WASHINGTON NEWS BUDGET

Senator Aldrich Urges the Necessity of Immediate Action Upon the Tariff Bill, and Promises No Unusual Delay in the Senate.

BUSINESS OF THE COUNTRY SUSPENDED

No Time Should Be Needlessly Wasted in an Academic Discussion of the Principles of Protection.

Washington, May 25.—The long deferred debate on the tariff bill, was expected to open in the senate today. It served to attract a considerable crowd, although the galleries were not overtaken during the early hours. The attendance of senators was larger than at any time since the opening. There was no positive agreement as to the time for taking up the bill, but it was generally understood that Senator Aldrich of Rhode Island, would be recognized for an opening statement, immediately after the morning business. Senator Pasco of Florida, presented the credentials of the new senator from Florida, Steven R. Mallory, who was sworn in.

The tariff bill was taken up at 2 o'clock. Senator Vest gave notice that when the paragraphs were read, he would move to strike out the provisions relating to beer, manufactured tobacco, snuff and cigarettes. Senator Aldrich then opened the debate for the Republicans.

ALDRICH OPENS THE DEBATE. Washington, May 25.—In his opening speech Senator Aldrich said: "The business of the entire country, is in a state of suspension, awaiting the action of the senate upon the bill under consideration. I believe the anxiety to secure action upon this important measure at the earliest possible day, is shared by every member of the senate. I can say for the senators sitting on this side of the chamber, that no time will be spent in an academic discussion of the principles of protection. It is my purpose to keep this bill continuously before the senate, to the exclusion of all other legislative business, until it is finally disposed of, and in this I shall expect the hearty cooperation of senators from both sides of the chamber."

BRIEF EXPLANATIONS. In a discussion of the bill, members of the minority committee will content themselves with such brief explanations as may be found necessary, of the various paragraphs as they are reached." Senator Aldrich then proceeded to present in estimates, the effect the bill would have upon the revenue, and explained in a general way the character of the amendments suggested. He said a majority of the committee believed that if a thorough revision of our revenue laws, such as contemplated by the house bill is necessary, it should be carried out in a conservative spirit, and such moderate and reasonable measures should be adopted, as will insure to much greater permanency to our tariff legislation.

NECESSARY REVENUE. He said, "Nothing in the theory of protection interferes with the imposition of further internal revenue taxes by protectionists, whenever such a course is found desirable for revenue purposes. In the future it is almost certain that we shall be obliged to depend more and more upon taxes of this nature for necessary revenue. With duties adequately protective upon manufactures of cotton, wool, silk and flax, we may expect a constantly diminishing revenue from the importations of these products. If the rates imposed by this bill on sugar, should be found to lead to a rapid development of the beet sugar industry in the United States, we may expect large reductions year by year from the counterplated revenue from sugar. Some of the most sanguine advocates of the policy of encouraging beet sugar production in this country, believe we shall within ten years produce all of our sugar. It is safe to assume that numerous objections will always be found to any plan for increased taxation. In this particular case the committee is only strenuous that a wise public policy requires, that our revenue should at all times be equal to our expenditures, and that the people of the United States will not be satisfied with any revenue measure that does not provide an adequate income for this purpose."

AGAINST PROTECTION. Senator Vest followed Aldrich in a vigorous speech against the Republican tariff policy.

HAWAIIAN EXCISE. Senator Pettigrew today gave notice of a amendment to the tariff bill, providing for the abrogation of the Hawaiian re. Exemption treaty.

RUSSIAN INTOLERANCE. Senator Perkins of California, presented a resolution requesting the refusal of the Russian charge d'affaire at Washington to issue a passport for Adolf Kather, an influential Jewish banker of Fresno, Cal., who was about to visit Poland. The resolution refers to the "vicious distinction against certain American citizens and the official action of Prince Labanoff, the Russian premier, relative to the exclusion of Jews from Russia. It provides also that this government shall request Russia to declare whether American citizens are excluded from Russia on account of their religious faith, and if so, that said imperial government of Russia be requested to remove such prohibition, and permit Americans of whatever religious faith to visit Russia, etc."

THE ARMY OF PROTECTION. Senator Perkins spoke in favor of the resolution, saying the United States should extend its protecting arm to every citizen, Jew or Gentile, wherever he might go. The resolution was referred to the committee on foreign relations.

A resolution by Senator Pettigrew was agreed to, requesting the president for information relative to the Union and Central Pacific railroads, the amount of dividends, exceeding the Thurman, etc.

SUPPLIES FOR INDIA. A resolution authorizing the secretary of the navy to employ any suitable ship in the transportation of relief supplies to India, was considered. Senator Chandler explained that this was essential, as no American ships were available. Morgan remarked that the senate had reached an era, when it was necessary to consult somebody at the other end of the capital "as to whether a measure could go through." "Has the senate," asked Senator Morgan, addressing Senator Chandler, "inquired whether this benevolent resolution will be allowed a consideration in the house?"

CHANDLER'S RETORT.

Senator Chandler responded by asking if Morgan had any arrangement for passing his Cuban resolution in the house. "The people are arranging all that," responded Morgan, "and either the senator from New Hampshire, who supported that resolution, and myself, and the American people, and the Almighty will have to give way on that, or else the speaker of the house of representatives will give way."

Senator Morgan spoke on the calamity and humiliation to which the United States was subjected in having no American ships to carry this American benefaction. This dispatch of grain to British India would convince the British people, that notwithstanding the defeat of the arbitration treaty, we intend to live with them on terms of peace and amity. Morgan offered an amendment, providing for the nationalization of two British built ships, to carry this grain. He declared shipping laws, preventing the nationalizing of foreign built ships, were responsible for the humiliating condition of having no American ships.

LATE NOMINATIONS.

The president today sent the following nominations to the senate: State—Edwin Y. Conger, of Iowa, envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to Brazil; John B. Foster of Vermont, consul at Sherbrooke, Quebec, War—Brigadier General John R. Brooke, to be major general. Navy—Assistant engineer, Dr. E. S. Dismukes, to be passed assistant engineer.

Charges Withdrawn.

London, May 25.—Henry Labouchere has withdrawn the allegations he made reflecting upon Dr. Rutherford Harris, the Cape Town secretary of the British Chartered South Africa company, in the matter of alleged stock jobbing in connection with the Jameson raid in December, 1895.

Specie Payment Suspended.

New York, May 25.—The Herold's correspondent at Guatemala cables that the government has issued a decree, suspending specie payments for six months. The banks will lend the government $1,500,000, to be paid in six months, in silver.

ACCUSED HIM WRONGFULLY

A Chicago Dancing Master Kills Himself Over Domestic Difficulties.

Chicago, May 25.—At 1 o'clock this morning a man walked around the corridor on the 13th floor of the Chamber of Commerce building, drew a revolver and shot himself. He then threw himself over the railing into the court, 13 stories below, narrowly escaping the pedestrians in the crowded main lobby. The corpse was horribly crushed. A letter in the pocket of the suicide, showed him to be W. F. Mittman, a dancing teacher. The letter said that his wife accused him wrongfully, and he intended to take his life yesterday, but concluded to give her one more chance.

