TAKING CHRISTMAS.

Congress Adjourns To-day for the Holidays After a Kick by Senator George—Capital
News Notes.

Washington, Dec. 22.—There were but few members on the floor when the house convened this morning. After a few bills had been passed by unanimous consent debate on the currency bill was resumed.

IN THE SENATE.
At the conclusion of his speech, Senator George asked that the resolution providing for adjournment to-day go over until Monday which cut off debate, but at 12:30 p. m. he withdrew his objection to the resolution, which was unanimously passed.

limiting the power of the United States

THE PORTE KICKS

On the Instructions Given the Investigating Commissioners of the Armenian Troubles.

Vienna, Dec. 21.—Advices from Constantinople says that the porte objects to a part of the instructions given the delegates of foreign powers, who are to follow with the Armenian commission. The powers, however, with the exception of Germany, refuse to modify the instructions, and it is understood that Great Britain is determined to make an important inquiry into the stories told of Turkish atrocities and will insist upon a punishment of the guilty persons. In addition, should the present inquiry fail to be as thorough as Great Britain expects, she will demand the appointment of a fresh commission. All foreign newspapers containing accounts of the Armenian outrages, continue to be confiscated at the Turkish frontier.

A BIG CASE

Decided by the Secretary of the Interior. It Affects Property Valued at Over Half a Million.

Cripple Creek, Dec. 22.—Over 3,000 persons in this city are affected by the decision of the secretary of the interior confirming the Freeman placer claim.
The claim embraces 128 acres in this city, on which are 700 houses, including some of the largest in the place. The land is worth over $500,000. The owners of the claim are J. H. Freeman, Jr., George Carr, William Eaton, J. O.
Hirschberger, J. K. Vanatta, Thurlow and Hutton. The squatters will now have to buy the land which they occupy or move off.

A BRIGHT SKY

Shone Over the Body of Canada's Premier To-day—The Funeral Ceremonies in England.

London, Dec. 22.—After a night of pitiless rain the weather cleared about 9 o'clock this morning and under a bright sky the body of Sir John Thompson, late premier of Canada, left London for Petersham. The funeral procession resembled Victoria station at 8:45 a. m.
The coffin was in an open four-horse hearse which was followed by four mourning coaches. Over the coffin was the Canadian flag and upon the latter rested the queen's laurel wreath which she personally placed upon the temporary coffin previous to the removal of the remains from Windsor castle.

A Blizzard in Upper Nebraska.
Omaha, Neb., Dec. 22.—A terrific snow and rain storm prevails in northwestern Nebraska and the Black Hills. All telegraphic facilities with the hills are cut off in this direction and no wires are working in Nebraska west of Chadron.
Alliance, Neb.—The snow for which farmers have been praying for a month is falling all over western Nebraska. The storm possesses all the features of the blizzard with the exception that the weather is very mild. The storm began here in the Black Hills, and continues with unabated fury and a high wind prevails. Communication by telegraph has been suspended west of here.

A SCIENTIFIC WONDER.

A Murdered Woman's Eye Retains
and Reproduces the Appearance of the Murderer.

Jamestown, N. Y., Dec. 12.—Photographic science may have given the first tangible clue to the identity of the mur-derer of Mrs. Shearman and Mrs. Davis.
Several have been the suspects and the clues followed up without success. But yesterday the impression of the murderer was found on the retina of Mrs. Shearman's eye. The photograph was taken by Fred D. Marsh, a local photographer, and to him is due the credit of having originated the idea of examining the organ.
The existence of the impression of the murderer on the eye was first discovered by means of a powerful microscope. Unfortunately the features of the man could not be seen, as the view obtained shows only the back and very little of the side.
Apparently big man in presence and with bushy whiskers and wearing a long overcoat. The trousers appear to be badly wrinkled.

The coroner has taken out both of the eyes of the murdered woman and another photograph will be taken to-day by a skilled photographer. No impression was discoverable on Mrs. Davis' eyes.

