OJO CALIENTE
(HOT SPRINGS.)

These Celebrated Hot Springs are located in the midst of the Ancient Cliff Dwellers, twenty-five miles west of Taos, and fifty miles south of Santa Fe, and about twelve miles from the Santa Fe and Denver & Rio Grande Railway, from which point a daily line of stages runs to the Springs. The temperature of these waters is from 90° to 120°. The gases are carbonic. Altitude 8,000 feet. Climate very dry and delightful the year round. There is now a commodious hotel for the convenience of invalids and tourists. These waters contain 1,000 grains of alkaline salts to the gallon being the richest Alkaline Hot Springs in the world. The efficacy of these waters has been thoroughly tested by the numerous cures effected in the following diseases:—Paralysis, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Consumption, Malaria, Bright's Disease of the Kidneys, Syphilis and Nervous Affections, Scrofula, Catarrh, Le Gripe, all Female Complaints, etc., etc. Board, Lodging and Bathing, $3.00 per day. ### THE WORK OF WINCHESTERS

Nineteen Miners Killed and Forty-one Wounded by Deputy Sheriffs in Pennsylvania.

ELEVEN INSTANTLY DROPPED DEAD

Wild Excitement Prevails and 3,000 Miners Are Marching on Hazleton—State Troops Hurrying to the Scene.

Hazleton, Pa., Sept. 11.—Nineteen dead and 41 wounded is the record of the work of Winchester rifles wielded by the deputy sheriffs at Latimer yesterday afternoon. Eleven unfortunate miners dropped dead in their tracks under the terrible battery, and eight have been taken to the hospital, under Colonel Dougherty, came in this morning and camped on the common in the center of Hazleton. The inquest will probably be held this afternoon. So far from being wildly excited this morning, the place is pervaded by a sort of sullen quiet, which appears even more ominous than the fight of yesterday. Three thousand strikers from the south side mines were marching on to Hazleton for the purpose of wreaking vengeance for the shooting, but they dispersed upon learning of the presence of troops. There was absolutely no necessity for the horrible slaughter. The miners, it is declared, were not armed, and if the deputies feared trouble a single shot over their heads would have dispersed them. Many of the victims were shot through the back while fleeing.

THOOTS HURRYING TO HAZLETON.
Pottsville, Pa., Sept. 11.—All of the Schuylkill county companies of the Eighth regiment left for Hazleton this morning. General J. P. S. Goddard, commander of the Third brigade, is at Hazleton in command of the troops.

Allentown, Pa., Sept. 11.—Companies B and D of the Fourth regiment left this morning for Hazleton to assist Sheriff Martin in preserving order.

SHERIFF MARTIN GOES TO HAZLETON.
Wilkesbarre, Pa., Sept. 11.—Sheriff Martin left for Hazleton with the militia this morning. Before the departure he went into Redington's restaurant for refreshments. The place was filled with soldiers and the sympathizers of the striking miners. While waiting for his order the sheriff was harassed, and a large crowd gathered around him. His friends hustled him into a private room out of danger. Martin was very cool. He said: "This is an unfortunate affair, but I think 99 out of every 100 would do just as I did, but now that the crisis has been reached, I do not propose to shrink my duty. Some say I should have jollied with the mob, but I have been parleying with them four days and it did no good." The coal operators stand by Sheriff Martin in his action, but among the laboring element the feeling is very bitter against him.

RANKS OF STRIKERS INCREASED.
Hazleton, Pa., Sept. 11.—Fifteen hundred men who are employed on the Latimer mines voluntarily joined the strikers today. These are the miners upon whom yesterday afternoon's march was directed, when the bloody fusillade put a stop to it. They have decided not to return to work until every demand made at every mine in the region has been conceded by the operators. Before nightfall there will be fully 2,500 soldiers camped in Hazleton. While everything is perfectly quiet this afternoon the situation remains extremely critical and night may bring another outbreak.

