HOPE HELD OUT FOR MINERS ALONE ENTOMBED AT CHERRY

Possibility That Some of Four Hundred Unfortunates Have Survived Awful Experience in Smoke Filled Depths.

GOVERNMENT EXPERTS TO AID IN RESCUE WORK

Men With Oxygen Helmets Descend Shaft in Buckets But are Unable to Enter the Ruined Workings.

(By Morning Journal Special Leased Wire)

Cherry, Ill., Nov. 14.—Nearly four hundred human beings, men and boys, it is now believed, are dead or perishing in the St. Paul mine here, though experts who succeeded in penetrating the smoke-filled air-shaft to the depth of 300 feet late today returned with a ray of hope for the grief-stricken relatives of the entombed men.

That the fire has been extinguished and the possibility of mining experts and inspectors sent here by Governor Deneen to investigate the calamity.

For more than thirty hours the prisoners have been cut off from fresh air. That life could exist under such conditions is doubted, but because no trace of high temperature was found in the depth of the mine tonight, officials of the company hope that the victims may have found safety in remote recesses of the mine.

A. J. Earling, president of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad company, who has not slept since arriving on the scene of the catastrophe, received an encouraging report after heroic efforts had been made today to open the mine for the release of the entombed men or for the discovery of the dead. From the son of one of the missing miners, a young man named John Reids, the railroad president heard that a concussion of the earth had been felt by farmers half a mile south of the mine shaft. The report was sent to Henry Burke, an official of the mining company, who rushed to President Earling.

"I've heard signals from the men," he said excitedly.

"What do you mean?" asked the president. "What signals?"

"John Reids' boy says that he and farmers whose land is over the southern end of the mine felt several concussions of the earth this afternoon. There were several shocks and those who felt them are convinced they were shots fired by the imprisoned miners and that they were meant for an assurance that at least some of them were alive."

"Oh, I hope so," said Earling. "That is at least encouraging."

This glimmer of light to the darkened homes in Cherry, tonight, followed other encouraging though doubtful theories of experts that the entombed hundreds may not have been suffocated and that oxygen enough remains in the mines to keep them alive until the shafts may be reopened.

After the third attempt to explore conditions late today, R. V. Williams, of Urbana, Ill., of the United States geological survey, who superintended the work of volunteer explorers, telegraphed to Urbana for more rescue apparatus. This is expected to arrive early tomorrow and a score of men have volunteered to accompany experts and mining inspectors into the air shaft which was opened late today. Three times Mr. Williams and Henry Smith, one of the volunteers, were lowered into the mine in a bucket. Each time they succeeded in penetrating deeper into the shaft, and each time they were assured that the temperature was bearable. To open the sealed main shaft and exit from the main shaft was impossible today, yet the state inspectors here have told Mine Superintendent Steel that they felt certain definite results could be obtained tomorrow. When explorations were abandoned tonight it was announced that the men fitted with the oxygen caps would resume operations as soon as possible.

The list of missing was compiled today in the office of the mining company and it reached the astounding total of 285, including the dead whose charred bodies were taken from the burning cages Saturday afternoon. It was declared probable that this list might be increased. One hundred and seventy men who entered the mine Saturday morning have been accounted for. The company had scores of tracers at work rounding up employees and tonight the officials said that the number of men in the mine was greater than they first had believed possible. Among the missing are many Americans who have lived in the mining section of Illinois for years, so often the scene of tragedy. Though the majority of those who may never be found alive are foreign born, yet all had homes here or in the surrounding towns and the grief over their probable fate has cast a pall over the community.

Cherry today held thousands of persons and before noon the St. Paul mine was surrounded by an almost uncontrollable mob. The officials early today swore in a force of deputies to handle the crowd. Scores of trains from Streator, Mendota, Ladd, Spring Valley, La Salle, Ottawa and other towns were run into the stricken village.

When the experts had drilled a hole through the concrete at the top of the second vein air shaft, and all preparations made to lower Mr. Williams and his volunteer explorers the scene at the mine was dramatic.

Along the railroad tracks and in the adjoining fields was a wall of humanity. Stout ropes and policemen kept the throng away from the men at work.

It was a silent but not undemonstrative assemblage. Occasionally a woman's wail, or a father's moan would break the stillness as the crowd watched the men proceed to the dangerous task before them. Four men appeared, oxygen bags on their shoulders and steel and glass covered hoods over their faces and heads. They were besides Mr. Williams of Urbana, his assistant, James H. Webb of the University of Illinois; James Hand of Spring Valley, and Henry Smith of Peru. Later Mine Inspector James Taylor of Peoria, donned the regalia.

A score of men were ready to assist them. A system of signals had been prepared. Two of the men were stationed at the top of the shaft. Williams and Smith prepared to descend. Inspector Taylor drilled them in their signals. The men who were to undertake the exploration nodded assent. Engineer Cowley, at the hoist that controlled the iron bucket in which Williams and Smith were standing, announced his readiness and the first men to enter the St. Paul mine since the tragedy, were slowly lowered. When 60 feet down the signal to raise came, and was at once obeyed. The helmet covering the explorers soon reappeared.

"The bucket is not hung right," said Williams. "It strikes and bounds in the shaft. It must be rebalanced." This work required some time.

Meanwhile Williams and Smith explained to mining officials and company men the shaft was filled with smoke which their powerful electric lanterns could not penetrate. When repairs had been made an hour later with Hand, Webb and Taylor at the wheel, the explorers descended again.

For 300 feet the bucket went down. Then suddenly came the signal for ascent. When they reappeared Williams said, "We found an obstruction at 300 feet. We might have got it, but if we signalled to come up we would undoubtedly strike it coming up. We wanted to notify the men above of the condition so they would understand."

Williams and Smith, accompanied by Inspector Taylor, descended for the third time. They were gone for perhaps 10 minutes.

"We got to the base of the second vein," said Inspector Taylor. "And though we could see little we found no excessive temperature. It was apparent that the fire had not penetrated deeply into the mine and we could see no sign of the morning and the temperature throughout the second vein is no more excessive than there, in the deeper and further recesses. It is probable that there may be oxygen enough to keep the men alive. We saw no trace of men, either dead or alive. Tomorrow I think we can proceed further into the mine safely."

Late tonight, after a conference of mining inspectors, company officials and experts, it was decided to open the main shaft in the morning and send explorers into the mine in the regular cage. This plan was adopted because the bucket scheme was found impracticable insofar as the movements of the men below were concerned. They could not get out of the bucket. So it was determined to seal up the air shaft tonight. The seals of the main shaft will be opened and the experts believe conditions will be safe for them to walk around in the veins before many hours.

W. W. Taylor, general superintendent of the company's mines, was a pathetic figure today. He stood watching and suggesting the movements to open the mine and at times, though he struggled to control his emotions, tears dimmed his eyes and his voice choked with sobs.

"I wish," he said, "that the men of the press would interview these mining inspectors after they are relieved from their duties of this ordeal about this mine. I do not want to go on record alone, but I believe that they will tell you that this was the safest built coal mine in this country. I have built many mines and I know that it was safe."

"A catastrophe could have happened here in no other way than just as it did. The fire need not have been disastrous. The men at work in the stables were excited. The burning hay could have been shut off from the rest of the mine without the least difficulty and the fire extinguished with little trouble.

"This is an awful thing. Some of the best men who ever lived lost their lives all through carelessness. Bandy and Norberg died like heroes. They were on the surface. They went down to save their fellowmen."

Superintendent Taylor has not slept since he reached here Saturday night. President Earling and his son are constantly on the grounds. Arrangements are being contemplated to bring relief to the families of the victims. It is probable that supplies for their needs will be arranged for by the St. Paul company.

Coroner Malm tomorrow will resume the inquest into the tragedy begun today, which developed some important testimony.

OBEEDIENCE TO ORDERS MAY HAVE CAUSED DEATH

Cherry, Ill., Nov. 14.—Implicit obedience by Engineer John Cowley to orders of his superior may have caused the death of the rescue party which went down into the St. Paul mine yesterday afternoon.

At the coroner's inquest, which began today, Cowley, who is engineer of the main shaft, testified that he declined to accede to the demand of persons standing at the top of his shaft, that he at once lifted the cage containing the rescuers. The reason he declined, he stated, was because he had been told by the third vein boss, Alexander Norberg, to move the cage only in answer to the regular bell code.

When the rescue party had been at the bottom of the shaft for some time without getting in communication with the engineer by the usual means, Martin Powers, Dr. Howe and Herbert Lewis, the latter a brother of one of the rescue party, rushed to Cowley, so the engineer testified, and demanded that the cage be raised immediately.

Cowley refused, acting under orders from Norberg, the witness told the coroner's jury. For a space of time, which Cowley declares to have been perhaps 10 minutes, he would not obey.

LABOR UNIONS AND SALOON QUESTION

FEDERATION DELEGATES DISCUSS TEMPERANCE

Powerful Leaders Open Foes of Liquor Traffic; Organized Workers Will Soon Be Arrayed Against It, Is Prediction.

