticks by his friends; it weakens him," he said. "Look at the appointment of Loeb in New York," he said, "do you think he was entitled to that great appointment?" I presume he meant collector at $12,000 a year. I looked aghast at Mr. Andrews for criticizing Roosevelt for standing by his friends.

It then dawned upon me, perhaps some of the politicians of the Republican party, some of the able men, some of the profound students who could impart instruction to young men perhaps wouldn't stand by their friends and I said (laughter) to myself, suppose after all this waiting even in the pleasant city of Santa Fe, far from the great theatres, far from the activities that are dear to a newspaper man, far from the association with great intellects who give ideas, perhaps after all this waiting and this fuss over this oil office and this talking with Governor Mills and writing letters to New York and Washington, perhaps if Mr. Andrews gets into the senate he won't stand by his friend Dunne; perhaps he will not emulate the Rooseveltian idea.

DECIDES TO QUIT.
I decided when I got back to quit New Mexico political aspirations. There were other reasons, too; the work on a daily newspaper where you work at night as well as day is very severe. The salary was small. As to the oil inspector business, that is Messrs. Martinez and Mills, if they wished to play the role of Fairy Godmother they didn't seem to be playing it very actively.

I told Andrews: "I am going to quit," but I said: "Andrews, you are an old man, I would like to see you go to the senate. John Dwight said that you would be the next United States senator, that you were a great man to get appropriations, you could go to the state a lot of good. I would like to see you go to the senate. I will stick around Santa Fe even if I get a substitute (which I had to do; I got Mr. Clyde Earl Ely to take the place temporarily) and if Mr. Walter, the managing editor should take seriously ill you can count on Brian Boru Dunne to stand at the helm and push the paper. If the policy of the paper is for Mr. William H. Andrews I will furnish the copy and keep that paper running."

Andrews went on I think to Albuquerque and then east and I stayed here and I put in my time writing a book of my experiences traveling around the United States. I saw Mr. Malaquias Martinez occasionally. He said to me, I think once or twice: "I will fix that matter with you." I might say that just before leaving for Rio Arriba I saw Malaquias and he gave me a check for $75 which I cashed but I think they were then a couple of hundred dollars behind on that agreement as I had understood it. I didn't receive any money, as I remember, for the last two or three months, but I saw Martinez and he said: "I will fix that up when I make up my accounts." I passed him. I remember rightly some time after the first of January I saw him. I said: "Did you fix that matter up?" He said: "Oh, Mills said to stop that business. By the way, I think I owe you eight dollars. I gave you a check for $75 the last time and I think I owe you eight dollars." I said: "Keep the money, I don't want it."

I was quite disgusted. I stayed in Santa Fe a couple of months longer. I think about the 4th of March or so I went to San Diego, California, and soon afterwards was made head of the newspaper bureau of the San Diego exposition and after a few months I was made editor of the magazine which was booming the exposition. Later on I came back to Santa Fe.

I think that is about the conclusion of the story of "Standard," or whatever kind of oil you wish to call it, in regard to my connection with it in New Mexico. I am quite pleased to answer any questions.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.
Mr. Rogers: I have no further questions to ask Mr. Dunne.

Mr. Toombs: Mr. Chairman, I believe, sir, we needn't add a word or detract a word from this history of Standard Oil which should eclipse anything Miss Tarbell has written or could possibly write. I don't believe any further questions suggest themselves to my mind for that record.

Mr. Rogers: Judge Collins, do you wish to ask any questions?
Judge Collins: How were you paid checks or on what depository?

Mr. Dunne: The checks came on the First National bank, as I remember it, and sometimes by currency.

Judge Collins: And signed by whom?

Mr. Dunne: The checks were signed by Malaquias Martinez as I remember and currency, no receipt was asked.

Judge Collins: Any receipt ever taken from you?

Mr. Dunne: No, not to my knowledge.

Judge Collins: That is all.

Mr. Toombs: I might ask you, Mr. Dunne, how much you received in the aggregate?

Mr. Dunne: I tried to add it up the other day. I think during the year and a half I think I must have gotten about $1200, but I don't think more than that and perhaps a little less than that. I think that covered about eighteen months. I am quite positive I did not receive the sum that is in the report found in the governor's office of $1500 or $1500 or more.

Mr. Bacon: Did you ever render any service to the oil inspector?

Mr. Dunne: I rendered service to the oil inspector if we can believe the great poet, Milton, who wrote "THEY ALSO SERVE WHO STAND AND WAIT." (Laughter.)

Mr. Llewellyn: Mr. Campbell have you any questions?

Mr. Campbell: No.

Mr. Llewellyn: Judge Collins have you any? Is there any person present, any citizen or member of the legislature who would like to ask any questions?

Mr. Toombs: I would like to suggest that we stand adjourned now subject to the call of the chair and that we have no other meeting until we hear from the attorney general. We are still awaiting an answer regarding the legal status of this matter.

Mr. Bacon: I think we ought to proceed with this matter notwithstanding the opinion of the attorney general. I apprehend that the opinion of the attorney general will be given just as our opinion has been made up. We are a committee appointed by the house to investigate this matter fully and give it out to the party so they will understand what has been going on with the oil inspecting business.

Mr. Llewellyn: Don't you think we better have night meetings that will give the public perhaps a better opportunity to attend?

Mr. Bacon: I have no objection to night meetings.

Mr. Rogers: I feel very much like—it is true there was a resolution offered reflecting upon a certain gentleman and the fact that the law provides that all the money that was collected by the oil inspector was his money, I don't suppose anybody now expects to find any violation of the law and I have other work to attend to here. I believe the men against whom there has been a reflection ought to have full opportunity to exonerate themselves, but I don't think the state has any interest here and it is in the state's interest that those who may be reflected upon ought to have an opportunity to be exonerated and it is for that reason only I would feel like giving any further time to the consideration of the question.

Mr. Toombs: Mr. Chairman, I must coincide with the views offered by my friend Judge Rogers. I cannot feel, Mr. Chairman and gentlemen of the committee, that we members of the legislature have any business investigating a matter in which the state whose representative we have been, has no sort of interest. I believe our time is otherwise to be employed.

Mr. Llewellyn: If there is no objection the suggestion made by Mr. Toombs will stand and we will adjourn subject to the call of the chairman.

Mr. Rogers: I feel like if there is anyone, Mr. Chairman, who desires to be heard or has any witnesses to offer that perhaps we ought to give them an opportunity inasmuch as the committee has been appointed I feel like going that far, but I see no other purpose to serve.

Thereupon the committee adjourned subject to the call of the chair.

Work for the New Mexican. It is working for you, for Santa Fe and for the new state.

AL KAUFMAN'S HARDEST FIGHT

HE TELLS "FIGHTERS' STORY CLUB" HOW JIMMY BARRY, WITH BOTH HANDS BROKEN, HELD HIM FOR 39 ROUNDS.

AL KAUFMAN—

MURPHY THREW A TOWEL INTO THE RING IN THE 39TH

The Fighters' Story club met in my room to swap stories of experience, and just before the session was opened in walked Al Kaufman, of San Francisco.

