SCRAMBLE FOR PIE-COUNTER TO BE FERCE

RAVENOUS DEMOCRATS
STARVED FOR 16 YEARS

Horde Has Begun Office Hunting Descent on Washington to Quarrel Over Spoils of Victory.

Morning Journal Special Leased Wire
Washington, D. C., Nov. 19.—

With the battle of the recent elections still undecided, here and there the tide of a nominee being still in doubt, the great horde of democrats suffering from the political hunger of sixteen years, has already begun the office-seeking descent on Washington. From the north, east, south and west they are coming, but particularly from the south. The mail of every Democrat is a request man in town brings a dozen or more requests for positions.

It will have been sixteen years most March since the democrats have had a share of the spoils of the nation.
More than $700,000, annually,
is represented in the patronage prize
which they have won by the capture of the house.

The last legislative appropriation bill carried an aggregate of $707,000, exclusive of the salaries of clerks to members, to pay the salaries of the several hundred employees of the house. To this amount should be added a sum in excess of $100,000, which went for extraordinary service and special employees. All of this amount, with the exception of a few thousand dollars represented in the pay of a dozen minority employees, went to the republicans.

Now the democrats are to have an inning. They are certainly a hungry
lot. The scramble for jobs will be "ferce," and the end of trouble
will be in the distribution.
With the exception of the six official reporters of debates, who may respect in their profession and whose places are never disturbed by a change in the control of the house, and possibly the chaplains, the democrats will unquestionably make a clean sweep of the entire staff of republican employees, and replace them with democrats.

The most important posts to be filled by election of the house are the clerk of the house, the doorkeeper,
the sergeant-at-arms, and the postmaster. These officials have the appointment of practically all the authoritative employees of the house.
They are the clerks in committees and subcommittees, and messengers to committees, which places are the personal patronage of the respective chairman of committees.

There are nearly 100 of these employees to be filled, and it is probable that the only present clerk to retain his position will be James C. Connel-ley, clerk of the committee on appropriations, whose services are regarded as invaluable.

Former Congressman McDonald of Pennsylvania, now holds the chief herb of clerk of the house, which pays $5,500 a year. He will call the next house to order and preside until Clark or some other democrat is elected speaker, and then his services will terminate.

ROOSEVELT VISITS WHITE HOUSE

Former President Inspects Im-

Taft.

(By Morning Journal Special Leased Wire)
Washington, Nov. 19.—Col. Roosevelt visited the White House today for the first time since he left here as president in 1901. He seemed to enjoy his visit as much as the tourists who file in and out of the executive offices every day. The former president arrived in an automobile and drove up to the main entrance.
He sprang out of the car and ran lightly up the steps, where a dozen men, all smiling in recognition, waving
the door open.

Colonel Roosevelt left his card for
Mr. Taft, who is in New York.
Colonel Roosevelt then visited the

around the world, he was traveling on a limited expense account provided by his widowed mother, and on his return voyage he attracted no more attention than any other 17-year old

Phoenix, Ariz., Nov. 19.—A gradu-

and charitable organizations, includ-

features of the tax law which has been adopted today by the constitu-

The measure also limits the state debt to $200,000.
The taxation provisions occupied the attention of the convention throughout the day and consumed the most of the afternoon. The measure was introduced by Senator Morgan of Maricopa county, who spoke uninterruptedly for an hour in opposition to the measure, and quoted at length the views of noted free thinkers.

A determined effort to abolish taxes for real purposes failed by a vote of 28 to 12.

CRIPPER MAKES ANOTHER PLEA OF INNOCENCE

Says He Is Not Afraid to Die
but Was Convicted on In-

(Special Correspondence to Morning Journal)
London, Nov. 19.—Dr. Hawley Cripper, whose execution is fixed for November 23, in a three-column signed statement in a Sunday paper, says that he is not afraid to die and leaves to the inevitable. He appeals to the world to remember he was condemned on inconclusive evidence and expects the real truth will be revealed.

