ARTHUR SEWELL, OF MAINE.

Was This Afternoon Nominated by the Democratic National Convention at Chicago For Vice-President.

A FEARLESS 16 TO 1 SILVER DEMOCRAT

A Successful Business Man Whose Commerce Whitens the High Seas--An Orator and a Broad-Minded Statesman--His Popularity Attested.

ELECTED TO CONGRESS IN A REPUBLICAN DISTRICT

A Worthy Running Mate of William Jennings Bryan--A Faultless Ticket Representing the Far West and the Far East--Splendid Behavior of Southern Leaders--Platform in Full--Eloquent and Just Tribute to Bryan.

Arthur Sewell Awarded Second Honors.

On the fifth ballot in the Democratic national convention at Chicago, this afternoon, Arthur Sewell, a 16 to 1 silver Democrat of Maine, a solid and successful business man, an orator and man of affairs, whose popularity is attested by his election to congress in a strong Republican district, was nominated for vice-president amid great enthusiasm. The convention adjourned sine die at 3:18 this afternoon.

Closing Day.

Hall of Democratic National Convention, Chicago, July 11.--Although 10 o'clock was the hour fixed for the convention to assemble, at twenty minutes after that hour there were not more than 100 delegates in the pit and the galleries were not half full.

The decision John R. McLean, of Ohio, who was the most formidable candidate last night, not to allow his name to be presented for the vice-presidency, left open the field for the second round.

Ex-Congressman Ben Shively, of Indiana, recently nominated for governor of that state, was strongly talked of by the leaders, despite the feeling in the Indiana delegation that his nomination would confuse the program in their state.

Arthur Sewell, of Maine, Boies of Iowa, Shively, of Pennsylvania, Fithian, of Illinois, each had earnest advocates, and there was a warm regard expressed for George Fred Williams, of Massachusetts.

The leaders were disposed to look strictly to political considerations in the selection of Bryan's running mate.

It is understood to be Bryan's wish that a man of wealth be not placed on the ticket with him.

CONVENTION CALLED TO ORDER.

As the hands of the clock pointed to 11 o'clock, Chairman White called the convention to order.

There were only about 5,000 in the coliseum and half the gold delegates were absent.

Finley, of Ohio, moved a ratification of the delegates' selections for national committee.

Indiana and Missouri had not yet made selections. Gil Shunklin and Gov. Stone were named respectively from those states.

The motion carried.

Nominations for vice-president were called for, after the motion, made by Jones, of Arkansas, had been adopted, limiting the nomination speeches to five minutes each.

O'Sullivan, the fiery young delegate from Massachusetts, placed in nomination George Fred Williams, of the same state. He referred to the sudden delegation from New York and urged the convention to prove that it had turned down New York's leader (Hill) not because he came from the east, but because he was for gold.

He told how Williams had fought the corporations of Massachusetts, and therefore "had been antagonized," the speaker said by Henry Whitney, the Standard oil magnate, and brother of the Whitney who sat silently yonder," pointing to the New York standard.

O'Sullivan exhorted the convention to select a man from the Atlantic coast, that the east and west might join hands on the ticket, and added: "We do not want a man with a barrel to inaugurate this peaceful revolution."

Cries of "water, water" were shouted when Marston, of Louisiana, the planter, who has so often appeared before the convention, came to the front.

Marston said: "I assure you, gentlemen, I have not tasted a drop of water to-day." He placed in nomination John R. McLean, of Ohio, and said he did so on his own authority.

Delegate Maloney, of Washington, without making a speech, named James Hamilton Lewis, of Washington.

J. C. Curry, of North Carolina, nominated, "the man honored by all the people, that just judge and high-minded Democrat, Judge Walter Clark, of the supreme court of North Carolina."

The state delegation gave great applause.

Ex-Congressman Tom Johnson, the free trade millionaire of Cleveland, mounted the platform and received a cordial demonstration.

Johnson nominated ex-Congressman George W. Fithian, of Illinois. He had seen service in the cases, Johnson said, and served true. He was not wealthy, but Johnson maintained that the cause was one of the common people and a rich man was not desirable. It was the cause of humanity. If the fight was to be money against men the money would be all on

Congressman Amos Cumming, of New York, read the following telegram from Louisville, Ky.: "Please do not permit my name to be presented. I am instructed by my friends yesterday. [Signed] Joseph Sibley."

Some of the leaders tried to check the stampede to Bland on the next ballot.

Senator Jones, of Arkansas, brought back Arkansas to Sewell. California gave 18 votes for the Maine Democrat.

RESULT OF THIRD BALLOT.

Bland..... 235
McLean..... 210
Sewell..... 190
Shively..... 180
Williams (Mass.)..... 150
Clark..... 120
Daniel..... 100
Fithian..... 80

Gov. Stone thanked the convention for the honor it had shown his state and continued: "I am in receipt of a telegram from Mr. Bland. He deems it unwise and impolitic to nominate him as a candidate from west of the Mississippi river. He directs me to say that the nomination of Bryan has his warm and hearty approval and thinks the nomination of vice-president should be made for one object, strengthen the ticket, and that he desires his name withdrawn." The Bland men cheered.

The progress of the fourth ballot was watched with intense interest. Every announcement of additions to McLean's strength was greeted with wild applause. Texas and West Virginia threw their votes solid to Daniel.

New Mexico divided her six votes between McLean and Sewell.

The contest had narrowed down to a race between McLean and Sewell. Intense excitement.

When John Powers announced that Illinois cast 48 votes for McLean there was a scene of wild confusion. Men surged about the Illinois standard.

Ex-Congressman Fithian jumped on a chair and shouted: "I am in receipt of a telegram from Mr. Bland. He deems it unwise and impolitic to nominate him as a candidate from west of the Mississippi river. He directs me to say that the nomination of Bryan has his warm and hearty approval and thinks the nomination of vice-president should be made for one object, strengthen the ticket, and that he desires his name withdrawn." The Bland men cheered.

The convention was in an uproar. Fithian continued to protest. At last order was restored and the roll of the delegation was called. It showed 28 votes for McLean, 10 for Sewell, and 10 absent. But under the unit rule the 48 votes went to McLean.

RESULT OF FOURTH BALLOT.

