POPULISTS INDORSE BRYAN

In Spite of His Protests, Silver Democracy's Candidate Was Made the Nominee of the Populists at St. Louis this Afternoon.

FAILURE TO INDORSE SEWALL REGRETTED

If Tom Watson is the Sincere Supporter of Silver That He Professes to Be, He Will Correct the Convention's Blunder By Withdrawing.

THE NATIONAL COMMITTEE GIVEN PLENARY AUTHORITY

No Doubt Entertained That Order Will Finally Be Brought Out of the "Confusion Worse Confounded" Caused By Hanna's Gold and Middle-of-the-Road Foolishness and That the Populists Will Give Their Support to Both Bryan and Sewall.

Populists Went Wild Last Night.

St. Louis, July 25.—When the Populist national convention reassembled last night, the majority report on platform having been adopted, nominations for the vice-presidency were in order. Bowman, of Alabama, placed in nomination the name of Barney Gibbs, of Texas; L. A. Pence, of New York, formerly of Colorado, nominated Sewall, of Maine; there was surprise and immense enthusiasm over his speech. Boatman, of Maine, nominated Page, of Virginia.

Then ex-Congressman Tom Watson, of Georgia, the man who became famous by his query, "Where are we at?" was placed in nomination for the vice-presidency and the convention went wild.

On the roll call of states Watson received the nomination. There was a great deal of hilarity over the announcement of the result. It was plain that the middle-of-the-road people had carried their radicalism too far, and fears were expressed on all sides that complications might ensue that would entirely disrupt the Populist party organization. This was the sentiment which the convention adjourned at midnight.

Bryan Will Not Accept.

St. Louis, July 25.—The following will explain itself: July 25.—To William J. Bryan, Lincoln, Neb.—The Populists will nominate vice-president first. If it is not Sewall, what shall we do? I favor your declaration in that case. Answer quick. [Signed.] J. A. JONES, Chairman National Democratic Committee.

Lincoln, Neb.—Senator James K. Jones, Chairman National Democratic Committee, St. Louis.—I fully agree with you. Withdraw my name if Sewall is not nominated. [Signed.] W. J. BRYAN.

Temper of Convention This Morning.

St. Louis, July 25.—The temper of the convention, when it met to-day, was to nominate Bryan in spite of the telegram that passed between Jones and Mr. Bryan. Some of the Bryan men think that they ought to indorse him instead of nominating him as this will not involve an acceptance or declination.

The temper of the middle-of-the-road men is much more moderate than heretofore. They seemed to be satisfied with their victory last night and their apparent control of the convention that they are disposed to be generous. They are not intimated by their success, though many say that they are willing to nominate Bryan if he will accept, laying particular stress on the words, "if he will accept," some adding, "on our platform."

The leaders of the Bryan forces say that they expect Bryan will be nominated practically by acclamation.

The Texas delegation has agreed upon the following resolution, which Stump Ashby will attempt to have read: "Resolved, By the Peoples party, in national convention assembled, That we stand ready to nominate Hon. W. J. Bryan for president of the United States, provided that he will accept the nomination on the platform we have adopted."

"Resolved further, That if Mr. Bryan is the patriot we think he is, he will rise above the party and be the hero of the hour, step into breaches and redeem this nation from the rule of plutocracy."

Fourth Day of Populist Convention.

St. Louis, Mo., July 25.—There was inextinguishable confusion on the floor of the Auditorium before the convention met to-day. The delegates stood about in animated groups discussing the situation and what was best to do.

The Bryan feeling was very strong, but the telegram from the Nebraska declaring that he would not accept the nomination rendered the situation chaotic. Many desired to nominate Bryan in face of the telegram.

Tom Patterson, of Colorado, and ex-Gov. Llewellyn, of Kansas, counseled the indorsement of Bryan instead of nominating him, pointing out that an indorsement, which did not require acceptance, was a way out of the tangle.