A RETAILER CASE.

Topeka, Kas.—In connection with the hunt for the murderer of Mrs. Watson, it has decided to photograph the victim's eyes.

A Western View.
Salt Lake, Utah, Dec. 22.—The leading bankers and business men of this city held a meeting yesterday to discuss the Baltimore plan for regulating the currency. The meeting did not endorse the so-called Baltimore plan. It was the sense of the meeting that in any currency plan acted upon a constituent part thereof should be the remonetization of silver or that it should offer no impediment to the return to bimetalism as it existed prior to 1873. The following resolution was passed:

"Resolved, That we believe the proposition advanced by W. P. St. John, of New York, comes nearer expressing the financial view of the business men of the west than anything so far proposed by eastern men."

A committee was appointed to consider the advisability of calling a meeting of bankers, to be held here, for the purpose of taking action on the financial question.

Well and Happy

Thanks to Hood's Sarsaparilla—Dull
Headaches—That Tired Feeling.

Mr. W. H. Toles
San Francisco, Cal.

"One of the greatest mistakes people make is to lock the door after the horse is stolen, or in other words, to wait until they are sick in bed before they do anything for the poor body.
Neither my wife nor myself were real sick; I attended to my business, and my wife to her household duties daily. But we had dull, heavy headaches, and a little over-exertion would tire us greatly, and my appetite was very poor. So we took three bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and the result was perfectly satisfactory. I believe Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Saved Us a Severe Sickness
And a big doctor's bill. If people would only remember that 'an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure,' there would be less suffering in the world. My advice to all who do not feel

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 22.

The tempest in the Albuquerque Citizen's teapot has, at the latest reports, about subsided.

THE LAS VEGAS OPTIC, Republican, evidently doesn't take much stock in the case of political hysteria which Mr. Catron's Water street organ developed last Sunday. We print the Optic's views in another column.

Of all the mean things politically that New Mexico has witnessed in years, the worst is the attempt of the Republican organs to make poor old ex-Sec. Ritch bear the brunt of those Republican legislative frauds in 1881.

It's a good thing this statehood enthusiasm business came in mid-winter. Otherwise, we very much fear that the Arizona editors, who are handling the subject with so much zeal, would have gone off in a cloud of steam.

It appears that the previousness of Raton Range in hoisting at its masthead the name of McKinley for president in '98, has had the effect of curdling the political milk in the stomach of our hitherto most amiable contemporary.

There seems to be a woeful lack of unanimity of sentiment among the Republicans in Colfax county. We note that our esteemed contemporary, the Raton Range, pounces upon the political neck of the venerable Republican, Mr. M. W. Mills, with both hoofs.

At this rate, we very much fear that statehood won't get here in time for New Mexico's Christmas. We beg to assure our senatorial friends, however, that it will be received with thanks as a New Year's present, or if that can't be done we'll receive it with thanks on Jackson day, which is, we believe, January 8. But statehood we've just got to have.

It's a good thing the Optic had the decency to publish ex-Sec. Ritch's pronouncement. It was so badly garbled in the Citizen as to dates that, otherwise, the public would scarcely have been able to discover what the ex-secretary was driving at. As it is, it is none too lucid. It must have ground both the Citizen and the Optic to give up space to that communication.

The Silver City Eagle comes to this office once a week looking as nice and prim as a fashion plate. In fact, 'tis hinted that the Eagle never takes off its gloves, except when it desires to handle the Democratic president's actions. It's a pity the Eagle can't persuade itself to leave this latter job for our friends, the enemy. It seems to us that that paper looks ever so much neater—and certainly more Democratic—with its gloves on.

