Economy

It is no hardship to look after the cooking when you have all the implements required for culinary operations ready for use. If your list of pots and pans, kettles and cans and other kitchen utensils is incomplete, lose no time in making it complete. A good article will last so much longer than a poor one, that the latter can't be cheap enough to be worth buying. Come to us for the really cheapest hardware, cheap because it's good and therefore durable. It doesn't pay to be buying a pot or pan every day or two in order to have one that's fit for use.

Killed His Partner.

Tatras, Mex., April 19.—Thomas L. Loford, an American civil engineer, was killed west of here a few miles by another American named Gordon, with whom he was making a prospecting trip. Gordon escaped.

Probably He Was Hypnotized.

Fort Wayne, Ind., April 19.—Three months ago, Daniel W. W. Souder, ex-county clerk of Allen county, mysteriously disappeared. Last night a letter was received by his wife from him, dated Cape Town, South Africa. Souder says that his mind was a total blank until he was far out on the ocean, when he recovered his senses. He says he will return by the first steamer, which will probably be in thirty days.

REPUBLICAN PREDICTION.

The Silver Wings Will Sweep the Country—Afrail the Democrats Will Recognize the White Metal.

New York, April 19.—Senator John H. Mitchell, of Oregon, is at the Marlborough hotel. He said: "I am afraid the Democratic party will make concessions to the silver men. If it does, it will be a national convention. If it does, despite all its past mistakes, it will sweep the country. If neither party gives silver the recognition it deserves, a new party will spring up that will sweep the country like wild fire."

No Bloomers Allowed.

Kansas City, Mo., April 19.—An ordinance is to be introduced at the next meeting of the Westport council by Alderman E. H. Wheeler, which will double the wearing of bloomers on the streets of Westport is prohibited. If it does, people live. Bicycling lately has become the rage and within the past few weeks a great many bloomers have been seen there.

Alderman Wheeler is a prominent young physician. It is highly probable that when the ordinance is introduced it will pass. Many of the council members are sticklers for dress, and are decidedly opposed to the bloomer craze.

MINING DECISION.

Justice Brewer Says the Side Line Proposition is Not Covered by Statute.

Washington, D. C., April 19.—The case of the Last Chance Mining company versus the Tyler Mining company, involving property in Idaho, has been decided by the United States supreme court. The case came to this court from the United States circuit court of appeals from the 9th circuit on a motion of a writ of certiorari made by the Last Chance company. The decision of the supreme court reverses the decision and is in the interest of the Last Chance company. The opinion was handed down by Judge Brewer.

The supreme court opinion does not go into the merits of more important questions presented in the case except to point out that, but is confined to the validity of the judgment rendered by the Idaho district court before which the case was first brought.

One of the important questions involved which will probably be brought out in the new trial which has been ordered, and which may ultimately bring the case to the supreme court, is whether the owner of a mine has the right to follow the vein extending downward from the surface to the end line and pass out at a side line. Justice Brewer said this was a question apparently not covered by statute and that he has never been passed upon by the court.

DEAD MEN'S BONES.

Discovery of a Cave Filled with Human Skulls—Solution of a Mystery.

Chilpancingo, state of Guerrero, Mex. April 19.—A sheep herder named Antonio Vincent has discovered in a cave near the village of Quechultenango over 100 skulls piled with other bones into a heap. The cave is near the highway from the city of Mexico, at Acapulco, on the Pacific coast. One story is that in the 80's bandits, led by the noted revolutionary Juan Varona, attacked a richly laden train of wagons heavily guarded. Strangely enough diligent search revealed no trace of the victims. This discovery seems to unravel the mystery of their disappearance and of other caravans.

THE WORK OF THE FLAMES.

Big Blaze in Philadelphia—Great Destruction of Property at Ardmore—Loss of Life.

Philadelphia, April 19.—The fire which broke out at 2 o'clock this morning in a building occupied by the New York Biscuit company, on North Front street, caused $300,000 damages. The side wall of the burning bakery fell in and several firemen were seriously injured. William Sergeant, of engine company No. 32, died of his injuries.

YARD DESTRUCTION OF PROPERTY.
Ardmore, I. T.—The main business portion of Ardmore, six solid blocks on Ochoa street, burned this morning. Sixty business houses were entirely destroyed. The loss is $650,000. The United States court house and jail were destroyed. The prisoners are corraled in the Baptist church. Part of the records of the court and mortgages on file were destroyed. The Masonic lodge, in its building, is in ruins. The fire is camped in the streets. Mr. Neill was burned so badly on the face, neck and breast that he can not recover.

BLOOD-STAINED CHURCH.

More About the Shocking Double Tragedy in a San Francisco Church.

San Francisco, April 19.—Doubt as to the guilt of W. H. J. Durant, the medical student accused formally of killing Miss Williams and suspected of having slain Miss Lamont, is freely expressed. There has been an undercurrent of opinion, which was expressed in a statement to the newspaper by the mother of the accused man, and also has been boldly stated in anonymous letters to the coroner, that the actions of the pastor, Rev. John George Gibson, have been so peculiar that the police might do well to turn their searchlight on him. He stated that the reason he had not visited Durant in prison was because of the infamous state of public opinion. In spite of these expressed suspicions against the preacher, it is almost beyond doubt that he is not in any manner implicated, as his whereabouts at the time Miss Williams is supposed to have been murdered are known. If it should be proved that Miss Williams was not killed until midnight, instead of between 8 and 9 o'clock, then there might be grounds for the suspicion raised by many people. The inquest was resumed this morning. One of the witnesses before the coroner's jury was Elmer Wolf, an intimate friend of Durant. Wolf was in the neighborhood of Emanuel church on the night Miss Williams was murdered and claims to have seen Durant within a block of the edifice as he went home. Popular sentiment favors razing the church, which has always been under a cloud. Stains of human blood mark its history. One pastor killed a newspaper proprietor and another blew out his brains.

Later—the coroner's jury has found Durant guilty of the murder of Miss Williams.

