A ROYAL DUEL FOUGHT.

The Count of Turin and Prince Henri of Orleans met on the Field of Honor. Where Superior Skill in Swordsmanship Gave the Count Easy Victory.

Paris, Aug. 16.—The Count of Turin and Prince Henri of Orleans, fought a duel on Sunday with swords on the Bois de Marechaux near Van Oressen. The fighting lasted 26 minutes. There were five engagements, of which two were at close quarters. Prince Henri received serious wounds in the right shoulder, and on the right side of the abdomen. Turin was wounded in the right hand. Prince Henri was taken to the residence of the Duc de Chartres and there received medical attention. The seconds of Prince Henri were M. de Lenoir, governor general of the equatorial provinces of Abyssinia, and M. Raoul of Mourmelon. Turin's seconds were Count Avagnon de Quinto, and Marquis Carlo de Giorio. The condition of Prince Henri is as satisfactory as could be expected. The doctors have expressed the opinion that no important organ was touched, but declare that absolute rest is necessary for recovery.

Paris is intensely excited over the royal duel. The sale of evening papers was almost unprecedented. Although the Republicans would fain console themselves with the reflection that Prince Henri's overthrow has killed Orleansism for a generation, French pride, irrespective of party, is deeply hurt by the Italian prince's victory.

French anger is stimulated by the persistent reports that Prince Henri was inferior to his opponent in nerve, more than in swordsmanship, and was completely overborne by the violent and reckless onslaught of the count. An opinion is said to have been expressed by the count's seconds that if Prince Henri had had self control, he had an opening in the second bout, which would easily have enabled him to put the count hors de combat. According to one account, the wound in the abdomen, by which Prince Henri was disabled, was the result of his own maladresse in parrying a fierce lunge from his opponent.

General Albertone's seconds still claim that the prince must meet him when restored to health.

CHALLENGE WITHDRAWN.

Paris.—General Albertone who had challenged Prince Henri of Orleans, but who gave way to Count Turin, has withdrawn his challenge.

MYSTERIOUSLY DISAPPEARS

W. H. Felts, Who Was to Have Attempted a Flight from Pike's Peak, Has Disappeared.

Manitou, Colo., Aug. 16.—Wm. B. Felts has mysteriously disappeared. The flying machine, with which he was to have attempted a flight from Pike's Peak to Colorado Springs, is still housed on top of the peak. There has been a rumor that Felts' nerve was becoming shaky, which was offset by a statement from the professor that he was waiting for a clear day. Felts went down the mountain side Friday afternoon, stating that he was going for a walk, since which time nothing has been seen or heard of him. His friends say he has probably lost his way, and may have fallen down a precipice and been killed or injured. They are searching for him.

LABOR LEADERS TO CONSULT

Officials of Every Labor Organization in Pittsburgh to Meet for the Purpose of Selecting Strike Leaders to Take the Place of Those Who Are to Be Arrested.

Pittsburgh, Aug. 16.—A meeting of officials of every labor organization in Pittsburgh has been called at the headquarters of the Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel Workers tonight, to take such action as may be asked by the local officers of the United Mine Workers Union of America. It has been anticipated that the hearing on the injunction to be had today may go against them, and the temporary restraint put upon the miners now in camp at Turtle Creek and other mines of the New York & Cleveland Gas Coal company, as to marching and persuading the DeArmitt men from working, may be made permanent. In that event, it is expected the order of the court will be disobeyed, and test be had, and that the miners, under the leadership of President Patrick Dolan, Secretary Warner, Edward McKay, Frank McCanna, Paul Trimmer and Cameron Miller, will continue to march to the mines. Then it is expected the leaders, and perhaps many of the rank and file will be arrested. There will be no resistance to the arrests, but in the case of the strike will be with a head, and the meeting tonight is supposed to be for the purpose of selecting a number of men to take the places of those who may be kept in jail, and thus enable longer to direct the movements of the strikers. Then an appeal will be taken from the order causing the arrests to be made.

HEARING IN EQUITY.

The hearing in equity of the New York & Cleveland Gas Coal company against the United States Mine workers of America, was called this morning in the court of common pleas, before Judges Stone and Collier. The court room was crowded. The plaintiffs were represented by Attorneys Schryer, Kaufman and Hall, and the defendants by A. J. Brennan. Schryer filed a motion to make the preliminary injunction permanent. Brennan made a counter motion to dissolve it. Judge Stone decided that both motions were out of order. President DeArmitt was called to the stand. His testimony did not materially differ from the affidavits filed, when the preliminary injunctions were secured.

Superintendent Thomas DeArmitt, the next witness, described the marches of the strikers, and their camps, and said 200 or 300 men told him they were fearful of personal injury, or of the destruction of their property if they went to work.

Superintendent Fisher of the Sandy Creek mine, testified that he had been notified to stay in the house, or he would be "done up," and he had also been shot at.

President Dolan was called for cross examination, and during his testimony said the strike was made at the request of several operators. Among the number were James Shields, Captain J. J. Stoyler and Captain Blythe. These operators, he said, had told him that DeArmitt was raising the trade, and the only thing that would save them from the sheriff, and the miners from starvation, was a strike. No one had told him to get DeArmitt's men out, by which it was hoped to make the strike general.

EVICTIOMS EXPECTED.

Pittsburgh.—There were no evictions of miners up to noon, but it is reported that a number will be made before the close of the day.

The threatened suits against the New York and Cleveland company for retaining the wages of striking miners, have been commenced. It is anticipated that about 150 suits will result, for salaries ranging from $1.50 to $2.00.

TO SERVE AN INJUNCTION.

Charleston, W. Va.—Deputy U. S. Marshal B. L. Priddle has gone to the New River coal fields, to serve Judge Jackson's injunction on Dilcher and his associates.

DESKING THE STRIKERS.

Taking advantage of the suspension in marching, a number of men went to work this morning at the Oak Hill mine. Agents of the company had been at work among the strikers for over a week, and although they induced some to return, the result has been disappointing.

In anticipation of adverse action by the courts, committees have been sent out to secure boarding houses, so the siege can be maintained. It is proposed by the marchers to fill the houses with striking miners, and keep them supplied with provisions. A hundred men will be quartered at Turtle Creek, the same number at Sandy Creek and 200 at Plum Creek. They will do picket duty and missionary work.

TWO MORE INJUNCTIONS.

Parkersburg, W. Va.—Judge Jackson has issued two more injunctions against the striking miners.

MENTIONED TO DEATH.

Madrid Aug. 16.—Michel Angiolillo, the anarchist assassin of Premier Canovas del Castillo, was tried by a court martial yesterday at Valencia, found guilty, and sentenced to death. Upon hearing the sentence Angiolillo turned deathly pale, and had to be assisted from the court room. Angiolillo will be garroted within the prison.

SUPREME COURT SERVICE.

Associate Justice Stephen J. Field Has Broken the Record for Continuous Service.

