IS IT COMING BACK?

Is the silver issue about to re-emerge itself? Is it about to come back to reveal the glimmers of the moon? There are signs in the political horizon which seem to point that way. At the coming congress at Goldfield, the veteran Judge C. C. Goodwin, of Salt Lake City, returned in an effective way the discussion on the use of silver as money, which has been regarded as closed forever. This fact is regarded as one of so much importance that the San Francisco Chronicle feels warranted in devoting to it a goodly share of editorial space, and says:

"It is morally certain that the agitation of the subject will be renewed and that the free use of silver as money will have respectful consideration in many quarters where twelve years ago an advocate of silver was regarded with undiluted contempt."

"Now the fact is that, considering only exchanges among the people of this country or between this country and Europe, there is no occasion whatever for making any greater use of silver money. Not will such increased use be of any advantage to us in buying from Asia or South America. But if we expect to increase our sales to those continents, or even to continue to sell as we have hitherto, to do something for silver." It will be said that the speakers at the mining congress are only interested in getting better prices for the products of silver mines. Grant it, at least for arguments sake; but what they say may nevertheless be true. The rest of us are interested in selling cotton cloth or kerosene or hardware or automobiles to Asia and South America, and if it be true that we can do this only by the increased use of silver as money, then our interests are identical with those of the silver miners. At present our sales of staples to Asia are steadily decreasing. Japan is establishing steamship lines to South America and will unquestionably undersell us there and in all other normal markets. Collector Stratton the other day stated that the Japanese were buying American cotton, shipping it through this port to Japan, manufacturing it there, returning the cloth to this city, paying the duty and competing at present only to a small extent with American mills. The reason for these conditions, said recently given by Morton French in the North American Review as follows:

A few years ago when a Chinese merchant wanted to buy English cloth he could buy gold exchange on London to pay for them at the rate of 10 pounds for 21 silver taels and can sell his cotton cloth for little, if any more in silver than he could sell it for in silver in 1874.

A correspondent of the "Chronicle" puts the matter in this way:

In 1872 the English sovereign was worth in China about three taels. At that time three taels paid for one day's wages for twenty-five men. Now the sovereign is worth eight taels, and the sovereign changed into the current silver of China pays the wages for one day of sixty-five Chinese.

These two paragraphs state the situation precisely. With five dollars and one cent of material the Chinese merchant can probably buy the product of five American men and women employed to machinery, or that with the same five-dollar piece he can buy the product of sixty-five Chinese. Indians or Japanese applied to the same material and with the same machinery. And that more and more every year is what he is doing.

PRESIDENTS AS PREACHERS.

President Taft does not think himself as well qualified as Mr. Roosevelt for an appearance in the pulpit. The public will probably differ with him. His temperance and manner of discourse are probably better than those of any other president. A sermon by Mr. Taft on the subject of the Washington Star in commenting on the president's sermon in the Salt Lake tabernacle.

Several of our presidents might have served the public very effectively by an occasional discourse from the sacred desk. Mr. Lincoln was one. Although not a member of any church, he was a man of reverent heart and feeling, who loved his fellow men without discrimination of any kind. Both his matter and his manner, when he was at his best, would have answered a pulpit setting well.

Gen. Garfield was another. In fact, he was a sort of lay preacher in the community to which he subscribed. Politics did not monopolize his thoughts, and his oratory was so natural it suited any occasion. It was said of him that had he turned to theology instead of to statesmanship he would have led his sect in America.

Among the Presbyterians Gen. Harrison was a strong lay force. He would undoubtedly have risen to distinction in the ministry, as he did at the bar and in politics. And, as we all know, the mother of Mr. McKinley cherished when he grew up the hope that he might occupy a Methodist pulpit and reach in time the office of bishop. It was always easy to associate him with his mother's early aspirations.

Equally true is it that many of our eminent preachers have had the essence of good politicians in their compositions, and some have served the parties to which they belonged very effectively on the stump. One of the thousand quotable and quoted things said about Mr. Beecher was that of a skeptic who admitted the orator but did not admire the churchman. He exclaimed, with a sort of impatience, after listening to a political speech of the famous Brooklyn cleric: "Why did Lyman Beecher ever permit his son to stray into the church?" When this was repeated to the son he replied: "And if Lyman Beecher had been here tonight he probably would have regretted that his son had ever strayed out of the church."

Mr. Taft is making progress as a preacher. All the religious bodies should like him. His sermon at Salt Lake City was from a good text, and well prepared. He left behind something for the people to think about. Intolerance is a dangerous thing in a country like this, where there are all sorts of people and perfect freedom of belief. In addressing a congregation Mr. Taft does not, of course, appear as a champion of his religious tenets.