He knows nothing, he says, of the body discovered in the Hildrop Present house until Solicitor Newton told him the day after his arrival at his street. He was confident that if he could have defended himself, he could have proved his innocence. He said that he was not afraid to die, but was convicted on inconclusive evidence. He expects the real truth will be revealed.

PRESIDENT VISITS CUBA

Mr. Taft and Party Inspect Naval Station at Guantanamo
and Sail for Home.

(By Morning Journal Special Leased Wire)
Guantanamo, Cuba, Nov. 19.—The first visit to Cuba of a president of the United States was made today by President Taft, who arrived from Colon in the forenoon. Inspected the United States naval station
here, and departed in the afternoon
for Hampton Roads.

The president arrived here at 11 o'clock this morning. As the cruiser deemed it best to remain here, the president and his party went ashore and made an inspection of the rifle range and other works at the station.
They stayed at the hotel here, and the president's party went ashore immediately upon their return. They were under way at 4 o'clock this afternoon and headed toward the windward point.

As soon as the cruiser dropped anchor in the bay, the officers of the naval station went aboard the Tennessee and paid their respects. The Cuban secretary of state, who had come from Havana to welcome the president in the name of President Gomez, also was received by Mr. Taft.

After the inspection on land, the president and his party went aboard the Tennessee, and the president and other members of his party went ashore

HARVARD-YALE
GAME ENDS
0 TO 0ADHERENTS OF BLUE
CLAIM MORAL VICTORY

Rally at Eleventh Hour Prevents Crimson Scoring on New Haven Squad; Harvard Plays Aggressive Game.

(By Morning Journal Special Leased Wire) New Haven, Conn., Nov. 19.—A drawn and scoreless battle was fought out on Yale field today between Harvard and Yale. To the adherents of the blue, it was a moral victory for their team, which "came back" to defeat Princeton and proved too strong for the all-powerful crimson which came here confident of victory.

This is the third time that Yale has rallied at the eleventh hour to cheat Harvard of a victory, the others in 1897 and 1899 being the most famous. In 1897 and 1899 the Harvard team was the better, but in 1900 and 1901 the Yale team was the better.

In the game today both teams were very strong on the defense, but the wonderful mechanism which Harvard had shown all through the season went to naught, owing to costly fumbles, and under conditions somewhat like those of this season's. In these years Yale had a disastrous mid-season, but recovered when the time came for the supreme test.

In the game today both teams were very strong on the defense, but the wonderful mechanism which Harvard had shown all through the season went to naught, owing to costly fumbles, and under conditions somewhat like those of this season's. In these years Yale had a disastrous mid-season, but recovered when the time came for the supreme test.

These fumbles were the critical points in the game. The Harvard team had gone through the season with a clean record of handling the ball. It seemed to be one of her strong cards, but failure by two of the backs, Wigglesworth and Corbett, to bring the play down, and the latter part of the game was probably cost her the victory. Yale could not withstand the battering. Once the Harvard rushes were for thirty-three yards, a first down was made, and in the last period Corbett had carried the ball to the twenty-yard line, when it went to Yale by bad judgment.

Harvard was always the aggressor. Yale made few consistent gains. The Minnesota shift used in several variations was worked for a gain on the first formation, but the next time it was used it was a failure. Yale was substituted, but the coaches pushed the little quarterback into the game and each time errors of judgment followed. The Harvard team was well drilled team of the whole season, but it lacked at critical times a master hand.

The punting was disappointing as a whole, although in the first period it gave promise of being a feature. Howe did not get distance and only Felton was able to get telling distances.

In the game Harvard punted fifteen times for 620 yards and Howe booted the ball twenty times for 810 yards. From the spectators' point of view the features of the game were the variety of plays used and the more important fact that the ball could always be seen.

The forward pass was used by Harvard and Yale. The Harvard team used it three times and the Yale team used it only eight yards. Yale did not use the pass.

The superiority of Harvard over Yale was shown in the rushing, for ten times the crimson got first down, and her work in this style tried fifty yards, while the blue team was unable to get anything in the line of yardage, failing signally to gain on play of a trick nature.