"Here's the victim," I said. "Come on, Al, tell us about your toughest scrap. We're holding an experience meeting." And the ex-white hope told of his fight with Jim Barry.

(By Al Kaufman.)

Whenever a boxer goes 39 rounds to win under the present rules, his opponent is some tough guy, and that's why I pick my scrap with Jimmy Barry, the Chicago heavyweight, as the hardest one I ever took part in.

Barry and I fought at Los Angeles, December 30, 1908. The fight ended in the 39th round, when Barry's manager, Murphy, tossed a towel into the ring to prevent more punishment.

I wasn't punished so severely in this fight as I was by Philadelphia Jack O'Brien a few years before when I was green. What that veteran handed me I'll never forget, but my fight with Barry was a different proposition. It was a battle of endurance, and several times I felt on the edge of Queer street.

Not wishing to detract from Barry's showing, I'll state that it was reported he broke both hands punching me and certainly he had me stepping until the 37th round, when I registered the only knock down of the fight.

The bell saved Barry, but he failed to recuperate during the intermission and was an easy target in the 38th. How he weathered the storm and returned in the 39th I've never been able to understand. He showed wonderful gameness and refused to take the count.

Billy Delaney, the great fight hand, seconded me in this fight and showed more than once a worried expression, especially during the early rounds when Barry displayed great ability to duck, making me miss like a boob.

The fight started tamely. Several times Barry rushed, ducking my short swings and hooks. I was somewhat discouraged over my failure to hit him, but Delaney kept telling me to stay with him until I landed.

Finally I resorted to the kidney punch and straightened him up. Blood trickled from my mouth and nose in the eighth, when I stopped five straight smashes with my nose.

Thanks to Delaney's coaching, I began to pile up points in the 15th. From then to the 20th it was a series of clinches and short arm work, both working away at the belt, to weaken each other.

In the 34th I popped him a hard swing flush to Barry's mouth, bringing blood in great quantities. That punch rocked Barry to his heels and started him on the down grade.

In the 35th I knocked him down and he came up staggering. As if apparently realizing the hopelessness of continuing, Murphy threw a towel into the ring in the 39th, when it seemed that Barry might suffer lasting injuries by continuing.

whole, will scarcely compare with the Bender-Coombs-Plank combination while the Athletics' famous trio is working right, still Jake Stahl has a classy bunch of twirlers.

Any team that has a Joe Wood as the backbone of its pitching staff is to be congratulated, for this youth is one of the very best twirlers that ever let fly a spheroid. Then, too, Stahl has Hugh Bedient, who looked all wool and several yards wide not only during the American league season, but also in the world's series. Other fingers of ability on the Boston roster are Ray Collins, southpaw, and Buck O'Brien, spit ball finger. Stahl also has Hall, a right-hander, and Van Kyke, a southpaw, to say nothing of several recruits whom he will look over on the spring training trip.

But back to Smoky Joe Wood. It was back in 1909 that this kid joined the Red Sox. That year Boston finished third in the American league race, winning 88 and losing 63 games for a mark of .583. Wood in the 18 games which he was called upon to pitch saw that .583 mark of his team and went it exactly 28 points better his record for the season being 11 victories and 7 defeats, a mark of .611.

The following season Wood was ill a great deal of the time, and worked on the mound 25 games, winning one less than he lost, 12 and 13 for a rating of .450. His team finished fourth in the league race with 81-72-32.

But Smoky Joe came back with a vengeance in 1911. While his team finished fifth, with 78 victories and 79 defeats, a mark of .508, Joe performed in 40 games, and was on the long end of the verdict in 23 shows. Dan Johnson rating him at .575.

Then came that never-to-be-forgotten 1912 American league campaign, which will live with Boston fans for a long period and with Wood for all time, for it was last season that Joe set a major league record for victories that has never been equaled. Joe won 34 games and lost 5, for the unprecedented average of .872. When one stops to consider that the Boston team won the pennant with 105 victories and 49 defeats, a mark of .681 one of the healthiest ever garnered by a pennant-winning aggregation, and that Wood excelled his team's rating by almost 200 points, or 181, to be exact, his achievement looms up as all the more remarkable.

In the four years Wood has been with Boston he has won 80 and lost 42 games, a percentage of .656, while his team has won 352 and lost 257 games, for a mark of .578. This gives Wood the call by 75 points over his team. And we want to say here and that the Red Sox pitching staff will be anything but weak if Smoky Joe Wood is himself next season.

RONEY'S BOYS AT THE WHITE HOUSE

The Christmas concert given by "Roney's Boys" at the White House, upon invitation of President and Mrs. Roosevelt, to 500 of their invited guests, is a matter of history. The young people of families of the cabinet, the supreme court, the foreign legation, of senators, congressmen, army and navy officers, the accredited newspaper correspondents and of the highest official and social life at the nation's capital were invited, the very flower of the land. The historic "East Room" never beheld a fairer sight, and it was the largest function of its kind ever given within its walls, the assistance of the state and war departments being enlisted to make the invitation list as complete as possible.

The honor conferred upon Mr. Roney and his boys was a high and distinctive one, rarely if ever before accorded, and was renewed when President Roosevelt a year later received the company in special audience in a busy hour, and, in thanking Mr. Roney for bringing them to see him, said: "I would see these boys before senators, congressmen or anybody else."

The boys with Mr. Roney will be seen at the Elks' theater on March 11.

DORR'S CASE WILL BE APPEALED.

Salem, Mass., Feb. 28.—Attorneys for Wm. A. Dorr, of Stockton, Calif., who was convicted yesterday of murdering George E. Marsh, of Lynn, announced today that they would appeal the case. Dorr slept well last night and was in good physical condition today.

"KINDLING" AT THE ELKS' TONIGHT

Theatre patrons find "Kindling" so very elemental and so very human that it's appeal is irresistible. It is easy to suffer and plan with. Helene Schultze and her wife, Maggie, follow the suggestion given her by all the people with whom she comes in contact and steals in order that her baby may be born in the free air of the great west. She almost falls into the clutches of the law, but the fact that she finally realizes her great hope gives a particularly pleasant ending to the story. Sarah Padden's emotional power has ample range in the role of Maggie and she has scored a genuine triumph in the part. She will be supported by William Macaulay, Alice Ringling and an excellent cast.

The attraction will play at the Elks' theatre tonight.

GENERAL DIAZ SEEKS TO BE PRESIDENT.

Carry the refugee Sonora governor and his party, it is said that Maytorena and his family after the wreck, escaped on horseback, in an effort to reach the border, but are pursued by troops.

THREE MADEROS DEAD.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 28.—Official announcement of the killing of Emilio Madero, brother of the former president of Mexico, reported several times recently, was contained in a dispatch from Ambassador Wilson who reported Madero shot while leading a rebel force in the northern states.

This brings the death list of Maderes in the recent Mexican troubles up to three. No confirmation has been received of the reported death of Raoul Maderes, another brother.