New York, Aug. 16.—The Herald says: Associate Justice Stephen J. Field of the Supreme court, today broke the record for continuous service on the Supreme bench, having served 34 years, 5 months, and 6 days, one day longer than a former chief justice, John Marshall. It has been generally understood that Field would retire when his length of service exceeded Marshall's. Attorney General McKenna, according to present understanding, will succeed him. The vacant attorney generalship, it is expected, will be filled by Judge Goff of West Virginia.

A BLOODY RACE WAR.

Three Men Killed and Three Others Seriously Injured in a Fight at Palmar Station, 30 Miles from Little Rock, Ark.

Little Rock, Ark., Aug. 16.—The bloodiest race war that has occurred in Arkansas in many months, took place at Palmar station, 30 miles from Little Rock, last evening. Three men are dead and another is fatally wounded, and two others are injured.

The dead are: Harris Korr, colored, shot to pieces. Charles Peters, colored, shot in the head. Charles Andrey, white, shot through the heart.

The seriously injured are: J. T. Clark, jr., a telegraph operator, shot through the shoulder, probably fatally. D. R. Owens, white, deputy sheriff of Perry county, shot in the groin, seriously. Owens had a warrant for Korr, charging him with murder. When he attempted to make the arrest, Korr opened fire. Andrey and Clark went to Owens' assistance, and five or six negroes joined with Korr. Over 50 shots were fired. Should Korr's associates be caught, they will be lynched without a trial.

Antarctic Expedition.

Antwerp, Aug. 15.—The steamer Belgica with an Antarctic expedition on board sailed this morning. The expedition, it is expected, will land at Graham's landing early in November.

Warned Against Rebellion.

Simla, Aug. 16.—The ameer of Afghanistan has issued an order warning his subjects not to join the rebels now rising against the Indian government, and the governor of Kohat has been ordered to punish Afghans who have been raising camels belonging to the Tochi expedition. European and native reinforcements have been ordered to Kohat immediately, in order to deter the rebel bands.

Yacht Club Regatta.

Portsmouth, Aug. 16.—At the regatta of the royal Albert Yacht club today, the Duke of Abruzzi Bona in a splendid breeze, obtained the weather berth, and led to Nab, where Emperor William's Meteor overhauled her. At Stokes Bay the Meteor was first, and the Aurora, the property of Charles Day Rose, second, being two lengths ahead of the Bona.

MURDER AND SUICIDE.

A San Francisco Man, 75 Years Old Shoots His Nephew and Then Turns the Weapon Upon Himself.

San Francisco, Aug. 7.—John Masterson, aged 75, shot and killed John Kurran, his nephew, and fatally wounded himself this morning. Kurran was proprietor of a grocery store and employed his uncle as clerk. A few days ago he discharged the old man, and put a youth named Ross in his place. Masterson appeared at the store today, and after a few words with his nephew, fired three shots at Kurran, who fell after the third shot, which took effect in his left breast. Masterson then attempted to kill Ross, but the latter fled, and the old man then turned the weapon upon himself inflicting a fatal wound in the head.

Silver Falls Again.

New York, Aug. 16.—The price of silver fell again today to the new low record. The fall in London since Saturday, for bar silver was 14 penny weight to 25 1/2 per ounce, and in New York the price declined to 54 1/2. Mexican dollars were quoted at 41 1/2 as compared to 43 on last Saturday.

UNIVERSITY OF NEW MEXICO

Sixth Annual Catalogue of the University of New Mexico for 1897-1898 Just Issued from the Press of the New Mexican Printing Company.

BRIEF HISTORY OF THE INSTITUTION

An Outline of the Several Courses of Study Presented, and the Advantages Offered by This School to Students Who Desire to Do Thorough and Rapid Work.

The sixth annual catalogue of the University of New Mexico for 1897 and 1898 has just been issued from the press of the New Mexican Printing company, and forms a tastefully arranged pamphlet of 60 pages, replete with full information regarding the first school of the territory, a brief history of which we find to be as follows:

The University of New Mexico was established by an act of the territorial legislature of 1889 and the location of the institution fixed at Albuquerque. As soon as funds would permit, the regents secured the necessary area of land required by the enacted law, and commenced the construction of the building. In May, 1892, this structure was completed and accepted by the board of regents. On June 15, 1892, the normal department of the University was opened for students, and during the following September a preparatory department was opened. The institution has been in successful operation five years, having conferred during this time 15 diplomas of graduation in the regular courses and many certificates of satisfactory work in the more limited courses of study.

The standard of work has risen steadily and facilities for the study of the liberal arts and sciences are being continually increased to meet the growing demands of the community. Material development has kept pace with internal growth, and the University with its commodious buildings and growing apparatus and library can now offer better facilities for study and scientific research than ever before, embracing a wide variety of subjects taught by specialists in every branch.

The officers of the university are, Hon. William B. Childers, president; Mr. Frank W. Clancy, secretary and treasurer; the board of regents is made up as follows: Governor Miguel A. Otero, ex-officio; Hon. Placido Sandoval, superintendent of public instruction, ex-officio; Mr. Frank W. Clancy, Hon. E. S. Stover, Hon. William B. Childers, Hon. Henry L. Waldo and James H. Wroth, M. D.

The faculty is composed of the following well known educators: Clarence L. Herriot, M. S. president and professor of psychology and philosophy and professor of higher mathematics; Martha L. Taylor, A. M., professor of English and history; Josephine S. Parsons, principal of the commercial department, instructor in mathematics; Randolph W. Tinsley, professor of natural sciences; James Hay Paxton, A. M., professor of Latin and Greek, and in charge of French and German; Charles E. Hodgkin, B. Ed., principal of normal department; W. A. Tenney, instructor in drawing and relative subjects; Atanacio Montoya, jr., instructor in Spanish; M. Osters, custodian and librarian.

There are three departments—the academic department, the commercial department and the normal department—the latter course having been organized with the special view of training competent teachers for the public schools. Admission to the academic course is either upon a certificate from some school of acknowledged thoroughness, or upon examination in English, history, geography and arithmetic.

Students having completed the third year in the Albuquerque high school, and other high schools of equal standing may be admitted on certificate to the junior preparatory year of the university.

During the past year, the board of regents built a substantial gymnasium, and equipped it with the best apparatus obtainable. The results of training in this line have been closely noted, and have proved satisfactory in every respect.

The library is not yet extensive, but it contains many standard works of reference indispensable alike to student and teacher. The nucleus of a working museum of geology and biology has been secured, and will be rapidly increased.

In the matter of expenses an annual matriculation fee of $5 is required of each student entering any class or classes of the university payable in advance. This fee is used in the purchase of books and periodicals for the library.

For those who pursue a laboratory course, an annual fee of $10 is required, in order to pay for material used, and for breakage and damage of apparatus.

Good board can be had in Albuquerque for $20 per month. The dormitory system has not yet been introduced, but it is the intention of the board of regents to erect a dormitory building for the accommodation of teachers and students who desire to live on the university grounds, in the near future.

At the present time the university has no work at its command for students, but a number of students have found congenial employment about town, from which they have been able to defray a large portion of their expenses.