"Cyclone" Davis and other radicals, however, insisted that he could not refuse, and if he did, the responsibility for disaster at the polls would rest on the Democracy, not on the Populists.

CALLED TO ORDER BY SENATOR ALLEN.

Senator Allen called the convention to order at 9:30 a. m. and announced that the first thing in order was the selection of the members of the national committee to notify the candidates for president and vice-president.

Several resolutions were presented and referred without reading.

The chairman then called for nominations for president, and Judge Green, of Nebraska, took the stand to place Mr. Bryan in nomination, but he was retired by the point of order that the states must be called in alphabetical order.

When Alabama was called, Gov. Kolb, yielded to Gen. Weaver, of Iowa, but Col. Gaither, of Alabama, got to the platform first and injected a speech about joining the cotton fields of the south with the wheat fields of the west.

At the conclusion of his remarks, Gen. Weaver came forward and formally placed Mr. Bryan in nomination.

WEAVER DESIRED NO APPLAUSE.

Gen. Weaver asked the convention not to applaud and the delegates listened to him without much demonstration, but when he concluded by naming "that splendid young statesman, William J. Bryan," the convention broke loose. Cheers followed cheer. The delegates jumped to their chairs and flags, handkerchiefs, coats and state guidons were waved in wild confusion.

Through one of the side entrances four men carried a big yellow cross four by eight feet in size surmounted by a crown of thorns. On it were inscribed the eloquent words with which Bryan closed his brilliant speech at Chicago: "You shall not press this crown of thorns upon the brow of labor. You shall not crucify mankind upon the cross of gold."

A big crayon portrait of the Nebraska statesman was also carried into the hall. The cross, banners and state guidons were carried frantically about the pit.

DELIRIUM OF EXCITEMENT.

Then, with the cross leading, they were taken to the stage, where for five minutes they danced in confusion, while the delegates howled with delight.

Mr. Keppeler, of Nevada, who bore the cross, finally placed it at the edge of the stage and the banners of the states and flags descended to the pit and continued their demonstration there.

As the procession passed the Texas delegation, a free fight almost occurred. Men struggled and fought to bar the passage, but it was finally cleared.

Several men fought like mad over the possession of the Missouri standard. It was broken into bits, but the stalwart young Bryan men carried the pieces off in triumph to the platform, while the struggling disputants were separated by the police.

QUIET WAS RESTORED.

At 12:40 p. m., when quiet was restored, after seventeen minutes of bedlam, Gen. Field, of Virginia, who was Gen. Weaver's running mate in 1892, hobbled forward on his crutches and after a brief speech moved to suspend the rules and make Bryan's nomination unanimous.

The convention rose almost en masse and cheered, but above the cheers came the sharp retort from the Texas men, "No, no."

The chairman declared the motion carried, but, yielding to the protest, decided to allow a call of the states on the motion. The Texas men wildly protested and Chairman Allen at last recognized "Stump" Ashby for a "personal explanation."

Ashby, who has been the most disturbing factor in the convention, opened with a few cautious remarks about the docility of the Texas' nature and its world-wide conservatism and then announced that

TEXAS WAS READY TO INDORSE BRYAN if Bryan would accept the platform adopted.

Stump's speech was not well received. George Schilling, of Wisconsin, attempted to secure a recess until Bryan could be heard from, but he was howled down and Chairman Allen ordered the roll call to proceed.

Alabama and Arkansas were not ready. The greatest confusion prevailed. Colorado cast forty-five votes for the motion to suspend the rules and nominate Bryan.

Men stood on chairs and howled for recognition.

Congressman Howard, of Alabama, demanded to know whether other names could be placed in nomination.

The confusion grew so great that it was impossible to proceed.

The Texas delegation charged the platform en masse.

One of them shouted, "We will never be quiet if you continue that roll call."

"Sit down, sit down," cried the sergeant-at-arms, while his assistant ploughed through the dense crowd around the platform and pleaded with the delegates to take their seats.