Conditions in southern Mexico, Ambassador Wilson reports, seem rapidly to be improving. The governor of Yucatan, brother-in-law to former Vice-President Suarez, is reported to have advised the Huerta government of his submission, as have the governors of Tabasco, Oaxaca and Campeche.

A consul at Nogales, reporting Maderista activities in eastern Sonora, says a band of rebels is gathering to oppose the Huerta government. Reporting the burning of fifteen bridges on the Mexican Central railway, north of Torreon, the consul at Durango says there is a rumor that Campa's rebel band of 1200 shortly will lay down arms.

A FILIBUSTER?

Phoenix, Ariz., Feb. 28.—State officials saw prospects of a Mexican filibuster today in a letter received by Governor Hunt from John S. Black, of Montrose, Colorado, who asked permission for a troop of armed and equipped cavalry to pass through Arizona.

Black, who wrote on the stationery of the district court at Montrose, said that the cavalry was being recruited in eastern Utah and western Colorado.

DELEGATES MEET.

Laredo, Mex., Feb. 28.—Peace delegates representing Provisional President Huerta, of Mexico, and some of the north Mexico revolutionists met in Nuevo Laredo today. The government envoys had agreed to recognize Huerta. The revolutionists denied this and said that Pascual Orozco, Jr., must officially assent to any arrangement. Government envoys are expected to go to El Paso to see Orozco. The revolutionary delegates are said to represent Sonora, Nuevo Leon, Coahuila and Tamaulipas.

MOBILIZATION GOES ON.

Galveston, Texas, Feb. 28.—Mobilization of the second division of the United States army here continued today with machine like precision. Owing to the great disturbances many of the commands have been drawn from the approximate completion of the division is not expected for three or four days. The fifth brigade, under General Smith, is expected to be completed by night.

THE "WAR CRY."

Douglas, Ariz., Feb. 28.—To arms loyal Mexicans. Show your patriotism and let your powder roar," is the appeal on hand bills entitled "The War Cry."

The document is signed "The Emancipation, second volunteers of the north," and is being circulated today in northern Sonora and along the American side of the border. Deserters from federal ranks are encamped at Cenezas Springs, southeast of Agua Prieta. Communication has been restored below Douglas.

MADERO'S BODY INTERRED. Mexico City, Feb. 28.—The body of former President Madero was taken today to his old home at San Pedro de los Pinos for interment in the cemetery there.

FALL SPEAKS TOMORROW.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 28.—Senator Poindexter today failed to have the senate call upon President Taft for a statement of what measures had been taken for the protection of Americans in Mexico. Senator Poindexter asked for a consideration of such a resolution, but Senator Cullom of the foreign relations committee, insisted that the resolution take the regular course of being referred to his committee. Senator Poindexter protested that this meant the death of the resolution. The senate voted to follow the course suggested by Senator Cullom.

Senator Fall gave notice that he would address the senate on the resolution tomorrow.

400 SEEK ARMS.

Tucson, Ariz., Feb. 28.—Four hundred Maderistas in the American mining town of Cananea this morning called at the city hall and demanded arms from the federal commander who declares that he is unable to defend the town. No conflict has occurred yet.

NELSON DENIES REPORT.

Savannah, Ga., Feb. 28.—When Battling Nelson arrived in Savannah this afternoon from New York, he denied any intention on the part of his wife, Mrs. Fay King, to sue for divorce. "This is staggering," he said, when shown a dispatch, "and as far as I know there is not a word of truth in it. Mrs. Nelson is now in Denver and I have been writing to her and receiving letters from her regularly. The name of her father is Jack King and he and I are the best of friends. I am now planning to either meet Mrs. Nelson in Chicago on March 11 or go to Denver to celebrate her birthday. We are on the best of terms."

THANKS FOR SUGGESTION.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 28.—Representative Sherwood, of Ohio, recently wrote President-elect Wilson suggesting that the question of Philippine independence be put ahead of the tariff and currency at the extra session of congress. Today he received a reply from Secretary Tumulty expressing the president's "appreciation and thanks for the suggestion."

SOCIALISTS OPPOSE THAT WAR APPROPRIATION BILL.

Paris, Feb. 28.—The unified socialists in the chamber of deputies, led by Jean Juarez, have decided to oppose the additional war appropriation of $100,000,000 demanded by the government. They demand in substitution for this proposal that the chamber vote $130,000,000 for the public schools.

FROM THE CRADLE TO THE WORLD SERIES.

THE RONANCE OF JIMMY DOOLAN, BASEBALL PITCHER. BY DICK MEAD AND CARTOONIST ALLMAN.

CHAPTER NO. 3.

CAPT. JIMMY DOOLAN OF THE YOUNG STERRY CENTERS.

Capt. Jimmy Doolan of the Young Sterry Centers—that's what our hero had developed into at 9. Jimmy was captain because he was the best pitcher, the best batter and the best runner. Such a clever young star was Jimmy that often the older boys took him away from the Young Sterry Centers to play with the Trojan Juniors.

But Jimmy wasn't all play. He knew his mother had to work from early morning till late at night to keep things together on the farm, and that there was work for him to do. Jimmy did his chores and he did them well. He worked first and played afterwards.

In between he went to school. Neighbors predicted he would be a great man. Bill Hardy, who is now a baseball scout for the New York

Giants, knew better than any of them. "He's a ball player, I tell you," Bill used to say. "Nothing in the world is going to keep that lad from pitching the deciding game in some world's series."

MAGAZINE MAN'S
NAME IS DRAWN INTO THAW CASE

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 28.—Horace A.
Hoffman, who said he had been in the employ of Harry K. Thaw, as a "messenger" today told Governor Sulzer's committee of inquiry his version of the latest attempt to liberate Harry
K. Thaw from Matteawan.

Hoffman testified that on November 12, 1912, Thaw gave him an envelope containing consolidated gas stock and $5,000 in cash to be delivered to John Nicholas Ahnert, a lawyer, at his office in Wall street. Hoffman corroborated Ahnert's testimony regarding the "contingent retainer" of $25, 000. The witness said that at the request of Thaw he received two receipts from Ahnert, both of which he had photographed. On January 2 last, Ahnert returned 100 shares of the stock and Hoffman sold them for "nearly $14,000" under Thaw's direction.

Hoffman told of having carried messages to Alfred Henry Lewis of New York for Thaw and of having seen Lewis at Matteawan. He said he heard Lewis and Thaw talking about "writing some stuff—some things Thaw thought the people ought to know."

IS IT A TEA POT TEMPEST.

The oil investigation now in progress may be a "tempest in a tea pot," as has been sagely remarked by a morning paper, but the little tempest has developed some very interesting facts as to the methods heretofore employed in New Mexico politics which may just as well be understood by the people of the state.

To be sure, the animus of the whole thing is perfectly well recognized. Nobody misunderstands it or fails to see the point, but now that it has been started it is just as well to take the cover off and see how much there really is in the kettle and what is the nature of the brew.