Denver Murder Trial.
Denver, April 19.—The jury for the trial of Richard Demany, for the murder of Lena Tapper, was completed this forenoon. Laura Johnson, of Albuquerque, is in the city and will be called on as a witness for the state.

IN JAPAN'S CLUTCHES.

A Treaty that Was Manifestly Dictated by the Triumphant Japs.

Yokohama, April 19.—This Nichinichi to-day publishes the terms of the treaty of peace concluded between China and Japan. The new details furnished are that the indemnity is payable in seven years with interest at 5 per cent, but, if the amount, 200,000,000 taels, is paid in three years no interest will be demanded. Japan is also entitled, under the treaty, to the most favored national treatment, and has the right to navigate the Chung King, Foo Chow and Hong Kong rivers, to import goods of certain grades and machinery free of duty and to establish factories. A new treaty of commerce is to be concluded, to be based on the existing treaties with foreign powers. China is to comply with the customs laws of Japan, and part of the expenses of the occupation of Wei Hai Wei and Port Arthur by the Japanese troops are to be borne by China.

BRUTALLY ASSAULTED.

Aged Mother of the Late Charles Parrell Found Bleeding and Unconscious.

Bordentown, N. J., April 19.—Mrs. Dilla T. Parrell, mother of the late Charles Stewart Parrell, who lives at Ironides overlooking the Delaware river near here, was found bleeding and unconscious late last night by Charles Casey, son of a farmer. Mrs. Parrell lay beside the fence with her face covered with blood. By her side were two pieces of board, a piece of fence paling about three feet long and a brick. Help was obtained and she was carried to the house of Farmer Casey. W. H. Shippe was hastily summoned, made examination and found that, besides several bruises about the face, the woman had a lacerated wound on the right side of her head. Mrs. Parrell is unconscious and because of advanced age her condition is regarded as critical. The authorities are unable to determine whether she was assaulted or fell and received injuries. Her hand bag was found alongside the railroad track near by with the pocketbook missing and papers scattered in all directions. This circumstance lends probability to the theory that she was brutally assaulted and robbed.

UNCONSCIOUS AT NOON.
At noon Mrs. Parrell still lies in an unconscious condition. The authorities are convinced that she was assaulted and robbed and have sent telegrams to all the near by towns asking that a lookout be kept for a man of medium height, with a smooth face, wearing a light overcoat and Derby hat, who was seen in the vicinity about the time the assault is supposed to have been committed.

THE COCHITI COUNTRY.

Some Description. Geological and Otherwise, of the Great Ore Bodies Already Opened.

Correspondence New Mexican.

Blind City, thirty-five miles west of Santa Fe, April 17.—The ore-bearing porphyritic rocks of various types show up here miles in extent, forming high mountain peaks and ridges, cut deep in various directions by canons and gorges, formed by the recent erosion of the softer parts of these rocks by flood waters and streams. Prior to the erosion that formed these canons in some places, by volcanic action, great breaks occur, opening deep crevices into the interior of the earth through these upper ore-bearing rocks. Through these crevices vast masses of molten volcanic rock matter is pushed up, and, in places, overflows and covers the porphyritic rock with a capping, where it is solidified and now appears in the form of non-ore-bearing rock of a volcanic-basaltic character. It was probably during this secondary upheaval of these volcanic rocks that the rents and great crevices were formed caused by earthquake motions; they now appear in the older porphyritic rocks which were ore-bearing.

These crevices broke through the porphyritic rock in a northerly and southerly direction and now appear as true fissure ore-bearing mining veins. The vein filling of these fissures, or earthquake formed cracks, must have been derived from the surrounding rocks through the action of very hot waters which dissolve a very large percentage of silica together with the ores of gold, silver and other rock material which, while in solution, were carried by the water into these veins or crevices and there left to harden and crystallize into the form of vein matter now to be seen after the water evaporated.

If these facts briefly presented are true, then it is safe to conclude that the veins, whether barren or rich in ores, go deep into the earth, and are true fissures of great extent instead of surface contraction cracks or shattered cracks in the rocks of slight extent and depth.

Now, let us see what the facts present, so far as development has gone in on some of the principal veins and prospects, and those also that can be determined by nature's digging through the erosion by water hundreds of feet deep down across some of these veins to the bottom of the deepest canons. Some of the principal veins show their vein ore-bearing matter cropping boldly in places, one, two and three miles in length, north and south, the vein matter being largely hard, whitish, crystalline quartz, in which the valuable ores are disseminated. This was not so easily attacked by the elements and eroded away as was the softer country rock on either side. So in some places it stands out in ridges ten or fifteen feet above the enclosing walls and from ten to fifteen or more feet in thickness.

This vein matter, some times, in places, reaches a width between its walls of from thirty to forty feet.

The pay ores so far as development shows on the surface, and in the Crown Point, Lone Star, Washington Albermarle and other prominent prospects is irregularly distributed throughout the quartz and other gangue matter of the veins. In places it is found well concentrated and in others thin or lean.

Enough work has been done to prove that the rich ores are continuous, amply rich and abundant enough, in proportion to the whole of the vein matter that must be moved during the exploring work, to warrant rich returns for the most extensive development.

Smelter returns show a general average of 25 to 35 per cent gold, the balance silver. Specimen assay samples have run very high, but the average smelter returns so far, for assorted ores shipped, appears to be from $80 to $100 per ton; ores taken out of all of the principal prospects ranging from $20 to $40 per ton are not being shipped at present. Hundreds of tons of such ores can be seen on the dump of the Crown Point, Lone Star and Albermarle, or where much work has been done.

So far as working depth has been reached the combination of the gold and silver ores, with other mineral compounds, makes them better adapted to smelting processes than fine milling, but there are some strong indications that as the tendency of the ores will be to become more concentrated from the balance of the vein matter and also toward a free milling character.

In the lower workings of the Lone Star I found, by panning, an average of more than twice as much free gold from specimens than from the upper ones, over 160 feet above.

In the Albermarle, which shows to have been dug down by nature to the bottom of a canon, 300 feet at least, below the workings of the Lone Star, I panned free gold, which ran high, from all parts of the vein matter.

