of Michigan has organized and is composed of such men as ex-Senator Cassius, of Grand Rapids, Mayor Turner, of Lansing, ex-Congressman Richardson, of Holland, Cyrus Black, ex-Gov. Bruce, Mayor Pingree, of Detroit, gubernatorial Candidate Fisher, and others of both parties, equally well known. The organization is called the 'Honest Dollar low Ozon. They had driven in the river where it was quite shallow and the horses, which were poor and weak, had stalled in the middle of the stream. The river rose suddenly in a solid wall, after the manner of our wild western streams, and engulfed them as were the Egyptians in the Red Sea. The bodies of the men and child have been recovered. Devil's river rose twenty feet in 18 minutes at the Southern Pacific bridge. No such flood has been known since the spring of '78 in Val Verde county.—Del Rio Record.

Santa Fe, New Mexico.

The New Mexican is the oldest newspaper in New Mexico. It is sent to every Post Office in the Territory and has a large and growing circulation among the intelligent and progressive people of the southwest.

THURSDAY, JUNE 13.

We are sorry to observe that the El Paso Herald, the Silver City Eagle and the Socorro Advertiser are developing a first class fit of fustian over the report that Fort Marcy may again be occupied by U. S. troops.

The Republican press now has something to apologize for aside from crime. It is at this time busily engaged in apologizing for the increase in the price of wool and explaining how it comes about that all business is so rapidly improving.

That man Scott, Republican national committeeman from West Virginia, is no slouch on political geography, if he is a little off-color in some respects. He favors Elkins for president and "a way southwestern man for second place." How would Elkins and Prince do for a Republican combination in 1896?

For a time the Recorder was the only outspoken newspaper champion of silver in New York city. It now has an able and fearless ally in the New York Mercury. The splendid service these papers are rendering to the cause of silver in the very midst of the gold standard camp should be duly recognized and rewarded by the people of the west.

Mr. DEXTER is perhaps the happiest after dinner talker in the world; certainly he is America's most popular citizen, but when it comes to the free coinage proposition, isn't he a good deal like the traditional ostrich? He pokes his head in the sand and says there's nobody coming! Wonder if the doctor has heard from Memphis?

It is a singular coincidence that the only three secretaries of state who have died in office, prior to the death of Secretary Gresham, all held the position in John Tyler's cabinet. The most notable of these, Daniel Webster, did not die while he held the position under Tyler, but as secretary of state under Millard Fillmore, another vice president promoted by death to the presidency.

The great drought, which began in Iowa, Nebraska, Wisconsin, eastern Illinois, northern Missouri and southern Minnesota in the mid-summer of 1895, is still practically unbroken. Since that time the average rainfall has been from one-third to one-half less annually than that of the yearly average for the twenty-five preceding seasons. This ought to be a good year to talk irrigation to the thrifty people who live back there.

The latest revised figures on the population of the United States, estimates made by the several governors, place it at 69,171,707. Just two-thirds of these American citizens are represented in the free coinage convention in progress at Memphis to-day. Dr. Dewey, John Sherman and the goldite press of New York and New England may yet reach the conclusion that there is something "serious" about the silver movement.

NORTHERN New Mexico and southeastern Colorado will secure a quick revival of business as a result of the building of the Gulf railroad branch between Trinidad and Walsenburg. This line is now so completely divorced from the Union Pacific that we may reasonably expect it to become an important factor in the development of the southwest. Already there is talk of its going out of a receiver's hands. By extensions of its Catekill line to Raton, Las Vegas and La Belle camp its earning capacity could be greatly enhanced.

A NOTABLE GATHERING.

The free coinage convention which assembled at Memphis yesterday and continues its deliberations to-day is by far the most notable gathering of American citizens that has assembled in a generation. In point of numbers, enthusiasm and earnest patriotism, we doubt if a more important assemblage has been held on American soil since Peyton Randolph presided over the first continental congress. This meeting signifies an epoch in the history of our country. One remarkable feature about it is the number of men of national fame who are to be counted among the 1,500 delegates present. No such set of men, covering so wide a range of country, ever before got together in solemn council to perform a patriotic duty on so short notice. The high character of the delegates is beyond reproach. Outside of Tennessee, Mississippi heads the list of delegates with 200 men; Louisiana follows with 150, and Florida, Virginia, California, Utah, Colorado, New Mexico, Georgia, Kentucky, the Carolinas, Alabama, Montana, Nevada,

Missouri, Illinois, Kansas, Iowa, Indiana and Ohio all have delegations on the floor. What do these people represent and who do they represent? The answer is easy. In the name of two-thirds of the population of the nation they demand that the political power of the government take its hands off of the throats of commerce and industry and get back to true Democratic principles of finance, the unlimited coinage of the money metals of the constitution. Such a demand coming from such a source can not be ignored, the gold trust and all the power of its subsidized press to the contrary notwithstanding.

PRESS COMMENTS.

The Chavez Conspiracy Case.

During the progress of the trial, one paper said:

"It would seem that T. B. Catron is on trial for the murder of Frank Chavez, over in Santa Fe. He has been accused of being connected with a gang of desperadoes, but it is not clear what a 'd-n fool' which he certainly would have been to have had anything to do with the murderous gang whom he is defending in court."