HAYMEYER'S TRIAL.

The Trial of the President of the American Sugar Refining Company on a Charge of Contempt of the Senate Opens in Washington.

Washington, May 25.—The trial of H. O. Haymeyer, president of the American Sugar Refining company, for refusing to answer questions before the senate sugar investigating committee in the spring of 1894, began in the criminal court this morning. Elverson R. Chapman, the first of the five contumacious witnesses, is now serving a 30 days' sentence in the district jail. John E. Searies, secretary of the sugar trust, E. J. Edwards and John S. Shriver, both newspaper men, will also be tried, probably in the order named. There was a large crowd in attendance, to witness the unusual spectacle of a millionaire on trial. Judge Bradley presided. District Attorney Davis conducted the case on behalf of the United States. The defendant was represented by William H. Taft, John G. Johnson of Philadelphia, and John E. Parsons of New York. Little trouble was experienced in obtaining a jury, and in less than half an hour after the court convened, District Attorney Davis opened the case with a statement to the jury.

DEMANDS DISCUSSED.

The German Ambassador at Constantinople Has Been Forbidden to Sign the Collective Note of the Powers.

Constantinople, May 25.—The collective note of the ambassadors of the powers, on the subject of Turkish demands upon Greece, has not yet been presented, owing to the German ambassador at Constantinople, having been forbidden to sign it, until Greece consents to the terms. It is further understood that Germany declares she will withdraw altogether from mediation, should the other powers consider the previous consent of Greece unnecessary. Germany's action is regarded as highly prejudicial to the prospect of a speedy conclusion of peace, as it leads Turkey to believe that the powers are dissatisfied, and also encourages opposition.

ALBUQUERQUE LETTER.

Recent Happenings in the Duke City As Seen by the New Mexican's Correspondent.

Correspondence New Mexican.

Albuquerque, May 24.—Your correspondent has been prostrated since Saturday in consequence of a roast administered by the morning paper—name not mentioned, because of extending free advertising, should the writer do so. The report wired the New Mexican last week was not a bit exaggerated, so far as the information received warranted. It is not a bit surprising to see a local paper kick over a report that might appear colored, and on the other side of the sheet say something even worse than a correspondent might send off. The readers of the New Mexican here, and in other places, know the writer, and need no explanation in correction from me respecting a recent wire to your paper.

J. R. McCowan, ticket broker, and Don Pedro Simpson came in from Golden yesterday, where they went to see to mining matters.

Sofre Alexander, who has figured here in several bonfires, as an unfortunate, is about to branch out in the auction business.

Joe Barnett of the St. Elmo, has had Cobb print the many photos he (Barnett) took while on the coast in March, April and May.

F. E. Nelson, contractor, has his force working north from El Paso, putting up the poles and wires from the Pass City to Albuquerque. Water at this time had shut off work from Isleta south.

The McGuire family have sold their place on north Fourth street boulevard and have taken the Hill villa in the shadow of the cone. This is a pretty spot and will be made profitable.

A rumor was about today to the effect that the O'Leary and Graves mercantile house at Magdalena would be absorbed by Gross, Blackwell & Co., who would increase stock and maintain the house on a first-class basis.

C. M. Foraker, who happens to be a half brother of Senator J. B. Foraker of Ohio, is in the city from Silver City, where he is engaged in stock raising. He is on his way to Oklahoma on business. The writer remembers having heard U. S. Marshal Hall say that one Foraker would be his successor, if being a connection of an Oklahoman had an influence, and it is safe to say it will have. Mr. Foraker was enjoying a nap when your correspondent called, and could not be seen.

A certain judge was knocked out at bowling ten pins the other evening at the Brunswick by a boy of 15, the latter making 197 to the judge's 148. The stalwart attorney says he did not mind the defeat, the play gives him exercise.

There will be a trades union meeting on Saturday evening at the Salvation army barracks.

Three bicycle shops in town lost three days last week in consequence of the rain and made up lost time on Sunday by taking in three times $10 on rentals alone. At least one house did.

"Standing room only" was the sign out at the opera house tonight on the occasion of the St. Perkins performance. At Cerillos, 28th; Las Vegas, 26th.

Thomas A. Lewis, representing Swofford Bros., Kansas City, is here from Las Vegas and Santa Fe. He is bound west and south.

John Sweeney's ranch this side of the Isleta bridge was in the trail of Thursday evening's hail storm. As a result, Sweeney will send again, giving up a trip to the Pecos valley ranch for the present.

Chas. E. Cray, it is announced, will succeed W. E. Walsh, July 1, his title to be general auditor of the A. & P. and California Southern with office in Los Angeles. Mr. Cray has been identified as cashier of the A. & P. for many years.

The fair association will meet at the secretary's office over Fox's jewelry store on Tuesday evening. President Myers said to the writer today that this year's exposition would be a fair in every sense and that the people were expected from all points in the two territories.

S. Vandewater, former representative of Primrose & Co., of Trinidad, is here from Arizona. He now represents Brown & Adams, Boston. Wool, said Mr. Vandewater, will not advance until November though it is higher than a year ago. He complimented the local wool securing plants.

San Felipe de Neri day in old town, on Sunday next promises to be one of the most interesting events ever held in the ancient. The feast will consist of a procession, church services, speaking and fireworks. A ball at the Orchestral hall will begin at 2 o'clock and continue until last night.

Memorial day will be observed here on Monday in the usual manner. Some will accept Sunday as the proper day to observe.

The Denver baseball nine are being communicated with in reference to coming here on Saturday and Sunday, May 29 and 30. An answer expected tomorrow.

Three candidates for office were seen together this evening. One was Attorney Roddy who is desirous of being district attorney or supreme judge; Cousin McKinley, thought to be in the lead for collector, and C. M. Foraker, who resembles the U. S. senator of that name. The latter has an eye on Marshal Hall's desk.

Fred Douglas, a former mine superintendent at Gallup, was here today and evening in driving 30 miles. He is expected to testify in the Rocky Cliff coal mine case as an expert on surveying.

Toti & Gradi have paid $5,300 for the Mandell store site, 115 South First street. The Mandells will close out remnants quickly and retire as the house is to be fitted for a new tenant. G. W. P.

PRESBYTERIAN ASSEMBLY.

A Question Concerning the Licensure of Students Between the New York Presbytery and the Presbytery of the Synod of the Same State.

Eagle Lake, Ind., May 25.—In the Presbyterian general assembly today a complaint from the members of the presbytery of New York, against the synod of New York, with regard to the licensure of students, was withdrawn upon an answer that the judicial committee of previous assemblies, applied to all presbyteries who are thus "joined and instructed" not to take under their care, any students, who are pursuing or who purpose to pursue, their studies in seminaries not approved by the general assembly. This report of the judicial committee, was adopted without debate.

A CONTENTION FOR PRESTIGE

Violent Agitation in Colfax County Over a Proposition to Remove the County Seat from Springer to Raton.

SPRINGER'S CLAIMS ARE PRESENTED

In a Letter to Follow the Contention of Raton as to Its Claims for a County Seat Will Be Given.

