Give us a call without delay. It's time not only to be cool but to have everything on the list of meats, vegetables, milk, butter, etc., etc. There is nothing saves so much money as a refrigerator. The articles it keeps from spoiling in a single season will repay its cost four times over, and one of our refrigerators is good for ten years of service and will thus return the outlay involved in its purchase forty times over before it is worn out. As an investment it eclipses everything, and the price is only $3 and up.

HARDIN WINS IN KENTUCKY.

Nominated by Solid Silver Vote and Enough Good Men to Make a Majority.

Gen. Clay Promises His Support to the Ticket—Glad Administration was Indorsed—Gen. Warner Comments.

Louisville, Ky., June 27.—At last night's session of the Democratic state convention P. Watt Hardin, who made his canvass on a free college proposition, was nominated for governor. But one ballot was taken as follows: Hardin 468, Clay 380, Stone 76, Watterson 3. Hardin's nomination was made unanimous. His opponent, Gen. Clay, pledged his sincere support to the ticket. He took his stand for sound money and stuck to it. He congratulated the convention on its platform and its indorsement of Cleveland and Carlisle and said that if the convention had adopted a plank for free silver at 16 to 1, he would not have been a candidate and could not then have accepted the nomination if it had been accorded him. Gen. Hardin accepts.

Gen. Hardin accepted the nomination in an eloquent appeal for harmony, without referring to any issues of the contest. The fight for the nomination was much closer than Hardin was expected. While Hardin held the silver vote almost solid, the Clay men could not get all of the sound money men away from him, because of his consideration for the minority organization of the convention and of his unusually strong personal following.

Silver men as a rule are feeling good over Hardin's nomination, though Blackburn and some other silver leaders feel that Hardin did not stand by them, and refer to the inconsistent position in which he now finds himself on the administration platform.

For lieutenant governor the names of R. T. Tyler, M. S. Brown and Orest Turner, Jr., were presented. Tyler was nominated without counting the vote.

The Democratic state convention resumed business at 9:30 this morning. R. C. Ford was nominated for state treasurer on the second ballot and Luke C. Norman for auditor by acclamation.

GEN. WARNER COMMENTS.

Gen. A. Warner said to-day: "The outcome of the Louisville convention was not unlooked for by bimetallicists. We know how easy it is with the assistance of the office-holders to pack a convention, but anyone who has visited Kentucky knows that the convention did not represent the sentiments of a large majority of the people of the state, who are undoubtedly opposed to the gold standard and in favor of the resumption of the coinage of both gold and silver." The general then went on to show that a split of the Democratic party is almost inevitable at the coming national convention. He said: "I believe it is safe to predict that John Sherman and Grover Cleveland will vote for the same man for president in 1896. The silver men will not go together. Just now, it is too early to predict. That will make the silver party by whatever name it is called. They must get together or give up the fight."

Killed in a Duel.

El Paso, June 27.—A telegram from Catron, Mexico, says that James Atkinson, an American ore buyer, and Francisco Hernandez, a Mexican ranchman, fought a duel near Ciudad, east of here, yesterday, in which Atkinson was killed. The two men were devoted to the same senator, and decided to settle their love content with pistols. The American fired three shots at his antagonist, but none of the bullets took effect. Hernandez's second shot struck a vital spot of Atkinson's body.

BLOODSHED IN OKLAHOMA.

Double Tragedy at Enid—Register Patterson and Marshal Williams Dead—Editor Isenberg Badly Hurt.

South Enid, O. T., June 27.—R. W. Patterson, register of the United States land office here, was shot and instantly killed last evening by City Marshal Williams, who had first been shot and mortally wounded by Patterson. Williams shot since dead. Patterson also fired two shots at J. L. Isenberg, the editor of the Daily Wave, but Isenberg's injuries are slight. The difficulty was between Isenberg and Patterson, and was occasioned by an article in this evening's Wave criticizing Patterson.