It appears, however, that T. B. Catron did have a great deal to do with that murderous gang. He was a confessed member of the secret society that plotted and compassed the assassination of Frank Chavez, and at his request that same gang of murderous villains accompanied him, armed, to the capitol to "support" him in a contest for a seat in the legislature. Whenever any of the gang committed a murder—and the members of the society committed several—T. B. Catron had this to do with them: He became their bondsman, almoner and attorney, and gave them the support and protection that he bound himself, by oath in a secret meeting, to give. If his newspaper advisers choose to believe that he was a "d-n fool" rather than an accomplice in the crimes of the gang, the choice does more credit to their hearts than to their heads.

If their belief that he was a "d-n fool" needs any confirmation—and we do not dispute them, for we hold it to be demonstrated that no wise man will do evil—let them study attentively the transcript of proceedings in both trials of the Borrego gang, paying particular attention to the cross-examination of the territory's witnesses. They will find that the strongest points against the defendants and most of the inferential evidence against Catron himself was elicited by questions that ordinary prudence and sagacity would have left unasked. Every effort that Catron made to extricate himself from the quicksand of his own folly only sunk him the deeper, and tended to confirm the suspicion that his interest in the case was too profound and vital to be accounted for by professional zeal. Suspicion did we say? Rather the widespread and deep-rooted conviction that the reign of terror, maintained by Borrego and his fellow thugs in Santa Fe, and its origin and support in the evil influence of T. B. Catron and its encouragement in his supposed power and readiness to cast the mantle of his protection about malefactors who were quick to guess his desires and prompt to serve his ends.

It is well that four of the murderers of Frank Chavez have been found guilty by a jury—better than if they had, with foolish physical courage, resisted the officers of the law and been killed like their associate, Vigil. The mere hanging of four takers of human life is of minor importance compared with the moral effect of the fact that T. B. Catron has been unable to give his boasted protection to his followers. The verdict of the jury assures peace and security for life in Santa Fe. It has shattered and cast down the idol of the moral heathen, who call the plotting of "man's business" and deem politics a game to be played with revolver and dagger in the dark. It has announced to the world that the day has departed from New Mexico when men's lives were at the mercy of any scheming scoundrel who had the money and political pull, backed by the conscienceless audacity of a moral idiot, to gather about him a band of reckless killers, human hyenas, ready and more than willing to sneak upon a brave man in the dark or lure him by the most damnable treachery to slaughter. If the verdict has not been placed in the heart of such a man the fear of God, it will infest his dreams with shadows of the scaffold looming before him and the hangman, stalking behind—Las Cruces Independent Democrat.

The Pecos Valley of NEW MEXICO

OFFERS unequaled advantages to the farmer, fruit grower, live stock raiser, dairyman, bee-keeper, and to the home-seeker generally.

The soil of the Pecos Valley is of high average fertility, and under irrigation produces bountiful crops of most of the grasses, grains, vegetables, berries and fruits of the temperate and some of those of the semi-tropical zone. In such fruit as the peach, pear, plum, grape, prune, apricot, nectarine, cherry, quince, etc., the Valley will dispute for the pre-eminence with California; while competent authority pronounces its upper portions in particular the finest apple country in the world.

Enormous yields of such forage crops as alfalfa, sorghum and Egyptian corn make the feeding of cattle and sheep and the raising and fattening of hogs a very profitable occupation.

The cultivation of canebrake—a tanning material of great value—is becoming an important industry in the Pecos Valley, a home market having been afforded for all that can be raised, at a price yielding a handsome profit.

The climate of the Pecos Valley has no superior in the United States, being pre-eminently healthful and health restoring.

Lands with perpetual water-rights are for sale at low prices and on easy terms. The water supply of the Pecos Valley has no equal in all the arid region for constancy and reliability; and this with the superb climate, productive soil and the facilities afforded by the railway which extends through the Valley's entire length, will cause these lands to enjoy a constant, and at times rapid, increase in value.

The recent completion of the Pecos Valley Railway to Roswell will cause the more rapid settlement and development of the upper portions of the Valley, including the rich Felix section. The company has recently purchased many of the older improved farms about Roswell, and has now for sale lands to meet the wants of all—raw lands, partially improved lands, as well as farms with houses, orchards and fields of alfalfa and other crops. In the vicinity of Roswell several pieces of land have been divided into five and ten acre tracts, suitable for orchards and truck farms in connection with suburban homes. Certain of these tracts are being planted to orchards, and will be cultivated and cared for by the company for three years at the end of which period they will be handed over to the purchasers. Write for pamphlet fully describing the terms and conditions on which these several classes of tracts are sold.

Sarah Bernhart's latest fad is to pass the summer in a ruined castle on the coast of Brittany, seeing nobody and living wholly with the barefooted peasant women.

She—What a fine talker your friend is.
He—Yes; he inherited. She—How so?
He—His mother was a woman.

Securely Entrenched
Against disease are those who are prudent enough to renew failing energy by the aid of the grand fortifying agent, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which promotes a vigorous discharge of the duties imposed upon the various organs by nature, and which if impeded or relaxed speedily bring about their disorder. Digestion, assimilation, a due secretion and direction of the bile and a regular habit of body are insured by the systematic use of this safe, prompt and thorough medicine. Chills and fever, bilious remittent, dumb ague and ague cake, kidney complaint, sick headache, nervousness and other inorganic maladies are removed by it. It promotes a relief for the food as well as the ability to digest and assimilate it. The infirmities of declining years are mitigated by it. A wineglassful before retiring promotes health yielding repose.