McLean..... 296
Sewell..... 261
Williams (Mass.)..... 190
Shively..... 180
Clark..... 120
Daniel..... 100
Fithian..... 80

Miller, of Oregon, presented the name of Penoyer as "one who could secure the votes of the laboring men."

California struck hands with Maine, William A. Burke naming the veteran Democrat, Arthur Sewell, of the far east.

J. W. Shawalter, of Missouri, told the convention that it should go to the east to select a statesman, not a profound orator indeed, who carried the banner, and who in a Republican district had been sent to congress by an overwhelming majority. This man was Sewell.

C. S. Thomas, of Colorado, advised the convention to go to the east and select "some solid, conservative, sound business man, the sails of whose vessels whiten the sea of the world, Sewell, of Maine."

Gov. Culberson, of Texas, mounted a chair to tell the convention that that state would cast her vote for Bland.

BEHOLD THE SILVER LINING.

"Democracy has parted the cloud and behold there is a silver lining," was the metaphor with which O. W. Powers, of Utah, caught the attention of the assembly. He dwelt in eloquent sentences upon the valor, statesmanship and chivalry of a man concerning whose identity he kept the convention in suspense. He said: "You say the south is not ready for recognition, but I say for you that she is arisen from her ashes and is leading the country in this great fight. Without his request, without his knowledge and without the knowledge of his state, I present the name of Hon. J. W. Daniel, of Virginia."

The name of the Virginia senator, who made such a valorous fight before the convention as its temporary chairman, was more enthusiastically received than any who had preceded.

Richardson, chairman of the Virginia delegation, regretfully announced that under no circumstances would Daniel be a candidate.

A delegate from Illinois, P. M. Morris, seconded Sibley's nomination "on behalf of Illinois."

Richardson, acting chairman of the Ohio delegation, withdrew McLean's name, but he pledged the vote of Ohio to the nominee.

Fithian, of Illinois, withdrew his name. He seconded the nomination of Sibley.

The real cause of Bryan's nomination was the stamped in his favor at the close of his great speech on Thursday. He scarcely left the platform, when the applause of the multitude, Judge Gatwood, of the Texas delegation, an original Bryan man, and holding it high, carried it in triumph over to the Nebraska delegation and placed it by the standard of Nebraska. He was followed by Georgia, Louisiana, Utah and other states, until two-thirds of the standards of all the states were clustered around the Nebraska and Texas. The audience went wild.

OVERWHELMED WITH CONGRATULATIONS.

Chicago, July 11.--Mr. Bryan received 1,600 telegrams of congratulation before he retired last night. The messages are still pouring in. Among the messages are the following:

"Waterloo, Iowa, July 10.--Accept Iowa's most hearty congratulations. [Signed] HORACE BOERS."

"American, Ga., July 10.--I tender most hearty congratulations on your nomination. [Signed] CHAS. F. CHIEF."

"You and the people of your country have been elected to the presidency. My services are at your command, and, as our cause is just and right, the masses will give us victory. [Signed] J. S. BLACKBURN."

Ex-Gov. Alva Adams, of Colorado, wired: "Thank God we are to have a president who knows that the western boundary of our country is beyond the Mississippi."

BRYAN WILL CARRY IOWA.

Waterloo, Iowa, Of Bryan's nomination Gov. Boies said: "I think it the very strongest ticket that could be made for the doubtful states of the north west, which are Kansas, Nebraska, North Dakota, Minnesota, Iowa, Illinois, Indiana and Michigan, with probably Wisconsin added." The governor believes that Bryan will carry Iowa.

Omaha,--Senator Allen said that the nomination of Bryan was very pleasing to him, but politically he was not in a position to say whether he would give him his support. He would wait until the Populist party decided what to do.

KANSAS POPULISTS FOR BRYAN.

Topeka, Kas.--The Kansas delegates to the Populist national convention will vote to endorse Bryan's nomination.

Talk of a Gold Standard Bill.

Chicago, July 11.--The talk of an independent Democratic ticket is still in embryo form and lacks the powerful influence that New York, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania and other strongholds can give it. The only definite step in that direction has been taken at a meeting of the Illinois delegation, when the committee, headed by the Hon. J. W. Shawalter, ex-Congressman Ben T. Cable, Franklin McVengh, and John P. Hopkins, at which resolutions were prepared favoring the nomination of independent candidates on a gold platform. It was agreed that the Texas delegates, who failed to secure seats in the convention, and by scattered representation in other states. Until New York and other large centers have spoken, however, an independent move will not take definite form.

THE TEXAS GOLDBUGS.

Chicago,--After a conference between the gold Democrats of Illinois and the independent Democrats from Texas to represent the anti-silver sentiment of that state, the following card was issued: "The undersigned, elected by the Democrats of the convention in Texas to attend the national convention at Chicago, do hereby operate with any Democrats there met together for the preservation of the integrity of the Democratic party and the perpetuation of its principles, hereby heartily endorse the action of the Illinois Democracy in calling for a Democratic national convention to nominate a candidate for president and vice-president and adopt a platform of Democratic principles. [Signed] Rufus Hardy, George Clark, E. S. Conner, E. W. Haeley, D. C. Bollinger, G. A. Read."

Bland Stands Firm.

Lebanon, Mo., July 11.--Richard P. Bland has been overwhelmed with appeals from friends to accept the nomination for vice-president. He positively declined. This afternoon, in an interview with a Western Associated Press reporter, Mr. Bland said that he preferred to go to congress and there continue the fight for free silver.

Teller Speaks.

Denver, July 11.--Senator Teller most heartily approves the Democratic ticket. He says Bryan and Sewell will sweep the country like a cyclone.

The Platform.

Following is the Democratic national platform as adopted by the convention: We, the Democrats of the United States, in national convention assembled, reaffirm our allegiance to the great essential principles of justice and liberty upon which our institutions are founded and which the Democratic party has advocated since Jefferson's time to our own--freedom of speech, freedom of the press, the protection of the people's life and property, personal rights, equality of all citizens before the law, and the faithful observance of constitutional limitations.

During all these years the Democratic party has resisted the tendency of selfish interests to concentrate in government mental power, and has steadfastly maintained the integrity of the dual scheme of government as established by the founders of this republic of republics. Under its guidance and teachings the great Republic has achieved the greatest triumphs of civilization and the maintenance of the rights of the states and the assertion of the necessity of confining the general government to the exercise of the powers granted it by the constitution of the United States.