Later, the double tragedy here yesterday, in which R. W. Patterson, register of the land office, and City Marshal Williams were killed, has created wild excitement. Editor Isenberg's wound is serious, though not necessarily fatal. All three had many friends and sides are being taken by citizens. Isenberg came to Enid about the opening of the strip, on September 16, 1893, and started the Daily Wave. He is a fearless fighter and writes with a pen dripping with venom. He made a practice of scolding his enemies mercilessly. He was opposed to Patterson primarily because he was "a carpet bagger," but more on account of his being a southerner. The Wave is a Democratic newspaper, but it was not favored with the land office printing.

Murdered and Robbed.

San Antonio Texas, June 27.—News was brought to this city to-day by sheriff Kerr of the finding of the body of Charles Lingholz, saddlery and hardware merchant of San Antonio forty-one miles from Kerrville. He had evidently been murdered for the purpose of robbing. He left here on June 17 to buy a 4,000 acre ranch in Kerr county.

THE EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Second International Convention—Monter Meeting in Progress at Chattanooga.

Chattanooga, Tenn., June 27.—The second international convention of the Epworth league is proving as big a religious demonstration as the most sanguine expected. All the bishops of the church are here, excepting Bishop Vincent, who was not able to attend. Twenty-five special trains have already arrived, with delegates from every state and territory in the United States. Five thousand visitors are on the grounds. Trains bearing excursionists from adjoining states will swell the number to at least 15,000. The conference formally opened at 2:30 this afternoon in a big tent, which has a seating capacity for 10,000. The tent was crowded. An inspiring song led by a chorus of 1,000 voices started the great convention to work.

CAPITAL IMPROVEMENTS

Brief Reference to the Many Enterprises That Are Modernizing the Historic City.

J. H. Rapp, of Chicago, architect and superintendent of the capitol rebuilding work, arrived in the city yesterday and at once entered upon his duties. He says the work of construction will be pushed with all possible dispatch.

At the National cemetery some forty men and a number of teams are now engaged on the various contracts which have been let. The total expenditure called for in these contracts is $16,000.

M. J. Nagle's teams are busy grading the grounds for a $3,000 addition to the St. Katherine Indian school.

At the penitentiary the manufacture of brick, fire-clay pipe, etc., is being pushed during this fine weather. The demands of the territorial insane asylum and the capitol will consume all the brick that can be made between this time and fall.

Plans are being drawn for a $15,000 addition to the Santa Fe Indian school. Col. Jones has greatly beautified the spacious grounds this spring and aside from having put in a large acreage in grain and alfalfa, has some 500 fruit trees growing luxuriantly. Spots of lawn and many shade trees also add to the attractiveness of the place.

Mr. Geo. P. Money, assistant U. S. attorney, has purchased sixty feet of frontage on Palace avenue, adjoining Col. Knobel's residence, and will this fall erect a fine residence thereon.

At a cost of nearly $1,000 the firm of Dignee Bros. have just completed a cut stone altar at the cathedral which adds much to the interior of that imposing edifice. The stone is from Cerrillos and is beautifully carved.

Supt. Sparks, of the Telephone company, who recently purchased the Atwood orchard, is building a neat home thereon.

J. H. Blain is just finishing a neat brick cottage, stable, etc., on his lately purchased property on Galisteo street, the old Ellison place.

Work is progressing steadily on Santa Fe's mammoth new water storage reservoir in the foot-hills just north of the Palace hotel. This is the fourth reservoir of the splendid system being put in here by the Municipal Investment company of Chicago, and its capacity when finished will be sufficient to irrigate thousands of acres of valley land. This reservoir will cover 268 acres and at its deepest point the water will be sixty-five feet in depth.

The St. John's M. E. church and parsonage have recently been plastered and finished in a rough coat of white. The wood work has also been newly painted. The effect of this improvement is marvelous, converting a scene of dilapidation into one of order and beauty. The membership join the pastor in a cord of thanks to those whose contributions made the above mentioned repairs possible.

At the historic official palace Secretary Miller has had workmen engaged for two weeks past and has greatly improved the property both inside and out.

Mr. Sam Cartwright has converted his newly purchased adobe house on the south bank of the river into a modern brick with pressed brick front and all the accessories that go to make up a comfortable residence.

Mr. F. M. Jones has recently finished a new dwelling on his fine orchard property west of town and now makes that his home.