The Albermarle is one of the largest veins, two and a half miles south of the Lone Star, and its vein matter crops out at that point fifteen feet above its wall rocks, and is fourteen feet thick.

The Washington is another location on one of these great veins and at the point where I found work was being done the ore seemed to be much more evenly distributed throughout the entire vein matter than it was in some of the others so far.

amounts extracted as exploration progresses. In any event it is safe to state to the world that New Mexico has a mining camp in the Cochiti mountains that will prove in the years to come as durable and profitably productive as any one that has yet been found in any state or territory in the Rocky mountains.

FRIDAY, APRIL 19.

'Rah for silver!

While beef goes up, beer continues to go down, as usual.

The white metal is growing in popular favor the world over.

Blind and the silver wing of the Democratic party refuse to "lay down." 'Tis well!

There are over 2,000 anonymous babies in Massachusetts and the creation of a state baby bureau is talked of.

SENATOR ELKINS declares that he favors free silver, but is suspiciously non-committal as to the vital question of ratio.

If Judge Laughlin's court keeps up its present gait to the end a record will have been made the like of which was never before scored in New Mexico.

Of the sixty-seven Democratic members of the Illinois legislature only four are against the free and unlimited coinage of the shining silver dollar of our "daddies."

The west has taken its political medicine for the last time. Henceforth the national conventions will have to hearken to the voice of the people as piped by western men.

The courts of New Mexico are doing nobly in dealing out justice. So are the juries, let it be remembered. The right kind of men are occupying the judicial positions these days.

The whole country can join Illinois people in congratulations over the signal defeat that came to the A. P. A. in the municipal elections in many towns in that state on Tuesday last. Illinois is getting ripe for Democracy and silver in 1896.

The picture of Dr. Nansen, the Arctic explorer who professes to have hoisted the Norwegian flag on the North pole, strongly resembles the snow man exhibited at the St. Paul, Minn., winter palace a few years ago. Rather proper, considering the doctor's occupation.

The world is certainly moving. Mails from Queenstown to New York in less than five and a half days are calculated to make old Father Knickerbocker open wide his half closed eyes. The steamer Luennia, which is due to arrive at New York to-morrow, is expected to make this record.

Gov. ALTREUD, of Illinois, has the supreme court decision on the income tax question down all right enough, but he is somewhat in error as to his biblical quotations. The idea he intended to convey was doubtless grasped by the average reader, but the exact wording of the latter part of his quotation should have read: "And from him that hath not shall be taken away even that which seemeth to have." It's quite so.

THIS IS BUSINESS.

The advertising columns of a paper are an infallible gauge of the enterprise of the town in which the paper is published.

The New Mexican is an elegant paper—an honor to Santa Fe, and a factor in its development more potent for good than all others combined; yet its advertising patronage is the most beggarly in the territory.—Las Vegas Optic, April 12, 1895.

SILVER WINGS ON TOP.

The fact that sound money, which, out west, means the free and unlimited coinage of gold and silver, is to be the chief issue in the next presidential campaign, with tariff reform a strong second, has served to cause dismay among Republicans. They have done their level best to keep down the currency proposition; the gold standard is good enough for them; hence they cannot see the use of considering the money question an issue at all. But the silver wing of the Democratic party, backed up by the masses of the people, have willed it otherwise. As events have now shaped themselves the Republican party will not be in it in 1896 if it continues to adhere to its determination, so vigorously set out by its leaders up to the present time, to ignore entirely the silver question for that of the tariff.

PATIENT AND PROSPEROUS MORMONS.

Whatever may be said or thought of the peculiar religious practices of the Mormons, andor constrains the admission that they are among the most in-

Scrofula Miss Della Stevens, of Boston, Mass., writes: "I have always suffered from hereditary Scrofula, for which I tried various remedies, and many reliable physicians, but none relieved me. After taking six bottles of SWIFT'S I am now well. I am very grateful to you as I feel that it saved me from a life of agony, and I shall take pleasure in speaking only words of praise for the wonderful medicine, and in recommending it to all."

destructious and thrifty people upon whom the sun shines. Better than almost any other class of people they seem able to make fragrant and fruitful the waste places of the earth. We read that in the olden time Moses smote the rock in Horeb and water gushed forth. The Mormons have performed no miracles of this kind, but they have certainly done wonders in the way of watering and rendering richly productive the most unpromising lands. They easily lead in the art of reclaiming arid acres by systematic irrigation and patient cultivation. This is proved by the results of their labors in Utah, Arizona, southern Colorado and even at Espanola in this county. Still another notable example may be cited. In 1887 about fifty Mormon families settled on barren and neglected lands in Old Mexico, south of Deming, and, after a long hand to hand conflict with discouragements that would have disheartened most people, are now reaping the rewards of their hard labor. The number of colonists has increased to between 3,000 and 4,000 people and plenty is now being produced for the use of the colonies and considerable for sale. Hundreds of acres of well-tilled lands are planted in grains, fruits, vegetables and cana agria; over 1,000 more fine fruit trees were set out this spring; four flour mills, a canning factory, a furniture factory, a shoe factory and a tannery have been erected and arrangements are making for the construction of a cana agria extract factory besides many other new buildings; good public schools have been provided; and, on the whole, having secured plenty of water and built an efficient system of ditches wherewith to irrigate naturally fertile lands, the future of the colonists appears very bright. A careful study of Mormon methods, Mormon enterprise and Mormon industry is respectfully commended to a good many people in sunny New Mexico.

PRESS COMMENTS.

A Long-Horned Tale Exploded.

Sec. Morton is very anxious to find out what is the matter with the price of beef. If he will come out to New Mexico it will not take him long to learn. The cattle "went up" some years ago, and it is not strange that the price should go up now. The only wonder is that it did not advance long ago.—Albuquerque Democrat.

Well, She's Stalking.

The New Mexican remarks that "Justice is stalking about New Mexico with both eyes wide open these days." It is high time that justice should make her appearance in New Mexico, and if the number of convictions which have been had in the courts within the past month are any indication that justice is here, her coming will be welcomed by all of the good citizens of the territory. The doors of the penitentiary ought to close on many of the citizens of this territory who are now enjoying their freedom, and it is sincerely to be hoped that violators of the law will get their just deserts.—Silver City Eagle.