The Wisconsin game was in danger only twice and the ball was in Chicago's territory most of the time.

maroon and gold tonight for Michigan, by 6 to 0, captured the western football championship from Minnesota on Perry field this afternoon. Two clean cut forward passes did it. It was in the last quarter. Neither side had been able to shatter the other's defense and the spectators had resigned themselves to a no-score game.

It was Michigan's ball in the center of the field. Wells ran out and sent the ball straight to Borleska. This was one of the few successful forward passes of the game and it netted twenty-six yards.

Michigan lined up quickly. The same play was hardly to be expected so soon, and in exactly the same way. Yet, that was the strategy. Wells ran to the side as before and threw diagonally down the field as before to Borleska.

Michigan now had four yards to go. Wells was hurried against center, but the whole Minnesota team got into defense and stopped the play almost where it had started. The next attack was deceptive. Wells found a hole at the tackle and, although the enemy fell upon him frequently, they were too late. He twisted across the line. Conklin kicked goal.

Army, 17; Trinity, 0. West Point, N. Y., Nov. 19.—West Point defeated Trinity at football today, 17 to 0. It was the Army's final game before the one next Sunday with the Navy at Philadelphia, and was a hard fought contest. The scores were all made in the first half.

Illinois, 3; Syracuse, 0. Champaign, Ill., Nov. 19.—The University of Illinois defeated Syracuse today, 3 to 0, completing the final link in a chain of victories. Incidentally Illinois has not been scored on this season and the final triumph today gave the Illinoisians a strong claim to share with Michigan the western championship.

ALBUQUERQUE HIGHS TO MEET EL PASO BUNCH ON THANKSGIVING DAY

It is likely the local High school will meet the El Paso High school eleven on the city's Thanksgiving day. The expense of the local team have been guaranteed and the manager of the Albuquerque boys wired an acceptance yesterday morning.

Captain Johnson, who will not be able to attend the game himself, expects his lads to give a good account of themselves in the skirmish.

PASS CITY HIGHS DEFEAT AGGIES 52 TO 0

Agricultural College Squad Shows Poor Form and Is Unable to Stop Pass City Eleven at Any Time.

(Special Dispatch to the Morning Journal) El Paso, Texas, Nov. 19.—The El Paso high school football team this afternoon defeated the New Mexico Agricultural college squad by a score of 52 to 0, the game turning into a walkaway for the locals after the first quarter.

Neither team was able to score during the first quarter, but in the second period the Highs began to use the new rule to good effect and the half ended with a score of 12 to 0 in their favor. At the end of the third period the score stood 28 to 0 and in the last period the local eleven carried the ball over the line almost at will. The Aggies did not seem to be able to stop the locals at any time.

WRANGLE OVER GAME

Military Institute Claims Agricultural College Failed to Hold to Agreement; "Chimp" Game May Peter Out.

(Special Correspondence to Morning Journal) Rowell, N. M., Nov. 18.—At this writing it looks very much as if the championship football game to have been played between the Military Institute team and the boys of the Agricultural college is strictly up in the air, with poor prospects of ever coming down. Neither team has lost a game this season and the game has been looked forward to as the big season. The teams now, however, are in an apparently hopeless wrangle over the date and place.

The cadets and the dispute is set forth as follows in the Rowell Record:

"It has been understood all along that the game was to take place Thanksgiving day at El Paso, Texas. Owing to the fact, however, that suitable arrangements could not be made for the park on Thanksgiving day, the management of the Agricultural college proposed that the game be played in El Paso the Saturday following Thanksgiving, November 26. This plan was proposed in the early part of October and was accepted by the cadets, who proceeded to make their arrangements for the trip and the game. A contract was made with the Rowell Auto country club, the El Paso & Northwestern railroad for transportation, and everything was considered final.