THE FRAUDS IN COLFAX. So it seems that those Republican frauds in Colfax county, to which reference was made in the New Mexican some weeks ago, have been "looked into," as the Springer Stockman said they would be, and as a result, Mr. M. M. Salazar, Democratic candidate for county clerk, has entered a contest against Mr. A. C. Gutierrez, the Republican candidate, alleged to have been elected on the face of the returns by a very small majority. In his formal notice of contest, Mr. Salazar recites the names of over 100 persons whom he charges cast illegal votes in the precincts of Raton, Buena Vista and Catekill. The Republican organs who have been so vociferously crying for facts in the case of Colfax county will please take notice that here they are!

THIS IS RICH!

The Republican election fraud chickens are all coming home to roost. The Albuquerque Citizen, which undertook to make a scape-goat of ex-Secretary Ritch in apologizing for those notorious frauds perpetrated by Republicans in 1881, has had to eat a most delectable dish of crow, prepared by Mr. Ritch's own detestable hands, and the Las Vegas Optic, which copied the Citizen's uncalculated and unmanly attack upon the ex-secretary, has had to do likewise.

"And has since lived on a cattle ranch, isolated and hermit-like," said the Citizen of the ex-secretary in attempting to explain away the Republican frauds which characterized the organization of the legislature in 1881. And now we find the venerable ex-secretary declining to be sacrificed upon the altar of Republicanism. He emphatically denies that he has been consigned to political oblivion, and in response to the above quotation he says to the Citizen:

"Well! I do not discover that there is any crime, or disgrace, or unworthiness in all that! The ranch, within our company, is my own for all practical purposes, and is paid for. Good health and vigor have come from active life in the saddle, and I have gained an honest living for myself and family. I feel happy in being able to say I am out of debt, do not even owe the Citizen, and withal am in no sense a political barnacle. Permit me to add, a trifling breadth of vision would have discovered to the writer that this whole matter of domicile and business was purely my private affair and that he was meddling with what was none of his business."

It's your fight, gentlemen. Go in, and may the best man win.

PRESS COMMENTS.

The Water Street Organ's Mares-Nest.

An Albuquerque correspondent of the Santa Fe Republican has found a double mare's-nest, which he has launched upon an unsuspecting public. It is a conspiracy of Albuquerque Democrats to have contested against all the elected Republican members of the legislature; then Secretary Miller will swear in only those, chiefly Democrats, against whom contests have not been raised. This will give the Democrats a majority to begin on, and they can easily decide the contests in favor of their own men. The second part of the deeply-laid and profoundly-kept scheme, which the correspondent secured from the Democrats themselves, is that the capital is to be removed from Santa Fe to Albuquerque, the Democrats from the other parts of the territory consenting to this removal, no doubt, as a reward to Albuquerque for the brilliant scheme to capture the legislature, already outlined, on which Albuquerque genius seems to have the patent right.

Bring on another horse, or let another precinct be heard from.—Las Vegas Optic.

New Mexico and Arizona. It is hoped that Senator Faulkner, who is chairman of the senate committee on territories, will do his utmost to secure the passage of the bill admitting New Mexico and Arizona. Both these measures have passed the house, and they await now the action of the senate. It is understood that the president would sign them both if presented to him. The Democrats may be said to be committed to the passage of these bills by the action of their party in the house, and Republican senators would, we are sure, offer no opposition. Both territories are prepared for statehood, and it is unjust that they have been kept out of the Union so long. The suggestion that there should be a provision in the New Mexico constitution against the use of the Mexican language in public schools is unwise. In the first place, that is a matter which should be left to the people of New Mexico to decide for themselves. There is nothing in the constitution of the United States or the principles upon which the Union was formed requiring English to be taught or spoken. There is nothing sacred in the English language, and it is not the only tongue in which the principles of liberty may be taught. It is true that it would be well that if in all parts of the Union the English language were dominant, for it is the one commonly employed by 90 per cent. of the population. But the people of New Mexico would suffer more than the other inhabitants of the United States if their language were foreign to the one spoken by a majority of the people.