Official announcement was received from Washington yesterday that the Bannock school would be opened next month as a school for Indian girls. The university trustees will at once begin the necessary improvements.

The Municipal Investment company of Chicago has purchased 250 acres of valley land just south of the United States Indian school, and has secured 100 acres of it to alfalfa which is growing nicely. The intention is to cut this land up into five and ten acre tracts and dispose of it to settlers along with perpetual water rights.

Santa Fe's new electric light and power plant was inspected yesterday by Hon. L. F. Parker and a number of St. Louis visitors who pronounced it the most complete system they had ever seen. The economic principle involved whereby the water from the big reservoir in the canon is made to produce this light and power without waste is a feature that was highly commended. When the present contract with the city expires the company proposes to put in an arc light system that will make Santa Fe one of the best lighted cities in the country.

The Point of the Pistol

is an effectual persuader, and there are many persons so unmindful of the symptoms of on coming disease that it would almost take that deadly argument to induce them to adopt precautionary measures. The best of these is a recourse to that botanic restorer, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. It vanquishes malaria, rheumatism, kidney and bladder trouble, failing digestion, biliousness and irregularity of the bowels, and completely fortifies the system against their further inroads. Its ingredients are drawn from nature's storehouse, consequently it is free from the objections attaching to many of the so-called or semi-mineral remedies. For the delicate, infirm, convalescent and elderly it is peculiarly beneficial. It will merit continuous and systematic use. Take it at bed time to induce sleep, and between meals to stimulate appetite and digestion. The medical fraternity concur in indorsing it.

BUSINESS SKETCHES.

Description of the Popular Palace Hotel—Pioneer Meat Market of Santa Fe.

Palace Hotel.

HERMAN CLAUSSEN, PROP.

The Palace Hotel is not only the pride of Santa Fe, but of the territory as well. The Palace was built by a stock company at a cost of $50,000, and was completed in 1882. Great interest had been manifested in the erection of a strictly first-class hotel; and the hotel company was organized by public spirited citizens quite as much by the desire for the general prosperity of the city as by an expectation of profitable return from their investment.

The Palace is a three story building with a front of 100 feet and running back 200 feet, and occupies an entire block. It is elegantly located one block from the main plaza and the business part of the city. The house has 100 guest rooms. The office, dining rooms, reading and writing rooms are on the ground floor; and broad piazzas extend the entire length of two sides of the house. The ground plan of the building is in the form of a letter U. This plan of architecture gives all outside rooms. Many of the rooms are en suite, and all of the rooms are heated separately, lighted with gas, and provided with call bells. In fact, no single feature of the first-class American hotel is omitted in building, furnishing, necessities, conveniences and luxuries that a thorough knowledge of the business could suggest.

The Palace was opened under most favorable auspices, and continues to hold the high place in the esteem of the traveling public which was the hope of its builders.

Mr. Herman Claussen, the proprietor, is well and favorably known as a hotel man of experience. He is also widely known for the interest he takes in public enterprises designed to prosper Santa Fe and the territory. He is largely interested in, and the treasurer of, the Rio Grande Electric and Irrigation company, and one of the principle promoters of that promising enterprise.

Mr. Claussen is a native of Germany, but has been many years in the United States, and in character and integrity of purpose is a type of our best German-American citizens. He is popular with the traveling public, and his house is headquarters for commercial travelers, headquarters for land court officials, the business man's hotel, and the tourists' hotel of Santa Fe.

In concluding, we may say that Mr. Claussen has a very efficient head clerk and assistant in the person of Mr. A. M. Dettelbach, well known in business circles, and for a number of years private secretary for the late C. F. A. Fischer, for many years one of Santa Fe's most prominent citizens.

We may add that Mr. Claussen's experience and previous success are a sufficient guarantee that the Palace will continue to rank among the leading hotels of the southwest, and one of the first-class hotels of Santa Fe.

City Meat Market.

ARNOLD & HAINES, PROPS., WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALERS IN FRESH AND SALT MEATS, ETC.