Correspondence New Mexican.

Springer, N. M., May 24.—Colfax county is all stirred up over the removal of the county seat. Springer is the present hub of the kingdom, and Raton wants to be, that is the sum and substance of the matter. Now, I am not interested in the fight either one way or the other, and, like the wily politician, feel that my safest and surest position is in the fence. There is a saying, or at least I have heard of one, which runs something like this: "When in Rome, be a Roman." That does not sound just right, but it will do for this county seat fight. Tonight I am in Springer, therefore I am a Springerite. Tomorrow I will be in Raton, and then I will be a Ratonian. As a Springer adherent I shall present our side of the question.

THE COUNTY SEAT AT SPRINGER.

In the first place the county seat rightly belongs in Springer; we are located nearer the center of the county than Raton; we have a good court house and jail, and the population of this part of the county is permanent in character. It is only a matter of a few months when a branch line of the Santa Fe will be built from Springer to the Red River country, and when that is done the metropolis of New Mexico will be right here. Then, when the legislature meets in 1899 we propose to move the territorial capital from Santa Fe and plant it on the picturesque banks of the Cimarron river for all time to come. Albuquerque's proposed $200,000 building would be a hotel in comparison with the building we propose to erect on the bluff south of the river for governmental purposes.

So far as the county seat is concerned, we do not care a piecemeal for it. Springer is not dependent upon any such empty honors for prosperity and business, but we don't propose to let a little scrub village take from us what rightfully belongs to the best town in the county. But we will pass over many other reasons why we Springer folks oppose the removal of the county seat, and come to the one which interests every property owner in Colfax, that of taxation. The county is not in debt shape financially, but just the same we have an indebtedness, bonded and floating, of from $50,000 to $80,000 on which interest must be paid. The removal of the county seat will increase that debt at the least calculation $50,000; that the property owners can not afford. True, the last legislature passed a bill making it the duty of the county commissioners to call a special election to settle the question, and in obedience to that law an election has been called for June 14, but that does not necessarily make the law a good one. I don't suppose we can prevent such an election being held, but in case the fellows in Raton succeed in carrying the election, it does not follow that the county seat will be moved in a hurry. The courts will have to pass on the question before anything more than the voting is done. It will cost a little money, perhaps, but it is as broad as it is long—it takes more money to pay higher taxes.

BUSINESS IMPROVING.

Inquiries of the business men today concerning business brought the reply: "Good; much better than this time last year, and the prospects for summer and fall trade excellent." The principal industry of southwestern Colfax county at present is sheep raising, and the rise in the price of wool has added much to the income of flockmasters. When the wool season begins this increase will make things better all around. Cattle are an important item, but not to the extent they were some years ago.

CATTLE AND SHEEP.

In speaking of cattle and sheep this afternoon, Hon. M. W. Mills said: "Did you ever notice that the constant shifting of industries brings a repetition of former conditions. In the 70's this entire country to the Texas line was overrun with great flocks of sheep—hundreds of thousands of them. Along in the early 80's began a conflict between cattlemen and sheep raisers, which resulted in the defeat of the latter, and for a number of years cattle and cowboys reigned supreme. Then came the crash and the cowboy and his occupation were wiped out, some say by over production, I think by a special interference of an all-wise Providence, and now the sheep are coming back. This morning in driving 30 miles I can safely say that over 50,000 sheep were passed that could be seen, and how many more were out of eyeshot no one knows."

FARMING ON THE MAXWELL GRANT.

In the valleys considerable farming is done. Wheat, oats, kafir corn, hay, and alfalfa are raised, and should no disastrous hail storm visit the county large yields of all those products will be expected. Most of the tillable land is under the Maxwell land grant ditch system, water is plenty, and no shortage of crops will result from drought. The mountains to the north and west are full of snow, the white peaks glistening in the sunlight all day long, many weeks must elapse before it melts, and the streams will be full of water all summer. My observation leads me to believe that this is the only thing lacking to make New Mexico an earthly paradise—provided cultivation is carried on in the proper manner—and if this year is not one of plenty it will not be nature's fault.

RIGHT SMART FRUIT.

Fruit? Well, yes, there will be a right smart in Colfax county, if present indications hold out. As a fair sample of what fruit growers expect, let me cite you to the Orchard ranch, owned by Mr. Mills. From this one orchard that gentleman expects to ship 1,000,000 pounds of peaches, apples, pears, prunes, nectarines, and other kinds before frost next fall. Of course some unforeseen calamity may come to the bearing trees and ruin the entire crop, the world may come to an end for instance, but of that whole sale method of stopping business and Celebrated for its great leavening strength and healthfulness. Assures the food against the destruction of the orchards—It's time enough to cross a bridge when it is reached.

Western Colfax county and the country adjacent are attracting much attention on account of the mining possibilities therein. At present there is a great rush for the Baldy, Hematite and Red River districts, and what the coming summer will bring forth no one knows. Springer is a "spot of entry" for the mining country because of the Hankins' stage line which connects with the railroad at this point. Every day the stage is crowded with gold hunters, and numbers of men are going there, some in wagons, some with burros, and some on foot. The air is full of gold talk and reports of finds, but until the snow is all gone nothing definite can be determined as to the richness of the camps, or the extent of the leads, but let us all hope that every man who makes his way into the camp of northern New Mexico becomes a millionaire.

THE COCHITI GRANT.

The Northern Boundary Remains As Fixed by the Court of Private Land Claims—Many of the Cochiti Mining District on Public Land.

U. S. Attorney Reynolds telegraphs Assistant U. S. Attorney Pope from St. Louis, that in the Cochiti land grant case, the U. S. Supreme court affirmed the decision of the court of private land claims as to the northern boundary and reverses the decision of the lower court as to the western boundary, fixing the latter "at nearest sierra or other natural object bearing the name of Jemez."

This decision means that the town of Bland and the entire Cochiti region containing mineral, is out of the grant and on public land, and that the decree of land claims is in effect reversed as to the western boundary, making the boundaries read as follows:

Said grant of land is bounded on the north by the old pueblo of Cochiti, which is situated on the Mesa of Cochiti, on the south side of the Canada of Cochiti, which point is about 8,100 feet in a northerly direction from the northwest corner of the lands of the Indians of the pueblo of Cochiti as the same has been fixed and determined by the survey and patent of the same by the United States of America on the east the Rio Grande del Norte; on the south by the lands of the Cochiti Indians, and on the west, as fixed by the U. S. Supreme court, namely "at the nearest sierra or other natural object, bearing the name of Jemez."

This will be exceedingly good and welcome news to the miners and mine owners of Bland and the Cochiti mining districts.

NEW MEXICO MINES.

Eastern and California Capital Is Going In at a Rapid Rate—Mining in Idaho.