Congressman Howard persisted.

When the semblance of quiet was restored, Congressman Howard protested against the indorsement of "Bryan law."

Chairman Allen stated the question to be on the motion to suspend the rules and nominate Bryan by acclamation.

"By God, we won't; we won't stand it," yelled B. H. Niles.

"Doesn't it require a two-thirds majority to carry that motion?" shouted an irate Kansas delegate.

The chairman replied that it did not.

A California delegate screamed that such proceedings were unheard of and unprecedented; he thought the delegates should have a chance to put in nomination whom they chose. The quietness of Populism, he said, was fair play. The chair held that, when the roll was called, the delegates could vote for Bryan or anyone else.

This ruling provoked another storm of protests and only confounded the confusion.

SECONDING BRYAN'S NOMINATION.

At last, as the only way of restoring order, Gen. Field withdrew his motion and the roll of states for nominations was continued.

T. B. Carter, of California, appeared to second Bryan. He said he had always stood against fusion, but said that the circumstances surrounding the present situation were peculiar. The Populist party was a young party and it could not afford to hold its place in the middle-of-the-road with an express train bearing down on it.

Speeches seconding Bryan's nomination were also made by K. H. Hines, of Georgia; W. H. Gaggert, of Idaho; Jerry Simpson, of Kansas; Taubeneck, of Illinois, who said he felt that he could pledge every Populist vote in Illinois for Bryan; Kolb, of Alabama, who appealed to the convention to sink prejudice and passion in the cause of silver and nominate Bryan.

The Texas delegation has withdrawn in a body and absolute quiet prevails for the first time during the day. They are in caucus, trying to decide upon a candidate.

NORTON PLACED IN NOMINATION.

Mr. Call, of New York, spoke against Bryan and placed in nomination Col. S. M. Norton, of Illinois, whom he eulogized as a man of the people and a pioneer in the cause of reform.

Mr. Donnelly, of Minnesota, seconded Bryan's nomination.

In seconding Bryan's nomination, E. G. Brown, of Massachusetts, said it was either "Bryan or silver or McKinley and hell and damnation."

E. S. Greece, of Michigan; Mrs. Lease, of Kansas; Judge Green, of Nebraska, and several others nominated Bryan.

Col. Livingston, of Missouri, put in nomination Ignatius Donnelly, of Minnesota, but when Donnelly declined the nomination, he nominated Gen. Jake S. Coxey, of Ohio.

BRYAN NOMINATED.

4:45 p. m.—Bryan has been nominated for president. The vote, including Minnesota, stood 436 for Bryan and 63 for Norton.

A motion was adopted giving the national committee plenary power to transact all the necessary business of the party after adjournment.

The convention then adjourned sine die.

Texas Telegram to Bryan.

St. Louis, July 25.—The following telegram has been sent: Hon. W. J. Bryan, Lincoln.—Will you accept the nomination for president of the United States on the platform the Populist party have adopted here in St. Louis. [Signed] MARIUS M. WILLIAMS, Delegate-at-large from Texas.

"Cyclone" Davis, who has been selected by Texas to second the nomination of Norton, says that Texas will put up Bryan and Norton electors and that the Democrats can not get the necessary vote of Texas unless Sewall is taken off the ticket. Texas, he says, would be willing to indorse Bryan in this convention if assured that he would accept the platform.

The Texas delegation has received information that their telegram to Bryan was delivered yet him at 12:25 and that no answer has yet been filed to it.

BRYAN AND SEWALL.

Silver Democracy's Champions Heartily Indorsed by National Silver Convention.

St. Louis, July 25.—The National silver organization closed its labors last night and adjourned sine die at 6:34. The platform is fashioned after the plan of the Democratic national platform, the financial plank being identical therewith. The nomination of Bryan and Sewall was unanimously indorsed amid the greatest enthusiasm. This is significant when it is considered that fully two-thirds of the delegates in this convention were former members of the Republican party.