Among the most recent and noteworthy changes in the proprietorship of Santa Fe's important business enterprises is the succession of Mr. J. E. Haines to the interest of Mr. J. A. Stinson in the firm of Arnold & Stinson, proprietors of the City Meat Market, and the formation of the new firm of Arnold & Haines about the middle of the present month.

The City Meat Market was established more than thirty years ago, and is the oldest business of the kind in New Mexico. It has grown to be an enterprise worthy of a larger city, and is one which contributes in no small degree to the volume of Santa Fe's business. When it is realized that to supply the wholesale and retail trade of this house there must be slaughtered annually about fourteen hundred head of beefs, fifty-five hundred head of sheep, four hundred head of veal calves, and five hundred hogs, the magnitude of the business becomes apparent.

The City Market is elegantly located on San Francisco street, and is neat, clean, and attractive. The market is provided with the latest improved refrigerators for keeping fresh meats at a low degree of temperature, and, as well, with machinery for making all kind of sausages and pickled goods. The slaughter house, which is located two miles south of the city, is provided with modern appliances for slaughtering purposes and for handling and preparing meats in the most cleanly manner.

Besides handling all kinds of fresh, salt and pickled meats and fish, oysters and game in season are made specialties. In addition to a growing wholesale trade with the smaller towns and camps surrounding Santa Fe, a large retail business is done in supplying the schools, hotels, restaurants, and families of the city.

Messrs. Arnold & Haines have a large ranch on the Pecos where they grow some of the stock slaughtered for their trade, but by far the larger amount is purchased from producers of this section of the territory. The firm is at all times in the market for butchering stock of any kind, and being possessed of ample capital, is prepared to pay the highest cash prices.

Mr. H. E. Arnold is a native of Iowa, and practically grew up in the stock business, his father being a prominent cattleman. He has been in New Mexico since 1885, and a partner in the City Market for the last two years. Mr. J. E. Haines is a native son of the Golden state, but has been thirty years in the territory, and was for seven years connected with the New Mexico Land & Cattle Co. Both are stockmen of long ex-

COCHITI CULLINGS.

Readable Budget from Bland—The New Beckman Mill—Accumulating Mineral on the Dumps—Development Work.

Special Correspondence New Mexican.

Bland, Cochiti Mining District, June 25.—The machinery has about all been firmly placed in the substantial and well built Beckman mill just below Bland, and the plant will be in running order by the 1st of the month. The process adopted by Mr. Beckman for the treatment of Cochiti ores, after months of patient experimenting, is not yet fully understood by your correspondent, but it is known that approved concentrating appliances will be used in connection with stamps for the reduction of the ores of the camp and the manifest confidence of the manager in the success of his method inspires confidence in the miners. All hope for and expect the best results to flow therefrom and are waiting with eager anxiety for the trial run. The mill will start in with ten stamps and a consequent reduction capacity of about thirty tons of ore in twenty-four hours. The manager expects to begin on ore from the Black Girl mine on which he has a lease and bond, but it is the intention to do general custom work for all who deliver ore.

Nearly all of the miners of the camp have ore on the dumps awaiting a treatment at this mill, and, if it proves successful, all will begin active operations taking out mineral, and thus an ample supply is assured to keep a mill of much greater capacity running for an indefinite period. No one familiar with the camp doubts that, with a little more development, 500 tons of milling ore could be taken out in the camp daily, but there is no encouragement to take out this ore, the bulk of which would not bear costly transportation charges to distant smelters, until conveniently located and suitable reduction facilities are in operation.

The Lone Star owners are working a force of ten men taking out good milling ore and thus the large accumulation of mineral on the dumps of this peerless property is being steadily increased. The main shaft of the Iron King, splendidly timbered expressly for operating a cage, is down an even 100 feet and the work of drifting from the bottom has been commenced.

The Crown Point people continue taking out, sorting and shipping ore as usual. A great accumulation of second grade or milling ore is also piled on the dumps of this property. Manager Beckman is also taking good ore out of the Black Girl, and John Hart and others are opening up some fine bodies of mineral in Medio Dia canon. Generally it may be said that assessment and development work is going on in all parts of the district and a most hopeful feeling prevails among miners and business men.