W. H. H. Llewellyn, speaker of the house of representatives of New Mexico is registered at the Albany from Las Cruces. "New Mexico is rapidly forging to the front," said he, "and will before many years be one of the leading of the western states. The mining interests are doing much for the territory and a large amount of development is going on. Much money has come into the territory and some are at present several large enterprises under way for the development of the mining interests. A California company is expending $250,000 in developing some gold mines at Pinos Altos, above Silver City, and as these mines were at one time large producers, good results are looked for from this work. Another party of capitalists from Cleveland and Pittsburgh has bought up a large amount of placer territory about Hileboro in Sierra county and they are constructing a dam half a mile long across the Rio Las Animas, from which they will conduct the water through a pipe 14 miles long to their placer ground. Here they will have a vertical hydraulic pressure of 425 feet, the enormity of which can be conceived by the illustration that ten feet from the outlet nozzle of the pipe line the stream of water will be as hard as a bar of steel."—Denver Republican.

INDIAN COMMISSIONS.

Negotiating An Agreement Which Shall Abolish All Tribal Government.

Tablequah, I. T., May 25.—The Dawes and Cherokee commissions, which have been negotiating the past two weeks, went into executive session today, to form an agreement which will abolish tribal government. Full blood Cherokees are opposed to any change in tribal affairs, but are greatly in the minority. It is believed an agreement will be formed in about a week.

Serious Charges.

Berlin, May 25.—The examination of Herr von Tausch, former chief of the secret political police, charged with fourfold perjury and treason, was continued today. Von Tausch wept during the proceedings.

TUESDAY, MAY 25.

The Sultan is almost as modest in his demands, as a Populist candidate for president.

The work of rebuilding the capital in this city should be pushed with all possible speed.

A Boston boy employed as a bank messenger decried the other day with funds amounting to some $20,000. The scientists will probably set themselves to work at once to discover immortal microbes in beans.

MR. WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN is to take part in the coming New York municipal campaign. In order to keep a presidential boom a booming, constant work, in season and out of season, and even in off years, seems to be necessary.

LAND grants in New Mexico should be properly and justly taxed and the assessments should be promptly and energetically collected. This piece of advice, if taken by the proper authorities, will place New Mexico finances in right good shape.

SENATOR HALE'S opposition to the Cuban belligerency resolution did not amount to very much, but there is a man from Maine at the other end of the capitol who is more than likely to see that the house is kept in line with the administration on this important question.

THERE is much exaggerated talk in Colorado newspapers concerning lawlessness said to exist in western New Mexico. Some of it is pure fabrication and some of it has but a slight basis to rest upon. Some of the Denver papers are just a bit too sensational, that is the long and short of it.

NEW Mexico is more peaceful and orderly today than it has been for four years. Is this because Major McKinley is president or is it because Governor Thornton is in Mexico, or is it because the tenure of Democratic officials is short or is because the people have become better? Quien sabe?

If President McKinley desires to serve the cause of genuine civil service reform, he will rescind the fake and rotten civil service orders issued by Mr. Cleveland, that have no other object in view than to keep in office thousands of incompetent officials, placed there for political services only and without regard to ability, competency and fitness.

The appropriation resolution making available the sum of $50,000 for the relief of destitute Americans residing on the island of Cuba, was yesterday signed by the president. It is good to know that President McKinley does not intend to stop the work here. He is watching closely the conditions in Cuba and will stand ready to lend assistance in every way possible.

THE Maxwell Land Grant company is doing great and valuable work in advertising northern New Mexico. That company has public spirited, energetic and live officers who are managing the company's affairs with prudence and success. Were all the land grants in New Mexico in similar hands and under similar management, this would be a great commonwealth.

JUDGES FLOYD ESTILL of Chattanooga, Tenn., is the subject of much recent notoriety throughout the country, because of his instructing the grand jury to indict him for drunkenness during his last term of court. This is a step in the right direction, and should the judge get drunk again, it is to be hoped that he will proceed promptly to his own impeachment. This practice may be a little novel, but it is eminently just and proper.

Tax failure of prohibition in Kansas is not wholly due to the corporations that hide behind the temperance movement, but according to Governor Leedy who ought to know, is attributable principally to the fact that a large number of people in that state want whiskey and beer, and are not going to do without it for a single day, for a little thing like an amendment to the constitution.

The Prince of Wales has so very little to do with the useful and serious concerns of life that he takes his mind with the precaution never to appear twice in the same suit of clothes when making a call.

The coming gold mining convention to be held in Denver with the object in view of disseminating a broader knowledge concerning this great industry, will not doubt be the most important mining meeting ever held in the west. Acting Governor Miller yesterday appointed the delegates who are to represent this territory at the convention, and his selections are to be commended. They are representative citizens who no doubt will do all in their power toward making this gathering a distinct success.

Those liberal reform laws, we have heard so much about, have at last reached Cuba and still the Cubans are dissatisfied and are keeping up a war, that General Weyler asserts, has been ended long ago. The new code is a great one, that is for the Spaniards. The Cubans have liberty to do any and everything they desire and want, except such things, doings and acts, as the Spanish officials do not want them to do. It is a great code, all for the Spaniards and nothing for the Cubans. And still the latter are dissatisfied because people those Cubans and people who want too much, it seems.

GENERAL HORATIO KING, who died at Washington the other day at the age of 86, did the country good service in his line, being a worthy successor of Benjamin Franklin as postmaster-general. He entered the postoffice department from Maine in 1849 and rose on his merits—though that was long before civil service reform—until 1884, when he became first assistant postmaster-general, and was postmaster-general from January 1, 1881, till March 4, 1881, when President Lincoln was inaugurated. During his term in the Postoffice department many improvements were introduced, and in fact the modern transportation of the mail was begun.

GENERAL WEYLER in an interview expresses an opinion that the American jingos are bent upon forcing the United States into foreign complications. He bases this opinion upon the action of the senate in adopting the Morgan belligerency resolution. The general is of the opinion that a foreign war will be made the object of a certain party in the United States, to distract attention from an impending internal shock of some kind or other. What can the general be dreaming of now? Does he share in the fear of an anarchistic outbreak in the United States, or has he caught the distant mutterings of a struggle between capital and labor? His allusions have a vagueness that is very trying. It is doubtful if he means anything at all, but if he does, we should all thank this great man whose prophetic eye scans futurity for our benefit. It is cheering to know that General Weyler considers this country on the verge of a great upheaval.

A QUESTION OF POLICY.

The president, according to the dispatches of yesterday, has under consideration the question of sending a warship to Cuba. If half a dozen had been sent several months since Americans would have fared better on the island. Why is it that Americans are imprisoned and abused there and elsewhere, without the possibility of redress, while subjects of the English government enjoy immunity from such outrages the world over? There is not a government on earth that would think of holding an English subject a prisoner for a political offense. It was tried only the other day, on a man—an English subject charged with inciting revolution. A few hours later the commander of an English man-of-war demanded his release. It was granted, and not only this, but the prisoner succeeded in having several companions who had with him been arrested on a similar charge, released from confinement. It is so all over the world. England will not allow any nation to impose upon even the most insignificant of her subjects. Behind every native Briton stands a great government—a fighting government—a government that would cheerfully take up arms against the most powerful nation on earth over the rights of a single subject. A case in point happened several years since in the City of Mexico. Two men, one a citizen of the United States, and the other a subject of England, were arrested in the City of Mexico and thrown into prison on the same trivial charge. Next morning the English minister, after an investigation, demanded the release of the Englishman, and the demand was instantly complied with. The American remained nine weeks in prison without a trial, but was finally tried and acquitted. It cost nothing to establish the reputation which England enjoys all over the world in the matter of protecting its subjects. Blaine believed implicitly in this policy. He urged it upon all possible occasions, because he was a true American.