"Farmers' Get Cold Feet. Immediately after the game between the cadets and the University of New Mexico team, notices began to appear in the El Paso papers to the effect that the game was being changed to a date in the future. The Agricultural college proposed that the game be played in El Paso the Saturday following Thanksgiving, November 26. This plan was proposed in the early part of October and was accepted by the cadets, who proceeded to make their arrangements for the trip and the game. SMELTER MAGNATE ANNOUNCES
INTENTION OF RUNNING III FATED
AUTO INTO EAST RIVER

(Special Correspondence to Morning Journal) Portland, Ore., Nov. 12.—Announcing his intention of taking his $8,000 Italian automobile from Portland back to New York and running it into the East river, thereby ending the long trail of death, accident, litigation and expense that has followed it across the country, Daniel Guggenheim, smelter magnate, is now arranging a settlement with E. L. Frayley, of this city, the present owner.

During the three years that Mr. Guggenheim has owned the high powered Italian car, it has caused two deaths. An employment at Portland has figured in its history. It has been involved in a railroad wreck, a battle followed by similar allegations, a sale in which two conflicting bills of sale and an investigation by the district attorney figure, a repulsive suit and redelivery under bonds—these are some of the vicissitudes through which it has passed.

The car has cost Daniel Guggenheim over $200,000 to date. It was purchased in Italy and brought to New York by way of Berlin. The car develops 120 horsepower and can run 100 miles an hour.

It was placed in competition two years ago in a race across the country and sixty miles out of Buffalo, N. Y., it turned turtle and killed two people. When it arrived at Omaha, the big automobile was in collision with a freight train and was masterfully damaged.

Thomas Catron and George E. Barber were present to represent Lincoln and John J. Hewitt argued the Guggenheim side of the case. J. A. Aragon, Mrs. O. Welmore and Ben Behl were also present at the hearing.

In his address to the attorneys, Judge Wright intimated that should he sustain the injunction now on against the county commissioners that he would require a good and sufficient bond to cover any and all damages that occurred by the delay in the buildings. This bond would have to be provided by the Lincoln side of the argument, he of gilt edge security and approved personally by himself.

The case now remains for decision with Judge Wright and it is expected that he will decide within a week.

WEALTHY TEACHER

Boston Man Asks Los Angeles
Officials to Help Find Woman
With $30,000.

(By Morning Journal Special Leased Wire) Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 19.—After searching through the insane asylums and other public institutions in southern California, Warren T. Currier, a business man of Boston, appeals to the authorities here today to aid him in the quest of his sister-in-law, Miss Anna L. Dodge, a school teacher who disappeared a few years ago after receiving from her father, Charles Dodge of Boston, a bequest of $30,000. Currier believes that the woman was robbed of her money and then either murdered, or immured in an insane asylum.

Miss Dodge came to California twenty-five years ago and taught school in Los Angeles, San Diego, Santa Ana and China. Some years ago her father sent her $30,000. She acknowledged receipt of the money. Since then nothing has been heard from her direct.

Miss Dodge had lived with Mrs. Charles Monaghan of Santa Ana, who upon the sudden death of her husband married a Dr. "Carey" J. Gordon. The latter also died shortly afterward. Currier traced Mrs. Gordon to Philadelphia in an endeavor to ascertain what became of his sister-in-law after leaving the Monaghan home but lost the trail there.

NO MORE WEST.

(Chicago Post.) Nevada has put into effect an anti-gambling law. There ain't no West no more. Bill couldn't never know the land. They've built a new kind of Bill, where Per Leg's used to stand. They've got some real police, Bill, just plain brass-buttoned birds. That ain't no West no more, Bill, an' carry on with you, Bill.

The good old days is gone, Bill, they're gone for certain shore. Here's what you can bet on, Bill. Stay right where you are, Bill. The West is growin' more. The two game is closed, Bill, the luscious one's been burned. Who'd ever have supposed, Bill, 'twould be so? It'll be burned. If they can't get a rule, Bill, that roulette doesn't go.

It's like a Sunday-school, Bill, it ain't no West no more. An' worse than all the rest, Bill, whatever would you think? They'll hang you in the West, Bill, for shootin' of a Chinke! There ain't no West no more, Bill, just wipe off your map. Them cowboy clothes you wore, Bill, the folks now would rap! They pinch you if you come, Bill, they close the barn door. An' you can't start no fuss, Bill, nor mix up in a fight. The good old days is gone, Bill, they've gone for certain shore—what you can bet on, Bill! There ain't no West no more!