FREE COINAGE.

Recognizing the money question as paramount to all others at the time, we invite attention to the fact that the federal constitution names silver and gold together as the money metals of the United States, and that the first coinage law passed by congress under the constitution was the act of March 3, 1792, which provided for the minting of gold and silver coins, and admitted gold to free coinage at a ratio based upon the silver dollar unit.

We declare that the act of 1873, demonetizing silver without the knowledge or approval of the American people, has resulted in the appreciation of gold, and a corresponding fall in the prices of commodities produced by the people, a heavy increase in the burden of taxation and of all debts public and private, the enrichment of the money lending class at the expense of the laboring class, and the fact of enrichment and waste should be deemed conclusive evidence against disease or disability before enactment.

NEW MEXICO AND ARIZONA.

We favor the admission of the territories of New Mexico and Arizona into the Union as states, and we favor the early admission of all territories having the necessary population and the resources to entitle them to statehood, and while they remain territories we hold that the officials appointed to administer the government of any territory, together with the District of Columbia and Alaska, should be bona fide residents of the territory or district in which their duties are to be performed. The Democratic party believes in home rule, and that all the public lands of the United States should be appropriated to the establishment of free homes for American citizens.

UNION SOLDIERS.

Recognizing the just claims of deserving Union soldiers, we heartily endorse the rule of the present commissioner of pensions that no names shall be arbitrarily dropped from the pension rolls, and that the fact of enlistment and service should be deemed conclusive evidence against disease or disability before enactment.

PACIFIC FUNDING BILL.

No discrimination should be indulged in by the government of the United States in favor of any of its debtors. We approve of the refund of the 5th congress to pass the Pacific railroad funding bill, and denounce the effort of the present congress to enact a similar measure.

WE RECOMMEND THAT THE TERRITORY OF ALASKA BE GRANTED A DELEGATE IN CONGRESS, AND THAT THE GENERAL LAND AND TIMBER LAWS OF THE UNITED STATES BE EXTENDED TO SAID TERRITORY.

INTERNAL IMPROVEMENTS.

The federal government should care for and improve the Mississippi river and other great water-ways of the republic, so as to secure for the interior states easy and cheap transportation to tide water. When any water-way of the republic is of sufficient importance to demand aid of the government, such aid should be extended upon a definite plan of continuous work until permanent improvement is secured.

CIVIL SERVICE AND THIRD TERM.

We are opposed to life tenure in public service. We favor appointments based upon merit, fixed terms of office, and such an administration of the civil service laws as will afford equal opportunities to all citizens of ascertained fitness. We declare it to be the unwritten law of this republic, established by the custom and usage of 100 years and sanctioned by the examples of the greatest and wisest of those who founded and have maintained our government, that no man shall be eligible for a third term of presidential office.

APPEAL TO THE PEOPLE.

Confident of the justice of our cause and the necessity of its success at the polls, we submit the foregoing declaration of principles and purposes to the considerate judgment of the American people. We invite the support of all plea of protection to home industry, proved a prolific breeder of trusts and monopolies, enriched the few at the expense of the many, restricted trade and deprived the producers of our great American staples of access to their natural markets. Until the money question is settled, we are opposed to any agitation for further changes in our tariff laws except such as are necessary to make good the deficit in the revenue caused by the adverse decision of the supreme court on the income tax law.

INCOME TAX.

But for this decision by the supreme court there would be no deficit in the revenue under the law passed by a Democratic congress, in strict pursuance of the uniform decisions of that court for nearly 100 years, and that the court having under that decision sustained the constitutional objections to its enactment which had been overruled by the ablest judges who have ever sat on that bench. We declare that it is the duty of congress to use all constitutional power which remains after that decision or which may come from its reversal by the court, as it may hereafter be constituted, so that the burdens of taxation may be equally and impartially divided. We say that the wealth may bear its due proportion of the expenses of government.

ARBITRATION.

We are in favor of arbitration of differences between employers engaged in interstate commerce and their employees, and recommend such legislation as is necessary to carry out this principle.

RESTRICTING IMMIGRATION.

We hold that the most efficient way of protecting American labor is to prohibit the importation of foreign pauper labor to compete with it in the home market, and that the value of the home market to our American farmers and artisans is greatly reduced by the vicious monetary system which depresses the price of their products below the cost of production, and thus deprives them of the means of purchasing the products of our home manufacturers.

RAILWAYS AND CORPORATIONS.

The absorption of wealth by the few, the consolidation of our leading railway systems, and the formation of trusts and pools require a stricter control by the federal government of the arteries of commerce. We demand the enlargement of the powers of the interstate-commerce commission and such restrictions and guarantees in control of railroads as will protect the people from robbery and oppression.

REPUBLICAN EXTRAVAGANCE.

We denounce the profligate waste of money wrong from the people by oppressive taxation, and the lavish appropriations of recent Republican congresses which have kept taxes high, while the labor that pays them is unemployed, and the products of the people's toil are depressed in price till they no longer repay the cost of production. We demand a return to that simplicity and economy which befits a Democratic government, and a reduction in the number of useless and expensive offices which drain the substance of the people.

FEDERAL INTERFERENCE.

We denounce arbitrary interference by the federal authorities in local affairs as a violation of the constitution of the United States and a crime against free institutions, and we especially object to government interference by injunction as a new and highly dangerous form of oppression by which federal judges, in contempt of the laws of states and the rights of citizens, become at once legislators, judges and executioners, and we approve the bill passed at the last session of the United States senate and now pending in the house, relative to contempt in federal courts and providing for trials by jury in certain cases of contempt.

A Missourian's Tribute.

Judged by the ancient canons of criticism established by Cicero, Longinus and Lord Kames, incomparatively the greatest orators in the 5th congress were Col. William C. P. Breckinridge, of Kentucky, and William Jennings Bryan, of Nebraska. Col. Breckinridge inherits eloquence as an ancestral gift on both sides of the house and has few peers in this fine art of swaying men's minds and hearts by power of spoken words. Back of the speaker's stand is a large hall called the speaker's lobby, upon whose historic and frescoed walls hang life-sized pictures of all the men who in this great art of swaying men's minds and hearts by power of spoken words. Back of the speaker's stand is a large hall called the speaker's lobby, upon whose historic and frescoed walls hang life-sized pictures of all the men who in this great art of swaying men's minds and hearts by power of spoken words.