That Alleged New Forage Plant.

Interest in the new forage plant, seceline, continues to increase and experiments are being made with seed all over the United States. The Headlight has previously stated its wonderful value as a forage plant for the plains but it has also developed a commercial value. A recent experiment in one of the large French paper factories demonstrated that the stems and leaves could be macerated and used to advantage as a paper pulp. It is also a good vegetable. The numerous fine asparagus-like shoots that are constantly being put forth are full, tender, and of a delicious slightly acid taste. These qualities in themselves are sufficient to make the average person desirous of possessing a new fodder plant, but when it comes to its producing power any intelligent being can understand why the seceline craze is sweeping the pastoral world. It attains a height of twelve to fourteen feet in five months, and after the second year will bear four cuttings annually. It will produce from forty-eight to eighty-eight pounds of green fodder per square yard, or ninety to 180 tons per acre.—Deming Headlight.

The PECOS VALLEY of NEW MEXICO

OFFERS unequal advantages to the farmer, fruit grower, live stock raiser, dairyman, bee-keeper, and to the home-seeker generally.

The soil of the Pecos Valley is of high average fertility, and under irrigation produces bountiful crops of most of the grasses, grains, vegetables, berries and fruits of the temperate and some of those of the semi-tropical zone. In such fruit as the peach, pear, plum, grape, prune, apricot, nectarine, cherry, quince, etc., the Valley will dispute for the pre-eminence with California; while competent authority pronounces its upper portions in particular the finest apple country in the world.

Enormous yields of such forage crops as alfalfa, sorghum and Egyptian corn make the feeding of cattle and sheep and the raising and fattening of hogs a very profitable occupation.

The cultivation of canna—a tanning material of great value—is becoming an important industry in the Pecos Valley, a home market having been afforded for all that can be raised, at a price yielding a high profit.

The climate of the Pecos Valley has no superior in the United States, being pre-eminently healthful and health restoring.

Lands with perpetual water-rights are for sale at low prices and on easy terms. The water supply of the Pecos Valley has no equal in all the arid region for constancy and reliability; and this with the superb climate, productive soil and the facilities afforded by the railway which extends through the Valley's entire length, will cause these lands to enjoy a constant, and at times rapid, increase in value.

The recent completion of the Pecos Valley Railway to Roswell will cause the more rapid settlement and development of the upper portions of the Valley, including the rich Feliz section. The company has recently purchased many of the older improved farms about Roswell, and has now for sale lands to meet the wants of all—raw lands, partially improved lands, as well as farms with houses, orchards and fields of alfalfa and other crops. In the vicinity of Roswell several pieces of land have been divided into five and ten acre tracts, suitable for orchards and truck farms in connection with suburban houses. Certain of these tracts are being planted to orchards, and will be cultivated and cared for by the company for three years at the end of which period they will be handed over to the purchasers. Scott's Emulsion will cure a stubborn cough when all the ordinary cough remedies have failed. Try it for yourself. We are putting up a fifty-cent size chiefly for the purpose. A cough is usually the telltale of a weakened physical condition. Correct that condition by the use of a proper remedy and the cough will soon disappear.

Scott's Emulsion of Cod-liver Oil and Hypophosphites acts in two ways. It nourishes, strengthens and builds up the system, at the same time allays the irritation and heals the inflammation. It gives immediate relief at night from the choking sensation so often accompanying a cold.

Don't be persuaded to take a substitute!

The Last People on Earth.

To reasonably expect relief are they who are continually dosing themselves with calomel, blue pill, podophyllin and other drastic cathartics. Constipation can not be permanently overcome by such violent disturbers of the bowels, stomach and liver. They inflict more harm than they temporarily relieve. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is a safe and effective substitute for such harmful drugs. The effect of this medicine is easy and natural, and is not accompanied—as in the case of strong purgatives—with griping and abrupt operation. Malaria, dyspepsia, biliousness, sick headache, heartburn, kidney trouble, rheumatism and nervousness are entirely and promptly removed by this excellent remedy, commended by physicians everywhere.

The fashions come, the fashions go;
The old ones make us smile.
But what can come, we'd like to know,
With bloomers out of style?

Frank Shephardson, an engineer on the Southern Pacific Ry., who resides at Los Angeles, Cal., was troubled with rheumatism for a long time. He was treated by several physicians, also visited the hot springs, but received no permanent relief until he used Chamberlain's Pain Balm. He says it is the best medicine in the world for rheumatism. For sale by A. C. Ireland, Jr.

The winter ball is over,
Another takes its place;
And soon we shall discover
The only ball is base.

Persons who are subject to attacks of bilious colic will be pleased to know that prompt relief may be had by taking Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. It acts quickly and can always be depended upon. In many cases the attack may be prevented by taking this remedy as soon as the first indication of the disease appears. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by A. C. Ireland, Jr.

In the ways of industry and fame;
She'll never, never learn just when "We take pleasure in recommending Chamberlain's Cough Remedy because it is praised by all who try it," says J. W. Cox & Son, druggists, Marshfield, Oregon. No one afflicted with a throat or lung trouble can use this remedy without praising it. It always gives prompt relief. It is especially valuable for colds as it relieves the lungs, makes breathing easier and aids expectoration. A cold will never result in pneumonia when this remedy is taken and reasonable care exercised. For sale by A. C. Ireland, Jr.

FAILURE.

To one who learns there comes no greater strength
Than that which comes through failure. This I know—
That while success forever proves our loss,
Failure has pointed with unerring hand
To some still grander failure. Thus my soul
Has had no chance to fold its weary wings
And rest in apathetic victory.

And still the purpose of an earnest mind
Does reach fruition every day and hour.
But, it makes failure as it goes.
It fails, but counts its failures as success,
And in a world on fire, on fire itself,
Still feels the breathing of a deep content.
—Helen Williams.

A CASUIST.