(By Morning Journal Special Leased Wire)

Toronto, Can., Nov. 14.—The question of labor and the saloon was discussed this afternoon by labor leaders at a big mass meeting in Massey hall. Rev. Charles Stetzel, a fraternal delegate to the American Federation of Labor convention from the federal council of the churches of Christ in America, presided and made the principal address. The other speakers included Vice President John Mitchell and Treasurer John B. Lennon, of the American Federation of Labor, and President Thomas L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers of America.

Mr. Mitchell declared that organized labor in its fight for better conditions is doing more to promote temperance than any other organization. He denied that shorter hours of labor and increased wages result in added profits to the saloon.

Mr. Lennon said the liquor business lowers the efficiency of the workman and prophesied that the time would come when labor would be arrayed against the saloon.

The United Mine Workers, Mr. Lewis said, have prohibited their members from selling intoxicants even at picnics.

Mr. Stetzel, in his introductory address, said:

Topeka, Kan., Nov. 14.—Following heavy rains all along its course the Kaw river has risen more than fourteen feet here in the last twenty-four hours. The bridge at Manhattan went out today. One and a half miles of Union Pacific railway tracks between Topeka and Manhattan have been washed out and trains are being detoured over the Rock Island.

A large section of the town of Frankfort, was inundated by the Big Blue river, a tributary of the Kaw, many residents escaping in boats from the dwellings.

ZERO WEATHER REPORTED FROM COLORADO MOUNTAINS

Denver, Nov. 14.—Reports tonight indicate that zero weather prevails generally in the mountain districts of Colorado. A heavy snow fall has occurred.

WORST BLIZZARD IN CHILL HISTORY OF FARGO

Fargo, N. D., Nov. 14.—Fargo today is snowbound, the result of the worst November storm in thirteen years. No trains have arrived over the Northern Pacific or the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul and Great Northern trains are all very late. Street cars have been tied up all day.

Sixteen inches of snow fell, beginning yesterday noon, and blown by a 40-mile gale, it was piled up in great drifts. Telegraph and telephone wires west and south of here have been affected. Few church services were held today and few persons ventured out. Tonight the velocity of the wind decreased and it ceased snowing.

Reports state that the storm reached 100 miles west and south of here. At Manitoba Junction, south of here on the Northern Pacific, a freight engine ran into an open switch. Several cars and the engine were overturned. The stranded train was then practically covered by drifts.

STEAMER HOYT STICKS FAST ON DANGEROUS REEF

Duluth, Minn., Nov. 14.—The steamer James J. Hoyt, which is stranded on a reef two miles north-east of Otter Island, one of the Apostle group, is in comparative safety, according to the officers of the steamer, J. H. Barlow, which arrived here tonight.

The heavy storm Friday night was safely weathered by the grounded vessel and unless the wind veers she will be comparatively safe.

The Barlow lay to in the storm and was able to communicate with men on board the Hoyt.

Captain of the Hoyt, Charles Ainsworth, reported his crew as being in the best of spirits.

Reports from the north shore of Lake Superior tonight, indicate that the storm is growing and is accompanied by a blinding blizzard.

Ninety boats are tied up at the Soo.

SHERIFF SHIPP TO BE SENTENCED TODAY

Washington, Nov. 14.—Sheriff Shipp of Chattanooga, Tenn., and his five deputies will appear before the United States supreme court Monday for sentence for contempt. The case grows out of the lynching of a negro in March, 1906. On Monday, also, the court expects to receive a formal motion to review the judgment of the lower court sentencing Charles W. Morse, the banker to fifteen years' imprisonment for violating the national bank laws.

MELANCHOLY SIX DEPART FOR WASHINGTON

Chattanooga, Tenn., Nov. 14.—"With the good wishes and kindly spirit of such a gathering as this to accompany me, I feel that I am ready to face anything," was the final message of ex-Sheriff J. F. Shipp, as he boarded the train for Washington this morning at 10:35, whence he goes to receive sentence by the supreme court for contempt, growing out of the lynching of Ed Johnson, a negro, a crowd of between 400 and 500 were assembled to witness the departure of the six defendants.

Apprehension was apparent, although a cheerful attempt was made by members of the party to appear optimistic. The attorneys who represented the men were unusually grave. They admitted that for the first time since the indictment of the case has assumed a really serious aspect.

It was said that should the court impose a severe sentence, the united influence of the county and state would be brought to bear on President Taft to secure a pardon.

CAIRO PASTORS JUSTIFY MOB VIOLENCE

NEGLECT TO ENFORCE LAW BLAMED FOR LYNCHINGS

Constituted Authorities in Illinois Town Lashed from Pulpits; Editor Adds His Quota to Torrent of Denunciation.

(By Morning Journal Special Leased Wire)

Cairo, Ill., Nov. 14.—Cairo was in the grasp of a firm authority today and experienced the quietest Sunday that has been its lot in years. No saloons were open and the few attempts to evade the orders of Governor Deneen, met with quick detection, several arrests being made by the militia. Definite indication that the legal machinery of the state would be started in an effort to bring the lynching leaders into court came with the arrival at his home here of Judge Butler, of the circuit court. He indicated that he would call a grand jury to take up the work as soon as the adjourned session of his tribunal is assembled on December 8.

Despite this announcement there was no change in the attitude of the city regarding court proceedings in this district. Half a dozen pastors lashed the constituted authorities, telling their congregations that the lynchings were likely to prove a blessing in disguise.

"Cairo stands disgraced before the world, but the disgrace is not in the lynchings," said the Rev. George M. Babcock, of the Church of the Redeemer, Episcopalian. "The real disgrace lies in the fact that the city has allowed lawless elements to control civic affairs. In the same alley in which Miss Pelley was killed there have been four assaults on young women in a year. This defiance of law and order made the lynchings necessary to secure justice."

"The lynchings were the harvest of the seeds of lawlessness that have been sown in Cairo for years," said the Rev. A. S. Buchanan, of the Presbyterian church.

"Cairo's disgrace is not the mob, but the conditions that made the mob necessary," said F. W. Thielecke, editor of the Cairo Bulletin.

"For these conditions, the authorities from the judge on the circuit court bench down to the deputy sheriffs and bailiffs and the police department of the city, are responsible."

JAMAICA LAID WASTE BY STORM

CROPS BEATEN DOWN BY TORRENTIAL RAINS

Return of Normal Weather Conditions Reveals Scene of Devastation Unprecedented in Island's Tragic History.

(By Morning Journal Special Leased Wire)

Kingston, Jamaica, Nov. 14.—After torrential rains lasting many days normal weather conditions now prevail, but it is difficult to ascertain the extent of damage done by one of the worst storms in Jamaica's history.

Practically all telegraph lines are down and railroads have been badly washed out.

While the entire eastern portion of the island was swept by winds and rains no earth shocks occurred and damage to crops and property resulted largely from floods. Reports from St. Mary, an important banana center, state that within a radius of ten miles of Maria, the banana plantations were entirely laid waste. The town of Annetto Bay for a time was three feet under water. Grave fears were entertained for several days regarding the safety of the inhabitants of that section, but the floods are now subsiding and so far as can be learned, no lives were lost.

The cables to Colon and Bermuda are still out of commission and attempts made by the coastal steamer Arna to carry cable dispatches to Holland Bay on Wednesday night failed, the heavy gales compelling her to return to this port. The Arna started out yesterday on another attempt. It is not known here whether the cable to Santiago is intact.

DEATH CLAIMS FOOTBALL PLAYER

HALFBACK CHRISTIAN SUCCUMBS TO INJURIES

Jury of Prominent Citizens of National Capital Sworn in to Suggest Means of Eliminating Roughness from Game.

(By Morning Journal Special Leased Wire)

Washington, Nov. 14.—Football has claimed another victim today when Archer Christian, the 18-year-old left halfback of the University of Virginia team, who was injured in the game with Georgetown university yesterday, died at Georgetown university hospital this morning. An autopsy disclosed that death was due to cerebral hemorrhage following concussion.

The coroner has sworn a jury of prominent citizens whose duty it will be to suggest some modification of the rougher features of football and to look into the question of alleged police brutality and indifference following the accident.

Coroner Nevill's special jury is made up as follows: Dr. W. H. Carr, who is district coroner; Dr. Logan Owen, formerly a well known player on the Georgetown team; Ward Thron, vice president of the Washington Electric & Railway company; William B. Hibbs, John E. Wilkes and Thomas C. Noyes.

In addition to the alleged indifference of the police following the accident, it is charged, that Andrew Christian, brother of the injured man, clad in a football suit, while endeavoring to accompany the patrol wagon in which his brother had been laid, was roughly mistreated by a policeman, the latter striking him and shoving him from the rear steps.

The death of Christian has put an end to all football playing by Georgetown and Virginia this season. Today President Joseph H. Munnell of Georgetown, sent the following dispatch to Dr. Alderman, president of the University of Virginia:

"I regret exceedingly the sad misfortune that occurred here yesterday. As an earnest of our sympathy we have cancelled all football games."