Alliance, Ohio, boasts an eye-witness of the battle of Waterloo in the person of James R. Green, who loves to tell the story of the great fight to all who care to hear it first hand.

Some time ago I was taken sick with a cramp in the stomach, followed by diarrhoea. I took a couple of doses of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and was immediately relieved. I consider it the best medicine in the market for all such complaints. I have sold the remedy to others and every one who uses it speaks highly of it. J. W. Strickler, Valley Center, Cal. For sale by A. C. Ireland, Jr.

William Black is very fond of yachting, shooting and other outdoor sports. He is exceptionally well posted on botany and always has a pasteboard book full of flowers with him.

Having used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in my family and found it to be a first-class article, I take pleasure in recommending it to my friends. J. V. Foster, Westport, Cal. For sale by A. C. Ireland, Jr.

Rider Haggard considers Jess his most finished novel, on which his fame will be most likely to rest. The heroine of the Transvaal tragedy was a real person and her house is shown to tourists who visit Pretoria.

Invest Your Change.
A silver quarter is about as much as some people care to invest in medicine for immediate use. Spend this sum for a package of Simmons Liver Regulator powder. It is the woman's friend—cures sick headache in the right way, and quickly, too; just as good for billions.

Bell, the telephone inventor, is an enthusiast on sea fishing and has an estate of 15,000 acres on Cape Breton, which he enjoys chiefly for that sport.

A Remarkable Cure of Rheumatism.
Westminster, Cal., March 21, 1894.—Some time ago, on awakening one morning, I found that I had rheumatism in my knee so badly that, as I remarked to my wife, it would be impossible for me to attend to business that day. Remembering that I had some of Chamberlain's Pain Balm in my store I sent for a bottle, and rubbed the afflicted parts thoroughly with it, according to directions, and within an hour I was completely relieved. One application had done the business. It is the best liniment on the market, and I sell it under a positive guarantee. R. T. Harris. For sale by A. C. Ireland, Jr.

THE LATEST LULLABY.

Rock a bye, baby, my little sweet man,
Go to sleep, darling, as fast as you can;
For mother must hasten to don a new gown
And put in her vote for the good of the town.
Your mother's a voter; now, man child, be still,
And hush up your screaming, so piercing and shrill;
For be it known, man child, the time has come
When your mother can vote with the manliest of men.

Now lie where I put you all safe in your bed,
And don't you dare wriggle a hand or a head,
While I go to my new silk and stylish capote.
Oh, man child, the rapture, to cast my first vote.

Mummy is a voter,
A voter proud is she,
And she will cast her ballot
With the foremost of the free,
And a brave and honest voter
Forever she will be!

LIMPY JIM.

The Leadville stage pulled out of Webster station one evening after supper with 12 "pilgrims" for the city in the clouds. Webster was the end of the track, and the route from there to the carbonate camp lay over the summit of Kenosha mountain, through the northern end of the South park and across the famous Red hill, a doubly significant title by reason of the color of the soil and the bloody murders committed there by the Mexican bandits, the Es-pinosos. From Red hill the road again enters the South park, passes through the old town of Fairplay, once bolstered with the gayety of pioneer gold diggers.

Red hill was the danger point on the first division of the road. Near the summit is a little basin, where the road is completely hidden from view on all sides. Little gulches lead up to this spot from the South park, affording every opportunity for road agents to reach the place unseen and to likewise make their escape. "Pilgrims" for Leadville usually were supplied with money, and a great deal of wealth originally intended for investment in the carbonate camp was turned over to gentlemanly persons who encountered the stage in the little basin on Red hill.

The individual who sat on the dusty old Concord coach and pulled the ribbons over six bronchos between Webster and Fairplay was known as Jim. I made his acquaintance while we were at dinner in the rough board "eating house" at Webster. He was a tall, slim, muscular man, with a swarthy complexion, dark eyes and a heavy mustache, black as jet from the copious use of dye. He wore high topped boots, with extremely high heels, and his feet were small and delicately shaped. His trousers were of gorgeous plaid material, but the bottoms were worn inside his boot tops.

A wide brimmed white slouch hat was cocked rakishly on the side of his head. Some garish jewelry adorned the front of his waistcoat. There was a jaunty air about him which was less pronounced by reason of the stiff and awkward way he carried his arms. I attributed this to the natural effect of driving six spirited horses for years over a mountain road.

He had formerly been a gentleman of fortune, and at one time in his career had amassed a considerable sum of money in the game of chance known as draw poker. When he was at the height of his prosperity, another gentleman of fortune, late of Texas, drifted unostentatiously into camp and caused the report to be circulated that he was aching for a game. Jim undertook to relieve the gentleman of the pain he was suffering on that account, and they met in the back room of Uncle Billy Coleman's Palace of Fashion on Main street.

There was a slight controversy in the early part of the game, caused by a remark of Jim's to the effect that "people from Texas seemed to have more luck than a Chinaman."

The gentleman from Texas demurred to this and said there was no such thing as luck in draw poker. The chance features of the game, he said, had all been eliminated by the application of skill and science. He then proceeded to demonstrate his assertion, which he did to perfection. At the end of six hours Jim's earthly possessions consisted of the suit of clothes he was wearing. Everything else he had owned in the world had passed into the hands of the skillful and scientific gentleman from Texas.