The circumstances that led to Ernest Marsden's withdrawal from London have never been properly explained. His disappearance excited some comment, for, although Marsden was by profession a subordinate, it had been his habit to occupy positions of direction in his spare time as relaxation from his more serious toil. He was a well known political organizer and speaker as well as an occasional contributor upon economic questions to the monthly reviews. By day he was employed at an office in Cornhill. It was there that I made his acquaintance. Our duties brought us a good deal together, and a considerable intimacy sprang up between us. Marsden's relations were all dead, and he was once good enough to say that I was the only friend he possessed in the whole world.

Things were in this condition when I called one night at my employer's private house on a business matter that had been overlooked. I was shown into the drawing room. From an adjoining apartment I could hear at intervals the voices of two men in violent altercation. After a time Mr. Henderson appeared in the drawing room and asked me to accompany him into the other room. Ernest Marsden, the only occupant, received me with a grateful smile.

"I have asked you to take part in this conversation," said my employer, "because I believe you to be a friend of Mr. Marsden's and likely to advise him helpfully at a very critical moment in his career. You were away this afternoon from the office and are therefore ignorant of what has occurred. I have been robbed, and your friend is the only possible culprit. At half past 13 today an amount of £60 was paid to me personally in gold and notes. Before going out I looked it up in the safe in my private room, a safe to which you and Mr. Marsden have the only other keys. Mr. Marsden, whom I left at work in my room, went out about ten minutes later. I am assured by the clerks in the outer office that no one else entered the room during my absence. I returned in half an hour. The safe was locked, but when I opened it I found that the gold (£40) had disappeared. I have told Mr. Marsden that if he will make a clean breast of everything and restore the money he may retire from my employment quietly and without scandal."

This statement upset me a good deal. I hoped, of course, that my friend could clear himself of the accusation. My own position in the matter was none too pleasant. Although I had had leave of absence for the day, I had been obliged to come back for my purse, which, by a strange oversight, I had left in the pocket of my office jacket. Unfortunately I had returned to the office about 12:30 o'clock. Finding the door of Mr. Henderson's sanctum unlocked—the door, I mean, opening directly into the passage—I had slipped in and out without apparently being noticed. Mr. Marsden, however, had met me upon the stairs. To make things more ugly, I had that very day come into the possession of a sum of money under circumstances that could not have been made public. To my great relief, Marsden made no reference to our meeting, although aware, no doubt, of the effect it would have in diverting suspicion from himself.

The scene that followed was a very painful one. Marsden insisted upon his innocence, and bitter speeches passed on both sides. I fancied at one time during a lull in the storm that I caught the sound of some one weeping in the next room. The conference broke up, having come to no conclusion. Mr. Henderson, whom contradiction always lashed into a fury, followed Marsden into the hall, threatening him with exposure and imprisonment. Suddenly the drawing room door burst open, and a tall, proud looking girl swept into the hall. I will not attempt to repeat verbatim what she said. Some of it has escaped me, and the rest, without her dark eyes and impassioned bearing, seems ordinary enough. Marsden had proposed to her a year previously and had been refused. His constancy in the face of every discouragement had touched her deeply, and lately she had come to realize that her feelings toward him were completely changed. Under ordinary circumstances she would have waited for him to address her again. Of his continual devotion he had given her many eloquent, if silent, demonstrations, and now that his fortunes were at their lowest she asked as a favor to be allowed to stand by his side and to fight his battles against all the world. At the end of this speech, which was delivered with an inconceivable elevation of manner, the girl would have flung herself upon her lover's breast, but he repulsed her with a strange gesture. "Don't touch me, Lucy!" he cried passionately. "I stole it."

Two hours later I went round to Marsden's lodgings, for, in spite of his confession, I felt sure that my friend was not guilty of this base thing. I found him busily engaged putting his belongings together.

"I am glad you have come," he said after an embarrassing silence. "Other people may think what they like, but I could not bear that you should consider me a thief."

Twelve months before he had made Miss Henderson an offer of marriage under the impression that the girl was madly devoted to him. Whether he loved her or was not at that time sure. Within a week of his rejection—he had been refused—she knew for certain that he did not. After that he had met Lucy Henderson frequently and had found the mixture of friendliness and pity with which she treated him exactly to his fancy. He knew that the girl thought she had darkened his existence forever, and he had encouraged her in this notion. He felt that he was acting the part of a glorified Major Dobbin and playing it uncommonly well. On one occasion he had sung "The Devout Lover" in her presence with so much feeling as to have affected even himself. That he was doing a great evil by this posing he had never reflected. He had not even dreamed that Miss Henderson's feelings toward him were undergoing any change. When she had proclaimed her love for him that night, he had been for a second dizzy at the charm that had opened before him. "And now you know," he concluded, "why I confessed to the robbery."

"But what the devil has all this to do with it?" I replied angrily.

"What would you have done in my place?"

"I—I—progress was by no means rapid—"I suppose you couldn't have told her straight out that you no longer love her?"

"Insult her at the moment she was standing up for me so magnificently?" "Well, then, have married her?"

"Quite out of the question. Impossible!"

"As it is," he said, "the connection has been severed, and her maidenly pride has not been wounded. As for me, I can go to another town and start afresh. Henderson has accepted the £10 I have sent him, and you, he and his daughter are all who will know anything of this affair."

I took up my hat to leave.

"You won't let this interfere with our friendship," said Marsden, holding out his hand.

"Ernest Marsden," I replied, "you are either the greatest saint in creation or the meanest hound. I will write to you when I ascertain which."

Since then Marsden has written to me once or twice, but I have never replied to him. I cannot make up my mind about his behavior. That he was wrong to have followed Miss Henderson when he knew that he did not love her is beyond question. This being so, it is clear to me sometimes that he ought to have married her, and his subsequent conduct appears mean beyond credence. To escape an unpleasant duty he dishonored his own name. At other times it is equally obvious to me that he ought not to have married her—a return of her affection was not to be expected—and he chose a quixotically heroic method of sparing herself pride. As I have said, I am as far from a decision as ever, and all this while Marsden, my old chum, is suffering acutely from my neglect.

There is one question that demands an answer. How was it that, in spite of his confession, I at no time believed in my friend's guilt?