"KICKER'S DAY"

The mayor of Cincinnati has set apart one day in the week as "Kicker's day." All citizens with kicks to kick must prepare to kick them then, or forever after hold their heads. It is a most happy thought, and should spread. Kickers have their rights in every municipality, but in the nature of things there should be order in the presentation of complaints. Otherwise the official head of a city is unnecessarily bothered.

THE WAR IS ON IN CHICAGO.

The "no license" campaign in Chicago opened last Friday, and will continue six months. This will be the strongest effort ever made to carry prohibition into a metropolitan stronghold, and the advocates of the "dry," who are sanguine of victory in Chicago, are already preparing to carry the war into New York.

As a preliminary to the submission of the question to a vote of the people, sixty thousand names must be secured for the petition, but the signatures can be obtained easily within the four months' limit set by the law. Then may the struggle for votes proceed until election day, which is April 25, 1910.

THE INDIANA CAMPAIGN.

According to report, the next campaign in Indiana will be a hammer. Correspondence from the state to outside newspapers represents the democratic side as showing more heart than for years. Their local victory of last November, which gave them the governor and the legislature, and the republican divisions on the tariff, have caused them to feel that a new tide is running, and their hope is to take it to the flood.

It is noted with other things that the number of aspirants for office is large. For a decade and more this has not been true. Democratic prospects being blue, ambitious men of the party have not cared to put their heads out. Now it is different. For every important place several names are under discussion. With something in sight, or appearing to be, men are willing to strive.

THE NEW YORK ISSUE.

Mr. Otto Bernhard, who has been nominated by the republicans of New York for mayor of that city, is quoted as saying in an interview in Milwaukee that the issue of the campaign will be the wasteful methods of Tammany in its management of municipal affairs. He points out that the budget for next year is $185,000,000, with the debt fund practically reached. Unless the limit is raised by act of the legislature, or taxation is materially increased, or economies are practiced in the operations of the city, organization improvements will have to stop. It is altogether unlikely that the limit will be raised, and so the question to be answered by the taxpayers is whether the burden shall be made heavier or the program of improvements suspended.

Judge Glavin, the democratic nominee, is also a good man, and commands the respect of the public. Tammany did not want him, but seeing that it was useless to attempt to stem the tide of public sentiment, the organization came to his support just the same as though it had invented him. Tammany may be, and probably is, the worst political incubator the country ever produced, but there is nothing the matter with its shrewdness.

A CHANCE TO BREATHE.

The Philadelphia Farm Journal says a farmer plowing with three horses hitched abreast, noticed that the middle horse became tired and exhausted long before either of his mates. As the animal was the equal in every way to the other two, he was puzzled as to the cause of the horse's not being able to stand the same amount of work. He finally observed, however, that as they drew the plow along, the three horses held their noses close together with the result that the middle horse was compelled to breathe the expired air from its fellows. The farmer then procured a long "jockey" stick, which he fastened with straps to the bits of the two outside horses. The device worked perfectly, for, given his right-ful share of good, fresh air, the middle horse was able to do the same amount of work, and with no greater fatigue than his fellows. Many persons are like the middle horse; they do not get their rightful share of fresh, pure air, and this is why they are not able to perform as much work.

HIS LITTENESS.

But for Commander Peary's challenge the world would accept Dr. Cook's claim to the discovery of the pole just as it accepted Peary's claim to the attainment of farthest north. By day, however, revelations of Peary's littleness and of his contemptible nature are turning the public mind to the conclusion that no state-ment that he may make is entitled to any consideration. — Jacksonville, Fla., Times-Union.

CURRY COUNTY WILL HAVE FIRST BIG SHOW TODAY

SIX THOUSAND PEOPLE EXPECTED AT CLOVIS

Splendid List of Premiums Brings Farmers In Droves With Their Pumpkins and Potatoes.

[Special Dispatch to the Morning Journal]

Clovis, N. M., Oct. 3.—Tomorrow Curry county, New Mexico, the fertile and populous district which two years ago was a waving expanse of graminæ grass, will have the first opportunity to show to the people of the territory what a miracle has been accomplished by push and enterprise and American perseverance. Here, great natural advantages have been awaiting the touch of the agriculturist to expand an olive branch. Pluck and push have transformed a semi-desert into a country of farms teeming with a five modern little city of nearly 5,000 people where two years ago there was nothing but jack rabbits.

The big Harvest Festival tomorrow is expected to bring in to Clovis six thousand of more farmers and their families and the display of agricultural products will be little short of marvellous. Things have been busy here for many days past in preparation for the celebration, the installing of exhibits where they will be seen and arrangements for a good program of amusements for the visitors. Hundreds of dollars in premiums and many other attractive prizes have been offered for the best samples of products. The choicest of the lot will be packed up to desert to the Twenty-Sixth Annual New Mexico Fair at Albuquerque next week to show the people there that Curry county is one of the most progressive, prosperous and fertile sections of the southwest.