Whether the Nebraska plunger, his ideas as deep into the minds of men as did the Pennsylvania, is an entirely different question; for as late as 1894 the line of cleavage made by Randall in the Democratic party on the tariff was easily discernible to the naked eye when seventeen of his disciples bolted the Wilson bill, and several others had the will to bolt, but lacked the courage.

Bryan is a collegiate scholar, and has stowed away in his capacious cranium much of the golden grain of wisdom and much of the husk, and it is all there for the other as argument of unbelittlement. Some men are so ugly and ungainly that it is a positive advantage to them as public speakers. Some are so handsome and graceful that they are on good terms with the audience before they open their lips. The latter class Bryan is a shining example. His appearance is a passport to the affections of his fellowmen, which all can read. He is the picture of health, mental, moral and physical. He stands about five feet ten, weighs about 170, is a pronounced brunette, has a massive nose, a clean-shaven face, an aquiline nose, large under jaw, square chin, a broad chest, large, lustrous dark eyes, a mouth extending almost from ear to ear, teeth white as pearls, and hair--what there is left of it black as midnight. Beneath his eyes is the protuberant flesh which physiologists tell us is indicative of fluency of language and which was one of the most striking features in the face of James G. Blaine.

Bryan neglects none of the necessities of oratory. Nature richly endowed him with rare grace. He is happy in attitude and pose. His gestures are on Hogarth's line of beauty. Melifluous is the one word that most aptly describes his voice. It is strong enough to be heard by those in the back of the hall, and it is so modulated as not to vex the ear with monotony and can be stern or pathetic, fierce or gentle, serious or humorous with the varying emotions of his master. In his youth Bryan must have had a skillful teacher in elocution and must have been a docile pupil. He adorns his speeches with illustrations from the classics or from the common occurrences of every-day life with equal felicity and facility. Some passages from his orations are gems and are being used as declamations by boys at school--the ultimate tribute to American eloquence.

But his crowning gift as an orator is his evident sincerity. He is candor incarnate, and, thoroughly believing what he says himself, it is no marvel that he makes others believe.

Bryan's first speech in the house--the one on the tariff in 1892--fixed his status as one of the crack orators of this generation. It astonished stagers, electrified the country and stimulated the ambition of every young man in the land. Eloquent carpers ludicrously predicted that he could never duplicate that far-reaching performance, that he would be like a wisp of straw, and that his career would be a brief and uneventful one.

But his crowning gift as an orator is his evident sincerity. He is candor incarnate, and, thoroughly believing what he says himself, it is no marvel that he makes others believe.

There is a popular fallacy to the effect that a man who can speak excellently well will not work. Bryan is a living refutation of all such idle claptrap. He never shirked any labor nor shrank from any task. The orators do the drudgery work of committees and attend to their routine duties as faithfully and effectively as the dumb oxen. Of course some of them will not work, just as there are voiceless ones who are indolent as a sloth. My observation was that as a rule the men who ran the committees dominated the house.

While Bryan did not rank among the "funny men" of the house, as has in him a rich vein of humor, little evidence of which appears in his speeches, but which lends a charm to his conversation. He gave this interesting account of his introduction to an audience when he was about to make his debut as a stump-speaker on the plains, which will recall to diverse orators some rich experiences of their own in being presented to public assemblies: "During my first run for congress, one venerable Democrat introduced me first as a candidate for the state senate, then for the United States senate, and, at the third attempt, after a little coaxing, got it right." Bryan was to test his oratorical wings at some out of the way place near Lincoln, and was campaigning to make acquaintances to help him in his law practice as much as in his political aspirations. He had turned over several modes of introduction in his mind and finally asked the chairman, a genuine "son of the old sod," to introduce him simply as "William J. Bryan, an attorney-at-law from Lincoln," which, if he made a taking speech, he hoped would bring him clients. All of this he saw go glimmering, when the chairman, adding a little and abstracting from the formula, said: "Ladies and gentlemen, Mithier O'Brien will now speak to ye"--which probably did the orator more good than the one he had desired.

Bryan went down to defeat with the goodliest company that the field multi-tude ever condemned to walk the plank since that not too exhilarating performance was invented among men. But his star will emerge from its temporary occultation to glow with constantly augmenting splendor. A former husband, a fond father, a Christian statesman in the real sense of the term, a man of letters, he will yet realize the desire of his heart--The applause of listening senates to command.

The tributes of pain and ruin to despoil. To scatter plenty o'er a smiling land And read his history in a nation's eyes.

CHAMP CLARK.

Death of Oklahoma Harry Hill.

Wichita, Kans., July 11.--Oklahoma Harry Hill is dead from concussion of the brain, caused by a fall from a buggy. Hill was one of the most picturesque characters of the border and in the days became immensely wealthy in the cattle business. The opening of Oklahoma to home-stead settlement was largely the result of this unique person.

SATURDAY, JULY 11.

ALL New Mexico rejoices over the nomination of Wm. J. Bryan. He's all right!

The Hon. Henry M. Teller, of Colorado, will make an excellent secretary of the treasury.

The Hon. Wm. J. Bryan made his own nominating speech. In this respect he equals the martyred Garfield.

BRYAN'S nomination means a clear cut, clean contest between goldbugism and the free coinage principle. That ought to suit everybody.

By the way, where does the Hon. John G. Carlisle come in on this play? And we wonder what the Hon. J. Sterling Morton thinks of it all, anyhow?

Wool growers and cattle raisers of New Mexico, note what the Democratic party has to say in your behalf—and hold your products for the good times coming.

The writers of doggerel killed off Silver Dick in short order. It always weakens a man in the estimation of the masses when you go to taffyzing him in verse.

BEFORE he gets through with his job William J. Bryan, of Nebraska, will show Col. Bill McKinley that his acquaintance with Napoleon is very limited.

HANNA acted as a Hibernian when he selected pampas grass as the emblem of the Republicans for the campaign. It is not a native American plant, and it is a member of the reed family.