ALBUQUERQUE NEW MEXICO

PROHIBITION AND STATEHOOD

By a decisive majority the constitutional convention has decided that the matter of statewide prohibition should not be acted upon in the constitution or accompanying it. We believe the convention is right. There will be plenty of time to decide upon measures to regulate the liquor traffic after we have entered the union. If complicated with prohibition and similar matters it is likely to become bogged. Legislative matters will come up for action in due time. At present the question is as to whether we shall have a chance to do any legislation at all.

The regulation of the liquor traffic is one of the great questions of the hour in America. Conscientious men who recognize the grave menace of the saloon, differ honestly as to how to remedy the evil, and in New Mexico sentiment as to remedial measures is divided. Many delegates in the convention, believing thoroughly in statewide prohibition, have voted in favor of the adoption of the committee report, because they recognize the fact that the battle now is for statehood and the issue must be clear cut. The prohibition question may be fought out fairly at the polls after we become a state and the result will be the expression of the majority as to how to handle the saloon.

The vote on the report of the committee on liquor traffic is no index to the sentiment on the prohibition question, and with every opportunity to fight effectively for their cause in the new state, no advocate of prohibition should let the side issue blind him to the main one—statehood. The prohibitionists will demonstrate their patriotism by voting for the constitution, prohibition or no prohibition. With due regard to the magnitude of their cause, the cause of statehood is just a little bit bigger at present.

UNTRIED PATHS.

The people of Albuquerque have already had a splendid object lesson in the usefulness of the Young Women's Christian association. "Untried paths" for the great movement, however, are pointed out in the following by a leader in the national work.

In the promotion of association activities two kinds of usefulness are aimed at, practical helpfulness to the person served and personal development in the ones who serve.

The Christian association does not content itself with the provision of material conveniences, but does establish potent personal relationships, which are the only effective means of projecting vital Christianity.

There are two kinds of untried paths. First, those which have been clearly marked out with terminals and boundaries well defined, but over which ways there is only the indifferent tread of a few workers, and, second, the paths yet untried or still undeveloped, but promising to lead into the waste places of life and become avenues of escape for the entangled or highways of access for those who carry the Lord's strength to places of need.

The Young Women's Christian association, as an organization, has cleared paths to usefulness in certain lines, such as living quarters for working girls, some forms of educational work, some types of social and religious training. Along these lines associations should do a more efficient work, making sure that the things already proven feasible and wise get more than half-hearted attention, and have more than stunted development.

Without minimizing present defined lines of effort, it is worth while to search out and to magnify the untried paths that lead to enlarged Christian service. Among these which can be best carried out among women and girls among themselves the following deserve special attention:

First—A big sister movement, through which each older girl and woman shall become the intimate, personal friend, counselor and helper of some one girl, investing the most wholesome elements of her personal influence in this girl for her advancement.

Second—A younger sister movement through which each girl and young woman shall become the intimate friend and part time companion of some one aged, infirm, or isolated woman whose hours are long and whose spirit craves the cheerful companionship of buoyant youth.

Third—Physical development facilities, which shall insure every girl and young woman a chance to attain and maintain a robust physical condition with a high measure of vitality.

Fourth—Education on sex, which shall insure high physical and moral standards, a proper preparation for and high appreciation of the woman's place in the family and the home.

Fifth—Opportunities for recreation, which shall give old and young alike wholesome relief from the usual burdens, to broaden the vision and to retain the spring of life.

Sixth—Social opportunities which shall give to those especially without advantageous home conditions a chance for needed social fellowship with both their lady and gentlemen friends amid wholesome surroundings and influences.

Seventh—Disillusionment of many girls and young women through giving them an increased intelligence concerning the real conditions of city, business, social and home life, thus making them able to see through the alluring superficialities to the real facts which shape lives.