During the coming year a special effort will be made to assist students who so desire, to find employment for their hours of recreation.

The normal department is especially recommended for those who intend to teach. Thorough instruction is given in such branches as are taught in the graded and high schools, and in the history and theory of teaching, including correct methods of study, instruction and discipline. The art of teaching is acquired by observation and comparison of examples, and by practice under the supervision and criticism of experienced teachers. Some of the subjects embraced in the course are as follows: Psychology and ethics, history and philosophy of education, school law, school organization and management, phonology and orthography, child study, methodology, observation and practice, etc.

The several courses in the university have been prepared with great care by experienced educators, and while the institution is young, it is expanding to meet the growing demands of the times. It is certainly deserving of the support of the people of New Mexico, for it rests alone with the territory to realize the promise of this rising institution.

HER THROAT CUT.

A Terrible Crime at Galveston, Tex., in Which a Veteran School Teacher Loses Her Life.

Galveston, Texas, Aug. 16.—This morning Mrs. Kate Gallagher, for 12 years a school teacher in this city, who lived with her son at Twelfth and K. streets, was found with her throat cut from ear to ear, and the body charred beyond recognition. After killing her, the murderer set fire to the bed.

Virgil, the 20 year old son of the murdered woman, has been arrested and has confessed that he committed the crime to get money to spend on a variety of actresses. The crime was deliberately planned and executed. The young man had packed his trunk, and was ready to leave. He had the furniture insured, and with the money, expected to leave Texas as soon as the fire could be adjusted. But the fire was discovered in time to prevent the destruction of the house and the bloody body.

Former Wages Restored.

Chester, Pa., Aug. 16.—The employees of Geo. C. Heltzel & Co., manufacturers of worsted goods, have been notified that the wages paid in 1892 will be restored September 6, next.

HIS SCHEMES FAILED.

The Attempt of Senor Romero Robledo, Spanish Minister of Justice, to Get the Conservative Leadership Has Failed.

Madrid, Aug. 16.—An attempt of Senor Romero Robledo, Spanish minister of justice, to assume the conservative leadership, has failed. Following his public declaration in favor of the retention of Captain General Weyler in Cuba, and against any reconciliation with the dissenting conservatives, the principal conservative leaders have given adherence to General Azcaraga, acting premier and minister of war.

To be Excommunicated.

London, Aug. 16.—A special from Rome, published today, says that it is reported there, that the Pope will excommunicate Prince Henry of Orleans and Count Turin, as dwelling is forbidden by the Roman Catholic church.

Joined the Strikers.

Mattawan, W. Va., Aug. 16.—Eight hundred miners at Simmons Creek and Logan, joined the strikers this morning. Fifteen hundred men are now out in Norfolk and the western district.

A TELEGRAPH LINE.

The Canadian Government Submits a Proposition to the United States for the Construction of a Telegraph Line to Klondyke.

Washington, Aug. 16.—The Canadian government has submitted for the approval of this government plans for the establishment of communication with the Klondyke region in Alaska, by the construction of a telegraph line from the head waters of navigation on the Lynn canal, to the center of the Klondyke district. The proposals have been taken under advisement. They have been approved by the British principal secretary of state for foreign affairs, and were forwarded by the governor general of Canada, through the British embassy, to the state department, and thence to the interior department.

Canadian Yacht Wins.

Point Claire, Aug. 16.—Glencair, a Canadian yacht, won the second race for the Seawanaka cup.

IGNORANCE DISPLAYED.

Of the Crowds Flocking to Klondyke, Not One in 20 Has Any Definite Information of How to Reach His Destination.

San Francisco, Aug. 16.—Thomas Magee, a well known conservative business man and a careful observer, who accompanied his son to Dyea, writes the Associated Press to the effect that the ignorance displayed by the crowds flocking to Klondyke is lamentable. Of the 400 passengers who sailed with the steamer George W. Elder, not one in 20 had any definite information of how to reach his destination. The two starting points, Dyea and Skagway, are separated by four miles of salt water. The Dyea trail goes over the Chilcoot pass, which involves a climb of 3,500 feet, while the other, which is not yet completed, has a 2,650 foot climb over White pass, and besides being six miles longer, is boggy in places. The Indians all pack over Chilcoot pass from Dyea. Nearly 500 pack animals are now en route, and on arrival will be organized into regular pack trains, which will remove the chief obstacles for the transportation of supplies over 35 miles of land, is much more formidable than that over 550 miles of water, on the other side of the pass.

FOR RAILROAD EXTENSION

Mr. E. O. Faulkner, Receiver of the Pecos Valley Railroad, and Mr. J. J. Hagerman Have Returned from a Business Trip to New York.

The Two Gentlemen Have Been Negotiating a Sale of Bonds to Raise Money for an Extension of the Pecos Valley Road from Roswell to Washburn.

Roswell, N. M., Aug. 12, 1897.—Mr. E. O. Faulkner, receiver of the Pecos Valley railway, returned to the valley today from New York, where he has been the past two months, in company with J. J. Hagerman, negotiating a sale of bonds to raise money for the extension of the road from Roswell to Washburn. Rumor says that he was successful, but the report remains to be authoritatively verified.

Willets & Beal of New York City, brokers in sugar stocks and bonds, are the promoters of the Pecos Sugar company, capitalized at $1,000,000. These gentlemen issue an elaborate prospectus outlining the whole project in detail and setting forth in a most convincing manner the advantages that the Pecos valley possesses for the manufacture of beet sugar.

The company was organized on July 24 ult., and started off with a subscription to its stock of $400,000. We all feel hopeful that this enterprise will be a go. All conditions seem to promote its success. The territory lends a helping hand by the exemption of sugar factories from taxation for a period of six years, the general government assists by a bounty in the shape of a tariff that amounts to nearly 2 cents per pound on sugar, a productive and properly constituted soil combined with irrigation and a climate that furnishes almost continual sunshine especially adapted to the culture of the sugar beet. The record made last year demonstrates that the Pecos valley beets carry on the average 16 per cent sugar, or two percent more than is secured from beets produced elsewhere in the whole world, therefore we say that all the conditions are favorable for the successful promotion of this enterprise.

The factory will be located in the midst of the best lands about three miles from Roswell. It is the general opinion that this factory will be worth more to the valley than the railroad extension. Let us see what such an enterprise means for this community.