The Fairplay gambler arose from the table and relieved himself of some choice profanity, most of which was directed against himself. He declared that he was "better qualified to drive a stage than to pose as a gentleman of fortune." The superintendent of the stage line, who was present, jocosely offered Jim a job, and the penniless gambler in a spirit of bravado accepted it and declared then and there that he would never touch the "pasteboards" again as long as he lived.

The gentleman from Texas took his departure as unostentatiously as he had come, but leaving behind him in his room at the hotel a peculiar wire and elastic contrivance which puzzled the brain of the landlady to determine its use. Several persons to whom he exhibited it declared they had never seen anything like it before, but Jim at once recognized it as a contrivance known as a holdout, by means of which a player retained cards in his possession, ascertained in his sleeves, which should be in the deck. The phenomenal "hands" held by the gentleman from Texas were no longer a mystery to Jim. He now understood that it was not "Chinaman's luck" that had beaten him, but this little contrivance, worn under the clothing, by the operation of which all elements of chance were eliminated from draw poker and the game reduced to a "dead moral certainty." It was true, as the gentleman from Texas had remarked, that luck took no figure in the play. It was a question of skill and science. As Jim was the only person in Fairplay who had anything like an intimate acquaintance with the scientist from Texas, the landlady presented him with the little implement that had worked the former's financial ruin. Jim's first impulse was to secrete the holdout upon his person and seek revenge upon the unsuspecting miners in the gulch, but he remembered that he had hired himself to the stage company and forswore gambling. He was a man of his word, and a stage driver he became. It was a monotonous life until the road agents began to pay frequent visits to the line, and Jim liked it. The only thing that disturbed his serenity was the recollection of the gentleman from Texas. If he could but once meet that scientist face to face, life would take on new charms for him.

I had a seat beside Jim on the Leadville coach, and as the horses crawled slowly up the grade of Kenosha mountain, preparatory to a wild dash down the other side into the South park, I remarked to him that it was going to be a pleasant night. He replied that you never could tell much about nights in that country until the next day; he had seen nights just as promising as this one turn out real bad before daybreak. The very best of meteorological predictions were likely to fail in a country so thickly infested with gentlemen of the road.

I expressed a desire to have a view of Red hill as we crossed that famous elevation and wondered if the moon would be down before we got there. Jim vouchsafed the information that the moon would be up, but added that he had known of people's appetite for scenery being permanently destroyed by gazing on Red hill by moonlight.

I was sound asleep with my head on Jim's shoulder when he nudged me and said:

"We're going up Red hill now. Help yourself to the scenery, and if you've got any valuables about you you'd better hide them. We're liable to see more things than scenery."

Then the horses came to a sudden stop, and Jim and I were looking down the muzzle of a revolver in the steady hand of a horseman beside the wheelers.

"Will you step down for a moment, driver?" asked the gentleman on horseback.

Jim replied that he was just thinking of getting down, as he was tired of sitting. I followed him and took my place beside him in time to see the other passengers descend one by one from the inside of the coach with their hands above their heads and take a place in line beside us.

There were but two of the road agents. While one of them relieved the passengers of their weapons and all articles of value the other was in the front seat of the stage securing the treasure box.

When the first robber came opposite to Jim, he drew back in surprise, exclaiming, "Well, I'll be hanged!"

For a second only he was off his guard, but that brief space of time was a fatal one. A pistol cracked, and he fell shot through the head.

"Bang, crack!" went two more shots. Both took effect. The second road agent reeled and fell from the boot of the stage, and Jim was lying beside the first robber. It was the big six shooter of the man on the stage that had answered Jim's first shot, and it was the crack of a derringer that had terminated the brief battle.

Jim was wounded in the leg. A young doctor in the party stanchioned the flow of blood, and we proceeded on our way with the bodies of the two bandits thrown into the hind boot.

The shooting was shrouded in mystery so far as the passengers were concerned. They had seen Jim's six shooter taken from his holster by one of the bandits, after which a careful search had been made to see that he had no other weapon, but when we picked him up a derringer was clasped in either hand. The question was how had he managed to conceal them and bring them into use at such an opportune time? The mystery was solved when his clothing was removed at the hotel in Fairplay. Under his waistcoat was the wire and elastic poker holdout formerly belonging to the gentleman from Texas. The nippers for holding the cards had been removed, and a circular clasp large enough to securely hold the handle of a derringer had been attached to the contrivance originally belonging to the hind boot. His surprise upon recognizing Jim accounted for his presence there. Jim's leg was broken, and the doctor informed him that when he recovered that leg would be shorter than the other; that he would always limp when he walked.

"It's all my own fault," said Jim. "I don't see how you can make that out."

"Well, it was this way: When I let the derringers down into my hands, I calculated to shoot the man on the boot with the gun in my right hand and take the highest feller with my left, but just then I recognized him as the gent I was mostly seeking after, a gent from Texas who skinned me out of my pile with this yere hold out, an' doc, the temptation was too great. I give it to him with my right, an' it took me too long to get a hold on the other one. But, say, doc, this science is a great thing." —Chicago Times.

Lighting Up in Parliament.