STATE MILITIA IN READINESS.
Philadelphia, Sept. 11.—The First brigade, National Guard, composed of the Philadelphia regiments, is held in readiness to go to Hazleton, should their services be required there.

A BRIGADE MOBILIZED.
Harrisburg, Pa., Sept. 11.—Governor Hastings is in receipt of information that the entire brigade is practically mobilized at Hazleton this afternoon.

TROOPS ORDERED TO THE SCENE.
Harrisburg, Pa., Sept. 11.—Governor Hastings at noon directed the First troop of Philadelphia to take the field, and an hour later received word that the troops were moving toward Hazleton. General Snowden advised this move, as he believes that the cavalry can be used effectively to quell the rioters, if another riot should break out.

WARNINGS WERE ISSUED.
Hazleton, Pa., Sept. 11.—Warrants were issued to the United States Marshal to arrest this afternoon for the arrest of Sheriff Martin and 102 deputies, alleged to have been concerned in the shooting.

QUAKER CITY POLITICS.

David Martin Becomes Secretary of the Commonwealth, and Wilbur F. Reeder Deputy Attorney General.

Philadelphia, Sept. 11.—David Martin, the administration leader of this city, today accepted the position of secretary of the commonwealth, made vacant by the requested resignation of General Frank Reeder. Governor Hastings has appointed his law partner, Wilbur F. Reeder, a deputy attorney general to succeed Elkin.

HUMAN BONES IDENTIFIED.

Fragments Taken from Mammage Vats Form An Important Link in the Luetgert Trial.

Chicago, Ill., Sept. 11.—In the Luetgert trial Professor George Vincent Bailey was the first witness today. He is the osteologist of the Field Columbian museum, and is an expert witness for the state on bones. He identified the small bone exhibited as a portion of the hand of a woman. Other particles of bone were identified as being different portions of the skeleton of a human being.

Weekly Bank Statement.
New York, Sept. 11.—The weekly bank statement is as follows: Surplus reserve, decrease, $7,445,525; loans, increase, $7,325,000; specie, increase, $265,700; legal tender, decrease, $7,078,000; deposits, increase, $890,500; circulation, increase, $238,800. The banks now hold $26,065,828 in excess of legal requirements.

Getting Home.
San Francisco, Calif., Sept. 11.—Ex-Queen Liliuokalani of Hawaii, is in the city en route to Honolulu.

THE DREADFUL DISASTER

Coroner Clark Will Attempt to Fix the Responsibility for Colorado Rail Catastrophe.

BODY OF ENGINEER OSTRANDER FOUND

Claimed That Only 13 Persons Were Killed and 17 Injured—Several Bodies Will Be Buried As Unidentified Cinders.

Glenwood Springs, Colo., Sept. 11.—Coroner Clark intends to make a thorough investigation of the railroad accident on the Junction road, near New Castle, yesterday morning, and fix the responsibility for the terrible loss of life resulting therefrom. The body of Engineer Ostrander, of the Midland stock train, was found in the debris today.

Conductor Burbank declares that his orders gave him sufficient time to reach New Castle ahead of the D. & R. G. passenger train with which the train collided. Railroad officials say that 13 persons were killed and 17 injured. Fire reduced some of the bodies to heaps of ashes and made it difficult, if not impossible, to determine exactly how many lives were lost.

The remains of a number of bodies, variously estimated at from six to ten, lie on a space less than one corpse ordinarily requires and must be buried without identification.

Rev. Alex. Hartman, whose wife and two children were killed in the wreck, said this morning in the hospital at Santa Fe.

Argentine's Retaliatory Tariff.

Washington, Sept. 11.—A cablegram was received at the state department today from Minister Buchanan, of Buenos Ayres, as follows: "The Argentine tariff for the next year has been sent to the Argentine congress. The Argentine president recommends, in view of the United States tariff, the following increased duties: Sixty-six per cent on yellow pine; 125 per cent on farm wagons; 100 per cent on plows, harrows, kerosene and agricultural machinery not specifically mentioned. He also recommends a maximum and minimum clause, according to what the president can apply at will of a 50 per cent ad valorem duty in addition to the regular duty."