First, the large investment of $1,000,000 within a period of 18 months, in an agricultural section, is a big thing in itself, and should lubricate the wheels of prosperity in this valley until they run with the swiftness and smoothness of greased lightning. Second, that this factory will have a capacity of 800 tons of beets daily, with an average campaign of 120 days, giving the factory a total capacity for each season of 96,000 tons, or in round numbers 100,000 tons. Now, the average yield per acre is from ten to 12 tons; let us base our estimate on the minimum, this means that 10,000 acres of our land would be used in the production of the sugar beet. The lowest price ever paid for beets in this valley, depending upon purity and per cent of saccharine, is 84 per ton, therefore our 10,000 acres in beets, necessary to produce 100,000 tons, would yield a yearly revenue to this immediate section of $840,000. These undisputed facts should convince the most cynical pessimist of the future growth and prosperity of this valley, should we be so fortunate, to secure the factory. Third—A factory of this description would greatly add to the farming population of the valley, as beet culture requires one man for each ten acres of beets. It means nearly 1,000 farmers added to our farming population, these with their families would become the recipients of the $400,000 disbursed annually by the factory, allowing but three persons to each farmer's family, makes an increased productive and consuming population of at least 3,000 persons, all within a radius of five miles of Roswell. Then there are the factory employees, who will average 200 persons at least, with their families of 200 persons, would give us an added factory population of 600, or a total of 3,600 persons that this single industry would add to the community.

It is our desire in this connection to publicly express our loyalty and gratitude to the man whose capital, energy, ability and perseverance have been signally devoted to the development of this valley for the past eight years, and to whom we are indebted for whatever material progress we have made, and to whom we longingly look and upon whom we solely depend for the two great enterprises, namely: The sugar factory and the railroad extension. If these enterprises reach fruition this valley will owe a debt of gratitude to J. J. Hagerman, that it can never repay.

MONDAY, AUGUST 16.

The decrease in Populism will be found to be in exact ratio with the rise in the price of wheat.

If there is any other carrier pigeon in Europe out of a job, it can find profitable employment in getting itself picked up as a messenger from Professor Andree.

Much could be forgiven Mr. Bryan if he would leave his summer pleasure long enough to explain to the country how it is that silver persists in falling, while wheat just as persistently goes up.

Silver is going down while wheat is going up in a way to indicate to Mr. Bryan that it would be better to let Montana alone for a while and come out and blow some more wind into his favorite metal.

Bryan cannot hope to learn much from the gushing rhytms of the Yellowstone, because there is not one of them that was ever known to keep on spouting and spouting away without any definite purpose.

The Armenians have turned the tables long enough to kill 200 Turks in the Persian frontier, a fact which may cause the sick man to become convalescent long enough to turn loose a few thousand Kurdish fanatics.

If somebody does not presently pick up a carrier pigeon from Mrs. Lease's gubernatorial boom there will begin to arise the gravest fears of disaster to what was once a most promising political expedition of discovery.

SARA BERNHARDT has sued two Paris newspapers for libel, but let it be borne in mind that two affirmations do not make a certificate of moral character. Sara has not lived long enough yet for everything to have been forgotten.

There is a blockade of gold seekers at Dyea, but that is not so important, perhaps as the fact that snow has begun to fly in Chilkooot pass. Gold seekers at Dyea can always come back in some way. Men caught by the blizzard in the pass can neither advance nor retreat. They die in the snow.

It has been announced that ex-Senator Peffer will shave off his whiskers and practice law at Topeka—and so another Sampson will pass from public life. It is a mistake, however, to charge Aunt Mary Lease with playing the part of Delilah. The sacrifice of strength is purely voluntary.

MR. INGALLS has declined the Swiss mission because he would rather be numbered among the unemployed rest of his life than be shelled on a little jerk water job like that. Courage, brother. There is to be another flinty carnival in Nevada and perchance you may get another whack at reporting.

The colored gentleman who stole $28 in silver from the treasury vaults in Washington when he might, with his opportunities, have taken millions, will have abundant leisure in prison to reflect upon the strange mutability of human affairs which lands a petty thief behind bars and lands to the skies the adroitness of the man whose human nature leads him to take everything in sight.

The czar and kniser, each representing a million bayonets, are toasting each other as peace-makers. It is the usual fraud of military despots. Of course, William had to rush off to St. Petersburg to meet the czar. He has a terrible talent for inventing himself. The late czar held him to be a terror, and shrank from him. Nicholas seems to have better nerves than his father.

The kniser and the czar have decided to suppress anarchists, and regard themselves commissioned for that purpose, but as long as the anarchists do not disturb their peace measures, they had better not bother the anarchists. There are several hornets' nests of those very disagreeable people. It is lucky for the two young men that the Spanish kind of anarchist does not appear in Germany or Russia.

The news from the state of Washington is that there are more than $10,000,000 worth of wheat just harvested in that part of the world. We mean the amount that the farmers themselves get for their grain. The estimated amount of wheat is 18,000,000 bushels, about 3,000,000 more than harvested in Kentucky. Now, these people having something to sell, will save money. It is said that the average cost of producing wheat in Washington is less than 30 cents a bushel. This beats Klondyke gold mining.

If there is a calamity howl anywhere in the country next winter and spring, it will not come from the great southwest. What the northeast is going to say when it fully experiences the comparatively novel sensation of paying real prosperity prices for western bread and meat and raw materials is something else.

It is said that a German has succeeded in making at a low cost an acceptable syrup from sugar beets which has not hitherto been found possible. The product is said to be very agreeable and to contain no injurious substances whatever. Raw beet sugar is singularly disagreeable compound which no one would think of eating, and there has been hitherto no way known of eliminating the imprurities except by completely refining into crystallized sugar. The new discovery, if confirmed, will increase the market for sugar beets at the expense of sugar cane.

The plan of the city fathers of Chicago, to reap a large harvest of shekels by taxing bicycles has met with an impediment. The Circuit court has decided that the license ordinance recently passed is unconstitutional, but this decision will be appealed from, and a final conclusion will not probably be reached for some time to come. There seems to be a willingness on the part of wheelmens to pay a reasonable tax, provided the proceeds are used for the improvement of roads, because they well know that if there is a continuous effort made to supply modern pavements they will save in repairs to wheels much more than the amount of the tax.

A DASTARDLY CRIME.
The killing of young Harold Morley by unknown persons near Earlham, a small town south of Las Cruces, a few days since, was one of the most dastardly crimes in the history of the territory. The foreman of the dead boy's father's ranch is suspected of the foul deed but up to date, as far as can be learned, no arrests have been made for lack of definite information. The authorities of Dona Ana county should exert every possible effort to bring to justice the perpetrators of this foul crime. Such crimes should not go unpunished. The only possible motive for the deed, is found in the fact that certain Mexicans of the neighborhood had a disagreement with the boy's father regarding land titles. The evidence shows that he left his home on horseback. He was undoubtedly lassoed from his horse and then dragged to the tree from which his body was found suspended. Morley was only 15 years old, and is described as being a bright and handsome lad who made friends wherever he went.

THIRTY-TWO MILLIONS LOST.
During the pendency of the Dingley bill in congress the New Mexican repeatedly insisted that every day's delay would cost this country millions of dollars. That this was the literal truth is amply proven by these official figures: "A statement prepared by Worthington C. Ford, chief of the bureau of statistics, shows that the rash of importations during March, April, May and June, in anticipation of the enactment of the new tariff law, will result in an estimated loss to the government of $32,666,427. The loss on wool duties is the largest, amounting to $24,027,941. Mr. Ford gives the opinion that about 10 per cent of this increased importation is properly due to the improvement in business conditions generally. The total loss is estimated at $36,296,030, and with the 10 per cent deducted, the estimated net loss is $32,666,427."