Eighth—Care of the wayward that shall prevent those who have discounted their lives from suffering too great a handicap thereby and to insure them the best possible chance for self-redemption and the largest usefulness in the future.

Ninth—Social study and working groups, whose members shall become intelligent concerning the needs of girls and women and efficient in meeting them, they themselves growing through the service they render.

Tenth—Trained leaders, who, inspired by the Christian motive, shall outline campaigns of effort, gather workers, train them, command resources and superintend the active Christian efforts among girls and women.

A REAL THANKSGIVING.

Speaking of being thankful, read the letter published elsewhere in this paper, from the mother of "Little Minnie" to the superintendent of the Children's Home society. Her gratitude while, of course, much deeper and inexpressible than anyone's else could be, is shared by the people of Albuquerque and the whole southwest, over the happiness of one little maiden whose life has been "made over."

THE BENEFICENT COW

The dairy cow does more than bring financial success to the dairy farmer. She makes him a better citizen than he would otherwise be. Her influence upon home conditions is a most pleasing contribution to those factors which are responsible for the changed conditions which prevail in the farm homes of today. Thousands of these homes are now characterized by comfort and happiness where formerly they were blighted by drudgery and unhappiness.

Better financial conditions have contributed to this change, and the dairy cow has been in no small measure responsible. She has contributed in still another way. The dairy cow teaches kindness. Her owner soon learns that only by treating her kindly can he secure the highest possible returns from her, and she responds quickly to kind words and proper care. Her disposition is one that the human family might well emulate. She is patient and long suffering, acquiescing meekly in the arrangements made by her owner for carrying on the dairy business, striving at all times to repay him for every effort made for her care and comfort.

The members of the family, as they come in contact with her and her kindly disposition, are influenced for good. As they appreciate the financial benefit to come from caring for her well they take a deeper interest in her. In doing so they unconsciously cultivate those qualities which make them better citizens.

The dairy cow—the prototype of man's best friend—is yielding a greater influence than she is generally credited with. She has always been found in the front ranks in the march of civilization and no agricultural country can long prosper without her. She is a potent factor in the up-building of such a country, financially, and socially, and a wife people will appreciate her and encourage the industry of which she is the foundation.

HOW TO READ.

Among the amusing characters one meets during a lifetime none is more interesting than the man who has at his command all the epigrams of one writer. The person who settles all questions at the altar he has erected to one thoughtful person who bequeathed his riches to humanity on the written page is numerous. Nor does he always seek the forgotten tomes. He does not confine himself to the Bible, Shakespeare, nor Milton. It may be Longfellow, it may be Robert Burns, or it may be Mr. Dooley. But for all questions, regardless of their depth, this character can find answers on some page of the works of his favorite author. His is orthodoxy of the most sublimely simple nature.

These persons are not objectionable. Sometimes they are surprisingly correct. A great many times they are funny and always they are lovable, interesting, harmless persons.

Their first cousins—very similar characters—live in the dim past of history through which they passed while young, or in the history through which their forefathers passed. One will frequently find them in literature. Such characters are usually placed by authors on the side of the hero or heroine. But they fight with a blind devotion which condemns the enemy, not because the enemy is wrong in the light in question, but because the enemy is cursed with a nationality to which they object or voted on the wrong side a quarter of a century ago or chose for a birth place some depressed section of the country.

In view of the fact that no writer offered his work as a guide to humanity for all time, it is odd that there should be in the world so many slavish admirers. Nearly all writers seek to offer to the world a thought or several thoughts. They take it for granted the world sits in judgment upon them. It is not important to the world that Shakespeare said this or that. But it is important to the world that a large part of the world believes this or that; in fact, much of the pleasure of reading is lost to those who sit at the feet of those whose writings they read, rather than in the jury box to pass judgment upon the men who offer their thoughts. In other words, a thought should be important to a man not because it appeals to the common sense of a man as true. When he views the thought in this wise it becomes his thought and he is a more thoughtful man for having gone through the mental processes necessary to adopt it.