NEW MEXICO'S NEED.

One of the urgent needs of New Mexico today is a reformatory institution for boys. At the present time there are a number of juvenile offenders sentenced to brief terms in the territorial penitentiary who are entirely out of place in a penal institution. There is no surer way to make a criminal of a boy, than to give him a few months in prison for some petty offense, the penalty of which should be a term in a house of correction. Prison association, even for a short time, is sure to leave its mark and in nine cases out of ten, the boy who is sent to a state prison leaves the institution a hardened criminal. We have a case in point at the present time in Santa Fe. A 16-year-old boy is convicted of stealing a bicycle. It is his first offense, but that has no bearing upon the case. His age alone is an argument against prison stripes. Give this boy a year in the penitentiary and you turn loose upon society a confirmed criminal, with the chances strongly in favor of his pursuing a career of crime. What does he care? He has already borne the most terrible disgrace that it is possible to inflict, the thought of which, will be a haunting memory to kill and damn. This fact has long been recognized in the older states, where institutions are established for just such cases. In Massachusetts or New York or California, this boy would be sent to a school. Not a reform school. Even the odium attaching to such a title has been dispensed with. That favored too much of prison. Of course the object of the school would be to reform, but the word is never used in connection with these institutions, though a few years ago they were generally known as reform schools. In California this institution is known as the Whittier school for boys. The inmates are kindly cared for and taught useful trades, and returned at the expiration of their terms to society, but not branded as criminals. It is an outrage to send a 16 or 18 year old boy to a penitentiary for petty or even grand larceny. New Mexico is sadly in need of an institution where these boys may be kindly treated and taught the better way, at least until they have proven themselves incorrigible, or possessed of inherited tendency toward criminal careers.

FOR THE LADIES.

A WHITE AND BLACK COSTUME. One of the prettiest combinations of colors shown this season is white and black with touches of cerise. Our model is an example as the fabric is a black and white silk, the cerise appearing in the taffeta belt and collar. The skirt is cut with seven gores, a rather narrow front gore, two gores on either side and two in the back which form two box plaits. This style of skirt is especially liked for silks, avoiding as it does, piecing in the gores and because it retains its shape, not sagging as do the circular skirts and those cut with one side gore. The waist is a blouse of creamy lace over a white taffeta lining; a basque portion is added below the belt of cerise silk. A very short bolero is cut square across the back. The sleeves are gathered on the outside of the arm from wrist almost to the top. The bolero is trimmed with bands of black satin. The hat is made entirely of black tulle over white tulle, trimmed with black feathers.

FOR GENERAL WEAR.

Mixed fabrics of wool are employed for entire costume with excellent effect when relieved by trimmings of one contrasting color. Our illustration evidences the possibility of such combination, as the design may be developed in mixed goods of the suede tones, trimmed with reddish-brown braid. Hercules braid is used to simulate a binding and is headed by a little scroll work in a narrow braid of the same shape. The skirt is plain, the braiding appearing only on the waist. The favorite Eton jacket shape dominates the cut of the waist of this design. The back is seam less stretched over a fitted lining, the front has a vest slightly pointed below the waist line, over this are the jacket fronts with long points of very rakish cut.

A hat of Panama straw with a full robe of silk canopies is brightened by a bunch of the new cerise colored geraniums.

SKINNY AT THE SOICUS.

He Carries Water to a Camel and Tells What He Saw.

"Did I go ter de soicus? Well, say! Did I over say away from a soicus? Nixty, nixty, nixty, nixty. It was like dis, I was down to de print shop waitin fer me papes, when who blows in but his nobs, de feller dat gives de newspaper gang de jolly an de glad hand. Say! He didn't have nothin in his pockets, no soicus tickets, an it strikes him for a pair."

"Are you a member of de press?" he says. "If it wasn't for de papes I sell, dere wouldn't be no work for de presses," I says.

"Well, cum down to de soicus tomorrow," he says, "an I'll see what I kin do fer you."

"How about me partner?" I says. "Bring him wid you," he says, "an be prepared for de worst; I may want ter use you," he says.

"Did he use me? He didn't do a t'ing but use me—up. Use me for a aqueduct. Don't you know what a aqueduct is? It's to carry water. Well, dat's wat I done; I carried water, me an me chum, Whitley, to a camel wat ain't had a drink since de year of de big flood. I never put no lamps on such a boomer fer water as dat camell. If he ever bruk loose an gits down to de lake dey'll have ter put all de ships on wheels ter git 'em in to de peer. Dat camell couldn't hold any more, de glad hand man gits me an Whitley two tickets an we went in."

"I can't tell you all I seen at de soicus—not in a thousand years. I ain't no serial story writer, but one of de t'ings dat made a hit wid me was den t'wo pauncher galls on de trolley wire. Dey're 't' wid me. De Japs is good people at de trolley wire b'sness, but den galls is de best ever. Dey're de real 'Molly on de Trolley' every time."

"I'm goin ter make a ladder like t'wo of dem downes use, what turns over an over. I'll git Whitley on de under end of it an I won't do a t'ing to him but make him t'ink he's de human top. I never seen so many galls in me life. Dere's a red-headed one dat can't do a t'ing but ride, an he's de so red dey have to use t'ree white horses in de rings. Whitley liked de loidy on de boss dat danced an picked up a wipecoff'n de groun an handed it to de loidy. Well, dat made a hit wid me too."

"Next to hosses, I like ellyfants. De glad hand man tole me dey come from India. Say, den ellyfants don't know a t'ing. Dey couldn't be nuttin but collidge professors. I hope I may have a fit if dey don't walk on dere hands—dere front legs, I mean—an stand on dere heads an eat at a table jest like de reg'lar boardin house push. I hope I may never sell anudder paper if one den didn't open t'wo small cold bots an git a reg'lar jug, an de chief of police ellyfant run him in. Oh, my! den den ellyfants is foolish, I don't t'ink."

"Say, dey've got a goll dat t'rows a dubble sumerset in full even dress—dere's only one gill in de world fer—well, she's de only one dat does de dubble sumerset. I t'ought Whitley would t'row a fit when he saw her. He climbed right out of de seat, but I grabbed him."

"Where you goin?" I says. "I'm goin to steal dat goll," he says. "Cum jack here," I says, "before dey run de chadut mees over yer dead body," I says.

"I want to learn how to t'row one of dem dubbles," he says. "Tomorrow!" he'll be tryin it on, I'll betcher. Den I'll have to go an buy dat kid a fun'ra."—Chicago Times-Herald.

Another Field. "There is one thing that has always kept me out of political life," said the tall man. "One's acts, whether right or wrong, always meet with almost universal condemnation. I believe it is the only field of human endeavor where such things are possible."