If a large amount of money was coming into the then territory, and being placed where "it would do the most good," and none of it going into the treasury to aid in paying heavy territorial expenses, but, on the other hand, diverted into channels which led to the pockets of individuals, if this was a part of the "system," then it is just as well to let the tempest rage for a little time, until it uproots something that the citizens of the state should know about, so that they will be on guard against a repetition.

Now, that an investigation of Standard Oil and its workings here, has been really started, the committee is in honor bound to see it through, and if something wrong has been done here, as someone seems to have thought, then the whole thing must be brought out, and the principals in the affair must be summoned and made to tell all there is to tell.

Just to bring on the witness stand a few employees, or those holding minor positions, but to refuse to summon any of the principals, would be an outrage which would not be patiently tolerated by the people of this state.

If wrong has been done, expose it.

If there is no wrong, let it be so shown by the testimony of those who know all the ins and outs of the coal oil inspection, how it was done, who profited from it, and whether the people of New Mexico were treated justly or no.

TWENTIETH CENTURY CHARITY.

There lived in a very humble home in New York City, Mrs. Sarah Nary, 80 years old, and her grandson, Joseph McFarland, aged 12. The boy sold newspapers, and his earnings were the main support of himself and his grandmother.

A church relief society gave the couple a small amount of groceries each week, and they were also aided by an organization called the Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor. This association, after considerable effort, and by overcoming some opposition, had Joseph McFarland taken into court and committed to an institution, alleging that his grandmother was too old to be a proper guardian for him.

Having thus deprived the old woman of her principal means of support, the Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor withdrew also the aid it had been giving, and for two weeks Mrs. Nary had no money or food except what neighbors and church workers brought her.

A newspaper discovered this singular state of affairs, and sent a report to the general agent of the Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor. After much questioning, the general agent finally divulged that the association thought Mrs. Nary would be better off in the poorhouse on Blackwell's island than she was in her home with her grandson. Mrs. Nary did not agree with the association.

In order to bring her to a proper frame of mind the association had, after taking away her grandson, withdrawn also its contributions toward her support. To put the matter quite bluntly, the association proposed to starve the old woman into going to the poorhouse.

The reporter asked the general agent of the Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor: "Is this starvation method of persuasion for those who shun the almshouse a new one or an old one?"

To which the general agent replied: "I believe it is employed by every organized charity in the country."

His statement would seem to bear out the view entertained by many persons for many years past—that organized charity is generally 99 per cent organization and 1 per cent sympathy.

A CENSORSHIP.

The tendency to censor petitions to the Almighty seems to be growing in our legislatures. In Indianapolis the lieutenant governor of the state halted the clergyman who was making the opening prayer for the senate because he prayed for the abolition of the liquor business, and practically drove him from the chamber. In California, a few weeks ago, a member of the state legislature introduced a resolution calling for the censorship of the chaplain's prayer because he insisted upon offering up petitions for certain reform measures. The resolution received a large vote but in the end the legislators upheld the person and left him free to pray as he pleased. As far as the New Mexico legislature is concerned, it is pretty well censored already, and if the censorship should reach to the chaplain's prayers, it is doubtful if even a petition would be permitted to ascend that would speak favorably of any measure that was for general good or in the interest of the people.

At all events, it seems best to leave matters of this kind in the hands of the chaplains, as they are much better qualified to address petitions of this kind than the average legislator, and it is likely, also, that they would reach farther.

Two bills, one in the senate and one in the house, have been introduced, creating the office of oil inspector. The hour for the introduction of bills of this nature is very timely as the people are learning about what the office was for, when we had an oil inspector, and of how great benefit it was to the people. But, in reality the introduction of these bills leads to the suspicion that someone is out of, and sadly in need of a job.

If one-half the bills appropriating money to build bridges in the state should become laws, there would not be enough money in the treasury exceeding the amount necessary to pay the members of the legislature for the arduous labor they have performed during the past fifty days. New Mexico may be in need of bridges, but there are important needs that should be provided for first.

Perhaps the bill introduced by Representative Downs giving city and village councils power to assess property for the cost of street sprinkling in the streets abutting on such property may be the most effective method of having street sprinkling properly done. It would give the citizen some power to enforce sprinkling which he now lacks.

Members of the house of representatives, we are informed by one of the house corps of stenographers, talk faster than formerly. But it is not always speed that makes a speech great. Perhaps we would be better off if our statesmen of today gave more attention to sense than to speed.

Well, it is not the first time that the person selected for the goat, refused to act the part, but not always is the would-be jester made out to be the monkey, as was the case in the farce staged by the "Apostle of Purity in Politics," at the capitol, yesterday morning.

The auditors who attended the coal oil investigation yesterday, seemed to be impressed with the fact that the gallant major had set a buzz saw in motion, in witness Dunne.

It looks as if the iron hand of Porfirio Diaz is the only one that can successfully hold in check the inflammability of Mexico's populace.

REMARKS FROM THE SIDE LINE

Tóme su asiento!

Roswell is organizing a camp of the United Spanish war veterans. Fee, $2.

The burning question is "Where are the records from the coal oil inspector's office?" Quien sabe.

Santa Fe is to get an appropriation for a new federal building. Uncle Tom, thanks, old chap.

The county option bill is something like the pea under the shell. Now you see it, and now you don't.

Eighteen auto bandits have been found guilty in Paris. In Chicago, the auto bandits have not yet been tried.

Albuquerque is going to try the new Friedmann cure for tuberculosis. In Santa Fe, the climate is sufficient without any serums.

The census returns show that there are more men than women in Kansas. This indicates that, after all, women have more sense than men.

A San Marcial youth named Miguel Martinez rode a pony into a barb wire fence on the Diamond A range Sunday evening. Funeral held Monday.

It must have afforded Major William Henry Harrison much pleasure during that oil investigation, to learn just how Mr. Andrews viewed a politician who would stick to his friends.

The oil investigation did not proceed far enough to develop just how far the prosperity of the Lamy branch depended upon the coal oil fund in 1910.

Gilson Gardner writes that the lobbyists are the busiest people in Washington just now. Likewise in Santa Fe by comparison with some members of the legislature.

It is still early enough for the open season to be declared on jokes about the price of spring millinery. The paragrapher's union recommends the use of the fugitive law, freely.

The farmers living east of Las Vegas are going to hold a meeting to discuss the building of silos. Silos, however, are poor ornaments unless there is something to fill them with.

Not to be outdone by the wave of civic enterprise, Lordsburg is building a new jail and it is going to be strong enough to retain the village drunkard at any stage of the game, too.

A mail carrier out of Silver City was held up and robbed. What anyone would want to rob a mail carrier out of Silver City for is a mystery that even Sheriff McGrath of Grant county, has failed to figure out.

Two horse thieves were arrested in Alamogordo last week, according to the Alamogordo News-Advertiser. However, these two horse thieves were not residents of Alamogordo. They were El Paso horse thieves.

As nearly as we can grasp it, General Huerta's plan is to make peace with all those with whom it appears he can not make peace. Such a policy has much to commend it in Mexico.

We still trust that Mr. Chrisman's new political views will land those bridges for San Juan county. The people of San Juan county ought not to be made to suffer for having elected a political mistake to the legislature.