Being too enthusiastic in following the ideas of another or others is a form of hero worship that does little harm of a general or national nature, but does considerable harm to the person guilty of it. It should be possible for every man to open a book with an unprejudiced and unbiased mind, prepared to sit in judgment upon what is therein offered. If he adopts that mental attitude he is by that very fact fitted to judge. Reading is a science if it is profitable. It is by a multiplicity of thought generated under varying environment, rather than by the thought of any one man, that the world is enlightened.

BE READY TOMORROW.

The aftermath of "Black Day" comes tomorrow when the women engaged in the Young Women's Christian association campaign gather in the envelopes distributed all over the city during the latter part of the week.

Scattering returns show that the response promises to be generous and substantial. It is hoped that every person who has received one of the little envelopes will make the very best possible use of it and return it to the association fat and bulging. But if you can't make a large contribution, give your mite. It will help, every bit, and not for years has a more worthy appeal been made to the people of Albuquerque. If you are filled with the spirit of Thanksgiving for your own blessings, help the young women to have cause for the same sentiment. Fill the envelopes.

It is soothing to hear that Maine will not be annexed to Canada without the consent of her own people and the approval of the American national government. The proposition is striking, but may not make headway rapidly. What should we do without Maine? And what would Maine do without her sister states? The authors of the proposition probably have in mind the annexation ultimately of the whole United States, and start modestly with one state in order not to cause a panic in American circles. If there is to be any change, the stars and stripes, and not the union jack, should enlarge its usefulness. And without Maine, how would we ever know how the election was going?

The Socorro Chieftain thinks that boundary line has been pushed the other way. It says: "Judging by the number of Texas democrats that were counted by the census man in eastern New Mexico this year, that pesky boundary line must have been shoved over two or three hundred miles into Texas territory some time ago."

The National Board of Arbitration of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues has 100 contests on its docket. In the good old days these matters used to be decided on the field by appeals to the Marquis of Tippecanoe rules.

In view of the fact that further details of the assassination of President Lincoln are gathered every year, the question arises as to how long the world will be entertained with accounts of the Waterloo in New York this month.

The Baltimore sun urges a conference of conservative democrats to promulgate a national policy. Can this be taken as confirmation of the charge of Theodore Roosevelt that the democrats have no policy?

These labor disturbances in Paris have a tendency to inform the world that there are few persons in France who are neither waiters, government officials nor dancing girls.

Baillinger is still appealing amid raucous hoots from the muskrater brigade.

The Hero and the Mob. Speak softly, look with kindly eyes on him who slowly moves along. Hark! Hear the cat-calls and the cries.

Of anger from the thoughtless throng. See how they threaten him, as though he were a wolf to drive to bay: Ah, tickle mob! A week ago Place d'Orleans him flattered to and fro—He was a hero yesterday.

You that have pride within your breast. Because the mob applauds you now, Pray God for courage, go in quest Of some dark nook, there humbly bow.

And learn humility and strive To find the strength to bear dismay; Before this evening's shades arrive The mob will wish to burn alive.

Men who were heroes yesterday. —S. E. Kiser.

What Is the Young Women's Christian Association?

It is not the building, but something that built it; It is not the membership, but something that wins it; It is not the budget, but something that raises it; It is not the organization, but something that organizes; It is not the achievement, but something that achieves; It is not any thing on earth, but a spirit on earth that lifts things humanly.

It is a spirit of sisterhood, uniting women of faith in fellowship and service; It is a spirit of responsibility, confessing, "I am my sister's keeper"; It is a spirit of service, choosing "not to be ministered unto, but to minister"; It is a spirit of sacrifice, preferring rather to "fall into the ground and die" than to "abide by itself alive"; It is a spirit of unity, giving a new evidence and releasing a new energy of Christianity.

It is a spirit of conquest, contending for the kingdom of Christ unlimited; It is the spirit of Youth, with its rest and freshness of the morning; It is the spirit of true womanhood, pressing forward with the mid-day heat and burden; It is the spirit of Christ, with His deathless life and His unquenchable enthusiasm; It is the spirit of association, the youth, the women, the Christ in undiminished and irresistible co-operation.