ASTONISHING DISCOVERY.

Great Strike of Free Milling Gold Quartz Near Golden Fully Confirmed—New Mexican's Story Was True—Deep Mining Will Pay.

The fabulous strike of 50 feet of rich free milling gold quartz near Golden, south Santa Fe county, reported in these columns on Thursday, is fully confirmed by Mr. S. C. Wright, one of the owners of the claim upon which the strike was made, in an interview with a New Mexican representative this morning.

Mr. Wright candidly says that, after carefully prospecting the ground, he could hardly have given a more accurate and satisfactory description of the astonishing discovery than that already printed in this paper.

The claim upon which the discovery was made is in Old Timer's gulch, is called the Divine Bastard and owned by S. C. Wright, F. A. Mazzanara and J. van Houten and is now believed to be the source of the wealth of placer gold found below. Indeed, the Monte Cristo company was granted the privilege of boring an artesian well on Divine Pastor ground under the supervision of the state geologist to work the placer fields mentioned.

The claim in question is located on the old and rejected Canon del Agua grant. According to Mr. Wright's reports the drills of the Monte Cristo well boring outfit have undoubtedly passed through 50 feet of free milling gold quartz that has been estimated at $1,000 per ton in gold and the indications are that underlying this wonderful ore body are four feet of iron carbonate ore, but a powerful underground current of water having been encountered, it is impossible to determine the value of the lower stratum.

It is also impossible to guess whether the 50 feet of quartz lies in the form of a blanket or is a mammoth true fissure vein pitching at an angle of 45 or more degrees. Mr. Wright seems to incline to the latter theory, recites that at a depth of 90 feet the drills have mentioned passed through 20 feet of rich gold quartz, and that richer ore has been struck in the Carley and Aranda mine at a depth of 110 feet than that shown on the surface. Both of these last mentioned ledges pitch at an angle of not less than 45 degrees.

In any event the discovery 400 feet underneath the surface of old Timer's gulch proves that deep mining will pay in south Santa Fe county.

TERRITORIAL SOCIETY.

The Comings and Goings of New Mexico People As Gleaned from Exchanges.

Las Vegas.

The Misses Head of Watrous, are the guests of friends in the city.

Mr. J. W. Schofield is back from Albuquerque and is at the Hot Springs. Mrs. Walter Sporleder, nee Dyer, arrived from Denver Thursday evening and was welcomed at the depot by numerous friends and relatives.

Mr. Cantwell, wife and two children, who have been stopping in Las Vegas or at the many resorts near here for the past year, will leave next Tuesday for Hartford City, Ind., thoroughly delighted with the result of their stay here.

Colonel H. B. Hersey, adjutant general of New Mexico, Captain W. H. W. James, of the United States army, under the care of that prince of entertainers, Major Parker, of this city, were shown around the city yesterday and made acquainted with many Las Vegas citizens. The visitors are excellent gentlemen and are here on militia matters.

Albuquerque.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam O'Bannon are rejoicing over the arrival of a ten-pound baby boy.

Mr. P. E. Harroun, the well known Santa Fe civil engineer and surveyor, was in the city yesterday.

Hon. Lorion Miller and family moved into their residence on the corner of Gold avenue and High street yesterday.

The daughter of Mrs. Sidney Hubbell and the two daughters of Mrs. N. T. Armijo of this city, and Miss Otero, the daughter of Mrs. A. M. Berger of Los Lunas, left last night for St. Louis, Mo., where they will attend school.

Pedro J. and Ricardo Armijo, the bright sons of Hon. and Mrs. J. R. Armijo, who have spent the summer here, and Lorenzo Hubbell, the bright nephew of Sheriff Thos. Hubbell, have gone to Notre Dame college, Indiana.