Morgan and company, in their letter to the money investigating committee assert that the antiquated banking system is responsible for the concentration of money in New York. Our idea is that the antiquated bankers are a trifle more responsible.

BOY LEFT HOME WHEN FORBIDDEN HIS CIGARETTES

Racine, Wis., Feb. 28.—Angered because his parents would not allow him to smoke cigarettes, Robert Krempel, an 18-year-old high school student of Manitowish, Mich., and son of wealthy parents, ran away from home determined to make his own way in the world.

Krempel found, however, that life was not one round of cigarettes smoking, landing in Racine a few days ago with only a few cents in his pocket and no means of support. He stood his poverty with stoical

AS THE BYSTANDER SEES IT

LET'S CRY.
A Danish professor has been experimenting with tears and has made a most remarkable discovery. He says tears will kill microbes.

He says tears are a deadly poison, and here all these past years people have been using them as avenues of relief; to foil anger; to express joy; to display sympathy and for divers other purposes, many of which seem diametrically opposed to others.

So after this we should all save our tears to murder bacilli with. The doctor says that in "concentrated tears," whatever they are, germs cannot live at all, so when once we find out how to concentrate our tears we can dare any malignant microbe to attempt a location homestead in our anatomy.

It is a constant wonder to us all how science is progressing, and what remarkable discoveries are being made. It has been an unsolved problem all these long years, what tears were really for and now science had told us that they are to slay bugs with.

So, hereafter, when your wife weeps because she can't have that marvelous creation of hat or gown that she saw in the catalogue of latest fashions, don't stop her as you used to try and do, but sit still, stolidly and let her cry, for she is in reality slaying some kind of bacilli and though your sympathies may be aroused, be cold blooded and merciless, for it is "for her own good."

But according to the Danish doctor, one must not cry too hard—just a little, you know, for once he cried bitterly over a story and he shed tears so copiously that he got sore throat and tonsillitis. He thinks the tears were so bountiful that they washed the bacilli right down into his throat and there they lodged and settled for business, of which they must have done a large amount, for the doctor did not recover for five weeks.

So, to get the best effects from weeping, just cry a little, just enough to poison the bacilli.

MAKE IT GOOD.
I cannot help the feeling that this year, 1913, is going to be a sort of test one for a number of years to come, in Santa Fe. I mean in the sense of progress and growth, or in lack of development.

It seems to me that we are in a position that is, in a sense, a critical one, and we surely do want to meet it with both confidence and courage.

We can, just now, make a choice of two roads, one leading to a bigger and livelier Santa Fe, and the other leading to a condition of sleepy listlessness that means the beginning of decay.

It is true of individuals and true of communities that they do not stand still. Either they advance or retrograde. There isn't any use in arguing that proposition, and you know it. The only question just now is what do the citizens of our old city want—progress and growth or a condition of somnolent ease and smug satisfaction that means the first step on the down grade.

Really, it only requires a little time, a little boost, a small expenditure on the part of each individual in a community to bring about such a state of affairs in a community as every citizen must really desire and there is no investment on earth that pays the dividends that the boost investment does.

Common sense teaches this, but if more evidence is wanted, look at those cities and towns that have made the investment. Of course, there isn't any use in doing all this if there is nothing to base it on, if there is nothing to buy but a gold brick, but this is not true in Santa Fe. We have the goods. Now, why can we not take hold, all together and do all we can, individually and collectively to put the old city where she belongs, among the best known cities of the whole west.

If we can do this, and we can, do you not think that the little investment each one will make, will pay dividends? Let's try it for the next few years and all get in on it.

THE TWO METHODS.
After all, there is some difference between our suffragettes and those in England. The advocates of woman's suffrage in Britain is of the stern kind stopping at nothing whatever, whether it be an attack on a cabinet minister, a mobbing of parliament, a fight with policemen or the destruction of the people's mail by pouring acid into the mail boxes. I believe they are doing harm to their cause by precisely those tactics. No fight is ever won where some sense of humor does not prevent people from going to foolish extremes.

Fortunately, our American suffragettes possess humor. They will argue with the men, they will address appeals to legislators, they will distribute campaign literature, they will make speeches, they will hold fine parades, they will even have cross country hikes. But they will not lose their American sense of humor and that is why I am betting they will win their case sooner or later.

Take those New York suffragettes, for instance. Recently they got out a suffragist edition of Mother Goose, and among other little parodies was this one:

"Little Miss Horner
Stood on a corner
Making a suffrage speech.
Her logic and brain,
Said the women, are plain,
But the men just said 'Ain't she a peach?'"

Of course she is and so are her sisters—good game fighters, ready to stop for a laugh and a jest and therefore sure to gain their cause in the end.

For all the world loves a game laughing fighter—especially when said fighter is—a Peach!

WOMAN TO HOLD ANOTHER MASS MEETING

Another mass meeting will be held at the Governor's Palace assembly hall, Monday evening at 8 o'clock to discuss the legal status of women in New Mexico. Hon. E. C. Abbott, Hon. F. W. Clancy, and Hon. John R. McFie will be present to expound the law. The women of Santa Fe, in fact of the whole state, are anxious to post themselves as to just what their legal rights may be as mothers, wives or tax payers.

The mass meeting recently held at the court house in Santa Fe on this subject was largely attended and Judge Abbott, Justice Roberts and Charles A. Spiess gave interesting and instructive talks. The meeting proved to be a stimulus for further discussion along these lines, and there has been a universal demand for another meeting.

The Woman's Club of Santa Fe has arranged for this second mass meeting and a cordial invitation is extended to all citizens interested in the matter to be present and join in the discussion.

No Longer Cranky About His Meals

Has Perfect Digestion From the Use of a Well-Known Remedy that all Can Obtain.

The temper of the family and the good cheer around the table, depend so much on the good digestion of each individual present that the experiences of some former dyspeptics who overcame their trouble should be of interest to those now suffering in this way.

The best advice one can give—but it is advice that is seldom heeded—is to eat slowly and masticate each mouthful carefully. However, if slow eating and careful mastication fail the next aid is one close to nature. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. This remedy is an excellent digestant, and in addition to helping in the digestion of the food, acts gently on the liver and bowels, ridding them of the accumulation of waste that should long ago have passed off. It is safe, reliable, pleasant-tasting, and results are guaranteed.

In the opinion of such people as Mr. L. J. Quinn, 1117 Newport Ave., Chicago, it is the ideal remedy for indigestion, no matter how severe, constipation, no matter how chronic, biliousness, headaches, gas on the stomach, drowsiness after eating and similar annoyances.

Mr. Quinn says: "We use Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin as a family remedy and every member of the family, from the five-year-old, who is the youngest of six children, to Mrs. Quinn and myself, use it for stomach trouble, sick headache and to regulate the bowels."

You can obtain Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at any drug store for fifty cents or one dollar, the latter size being bought by heads of families already familiar with its merits. Results are always guaranteed or money will be refunded.