The fact that the preliminary survey of the Santa Fe & Cochiti railroad has already been completed from Bland to Allerton and that there now seems no doubt of the early construction of the road, with electric power reduction works at the river, causes sincere rejoicing in mining circles. Speed the good works of the Santa Fe & Cochiti Railroad and Rio Grande Electric Power companies.

Woman's Part.—Which is my part in this? asked the prima donna of her husband, who was the tenor.—Your part? Here it is, of course. The one with the last words in it.

The Point of the Pistol is an effective persuader, and there are many persons so unkind of the symptoms of an coming disease that it would almost take that deadly argument to induce them to adopt precautionary measures. ### A Remarkable Cure of Rheumatism

Westminster, Cal., March 21, 1894.—

Some time ago, on awakening one morning, I found that I had rheumatism in my knee so badly that, as I remarked to my wife, it would be impossible for me to attend to business that day. Remembering that I had some of Chamberlain's Pain Balm in my store I sent for a bottle, and rubbed the afflicted parts thoroughly with it, according to directions, and within an hour I was completely relieved. One application had done the business. It is the best liniment on the market, and I sell it under a positive guarantee. R. T. Harris. For sale by A. C. Ireland, Jr.

A LOVE SONG.

My little leaves, why are you glad? Answer, quivering little leaves, Small clapping leaves, so freshly clad In a green world that never grieves. Answer me, for my heart is full Love God, love God! they sing, Gay as the birds a-wing.

My little flowers, what's your delight? Now answer, for my soul believes In your sweet petals, pure and white, Sweet purity no man deceives. Answer, my flow'rets fair and bright, Love God, love God! they sing, Gay as the birds a-wing.

Fresh blades of grass, you cheerful seem, What is it that all grief relieves? Thick ye upspring, a fair sunbeam In your low stems its brilliant weaves. In your low stems its brilliant weaves. How do you keep that sunny gleam? Love God, love God! they sing, Gay as the birds a-wing.

The flowers and grass make their reply, With all the merry clapping leaves, And echoing the holy cry The drooping heart its joy retrieves. All voices to their Maker fly, Love God, love God! they sing, Gay as the birds a-wing. —Constance Hope in Good Words.

FIRST LOVE.

I have for years led a roving life and am most at home in railway carriages, waiting rooms, hotels and restaurants. On this account my reading has been of all kinds, and I have given up wishing to be dainty in my literary diet. Only German and French romances and novels by authors unknown to me, or writers whose style I do not enjoy, inspire me with an unconquerable respect.

Books by these authors I never venture to open, even in the greatest dearth of reading matter. Besides I eagerly welcome everything published by the latest journals and look through each weekly and monthly periodical that I come across in dining or waiting room.

That is why I have a succession of fragments of a considerable number of stories in my head, and as their classification does not especially interest me it thus happens that I occasionally join the end of one to the beginning of the other. Some of these dovetailed stories please me quite as well as the noted novels of famous authors.

This is a matter of taste, and I allow myself no criticism. Sometimes I finish for myself a story, the beginning of which I have read, or invent the first chapter for the conclusion of a romance which has fallen into my hands. Then, after a time, it is difficult to distinguish between what is mine and what is not mine. In most cases indeed I have of a morning when I leave a city forgotten what I have read there on the preceding evening. But when a story has pleased me I enjoy repeating it to myself in the railway carriage, and then it becomes fixed in my memory and recurs later, at irregular intervals, as something personally experienced or again invented by myself.

The following narrative is one of these tales. I have forgotten where I read it for the first time. Whether the tale was exactly as I now have it in my mind I do not any longer know. But the idea is not mine. I believe I found it in a Paris review. Then it must have been many years since, for several omnivorous readers among my French acquaintances, of whom I made inquiry regarding that easily recognized sketch, could not remember to have read it. It is also possible that I found it in Berlin or London. Should the owner at any time reclaim it, I will return his property with thanks. Here is the story as it has shaped itself little by little in my head:

The numerous guests of the countess had been slowly retiring since 11 o'clock, and about 12 there were only some half dozen people assembled in the salon, the very intimate friends of the house. The handsome Palamede had pronounced his verdict upon the notable toilets of the evening, Rene had recounted the last duel, Edmond the last steeplechase. The scandal of the day had been commented upon in the usual philanthropic fashion, and for the first time for half an hour the conversation had languished.