Condolences also were sent to the university by the athletic authorities of Georgetown.

Virginia also has cancelled the remaining games of her schedule and disbanded her team. It was said today that the mother of the dead player always was fearful regarding the fate of her son, having had a premonition that he would be injured. Though in Washington, she did not go to yesterday's game but immediately after it was over she telephoned to the hospital to ascertain whether her boy had been injured and the news was conveyed to her.

MIDSHIPMAN WILSON AGAIN NEAR DEATH

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 14.—The condition of Midshipman Earl D. Wilson, quarterback of the navy football team, who has been paralyzed from his neck down as the result of an injury to his spine four weeks ago, is not so satisfactory today, but no decided change for the worst is manifest.

MARGARET ILLINGTON WEDS MILLIONAIRE

Reno, Nov. 14.—Miss Margaret Illington, the actress, up to Wednesday afternoon, wife of Daniel Frohman, New York theatrical manager, when she secured a divorce here, was married to Edward J. Bowes, the Tacoma millionaire real estate operator, in this city, last evening. The couple left immediately for Tacoma.

The wedding was a quiet one, performed at the cottage where Miss Illington had made her home for the six months required of prospective divorcees.

Miss Illington's father, I. H. Light, of Bloomington, Ill., gave the bride away.

Miss Illington announced the coming marriage to a few friends yesterday, but the date was kept in the privacy of the family.

"I am going to have a home," the former actress announced, "where my husband will care for me and there will be domestic happiness."

SENATORS INSPECT THE LAGUNA IRRIGATION DAM

Yuma, Ariz., Nov. 14.—The senate irrigation committee, consisting of Senators Carter, of Montana, Jones of Washington, and Warren, of Wyoming, spent Sunday in Yuma.

The visitors were met here by Governor Sloan of Arizona, and inspected the government work at Laguna dam, accompanied by officials of the reclamation service. They will be at Phoenix tomorrow.

THREE MEET DEATH IN BURNING BUILDING

Seventeen Hurt, Five Seriously in Fire Which Destroys Lodging House in Pittsburgh.

[By Morning Journal Special Leased Wire]
Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 14.—Three unidentified men are dead, five others seriously injured and twelve men and women suffering from bruises and shock, as the result of a fire in a lodging house on the river front early today.

When the fire broke out about thirty persons were asleep in the building. Firemen aroused them and carried the women and children to safety.

Bodies of the unidentified foreigners were not discovered until late this afternoon, when persons clearing away the debris found their charred bodies under a stairway.

BLAZING DEATH TRAP MAY HOLD LIVING MEN

listen to their frantic appeals, but finally he referred the matter to John Quinby of the top cage. Quinby hesitated and as Machinist John Chaderster entered Cowley asked Chaderster what should be done.

"Go ahead and raise it," answered Chaderster, according to Cowley's testimony, "nobody is alive down there."

Cowley then brought the cage to the top but everyone of the men in the rescue party was either dead or dying.

Cowley defended himself on the stand by saying he had received Nosberg's order to wait the bell signal before moving the cage and that the three men who demanded that it be raised had no authority to tell him what to do.

According to Cowley, he feared in raising the cage he would risk injuring some of the men below and that he might leave them without means of escape, should he lift the cage while they were not in it.

Cowley declared that after the final cage with men in it had been raised the cage was let down and raised five or six times with the chances that some of the miners might reach the shaft. He testified that he lowered and raised it slowly every time.

One of the jurors asked why Cowley could not have raised the cage slowly when Powers, Howe and Lewis appealed. Nosberg's orders again were given as an excuse.

Previous to the raising of the cage bearing the rescue party, Cowley said the bell signals had been unusual and disconcerting. He received one signal of three bells to "hoist away," which was followed almost immediately by a four-bell signal meaning "hoist slowly." At a height of eight or nine feet the cage was stopped at a one bell signal and started up at another.

Then came a six-bell signal, "reverse the fan," and then two bells "lower."

Cowley lowered the cage in answer to the signal, the last ever sent from the doomed members of the rescue party.

The jury adjourned after Cowley, John Ralaback, engineer in the air shaft and several relatives of the dead in the rescue party had testified.

The jury will meet again tomorrow and more testimony concerning Cowley's refusal to lift the cage will be heard.

The inquest is being conducted by Dr. A. H. Malm of Princeton, the coroner, and L. M. Eckert of Princeton, the Bureau county state's attorney. Jurors are: Peter Dolphin, marshal; Timothy McDonald, farmer; J. C. Thompson, lumber merchant; John Stoneman, barber; Joseph Neidichler, stock buyer; and W. L. Kendall, deputy coroner.

The excitement of the day ceased with the discontinuance of efforts to explore the mine and the disappearance of the great crowd. Preparations are being made for handling the dead when they are found.

William Vickers, who was at work at the face of the mine, was one of the few who came out alive. For over 200 yards he crawled in the dark on hands and knees, using the rail as a guide to the bottom of the shaft. At one point, he says, he met about 65 miners sitting in a row along the road who had given up the struggle and were waiting for death rescuers.

"I and my partner were at work on the second vein level, when the alarm of fire was heard," said Vickers. "We started for the bottom but had gone but a few feet when our lights went out. The entry was fast filling with smoke which filled our eyes and made us gasp for breath."

"Several times we attempted to fight our lamps without success. All about us we could hear shouts, or our comrades in adjoining rooms, who like ourselves, had been left in the dark. Calling to my partner I warned him to get close to the roadway and I myself dropped to my hands and knees and began to crawl along the rails, shouting at intervals to my partner to let him know where I was."

"At one point we passed about 45 miners sitting by the roadside, almost in a stupor. I tried to arouse them and encourage them to go on but they seemed to have given up all hope and did not stir. I had no time to lose and continued on, expecting to find back relief from the shaft."

"When within 100 feet of the mine mouth I began to grow faint from the effects of smoke and exhaustion. The smoke was growing more dense and my courage was fast ebbing. I pulled my coat about my face and bending closely to the rail I struggled on. I escaped death by just three minutes. When I arrived at the bottom of the shaft the last cage was about to descend. I shouted as the

For the sake of other suffering women I am willing you should publish my letter."—Mrs. CHARLES BANCLAY, R.F.D., Graniteville, Vt.

Women who are passing through this critical period or who are suffering from any of those distressing ills peculiar to their sex should not lose sight of the fact that for thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which is made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills. signal bell was ringing and two men broke their way to me and dragged me to the cage. I then lost consciousness and when I came to I was safe on top.

"My partner had followed closely, and encouraged by the light held by the cage men, managed to reach the shaft and was carried with me to safety."

A tobacco pouch was the means of saving the lives of John Phillips and Edward Burrock, miners in the second vein. Phillips, on his way to the shaft, found Burrock lying on the track in the main entryway. He dragged the form of his comrade until he himself was almost overcome by the smoke.

With a miner's intuition he searched for something to cover his nose and mouth. The only thing available was the small sack in which he carried his tobacco. Taking it from his pocket he emptied the contents, and placing one end in his mouth, he pulled the rest of it over his nose and fastened it about his head with the string. By crawling with his head close to the rail he struggled forward toward the shaft, dragging his almost lifeless comrade with him.

One of the heroic incidents of the rescue work was the saving of John McGill and his young son. They left the prison here they were working when the alarm was given and before half the journey was completed the boy began to grow dizzy. Clinging to his father's hand, he sank to his knees, exclaiming weakly, "Pa, I am dying, leave me and save yourself if you can."

Although greatly weakened himself, the father raised the now unconscious son and taking off his belt, he strapped the boy on his back and struggled on. Within sight of the shaft he staggered and fell. Before losing consciousness he yelled for help and his cries were heard. The rescuers picked up the two forms and bore them to the cage and they were hoisted to the surface.

Eleven of the twelve boarders at George White, were lost. The only survivor was an invalid, who returned from the hospital Monday, and was unable to report for work Saturday.

One pitiful case is that of the Love family. Mrs. John Love is not only a widow, but four sons are supposed to have perished. A canvass of what is known as Long Row, a street which has on one side a row of thirty-three cottages identical in appearance, has revealed that only two men in all the houses are numbered among the living. Each of the thirty-three families has from one to four dead.

The story of the thirteen heroes who went down to their death in the blazing shaft and the one man who came back scarred by fire and blackened by smoke, to tell the ghastly story, is being related here today in all its details and forms, one of the most thrilling narratives of local mining history.

Standing out above all others is the story of Dr. L. H. Howe, "the man who came back," the only one of the heroic thirteen who survives to tell what happened. Seven times before the other rescuers began to go down alone in a lift, and each time he brought to the surface his quota of saved. Twenty-five miners owe their lives to him.

Today his hands are badly burned but he shows no other war. When asked to describe his experiences he merely shrugged his shoulders and said:

"I couldn't have done anything else than I did. It is not worth talking about. Besides, I am too busy to talk today."