I had stolen the money myself.—London Sketch.

Code of Elephantine Manners.

The following incident may prove instructive to some of your numerous readers, illustrating the power of memory in the matter of instruction in the code of elephantine manners. While visiting the zoo some time ago I took my children to see the elephant and to give them a ride. After the ride I wanted to give the elephant a bun, and to make him say "Please" and "Salutemur kum." I, of course, a salutation. The animal looked at me hard for some time, with the lion in his hand. At last memory came to his aid, and he went up to me, and he made a most correct "salutemur kum." The keeper seemed very much surprised and asked me what it meant. I told him it was a point of good manners for an elephant to raise his trunk up to feed him, and that frequently elephants will ask in this polite manner for something when they see any one pass by who is likely to feed them. The keeper assured me he had never seen the elephant do this before, and if I remember rightly he had been in charge of the animal since it arrived from India, and that it was one of those which took part in the grand procession to Agra when his royal highness the Prince of Wales visited India, and where I doubtless saw it. For 17 years this animal had never heard these words.—London Times.

Courtesies of Courage.

There are curious subdivisions both of moral and physical courage. Marshal Saxe, the victor of Philippsburg and Fontenoy, had an absurd fear of assassination, and in his fortified palace of Chambord kept two constables for the purpose of scrutinizing every unknown visitor. The Duke of Alva got nervous at the mere sight of a dog, and during his residence at Ghent ordered his guards to shoot every unmuzzled specimen of the omnivorous quadruped. There are men whose actions defy the wrath of public opinion, but who turn pale with thought of seeing their names in the local newspapers, and others who advance fearlessly to the brink of a precipice, but shudder at the sight of a spider.—Lippincott's.

Failed to Live Up to It.

One of the managers of a home for destitute colored children tells a funny story about the institution. She went out there to see how things were getting along and found a youngster as black as the inside of a coal mine tied to a bedpost, with his hands behind him.

"What is that boy tied up there for?" she demanded of the attendant.

"For lying, ma'am. He is the worstest, lyin' nigger I ever seen."

"What's his name?"

"George Washington, ma'am," was the paralyzing reply.—Chicago Record.

You Don't Have to Swear Off.

Says the St. Louis Journal of Agriculture in an editorial about No-To-Bac, the famous tobacco habit cure: "We know of many cases cured by No-To-Bac, one of the prominent St. Louis architects, smoked and chewed for twenty years; two boxes cured him so that even the smell of tobacco makes him sick." No-To-Bac sold and guaranteed by Geo. W. Hickox & Co. No cure no pay. Book free. Sterling Remedy Co., New York or Chicago.

WOMEN'S FACES
—like flowers, fade and wither with time, the bloom of the rose is only known to the healthy woman's cheeks. The nervous strain caused by the ailments and pains peculiar to the sex, and the labor and worry of rearing a family, can often be traced by the lines in the woman's face. Dull eyes, the yellow or wrinkled face and those "feelings of weakness" have their rise in the derangements and irregularities peculiar to women. The functional derangements, painful disorders, and chronic weaknesses of women, can be cured with Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. For the young girl just entering womanhood, for the mother and those about to become mothers, and later in "the change of life," the "Prescription" is just what they need; it aids nature in preparing the system for the change. It is a medicine prescribed for thirty years in the diseases of women, by Dr. R. V. Pierce, chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription will cure the chronic inflammation of the lining membranes which cause such exhausting drains upon the system. It cures nervous prostration, sleeplessness, faintness, nervous debility and all disorders arising from derangement of the female organs and functions.

Mrs. JENNIE WILLIAMS, of Mohawk, Lane Co., Oregon, writes: "I was sick for over three years with blind dizziness, palpitation of the heart, pain in the head and back, and at times would have such a weak tired feeling when I first got up in the morning, and at times nervous spells. The physicians differed as to what my ailment was, and some of them did me any good. As soon as I commenced taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, I began to get better, and had nervous feeling and the pain in my back soon left me. I can walk several miles without getting tired. I took in all three bottles of 'Prescription' and 'twice I discovered' it."

Duke—Your friend Northside used to be an inveterate boaster about the amount of money he made, but I hear nothing from him now on that point. Has he met with reverse?

Gaswell—Not at all. The income tax gatherer is abroad in the land.

A PERFECT CURE.

When Sophonisba Clara Clark became emancipated, her friends and her relations were extremely excited.

They were kindly hearted people, but old-fashioned and precise. So they called the local doctor in and asked for his advice.

The local doctor pursed his lips, a learned man was he. And said: "About this new disease physicians disagree. It is a mental aberration of a temporary kind. And has a most remarkable effect upon the mind."

"It leads the young and beautiful, I much regret to say, to frequently behave in an extraordinary way. The imitative faculties it greatly serves to fan. The brightest maiden imitates the feeblest kind of man."

"With cigarette in mouth about the smoking room she'll hang; She develops an objectionable taste for current slang. But in your daughter's case I'd not despair if I were you. I will nurse her up a mixture which I hope will pull her through."

Sophonisba took the mixture; but, as one might well expect, Upon her state of mind it didn't have the least effect. And day by day she filled her loving parents' hearts with ire.

Till one morning she to breakfast came in masculine attire. The last straw broke the camel's back! The trodden worm will turn! And Sophonisba's father with hot rage began to lunge at her.

So bitter were the words that fell on Sophonisba's ears They left her, 'spite her manly garb, in wounded woman's tears.

But though her worthy father 'gainst her pre-dilections raged, She had some one to defend her—Sophonisba was engaged! Charlie Tomkinson, her lover, over fondly took her part.

But Charlie had not lost his head, although he'd lost his heart. He saw that Sophonisba was mistaken in her ways. But he saw that opposition would but aggravate her craze.

So, being a remarkably ingenious young man, He thought the matter over till he hit upon a plan. One day fair Sophonisba sat beside a pleasant fire, Awaiting Charlie Tomkinson, in masculine attire.

A knock! "Twice he. She heard his step, and then to her amazement A vision weird and wonderful appeared before her gaze.