The countess turned to her neighbor, the quiet Gaston. "You are making more noise than usual this evening," said she. "You have been sleeping this half hour with open eyes." The gentleman addressed, who had been sitting upon a low chair, earnestly engaged in keeping up a fire in the chimney, in which he had displayed the ability that, according to a French proverb, is a privilege of lovers and philosophers, turned slowly and made answer, "I am thinking of my first love."

"Gratitude does honor to the receiver and to the giver alike," said the countess. "Tell me the story of the first love that still makes you dream today." Gaston slowly rubbed his thin hands, as was his habit, and without waiting for further urging began as follows:

"When I say my first love, I do not mean the very first. This indeed caused me in its time much pain and anxious joy, but that is long since forgotten. Many a time, when I now recall it, it seems as though I thought of another's love tale and not my own. I was at the time perhaps 13 or 14 years old, and she was the sister of my schoolfellow Jacques."

"I saw her for the first time upon our playground, where she appeared with her mother, during an intermission, to see her brother. It was winter. The yard was full of snow, and a fierce battle waged between the opposing factions in which the school was divided. At the moment when I saw her at the entrance to the playground, a harder snowball hit me on the head, so that I fell down unconscious. A few minutes after, when I again came to myself, I was sitting upon a chair in the porter's room, and both ladies, the mother and sister of my friend, stood near and regarded me anxiously."

"The next morning she caused inquiry to be made after my health through Jacques, and on the following Sunday I called upon her. I spoke no word. I ventured scarcely to raise my eyes, but I would willingly have thrown myself a thousand times into fire or water to again draw upon me the solicitous glance of the beautiful maiden.

"In the evening I invented for myself the most marvelous heroic deeds where-with I would have aroused her astonishment and compelled her admiration. Anything else I neither desired nor expected. The unconscious dawn of love in the heart of youth belongs with its peculiarities only to pure childhood."

"The young heart is foolishly happy in sacrifice, quietly content and blindly conceited and vain. It cannot yet love, it needs but to be loved and admired; the only joy it knows is a blissful unrest; its only need, to receive love without bestowing it. In after years one gives without receiving and is very well off with that. So everything in the world is arranged in the best manner, where there are people who find their joy in giving, and others who are happy in receiving."

"But how short and sweet is the one time when one gives and receives, when one loves and is beloved! I have known it, but who then made me so inexplicably happy has now left me. How beautiful was the world when I saw it with her; how blue the heaven; how soft the air! We hastened, hand in hand, from place to place, and wherever we went, laughing joy stepped forth to greet us, begging us to linger. We went laughing, singing, rejoicing along, assured of our good fortune everywhere."

"Sometimes our riotous delight, overstepping all bounds, startled sober people. But the stern glance softened when it rested upon us: 'They are young. Let them enjoy themselves,' said the old, and went along sorrowfully smiling. She clung so tightly to my arm, she nestled so closely to my side, that I thought I could never lose her. The idea of a possible change never came to me, never troubled me. Thus I lived a long time. Weeks, months, years flew by, and I heeded them not."

"One evening, after we had spent the day yet more madly and merrily than usual, she suddenly appeared to me discontented and cold. A terrible fear which I am not able to describe fell upon me. An icy coldness crept over me. 'She will leave you,' said I to myself, 'certainly, surely, she will leave you.' It occurred to me how little I had really concerned myself about her, how I perhaps had expected too much of her truth and constancy. For the first time I felt my trust in myself and in her waver, and anxiously I gazed into her eyes. But her glance turned wearily from me and gave me no answer."

"My rest was gone, my life no more the same. It is true she still pressed me impetuously to her bosom again and again, but the sweetness of her kiss had vanished. Often she pushed me coldly away, and I saw to my unutterable sorrow that my love wearied her. And when I once at a later hour returned home, tired and dejected, I found the room dark, cold and empty. She, my joy, my light, my all, had vanished."