When you use Syrup Pepsin you will see the fallacy of chewing mints and tablets or of taking cathartics, salts, pills and similar drastic medicines. Unlike these, Syrup Pepsin does not lose its good effect, and by automatically training the stomach and bowels muscles to do their work, soon restores these organs to normal.

If no member of your family has ever used Syrup Pepsin and you would like to make a personal trial of it before buying it in the regular way—a druggist, send your address—a postal will do—to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 417 Washington St., Monticello, Ill., and a free sample bottle will be mailed to you.

OPPORTUNITY IS KNOCKING NOW

THE OPPORTUNITY FOR ADVERTISING NEW MEXICO IN A TELLING MANNER IS PRESENTING ITSELF. WE SHOULD NOT LET IT PASS. IT MAY NOT COME AGAIN IN YEARS.

(Communicated).

Mr. Dooley said, in effect: Opportunity knocks at every man's door, and sometimes just knocks and walks away, but to some opportunity walks into the house and finds a man asleep and wakes him up and gets him out, and then some turn and get back into bed for another short nap—this last is what would be true of New Mexico if advantage was not taken of the great San Diego exposition in 1915.

Much has been said and written of the advantages to be gained, but none recited to date more than equal the dissemination of the knowledge of New Mexico's climate.

On the railroad with cars trailing in the coal smoke of a locomotive one knows little of the azure sky—the pure air and water of our state, but ride day in and day out wishing for a place to shake off the ennui of days of travel and the days become longer and longer until with a trip across the continent the average traveler, after thousands of miles, has ceased to even look at the country which whips past the car window.

What if this trip was broken in New Mexico? What if we made provision to keep that portion of our state fair at Albuquerque, which could be so arranged, open from April 15th to November 30th, 1915? Such a thing would be of incalculable benefit to our state. More can be said face to face with $75,000 throughout the year 1915 at San Diego that would stop the tourist in this state than could be told

Wan, Weary and Worn Out

If You Feel Fagged to a Finish and Utterly Used Up Here is Quick Relief.

Don't Be Chained to the Hitching Post of Weariness.

Half the people you meet complain of weary muscles, stagnant brain, jangled nerves, and a mournful desire to lay down and just quit. Most of these people have been using nervines that spasmodically flare up the nerves only to die down again, as die they must. Avoid nerve stimulants. Bear in mind that this worn out feeling is due to poor blood, to bacteria in the water you drink; to the multiplying of destructive germs in the blood faster than they can be overcome by the white corpuscles; and to what is known as auto-toxemia, that condition where the venous or impure blood accumulates faster than it can be replaced by the red arterial blood.

If you feel played out go to any drug store and ask for a bottle of S. S. S., Swift's Sure Specific. Here is a remedy that gets at work in a twinkling; it just naturally rushes right into your blood, scatters germs right and left, up and down and sideways.

You feel better at once, not from a stimulant, not from the action of drugs, but from the rational effect of a natural medicine just as active and just as timely as to a man who has been lost in the mountains, is about starved and comes across a settler just cooking a savory meal of good honest beef. Do not neglect to get a bottle of S. S. S. to-day. It will make you feel better in just a few minutes. It is prepared only in the laboratory of The Swift Specific Co., 137 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga. Send for their free book telling of the many strange conditions that afflict the human family by reason of impoverished blood.

HOUSE PASSES NEW BILL ON ACCOUNTS

HOUSE BILL NO. 144 BY MR. TRIPP WOULD PLACE STATE AND COUNTY OFFICIALS UNDER STATE AUDITOR'S OFFICE.

VOTE STANDS 25 TO 18 ON MEASURE

The house yesterday afternoon, by a vote of 25 to 18, passed House Bill No. 144, by Mr. Tripp—Entitled an act to provide for a uniform system of accounting, auditing and reporting for all public officers throughout the state under the supervision of the state auditor and repealing Sections 2, 3, 4 and 5 of Chapter 54 of the Laws of 1903 and Chapter 61 of the Laws of 1912.

This in effect, is really to annul the functions of the office of the state traveling auditor, a Democratic official and place the duties of that office under the state auditor, a Republican official.

There was considerable debate on the bill, Mr. Clancy terming the measure as an indirect slap at the governor who appoints the traveling auditor. Mr. Clancy asserted that the bill was for the purpose of taking the accounting of finances in the state away from supervision of the executive.

The house declined by a vote of 21 to 19 to table a motion to pass the bill and another motion to table the bill.

The vote on the passage of the bill stood as follows: Ayes: Miguel E. Baca, Blanchard, Catron, Chavez, Chrisman, Cooney, Cordova, Downs, Coddell, Hilton, Llewellyn, Labato, Lopez, Lucero, Manzanaras, Montoya, Moreno, Padilla, Quintana, Skidmore, Tombs, Tripp, Trujillo, Vargas and Young.

Nays: Marcos C. de Baca, Boulware, Carter, Campbell, Casados, Clancy, Evans, Gage, Garcia, Gurule, House, Love, Martinez, Mullens, Nichols, Rogers, Smith and Tully. Absent: Burg, Labadie and Tucker.

This bill, as it passed the house, is as follows: Section 1. That the state auditor is hereby authorized and directed to prescribe and install a system of accounting and reporting which shall be uniform for all state and county officials and institutions, penal, reformatory, educational or charitable, and which shall exhibit true accounts of all funds collected, received and disbursed by all state and county officers, and shall show the receipt, use and disposition of all public property; the income, if any, derived therefrom; the receipt from all sources of public income and the amounts due or received from each source, and all vouchers and other documents, necessary to isolate and prove the validity of every transaction and claim.

Section 2. Separate accounts shall be kept for every appropriation or fund, showing the date and manner of each payment made out of the funds provided by such appropriation or fund, the name and address of the person, firm, corporation or association to whom the same was paid, and for what purpose and by what authority it was paid.

Section 3. The state auditor shall require from every state and county official and all state and county institutions, receiving state appropriations, financial reports, covering the full period of each year, in accordance with forms and methods prescribed by him. He may also require quarterly and monthly reports and special reports at any time; all of which reports shall be upon forms prescribed by the state auditor, and he may require any or all of such reports to be certified under oath.

Section 4. It shall be the duty of every state and county officer and employee to keep all the accounts of his office, and to make all reports according to the methods and forms prescribed by the state auditor.

Section 5. The state auditor, shall have power to examine into the financial affairs of every state and county officer and employee.

Section 6. It shall be the duty of the state auditor to supervise the compilation of the tax rolls of the several counties of the state, and on or before the first day of January of each year, prepare and furnish to the state board of equalization, for its information, a general abstract of the property of the counties, which abstract shall show by counties the valuations of the different classifications of property as shown by the assessment rolls.

Section 7. When a system of uniform accounting is decided upon, the state auditor shall install such system and instruct all officials as to its operation.

Section 8. Any official who shall refuse or neglect to make reports or exhibits, or give full information, or to appear or testify or to produce books or papers, or to adopt or use proper books, forms or methods of accounting, when notified or required so to do by the state auditor, or who shall otherwise violate any of the provisions of this act, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine of not less than fifty dollars or by imprisonment for not less than thirty days or both such fine and imprisonment.