"Um!" granted the short man. "Ever unpiro a baseball game?"—Philadelphia North American.

A Clever Girl. "I must say, dearest," said the young man in a tentative way, "that you—ah—make love rather—un—scientifically for a girl who never kissed another man."

"I suppose," said the young lady in the case, "that I must have had some practice in a previous incarnation. Don't you think so?"—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Electric Bitters. Electric Bitters is a medicine suited for any season, but perhaps more generally needed when the languid, exhausted feeling prevails, when the liver is torpid and sluggish and the need of a tonic and alterative is felt. A prompt use of this medicine has often averted long and perhaps fatal bilious fevers. No medicine will act more surely in counteracting and freeing the system from the malarial poison. Headaches, indigestion, Constipation, Biliousness, result to Electric Bitters. Fifty cents and $1 per bottle at Fischer & Co's. drug store.

THE SEVENTH Beet Sugar factory in the United States was erected at Eddy, New Mexico, in 1896, and made its first campaign, beginning November 15th, 1896, and closing February 15th, 1897.

THE CONTENT OF "SUGAR in the beet" of the crop grown in the Eddy and Roswell sections of the valley has proven to be more uniformly high than any other part of the United States.

FORTUNATELY the land is blessed with just the fertility to produce high grade beets, and

MORE FORTUNATELY the Pecos Irrigation and Improvement Co. and the Roswell Land and Water Co. have an irrigation system of great magnitude, covering a vast body of the BEST SUGAR BEET lands on earth. The water is applied to the crop WHEN NEEDED.

THE SUN SHINES more hours in the day and more days in the year in Eddy and Chaves counties, New Mexico, than in any other section of the west.

Illustrated Special Edition New Mexican

Can be had by applying at this office. It is full of matter describing the mineral, agricultural, horticultural and all the varied resources of New Mexico. Just the thing to send to any one inquiring about or interested in the territory. Price 10 cents, wrapped and mailed for 11 cents.

124 separate analysis, chiefly carload lots, showed AN AVERAGE of 17.01 per cent sugar in beet; 84.1 per cent purity.

THIS REMARKABLE RESULT was accomplished by raw farmers, unacquainted with the culture of beet root, on new land and under very trying circumstances, as the factory was not assured until May, and a majority of the acreage was planted between JUNE 1st AND AUGUST 10th.

GOOD SOIL makes the seed germinate. WATER makes the plant grow

SUNLIGHT puts the sugar in the BEET.

THE ONLY THING left to be desired that the Pecos Valley has not on hand in abundance is PEOPLE. We need thrifty farmers; 500 heads of families each on a 40-acre farm.

NO FAIRER terms or conditions of sale of beet and fruit lands were ever made.

Protect the System From Malaria.
It is possible to do this even in regions of country where malarial life, and where the periodic fevers which it causes assume their most formidable types. The immense popularity of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is very largely attributable to the fact of its efficacy as a remedy for chills and fever, bilious remittents, and as a preventive of the various forms of malarial disease. In those portions of the west and south where complaints of this nature prevail, and in the tropics, it is particularly esteemed for the protective influence which it exerts; and it has been very widely adopted as a substitute for the dangerous and comparatively inefficient alkaloid, sulphate of quinine. Physicians have not been among the last to concede its merits, and the emphatic professional endorsements which it has received have added to the reputation it has obtained at home and abroad.

A MIDNIGHT DRIVE.
Some years ago I was sadly in need of a change into the country, and, most opportunely, a doctor in Arlington was anxious to winter abroad, so I took his practice for six months.

Arlington was a picturesque little place some five miles from the sea. The people were most friendly and gave me a hearty welcome immediately. Dr. Seward, whose substitute I was, kept a smart little horse and buggy. The weather being unusually fine for the time of year, I immensely enjoyed the driving, for the country was new to me.

One day as I was returning home, when it was beginning to grow dusk, my eye was caught by the glow of the setting sun on the windows of a house standing on rather high ground near the sea.

It was an old red brick house and seemed much out of repair. Turning to my driver I asked him who owned the place. "It is called the Laurels," he replied. I was surprised at the curt speech, for usually he was very talkative. Just then we turned a corner, and it was lost from sight. The matter then passed from my mind entirely. Soon after that the weather grew wild and stormy, so that my long drives became a nuisance instead of a pleasure, and on the evening of April 1 I came in at 7, really thankful that my day's work was over. This thought gave me the greatest comfort, and after dinner I settled myself in a large armchair drawn up to the blazing hearth and resigned myself to a cup of excellent coffee and a good cigar. The long, cold drive had made me drowsy, and soon, in spite of my interest, I fell sound asleep and dreamed of my school days.

I was awakened by the violent ringing of the surgery bell—an agitated sound, as though the ringer had been kept waiting some time and was growing angry.

The clock was just striking 11, so I must have slept for nearly two hours; then, remembering that the housekeeper must have gone to bed, I roused myself and went to the door.

The rain had ceased, but heavy clouds were scudding across the sky, partially obscuring the full moon. By the flickering light of the hall lamp I saw a young man, muffled in a dark cloak. He looked about 25, and his dark, handsome face seemed pale and disturbed.

"You are a surgeon?" he said abruptly, stretching out his hand.

I noticed that there was a bloodstained handkerchief twisted round his wrist, and so concluded he had met with an accident and needed my attention, so I said: "Yes, come inside. The wind will extinguish the lamp, and I have no matches about me."

"I want you to come with me at once. My brother has met with an accident. It is a matter of life and death."

"Where?" I asked hurriedly, shivering with cold, for he would not come in.

"To the Laurels. I implore you to make haste," was the agitated answer.

"Your name?" I asked in despair, for the Laurels was five miles away.

"Guy Chivers. Are you ready? Come."

All I could do was to step back into the hall, put on my fur coat, and ask him to wait while I harnessed the horse. He agreed to this and accompanied me to the stable, even offering to hold the lantern while I attended to the horse, for my man had gone to bed with a cold. By its light I studied his face. He had an almost faultless profile, with a hard mouth and dark, restless eyes. He looked rather like an actor. I could not say whether I liked his looks or not. Seldom, if ever, have I seen a face which so attracted and repelled me at the same time.

become. However, as I took one step toward the door he reappeared, carrying a lamp which cast a curious shadow on the wall.

"Come up stairs," he said quickly. "Harold is there. Step quietly." And he led the way into a large room, which struck me as the most uncomfortable bedroom I ever entered. But instantly my whole attention was fixed on a slim, boyish figure lying on the bed, fully dressed, with the blood flowing from a deep wound in his left side.

For a minute I thought him already dead, but he raised his head feebly as we entered and whispered faintly: "Guy, it was my fault. I struck you first."

Chivers leaned over him and raised him in his arms, so that the fair, curly head rested on his shoulder, and said: "We were mad, Harold, both of us. Here's not worth my brother's life."

Here—and he beckoned me to approach the bedside. "Save this boy's life and all my property shall be yours."

I was about to protest that doctors do not take such exorbitant fees, but even as I stepped forward the lad turned from me with a painful effort, clung to his brother and sobbed out his young life in his arms.