Hon. Thos. A. Finical, the popular district attorney, is expected to return from his summer vacation next Tuesday night. He has visited northern New Mexico and southern Colorado, and while at Durango was interviewed on the subject of building the Albuquerque, Durango & North western railroad.

Miss Bessie Buchanan, who taught school last year in Holbrook, Ariz., has received flattering offers to take charge of schools at Holbrook and Winslow, and also in Kelly, N. M., but on account of ill health will not teach this year. Graduates of the University of New Mexico seem to be sought after as teachers, and justly so.

Las Cruces.

Miss Jacoby has returned from Kansas City.

Professor and Mrs. Hagerly arrived home Monday.

Mrs. Frank Asenrate is making some tasty improvements on her property below the postoffice.

Mr. and Mrs. Moreno will be at home to their friends, in the Kountz block, after the 18th of September.

John D. Bryan is now acting as territorial agent of the Gold Extraction, Mining & Supply company.

Professor Geo. W. Miles came home last week from Grant county, where he had been for some time canvassing in the interest of the Agricultural college, says the Independent Democrat.

Raton.

Mrs. H. J. Ruby is visiting friends in Kansas City.

Mr. and Mrs. J. van Houten are visiting friends in Cerrillos.

Mrs. Dr. T. B. Hart and children are visiting their old home at Huntington, Ind.

Mrs. N. Conn, a former popular teacher in Raton's public schools, returned here Saturday.

Ray Thomas, one of Raton's bright boys, has gone back to Indiana to resume his studies.

Herman Beringer and Miss Effie Mendor were married in Kansas last week and arrived here Sunday.

Miss Rebecca Rowland, Presbyterian mission teacher at Taos, is visiting her sister, Mrs. Riggie, at Raton.

The pupils of Mrs. C. L. Moore and Miss Eugenia Moore gave a musicale in the M. E. church last evening.

J. E. Hestwood of the San Juan valley, Colo., arrived in Raton Saturday to visit his brother, Dr. V. E. Hestwood.

Rev. and Mrs. C. I. Mills, who have many friends in Santa Fe as well as in Raton, will soon leave the latter place for their new home in Colorado.

George Faber and wife of Huntington, Ind., will make Raton their home. Mr. Faber has accepted a position in the railway shops, doubtless in the pencil department.

The Range reports that H. M. Porter, the Denver capitalist, passed through Raton Tuesday morning, having sold his store, accounts and all his Springer property, except the hotel, to Mr. Floerheim.

Silver City.
The attendance at the Silver City public schools is larger than ever before.

Mrs. James S. Fielder is visiting her father and mother at Crawford.

Judge Bantz is holding a term of the United States district court with a light docket.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Piper have gone to Pennsylvania on a protracted visit among relatives.

Mrs. L. S. Light and children have returned from their extended visit among relatives in Kansas.

Hon. E. L. Hall, late United States marshal, is in Grant county looking for cattle to purchase.

Mr. T. N. Childers and daughter, Miss Pearl Childers, have returned home from a visit to relatives in Missouri.

Thomas Foster, for the past nine years manager of the Silver City water works, died at the Ladies' hospital in Silver City on last Saturday night.

F. F. Skelly, who has a large contract for the government at Fort Bayard, expects to close up his work and return to Silver City in about two weeks.

Miss Jennie L. Applebee, a charming young lady of Wellville, N. Y., is visiting her aunt, Mrs. Captain H. Fitzsimmons, in this city. The family and guest have gone to Alhambra for an outing. Miss Applebee will remain with her relatives here a couple of months, reports the Enterprise.

The Silver City Eagle makes this pleasing personal mention: News comes that Miss Belle Gaidis and Eugene Warren, who left for Stanford University last month, passed a most creditable examination. They received the highest marks possible in Latin and several other studies. This is quite a compliment to our Normal from which both were graduates.