Democratic wool growers will find small comfort in the fact that the loss on wool duties amounts to $24,000,000, or more than two-thirds of the whole loss.

If the senate had been as Republican as the house said bill would have been a law in April and most of this immense sum would have been paid into the treasury in duties on importations. But bad as this is it is only a small part of the injury inflicted on the country by the Democratic and populist obstructionists. The immense quantity of wool which has been rushed into the country and which is on the market, must keep the price of our own product down until the foreign stock is exhausted. In the mean time Democratic newspapers and politicians and congressmen will not fail to mislead the wool growers by sycophantic arguments that the price of wool is not advancing although the Dingley bill is in force.

But there is one thing that all their lying cannot wipe out and that is the prostration of every branch of industry during the entire life of the infamous Wilson law. How will they account for the undeniable fact that while the new tariff was being discussed for four months in congress and by the people not a single speaker nor writer had the hardihood to defend the last Democratic tariff? At its birth there was no rejoicing, and at its death there was no mourning. It has gone down.

"To that vile dust from whence it sprang Unwept, unburied and unused."

HOME INSTITUTIONS.
On another page of this issue of the New Mexican will be found a review of the sixth annual catalogue of the University of New Mexico for 1897-1898.

From this review may be gathered some idea of what is being accomplished by this institution, and what it has to offer to the people of the territory. A few days since the New Mexican presented to its readers a brief article on the advantages of home education, or rather the duty of patronizing home institutions. It was pointed out in this article that the schools of New Mexico were nearly if not quite up to the eastern standard, and that they were deserving of the patronage of the people of the territory. The catalogue above referred to brings this argument home with telling force. When we say that the schools of the territory approach the eastern standard we do not mean, of course, that the University of New Mexico offers the same advantages as Harvard or Yale or Princeton. What we do mean is this, that the University of New Mexico is just as high in its standard, as any eastern institution of equal age. Time alone can make a great university. It will compare favorably with any eastern college of the same age. That is what we mean by an equally high standard. Therefore we say by all means patronize home institutions, for it is only after this manner that the bright promise of our schools for higher education can be realized.

FOR THE LADIES.

STYLISH SIMPLICITY.

Very smart gowns are made of simple fabrics that are inexpensive, by means of trimmings that contrast strikingly, and are yet harmonious. The gown shown above is one of the simple confections that are of undeniable good style. The fabric is a grey canvas; the trimming consists of bands of white braid, outlined by black braid, and tipped with steel buttons. The skirt is made with five gores, the front gore being rather wide, so that the seam runs a little back of the front edge of the trimming. The four lower bands are 20 inches long. The upper ones extend almost to the pleats in the back. The back of the waist is seamless, and like the front, has a yoke effect in trimming. The front of the blouse is cut to hang very full over the belt, and fastens at the left shoulder and under-arm seams. The starching collar and the belt are of black tulle, both fastening at the left side. A ruche of lace is set all around the collar. There seems no abatement of this mode of neck trimming notwithstanding the weather. The hat is of black straw plumes and cream lace.

There are times when the variation of a pulse beat tells the practiced physician whether the scale will go down and mean death or up and mean life. But suppose the medicine he prescribes is not the medicine which your child is taking, but something the druggist thought would do just as well! Who is going to regulate the balance then? A druggist who will offer you something else when you ask for Scott's Emulsion will do the same thing with his prescriptions. Get what you ask for!

HIS PRESCRIPTION.

The Drug Clerk Knew His Business, but Failed to Please.

The drug clerk was examining his mustache closely in a hand mirror when the thin woman in the patched gray shawl came in and said sharply:

"Did a red nosed man, 41 years old last January, with a scratch on his forehead and a lot of soapsuds running down his back come in here about 15 minutes ago?"

"Yes, he did," said the drug clerk, twisting hard at the end of his mustache that insisted on turning down.

"Did he call for a dime's worth of arsenic and run on about his life being a failure, and sorter grit his teeth and say that death would be a relief after living 14 years and 3 months come July with some woman?"

"He certainly did. Those were just about his words."

"I thought so. Did he get what he wanted?"

"Don't you suppose I'm on to my job?" said the drug clerk. "Of course he didn't. I just—"

"Gave him a little harmless magnesia or powder and chalk instead, I suppose!"

"Yes, m," said the drug clerk, with a knowing look. "You needn't be afraid, ma'am. What I gave him wouldn't hurt."

"Young man," said the thin woman as she started for the door, "I've good mind to slap you."

The drug clerk stared a moment, and then went on rubbing a little violet pomade into his mustache.—Detroit Free Press.

A Thoughtful Congregation.

Elderberry—What! Giving your minister a three months' vacation? I shouldn't think he would need rest this time of year. Deacons—He doesn't, but we do.—New York World.

Her Motto.

An amusing relic of the civil war is in the possession of a young woman into whose father's hands it fell some years ago with other effects of a southern relative.

At the time of the siege of Mobile the women of the city were busy for many hours making bags to be filled with sand. The young ladies in one popular boarding school not only made such bags, but decorated them with mottoes in silk or worsted.

The relic referred to was one of the bags sent out from this school and bears in faded blue the unpunctuated device, "God save the south from Harriet Brown."—Youth's Companion.

Had an Easy Time.

"What most impresses you in regard to George Washington?" asked the teacher. The boy debated with himself for several minutes before answering. Then he said: "The easy time he had when he went to school."

"What do you mean by that?" demanded the teacher.

"Well, he didn't have any long list of presidents to learn in their regular order."—Chicago Post.

The Future Will Bring Revenge.

"Papa is a jeweler, you know," she said pettishly, "and he tells me that the engagement ring you gave me is filled."

"I presume so, for I bought it at his store. But you can depend on me to get even in time, darling."—Detroit Free Press.

Incapacitated For Work.

As he climbed into his favorite chair in the barber shop he asked what had become of Shaver.

"Had to quit," replied the boss barber. "What was the matter?"

"Went lunge."—Chicago Record.

Another Gold Brick.

"De fahners," said Uncle Eben, "hez read de papers till it's haid ter sell 'em a gold brick. But many ob 'em goes ahead, jes' ez usual, b'levin de politician dat tells 'em dat he's gwinter make haid wuhk necessary."—Washington Star.

A Level Headed Guy.

Bunko Bill—That guy was so level headed I kind o' hated to swipe his roll. Steering Sam—How's that, pardner? Bunko Bill—Before leavin Hickory Corners, he bought a return ticket.—New York Sunday Journal.

A Bear In Her Path.

"This baby carriage with a canopy top is a good thing," said the early spring nursemaid to the policeman in the park. "Then push it along," grimly ordered the bobby.—Detroit Free Press.

More Apparent Than Real.

"You're looking strangely sensible to-day," said the ubiquitous friend. "On the contrary," replied the bicycle inventor. "I have a new wheel in my head."—Texas Siftings.