The foregoing phase of the subject loses its importance, however, from the fact that English is rapidly driving out the Spanish. Doubtless Spanish always will be spoken in New Mexico, or at least for several generations, but it will be only a little while until the Mexican inhabitants will find it necessary to learn English in order to transact business. Unquestionably English ought to be taught in the public schools of the territory, but the common sense of the people will prompt them to insist upon that. The dominion of the Spanish will endure but a little while longer.

The erection of state governments in New Mexico and Arizona would stimulate the growth of these territories, for it would cause an influx of both capital and immigration. The natural resources of each territory are great, and a large population could be maintained. Justice to the people now living there, as well as regard for the welfare of the whole country, should prompt congress to pass both the enabling acts.—Denver Republican.

SUNBEAMS.

The woman emancipationist had tackled the serene old bachelor. He squirmed occasionally, but he retained his serenity. Have you ever done anything for the emancipation of woman, I'd like to know? she said, coming down the home stretch. Indeed, I have, madam, he smiled; I have remained a bachelor.

A genuine ghost-story has yet to be attested; but not so a genuine blood-purifier. Over and over again it has been proved that Ayer's Sarsaparilla stands alone among medicines as the most reliable tonic-alternative in pharmacy. It stood alone at the World's Fair.

First Despondent—Say, you ain't going to jump in the river, are you? Second Despondent—Yes, I am. Well, that's what I came here to do. What's your complaint? "I had 12 poems rejected by one editor." "And I had one poem rejected by 13 editors. Join me." (They plunged.)

A Visit to North Carolina. Coochran, Pa.—Some years ago I had occasion to visit North Carolina, and while there had one of my bilious attacks. Hearing for the first time of Simmons Liver Regulator I tried it. Nothing before had so effectively relieved me. I could in no way benefit others more than by putting such a remedy in their hands.—N. N. Shepard.

Landlady—How do you like my new motto: Eat drink and be merry? Crusty Boarder—I would like it better if you would put the fact on the table instead of the fiction on the wall.

Aunt—I hear you are going to marry Jenkins, my dear. He is a foolish young man. Niece—I haven't met a wise one yet, it seems to me that as soon as they grow wise they leave off marrying.

Everybody knows that the conditions for health are not favorable when the stomach, liver, and bowels are disordered. In such cases, headache, indigestion, and constipation are the result; for all which ailments the proper remedy is Ayer's Cathartic Pills.

"You don't seem to hold a very high opinion of the latter-day woman?" "I don't, she has ceased to be a lady, and has not yet succeeded in becoming a gentleman."

My friend, said the solemn looking man to the other solemn looking man, are you not a follower of the Christian science treatment? In one sense I am, I am an undertaker.

It is common for a man to bring up his niece, but do you think of a fellow who raises his ante?

A Great Mistake.

A recent discovery is that headache, dizziness, confusion of the mind, etc., are due to derangement of the nervous centers which supply the brain with nerve force; that indigestion, dyspepsia, neuralgia, etc., are due to derangement of the nervous centers which supply the body with nerve force; that indigestion, dyspepsia, neuralgia, etc., are due to derangement of the nervous centers which supply the body with nerve force.

At the end of dinner, while we were drinking our coffee and smoking our cigars, Bradford advanced his little theory, born of some conversation we had held about the wickedness and depravity of "darker New York."

"I believe I could do just what you say I can't," came my words after a little flurry of discussion. John Hathaway was rather flushed with champagne. He knocked his fist against the table and said, merrily, yet seriously:

"Make him take your bet, then, Alec. We'll all go 'slumming' together, as they call it."

"The bet," I said, "gives me big odds. Ten dollars from myself to $100 from Alec that nothing will happen to us if I go with both of you wherever you shall direct and in each place make it known that I carry on my person the sum of $5,000!"

"Never mind," laughed Bradford to his breezy, staccato way. "I'll stick to my bet." He turned to Hathaway.