AUGUST REPORTS SHOW IMPROVEMENT IN INDUSTRIAL CONDITIONS

Washington, Oct. 3.—Continued improvement in the industrial situation of the United States is indicated by reports of leading internal commerce movements received in August, by the bureau of statistics of the department of commerce and labor. Unusually large movements of soft coal, coke and iron ore and large shipments of lumber are indicated. Traffic activity of railroads is shown by the large number of cars in service.

TONNAGE TAX CLAUSE EFFECTIVE TUESDAY

Washington, Oct. 3.—The tonnage tax provisions of the new tariff law will take effect next Tuesday, 60 days after the enactment of the law and the actual revenue from the additional revenue from tonnage is estimated at approximately $50,000 annually.

Returns on Agricultural Property for 1909 Exceeded Only by City and Railroad Property

[Special Dispatch to the Morning Journal]

Santa Fe, N. M., Oct. 3.—With a total assessed valuation of nearly nine millions of dollars, the agricultural lands with their improvements in New Mexico came third in the classified list of total returns for the year 1909. According to a compilation by classes of property just completed by Territorial Traveling Auditor Charles V. POST MORTEM TO BE HELD ON BODY OF LINEMAN

In Pink of Condition Employee of Telephone Company Is Suddenly Stricken With Fatal Malady.

Suddenly stricken with a mysterious ailment while apparently in the prime of robust health, E. E. Powell, a lineman working for the Colorado Telephone company at Los Lunas, died in this city yesterday afternoon, while being taken in an ambulance from the Santa Fe station to St. Joseph's sanitarium.

The remains were taken in charge by strong brothers undertakers, and an examination of the body will be made today by J. E. Pearce in an attempt to find out what caused Powell's sudden death. Doctor Pearce said to Powell shortly before he expired and the man said that he had been drinking. He appeared to be perfectly sober, however, and Dr. Pearce was at a loss to diagnose his malady.

He was suddenly stricken while at work at Los Lunas and immediately rushed aboard a train for this city, where he died on the way to the hospital.

PEARY CALMS FRIGID-EXED PASSENGERS

Portland, Me., Oct. 3.—Commander Robert E. Peary sailed down Casco Bay today to his home on Eagle Island.

The Harpwell line steamer Aurore, upon which Commander and Mrs. Peary were passengers, was struck by the heavy fog of the sea line.

A hole was punched in the American's bow but she was able to proceed. Peary manifested no alarm and assisted in reassuring the other passengers.

ANOTHER COOK RESCUE PARTY RETURNS HOME

Father Point, Quebec, Oct. 3.—The Canadian government steamer Arctic, Captain J. E. Birmer, which has been in the far north for more than a year, reached here tonight. Captain Birmer refused to talk of his trip, saying he must first report to the minister of marine.

Members of the crew it was learned that the ship got as far north as 81 degrees on August 15, 1908. Plenty of game was found, including caribou, musk ox, deer, fox and other fur bearing animals but no seals, whales, or Eskimos were seen. There was little snow, the moss being exposed.

The Arctic carried a quantity of supplies entrusted to the Canadian government by friends of Dr. Cook at a time when fears for his safety had been aroused by the absence of any communication from the Brooklyn doctor.

PRATT'S SHOE STORE A FAMILY NECESSITY

New Store to Open With New Goods; New Comers to Give Albuquerque Folks a Modern Shoe Store.

In the new Simon Stern building at the corner of Central avenue and Fourth street there will be opened tomorrow a family shoe store, modern in every sense and stocked with foot coverings of a dependable quality.

PRATT'S is the name by which the place will be known. Experience is the factor that assures for the success of the concern. The owner has devoted an entire lifetime to the shoe business, in fact has never followed any other line of trade. That success has been the result is evidenced by the splendid manner in which the stock is now being arranged at the new store, and the superior quality of the shoes arriving daily.

"Fitting the foot," said Mr. Pratt, "is not a matter to be taken lightly. The majority of our older folks look at badly misshapen and distorted feet and wish that themselves and those who looked after their foot coverings had done so long ago. They want comfort as well as for style."

"Children's growing feet will have our special care, and we will prefer to make a sale rather than send from our store shoes that are not perfect in every way."

Style and "snapiness" in shoes will be shown here as quickly as in any of the large eastern style centers.

In a few words—Pratt's will be a family shoe store conducted on modern lines.

Every person in Albuquerque should attend the opening.

WASHINGTON SOON TO RESUME BUSINESS

Heads of Departments Getting Back From Summer Vacations and Governmental Mills Begin to Grind.