How She Did It.

"I declar' it didn't take you no time at all to mend dem trousers, Sis' Brown." "No, Br'er Jimson, I done it with neatness an' dis patch."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

THE SEVENTH BEET SUGAR FACTORY IN THE UNITED STATES.

States was erected at Eddy, New Mexico, in 1896, and made its first "campaign," beginning November 15th, 1896, and closing February 15th, 1897.

THE CONTENT OF "SUGAR IN THE BEET" of the crop grown in the Eddy and Roswell sections of the valley has proven to be more uniformly high than any other part of the United States.

FORTUNATELY the land is blessed with just the fertility to produce high grade beets, and

MORE FORTUNATELY the Pecos Irrigation and Improvement Co. and the Roswell Land and Water Co. have an irrigation system of great magnitude, covering a vast body of the BEST SUGAR BEET lands on earth. The water is applied to the crop WHEN NEEDED.

THE SUN SHINES more hours in the day and more days in the year in Eddy and Chaves counties, New Mexico, than in any other section of the west.

THE SUGAR BOWL OF THE GREAT SOUTHWEST

Is the Rich Valley of the Rio Pecos. IN THE COUNTIES OF EDDY AND CHAVES OF NEW MEXICO.

GOOD SOIL makes the seed germinate.

WATER makes the plant grow.

SUNLIGHT puts the sugar in the BEET.

THE ONLY THING left to be desired that the Pecos Valley has not on hand in abundance is PEOPLE. We need thrifty farmers; 500 heads of families each on a 40-acre farm.

NO FAIRER terms or conditions of sale of beet and fruit lands were ever made.

Serve An Injunction on Disease
By invigorating a feeble constitution, renovating a debilitated physique, and enriching a thin and insubstantial circulation with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, the most highly sanctioned, and the most popular tonic and preventive in existence. It strengthens the stomach, remedies torpor of the liver and bowels, and gives a healthful impulse to the secreting and discharging functions of the kidneys and bladder. Not only does it arrest and prevent the recurrence of malarial fevers, but it furnishes the only adequate safeguard against them to persons who have never been afflicted with those maladies, but would be liable to incur them if medicinally unprotected. It eliminates from the blood certain impurities which the most skillful pathologists regard as the exciting cause of those agonizing complaints, rheumatism and gout, and it is, moreover, an excellent remedy for an enfeebled and overwrought state of the nerves, and for mental despondency.

PHILLIPS BROOKS.
Who has not known in mountain hamlet bleak, Where lives are warped and stunted as the trees
That ever cover from the northern blast, Some Christlike soul—perchance some woman soul—
Holding the Christ life sweet in chastened eyes As in a mountain tarn the blue of heaven?

And so mid scenes that dry the spirit up, The barren thirst of gold, the lust of power, Idolatry of shame that wins success, (The Christ ideal grown a thing remote From life and fetichlike as martyrs' bones), Living the word as well as preaching it, Its birthright to the age then distill reveal, Sainthood in manhood, like a dream come true.

THE OMELET.

Professor Hildrup tugged at the bell rope for the second time and glared more savagely than ever at the beautiful thing in crisp brown and yellow lying between two sprigs of parsley. Such a frown when aimed at such an omelet was unworthy of any fair minded man. All of Mrs. Hodgson's omelets were wonderful, and this was one of her best. It looked so light as to enjoin haste in eating it lest the light draft should take it out of the open window into the garden as easily as if it was a thistleseed, so appetizing as to pardon believing the breach of good manners in crying aloud for more as soon as one had finished it. But the professor regarded it as an enemy which had treacherously stolen into his presence with murderous intent. Once again he looked at another followed since he began the day an hour ago with a headache which promised a bilious attack in the near future.

When he had taken Mrs. Hodgson's drawing room floor, with a sitting room looking out on a delightful little garden and the bare walls of the British museum, some three months before, just as the winter was breaking, and settled down to work on his Isaac Newton and His Compensators, such an omelet had come up in the company of a well loaded fruit stand for his first breakfast. As he pushed his chair back from the plate with only a faint trace of yellow left on it he determined to have that omelet's counterpart every morning. He had it and enjoyed it with a leisurely taste, and then he had a man of 24, until a friend who introduced him to mutton pie luncheons in the British museum restaurant assured him that eggs were the making of biliousness.

In truth, between mutton pies and hard work the professor's stomach was quite out of order. He imagined it to be worse than it was, thus making it worse than it otherwise would have been, and blamed all to the omelet. To send up an omelet after he had ordered a mutton chop appeared to him on this particular morning as downright mutiny. Mrs. Hodgson was getting him altogether too much in her power. He tugged at the bell and scowled and determined to have an "understanding" at once.

"Good morning, professor!" It was Mrs. Hodgson herself who had entered. "Don't you know," he growled, "that I am of a bilious temperament, and omelets are not good for me?"

"One omelet," she asked doubtfully. She had never seen the professor in such a mood before. She was at once indignant and chagrined.

"All omelets are alike, madam!" "Mine are no better than anybody else's!"

"Madam," continued the professor in a cold, hard voice, "I feel that I have tonight that I most especially wanted a mutton chop for breakfast."

"Then I ate it!" "Yes, I ate it!" "Yes, I didn't know. Harriet didn't say anything to me about it. I supposed you would have an omelet, as you always have."

"Always, always! For three months! It's a wonder that I have anything in my body except a liver!" He tried to annihilate the omelet with one glance and Mrs. Hodgson with another.

"When I saw only one chop in the larder," said Mrs. Hodgson, her natural snap and dignity returned. "I supposed it was for me of course, as I usually have a mutton chop for breakfast."

"Ah! You don't eat your own omelets!" "No! You don't eat your own manuscripts!" she replied with asperity. "If you will wait only a few minutes, I will send out for a chop. I should have more pleasantly."

"No," said the professor, sitting down at the table with the air of a martyr. "No, I am a busy man, Mrs. Hodgson. I will eat this now that it is here. And, Mrs. Hodgson, I wish you would not arrange my papers on my desk any more. Don't touch my desk. You can throw away anything you like on the floor."

"But, sir, you showed me how to arrange them when you first came, and you said I did it so nicely and saved you a lot of trouble."

This was too much. The professor felt that his dignity was at stake. "Mrs. Hodgson," he thundered, "I shall have nothing to do with you!"

She tossed her head and said, "Very well," with aggravating sweetness. The professor settled down to his breakfast muttering something about "impudent women." Once out in the hall Mrs. Hodgson stamped her foot and exclaimed, "The old fool!"

The omelet tasted uncommonly well, as if to tantalize him. He ate it all, even to the last fragment, which tantalized him still further. Then he went over to his desk to write. His pen, his paper, his notebook were where Mrs. Hodgson had placed them, which was just where they ought to be. This also was most tantalizing. Yet he found himself a few moments later carrying his overcoat down stairs on his arm as usual and harboring a faint notion that he ought to forgive Mrs. Hodgson. She was pruning the flowers on the stand in the hall, and Harriet was near her, reading some orders.