'Twas Charlie doubtless, but—oh, no, it surely could not be! For he would never dress with so much eccentricity. He had ribbons on his waistcoat, he had flounces on his coat. He had earrings in his ears, and he'd a neck-lace round his throat.

Above each high heeled shoe he wore appeared a factor spat! He'd a muff with bugle trimming, he'd a feather in his hat. "Speak, speak!" cried Sophonisba. "Say, oh, Charlie, is it you?"

"But why," she cried, "pray tell me why this singular array? Why have you put on fancy dress so early in the day?"

"My darling," murmured Charlie, "'tis a love of something new. You've become emancipated; I'm emancipated too!"

"So come, my dear, the day is fine; come, give your Charles a treat. I want to see the fashions, love. Let's walk to Regent street."

"No, no!" cried Sophonisba. "Could I stand the people's jeers? I really could not, Charlie, love." Then Charlie burst into tears.

That evening, ere they parted, they'd a confidential chat. She said, "Emancipation seems so spiritless and flat!" He said, "Emancipation seems to me a grave offense!"

Both vowed in future to be led by simple common sense. The Tomkinsons are back in town; the honey-moon is over. I never saw Sophonisba look so beautiful before—

So simply dressed, so ladylike, you'd mark her mid a crowd. And Charlie looked a husband to make any woman proud.

So, parents, when your daughters take to masculine attire, Just think of Charlie's little ruse and muffle up your ire. The treatment may be drastic, but of this you may be sure—

For emancipation madness it will prove a perfect cure. —Exchange.

ASSASSINS OF CHAVES.

Judge Hamilton Will Arrive To-night—Trial To-morrow—Story of the Crime—More Convictions in District Court.

Late last evening Judge Laughlin received a dispatch from Judge Hamilton, dated Socorro, saying that it would be impossible for him to reach Santa Fe in time to begin the trial of the Chaves murder cases this morning, but that he would endeavor to be here to-night and open the trial to-morrow morning. In the interest of all concerned it is certainly to be hoped that Judge Hamilton will not be obliged to disappoint the people of this county, who are weary of bearing the burden incident to these tried cases, and doubtless the accused are tired of their long confinement in the county jail. Below will be found the story of the crime in brief.

About 10 o'clock on the night of May 29, 1892, Francisco Chaves, ex-sheriff of Santa Fe county, was cruelly and in the most cowardly manner assassinated on the south end of the bridge near Guadalupe church; his body was pierced by five bullets, and this fact, together with collateral circumstances, indicated that he was the victim of a conspiracy in which a number of persons were implicated; on the following Thursday night, about 8 o'clock, Juan Pablo Dominguez, jailer under Sheriff Chaves and presumed to know a good deal about the killing of his late chief, was shot three times and almost instantly killed in front of the archbishop's residence; Francisco Gonzales y Borrego, Antonio Gonzales y Borrego and Chino Alarid were arrested for the crime, admitted that they killed Dominguez, but were acquitted on the plea of self defense. Immediately after the bloody events above recorded friends of law and order began a still hunt for evidence that would definitely spot and convict the assassins of Frank Chaves. Naturally the persons who had killed Dominguez were suspected, but evidence was not easily procurable.

SHERIFF CUNNINGHAM AT WORK. Finally, in July, 1893, William P. Cunningham became sheriff by appointment of Gov. Thornton, and, without saying a word to any one except his trusted lieutenants, promptly began a thorough investigation with a view to certainly discovering and bringing to justice the murderers of Chaves. He was confronted by difficulties and discouragements that would have disheartened most men, but he never for a moment abandoned the blood-stained trail. At last his untiring efforts were rewarded. He secured three affidavits and confirmatory verbal evidence giving a detailed statement of the facts connected with the Chaves assassination and the names of the persons implicated therein. Armed with this evidence he felt fully warranted in arresting Francisco Gonzales y Borrego, Antonio Gonzales y Borrego, Chino Alarid, Patricio Valencia, Francisco Rivera and Hipolito Vigil. Accordingly, about 3 o'clock on Tuesday, January 9, 1894, with warrants issued by Judge Seeds, he started out with several deputies to make the arrests. Hipolito Vigil was met in the street near the capitol, refused to hold up his hands when ordered to do so, pulled his gun and fired, presumably at the sheriff. The others returned the fire and Hipolito was killed.

Francisco Gonzales y Borrego, with a regulation 45 calibre Colt's revolver strapped on his person and his pockets full of 45 calibre cartridges, was arrested just as he was coming out of the house of Antonio Ortiz y Salazar, nearly opposite the capitol. He made no resistance. Antonio Gonzales y Borrego, Chino Alarid, and Patricio Valencia were arrested at their respective homes. The former at first refused to come out of his house and threatened resistance, but finally yielded without firing a shot. Francisco Rivera turned state's evidence.

The preliminary examination of the Borrego brothers, Alarid and Valencia took place soon after their arrest, before Judge Seeds, Rivera appearing merely as a witness. The examination occupied the major part of three weeks and was very exhaustive. The testimony taken occupied over twenty columns in the New Mexican. District Attorney Crist and Judge Laughlin conducted the hearing for the territory and Catron & Spiess appeared for the defendants. The trial of the killing of Chaves was established by the testimony of Atillano Gold and others and Dr. Sloan gave expert testimony touching the wounds inflicted upon the deceased. Francisco Rivera and Juan Gallegos gave direct and startling testimony respecting the carefully matured plot to kill Chaves. The defendants and various members of their families were put on the stand in their own behalf and desperate efforts were made to prove alibis, but these efforts were defeated by the testimony of Seferino Alarid and his wife, Nicholas Gutierrez, the wife and sister-in-law of Valencia and other witnesses, which fatally conflicted with the evidence of the defendants.

At the conclusion of the protracted hearing Judge Seeds remanded the defendants to jail without bail awaiting the action of the district court, and they have since been in custody at the Hotel de Cunningham.

MORE CONVICTIONS. In the territorial district court last evening, Marcos Castillo and Ambrosio Ortiz, charged with willfully prohibiting lawful electors from voting a year ago last spring, were found guilty and turned over to the custody of the sheriff. They are now in jail awaiting sentence.