Every part of the house of commons is now lighted by electricity. In Cromwell's time the commons appear to have entertained strong objections to debate by artificial light. A Sir William Widdington brought in two candles against the direction of the house and was sent to the Tower next morning. An interruption to debate was sometimes caused by a motion that candles be brought in. A standing order was passed in 1717 empowering the sergeant-at-arms to bring in candles without any particular order. This order has been superseded by the instantaneous illumination of gas and subsequently by electricity. —London Letter.

A Gentle Corrective
is what you need when your liver becomes inactive. It's what you get when you take Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets; they're free from the violence and the gripping that come with the ordinary pill. The best medical authorities agree that in regulating the bowels mild methods are preferable. For every derangement of the liver, stomach and bowels, these tiny, sugar coated pills are most effective. They go about their work in an easy and natural way, and their good lasts. Once used, they are always in favor. Being composed of the choicest, concentrated vegetable extracts, they cost much more than other pills found in the market, yet from forty to forty-four are put up in each sealed glass vial, sold through druggists, at the price of the cheaper made pills.

"Pleasant Pellets" cure biliousness, sick and bilious headache, dizziness, constipation, or constipation, sour stomach, loss of appetite, coated tongue, indigestion, or dyspepsia, windy belchings, "heartburn," pain and distress after eating, and kindred derangements of the liver, stomach and bowels. Put up in sealed glass vials, therefore always fresh and reliable. Whether as a laxative, or in larger doses, as a gently acting but searching cathartic, these little "Pellets" are unequalled.

As a "dinner pill," to promote digestion, take one each day after dinner. To relieve the distress arising from over-eating, nothing equals one of these little "Pellets." They are tiny, sugar-coated, anti-bilious granules. Any child readily takes them.

Accept no substitute that may be recommended to be "just as good." It may be better for the dealer, because other pills give him a better profit, but he is not the one who needs help.

A free sample (4 to 7 doses) on trial, is mailed to any address, post-paid, on receipt of name and address on postal card. Address: WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, Buffalo, N. Y.

PERALTA-REAVIS GRANT CASE

Continuation of the Remarkable Story of James Addison Peralta-Reavis.

Reluctantly Admits He Made Big Money Out of Grant Scheme—
Boundary Changes—A Mexican Barber One of His Trusted Agents.

The hearing of the Peralta-Reavis land grant case of Arizona, unquestionably the most important land case ever presented to a court for adjudication in this country, continues to absorb the attention of the United States court of private land claims. Appended will be found a continuation of the remarkable story of Mr. Peralta-Reavis.

REAVIS RESUMES THE STAND.

He was never a correspondent for the Alta California; remembered that he drove in sight of the junction of the Gila and Colorado rivers on one of his trips with Monihan, but did so more for the purpose of following up an irrigation ditch in which they were driving than to see the junction of the rivers.

He further stated that during all his trips to that country, although writing for newspapers, he was in reality looking over this property. He, however, would not admit that he was doing so for the purpose of locating the grant. He also denied that he had stated to Monihan that he had a "floating grant" and was going to locate it in that valley and that he had changed the boundary of this grant so it would reach eight miles further south. Continuing he said: "The changes which the United States attorney referred to are the changes, I guess, in the various petitions that I have filed for this grant and they will explain themselves. The grant from my standpoint originated upon established measurements, which existed long before my conception, therefore my conception could not enter into or change them in the least. This is all rather amusing. Mr. Churchill, Royal A. Johnson and other distinguished Arizonians were very much interested in having the grant so located, that it would not interfere with some of their important interests. I merely stated that whatever location the government made I would acquiesce in, and the location as formerly made was practically by the government, although Gov. Powers contended the center should be in the center of the Gila river. Mr. Hopkins agreed with him, and at first I placed the location where they thought it should be."

MONEY HE WAS PAID.

He said that the amount of money which he had secured from corporations upon the grant for leases and quit claims was $65,000; he also received $5,000 from the Casa Grande Land & Improvement company, of New Jersey; $1,000 from the Casa Grande Land & Improvement company, of Wyoming; $30,000 from the Casa Grande Land & Improvement company, of Arizona. He also admitted that he got $25,000 from the Silver King mine for a release and that the Southern Pacific railroad paid him $50,000 for right of way. He also said that he was at one time in the employ of the Southern Pacific company in the law department.

He also testified that he had an agreement with Mr. Collins, of San Francisco, to furnish him money whenever he could, for which he was to take an interest in this grant as security; that he received $500 a month while in Europe; that he was there over two months; that while there Mr. Mackey paid him $5,000 a year; that he received from Rosenkrans, of San Francisco, about $5,000. United States Attorney Reynolds asked him what he had done with this $150,000 which he had secured from these companies. He answered that he had changed it and spent about $2,000 in making surveys, and, upon being pressed closer, he admitted that he had used the greater portion of it in perfecting his title to this property.

He was then asked why he had entered water claims under the public land laws of the United States while he had claimed to be a perfect grant to the property, and he answered that he had never thought much of the grant any way. It was the water he was after.

NOT A LOVER OF MONEY. "I am not a lover of money," said Mr. Reavis. "but I am a lover of development and building up of the country and I went to Arizona with the idea of building up the country and establishing a colony there. The water rights which I established belonged exclusively to myself, and in establishing this colony we received very small compensation for the land, usually about 12½ cents an acre, and the water right varied from $5 to $10 an acre, according to the location."