BRYAN'S nomination again demonstrates that the favorite son idea won't work. A popular outburst of public sentiment is back of it, and it will land the "boy orator" in the White house.

MISS FRANKLIN WILLARD is making inquiries regarding the properties of the X rays, with a view to using them in giving the drunkard a sight of his alleged diseased stomach. Miss Willard's plan will, if it works, be more effective than a prairie dog hole full of red and green snakes.

BRAND'S and Matthews' supporters, and even Tillman's rushed to the support of the great young western commoner yesterday in a manner to do themselves credit. But as Senator Vest long ago said, the southern group of states held the key to the result. New York, New Jersey and Connecticut were not in it. The seat of Democratic empire no longer rests in that backwater.

"THE best women are necessarily the most difficult to know. They are recognized chiefly in the happiness of their husbands and the nobleness of their children." We find this beautiful sentiment in the Albuquerque Citizen's editorial column. But the Citizen doesn't print it all. As it originally appeared in the Philadelphia American the closing sentence ran thus: "They are only to be divined, not discerned, by the stranger."

FAILED TO SCORE THEIR POINT.

Catron and Pedro Perea temporarily captured the convention of New Mexico wool growers at Las Vegas on Tuesday, but their reign did not last long. Catron, for instance, was on duty just long enough to display his usual partnership in predicting the downfall of Democracy. Then the committee on resolutions came in and positively repudiated McKinley's wool schedule, and M. W. Brown, of Las Vegas, was elected permanent president. These little things are quite enough to convince us that the Republican boss and his candidate for governor—in the remote possibility of McKinley's election—lacked a great deal of converting that assembling of New Mexico wool growers into a McKinley machine.

There are 20,000 good men and true interested in wool growing in New Mexico. Only 100 of these were present at this meeting, but the other 19,900 will all come pretty near voting the Democratic ticket this fall now that the national Democracy has officially declared its policy to be, "That we favor a tariff sufficient to defray the necessary expenses of the government economically administered, and so adjusted as not to discriminate against the industries of any section and especially the raw materials of the south and west including their wool, hides, sheep, cattle and other live stock interests."

Under all the circumstances the New Mexican quite agrees with the delegates present at this woolgrowers' meeting that it is wise for sheep men to hold on to their sheep and not dispose of them, "as it is believed that better times will prevail at no distant date."

WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN.

The nomination of William Jennings Bryan, of Nebraska, for president of the United States yesterday afternoon by the Democratic national convention at Chicago, was a conspicuous instance of the unexpected happening. And probably no one was more surprised by the sudden turn of events than the distinguished son of Illinois and the adopted son of Nebraska himself.

While Mr. Bryan has for several years been recognized by the people as one of the most courageous, aggressive, uncompromising and powerful champions of American bimetalism, and while he has long labored with unwavering zeal, energy and singleness of purpose to bring about conditions that would unite the silver forces in one harmonious whole under the banner of the great Democratic party, he was never consciously a candidate for the position of standard-bearer in this mighty struggle and hardly seems to have thought of himself as a presidential possibility.

He stepped boldly and confidently into the magnificent arena at Chicago as the earnest and resolute advocate of the great economic principle that more closely concerns the people than any other, and, manifestly forgetful of self and solemnly pledged by words and actions to support the cause first and men second, he threw his whole soul into the momentous work of the convention. He made a speech day before yesterday that simply electrified his 20,000 eager auditors and instantly marked him as probably the greatest living orator.

As he stood before that grand gathering of grand men from every state and territory in the Union, all unconsciously making his own nominating speech, the convention measured the masterful man, discovered that he was agiant in intellectual stature, with the fire of true patriotism burning within him, and decided as if by magic that he above all others was the leader raised up by unseen hands to carry the pure banner of silver to a glorious triumph in November. His nomination was assured from the moment he took his seat after that effort.

It was a splendid, spontaneous, irrepressible tribute to the man that has only one parallel in American annals—the nomination of James A. Garfield for president by the Republican national convention in 1880—and happily in the case of Mr. Bryan the popular tribute is not tainted with even the color of a suspicion of treachery to a friend or unfaithfulness to a personal trust. Mr. Bryan was pledged to none of the good men and true who sought the nomination; he was pledged only to the cause.

Mr. Bryan was born in Illinois on March 19, 1856, and is consequently younger in years than any previous candidate for president of the United States; but during the two terms he served in congress he displayed ability of the highest order as an orator and a statesman and when he retired from that body he easily ranked as the peer of the ablest and most experienced public man of the nation. Although a lawyer by profession, having studied under such an eminent jurist as Lyman Trumbull, since his retirement from congress he has dedicated his superb talents as a speaker and a writer to the righteous cause of silver and thus has attained such commanding rank as a 16 to 1 bimetalist that his nomination by the Democrats settles all doubt as to united action on the part of the friends of the shining white metal. His sincerity of purpose, his fearless devotion to principle, his lofty patriotism, his stainless purity of private life, his rare natural gifts of mind and heart and polished culture combine to make him almost an ideal candidate.

Of course the Republican apostles of gold and greed will make haste to charge Mr. Bryan with "the atrocious crime of being a young man." It is the only argument they can urge against him, and it will have about as much weight with the American people as would the charge that he has neglected to write an encyclopedia or has failed to translate the Hebrew bible into English. Napoleon was the dictator of Europe at the age of 29 and emperor of France at 34; Patrick Henry made his great effort against the infamous stamp act at the age of 29; Alexander Hamilton made a wonderful speech in favor of American liberty at the age of 17 and "touched the dead body of public credit" and filled it with life as secretary of the treasury under Washington at the age of 34; William Pitt ruled England at the age of 29; Gladstone took his seat in the English parliament at the age of 23 years. In the light of those facts, let the goldbugs make the most of the objection that Mr. Bryan is only in his 37th year.

MERCURIAL POISON

Is the result of the usual treatment of blood disorders. The system is filled with Mercury and Potash remedies—more to be dreaded than the disease—and in a short while is in a far worse condition than before. The common result is for which S.S.S. is the most reliable cure. A few bottles will afford relief where all else has failed. I suffered from a severe attack of Mercurial Rheumatism, my arms and legs being swollen to twice their natural size, causing the most excruciating pains. I spent hundreds of dollars without relief, but after taking a few bottles of S.S.S. I improved rapidly and am now a well man, completely cured. I can heartily recommend it to any one suffering from this painful disease. W. F. DALEY, Brooklyn Elevated R.R.