As Judge Hamilton did not materialize, Judge Laughlin decided to take up several petty cases appealed from the local police court. In the case of Meliton Castillo, charged with being drunk and disorderly, the $5 fine of the lower court was increased to $10 and costs. The case of the City vs. Jose Ortiz y Baco, same charge, was taken up just before noon.

ROUND ABOUT TOWN.

A series of old fashioned April showers would be very welcome just at this time. The sky looks promising to-day. The department of New Mexico, G. A. R., covers an area larger than the New England and Middle states combined, and hence it will be difficult for many of the members of the order to be present at the coming encampment on May 3 and 4, but the boys will make up in noise what they lack in numbers.

Charles Burdham, who has been in the employ of the Santa Fe Railroad company for the past fifteen years, is in the city visiting old time friends and is looking carefully after the new water works system with a view of purchasing sufficient land for a truck and fruit ranch.

George Birre, an old time friend of John Gray, is in town after an absence of four years. He is an all round stone cutter and brick mason who knows that the future for Santa Fe means well for skilled men in his line of business. He comes here to stay until the capitol building is rebuilt and will in the meantime figure on several private contracts.

Supt. Connors, of the Postal Telegraph company, left last night for Albuquerque. He said he expected any day now would see commenced the construction of work on a line south from Albuquerque to El Paso to connect with the New Orleans system. Also it is probable that there long a first-class copper wire will be run in from Cerrillos to Santa Fe.

Collector Shannon has recently planted at his own expense twelve choice shade trees on the grounds in front of the federal building and hopes that his requisition for twenty-five more trees will be granted by the authorities at Washington. A number of roses have also been planted and the grounds will be seeded to blue grass. Superintendent Day, of the water company, has agreed to furnish the necessary water for irrigation purposes.

The condition of Mr. W. H. Johnson, colored, who was run over by the cars at Lamy a few weeks ago while on his way to Albuquerque from Santa Fe, is growing worse, and he is likely to succumb to the inevitable before many hours, says the Citizen. The accident happened on March 27, and when brought to this city—to his home on West Lead avenue—he was found to be horribly injured, necessitating the amputation of the left hand, the right leg between the ankle and knee, and a portion of the left foot.

It is probable that the body of Boat-swain John J. Glynn, who died in El Paso three days after his arrival in that city from Santa Fe, will be moved from El Paso to the National cemetery in this city. This would be in accordance with the wish expressed by the deceased during the months he was a health seeker here. He had served seventeen years in the United States navy, and, when appointed, was the youngest boatswain in the service.

Says the Denver News: "Work on the new territorial capitol at Santa Fe has been begun, and is being steadily pushed. When there is a shortage of funds, Hon. A. Stubb, a number of the capitol commission, and for many years a prominent business man of Santa Fe, gives his personal guarantee that the bills will be paid, or puts up the cash, if necessary. Such citizens are rare, but they are worth having." And this is what makes the Albuquerque Citizen and its Santa Fe correspondent very, very angry.

Mr. Daniel Griest, of Ellis, Kas., formerly immigration commissioner for the Union Pacific railroad and a man who has been highly successful in establishing farm colonies throughout the west, arrived in the city last night. He is here to confer with prominent land holders. Mr. Griest thinks the time is ripe for inviting immigration to New Mexico, and he has several important enterprises of this kind in hand. If he were properly approached by parties having authority to speak for both the land and water interests of the Santa Fe valley it is more than probable that an arrangement could be made whereby a number of farmers could be induced to come here and purchase homes. The land and water men ought to hold a conference with him.

St. Michael's college grounds yesterday were again the scene of a well-contested game of baseball between the Pioneers, of the college, and the Indian boys, of the government school, and again did the former players prove themselves invincible, defeating their antagonists by a score in the proportion of 3 to 1, which shows how creditably the work was done by the youthful champions. Keep up your present pace, boys, and your future antagonists will find it difficult to wrest from you the title you are now so gallantly defending. Joe O'Brien, acting as umpire, rendered his decisions with a fairness pleasing to all concerned.

OFFICIAL NOTES.

The plats and field notes of the following confirmed land grants have been approved by the United States court of private land claims and forwarded by Surveyor General Esley to the general land office: The Ojo Caliente grant, in Taos county, 2,418 acres, and the Ojo del Rio grant, in Santa Fe and Bernalillo counties, 68,070.365.

Hall, burglar, gets three years; Urbano Barcia, cattle thief, two years; Sapino Lujan, assassin with intent to murder, one year.

The complete record in the Cochiti grant case went up from the U. S. land court to the clerk of the supreme court some weeks ago and it is understood that the appeal has finally been perfected. The light shaft of good luck has again hit S. M. Folsom, the Albuquerque bank wrecker. The U. S. district court of appeals certified his case up to the U. S. supreme court and a day or two ago. That tribunal advanced it on the docket and directed that it be heard on briefs next October. So Folsom remains out of the pen, on his present bond until that time, at least.

The Optic: "Judge G. D. Bantz, at present presiding over the sittings of the district court in Las Vegas, was formerly connected with the Silver City Sentinel, down the country, and still has a warm spot in his affections for members of the press gang in whom there is no guile." T. E. Mitchell, of Clayton, Union county, has been appointed by the governor, a member of the cattle sanitary board, in the place of R. G. Head, who has resigned from said board.

Said to Have a Prospecting Party in the Field Near White Oaks.

Says the El Paso Times: Mr. W. S. Shepherd, of Tularosa, New Mexico, who is now in the city, informed a Times reporter yesterday that on last Saturday he took lunch at the agency of the Mesquero reservation with Lieutenant Stottler, the agent, and met young Hagerman of the Pecos Valley road, with his chief engineer. "Mr. Hagerman informed me," said Mr. Shepherd, that he was out prospecting for an outlet for his road, through Tularosa, to connect, he said, with the Rock Island road which was going to build through from Liberal, Kansas, to El Paso. He said his engineer had agreed on a feasible route and that in a few days a corps of engineers would be out locating the road."