He added that he had now in his books charges and accounts to the amount of $330,000, the water being the only valuable feature of these transactions, involving in no way the confirmation of this grant now depending upon it. He further said that he had a suit against the government in the court of claims for $10,000,000, that it was now pending, and was based upon the same class of testimony as that filed in this court.

After the recess for dinner Mr. Reavis continued. He stated that he changed the boundary to the place where it is now; that it is eight miles south of where it was established according to what Powers thought was correct, that is, the center being at the Gila river; but he changed it to what he thought was correct, and made the center this monumental rock; that the seal made of lead and silver, as he stated, he never produced in Arizona; he further stated that he got it from Mariano Garcia Peralta, one of the witnesses to the will of Don Miguel Peralta, and had the original in Denver; but, upon being questioned closely, he would not admit that there was anyone in Denver who could send it to him, nor could he get it. He denied that he produced the original in Arizona as stated by Surveyor General Johnson, stating further that about the time he first became acquainted with the grant he was referred to Dr. Gid, a Spanish land grant lawyer, whom he admitted was a very bad character, and that he accepted the representations which Dr. Gid made to him with a full knowledge of the latter's character. On being further questioned by Mr. Reynolds, he acknowledged that he knew this same Dr. Gid was a refugee from St. Louis on account of his transactions in certain land grants surrounding that city.

THE MISLEADING CIRCULAR.

Mr. Reynolds then asked: "Did you ever cause to be issued any device or printed matter to be printed or circulated by which you claimed to have already received a confirmation of this grant?" "No, sir, I never authorized any such statement."

The witness, however, admitted that the interview appearing in the San Francisco Examiner was correct; that he was interviewed; that the article was written based upon that interview; and that he himself furnished the data used in that interview. Then he qualified the denial just made by saying that he saw a statement or circular to the effect that a decree had been secured from the court, declaring that he did not authorize it, but, on the contrary, at once published over his own signature a denial in a little town called Arizona, in the territory of Arizona.

But, upon being pressed by Mr. Reynolds, the witness contradicted himself fearfully, and was finally made to admit that this denial applied to a publication at the San Francisco Examiner, and others concerning the effect of a confirmation of this grant on holdings under United States patents, and that he in that denial modestly stated that he did not intend to molest the people. Upon being pushed further, he stated that he had furnished everything in that famous circular, "The Ducey," except the cut at the top of it; this he said was the product of the imagination of some enthusiastic printer, whom he stated, curiously enough, was not interested in this grant; admitted finally that he had never written a denial or retraction of that article or circular, and, through a direct question, asked him, he could not explain the statement made therein to the effect that the "Peralta grant was open to settlement."

WHAT THE CIRCULAR WAS BASED ON.

The circular referred to is the one based upon a certified copy of the clerk of the land court to the effect that leave had been granted to Reavis to amend his petition to the boundaries, and Reavis, as shown by his own admissions, took it at once to San Francisco and formulated this circular, which on its face purports to contain a decree of the court of private land claims adjudicating this property to him and was undoubtedly written for the purpose of deception.

He was then asked by Mr. Reynolds: "Have you got in your possession the original certificates of Father Stockman of the records of births and deaths of the San Bernardino mission?"

In reply he said he had them but not here; that they were in Denver with other papers; but that he would get them and introduce the same in evidence.

These certificates are the ones that purport to show the death of a brother and sister of the present alleged heir to the grant, Mrs. Reavis, and also purport to show her birth.

He further stated, in answer to questions, that he never had in his possession the original records of San Bernardino mission, and had never seen them in his life.

When asked how he got these certificates, he gave the remarkable answer, but not that he had a Mexican barber in San Bernardino, and then entered into a long statement of how he came to get a barber to go after them, trying to base the action by casting reflections on Father Stockman.

All the way through the witness spoke in a light and disrespectful way of his uncle, but with a Mexican heart, and the absolute ridiculousness of the idea that he would select a barber whom he never knew and whose name he could not recall, to get the certificates, showed an evident attempt to

of these records behind a trumped up Mexican barber.

He stated that he gave the barber a $5 gold piece and remembered that he had him after the certificates the Saturday evening, and that he received the certificates on Monday morning. He didn't know either Father Stockman or Father O'Reilly; had never seen them in his life; yet gave an excuse for not going personally after the certificates his fear of them.

When questioned as to it, he said he met his wife first on the train between Sacramento and San Francisco, in 1877 or 1878, any way the year President Hayes visited Sacramento.

"How came you to be attracted to her?" "Because she was a Spanish beauty and I was young man."

At that time on the train he said she told him her name was Sofia Treadwell, and that she interested him by telling him that her first name was "Masa," but that she was going under the assumed name of Sofia Treadwell.

He thought that the time it must have been a mistake, and he did afterward learn that he was correct, and that she was "Masa," as he thought.

He entered into marriage contract with her in 1882, and that marriage contract was ratified and they were married in Spain in 1884, but from the time they entered into the marriage contract up to the ratification of it in Spain, he kept the matter secret and allowed nobody to know it, and always passed as her guardian.

Returning to the incident on the train, he said that at the time she told him her birth place was in Mendocino county, California, and that it was in some valley, but she could state no more. Then, being questioned further, he stated that all the developments relative to this woman being heiress to this large tract of land, he kept strictly to himself, not divulging it even to his intimate friends until after his return from Spain in 1884.