Following the adjournment there was a great demonstration led by Miss Pierce, of St. Louis, bearing aloft California's handsome bimetallic banner.

THE MARKETS.

St. Louis.—Cattle, not enough supply to make market. Sheep, same.

A Well Connected Virginian Committed Suicide in Kansas City—Money Matters Went Wrong.

Kansas City, Mo., July 25.—Robert E. Goode, of Staunton, Va., despondent over money matters, committed suicide here.

His body was found in a vacant lot at the southern end of the city leaning against a tree. The revolver with which he killed himself was still clutched in his hand. Letters in his pocket show him to be well connected in Virginia and Texas.

VALUABLE HISTORIC DATA.

Discovery of New Mexico and Founding of Santa Fe—Extracts from Bishop Tamaron's Report in 1764.

To the Editor of the New Mexican.

San Francisco, Cal., July 20.—Agreeing to your request I send you the following scrap of history relative to the discovery and settlement, by the Spaniards, of the region now known as New Mexico:

Among the many interesting historic, literary and scientific works found in the Suro library in San Francisco is a manuscript report of Dr. Pedro de Tamarón, bishop of Durango, of the Council of his Majesty, relative to a pastoral journey of inspection, made by royal order, through his bishopric, which embraced the northern provinces of New Spain, between the years 1759 and 1764, which may be interesting to the student of history, and also to the general reader.

This report, containing 375 pages, closely written on fool cap paper, bears date, Durango, March 11, 1764, and gives minute descriptions of all the places visited by the bishop; the number of inhabitants—Spaniards and Indians—of the pueblos and missions, and the history of the establishment thereof, together with that of the settlements made by the Spaniards in the northern provinces of New Spain, among which is that of the discovery and NAMING OF NEW MEXICO, of which the following is a translation: "With respect to the kingdom of New Mexico it is proper to make some particular remarks.

"This country was discovered in the year 1581 by the Father Fr. Augustine Friars, a Franciscan missionary, and Antonio Lopez, who gave it the name of New Mexico.

"In the year 1680, 100 years after the discovery of the country, on the 10th of August, the Indians of that region, together with their allies of other places, got up a conspiracy against the Spaniards so secretly that at the same time they took up arms, attacking the Spaniards with great violence and killing all of the Spaniards, among whom were twenty-one missionaries of the Franciscan order, and also destroying the Christian Temples and outraging the sacred images.

"Those who escaped fled to El Paso, at which place they collected some families of Spaniards, and Indians who had not taken part in the rebellion, and established the four

PUEBLOS OF EL PASO.

"Although the country of New Mexico was subsequently recovered by the Spaniards, it was at the cost of much labor, many of the pueblos having been destroyed, of the reconstruction of which we will not now speak, but will confine ourselves to the preservation of those that remain.

"The Spanish population has somewhat increased, and this is the salvation of the country, although the Comanches are troublesome, but it is suggested by intelligent persons, that they are beneficial as a check to other Indian tribes, because all the other tribes fear them."

Such is the statement made by Bishop Tamaron in 1764, relative to the discovery, naming and occupation of New Mexico by the Spaniards. From what reliable data the statement was made I know not, but, inasmuch as he made his journey of inspection, and, according to the report thereof, by order of the king was furnished by the government with all the facilities necessary to enable him to thoroughly carry out the order in effect, spent some three years of travel in procuring the data from which it was made, and, since the report itself shows that it was made with intelligent care, it is to be supposed that he made this positive statement relative to the discovery and naming of New Mexico by the Spaniards from historic data or information which he considered reliable; and it may be further remarked that the care with which

HE MADE HIS OBSERVATIONS and the report thereof may be reasonably presumed from the correctness of his topographical descriptions of the regions through which he traveled, particularly of the wild mountain passes of the Sierra Madre.