The disaster brought to light many unnamed heroes. Among these was a miner who, while fighting his way through blinding smoke stumbled across the body of a little "trapper" boy, who had been overcome at his post of duty at one of the trap doors that control the air supply. Snapping the miner from the boy's heart, and finding life still existed, he placed the unconscious form and placed gored on until he met one of the rescuers. Both miner and boy reached the surface safely.

At a late hour tonight the air shaft in the mine had been sealed tightly where it was opened today. Opening of the main shaft is expected to begin at 6 o'clock in the morning.

It is expected that the mine inspectors will call for more volunteers from the miners who are acquainted with the plan of the mine. Oxygen apparatus for a crew large enough to make a successful exploration into the main shaft has been ordered. Five men will be ready to go into the shaft as soon as the seal is broken.

All the state mine inspectors from the ten districts, comprising the coal fields, arrived today. Thomas Hudson, of Galva, in whose district the ill-fated mine is situated, was the first inspector to arrive. He was closely followed by Hector McAllister of Streator, who has many friends among the dead. Hudson and McAllister joined in declaring the equipment of the most modern and sufficient in the state. They also said the officials had installed and operated a thorough system of safety measures.

When questioned regarding the blame for the fire, Hudson said:

"From what I have learned, I can only say that carelessness—criminal carelessness—on the part of some of the men working in the second vein level is responsible. The mine was equipped with all modern safety devices and was well planned. I made a recent inspection of the property and found everything in the best of shape. I found that all the state regulations were being obeyed. The officials and managers apparently are not hit by the tragedy. Blame rests directly upon the shoulders of the men themselves."

When it was discovered that there remained a chance to rescue alive, perhaps a score of miners in the safety row in the third vein, hurried arrangements for getting air currents into that section of the mine was made. Howard Hazen personally directed the shipment from his Rockwell mine, east of La Salle, of a large fan to replace the one destroyed by fire. The fan and equipment were loaded into freight cars and taken 15 miles to Cherry in two hours.

The mine company and the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad, have announced that they will pay all funeral expenses. In anticipation of a possible rescue of badly burned and injured men six trained nurses arrived from Chicago tonight. They brought with them a large supply of drugs, bandages and dressings for wounds.

dress, declared the saloon and labor had must be divorced.

"In too many cities," he said, "trader unions are compelled to pass through the saloon in order to get to their meeting places and were betide the man who does not stop to take a drink. Many of the working men of America are helplessly in the power of those hall owners."

"It is the duty of the municipality to provide centers that may be used for the gathering places of the people in their organizations. BOMBS HURLED AT
INDIA

Lord and Lady Minto Have Narrow Escape from Death at Hands of Native Malcontents; No Arrests.

[By Morning Journal Special Leased Wire]
Almadabad, British India, Nov. 14.—Lord Minto, viceroy of India, and Lady Minto had a narrow escape yesterday from being killed by bombs. They were driving in a street when two bombs were thrown at their carriage. A dragon riding alongside hurried forward and with outstretched sabre, intercepted the first bomb, hurling it some little distance into a sand heap. The second bomb struck the viceroy's jemadar, a native attendant, holding an umbrella over Lady Minto and fell harmlessly to the ground.

Neither bomb exploded, as the soft sand acted as a buffer. Just prior to this, as the carriage passed through this, a bomb exploded some distance away. Police and others, attracted by the explosion, ran up and found a man on the ground with his hand blown off. He proved to be an innocent bystander. The bomb throwers escaped.

ZELLO MAY WRESTLE FAMOUS SPORTING WINNER OF LOCAL MATCH PROMOTER DIES

"Strong Man" Would Like to Meet Local Mat Artists; Donovan and Desher Willing to Take Him On.

Interest in the forthcoming wrestling match between Simon Desher, the blacksmith-wrestler, and Jack Donovan, quite a well known mat artist, which will probably be pulled off on or about Thanksgiving day, has been increased as the result of the offer of Zello, "the strong man," to meet the winner.

Zello is at present at Newport News, Va., where he is booked for two events.

When interviewed by a Morning Journal reporter yesterday, both Desher and Donovan expressed their entire willingness to meet Zello and it is not unlikely that the match will be arranged.

Both Desher and Donovan are making preparations for the forthcoming match and it is expected that it will be one of the hardest mat battles ever seen in Albuquerque or elsewhere in the southwest. Both men are confident of winning. Desher is of the opinion that he can crush Donovan's bones, but Donovan declares that the big blacksmith will have all he can do to take care of his own bones. It is not known yet where the match will take place. The Elks' opera house, the armory and the Colombo hall have been suggested and it is likely that one of these three places will be selected.

Local wrestling fans are beginning to sit up and take notice of the match, especially because of Zello's action in challenging the winner.

Wolgast weighed 129 pounds and Pelt about 134. The Frenchman made the mistake of rushing Wolgast from the start and brought the sudden onslaught upon himself.

Dan Stuart, Veteran of Turf, Who Inaugurated Legal Prize Fighting in Nevada, Succumbs to Heart Failure.

[By Morning Journal Special Leased Wire] New York, Nov. 14.—Dan A. Stuart, one of the best known sporting men in the country, died at his home here, today, of Bright's disease and heart failure. Born fifty-two years ago in Vermont, he made his name in the west. While in Dallas, Texas, he sought to secure permission for the Corbett-Fitzsimmons fight and carried his arrangements so far that Governor Culberson called a special session of the legislature to prohibit prizefighting in the state.

Later Stuart secured permission from the Nevada legislature to hold fights there and as a result of his efforts the battle was finally held in Carson City, March 17, 1897.

Crowley led up to the 17th mile, lowering all intermediate records. Then he stopped almost to a walk and Clark took the lead, which he held to the tape, making new marks for every mile.

[By Morning Journal Special Leased Wire] Washington, Nov. 14.—Commander Robert E. Perry delivered his second lecture describing his recent dash for the North pole, in the Belasco theater tonight before members of the National Geographic society and their invited guests. He did not refer to Dr. Cook, although he insisted more than once that his own discovery was rendered possible only by the knowledge gained through twenty-three years of Arctic experience and in the elaborate plans made before the expedition left the ship at Grant's Land.

It was only by almost phenomenal luck, Perry declared, that the main party was able to return to the ship. In the time it did, even though the trail had been blazed and the way prepared by the supporting parties that had fallen back on their base earlier.

The victim, a Chinese, who is not known to be an On Yick man but is a member of another powerful family, was arrested near the scene of the shooting and charged with the murder. CHORUS MEMBERS HELPED HIM FOR MINSTREL SHOW READY

BIG MEETING HELD SUNDAY AFTERNOON

Elks Will Gather in Force at Meeting in Middle of Week When Joe Bren Arrives to Organize.

There was a big and enthusiastic gathering of the Best People in the Elks' theater yesterday afternoon at 2:30 to discuss the preliminary arrangements for the big minstrel show which is to be given in the opera house by the local lodge of the antedone ones on the night previous to Thanksgiving Day. The principal result of the meeting was to assure that there are at least sixty Elks ready to sing in the chorus, including some of the very best male voices in the city, which will shine in the solo work.

No definite action toward organization was taken yesterday as the troupe cannot get down to business until the arrival of Joe Bren, the director, who is expected Wednesday or Thursday. Accordingly, another big rally of the Elks will be held in the theater Wednesday or Thursday night, when Bren will look over his material and rapidly line out the work.

The fact that Joe Bren is to be in charge assures that this latest enterprise of the enterprising Albuquerque lodge is to be a winner. Bren requires stilt, costumes and directs the show from the piano, furnishing bones, tambos, burnt cork, make up of all kinds, wigs, chair covers, parade costs, parade canes, and hats, end men costumes, and all the music with full orchestration, including medley, ensemble and finale, ballads, comic and comic songs, parodies and end songs. All the "gags" kept new for Bren by Al Grant, the famous comedian, monologues and after pieces are kept right up to the minute. Bren teaches the soloists individually and instructs the end men in their funny business. He has moreover the invaluable assistance of Mrs. Joe Bren, who is an exceedingly clever artist. Bren has recently finished his third annual Kansas City Elks show for Kansas City lodge No. 26 and each one has been a scream.

The cast available for the show here is a splendid one. Much of the local amateur talent is talented enough to be on the professional stage and has made good on many similar occasions with Albuquerque audiences while the musical talent is unequalled.

The Land of Wooden Spoons.

Among the peasantry, which by far form the largest part of the population of Palestine, tableware, such as forks and knives, are entirely, and spoons almost entirely, unknown. Their cooked food is eaten out of a large wooden bowl, around which the family or guests gather, seated on the ground. The thumb and first two fingers are used to pick up the food. A better quality of metal forks and spoons, have been steadily taking the place of the wooden ones, although as a rule the Mohammedan families of the poorer classes still use the wooden spoons almost entirely.

MUSICAL PLAY HAS HUMAN HEART INTEREST

"The Girl Question" Tonight is Effervescent, Full of Fun and Dramatic Climaxes Combined.

Bubbling over with fun and laughter, with stage crowded to the utmost, with pretty girls who dance and sing with an enthusiasm positively exhilarating "The Girl Question" comes to the Elks' theater tonight under the management of H. H. Frazer.