I was horrified, although in my professional experience I had attended scores of deathbeds. In silence I advanced to help the poor young man, but he laid down the lifeless form and came to my side, saying coldly:

"You are too late, sir. Now go." And he pointed to the door.

"But, Mr. Chivers," I began, "it is necessary that—My sentence remained unfinished. Something, I know not what, took possession of me, and I found myself running like a madman down the dark avenue, without any knowledge of how or why I left the house. A great terror overcame me, but my good Dixie was still tied to the gatepost, and I scrambled into the buggy and urged him homeward.

When my man arrived next morning, he said reproachfully: "Whatever's been happening to Dixie, sir? He's that done you'll not be able to drive him for a week."

"I was summoned in a hurry last night," I replied with caution. "John, does Dr. Seward usually attend the people at the Laurels?"

"The Laurels? Why, bless you, sir, there ain't no people there. It's been empty for years," was the astounding reply.

A little later I met the doctor as I was going through the village. The reverend gentleman saw at a glance that I was much perturbed, and I tried to talk commonplace. Soon, however, the question slipped out, "Do you know anything of the Laurels?"

"Ah, it is a strange, uncanny place," was his answer. "No one lives there, and the natives all give it a wide berth. Two brothers named Chivers owned it at the end of the last century. Legends say that they were devotedly attached to each other, but both were high spirited, fiery tempered fellows, and—a woman in the case—doctor, they fell in love with the same girl, a niece of one of my predecessors. I believe, their servants, who lived on well into this century, used to say that she secretly favored Harold, the younger, but one day she promised to run away with Guy. The boy (he was scarcely more) discovered this, and, in a passion, struck his brother across the face."

"They fought a duel, and it was not until his brother lay dying at his feet that Guy relented. Then he searched the country far and wide for a surgeon, and found one at last—just too late. The boy died as they entered the room. Guy blew his brains out the day of the funeral, and the villagers have some foolish tale of the house is haunted. But that is, of course, mere talk."

"What day did all this take place?" I gasped, feeling sick and giddy.

"Let me see, I know—somewhere this time of year," said the doctor. "Why, it was the 1st of April."

My strange experience has always been an unexplained mystery to me. That I was not dreaming was well proved by the mud on the buggy, by poor Dixie's exhausted condition and by the mark of wheels in the deserted drive at the Laurels.—John T. Hall in Owl.

Hammering Sense Into Him.
"I'm cured," declared a young fellow with good looks and an abundance of animal spirits to several of his boon companions the other evening. "You know that my sister Lena clerks down town and is frequently detained till after dark. On such occasions she walks home with a girl friend in the same establishment. Lena has always said that if any man ever tried to stop them they would try to find some honest employment, and I thought I'd just test her courage for the fun of the thing."

"Did you?" When the girls were hurrying along about two blocks from home, I sprang out of an alley, stuck an empty revolver in their faces, ordered them to throw up their hands and told them that a scream from either of them would mean immediate death. The other girl went for screaming, but Lena was loaded for bear and wiped me over the head with an iron poker that had dangled from her belt under her cloak. I tried to explain, but she was too excited to heed anything but the job she had undertaken. I was knocked down, but she walked away till my scalp was split in 20 directions. The cries of the other one brought a policeman, and even after the whole thing was explained he insisted on walking home with us to make sure of my identity. Under the impression that the policeman had clubbed me unmercifully, the old gentleman was calling for a weapon with which to annihilate him, when Lena hurriedly told the story.

"I'm 23, but father kicked me around the house three times and then threw me into bed. He informed me that the average lunatic could teach me common sense, and I believed him. I've sworn off on practical jokes."—Detroit Free Press.

HIS BRINDLE ALLY.

Paw Was Doing His Best, but He Needed Assistance Badly.
"Paw," said Hiram Beeswinger, a husky young granger of 18—"paw, I'd like to borrow your razor now that I'm a man!"

"Waal, I swan! Now that you air a what?" queried the old man.
"A man, paw," Hiram repeated diffidently.

"Waal, I swan! A man? Why, gosh durnit, Hiram Beeswinger, you ain't never lambasted your old father yet, have you?"

"Nope, paw, but—"
"Then you're nothin but a sucklin babe, and don't you forget it. When you're lambasted your old father, you can grow whiskers and chew tobacco and wear a billed shirt, but not till then."

"But, paw, I licked the boots often S. Parker, and him a year older."

"S. Parker ain't me, Hiram Beeswinger. But I think you think you kin lambaste me too?"

"I think I kin, paw."

"Waal, I swan! Shook your coat, Hiram Beeswinger. You're 6 foot tall now, but you'll think you're wearin a bib before I git through with you!"

"Mebbe so, paw; mebbe so."

"Now, boys, boys," cried Grandma Beeswinger, "you'll break your arms or legs or somethin, sure!"

"No, we won't, naw," said the old man. "Where shall I lambaste you, Hiram—in the pasture or over'n the orchard?"

"The pasture'll do, paw. The brindle calf kin act as referee."

For five minutes after the combatants reached the arena of conflict it seemed to Grandma Beeswinger's falling eyes that the air was filled with flying arms and legs. Then the brindle calf got mixed up in the scrimmage and it speedily came to an end.

In about ten minutes the pair returned. Hiram's chin was devoid of cuticle, the old man's "galluses" were a total wreck, one of his eyes was discolored and he walked with a limp.

"Waal, naw, I lambasted him," he said with a sigh. "Yes, I lambasted him all right, but gosh durnit, naw," he added, rubbing his eye as he spoke, "that boy would be growin whiskers sure's your born if me an the calf hadn't worked it on shares! Waal, I swan!"—Truth.

An Entertaining Dentist.
About the coolest thing in the way of nerve that has been seen lately was that displayed by a Jersey City carpenter who got into an altercation with a man on the street and knocked out two of his best front teeth, and then, when he saw what he had done, hurried to his office and promptly made out and forwarded to his victim by the next mail the following bill for professional services:

"John Smith,
To I. Yankem, Dr.
For extracting two teeth at 50 cents each, $1.
N. B.—Please remit and oblige."
We don't know whether he got the dollar or not, but he richly deserved it. Enterprise and nerve of this description certainly ought not to go unrewarded.—New York Sunday World.

A Recurrent Experience.
Willie Washington had just proposed to the young woman upon whom he had set his affections and she had declined to marry him. He sat in silence for a few minutes and then said:

"I dislike to prolong conversation on a subject which cannot be other than unpleasant to both of us, but before we drop the topic forever there's one question I'd like to have you answer."

"Certainly, Mr. Washington. What is it?"

"Did you refuse me because you don't like me or simply because it has gotten to be the fad?"—Washington Star.

His Reputation.
Grass—Mr. Wheeler is awfully cool headed. Why, do you know, the other day on the speedway he told me the most remarkable series of adventures while the tandem was going a regular 240 clip.

Deteriorated.
"The United States senate has deteriorated," said the patriot emphatically.
"Right!" replied the southern statesman. "The good old times when we sat for days at a time in a game without a limit have gone forever."—Philadelphia North American.