Section 9. Upon the request of the governor, the state auditor shall submit to him any data that he may have in his possession from the examination of any state or county official or public institution; he shall also upon the request of the governor proceed to the examination of any state or county official or public institution.

Section 10. The state auditor is hereby authorized to deputize any of his assistants to carry out the provisions of this act.

Section 11. Chapter 61 of the laws of 1912 and Section 2, 3, 4 and 5 of Chapter 54 laws of 1903 are hereby repealed.

Section 12. All acts and parts of acts in conflict herewith are hereby repealed.

Section 13. All acts and parts of acts in conflict herewith are hereby repealed.

Section 14. All acts and parts of acts in conflict herewith are hereby repealed.

Section 15. All acts and parts of acts in conflict herewith are hereby repealed.

Section 16. All acts and parts of acts in conflict herewith are hereby repealed.

Section 17. All acts and parts of acts in conflict herewith are hereby repealed.

Section 18. All acts and parts of acts in conflict herewith are hereby repealed.

Section 19. All acts and parts of acts in conflict herewith are hereby repealed.

Thirty thousand voices—What a grand chorus! And that's the number of American men and women who are publicly praising Doan's Kidney Pills for relief from backache, kidney and bladder ills. They say it to friends. They tell it in the home papers. Santa Fe people are in this chorus. Here's a Santa Fe case. Miss Adela Arias, 106 Griffin St., Santa Fe, N. Mex., says: "The splendid results I obtained from Doan's Kidney Pills several years ago has been permanent and for that reason, my confidence in them has increased. I suffered from a dull, heavy ache in the small of my back and was subject to headaches and dizzy spells. I always felt tired, had no ambition and was in poor health when I procured Doan's Kidney Pills. It did not take long to cure me and from that day to this, I have been free from kidney complaint. I willingly confirm the public statement I gave in January, 1907, telling of my experience with Doan's Kidney Pills."

OIL INSPECTOR PROBE MAY BE MADE.

Section 2 of the act requires the giving of a bond by the inspector to the territory in the sum of $10,000 for the faithful performance of his duties and gives him power to appoint deputy inspectors.

Section 3 declares that "The inspector or deputy inspectors are entitled to demand and receive from the owners of any oil, gasoline or naphtha inspected, one cent for each gallon so inspected." This word "naphtha" was stricken out by an amendatory act, which is Chapter 22 of the Laws of 1905. This section makes it the duty of each inspector and each deputy inspector to keep an accurate record of his inspections and, at the beginning of each month, each deputy inspector is to forward to the territorial inspector a true copy of his record and all monies received by him for his inspections; and in January in each year the territorial inspector is to make and deliver to the governor a report of the inspections made by himself and deputies during the preceding calendar year.

Section 4, 5, 6 and 7 refer to violations of the act, whether by dealers or inspectors and are not material at the present time.

There is no requirement, anywhere in the act, that the territorial inspector is to pay over any of the monies received, whether by him directly, or from his deputies, but the deputies are to send to him all monies received by them for inspections. No provision is made for any salary to any inspector, and it seems clear that the inspection fees were intended to constitute the compensation for all the work performed.

The nature of the office is the same as that of any other territorial office, and any matter pertaining to that office must be a proper subject of investigation by the legislature.

As to whether the funds collected by the oil inspector are public funds or not, I am compelled to say that they must be regarded as the personal property of the oil oil inspector, the only provision of the statute with regard to them, as heretofore indicated, being that the inspector shall receive them. I am unable to see how they can be considered as public money any more than are the fees collected by a notary public for services performed by him, or by any other officer, whose compensation is by fees alone, without any requirement that they be paid over to the public treasury.

Very respectfully,
FRANK W. CLANCY,
Attorney General.

WALL STREET IS A BIT DEPRESSED

New York, Feb. 28.—Variable movements within a fractional range marked the early session in Wall street today. Bear traders made little headway in depressing prices, outside of a few mercurial specialties. At the same time, buying was repressed by the recent scaling down of the short interest.

There was also an absence of the late inquiry from investment sources and business was on a comparatively small scale. Further favorable reports for January strengthened the position of the railroads, although Baltimore and Ohio was depressed by the appearance of new obstructions in the way of a proposed bond issue. Bonds were steady.

Fluctuations in stocks were featureless aside from some renewed buying of Central Leather on the strength of its good report.

There were some interesting developments in the money market, four per cent being bid for call loans.

Forecasts of the bank statement indicate a cash loss of $2,700,000.

Speculation was sluggish but the undertone was in the main heavy. Steel and Union Pacific were down 5-8 and 7-8 respectively while Reading and Amalgamated displayed relative steadiness.

The market closed steady. Dividend declarations had a beneficial effect on Consolidated Gas and Goldfield but the movement otherwise was insignificant.

ELECTION FIGHT IS ON.

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 28.—Friends of James Hamilton Lewis, Democratic primary candidate for United States senator from Illinois, reiterated today that he was legally elected in yesterday's joint ballot by reason of receiving sixty-six of the seventy-one votes recorded.

This contention is to be presented to Attorney General Lacey for an opinion and if the opinion is favorable Governor Dumm will be asked to issue a certificate of election to Colonel Lewis. Republicans in the legislature insist that there was no election because less than a quorum of the joint assembly took part in the vote.

JUST A SMILE MAY SEND HIM TO GALLOWS

Stockton, Calif., Feb. 28.—A smile may cost the life of "Stent" Carson. For three years Carson has been under sentence of death for attacking a prison guard in a break for liberty. During that time he has not spoken a word or displayed the slightest emotion under the most rigorous tests. Even chloroform could not break his taciturnity.

He was finally adjudged insane, and removed to a state hospital, but today it became known that one of the hospital attendants reported this week that he had smiled. New tests are being conducted, and physicians who have Carson under observation say that his smile may result in a review of former findings, and execution of the death sentence.

SHUTS OUT DAY LIGHT AS HIS PUNISHMENT

Los Angeles, Calif., Feb. 28.—Arrested for a series of small forgeries, A. J. Heinn, founder and former president of a loose leaf book manufacturing company of Milwaukee, gouged out both of his eyes in self-punishment.

"I do not believe in suicide," explained Heinn. "I want to die a natural death. But I shall never see daylight again or forge another check, and I am more at peace than I have been for some time."

Heinn mutilated himself with a small penknife that had fallen into the lining of his coat and was over-looked by the police who searched him.

FIRE DESTROYS OMAHA HOTEL CREMATING AS THEY SLUMBER.

agement of the hotel, probably saved the lives of over a score of persons. He was awakened by the cry of fire and, half-dressed, hurried through the smoke filled hallways, arousing the guests. He succeeded in getting a number of persons out of the burning building, all of them half clad. They were taken to nearby places of refuge for the time.