"The Girl Question" is a musical play with an absorbing story of human heart interest developed in its plot set filled with such humorous types of characters and situations that an audience is kept in an almost constant stream of laughter. It is written by Adams, Hough and Howard, authors of "The Time, The Place and The Girl," and is along the same shaggy, funny lines of every day life as that wonderful success.

"The Girl Question" has been staged by George Marion universally acknowledged to be a past master of stage direction and who produced "The Prince of Posen," "The Merry Widow," "The Stubbard Cinderella," "The College Widow" and dozens of others record-breaking hits and Mr. Marion's name is an assurance that the play will be full of dramatic climaxes, beautiful stage pictures of solo and ensemble as well as comedy, graceful dancers replete with action.

"The Girl Question" has a record of 329 consecutive performances at the La Salle theater, Chicago, and on four through the larger western cities last winter crowded every theater in which it played to the very doors.

The cast which will be seen here is a notable one and the song hits include "Good-bye Pal," "I Hate to Work on Monday," "O, Gee Be Good to Me, Kid," "Waltz Me Around Till I'm Dreamy," "When Eyes Like Yours Look Into Eyes Like Mine," "The Old Luck and Wing," and "Do Something."

COMPANY ARRIVES ON FIRST DAYLIGHT TRAIN

The "Girl Question" company, arrived last night from El Paso on the first daylight train to be run from the Paso City to Albuquerque. Manager W. McDonald, who arrived with the company of forty in their special car reports a successful engagement in El Paso. Mr. McDonald says that one of his stars this year is the formidable Carney who made such a tremendous hit here a season or so ago as the stranded theatrical manager in "The Mayor of Tokio." He will be well remembered here and will be himself a big enough attraction to fill the opera house tonight.

The El Paso Herald says of the production of the play in that city:

"The Girl Question" is not yet settled. The show that held the boards at the El Paso theater last evening did not settle the question at all, although it gave the patrons of the house some of the jolly best laughs they have had since Mike told the story of Pat dying without the aid of a doctor."

John L. Kearney is still in the role of Con Ryan, the head writer, and he will make a funeral funny, so it is unnecessary to say that the performance is a laugh every minute. It is a scream almost all the time. Con is in the spotlight and he is on the job most of the time.

The supporting company of girls are not as pretty in the matter of form and faces as last year, but there is so much good stuff in the show itself, in the lines and clever situations that looks out little figure. It would be worth the money just to sit there and listen to Con's bash house slang and philosophy, but there is much more to the show than that. It is a performance in three acts with a plot—comedy—and not only does the cast require commendation, but it calls "as some real acting in several of the characters at various times, notably Ryan (Kearney), Joe (Helen McGowan) and Baron von Tommar (Justin Cooper). The latter handles the character part in a different manner to his predecessor in the role, but he gets a great deal out of the part and makes it a pleasing high-class character role.

Several popular songs are featured of the performance, notably "Sweet to Me Kid," "Waltz With Me Till I'm Dreamy," "When Eyes Like Yours Look Into Eyes Like Mine," and a number of other musical numbers that have made the play famous as well as popular.

The imitations by the Annis, Held, and the George M. Cotton boys and the Edie Fay girls made a hit.

SUPERINTENDENTS ARE WANTED AT ROSWELL MEET

Prof. Clark Issues Circular to County School Men on Educational Association Gathering.

[Special Correspondence to Morning Journal]
Santa Fe, N. M., Nov. 14.—A circular urging the attendance of county school superintendents at the annual meeting of the New Mexico Educational association at Roswell, in December, has been sent out by Superintendent of Public Instruction J. E. Clark, as follows:

Gentlemen—No doubt, you are making definite plans to meet with the teachers at Roswell, December 28 to 30, 1909. I am confident that we shall have an excellent program for all who are interested in education in the territory, and I am decidedly of the opinion that the conference of the county superintendents will add very greatly in arriving at unanimity of action on matters of great importance in the administration of school affairs of the territory. I am anxious to have all institute workers and all county superintendents present in the institute section in order that we may discuss face to face many of the problems that are presented in the management of the institute. The discussion of the common school course of study in connection with the county superintendents' program will certainly bring out many important points in connection with the grading of our schools. I am personally somewhat disappointed in the form in which the common school course of study is printed, but I am confident that a half hour's discussion of the material will put us in a position to work out the content of the outline and the unsatisfactory form may be overlooked.

I note that Superintendent Stroup, the chairman of the county superintendents' section, has assigned to each county superintendent a place on the program, and I trust that every county superintendent will attend this meeting and have his ideas boiled down to a two or three minute talk on the subject assigned.

Each year there is a little strife among the county superintendents to secure the honor of taking to the association the largest percentage of teachers employed in the county. Very naturally those counties located nearest to Roswell will be able to enroll the largest number of teachers, but distance will be taken into consideration, therefore counties that are at a great distance from the place of meeting have equal advantage with those that are near.

It Depended.

Long after midnight the suburban man sat on his front step listening to the diurnal howls of a relentless canine.

"Awful racket!" commented a big policeman sauntering up the avenue. "Terrible!" agreed the man on the steps.

"Wonder you don't make a complaint."

"Well, I'm just waiting."

"May I ask what you are waiting for?"

"Certainly! I am waiting to find out if that is my dog or my neighbor's dog. If it is my dog—well, you know we all have to put up with unseemly noises sometimes; but if it's my neighbor's dog—hustle! if I don't shoot him!"

HUNDRED MEN AT WORK ON ARROYO HONDO DAM

Ten Thousand Dollars a Month To be Spent in Santa Fe on Construction of Big Reservoir Project.

[Special Correspondence to Morning Journal]
Santa Fe, N. M., Nov. 13.—Over a hundred men are now at work under the direction of Contractor Sten Lund on the proposed Arroyo Hondo dam and reservoir, six miles south of Santa Fe, and the operations from now on will be prosecuted with great rapidity. The project is a big undertaking, one of the biggest in this part of New Mexico, and its completion will be a big thing for Santa Fe.

All the men are housed and fed right on the ground. There are big mess and commissary tents, big bunk tents, while another large tent serves as stables for the forty or more horses used in hauling. There are individual cabins for the officers and bosses. Neatness, cleanliness and sanitary conditions prevail. The food served in the large mess tent from a well equipped kitchen is above the average dished out ordinarily in construction camps. The commissary tent is well stocked and there are mountains of alfalfa and feed for the live stock. Work is completed on the great stone crusher, a mile and a quarter above the camp, as well as on the hoppers, grinders and the automatic tramway on which the cars will descend to pour their contents into the structure, which, when completed, will form the dam. Excavations are being made to bed rock and a diamond drill works day and night testing the entire ground to which the dam will be tied and upon which it will rest. Sten Lund, the contractor, though a young man, has had a large experience in construction work, an experience extending as far south as the Argentine republic, where he had charge of a camp of 12,000 men building one of the largest dams in the world.

The hoppers will have a capacity of 450 cubic yards a day, and it will not take long, therefore, before the Arroyo Hondo is dammed and that a large lake will fill the natural reservoir site. Its completion will mean much for Santa Fe and its business interests. Even the construction work itself means the expenditure of almost $10,000 each month among local business houses.

DUNCAN APPEARS AT SAN MARCIAL

Object of Solicitude of Friends and Relatives at Globe Is in Business at New Mexico Burgh.

[Special Correspondence to Morning Journal]
San Marcial, N. M., Nov. 14.—Wallace Duncan, whom the Albuquerque papers advertised for last week, is here clerking in the dry goods department of the San Marcial Mercantile company's store. He started east from Los Angeles, Cal., to Globe, Ariz., but learning of a vacancy here, changed his plans and neglected to send word at once to his relatives at Globe. He was located here by telegraph Friday. Mr. Duncan is an experienced dry goods man and has already been made head of his department here.

George S. Ramsey, for many years connected with the Morning Journal as solicitor, passed through on the southbound daylight train Sunday. Mr. Ramsey is general agent of the Equitable Life Assurance society for Arizona and New Mexico. He intends returning to San Marcial in a few days and stopping off on business.

L. M. Lasley, a San Marcial boomer and correspondent, is responsible for the appearance of the old town band at the depot Sunday. The Mexicans hold a fiesta in their town November 22, 23 and 24, and Mr. Lasley promised the leaders that if they would send their band to greet our first daylight train, we would mention their fiesta in the city papers.

Sergeant Warner, a non-commissioned marine officer, who passed through here on his way to Albuquerque, a few days ago, said he would shortly return here and open a restaurant.

TEN BARREL OIL WELL COMES IN NEAR ARTESIA

A REAL PETROLEUM FIELD IS EXPECTED

Leasers Take Up All Available Land Near Strike; Big Exhibit for the Irrigation Exposition is Ready.

[Special Correspondence to Morning Journal]
Artesia, N. M., Nov. 12.—Another well was brought in in the vicinity of Artesia this week, which flows oil to the amount of ten barrels a day on top of the water. This well is six miles southeast of Artesia, on the Hammond place, and has created or rather renewed the interest of capitalists in this section in the oil situation.