"Mrs. Hodgson, would you—ah?" he asked politely. "Harriet," said Mrs. Hodgson as she continued to snip off dead leaves, "help the gentleman on with his overcoat."

As he went out the professor slammed the door so hard as fairly to make the flowers tremble, but Mrs. Hodgson only smiled. She had recovered her dignity and her faith in her art despite sour criticism. The professor determined never to forgive her now. To prove it he ate voraciously of the museum mutton pie for luncheon. The results of indigestion, which he attributed to the omelet.

He was rudely awakened next morning by Harriet, who was weeping and dusting in his sitting room. Heretofore Mrs. Hodgson had made it a point to attend to this herself, doing it so quietly that the professor was never disturbed. However, he had his chop for breakfast, and everything else, even to the overcoat lying on the chair where he had thrown it the night before, was as he had ordered.

After ransacking the drawers of his desk and pawing over the disordered papers on top of it in a vain search for his notebook, which contained the fruits of three months' research, he was anything but reassured by a hazy recollection of having nodded over it and having carelessly laid it on the chair at his side. This had happened before, but he had always found the notebook on his desk in the morning.

"Did you see a book on the floor?" he cried to Harriet when she had answered the fierce ringing of the bell. "You—you said anything on the floor?"

"Find it! Find it!" he thundered. "Don't dare to come back without it!" Poor Harriet's face burned as she went down stairs, for she knew, if the professor didn't, that the refuse wagon had called some 15 minutes ago. The professor paced up and down with anger in his heart against Mrs. Hodgson and her omelets, until there was a soft knock at the door, which he recognized as Mrs. Hodgson's. He presumed she had come to apologize for what she would doubtless call "an unfortunate accident." He would let her know in plain terms that hers was the worst conducted house in London.

"Your book, professor," she said, holding it out to him. "Though Harriet had found it on the floor, I picked it out of the rubbish, thinking I could do no harm anyway."

"Er—ah! Thank you!" "And I have let the room for Saturday," she went on in a voice which he thought was assumed to annoy him.

"Er—ah! Very well." His friend observed that the museum mutton pie on that date was especially good. The professor ate it heartily, but was soon feeling so distressed that he concluded to devote the remainder of the afternoon to searching for rooms. After climbing the stairs of seven different houses he began to speculate upon how in the world landladies were able to let such miserable, ill kept apartments to anybody. At one place, in a moment of absentmindedness, he actually asked the cook could she make good omelets. When the landlady said "Yes," he told her abruptly that he would not think of taking her rooms. It was on his tongue's end to add that the making of omelets was not an art to be spoken of lightly, when he remembered that this was the very expression Mrs. Hodgson had once used.

Two hours he spent in vain to utter the word "omelet" again. Weary and cross, he returned to his rooms. In the morning noisy Harriet robbed him of his sleep, and he went into his sitting room to find a chop and a disordered desk again.

"Shall we have our customary mutton pie?" the tempter asked him at 1 o'clock. "I—I have an engagement today," was the reply.

The engagement turned out to be in a little restaurant in Great Russell street, and before he realized it the yearning of his stomach had put a request for an omelet into words. A flat creation, with no individuality whatsoever, overdone on one side and underdone on the other, was placed before him.

"Don't you know," he exclaimed fretfully to the waitress, "that an omelet is a work of art not to be?" Here he stopped abruptly. "But I will eat—the thing," he added.

On Saturday morning when he went out to his chop and disordered desk, two strange trunks in the corner of the sitting room reminded him that he had not yet engaged another lodging. Mrs. Hodgson came in. She hoped that his luggage was packed, as the other gentleman was coming in an hour. The professor did not reply. Twice he lifted his cup of tea and set it down without drinking.

"Then I may take it that you are ready?" she asked. "No. As a matter of fact, I've been so busy that I haven't had time to look about much for a place. If you have a small room that I could have only for a week, it would be—well, in great reserve."

In the nature—ah—of an accommodation," he happened by mere chance, as Mrs. Hodgson was careful to explain, that this was possible. Harriet was sent to help him carry up his belongings. When the wreckage left by the way was laid out before him, he was amazed to find that he possessed what he felt he ought to have in a little room on the third floor, the professor concluded that he would make no attempt to put things right for so short a stay.

He heard a cab drive up in front of the house. The new lodger must have come. Prompted by a curiosity possibly inconsistent with the dignity of the author of "Isaac Newton and His Compensators," he went to the window. He stepped back in surprise. None other than his mutton pie friend was to be his successor in the drawing room floor. His misery was increased the following morning when he saw Harriet taking one of Mrs. Hodgson's works of art in to the room where he had secured his new quarters.

He now fairly hated chops, and condescended to ask Harriet for an omelet for breakfast. She brought him one—of her own making. He was on the point of telling her of something that was not to be spoken of lightly, but he sighed instead. A work of art was not to be expected from Harriet.

He did not go to the museum, and strategically contrived to avoid a meeting with the base interloper all the week. But once he had a very narrow escape. He had to wait at the head of the stairs while he saw Mrs. Hodgson help the interloper on with his overcoat, concluding that a man who ate mutton pie would stop at nothing. Though he became the terror of the landladies of Bloomsbury, Saturday found him with strange trunks in his disordered little room, and still with no apartment engaged. It also found him meek as well as miserable.

He went down stairs and knocked on the door of Mrs. Hodgson's little room on the ground floor. There was no answer. Harriet came up from the kitchen to say that misadventure was making the other gentleman's omelet. She opened the door and offered him a chair. He waited in vacation, longing for revenge, longing to show up the mutton pie interloper, who so recently adorned omelets, in his true colors. Finally Mrs. Hodgson entered flushed with the successful outcome of a work of art.

"Really, Mrs. Hodgson," said the professor affably, "I have been so busy, and to get a room requires a deal of looking about, doesn't it?"

She did not say whether it did or not. "If it would not be too much trouble, would you accommodate me again?" "I haven't a room left."

"I'm—I'm sorry." "There are the hotels, professor."

"Mrs. Hodgson—Mrs. Hodgson!" he burst out tragically, "will you not go on making omelets for me forever?"

After a little blushing and prying she said that she would, and put the seal on her acceptance by immediately giving the base interloper a week's notice. —Frederick Palmer in Sketch.

Who is Happy?
The healthy mother of a healthy child has a happiness all her own. Her's is a joy that cannot be told. It is peculiar to motherhood. The responsibility for the soft little, sweet little, dependent creature—as much a part of herself as her own heart—brings a pleasure that may be equaled in Heaven, but never on earth. The greatest thing that can be done in this world is to bear and rear healthy, happy children. Many women do not do it—do not reach the full measure of beautiful, perfect womanhood, because of the neglect of the health of the organs distinctly feminine.