There is a fascination about a vigorous, healthy woman, which touches every heart. Physical weakness is a great drawback to a woman's social success. As she loses healthy plumpness she loses attractiveness. A woman had even better be too stout than too thin; but either extreme shows a lack of healthy condition.

If you are not physically up to the mark, appetite uncertain, digestion poor and a general sense of weakness and incapacity, you will find the robust health and energy you need in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It renews the blood with the vital life-giving red corpuscles which drive out all morbid elements, and create new tissue, hard muscular flesh and active nerve force.

It gives color to the cheeks and firmness to the form, without adding one ounce of flabby fat above the normal standard of health. Taken alternately with Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for distinctively feminine troubles, it constitutes a scientific and marvelously successful course of treatment for delicate women.

Mrs. Ella Howell, of Derby, Perry Co., Ind., writes: "In the year of 1891 I was taken with stomach trouble—nervous dyspepsia. There was a coldness in my stomach, and a weight which seemed like a rock. Everything that I ate gave me great pain; I had a bearing down sensation; I was swollen across my stomach; had a ridge around my right side, and in a short time I was bloated. I was treated by three of our best physicians but got no relief. Then Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery was recommended to me and I got it, and commenced the use of it. I began to see a change for the better. I was weak I could not walk across the room without assistance. I took Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and his Favorite Prescription, and one bottle of the 'Pleasant Pellets.' I began to improve very fast after the use of a few bottles. The physicians who attended me said 'dropsy' and that my disease was leading into pulmonary consumption. I had quite a cough, and the home physicians gave me up to die. I thank God that my cure is permanent. I do not feel any symptoms of my old disease. I cannot praise Dr. Pierce and his remedies too highly. The medicines come the nearest to raising the dead, of any I have ever known about. They are worth their weight in gold."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate the liver, stomach and bowels.

That Clever Boy.
Father, said a thoughtful little boy, how many feet has a dog, if we call his tail a foot?
Why, five feet, my son.
No, father, that isn't right.
How so, my son?
Why, he would have only four feet. You see, calling his tail a foot doesn't make it a foot.

Breen's Patent "Finger Spade"

AN INVALUABLE WEEDING IMPLEMENT; ONCE USED, ALWAYS USED.

This little implement, small of size, and conveniently carried in the vest pocket, as will be seen from the cut, is worn on the forefinger, or in some cases on two or more fingers, and is provided with a glove or without, and not only protects the finger from dirt and injury, but permits all kinds of operations in weeding and otherwise tending plants, that can not be performed with the bare fingers. The inventor hit upon this useful expedient to facilitate his own work.

No one who has a garden or window plants, can afford to be without it, costing as it does, a mere trifle. Conceded by competent authorities to be the most distinctively new and useful weeding implement extant; it needs only to be seen to be appreciated, and once worn will never be done without.

Made in different sizes, to suit the requirements of ladies and gentlemen, and sold by all the leading hardware dealers, seedsmen and florists throughout the country. Price, 10 cents.

THE LAND COURT.

Decisions Confirming the Antonio
Gutierrez and Tesque Grants—Santa
Ana Case on Hearing.

The hearing of the correctness of the survey of the Seville land grant, No. 55, in Socorro county, was closed yesterday afternoon. A large number of witnesses was examined, Mr. Pope appearing for the United States, Colonel Frost for the Belen land grant claimants and Messrs. Catron, Spiess & Gortner for the Seville claimants. The testimony of Albert E. Easley, who made the survey, is yet to be taken and a decision will not be announced for some time.

The court met at 10 o'clock this forenoon. All the justices and officers of the court present.

Associate Justice Sluss announced the decision of the court in case No. 274, the Antonio Gutierrez land grant, J. Francisco Chaves versus the United States, confirming the grant. Justice Murray dissented from the opinion of the court. This grant takes in the homestead of the family of Colonel Chaves, called Los Pinos, in Valencia county, on the east side of the Rio Grande, which has been in possession of that family for over 100 years. Frank W. Clancy of Albuquerque, was the attorney in the case.

In case No. 123, the Tesque land grant in Santa Fe county, Manuel Romero y Dominguez versus the United States, for 7,300 acres. Justice Stone announced the opinion of the court, confirming the grant, Justice Murray dissenting. J. H. Purdy of Santa Fe, was the attorney in the grant case.

Case No. 157, the Pueblo de Santa Ana versus the United States, a grant for 18,000 acres to the pueblo named, was then taken up and is now on hearing. Mr. Pope appears for the United States, Mr. Howard for the Pueblo de Santa Ana and Messrs. Catron Spiess & Gortner for adverse claimants in the case.

Stanley has concluded to give another performance of the cantata "The Flower Queen" or "The Coronation of the Rose" and this performance will take place next Saturday evening at the court house. A full dress rehearsal will be had Thursday evening. Popular prices of admission will govern, 25 cents for children, 50 cents for single adults and 75 cents for couples. The performance will be, if possible, still better than the two already put on the stage and the New Mexican bespeaks a full attendance, as it is to be for the benefit of Professor Stanley, who is deserving of great praise and financial benefit for the hard work he has done in the premises.

The Canadian colony in the city on yesterday celebrated the birthday of that fine old lady, Queen Victoria. The celebration was held at Captain Alderson's residence.

Police Court Notes.

Before Police Justice Fernando Nolan, one Estevan Barreras, who looked into the howling howl too long, was fined $5 and costs or ten days in the city bastille and at the city's expense.

Adolph McCluskey, on a charge of petit larceny, stealing a bicycle from Mr. A. B. Rencher, was tried before Justice Nolan on yesterday and found guilty. He was sentenced to three months in jail and a fine of $1 and costs, but on account of the extreme youth of the culprit, sentence was suspended during good behavior.

Luis Gonzales, quite well known in police circles and to the justices of the peace and constables, was tried for and convicted of assault and battery in Justice Romero's court on yesterday. He was fined $5 and costs or 30 days in the county jail, to eat and drink at the county's expense. The man will be tried on a second charge of resisting an officer before Justice Romero this afternoon.

OJO CALIENTE

(HOT SPRINGS.)

THESE Celebrated Hot Springs are located in the midst of the Ancient Cliff dwellers, twenty-five miles west of Taos, and fifty miles north of Santa Fe, and about twelve miles from Barranca Station on the Denver & Rio Grande Railway, from which point a daily line of stages run to the Springs. The temperature of these waters is from 85° to 125°. The gases are carbolic. Altitude 8,000 feet. Climate very dry and delightful the year round. There is now a commodious hotel for the convenience of invalids and tourists. These waters contain 168.34 grains of alkaline salts to the gallon; being the richest Alkaline Hot Springs in the world. The efficacy of these waters has been thoroughly tested by the numerous cures attested to in the following diseases:—Paralysis, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Consumption, Malaria, Bright's Disease of the Kidneys, Syphilis and Mercurial Affections, Scrofula, Catarrh, La Grippe, all Female Complaints, etc., etc. Board, Lodging and Bathing, $2.50 per day. Reduced rates given by the month. For further particulars address—