A party of five prominent men of Roswell, who have had experience in oil development, together with several from here, have taken short leases on all land immediately surrounding the well, obligating themselves to put down wells at once. This inspires confidence in more cautious investors and the future development of the oil prospects here is assured.

Today the committee appointed to arrange the exhibit for the Chicago crating station. Sergeant Warner is from Boston.

Mrs. J. K. DeHart and daughter, Miss Nellie, spent Saturday in Albuquerque.

G. G. Garcia, representing the Hargrave-McKittick Dry Goods company of St. Louis, was in town Saturday, supplying the trade. Mr. Garcia is a grandson of General Garcia of Spanish-American war fame. He is a graduate of and wears medals from Oxford; his mother was English and his father Spanish. Mr. Garcia makes this territory every few months. It was his firm which stopped at Albuquerque a several thousand dollar shipment of goods believed to J. N. Broyles a few days previous to his failure and by this method saved the St. Louis firm a considerable sum.

A boxing match is billed to take place at the opera house on November 26. The contestants are Frank Speer of Paterson, N. J., and Lee Barkwell of San Marcial. It is to be a ten-round bout for the featherweight championship of the southwest for a purse of a hundred dollars.

Land and Irrigation exposition are busy getting the products ready for the car which is expected through tomorrow. The exhibit consists of a very select variety of peaches, apples, grapes, pears, berries of various kinds, farm products of grain, corn, alfalfa, wheat and oats, etc. With the exhibit will be sent the Hearst trophy, a cup presented to Eddy county at the National Irrigation congress last year for the best exhibit at Albuquerque.

Guy C. Talbot and William Dooley have been appointed by Governor Curry as delegates from New Mexico to the exposition, which shortly starts in Chicago. Beside these two, there will be a number of others to go from Artesia.

A party of government engineers, United States senators and officials of the Santa Fe railroad, will be in this section next week, and have been invited to stop at Artesia and take an automobile trip through the irrigated section to Lakewood, on their way to Carlsbad to look over the situation for the United States reclamation service.

FOR CONSTIPATION.

A Medicine That Does Not Cost Anything Unless It Gives Satisfactory Relief.

If you suffer from constipation in any form whatever, acute or chronic, we will guarantee to supply you medicine that we honestly believe will effect permanent relief if taken with regularity and according to directions for a reasonable length of time. Should the medicine fail to benefit you to your entire satisfaction we promise that it shall cost you nothing.

No other remedy can be compared with Rexall Orderlies for the easy, pleasant and successful treatment of constipation. The active medicinal ingredient of this remedy, which is odorless, tasteless and colorless, is an entirely new discovery. Combined with other valuable ingredients, it forms a preparation which is incomparable as a perfect bowel regulator, intestinal invigorator and strengthener. Rexall Orderlies are eaten like candy, and are notable for their gentleness and agreeable action. They do not cause griping or any disagreeable effect or inconvenience, and may be taken at any time, day or night.

We particularly recommend Rexall Orderlies for children and for delicate or aged persons, because they do not contain anything injurious. MONEY AND MUD FEATURES OF THE CAMPAIGN

All Records Broken for Villification and Abuse in the Recent New York Elections; The Result.

[Special Correspondence to Morning Journal]
New York, Nov. 14.—Over the ashes of more than a million dollars, consumed in the fires of the city campaign recently ended, New Yorkers are now taking stock of the weird workings of the most bitter battle ever waged in the political history of this town. Never can the party veterans here remember a campaign in which more money and mud was thrown to the raging winds than in the past five weeks of partisan strife. Careful count in the headquarters of the three warring camps shows today that real money to the extent of hundreds of thousands of dollars has been spent by the backers of each candidate for mayor. Small fortunes were reaped by scores of printers, advertising men and writers of audience hawk. Cab and motor companies are left thousands of dollars richer for the peripatetics of the armies of orators, while Uncle Sam has gleaned into his coffers at least $50,000 for the postage on tons of campaign literature. Many a million of subway could have been built for poor, congested Manhattan by the gold that the bosses have scattered to make a fight for the control of the political fortunes of the people of Greater New York.

Scandals that will shake to the depths the business and political world of the nation are today believed to be brewing in the brand new customs house and about the wharves and importing districts of this town. Seldom has the threat of exposure moved so mightily the men engaged in activities, as extensive as those of the importations of this harbor, in all the history of graft probing in Gotham. For years the business men of this port have smelled the scent of scandal rising high to heaven from every wharf and stores where government employees are able to practice fraud with scarcely a chance for their superiors to check or even detect them. Common knowledge has long shown the honest element in business affairs here that the channels of this country's greatest port of entry must be soon secured clean for the moral benefit of the whole nation. While every effort is being made today to purge the custom service of much of the corruption that has already been uncovered, New Yorkers look for tremendous revelations from this source in the near future.

Millions of dollars, quietly bestowed in great good works for the people of this city and country, are today bearing mute testimony to the life of John S. Kennedy, whose death is being mourned here by the whole community. Scarcely a tablet or other public reminder marks the philanthropic achievements of this modest gentleman, who scrupulously concealed his identity as the giver of some of the greatest charitable endowments in recent years. Hospitals, libraries and funds for every need of the poor knew their founder in this silent philanthropist, though few of their host of beneficiaries were ever allowed to learn to whom they were indebted. While the benefactions of hundreds of much richer men were heralded far and wide, John S. Kennedy worked and gave, treble their amount in secret. Though memorial tablets may not be flaunted in their faces, the people of New York will long honor and praise the man who lost himself in doing good for others.

THE wife of a famous cartoonist writes us that the best way to clean diamonds and other precious stones is to "soak them over night in a bowlful of Ivory Soap and water. In this city. From end to end of the white light district, thick gloom is overhanging the victims of this advanced price, while no hope of relief is being held out by the proprietors of the glided lobster palaces. Upon the spenders alone, the importers declare, this tariff burden must fall in the circles where yellow bills are broken each night in lavish entertainment. Little sympathy is today being wasted by the people of Gotham upon the stricken champagne consumers of the Great White Way, though their plaint is being heard on every turn of the tenderloin. Even with "wealthy water" held at five dollars a pop, no one believes the thirst of the town will be seriously affected.

Though the man who played pivot in many a city campaign in the past was in town all election week, New Yorkers are today scarcely aware that old Dick Croker has seen the field of the battle of ballots for the first time in many years. No one now takes seriously the repeated rumors of the return to real power of the banished boss of Tammany, and even eager interviewers have found it impossible to stir up a shade of interest in the arrival of this political veteran. As a sage and adviser, the younger powers of Tammany hall may still turn to Croker in the last throes of a hard-fought campaign, but never again will the grizzled old squire of Ireland be an active power in his party.

FIXED POLICY FOR IMPROVEMENT OF WATERWAYS

President and Congress Giving Careful Study to Problem and Results Are Looked for During Coming Season.

Morning Journal Bureau,
613 Money Building,
Washington, D. C., Nov. 14.

If President Taft should ever write an autobiography, one of its most interesting chapters would be devoted to "waterways," for no president has ever devoted so much time to a serious consideration of their needs to make them useful as has the present occupant of the White House. And no subject, unless it be the tariff, has been so widely discussed this year as the necessity for a broad and comprehensive policy toward the rivers, harbors and canals of continental United States.

Senators and representatives in congress have discussed the question with great freedom and the time is not far distant when some fixed policy for waterway improvements will have to be made by the federal government to meet the demand for cheaper transportation.

Senator Charles Dick of Ohio, who has taken a most active interest in the cause of waterway betterment, said yesterday:

"The United States does not yet appreciate the importance of a settled and continuing policy of river and harbor improvements. Appropriations are made to commence an improvement and before another appropriation is made the first improvement has fallen into decay. This is not always the case but sometimes happens. A policy should be adopted covering a long term of years and providing for the improvement first of the most important projects. Work should be continued without interruption and should not be dependent on uncertain and occasional congressional appropriations dependent on the state of the public finances. The money should be provided to finish the improvements thus begun even if necessary to sell bonds for that purpose."

The money already spent in improving and deepening channels and harbors on the Great Lakes has been a member of parliament nor of the provincial council. When one wishes to abandon his nationality as a Chinese he must first get the consent of the board concerned or he cannot lose his nationality. Only a person who has no official position or has not failed to pay taxes is allowed to abandon his nationality. When a Chinese woman marries a foreigner she will abandon her Chinese nationality, and when a foreign woman marries a Chinese she will become Chinese. In either assuming or abandoning nationality the wife and children will follow the husband's nationality. A woman who is married is not allowed to change her nationality alone. Women who are divorced and persons who have abandoned Chinese nationality before the laws are enforced, will be treated as Chinese as long as they live in and enjoy their rights in China.

HOPI HOSTILITY DRIVES OUT THE MISSIONARIES

Religious Emissaries Leaving Oraibi Because of Menacing Attitude of the Ancient Pueblo Dwellers.