Bitter cold made conditions unbearable. The firemen had hardly started streams on the burning hotel until frozen pipe lines began to burst. They caused an impediment to the efforts of the firemen and reduced for some time the efficiency of the fire fighting force. It is now believed the fire was caused by a gas explosion in the rear of the building. Only a few weeks ago there was discovered a leaking gas main which caused the management of the hotel to arouse all the guests. At that time it was necessary to cut off the gas supply and open the windows and doors of the entire building to prevent the asphyxiation of some of the guests. The explosion this morning is believed to have resulted from a similar condition. The suddenness with which the fire occurred indicates that this condition existed. The firemen had pushed a ladder to the third floor on the alley side of the building just as the explosion occurred. It sent the ladder back and prevented several persons at windows from escaping. At least one person was shaken from the ladder when the explosion occurred, but he was not seriously injured.

After six hours, during which from six to a dozen streams were kept continually playing on the ruins, it was not possible for the firemen to enter the burned building. How many bodies will be found was still a matter of conjecture, and it was not known positively that more than fifteen were in the ruins.

Mark Hemmingsway, who lives at Ewing, Nebraska, was a guest at the hotel. He tells a remarkable story of escape. Being aroused by the cry of fire, he rushed down stairs to the second floor to find that part of the building in flames. He could find no avenue of escape and groped his way back to his room, above. Here he collapsed for a moment, but regaining his consciousness, jammed his fist through the window of his room, and climbing to a window ledge, was rescued by firemen on a ladder. He had several cuts from the broken glass, but was otherwise uninjured.

It is not probable that firemen working on the smoking ruins will be able to recover bodies beneath debris tonight or tomorrow. The entire interior of the hotel building was precipitated into the basement, carrying with it the bodies of those who did not escape from the burning structure.

The front and side walls of the building were all that was left and it appeared probable that these would have been razed before the rescuers could enter the interior. Fire Chief Salter declared he would not permit his men to enter until the danger from the standing walls had been removed.

THE DEAD.

Charles Cummings, a bartender, jumped from third story window, crushed to death.

Mrs. Olive Bronnlie, sister of proprietor's wife.

Unknown man, dragged from building unconscious, body nude, died in hospital.

In addition to these an unknown number of bodies are buried in the debris.

Several persons were injured, none dangerously, among them being Mrs. C. E. Wilkins, wife of the proprietor of the hotel, whose sister perished.

City Commissioner Withnell, in charge of building matters, this afternoon put a force of men at work tearing down the standing walls of the hotel, and it is expected the removal of bodies will be possible this afternoon.

Representatives headed by Mr. Dixon of Indiana, and citizens headed by Henry R. B. McFarland. His arrival marks the active beginning of the inaugural period.

BIG FIGHT OVER TUBERCULOSIS RULES

Denver, Colo., Feb. 28.—A bitter fight over the bill introduced by Senator Huber Reynolds and passed in the senate, requiring registration of tuberculosis cases and making quarantine and fumigation regulations, raged in the house of representatives today. Noon recess was taken before a vote was reached in the committee of the whole. The house, however, had already amended the bill, so that if it is passed, it must go back to the senate for concurrence. The amendment consists of the insertion of the "attending" before the word "physician" in the section of the bill requiring registration.

Representative Sweet of Denver, declared that the enactment of the bill would spread the belief that Colorado had barred health seekers.

Representatives Thomas and Kavanaugh, of El Paso county, endorsed the bill, and the former read telegrams from a number of Colorado Springs residents favoring the measure.

Representatives of Colorado coal operators appeared before the senate committee on mining last night to protest against the passage of the coal mine inspection bill recently passed by the house.

TELEPHONE COMPANY REPLIES TO MAYOR'S THREAT.

Denver, Feb. 28.—Contending that it has an "irrevocable and perpetual" right in the streets of Denver which in no respect can be burdened apart from police regulations by any ordinance, the Mountain States Telephone and Telegraph company today replied to the notification of Mayor Henry J. Arnold that the ordinance adopted at the recent municipal election would "be enforced by the city authorities."

The ordinance contained a schedule of telephone charges lower than now in existence.

The company's reply is signed by E. B. Field, Jr., first vice president.

SUFFRAGETTES' ARMY TOOK WASHINGTON BY STORM TODAY

Washington, D. C., Feb. 28.—"General" Rosalie Jones and her suffrage "army" marched triumphantly into the capital shortly before noon today, through the capitol grounds, and down Pennsylvania avenue, with an escort of local enthusiasts and citizens, which fairly choked the streets and delayed traffic. It was one of the most remarkable street demonstrations ever seen here.

A presidential inauguration could hardly have presented a more enthusiastic spectacle than Pennsylvania avenue from the capitol to the treasury building, after the plucky, disheveled band of suffrage pilgrims swung wearily around the peace monument for the final stage of their two hundred and fifty mile march for the cause of equal franchise.

Incoming presidents have not received more clamorous applause than did the company of brown-clad women huddled in a little group, forced to fight their way through veritable walls of shouting humanity for more than a mile of their historic "hike."

Police were powerless to restrain the crowds which overflowed from the sidewalks, and choked the long thoroughfare from the capitol to the suffrage headquarters. So dense was the mob of cheering men and women, that the march on Pennsylvania avenue resolved itself into a struggle to make progress.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 28.—Women suffragists championed by Representative Taylor of Colorado, virtually won the right of an uninterrupted procession March 3, when the house committee on the District of Columbia today favorably reported a bill barring street cars from Pennsylvania avenue between 3 and 5 o'clock next Monday afternoon.

To prevent disruption of their column in the demonstration "General" Rosalie Jones and her tired comrades locked arms and in two lines, clung together, moving only when the police could clear the way for a short advance. In every block they were halted repeatedly, the crowds greeting them everywhere along the line with the tempestuous demonstration. Men and women alike braved the horse's hoofs

It further contends the ordinance is void, that the city has no power to fix telephone rates and that the rates contained in the ordinance were fixed without hearing and are confiscatory.

BISHOP MCCONNELL SAILS.

Denver, Colo., Feb. 28.—Bishop and Mrs. Francis J. McConnell of the Methodist Episcopal church, whose home is in Denver, and who have been unable to leave Mexico City on account of the recent fighting, and arranged train service, sailed from Vera Cruz today. This information was contained in a message received by Mrs. N. J. McConnell, mother of the bishop, which read:

"Impossible to come by rail. Sailing today for Havana and Florida."

Word also was received today from Karl J. Link, mining engineer who was wounded recently in a rebel raid on the Tiro general mine near San Luis Potosi. Link said he expected to leave Mexico as soon as an opportunity afforded.

It will not pay you to waste your time writing out your legal form when you can get them already printed at the New Mexican Printing Company.

SENATOR MARTIN SAYS HE ISN'T CANDIDATE.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 28.—"I will not be a candidate for re-election as chairman of the Democratic caucus of the senate," said Senator Martin of Virginia today. He has held that position for the last two years. This announcement practically closes the contest between the so-called conservative and so-called Progressive wings of the Democratic party in the senate. Senator Kern of Indiana is the candidate for caucus chairman which carried with it the honors and responsibilities of leadership of the dominant party in the senate. It is understood that no candidate is to oppose him.