[By Morning Journal Special Lined Wire]

Washington, Oct. 3.—Washington soon will be in the full swing of governmental work under the direction of the heads of the departments. Secretary Meyer and Secretary Wilson have already returned and Attorney General Wickham and Secretary Nugent, today. Other members of the cabinet are out of town.

Secretary Knox, who is expected in Washington the last week in October, will consider the Hankow railway loan, question and will decide whether the United States shall protest against the two treaties recently negotiated by China and Japan involving Manchurian rights.

Secretary MacVeagh is at Dublin, N. H., near the White mountains. With the improving situation in the treasury the question of the issue of certificates of indebtedness under the departmentary authority given by congress had been pressed into the background for the time, but title and other matters of financial import will be discussed in his annual report.

Attorney General Wickham will participate in the argument of the government's suit against the American Cable company for alleged violation of the antitrust laws in the supreme court of the United States on October 12.

WASHINGTON CHEERS COOK

"Well, if that's the case, I guess we'll have to push the proceedings under the pure food law to the North pole."

Minister Disapproves. Vigorously criticizing Dr. Cook for lecturing here on Sunday, Rev. Dr. E. Guthrie, of the United Methodist Episcopal church declared from his pulpit tonight that he thought it a shame that the explorer should get a theater to open on the Sabbath and draw people to listen to a secular lecture when they should be in church. He also arranged the discovery for seeing upon his scientific exploits so quickly as a means of earning money.

HELD FOR DRINKING PRISONER STEALS HORSE

(Special Correspondence to Morning Journal)

Tulsa, Okla., Oct. 2.—Blas Duran and Demofilo Gutierrez, the two Mexicans who assaulted Mr. Hemphill last Tuesday night, were fined $1.75 for drunkenness by Justice Blair, and Gutierrez was released. While Duran was held on account of being out on good behavior while awaiting trial. He was taken to Alamosa for this morning. After Gutierrez had been released, Mr. Hemphill entered a charge of assault and battery, and Duran was retorted on this charge and turned over to the grand jury. Gutierrez was not found, however, as he had left town. Last night a Mexican resident informed Deputy Sheriff White that Gutierrez had stolen his horse, saddle and tools. No other is known as yet as to the route he took.

BUMPER CROPS IN SULPHUR SPRINGS VALLEY

Not in Twelve Years Has There Been Such a Growth of Grass; a Soil of Remarkable Fertility.

[Special Correspondence to Morning Journal]

Courtland, Ariz., Oct. 2.—Bumper crops in the Sulphur Springs Valley are the reward of the ranchman who planted, and is now gathering his first crop.

Not in twelve years has there been such a crop of grass. The unusually long rainy season is responsible for the heavy yield. Rain began falling the first week in July, and has continued till the last week in September, sending the water down the valley to the ground to be retained for several months more. Throughout the length and breadth of the valley the ranchmen are busy. Ranchman Sharkey, four miles northeast of Courtland, is putting up one hundred tons of hay, most of which is to be baled for the market. This valley reminds one of the scenes in northern Minnesota at this time of year, where haystacks are to be seen for miles and miles. This same ranchman has twenty acres of sorghum planted thick for fodder, and it looks automatic. For this, the market offers not less than fifteen dollars a ton. He also has several acres of beans, all grown without irrigation.

Ten miles south of Courtland, G. I. Van Nater, has seventy acres in alfalfa. Part of this is raised on irrigated land, but the rest is on unirrigated land. That on irrigated land will produce in the three cuttings four and one half tons to the acre, while that on unirrigated land will produce but two tons to the acre. But with a market offering fifteen dollars per ton, the profit may be considerable when it is remembered that the land on which this crop is grown cost but one dollar and twenty-five cents an acre. There are still thousands of acres of this valley land for homesteads. This same ranchman has a small orchard of pear trees, peaches and apple trees, together with grapes, that produced fruit of wonderful size and flavor this year. The twenty-acre orchard applies will meet the demand of George W. Perkins for big apples.

The soil of this valley is not understood until it is given water and results watched. The luxuriant growth of vegetables, fruits and grain speaks louder than any words of its nutritive power—it is a veritable hot-bed for seeds. There are no pests about the vegetation, nor is it necessary to fertilize as the soil is very rich, nor will it need to be for years to come. As for markets, the home market will consume most of what the farmer can spare for a few years, but when a distant market is desired, there is good transportation from Courtland to El Paso or to Los Angeles.

Nor are all the homesteads taken up by men. Many women have taken up their headright of three hundred and twenty acres, making all the improvements with the assistance of one helper. Many of these women are college bred, have traveled, studied, and been satisfied with society, from which they have sought the ranch as the best avenue through which to gain an independent living, and enjoy absolute freedom.