Blind. Mrs. Ellie Tiler, Ravenna, Tex., writes: "I was blind as a bat. I used Sutherland's Eagle Eye Salve and it acted like a charm. It cut the scum off my eyes and restored my sight. It is all you claim and worth its weight in gold. 25c a tube."

Tales of the Town

Didn't Hesitate. It was along about 8:20 in the morning out on Central avenue and an indignant citizen had just been passed by a fast moving trolley car which didn't even hesitate, while the motorist instead of seeing the "high sign," of the would-be passenger, was gazing contemplatively at the tree tops and clanking his gong jeeringly.

"Why—in—Santa Fe—didn't that car stop?" demanded the citizen in high dudgeon.

"Take the next car," said another citizen, who was waiting on the same corner. "That's the celebrated Chalmers Express and Jastro Mail. There comes your car now. Don't expect the limited to stop at every flag station, do you?"

"Humph," grunted the indignant one. But he got on the second car without a word.

A Battle Scared Heroine. There is a rather attractive young woman in a New Mexico city, not 1,000 miles away, who had the misfortune to fall down stairs a few years ago and fracture one of her knees so badly that the limb had to be amputated. The young woman, of course, walks with the aid of crutches. She is not in the least sensitive about the matter, and she doesn't mind informing properly interested people of the nature of the accident which maimed her.

She has set a limit, however, and she was compelled to use it one afternoon last week. She got into a street car and found herself in the same seat with a sharp-eyed woman who seemed to take a whole lot of interest in her and her crutches. She scrutinized the young woman's face carefully for a couple of minutes, then turned her attention to the workmanship of the crutches, which she even took the liberty to handle curiously.

"You looked the young woman over again, and leaned over to her. "Dye mind tellin' me how you lost your leg," she asked.

"No in the least," responded the young woman amiably. "I lost it in the battle of San Juan hill."

Our Y. W. C. A.—A Personal Word

A few years ago it was my rare privilege to attend our national biennial Y. W. C. A. convention, in session at Detroit, Mich. As I stood in that vast concourse of women, radiant in youth, but grave with the sense of personal responsibility for the world's betterment, I realized as never before the power of our Y. W. C. A. as a force for righteousness in this national life.

Twelve years of somewhat close association with the student branch of our Y. W. work has given me intimate knowledge of the workings of this organization, both in the student and city departments, and I have been deeply impressed with its practical method of operation, the same business judgment of its officers and co-workers, and its power to arouse and develop the latent womanhood of our American girls. I know of no organization distinctively for girls and women whose aim is so cosmopolitan in character, reaching out as it does to all classes of women regardless of training, education, creed or occupation. It is one vast sisterhood clasping hands in the effort to uplift the girl who has fallen by the wayside, to stimulate the college trained girl to a life of altruistic endeavor, and to lead the womanhood of our land forth to loyal, devoted service in the name of him who came not to be ministered unto, but to minister.

May our Albuquerque Y. W. C. A. have the cordial support of all her good citizens, making it possible to establish here in the great southwest an association second to none in its efficiency in the development of consecrated local Christian womanhood.

Arrived in the country, they found that one of Ginger's traps had been carried from its moorings and later discovered that it had been dragged into a coon hole and the coon had caught on a stone at the mouth of a hole. Great excitement prevailed. Edie was requested to light the lantern, but he was so filled with ner-

Albuquerque's Dry Goods Shop

Just a word about advertising. Stores, like individuals, must vary in their viewpoint. So with their expressions—the manner in which they would impress their readers with the offerings in their advertisements. Sometimes genuine sincerity runs into enthusiasm which is exaggeration and overstatement. We censor our own advertisements and strike out any suggestion of exaggeration. In offering attention to the shopping public, we keep well within the truth and a liberal margin for safety. It is our aim when those who have read our advertisements come to buy those items which have interested them, they should enjoy the full pleasure of finding all they expected. It would be greatly appreciated if, in any instance, you are disappointed, you would take the trouble to inform us.