WANTED TO BRING IT TO A HEAD.

At this point he was questioned by Mr. Reynolds as to whether he had not taken out a license to marry another woman in southern California about the same time he entered into this secret marriage contract with his present wife?

He promptly answered, "I had." Thereupon Mr. Reynolds quickly asked, "What was the purpose of taking out this license?"

He replied, with a smile on his face, "It was to run a bluff," adding that he had been engaged to this woman (the California woman) and he "wanted to bring the thing to a head."

The affidavit made by Alfred E. Sherwood as to the genuineness of this witness' wife was next called up.

The witness was asked whether or not he had "hypnotized" Alfred E. Sherwood in order to get the affidavit out of him. He replied, not, but in that connection, he might say that he was amazed at the ability of the United States attorney to get so much out of him, while he could get so little out of him.

He acknowledged that he used a photograph of "Masa," which he said he had procured at Cadiz, in Spain, with Sherwood, in securing the affidavit from him; and that he told Sherwood that he had seen the will in Spain, where she was mentioned as being the heir to this property; that it was within his power to help the girl along by making the affidavit, and that it would not hurt anybody. He further acknowledged that he then wrote the affidavit, and Sherwood stood beside him.

Mr. Reynolds then tried to get him to state whether he had told Sherwood of his having the Willing deed, which purported to convey this same property to him, but the witness could not state whether he had or not, could not remember, and, being pressed about this Willing deed, the confession was finally dragged out of him that he did not have much faith in this deed, believed all the time that it was probably a forgery.

DENIED OFFERING TO KEEP JOHNSON IN OFFICE.

Mr. Reynolds: "Did you write the surveyor general of Arizona a letter prior to your going to Spain with reference to his making a report on your grant?"

Then a little later Mr. Reynolds asked: "Will you say you did not write Johnson a letter in 1885, in which you stated substantially, that if he would make a favorable report you would see that he was retained in office?"

"I will not say so; I deny it emphatically, unless he can produce the letter." "Did you or did you not write such a letter to Johnson in 1885?"

"I deny it emphatically, and require the production of any such offer if it is true."

"Did you not in that letter state to him that you knew that you had influence enough to know who was going to succeed him?"

"I did not." "And that if he would make a favorable report he would be retained until after it could be done, and then that he would not need any more offices or public employment of any kind?"

Instead of replying to this question directly the witness started off again on an oration that he is invariable rule through life was never to assist anyone into any office, or to have anything to do with anyone who was in any office, which had anything to do with his claim or his business.

The witness was then asked as to his finances again. He said that he spent $20,000 a year on his family. At first he denied that he got all of it out of the grant, saying that he was a newspaper correspondent and solicitor, and that he made money that way, going into details as to the rates which he received from the different metropolitan papers, east and west, but, upon being questioned closer, could not swear that he averaged more than $1,000 a year out of the newspaper business.

BACA ACQUITTED.

Jury Went Out Late Last Night and Returned a Verdict at Noon.

The case of the United States against R. L. Baca, charged with making and uttering counterfeit silver coins, was concluded and given to the jury at 10 o'clock last night, after a trial that occupied three days. At 11:30 this morning the jury was still out, and presumably hungry, but members had not been privileged with breakfast.

The case was ably conducted on the part of the government by United States Attorney J. B. H. Hemingway and Assistant Attorney Geo. P. Money, and Messrs. J. H. Knebel and George W. Knebel for the defendant. Mr. Money made the opening address to the jury. Mr. J. H. Knebel followed, and Mr. Hemingway closed. Judge Langhlin's charge was clear, concise and impartial.

The jury at noon returned a verdict of acquittal in the Baca case.

OUR SPECIAL EDITION.

The New Mexican will issue a special trade edition two weeks from to-day. The design is to make an edition worthy of this paper and of the occasion which it will announce. On the first page will be an invitation from the citizens of this city, through their committee, to the people of Colorado, Arizona and our fellow citizens of New Mexico to partake of our hospitality on the 4th of July, and to join in our festivities and in the celebration of the natal day of the nation. Mr. C. A. Rohrbacher, late of the Phoenix Herald, and an experienced writer, will have full charge of collecting data and the business sketches for the edition. We commend him to the favor of all our people and to business men especially.

Good News for Gas Consumers.

To the Editor of the New Mexican.

Santa Fe, June 13.—Referring to the Santa Fe Gas company having decided to close its gas works on July 1, as published in yesterday's paper, I beg to inform the good citizens of Santa Fe that I represent Badlam Bros., of San Francisco, Cal., in New Mexico, who are the builders of the "Peerless Automatic Gas Machine" which produces a perfectly uniform smokeless light.

The simplest and most economical method of illuminating in the world, machine requires no more attention than one kerosene lamp for same length of time used, cheaper than coal oil, no wear, no tear, and will last a lifetime, no fire or heat, no poisonous gas, no danger or smell.

Parties desiring details can call at my office. Hundreds of machines in use, with equally as many testimonials from private individuals and public institutions.

Black Diamonds Coming.

Manager Dave Jones, of the Black Diamond base ball team of Madrid, was in Santa Fe yesterday, and pending arrangements were completed whereby the Black Diamonds will cross bats with the Athletics of Santa Fe at the college grounds in this city, on Sunday afternoon. This will either necessitate the postponement of the proposed "official game" or the fixing of it for some other day than Sunday, as the grounds have been leased for the season to the Athletics and Santa Fe.