NEW MEXICAN PRINTING COMPANY.

The PECOS VALLEY of . . . NEW MEXICO

OFFERS unequalled advantages to the farmer, fruit grower, live stock raiser, dairyman, bee-keeper, and to the home-seeker generally. The soil of the Pecos Valley is of high average fertility, and under irrigation produces bountiful crops of most of the grasses, grains, vegetables, berries and fruits of the temperate and some of those of the semi-tropical zone. In such fruit as the peach, pear, plum, grape, prune, apricot, nectarine, cherry, quince, etc., the Valley will dispute for the pre-eminence with California; while competent authority pronounces its upper portions in particular the finest apple country in the world. Enormous yields of such forage crops as alfalfa, sorghum and Egyptian corn make the feeding of cattle and sheep and the raising and fattening of hogs a very profitable occupation. The cultivation of sugarcane—a tanning material of great value—is becoming an important industry in the Pecos Valley, a home market having been afforded for all that can be raised, at a price yielding a handsome profit. The climate of the Pecos Valley has no superior in the United States, being pre-eminently healthful and health restoring. Lands with perpetual water-rights are for sale at low prices and on easy terms. The water supply of the Pecos Valley has no equal in all the arid region for constancy and reliability; and this with the superb climate, productive soil and the facilities afforded by the railway which extends through the Valley's entire length, will cause these lands to enjoy a constant, and at times rapid, increase in value. The recent completion of the Pecos Valley Railway to Roswell will cause the more rapid settlement and development of the upper portions of the Valley, including the rich Feltz section. The company has recently purchased many of the older improved farms about Roswell, and has now for sale lands to meet the wants of all—raw lands, partially improved lands, as well as farms with houses, orchards and fields of alfalfa and other crops. In the vicinity of Roswell several pieces of land have been divided into five and ten acre tracts, suitable for orchards and truck farms in connection with suburban homes. Certain of these tracts are being planted to orchards, and will be cultivated and cared for by the company for three years at the end of which period they will be handed over to the purchasers. Write for pamphlet fully describing the terms and conditions on which these several classes of tracts are sold. When the bowels are disordered. No time should be lost in resorting to a reliable remedy. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is the most reliable and widely esteemed medicine of its class. It removes the causes of constipation, or it induces relaxation of the intestines, which are usually indigestion or a misdirection of the bile. When it acts as a cathartic, it does not gripe and violently evacuate, but produces gradual and natural effects, very unlike those of a drastic purgative; and its power of assisting digestion nullifies those irritating conditions of the mucous membrane of the stomach and intestinal canal which produce first diarrhea, and eventual dysentery. The medicine is, moreover, an agreeable one, and eminently pure and wholesome. Appetite and tranquil nightly slumber are both promoted by it.

Gibbs, do you worry about financial affairs when you are in church? No! I always wear a very high, stiff collar so I can concentrate my thoughts.

Mrs. Rhodie Noah, of this place, was taken in the night with cramping pains and the next day diarrhoea set in. She took half a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and got no relief. She then sent me to see if I had anything that would help her. I sent her a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and the first dose relieved her. Another of our neighbors had been sick for about a week and had tried different remedies for diarrhoea but kept getting worse. I sent him this same remedy. Only four doses of it were required to cure him. He says he owes his recovery to this wonderful remedy.—Mrs. Mary Sibley, Sidney, Mich. For sale at Ireland's Pharmacy.

There was a Californian in Los Gatos twenty-five years ago who died and left the income of $900 to buy candy for the school children. The fund is still faithfully administered and in Los Gatos that man is bigger than Washington.

Last summer one of our grand children was sick with a severe bowel trouble. Our doctor's remedies had failed, then we tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which gave very speedy relief. We regard it as the best medicine ever put on the market for bowel complaints.—Mrs. E. G. Gregory, Fredericktown, Mo. This certainly is the best medicine ever put on the market for dysentery, summer complaint, colic and cholera infantum in children. It never fails to give prompt relief when used in reasonable time and the plain printed directions are followed. Many grateful have expressed their sincere gratitude for the cures it has effected. For sale at Ireland's Pharmacy.

A POINTER FOR BLOSSY.

To the Experienced Eye He Had no Chance of Success.

"Now, Blossy, come on. You promised to tell me all about it this morning."

"That's right, but it's an awful task. I'm a broken man, Tom. I can see nothing to live for. Memory is haunting and hope is dead."

"Pshaw, old boy. Throw your shoulders back, set your teeth, throw off those blue devils and face the world like a man. You're not the fellow to strike your flag at the first defeat. Act according to my tactics. Dearly lead up to the subject of your proposals and then go at her with a fervor of love that cannot be resisted."

"No, I'm an ass, a driveling idiot. I had a speech all made up, Tom. Oh, I thought it was a cuckoo. I mixed up entwining tendrils, the innermost temple of my heart, love's holy flame and all that kind of rot. Oh, yes, I had in a verse of poetry too."

"Well, that might do."

"It didn't do. I had my little proposal put at the alphabet. I repeated it a dozen times on the way to the house. After we'd talked a little I told her I had made up my mind to quit cigarettes, and when we shook hands over it I saw my opening, but my speech was gone as though it had never been. I turned pale, cleared my throat, stammered, spluttered, mopped my brow and shook like an aspen leaf."

"Why, Blossy?" she said, "you're ill. I'll call papa." You know the old gentleman's a doctor.

"No, not ill, Margie, only stricken with love!"

"Now, don't excite your brother, Blossy. Sit right down in that easy chair. I'll have papa with you in a minute. Keep real quiet, Blossy."

"But Margie, Margie—She was gone, and in came the old doctor, looking like grim adversity in the flesh. Had he worn thick shoes instead of slippers I would have jumped through the window. He felt my pulse, made me stick out my tongue, asked about my habits and even made me unbutton my vest while he listened to my heart. That was flimsy. Then he told me to get right home to bed and to remain quiet for a few days. Suppose I'll get a bill."