[Special Dispatch to the Morning Journal]

Flagstaff, Ariz., Nov. 14.—Disquieting reports of trouble said to be brewing among the Hopi Indians of northern Arizona, have been reaching here for some time past. It is said that the Indians have given so many evidences of hostility to the missionaries that the latter are being forced to leave and the matter is to be brought to the attention of the Indian bureau.

Rev. J. P. Epp Menominee missionary, has been forced to take his family and leave Oraibi and is said to have gone to the headquarters of the church missions in Newton, Kan., to see what can be done. Miss Mary Schirmer left several days ago for California abandoning her mission work at Oraibi because the attitude of the Indians made it impossible for her to remain with safety.

Edgar Cadwallader, of the firm of E. F. Cadwallader & Sons at Mountain Park, is very much elated over the showing made by their horticultural exhibits at the El Paso. With nineteen entries, the Cadwalladers were awarded 14 firsts and three seconds. That is an extraordinary record.

President Taft Testifies to Importance of Religious Organizations in Upbuilding of the Nation.

[By Morning Journal Special Leased Wire]
Washington, Nov. 14.—President Taft this afternoon stood on the steps of St. Aloysius church, with Cardinal Gibbons and Archbishop Palumbo, papal delegate, in a review of the Men's Catholic societies of Washington, incident of the golden jubilee of the parish.

Preceding the review the president delivered a brief address, having been introduced by Father Eugene de L. McConnell, rector, who referred to the fact that fifty years ago President Buchanan had assisted in the dedication of the church.

President Taft in his speech said: "In our country, in this government and under our constitution there is no union of church and state, but rather a declared separation of them. This sometimes has been misunderstood by those who did not know our institutions as an indication that there was something hostile on the part of our government toward, or

[Special Correspondence to Morning Journal]
Springer, N. M., Nov. 13.—By dint of the hardest kind of work by searching parties the body of Miss Angelita Aranda of Springer, who was drowned last Sunday night in Springer lake as the result of a runaway accident on the cement dam roadway, was found at the bottom of twenty feet of water. The body of Melton Gomez of Wagon Mound, the other victim of the accident, was dragged from fifteen feet of water and the burial of his remains took place in the Springer cemetery.

Basilio Archuleta of Las Vegas, and Wiley T. Baker of Tucuman, the other members of the party, managed to swim out and save themselves.

Melton Gomez left Wagon Mound two days previous, hauling a couple of ranchers to Cimarron. He arrived here from Cimarron Sunday morning with two men to catch Santa Fe No. 1 for Las Vegas, to attend the United States court. In the afternoon he met Archuleta and Baker who wanted to go to the lake where they had employment. With the men and Miss Aranda he left here about the middle of the afternoon for the lake. While driving on the high dam near the north end the team became suddenly frightened at a man who had risen up suddenly to shoot at a bunch of wild ducks, and plunged down the high embankment to the water. They cried for help brought a number of men who were a short distance away, but they were powerless to save either Gomez or Miss Aranda. The latter had gotten a hundred feet from the shore, where she went down. Gomez seemed intent on getting the team out and was drowned during his struggles with them. The unfortunate affair happened a short time before dark.

Maria Angelita Aranda came here about a year ago from Mexico, and was employed by Maria Martinez in her restaurant at the time of the accident.

BROOM CORN AND WHEAT BIG CROPS AT MELROSE

TRADE TERRITORY RAPIDLY EXPANDING

Reaches Population of Nearly 1500 in Three Short Years; Business Conditions Splendid.

(Staff Correspondence)

Melrose, N. M., Nov. 13.—Broom corn and wheat at present are the blue ribbon crops in this part of the great plains country of the home-makers and have done more than any other crop to demonstrate the great agricultural possibilities of the district. Thousands of acres of broom corn are to be grown around this city next year and thousands of acres of fall wheat have been sown. For size, quality and yield per acre Curry county wheat is unsurpassed.

Melrose now has a population of nearly 1,500 people where three years ago there were half a dozen.

The influx of settlers which followed the building of the Eden cutoff of the Santa Fe through here formed the basis of the steady growth of Melrose which has continued ever since. The growth of the city has kept pace with the rapid settling up of the surrounding country where farm houses and windmills, fences and barns are now dotting what was three years ago a vacant plain. Melrose has a trade territory of its own reaching for twenty-five miles in every direction through what is rapidly becoming a most populous country. Business is good and getting better all the time.

The plentiful water, which exists at a moderate depth, offers profitable opportunities for irrigation by pumping plants. Steam or electric pumps at small expense lift water from a depth of from ten to thirty feet. Irrigation by pumping is just now catching the attention of the farmers and promises to add greatly to the productivity of the land and the prosperity of the farmers.

The Santa Fe Railroad company now has two railroad wells, furnishing the best water to be found along the Eden cutoff, and requiring no treatment for locomotive purposes.

Just a Few of the Things Melrose Has

A glance at the list of business establishments and industries shows plainly the phenomenal nature of the growth of this three-year-old infant city, and gives some indication of what its growth will be in the immediate future with the growth of the plains country of eastern New Mexico. There are two banks, both with substantial brick banking houses, two furniture stores, four hardware stores, seven general stores, two exclusively gent's furnishings and dry goods stores, two drug stores, two tin shops, two barber shops, two lumber yards, a wholesale flour house, bakery and candy kitchen, four real estate offices, one telephone exchange, two blacksmith shops, four feed stores and two mills, four hotels and numerous restaurants and saloons, four modern churches and one four-room modern brick school building where four teachers are employed to instruct the juvenile population; an abstract office, U. S. commissioner's office, and three pool rooms. Practically every branch of retail business is represented. Melrose enjoys all the privileges and benefits of being on the real estate line of a transcontinental railway system and the Santa Fe depot, of the beautiful mission concrete structure made famous by the Santa Fe, is one of the finest in the territory. Melrose has come to stay and is setting a lively pace for its rival towns in this part of the territory.

ESTANCIA WON'T STAND FOR BEING A SIDE ISSUE

Insists It is Metropolis of the Big Estancia Valley and Has the Arguments Hot Off the Bat.

Estancia, the thriving town over across the mountains, thinks it has a grievance against the Morning Journal, according to a letter received from one of the most prominent citizens and business men of that place. The Morning Journal is quite innocent in the premises. There is no desire to give Estancia the worst of it. Mr. Van Stone's letter speaks for itself.

instant, under heading, "Potatoes Win in the Willard District," you notice a shipment out of Estancia destined for the United States Land and Irrigation exposition.

The writer does not desire further publicity in your paper unless you give due credit in head lines to Estancia, which he believes—and he thinks correctly, too—is the metropolis (?) (for lack of a better term) of this valley.

We are always glad of a "boost," lots of us in Estancia take your paper, but it makes us tired to be classed as a side issue to Willard when we know that if you or anyone else would come over here we could show you in about fifteen minutes that Estancia and not Willard is the town in the Estancia valley, and we believe it always will be.

The writer realizes that it is your duty to boost towns tributary to Albuquerque and thinks that you may be boosting Willard for that reason but he thinks an investigation on your part will show you that Estancia buys fully as many goods in Albuquerque each year as does Willard. To elucidate—Estancia has the railroad shops, the English box factory and planing mill, New Mexico Salt company, Hughes' Mercantile company, L. A. Bond, Brashers & Burrus, Tuttle & Sons, S. Goldsmith, Estancia Mercantile company, Estancia Drug company all in business and doing well besides quite a number of smaller concerns such as butcher shops and the like. You doubtless know what there is in Willard but the writer believes he is perfectly safe in asserting that there is not half as much as the above in the business line.

Now, to return to our grievance, we like the free advertising and hope you will give us more of it, but please don't class us under Willard head lines.

The writer, personally, prefers to be left out altogether to being put in a few lines under a big Willard caption. Very truly,

G. H. VAN STONE.

MUCH INTEREST IN ATHLETICS IN ALAMOGORDO

Arrangements Under Way for Big Basket Ball Tournament to be Played on Thanksgiving Day.

(Special Correspondence to Morning Journal)

Alamogordo, N. M., Nov. 13.—A gymnasium and reading room for young boys has just been opened on Ninth street. A punching bag has been installed, boxing gloves supplied, and a great many good books to read. These form the nucleus of the equipment, which will be added from time to time. Rev. John H. Murray, pastor of Grace Methodist church, and an enthusiast on athletics, spent last evening instructing a number of the youngsters in the art of self-defense. The object of the founders of this club room is to provide a place of amusement, and keep the boys off the streets, more particularly at night. It will be to the younger boys what the Y. M. C. A. is to their older brothers.

Again Alamogordo is filled with rumors that the Alamogordo Lumber company is about to put its saw mills into operation. Several months ago the timber expert for the Rock Island-Frisco line was here, and made an inspection of the timber available in the Sacramento mountains. J. L. Campbell, chief engineer for the El Paso & Southwestern, and W. G. Roe, general superintendent of the Alamogordo Lumber company, made the trip of inspection with the Rock Island-Frisco man. The most encouraging thing anyone would say was that if exhaustive tests proved satisfactory the company might put in a tie and timber mill, but that it would be located up in the mountains, and not in Alamogordo. It has been impossible thus far to see Mr. Roe, to get an expression as to this latest rumor.