Notice of Sale of Real Estate by Trustee.

Whereas on the 25th day of October, A. D. 1893, Eugenio D. Yrisarri, and Barbara P. de Yrisarri, his wife of the county of Santa Fe and territory of New Mexico, made, executed and delivered to the undersigned, Rufus J. Palen, their certain deed of trust whereby they conveyed to the said trustee, in consideration of the sum of one dollar and the trusts mentioned therein all of the following described lots or parcels of land, situate, lying and being in the county of Santa Fe and territory of New Mexico, to wit: That certain tract or parcel of land situate in precinct number four of said county of Santa Fe, measuring from east to west sixty-eight varas, and from north to south, fifty-five varas, bounded on the north by lands of Evaristo Lacero and Jesus Ma. Sandoval, on the East by lands of J. M. Sandoval, on the south by the acequia del Pino, on the west by the road leading from Santa Fe to Galisteo; being and formerly owned by Eustaquio Padilla, and being the same land conveyed by deed of conveyance recorded in the records of said Santa Fe county, in book "27" of the records of deeds and conveyances at pages 101 to 103, which said deed to the undersigned, trustee, was duly recorded in book "H" of the records of mortgages for Santa Fe county, New Mexico at pages 340 to 344 on the 26th day of October, A. D. 1893, in which said deed to the undersigned, trustee, it was recited that whereas the said Eugenio Yrisarri, and Barbara P. Yrisarri, his wife, jointly with Jacobo Yrisarri, had made and executed a certain promissory note, dated the 26th day of October, A. D. 1893, whereby they promised to pay to the order of Felipe Chavez, twelve months after that date the sum of twelve hundred dollars ($1,200) with interest at the rate of twelve per cent per annum and that the said Jacobo Yrisarri had signed the said promissory note as accommodation maker merely and for the use and benefit of the said Eugenio and Barbara P. Yrisarri, and that it was the desire of the latter to indemnify and save harmless the said Jacobo Yrisarri from all loss and damage by reason of his signing the said note as such accommodation maker, the said deed of trust was made, executed and delivered to the undersigned as trustee for the benefit of said Jacobo Yrisarri upon condition that in case of default by the said Eugenio or Barbara P. Yrisarri in the payment of said promissory note or any part thereof, or the interest thereon according to the tenor and effect of said note then in the event, the same shall be paid by the said Jacobo Yrisarri as to the whole or any part thereof or the whole or any part of any judgment that might be obtained thereon, then on application in writing of said Jacobo Yrisarri, the undersigned as trustee was authorized to sell and dispose of the said premises and all right, title benefit and equity of redemption of said Eugenio and Barbara P. Yrisarri, their heirs, assigns, at public auction at the front door of the postoffice in the county of Santa Fe, for the highest and best price, the same would bring in cash; four weeks notice having first been given of the time and place of said sale in a newspaper published in said city of Santa Fe, and authorizing the said trustee to execute, execute and deliver to the purchaser at such sale a good and sufficient deed of conveyance for the premises, and out of the proceeds of such sale after first paying all costs of advertising, sale and conveyance including reasonable fees for said trustee and all other necessary expenses of said trust, to then pay to said Jacobo Yrisarri, the amount he should have laid out and expended as such accommodation maker of the above described note, with interest on said amount to the day of sale and at the time after maturity of the said note to Felipe Chavez, the affidavit of the said Jacobo Yrisarri stating the amount and date of any payments made by him as such accommodation maker, shall be sufficient evidence for said trustee to establish the fact thereof, and to proceed to sell said premises above described as in such deed of trust provided, and

Whereas the undersigned trustee as aforesaid has received from said Jacobo Yrisarri an application in writing as provided in said trust deed to sell and dispose of said premises together with his affidavit stating that he had been compelled to and did pay the full sum of said promissory note to the said Felipe Chavez on the 26th of April, 1894, together with interest accrued thereon, being a total amount of twelve hundred and seventy-two ($1,272) dollars being for the principal and interest due on said note at that date, and that he took up and now owns and holds the said promissory note surrendered to him by the said Felipe Chavez upon its payment by said Jacobo Yrisarri.

Now therefore, by virtue of the power vested in me as trustee by the terms of such deed, and upon the request of the said Jacobo Yrisarri, the beneficiary named therein, I, Rufus J. Palen, trustee, as aforesaid do hereby give notice that on Saturday, the 6th day of July, A. D. 1895, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of said day at the front door of the postoffice in the city of Santa Fe, territory of New Mexico, I will expose and offer for sale at public auction to the highest and best bidder for cash all of the above described real estate and premises, and that I will make, execute and deliver to the purchaser at such sale a good and sufficient deed of conveyance for the premises so sold.

Witness my hand at Santa Fe, New Mexico, this 3rd day of June, A. D. 1895.

S. SPITZ, The Jeweller

SANTA FE, N. M.

Stop and look at our stock of fashionable jewelry. The invitation is almost superfluous, as it would be difficult for anyone to pass a display like ours without stopping and looking. The temptation to look at some things is irresistible. That's the case with our jewelry, which never fails to draw a steady fire of admiring glances. We show nothing but the latest novelties for this season, attractive, artistic, and beautiful. Don't select jewelry without seeing what there is to select from, and our store is the one place in town to see that.