The report describes the village of Santa Fe as the capital of New Mexico; gives the number of its inhabitants, etc., but does not give the date of its foundation, but, if it be correct as to the discovery of New Mexico in 1580, the settlement of Santa Fe by the Spaniards must have been subsequent to that date.

The report also states that in the year 1792, the Rio Grande was entirely dry for fifty leagues above and below El Paso.

It is shown by the foregoing that forty years

BEFORE THE PILGRIMS LANDED on the New England coast, the Spaniards had established themselves in New Mexico, at a point 1,200 miles from the nearest sea coast, and at least 1,000 miles from the City of Mexico, in a country inhabited by hostile savages, and that 100 years thereafter—about the time that the New Englander was raging successful war against the Indian King Philip—they were driven therefrom by the savage natives of the country, and history shows that from that time down to a comparatively recent period, the blood-thirsty Apache and wild Comanche were the constant scourges of the Spanish settlers throughout all the northern provinces of New Spain and the frontier states and territories of the republic of Mexico.

Cochiti Cattling.

The Crown Point will be a steady shipper at an early date.

Work on the Ellen L. No-Name, and Little Mollie mines continues briskly.

The Lone Star has been shipping regularly the past week, five tons daily.

The Allerton mill blew its whistle and began grinding ore on Wednesday last.

There is a fair probability that the Good Hope mine will be leased and bonded for a large sum at an early date. We predict that the Good Hope will be one of the leading mines of the Cochiti.

The Albemarle continues to haul ore to the Allerton mill, and will increase its output in proportion to the demand at the mill. A few days ago the Albemarle made a shipment of ten tons of high-grade ore to the Pueblo smelter.

The recent heavy rain storm out on the road of Union gulch to the Washington mine so badly that ore shipments have been delayed until it can be repaired.

Workmen are now putting it in good condition, and by Monday the Washington will be shipping as lively as ever.

The new shipments will be of the best ore yet taken from the Washington mine and will continue indefinitely.—Bland Herald.

BACK FROM THE SULPHURS.

Hon. Matt. G. Reynolds and Party Returned Yesterday from Hot Sulphur Springs—Praises of the Healing Waters—Reception at Bland.

Hon. Matt. G. Reynolds, attorney for the United States court of private land claims, Page B. Otero, ex-clerk of the New Mexico supreme court, Abe Kimball and Jack Dixon returned from a month's outing at the Hot Sulphur springs yesterday afternoon. They report having enjoyed themselves hugely during their absence and are enthusiastic in their praises of the Sulphurs.

In conversation with a New Mexican scribe at his office in the federal building this morning, Mr. Reynolds unhesitatingly pronounced the Sulphurs probably the most remarkable hot springs in the world and predicted a great future for them.

He says that the combination of the water, mud and vapor baths with the drinking of the sulphuric acid impregnated hot waters is good for a well man and will greatly benefit nearly all classes of invalids and work perfect cures in obstinate cases. Plentiful proof of this was most convincingly brought to his attention while he was at the springs.

He says that the trip can be comfortably made in two days from Santa Fe by way of Bland in a spring wagon, with a team of horses, stopping over the night at Bland and reaching the springs in time for supper the second evening.

He expresses himself as well pleased with the reception accorded him at the Cochiti metropolis and the appreciation the miners there manifested of his efforts to dissipate the land grant cloud that has so seriously retarded the development of the rich golden resources of the district.

In this connection, he added that the appeal of the Canada de Cochiti grant case would unquestionably be heard by the United States supreme court next May. No doubt is entertained that the decree of the court of private land claims will then be affirmed and that the mineral lands of the district will be made a part of the public domain.

One of the chief reasons why Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is such a sure defense against chills and fever and every form of malarial disease, is that it does away with liability to the disease, by reforming irregularity of the biliary organs in advance of the arrival of the season when the disease is prevalent. There is no finer fortifying preparation for those about visiting or emigrating to a locality where the miasma taint exists. There is no certain immunity from disease in an endemic or epidemic form, to be secured by the use of the average tonics and anti-spaasmodics. ### MR. ADELINA PATTI.