The Advertiser's new Junior linotype machine has been installed and put into operation. Clean looking work is being shown in the paper in spite of the fact that the publisher has no experienced operator at work.

Work on the model, experimental farm is still being rapidly carried forward. All the brush has been burned, irrigation ditches located, and the place begins to look like a farm. Early next week a big duplex steam pump having a capacity of 1,000 gallons a minute, will be tried out in the wells, in an effort to exhaust the inflow.

Arrangements are now being made for a big basket ball tournament to be played in Alamogordo on Thanksgiving day. Two teams from the New Mexico Baptist college, and the public school at Mountain Park, will participate in the games. Alamogordo has had no football since Walters, of the High school team, sustained a broken leg in the Thanksgiving game two years ago.

A Religious Author's Statement.

Rev. Joseph H. Fesperman, Salisbury, N. C., who is the author of several books, writes: "For several years I was afflicted with kidney trouble and last winter I was suddenly stricken with a severe pain in my kidneys and was confined to bed eight days unable to get up without assistance. My urine contained a thick white sediment and I passed some frequently day and night. I commenced taking Foley's Kidney Remedy, and the pain gradually abated and finally ceased and my urine became normal. I cheerfully recommend Foley's Kidney Remedy."

Simultaneous Discoveries and Inventions.

Is it a mere "coincidence" that Cook and Peary have discovered the North pole at practically the same time? The history of science shows that the greatest discoveries of the world have been made simultaneously by two or more men working, unknown to each other, toward the same end. It was laid down more than 100 years ago by that grim old German philosopher, Hegel, that the one-man mind was the world mind. His theory was that discoveries were held in suspension in some minds, which permeated with their intensity the minds of all mankind, thereby suggesting identical ideas among men remotely separated.

Hegel may be deep in his philosophy, but the facts of scientific history seem to bear him out in a manner beyond the possibility of mere "coincidence." Not to go back beyond his time, when the Frenchman Le Buet claimed a discovery of the attraction of gravitation simultaneously with Newton, there is the remarkable coincidence of Watt and Stephenson, one in the north and the other in the south of England, as far removed in communication in that day of 1783 as Washington and Sitka are today, and unacquainted with each other's experiments, each pitching upon the thought of the reciprocating engine—the practical engine of today—all within the same month.

The case of the discovery of the planet Neptune, so remote that it is hardly distinguishable by the naked eye, is a most remarkable case in support of Hegel's theory. For more than fifty years astronomers had been scouring the heavens to discover the cause of certain variations in the outer planets—and utterly without success. Yet at 10 o'clock on a night of November, 1845, a certain astronomer, Adams, in charge of the Royal observatory at Greenwich, located this disturbing body as an outermost and unknown planet of our system. At that very same hour Jean Leverrier, an astronomer in the observatory at Paris, found through his telescope this very same star as the one that was creating the trouble. Neither Adams nor Leverrier knew the other except by reputation; certainly, as their controversy afterward showed, neither knew that the other was working toward the same end.

A still better case in proof of Hegel's law was one in Washington, when on a day in February, 1877, two patents for the most novel invention of the age—the telephone—both identical in practical specifications, were filed within half an hour of each other. No one had even approached the true principle of the instrument until two men, each utterly ignorant of the other, much less his discoveries, came together with the same idea, fully developed, all within the same half hour.

The Darwin-Russell controversy and the recent simultaneous exploits of aviators are other cases in point—London Tit-Bits.

RED CROSS STAMP PLACED ON SALE

Presbyterian Sanitarium Agent for Novel Form of Crusade Against the Great White Plague.

The American Red Cross society has made the Presbyterian sanitarium of this city, its agent for the sale of the Red Cross Christmas stamp, which proved such a popular form of benevolence last holiday season. The society's slogan is, "Every stamp a bullet in the fight against tuberculosis." Last season $140,000 worth of stamps were sold in the United States. The society pays all expenses of the sale and allows the local sanitarium 50 per cent of the proceeds, with which to do local benevolent work. Both these objects are most worthy of support and it is hoped that many letters and packages going out of Albuquerque will proclaim the fact that this city joins the world in its great fight against the white plague. Stamps will be placed on sale in some of the stores during the holidays. In the meantime they may be subscribed for in any quantity by addressing a postal to Rev. Hugh A. Cooper, 115 South Walter street. The money need not accompany a Sunday school messenger will deliver the stamps and collect. The stamps sell at one cent each. They will not carry any kind of mail, but any kind of mail will carry them and proclaim to all that someone has made a gift to help on the crusade against tuberculosis, which now in the United States claims 150,000 victims each year.

Big Reception Will Be Given to Nebraskan Who Arrives Tuesday Noon to Lecture in Armory at Night.

William Jennings Bryan, the thrice elected but undaunted leader of the democracy and one of the most eloquent lecturers on the American platform, who delivers his lecture on "The Price of a Soul" at the armory tomorrow night, will be given a noteworthy reception by the leaders of the territorial democracy on the occasion of his visit here. Mr. Bryan arrives from Santa Fe on the limited at noon. In the evening the members of the democratic territorial central committee, over seventy in number, will arrive in the city from all parts of the territory and will tender the Nebraskan a reception which promises to be an elaborate event.

Mr. Bryan will begin his lecture probably at 8 p. m. and it is quite likely that he will address a goodly audience as aside from his political fame his remarkable ability on the lecture platform is well known, and "The Price of a Soul," his newest and best address is said to be a splendid effort. Irrespective of all political affiliations Bryan is an orator of tremendous power and never fails to draw the crowds.

SUFFRAGETTE HAS DESIRE TO KNOW ABOUT CURFEW

The Fame of Albuquerque as Eight o'Clock Town for Juveniles Has Spread to That Dear Old London.

That the fame of Albuquerque and its laws for caring for juveniles has gone abroad is indicated by a letter received recently by Chief McMillin from Mrs. Josephine Phons, Day, London representative of the National Union of Women Workers of England, and a well known suffragette, who asks the chief to furnish her with some information regarding child life and morality in this city. Mrs. Day states in her letter that she read an article some years ago in a magazine concerning the practical working of the curfew bell in Albuquerque. The curfew bell of which the lady inquires, said to relate, now does duty on the top of the public library building, striking the hours and half hours with the same unswerving regularity that it once announced to boys and girls under 15 years of age that it was 8 o'clock and time to be under the parental roof. Chief McMillin will reply to Mrs. Day's letter, giving as much information as he can on the subject. The letter follows:

W. London, Eng., Nov. 3, 1909.
 37 Percy Street.
 Mr. Thomas McMillin, chief of police, Albuquerque, N. M.

you if you can give me any information concerning the practical working of the curfew bell which, from a magazine entitled, "The Fight," of some years ago, I find it is a law of your city, and seemingly from this account a great help to the child life and morality. Representing the National Union of Women Workers of England, I am trying to collect as many details and testimonies regarding the working of this law in America as possible, with the hope that England will be brought to see its benefit through America's example. Thanking you in advance for any help you may be able to give me, I am, dear sir, faithfully yours, JOSEPHINE PHONS, DAY.

COLLINS THE CHECK ARTIST CAPTURED IN ST. JOE

Clever Crook Who Victimized Scores of Merchants in the West Finally Falls Into Clutches of Law.

After traveling about the west and middle west for the past two years, using enough assumed names to fill a Philadelphia city directory, and buncing merchants and banking establishments by the dozen, H. C. Collins, for a brief period of time a resident of Albuquerque, was arrested recently at St. Joseph, Mo., for passing a forged check.

In St. Joseph Collins was known by the name of H. A. Allison. He uttered a worthless check using that name and was arrested. Pinkerton detectives who had been after Collins for a year and a half recognized him. More than a dozen warrants were sworn out for the man in various parts of the west, and it is likely that he will spend quite a few of his forthcoming years behind the bars. Collins was one of the smoothest bunco men that ever operated west of the Mississippi river. Two years ago he worked for a brief spell for the Morning Journal as a territorial solicitor. During the first few days of his employment he secured a large amount of business. Then Collins took up the work of making drafts on the Morning Journal, first using the name of Collins, then Field, and then switched to a new name every place he went. Collins traveled all over eastern New Mexico. Every town he visited he sprung a draft on the bank, drawn on the Morning Journal. The wires were kept hot notifying banks and banking protective associations to be on the lookout for Collins and have him arrested on sight. Descriptions were sent out over the country, but Collins continued his little game, drawing drafts on various business houses in different parts of the country and on individuals to cash personal checks for him. Collins lived in luxury and as far as known never worked a day since he left Albuquerque.

The news that Collins is safe in jail will be received with much interest by the Pinkerton detective agency, numerous banking associations, banks, business concerns and other individuals through the country.