"Jack, you'll hold the stakes?" "Yes, yes," came Jack's reply. "We may all get ourselves murdered, so I propose to raise my courage with a brandy and soda."

While the waiter obeyed his order Hathaway received my $10 and Alec's $100. Then two little paper rolls were constructed, each encased in a green bag. These I was to carry in either of my breast pockets. The season was

WHAT THE MOON SAW.

A little blue-eyed innocent Out in the yards at play Had chased, without a thought of wren, A mother hen away. Her father spoke in earnest tones, And graved the words he said, While she, and for her thoughtlessness, Went to her little bed. Again at night she sought the yards, Fearless of ghosts or evil, Where, upon porch or nest or tree, Slumbered the precious fowls. When they with terrifying noise Flew out and off, all wild, The master sought to know the cause And met his punting child. "Father, I came to kiss the hen," She said in her sweet way, "And tell her I was sorry 'cause I scared her yesterday."

MY BET.

At the little dinner of three which Alec Bradford was giving I hadn't drunk more than three glasses of wine in all. But I have been a temperate man throughout my life, and possibly even this moderate indulgence made me unwontedly rash.

Perhaps my unstrung nerves had a good deal to do with the matter as well. I had fled from the home of a tyrannical stepfather here in New York about six years ago, when the merest boy, just after my mother's death. Countless hardships had beset me since then, but now I had gained in the far west at least a hopeful semblance of prosperity. I had come back with only a single purpose—to find my twin sister, Ruth, Amberley, and bring her to dwell out there in Kansas with myself and my beloved young wife.

Tearful, yet striving to smile through her tears, Clara had hidden me goodbye. "It's dreadful to have you go alone, Frank," she faltered. "Still, you know, you owe it to your sister. You never wrote to tell her where you were for a long time after you'd driven your test stakes here into Ashbyville."

"I know—I know, Clara. It was my jealousy, I suppose." "Jealousy of a stepfather! And of such a shocking despot as you paint him too! And how could Ruth have run away with you as you proposed in your madly boyish fashion? And as for her not answering the letters you've written her since remembrance has begun to prick you—why, there isn't a doubt that she never received them. Her stepfather's probably moved away from where he used to live, or it may be that he's died and."

"That Ruth's dead, too," I broke in dully, "or driven out into the bitter world by that same brute who drove me there!"

I was destined to learn on my arrival in New York that my stepfather had died over two years ago. Concerning Ruth no one could tell me. Our former home held new tenants. I made countless inquiries and even put advertisements into newspapers. My stepfather had left all his money, I discovered, to the great sum either, to certain relations in Baltimore. These, answering my letters regarding the whereabouts of Ruth, could only tell me that she had left her stepfather a good while before his death, and that they believed some kind of quarrel had caused the separation.

"Some kind of quarrel!" I forlornly mused. "Oh, how horrible to think that the sister I once so dearly cherished may be in want and suffering! But of one thing I am certain. Ruth could never go wrong, no matter what hateful crisis overtook her. She was and will always stay pure and refinement to her finger tips. Our dear dead mother taught her that and gave it to her as well as the strange and sweet sanctity of inheritance."

I wrote to my wife several sad letters, and one was so desperately repentant in its tone that she answered it with a kind of sweet sagacity.

"How do you feel, Frank, that you feel as if you had killed Ruth?" ran her response. "If you want to make my loneliness, which I am trying to bear as bravely as I can, still more distressing to me, you will not write again in a mood both so morbid and so absurd."

That evening, when I dined at the Brunswick with Alec Bradford and John Hathaway, two friends whom I had made in the west, and who were in New York for commercial reasons, far different from my own, I felt far more wretchedly hopeless than I cared to reveal.

At the end of dinner, while we were drinking our coffee and smoking our cigars, Bradford advanced his little theory, born of some conversation we had held about the wickedness and depravity of "darker New York."