Every woman may be perfectly healthy if she chooses. She need not submit to the humiliating examinations and local treatment of physicians. She need have no trouble and slight expense. Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription will cure any disease or disorder peculiar to women. It is the invention of a regularly graduated, skilled, expert, successful specialist. They cure permanently. They are tiny, insignificant pills, but they are sold in a great sale than all similar medicines combined. It regulates every feminine function—makes a woman better able to bear children—better able to take care of her children. It greatly lessens the pain and danger of parturition. DEATH OF REV. TOWNSEND.

The Pastor of the Church of the Holy Faith in This City Passes Quietly Away After a Brief Illness.

Early on Sunday morning, the Rev. Hale Townsend, quietly and peacefully breathed his last. He had been an invalid for some months, but continued his clerical labors as far as he was able until about six weeks ago, since which time he has been confined to the house.

Mr. Townsend came to Santa Fe a year and a half ago from California, to take charge of the church of the Holy Faith. He was born in Detroit, but his parents removed soon after to New York, and were connected with a number of the best known families in the Empire state.

The same devotion to principle which characterized his whole life, led him to study for the sacred ministry. To this he was devoted to the day of his death.

At different times, he had parishes in Virginia, Pennsylvania, Iowa, California and other states, being especially successful in Iowa in building churches at Independence, Waverley, Decorah and Emmetsburg.

But that which characterized his life was not found in great achievements or conspicuous positions, but in his sweetness of disposition, his cheerfulness under all circumstances, his entire devotion to his work in the ministry and that absolute goodness which impressed everyone who knew him. His life itself was his best sermon. His practice preached more loudly than any words. The influence of his pure, unselfish life was of inestimable value. No one could be with him without being better. His presence in the community was like a benediction; and, as has been recently said, he did more good on a bed of sickness than many a clergyman parading every power of eloquence in his pulpit.

The influence of his brief sojourn in Santa Fe of that example of a quiet, loving, helpful and sympathetic life, guided always by the highest sense of Christian duty, will long be felt, as an example which others may well seek to follow.

HE FOUND HIMSELF.

Morris Thomas, a 14-Year Old Boy Who Wandered from His Camping Party, and Failed to Return. Turned Up All Right This Afternoon.

Friday morning Mrs. Thomas, Mrs. Weltmer, Mrs. Gulliford, Miss Staab, Messrs. E. A. Johnston, Ed Staab and Morris Thomas went to Old Baldy mountain on a camping trip. Last evening Mr. W. B. Abbott, who had been up in the mountains, came to town bringing word that Morris Thomas, a lad of 14 years, was lost, and had been since Saturday morning.

This bit of news created considerable excitement, and two men started for the mountains to search for the boy. This morning, as nothing more had been heard from the camp, a large number of men mounted on horses also went out. The lost boy's chances for freezing or starving, or falling from some height and seriously injuring himself was the subject of general conversation on the streets, and at noon another party of searchers had arranged to start out at 1 o'clock. At 12:45 Morris walked into town, somewhat used up but anxious to start back to the camp to relieve his mother of further anxiety.

He was taken to Governor Prince's home, where Mrs. Prince filled him up with good things to eat, and while he ate he told his story, which in substance is as follows:

Saturday morning at 7:30 Mrs. Weltmer, Mrs. Gulliford, Miss Gulliford and Morris started to climb Baldy mountain, reaching the summit at 12:30. Morris then started back to camp, the others following more leisurely, and lost his way. When he realized that he could not find the camp he turned his steps toward Santa Fe. Saturday night he slept against a log in the mountains. Sunday night he stayed at a sheep herder's camp. From Saturday morning until Sunday evening he had nothing to eat, but about sundown yesterday afternoon he found some wild gooseberries, and on reaching the sheep herder's camp got supper, and this morning had breakfast. He declares he was not lost, as he knew the direction of Santa Fe, and as he had matches he kept warm Saturday night without any trouble.

After eating his dinner, he mounted a horse and in company with Mr. Page Otero and Mr. Albert Jones, started for the camp at the foot of Old Baldy to find his mother.

FUNERAL OF E. T. WEBBER.

Laid to Rest Yesterday Afternoon in the National Cemetery with Military Honors.

The body of the late Elwin T. Webber was brought to this city from Las Cruces on last Saturday evening, and yesterday afternoon he was buried in the National cemetery from his late residence. There were no services at the house. The body was escorted to the cemetery by company B, First infantry regiment, N. G. N. M., Lieutenant N. L. King commanding, troop E, First battalion cavalry, N. G. N. M., Captain Fred Muller commanding, and the Gatling gun section in charge of Lieutenant F. W. Wientge, the whole being under command of Major Gable. A long line of carriages containing the relatives and friends of deceased followed the body to the cemetery, where Francis Downs, commander of Carleton post, G. A. R., in accordance with a request of deceased made some weeks before his death, read the ritual service of the order. He was assisted by J. T. Steele, chaplain, W. S. Fletcher, adjutant, and George W. Knebel, post department commander.

The pall bearers were Jacob Weltmer, Geo. W. Knebel, Adolf Weiler, Jeff. J. Davis, J. Francisco Chavez, John Hall.

Major Green, deputy sheriff of Gallup came in Friday morning bringing F. Walker and J. W. Walker, and lodged them in the county jail. The Walkers were caught burglarizing a Gallup store, and were sentenced to serve 60 and 90 days, respectively in the county jail.

A party consisting of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Morris, of Santa Fe, and Captain David L. Bismard, of the United States army, and Dr. William Beer, of New Orleans, went to Gallup Friday night. From that place wagons will be taken to the Indian village of Hualpai, where the snake dance will be witnessed on August 20.

Mr. Geo. L. Brooks returned from a trip to New York City and Washington Friday night. While in New York he purchased the fountain monument to be erected by Albuquerque citizens to the memory of John Braden. The fountain is a bronze figure representing a woman holding aloft a vase, and with the base is 11 feet 6 inches in height, costing about $850. The fountain will be in place in the park before fair time.

Saturday morning, in Justice Crawford's court, a 15 year old boy was fined $5 and costs for being entirely too handy with chalk crayons. Indecent words were found written on the Congregational church, on the pavements, and on the neighboring residences about two weeks ago, and the police took the matter in hand and secured evidence sufficient to make an arrest. The boy's father, who was present at the trial, paid the fine and promised to hold a seance with the boy on reaching home.

LAS VEGAS NOTES.

A laborer employed at the Hot Springs, in digging out water pipes, was buried in a ditch by a cave-in, and it required the efforts of several men 45 minutes to release him. He was badly squeezed and was taken to the hospital for treatment.

The railroad employees living in the city, propose to do a little boycotting themselves. They claim that nearly $30,000 are spent every month with the merchants by railroad men, and that the latter are organized for self-protection through collection agencies and sometimes resort to illegitimate measures and black-listing unfortunate employees. To even matters up the employees will boycott any and all firms using such methods.

Engineer Keen of the Santa Fe, has received notice of the shipment of two full-blooded English blood hounds from Newgate prison, England. The dogs will reach Las Vegas about the last of the month, and will cost Mr. Keen $300.