"Now began a miserable existence for me. The loss that I had suffered gnawed at my heart, but my cure was to conceal this loss from the world. I endeavored to show a cheerful, happy countenance. I sought the society of gay young people. I bestowed great and hitherto unknown and ridiculed care upon my person and toilet. My enemies said of me that I had for a long time rung in order to hide the paleness of my cheeks. That is not true, but I may as well confess that I bought a little flask of newly invented tincture that was to restore the color of youth to my whitening hair."

"This hypocritical farce did not long continue. I was soon tired of the strife, and today the opinion of the world troubles me no more. I know that my darling has left me; that nothing will bring her back, and every one who knows me may perceive and recognize in my appearance the loss which I suffered. But I ever lament the lost one. She is wanting everywhere. Nothing, nothing can take her place to me, and I would willingly give everything I possess and every joy and happiness that is prepared for me to once again call her mine, to once more live through that beautiful, fleeting time, during which alone I was happy."

Gaston ceased, and stared fixedly into the dying fire, and fell to the characteristic, slow rubbing of his enaciated hands. "What is the name of this wonderful being?" asked the countess. "My youth," answered Gaston, without turning his eyes from the fire. —From the German For Short Stories.

Chinese Money.

It is held by some that the coinage of China was invented especially for the confusion of the foreigner. At any rate, two market villages 20 miles apart are quite certain to have a different rate of exchange, and—this may be only a coincidence—the foreigner is not the one who profits thereby. Thus, suppose you tender $1 at Stone Umbrella mart, and after much weighing and testing thereof are given in exchange 1,080 brass coins strung on a string, of varying weight and thickness.

Arrived at the Plain of Peace, you buy $1 worth of fowl, and put down your 1,080 coins, only to be told that the exchange is 1,180, and you have to find the balance. Next day, having invested all your savings in cash, you return to Stone Umbrella, intending to buy up all the silver in circulation at the lower rate of exchange.

Alas, for your hopes! You are met with a chilling, "These cash are ten parts—i. e., 100 per cent—worthless," and in corroboration of his statement you would be victim points out, or pretends to point out, the absence of certain blurs on the horrid little rings of brass. —Blackwood's Magazine.

Brazilian Morning Glory.

The Brazilian morning glory will prove a pleasant surprise to those who have not yet grown it. It is as easy of cultivation as the old-fashioned morning glory. Its flowers are rose colored and very large, while its leaves are often 9 and 10 inches across. It makes a beautiful screen for a window or piazza.

It appears that the Parisians send their linen to London to be got up, and there is consequently growing ill-feeling between the laundry-keepers of the two countries. More power to their elbows; but we are sorry for the shirts and collars. It was hard enough for them without this additional fray.

ASSIST NATURE

a little now and then in removing offending matter from the stomach and bowels, and you thereby avoid a multitude of distressing derangements and diseases, and will have less frequent need of your doctor's service.

Of all known agents for this purpose, Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are the best. Once used, they are always in favor. Their secondary effect is to keep the bowels open and regular, not to further the constipation, as is the case with other pills. Hence, their great popularity with sufferers from habitual constipation, piles, and their attendant discomfort and manifold derangements. The Pellets are purely vegetable and perfectly harmless in any condition of the system. No care is required while using them; they do not interfere with the diet, habits or occupation, and produce no pain, gripping or shock to the system. They act in a mild, easy and natural way and their effect is no reaction afterward. Their help lasts.

The Pellets cure biliousness, sick and bilious headache, dizziness, costiveness, or constipation, sour stomach, loss of appetite, coated tongue, indigestion, or dyspepsia, windy belchings, "heartburn," pain and distress after eating, and kindred derangements of the liver, stomach and bowels. In proof of their superior excellence, it can be truthfully said, that they are always adopted as a household remedy after the first trial. Put up in sealed, glass vials, therefore always fresh and reliable. One little "Pellet" is a laxative, two are mildly cathartic. As a "dinner pill," to promote digestion, or to relieve distress from over-eating, take one after dining. They are tiny, sugar-coated granules; any child will readily take them.

Accept no substitute that may be recommended to be "just as good." It may be better for the dealer, because of paying him a better profit, but he is not the one who needs help.