"I believe I could do just what you say I can't," came my words after a little flurry of discussion. John Hathaway was rather flushed with champagne. He knocked his fist against the table and said, merrily, yet seriously:

"Make him take your bet, then, Alec. We'll all go 'slumming' together, as they call it."

"The bet," I said, "gives me big odds. Ten dollars from myself to $100 from Alec that nothing will happen to us if I go with both of you wherever you shall direct and in each place make it known that I carry on my person the sum of $5,000!"

"Never mind," laughed Bradford to his breezy, staccato way. "I'll stick to my bet." He turned to Hathaway.

"Jack, you'll hold the stakes?" "Yes, yes," came Jack's reply. "We may all get ourselves murdered, so I propose to raise my courage with a brandy and soda."

While the waiter obeyed his order Hathaway received my $10 and Alec's $100. Then two little paper rolls were constructed, each encased in a green bag. These I was to carry in either of my breast pockets. The season was

June, and the night a bland one; hence neither of us wore an overcoat. When it was arranged, I resumed my argument about the safety of going unprotected into quarters of the lowest classes. But I did not tell why there had lately come upon me this boldness and security. I did not choose openly to avow that in seeking my poor lost sister "everywhere" I had not neglected haunts of poverty and sorrow.

Of course it was all a mad kind of venture. If Bradford and Hathaway had not both been in that devil may care mood which sometimes comes to visitors in a great city after dining rather too well, I would really enough have thrown our whole plan to the winds. But presently we had entered a cab, and in half an hour or so we were over in the east side of the town, among streets many of whose names I had scarcely heard. Then we dismissed our cab and went into a horrid flaring den of a place, with electric lights in its windows and pictures of huge "schooners" from which the tawny beer prodigally overflowed.

"Take nothing but seltzer water," I whispered to Bradford, but he, laughing, refused and called for three glasses of beer.

"Now begin," he rejoined, and in his twinkling eyes I read hints of insubricity by no means pleasant.

"Come," I said, while we were all three sipping our beer in presence of a great, blond, moon-faced barkeeper and watched by a group of shabby loungers, "it's very plain, Bradford, that this whole scheme has been idiotic."

"Aha!" giggled Alec, "you're backing out! I thought you would!" He called for three more glasses of beer, having drank his own, and the barkeeper, with great alacrity, whisked all the glasses away and supplied us with fresh ones.

Hathaway slipped in between Bradford and myself. "Yes, Alec," he anxiously whispered, "Frank is backing out, and very sensibly. The idea of three sane men like ourselves attempting this brazen game of silliness is a different place! We might regret it all our lives. Come, now, let's go up town and call the bet off."

But Bradford tossed his head stubbornly. He was the best fellow in the world at ordinary times, but drink, even in limited supply, had the ugly trick of demoralizing him.

"Not a bit of it," he muttered. "The bet isn't off at all. Frank Amberley's got to begin." Then he loudened his voice so it could be heard in every corner of the big, vulgar, dark tavern.

"How much money, Frank, did you say you had about you tonight?" "Alec," pleaded Hathaway's low voice, "look at that gang of rowdies over there! We'd best all concede that we've behaved like fools. Do pull yourself together, old fellow, and—"

"How much, Frank?" cried Bradford, with an obstinate smile and a saucy shoulder shrug. "Something in his tones challenged my reckless anger. I spoke as loudly as he did and at once began to act out my prearranged part."

"Five thousand dollars," I said. Then from my pocket I drew a roll of sham bank notes and from another the second. "Twenty-five hundred dollars in each of those little packages!" Here I lifted them both and gave to each a little ostentatious flourish. Then I replaced them, adding, still in tones clear and high, "It makes me feel kind of nervous, but still, I don't doubt I'll get home all right."

"Oh, Jack and I will see you safely home!" cried Bradford, with a glance across his shoulder at the listening group of loafers.