"And didn't she try to help you out at any stage of the proceedings?"

"Not once."

"Honey, you had better turn the tide of your affections in some other direction."—Detroit Free Press.

Some Are Like This.

The life insurance agent had returned by appointment, but the young man shook his head.

"I don't think I want a policy," he said. "But think of the benefits," protested the agent.

"I have," replied the young man, "and also of the drawbacks. I like to feel that I am a little bit independent, and in a measure, my own master, but that—"

"My dear sir, what has that to do with taking out a life insurance policy?" interrupted the agent.

"Everything," replied the young man. "You're trying to say anything about it when I'm trying to get me to take out a policy, but I find it all attended to in the 5,000 or 6,000 words of small type. That tells me that I cannot stir from one comparatively small spot on the globe without asking permission. If I do, it's all off, and I die at my own risk. I have to get the company's permission to go to Europe, I have to get its permission to go to Mexico, I have to get its permission to go to Alaska or even some parts of the United States. I shall have to inspect it every time I turn around to make sure I am not violating some of its provisions, and the wear and tear on my nerves would be so great as to materially shorten my life. Why, I'm not sure that I could play right a cock horse with the baby without getting the written consent of the president of your company."

The agent turned sadly away, for he realized that the young man had read the policy carefully and understandingly.—Chicago Post.

The Elder Was Frank.

Elder Baker, who flourished in a rural district of New England a good many years ago, was a strictly honest but painfully frank old man. One day he was approached by old Zeke Bill, a man of doubtful reputation, who said:

"Look here, elder, I want to make a request of you, an it's this: I want you to promise me that you'll preach my funeral sermon if you outlive me. Will you?"

"Why, certainly, Zeke, certainly."

"An I want you to preach it from the text, 'An honest man is the noblest work of God.'"

"I'll do it, Zeke; I'll do it, and I'll do it that I'm sorry there's such a poor specimen in the coffin."—New York World.

JAMES H. WALKER, Register.

A foul breath is one of the greatest afflictions that a man or woman can have. An affliction not only to themselves, but to those with whom they come in contact. A foul breath is a dreadful discourager of affection, or rather of the demonstration of affection. It would probably hurt more people only realized just what bad breath means. Bad breath is one of the symptoms of constipation. Some of the other symptoms of constipation are: loss of appetite, sick and bilious headache, dizziness, heartburn and distress after eating. These things mean indigestion. They lead to dyspepsia and worse things. They all start with constipation, and constipation is inexcusable because it can be cured—easily, quickly and permanently, by the use of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. They are a perfect remedy for this most common of all troubles. They give to nature just the little help that she needs. They are very mild in their action, and act without any violence whatever. In this, they are different from many preparations offered for a similar purpose. Sometimes the remedy is worse than the disease. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are mild, but they are infallibly efficient. They do the work which they are intended to do, without deranging the system in any way. They not only give immediate relief, but the benefit derived from them is permanent. You can stay with them by and by and there is no danger that you will become a slave to their use. The druggist who tries to sell you something else "just as good" does not know what he is talking about, or he makes more money on the other thing. If you care more for his property than you do for your own health, take the other thing. If you value your health, insist on having Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. A free sample, of from 4 to 7 doses, will be sent to any address.

A copy of Dr. Pierce's celebrated 1008 page book, "The Common Sense Medical Adviser," profusely illustrated, will be sent free on receipt of twenty cents (20 cents in one-cent stamps to cover cost of mailing only).

A story is told on Russell Sage to the effect that in 1894 he went to New York with a subscription book and asked his assistance for a worthy charity. Mr. Sage took the book, ran quickly through the list of names and saw that Mrs. Russell Sage was down for $25, so he promptly took his pen in hand and put Mr. and Mrs. Russell Sage.

OJO CALIENTE
(HOT SPRINGS.)

THESE Celebrated Hot Springs are located in the midst of the Ancient Cliff Dwellers, twenty-five miles west of Taos, and fifty miles north of Santa Fe, and about twelve miles from the Santa Fe and Rio Grande Railways, from which point a daily line of stages runs to the springs. The temperature of these waters is from 92 to 122 degrees. The gases are carbonic. Altitude 5,000 feet. Climate very dry and delightful the year round. There is now a commodious hotel for the convenience of invalids and tourists. These waters contain 108.3 grains of alkaline salts to the gallon; being the richest alkaline Hot Springs in the world. The efficacy of these waters has been thoroughly tested by the numerous cures attested to in the following diseases: Paralysis, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Consumption, Malaria, Bright's disease of the kidneys, Syphilis and Mercurial Affections, Scrofula, Catarrh, La Grippe, all Female Complaints, etc., etc. Board, Lodging and Bathing, $2.50 per day. Reduced rates given by the month. For further particular address—

SMELTER AT CERRILLOS.

The Mary Mining & Smelting Company Has Definitely Decided to Put a New Reduction Works at Little Pittsburg.

The New Mexican to-day enjoys the satisfaction of being able exclusively and definitely to announce that the work of erecting a new 65-ton smelter will be commenced at Cerrillos on or before August 1, and it will be completed in not to exceed sixty days from that date.

This positive statement is not based on loose talk let fly through anybody's mouth, but is made on the strength of an authority that can neither be doubted nor questioned.

Some weeks ago this paper announced that the Mary Mining & Smelting Company had filed articles of incorporation with the territorial secretary with Marion Balue as president, J. H. Vaughn as vice-president and treasurer and D. W. Manley as secretary.

Since then the promoters of this company have been quietly maturing their plans and completing the necessary arrangements to erect a smelter at Cerrillos for the treatment of the wet ores from its five large mines at Magdalena in connection with the dry ores of south Santa Fe county, Cochiti and other camps of this region.

The money required to carry out the enterprise on a strictly cash basis has been raised and is immediately available, and a desirable site in the south part of Cerrillos, consisting of ten acres, has been secured of Messrs. Easley, Rogers and others on mutually satisfactory terms. So the miners of central and northern New Mexico can base their future figures on the certainty that they can have their ores treated at Cerrillos within ninety days.

The plant will be new throughout and only the most improved machinery and appliances will be used. It will be constructed with a view to putting in more stacks as they are demanded.

SATURDAY SALAD.

MRS. SEA'S MARRIAGE.