The Unknown Husband of a Well Known Woman Talks to a Reporter.
(Written exclusively for The Gentleman's Home Journal and no other.)

The walls of Craig-y-nos frowned upon a pleasant prospect with fair stretches of wood and pasture falling away before it, and on the far horizon, the tops of Snowdon's rugged printing themselves clear and cool against the blue Welsh sky.

Noting these things, your correspondent rang the front doorbell of the castle and was delighted to have it answered by Mr. Adelina Patti himself.

"I have called, Mr. Patti," I said, taking out my notebook, also my tongue and moistening a pencil with it, "for the purpose of prying into your inner life and ascertaining how it feels to be the husband of one of the highest singers in the world."

"I think," he replied in candid accents, "that I like it, for Adolina earns, oh, so much ready cash by going upon the stage for a few moments and warbling to the rude multitude, and I'm sure you can appreciate what a nice thing cash is. And yet," cried Mr. Patti, with a little deprecating gesture, "what is cash compared with the agony of separation?"

"Ah, how little does the American public realize when Adelina is singing them that well known ballad, 'Home, Sweet Home,' at $1,400 per evening, that far away amid the hills of Wales a loving heart is sitting in tears, engaged perhaps in ripping up one of Adolina's last season's costumes to send to the heathen or anon listening to the distant footfall of the hired girl as it echoes through the hollow corridors."

"Then life in a castle has its drawbacks," I insisted.

"Indeed it has," replied Mr. Patti earnestly. "It is dreadful to be here all alone after dark and hear the rats prowling behind the wainscoting while my darling Adolina is thousands of miles away making her farewell appearance perhaps for the last time."

"Do you ever accompany Mrs. Patti upon her tours?" I ventured to inquire, resting my back against the portmanteau.

"Not of late years," said Mr. Patti. "Formerly I did so, when she first began her annual farewell appearances, but now I find that hotel life does not agree with me. To travel upon your hot American cars all day and then sit down to a bill of fare that has vestiges of soft boiled eggs upon it is more than I can stand."

While Mr. Patti's gaze was abstractedly bent upon the horizon your correspondent earned his neck to take in a view of the wide reception hall. I would even have stepped inside had Mr. Patti's person not barred the way. I did not wish to appear rude. His cold man he was a direct descendant from the ancient Cymri, who were the most terrible fighters, he said, in the world and thought nothing of going out after dark attacking large caravans and getting home before breakfast laden with spoils or anything else they could get their hands on. But those glorious old days, he added, with a sad shake of the head, are now no more. He talked in broken speech, with a great number of double 't's and w's as his thoughts reverted to the past. He then charged me 10 shillings for two strings of views and a paper cutter of wood carved on the mountain of Pen-Carlwyth, gybillyw and made in Germany and appeared to cheer up and feel better.

I also had quite a talk with one of the hired girls, who was spreading some sheets on the lawn to whiten. She said she liked living at Craig-y-nos first rate, although she wouldn't mind going to America, where, she understood, the hired girls didn't have much to do and got large salaries for doing it. She said she also thought it must be cute to have every night out, also Sundays and such other days as were convenient, and she asked if the hired girls in our country got up before breakfast or did they wait and eat with the family?

She couldn't ask for a nicer man about the house, she said, than Mr. Patti. Some men were always poking about the kitchen or dining hall if the bookcases were not dusted every day, but she was happy to state that Mr. Patti was not that kind of a man. She thanked heaven, she said, that he knew his place.

She was one of the nicest hired girls I have met with in the preparation of the European series of these articles for The Gentleman's Home Journal. She said she hoped I wouldn't think anything of it, that Mr. Patti hadn't asked me in, but really the castle was so torn up by housecleaning that she didn't wonder for he was sensitive about such things. I gave her a shilling, whereas she dropped a courtesy, also the sheet she was wringing out, and said if he ever came to America she would be glad to help me out in my interviews with any of the families she might be engaged with if I would call when it was her day in.