Just then something touched my arm. A young woman, who must have entered the place but a few minutes ago, stood at my side. Some trick of the garish light left her face in partial shadow, but I could see that it was very pale and hollow checked as if from want.

"Oh, sir!" she said to me in a trembling voice, "if you've got all that money, perhaps you'll spare me just a few coins! I've never (I swear it to you) been in such a place as this before. But I was so sick that I lost my chance of work in the big shirt factory not far off, and tonight my landlady has turned me into the streets, and, oh, sir—"

"Frank, what's the matter?" flew from Alec Bradford's lips as he saw me reel a little and put my hand dizzily to my head.

"Good God, Ruth! It's you!" I caught her to my breast and showered kisses on her poor wasted face. My two friends got us a carriage before long. I learned afterward that Ruth behaved like the strong, brave little creature she had always been, though the tears streamed down her cheeks, but that I babbled in the silliest way and narrowly escaped being dragged to prison as a disorderly bacchanalian.

Ruth is at home with Clara and myself now, and we are both very happy in her company, though the return of healthful bloom to her cheeks often makes us believe that our admirer out of a half dozen whom we know may soon partially rob us of her.

Bradford would never accept my money, but insisted on calling the bet "off." And, by the way, as he lives not far from our Kansas town, and accompanied me with my sister back into the west, I should not be greatly surprised if—

But perhaps, as their mutual affairs are still quite unsettled, sister Ruth might object to further details on that rather delicate point.—Edgar Fawcett in Once a Week.

GOV. THORNTON TALKS.

He Says that Statehood is an Assured Fact and is Confident that Fort Marcy will Be Re-established.

Gov. Thornton returned last night from Washington, where he has been for several weeks in the interest of statehood, the re-establishment of Fort Marcy and other matters of importance to the people of New Mexico.

He was seen this morning by a representative of the New Mexican and talked very freely and fully as to the purposes of his mission and the results obtained.

"You can say," he said, "that I do not think there is any doubt of our obtaining statehood at the present session of congress. I found the senators on both sides of the chamber and Senator Faulkner, Senator George and other leaders of the Democracy assure me that the bill will be passed promptly on its being reached. The bill is now on the preferred calendar arranged by the Democratic caucus and was to have been taken up immediately following the disposition of the Nicaragua canal bill. There is some disposition to talk the latter measure to death and for that reason the statehood bill has not been considered. It will be reached, however, immediately after the holidays and passed. The president will undoubtedly give it his approval."

FAVORABLE TO STATEHOOD

THE FORT MARCY SITUATION.
"Immediately upon my arrival at Washington I had a talk with the president. He seemed to be in the best of health, statements to the contrary notwithstanding. I presented to him fully the reasons why troops should be sent back to Fort Marcy and he stated that, so far as his opinions on the subject were concerned, he would have no hesitancy in immediately making an order sending troops here. In view of his implicit confidence in Secretary Lamont's judgment, however, he referred me to that official, stating that upon the showing made

HE DID NOT DOUBT that the secretary of war would make the desired move. I then saw Secretary Lamont, had a long talk with him and he expressed himself as entirely favorable to the restoration of troops at the Santa Fe post. He said that it was a subject upon which he would defer largely to Gen. McCook's judgment, however, and suggested that I go to Denver and lay the fact before him. On my way to Denver I met Gen. McCook on his way west, accompanied him as far south as Pueblo, and he promised me that he would use all his influence to have a transfer made. He said that he had

TWO COMPANIES AVAILABLE,
and that with the approval of the Washington authorities he would transfer Col. Bliss with the regiment band and two companies from Fort Bayard to Fort Marcy. While therefore no order has been issued, I am assured at every point that our request is favorably considered. I believe that when Gen. McCook reaches Washington next week the formal order will be issued sending us two companies. At any rate, I feel confident that such an order will come within the next ninety days.