One of the most interesting students at Redcliffe College, Cambridge, Mass., the past year was Mrs. Elinor Seymour Sea, a charming young widow, who registered from Chicago. She was conspicuous for the depth of her mourning. Even in the classroom she never removed the bonnet from which depended her heavy mourning veil. The only flowers she ever wore were violets, and she appeared with a fresh cluster of these every day.

Her college work, which was not very heavy, consisted of one of the courses in English. Late in April, Mrs. Sea announced her engagement to Mr. Andrew Squire, of the law firm of Squire, Sanders & Dempsey, of Cleveland, Ohio. Straightaway every sign of mourning was banished, and Mrs. Sea became distinguished for her gay attire. A most elaborate trousseau was prepared, and the wedding took place on Tuesday, June 29, in the presence of a few friends, Bishop Leonard, of Ohio, officiating.

Mrs. Squire's first husband was Guy Sea, at one time a newspaper man in Chicago, New York and Mexico. He left his widow a considerable fortune. Mr. Squire is a close friend of Mark Hanna, and it has been said that the latter will ask for his appointment as attorney general if McKinley is elected president.—Herald, City of Mexico.

SMALL TALK.

Mrs. N. C. Collier, of Albuquerque, is entertaining her sisters and niece, of Georgia.

Sister Victoria has gone on a trip to the Sisters of Charity mother house at Cincinnati.

Col. Frost leaves this evening for El Paso, Texas, on legal business. He will be absent several days.

Miss Gulliford's pupils and a number of friends spent the day picnicing in the Rio Santa Fe canon.

Rev. C. L. Bovard left yesterday to spend several days in Rio Arriba county. He will preach at Chama to-morrow.

Bishop Kendrick and wife will spend the summer here as guests of Col. and Miss Jones, at the U. S. Indian School.

Mr. S. Wedeles and daughter, Miss Emma Wedeles, have gone to house-keeping in Denver in a pleasant home at 1417 South 13th street.

Mrs. Johnson and son, of Ramona Indian school, and Mr. C. H. Lamar, of the government Indian school, have gone to Lawrence, Kas., to attend the summer institute.

Mr. John H. Riley, of Denver, is in the city on business. He is now vice-president of the Alfalfa Land & Cattle company, having extensive feeding ranches at Fowler, Colo.

Mr. and Mrs. Sherrard Coleman are rejoicing over the advent of a fine girl babe at their home. Many friends will join the New Mexican in extending warmest congratulations.

Rev. G. S. Madden and family, Prof. and Mrs. McConnell, Miss Hankey and Miss Reason leave on Monday for a three weeks' outing on the upper Pecos. They will occupy one of Mr. Cowan's cabins on Cow creek, where good fishing, spring chickens, butter milk and vegetables are right at hand.

Mr. Arthur Seligman stole a march on his friends. He and Mrs. Frank L. Harris were married at Cleveland, Ohio, on July 4. Rev. Mr. Watt, a Presbyterian minister, officiated. Mr. and Mrs. Seligman arrived home on Thursday. A host of friends tender congratulations and best wishes.

Mr. M. T. Morarity is a visitor from the south end of the county in town to-day. He says the yoking of tariff on wool with silver by the Chicago convention will bring all the wool raisers of New Mexico to the support of Democracy. He is holding his wool clip for the good times that will follow the election of Bryan in November.

To Willie Thayer, the bright and attentive messenger boy for the Western Union Telegraph company, the New Mexican desires to publicly express its thanks. The Western Union gave us the first news of the vice-presidential nomination and Willie lost no time in rushing the fact to this office.

Mr. J. J. Clark, inspector of postoffice buildings, spent yesterday in the city and made a host of admiring friends. He says Santa Fe's postoffice will be materially improved at an early day. Mr. Clark is a Missourian of the all wool and yard-wide variety.

Wm. McIntosh, the Chilili wool grower, is hobnobbing with Santa Fe friends to-day. At Las Vegas yesterday he sold his wool clip of 200,000 pounds to Eisemann Bros., of Boston and Albuquerque. Terms private.

Political Notes.
Mr. Bryan's personal friends in Santa Fe are now almost as numerous as the kink of McKinley and Hobart.

A bushel of congratulatory telegrams poured in on the next president from New Mexico last night.

The people of Santa Fe certainly found out last evening that a Democrat had been nominated for the presidency. Secretary Miller and others made speeches in the plaza pagoda. There was plenty of patriotic music, red fire and all the accessories that go to stir the popular mind. A large and well executed transparency showing the face of Mr. Bryan was carried at the head of the procession and everybody shouted for the cause of the people.

Adjutant General Knaebel last night sent to Mr. Bryan a dispatch worded thus: "Most hearty congratulations. Victory is perched on your banners emblazoned with God's own free silver light."

The following came to hand this morning: To Geo. H. Cross, Editor, New Mexican, Santa Fe.

Silver City, N. M., July 10.—We are out of the wilderness! Hurrah for Bryan and Democracy's platform! The convention could not have done better. The friends of free coinage will unite and sweep the country.
(Signed) D. P. Carr.

KINDERGARTEN WORK.

Mrs. N. P. Hill, of Denver, writes interestingly to Santa Fe Board of Education on the Subject.

Recently Secretary Lutz, of the Santa Fe board of education, communicated with Mrs. N. P. Hill, of Denver, on the subject of the kindergarten work in that city with a view to adding a kindergarten feature to the public schools of this city.

Mrs. Hill replies that no apology is needed for addressing her on the subject, as the establishment and extension of kindergartens is her chief work. She says that the Denver kindergarten training school is proving a perfect success under the management of Prof. Dick; that this school graduated eighteen young women in June; that the graduates from this school are as well equipped for the work of teachers as the graduates of any similar school in the land.

She adds that the salaries of kindergarten directors in Denver run from $60 to $75 per month and that assistants are paid $25 per month. These latter are girls, still in the training school, who get the practical part of their education as assistants under the directors.

Mrs. Hill continues: "One great feature of our work is the holding of mothers' meetings, to lead parents up to a true knowledge of what kindergartens mean. Too many people, uninformed, regard them merely as nurseries to relieve our burdened mothers of some of their labors. Our graduates are splendidly trained in this branch of the work."