"Goodby," said Mr. Patti kindly as I backed over the drawbridge. "I am very grateful for this call, and I would like you to send me two marked copies of your celebrated magazine, also one of the back numbers containing the article by Mr. Gladstone, which I have heard treats of the potentiality of the Babylonian inscriptions and has only to be read to be almost understood; also give me the men of America parting greeting and say to them, oh, if they would be happy to do not a great stunt which has been suggested by me, to spend the larger part of each season in a foreign land singing farewell ballads to total strangers. The cash receipts may be adequate, but, oh, what is cash after you have all you need compared with isolation in a large, comfortable castle with old fashioned window fashions and a system of drainage such as merits the notice of the board of health? I tell you it isn't what it is cracked up to be."

Apologizing for this bit of American slang, which he said he picked up from the newsmen while waiting at the stage entrance evenings with his wife's pug dog, Mr. Patti gave utterance to a gay laugh and let the portmanteau fall, so suddenly indeed as to tear a long gash down the back of my Prince Albert outwary that I had bought only one week before in Piccadilly, and which my London friends declared almost fitted me.—W. O. Fuller, Jr., in New York World.

Vassar's Age.

"I see that Vassar college is only 30 years old."

"Only 30! I'll bet they've let a woman do the counting."

"Oh, dear, no! She would never have let it get past 10. It's undoubtedly a man's work, and the chances are the women will try to deny it inside of a week."

—Chicago Post.

The Annoyance.

"I hope," said Willie Washington as he prepared to smoke, "that cigarettes do not annoy you."

"Oh, no," Miss Cayenne replied, "cigarettes do not annoy me. But the people who smoke them usually do very much."

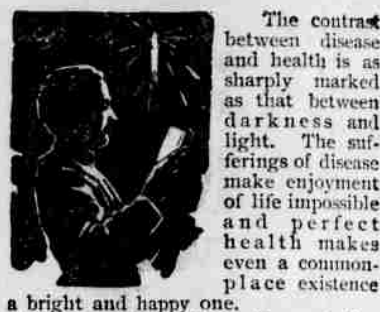

—Washington Star.

The contrast between disease and health is as sharply marked as that between darkness and light. The sufferings of disease make enjoyment of life impossible and perfect health makes even a commonplace existence a bright and happy one.

The truest thing about disease is that most of it is needless. Nine-tenths of it can be subdued by very simple remedies. Even that most dreadful malady, consumption, can be cured in 98 cases out of a hundred, if it be treated in its early stages with Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

Consumption is a disease caused by impurity of the blood, and the first thing to be done in its treatment is to make the blood pure, rich and wholesome. That is half the battle. The other half is the impregnation of the blood with cleansing, healing, invigorating medicines. The "Golden Medical Discovery" does both. It first puts the whole digestive system into perfect order, rids it of all impurities and from the vantage ground so gained, reaches out to every fiber of the body and restores all to perfect vigor. It cures many diseases, simply because many diseases spring from a set of common causes. The same disorder may lead to different symptoms in different people. What might be only a little indigestion in one person, may combine with a slight cold in another and result in consumption. A treatment that tones up the whole system is always the safest. A medicine that is good for the general health is pretty sure to cure ordinary diseases. Twenty-one cents in stamps sent to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y., will bring a large 1000 page doctor book. It contains photographs and letters from hundreds who have been cured by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

Mr. Sunklands (a prominent citizen of Arkansas)—Huh! Them espazials don't amount to nuthin'!

Mrs. Sunklands—Do you think the United States could lick Spain?

Mr. Sunklands—Shucks! Why, the state of Arkansas alone can lick any nation under the sun that wears bangles on its pants!