THE RAMONA SCHOOL.
"While I was in Washington, I conferred with the interior department as to the Ramona school situation. I was assured that if the owners of that school's buildings would make to the department a proposition for a lease, the government would, if suitable arrangements are made, establish there a school for Indian girls. A meeting of the University trustees will be held within a few days and I am sure that arrangements can be made by which we will secure for Santa Fe this additional important government institution."

LITTLE LEGISLATION PROBABLE.
Governor Thornton is of the opinion that little legislation will be enacted at the present session of congress. The Republicans, reinforced by eastern Democrats, will block any financial legislation attempted and the senate has already decided not to take up the tariff question; so that the two most important subjects before the country will be left very severely alone. The governor says that the business outlook is improving daily and that all along the route, on his return home, there were constant evidences of rekindled factory fires and improved commercial conditions.

BABY'S BAD ECZEMA

Head one Solid Sore. Itching Awful. Had to Tie His Hands to Cradle. Speedily Cured by Cuticura.

Our little boy broke out on his head with a bad form of eczema, when he was four months old. We tried three doctors, but they did not cure him. We then used your CUTICURA REMEDY, and after using them eleven weeks exactly according to directions, he began to steadily improve, and after the use of them for seven months he was entirely well. When we began using it his head was a solid sore from the crown to his eyebrows. It was also all over his ears, most of his face, and small places on different parts of his body. There were sixteen weeks that he had to keep his hands tied to the cradle and hold them when he was taken up; and had to keep mittens tied on his hands to keep his finger nails out of the sores, as he would scratch if he could in any way get his hands loose. We know your CUTICURA REMEDY cured him. We feel safe in recommending them to others.

Candelario, A. P. Hill and others. Santiago Baca was nominated for justice of the peace and Patrio Sandoval for constable, after which the meeting adjourned. SATURDAY SALAD.

"God Be With You."
BY EDMUND MORTIMER.

"God be with you," sweet, sweet phrase
Much spoken in the older years:
It spread a halo over the days:
So often said in joy and tears:
"God be with you," noblest friend—
You will ideal of my youth.
Your heart be firm unto the end.
Your voice be strong as a sun truth!
* * * * *

"God be with you," gentle maid,
(Our wild love's sun hath never set
In my heart since boyhood's days):
Ah! sweet one, do you love me yet?
"God be with you," dearest one (Almost an angel you're to me,
Your heart ever pulsates to my own,
Through time and through eternity!
"God be with you," false one—
Whose heart is mouldering with deceit:
Whose soul never felt a thrill that's true,
With shameless face and straying feet!
"God be with you," and with all,
Even though you wrong me and betray:
Yes, though on life's hard road you fall:
"God be with you," still I pray.

The entertainment with which Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Hall complimented a number of their friends at the Palace hotel Tuesday night last was one of the most delightful affairs of the season and will be pleasantly remembered for many a day by those who were fortunate enough to be present. Upon their arrival the guests were ushered into the hotel parlors where they were cordially welcomed by Mr. and Mrs. Hall who were assisted in receiving Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Loomis, the parents of the hostess, and Mrs. Hall's vivacious sister, Miss Ina Loomis. An adjournment was then taken to the spacious dining hall of the hotel where dancing and card playing, varied by the enjoyment of refreshments, constituted an evening of pleasure delightful in all its appointments and unique in the unaffected cordiality of its hospitality. The array of toilettes worn by the ladies present was the most elegant seen in Santa Fe in many a day and the scene in the ball room at the height of the dancing hours presented a picture most entrancing in its kaleidoscopic beauty. It was not until long after midnight that those present paid their adieu to the popular host and hostess, carrying with them the pleasant memories which always cluster round an evening of such rare enjoyment. The guests present were: Judge and Mrs. Thomas Smith, Capt. and Mrs. John L. Bullis, Judge and Mrs. A. L. Morrison, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Fiske, Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Sloan, Judge and Mrs. F. M.