Encouragement for the Feeble.
So long as the failing embers of vitality are capable of being re-kindled into a warm and genial glow, just so long as there is hope for the weak and emaciated invalid. Let him not, therefore, despair, but derive encouragement from this, and from the further fact that there is a restorative most potent in renewing the dilapidated powers of a broken down system. Yes, thanks to its inexhaustible tonic virtues, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is daily reviving strength in the bodies and hope in the minds of the feeble and nervous. Appetite, refreshing sleep, the acquisition of flesh and color, are blessings attendant upon the reparative processes which this priceless invigorant speedily initiates and carries to a successful conclusion. Digestion is restored; the blood fertilized, and sustenance afforded to each life sustaining organ by the Bitters, which is inoffensive even to the fastidious palate, vegetable in composition, and thoroughly safe. Use it, and regain vigor!

Couldn't Afford the Luxury.
You ought to take a tonic for your appetite, said the fat man to the thin.
Not much, replied the thin man. I can't afford to pay the doctor for an appetite and then pay a restaurant for mollifying the appetite. I'll worry along without drugs.

TO MY LEFT HAND.
I envy you your life of rest. You live in luxury. You enjoy the very best the fates reserve for me.

You've never worked in all your life. You've never known a care.
You've always lived apart from strife—existence sweet and rare.

My right has ever my writing done, while you have stood aside.
You've had your full share of the fun, and yet you've never penned a line for me, nor ever struck a blow.

And it is very plain to see you've never known a woe.
And yet, dear friend, I cannot say the time will ever be.

That there will be the dawn of day when you're not dear to me.
My right hand is more useful, yes, but, prithee, do not part.

You are a friend, I must confess, I cannot do without.
So here's to you, my left hand, may you ever live in peace.

And may the joys that round you stand for evermore increase!
Let others sneer because your days are passed in luxury.
And ever placed in happy ways, you're mighty dear to me.

BICYCLE VS. TIGER.

I was traveling through the large Malay island of Java, and in company with the Dutch geographer Moore and our geologist Rousseau. We were going down the river Banyan Assin through the heart of formidable forests and tracts of country as much to be dreaded as those that Rama pictures to his divine wife.

Huge crocodiles lie sleeping in the creeks and on the low promontories. On the edge of the thicket appears the massive profile of the rhinoceros of tertiary descent; the monkey goes scampering off to leafy, savanna-like stretches, and everywhere may be seen the lordly tiger, the tragic king of the jungle, vanquisher still of the newcomer, the Mongolian and the feeble Hindoo.

We landed one evening at a clearing called Nieuwenhuys, settled by a dozen Dutch planters with their army of Chinese and Malay servants. The plantations, which are large—about two miles square—let in a patch of light into a gigantic, virgin forest. The village proper is fortified against tigers, because in 1811 and 1853 they attacked and devoured the Malays who had settled there.

We were most sympathetically entertained at the home of Mijheer Vanden Ouwelant. His chateau was built of wood. We were seated on the veranda, enjoying one of those evenings in which perfume night is mingled with the glowworm's light and the mystic course of the stars as they fall like drops of fire into the cloudbreak of the infinite. Great motors, shooting at intervals across the sky, seemed like signals from some ship farrowing an ocean of ether. The forest lifted its strange, wild voice in ceaseless drama—heralding groaning in terror, heaves of prey roaring in rage, the wild victory.

"Do the tigers here often carry off men?" I asked of our host between two hunting tales.

"No; three or four perhaps in ten years. In the first place they no longer try to attack the village. They have come to recognize very clearly that it is beyond their strength. All animals, you see, would learn to respect human life if they were trained properly. That is so true that for a long, long time no Netherland planter has been here more than two years ago, because he has been killed by a tiger."

On the other hand, the Chinese, the Malay, the inexperienced, have to look out for themselves. If we had known how to manage differently, beasts hostile to our kind would long since have disappeared.

"However, tigers are numerous about here?"

"The forest swarms with them. I would not recommend an excursion near its borders even in broad daylight."

We remained some time longer, drinking coffee by the light of some blue lamps that cast a sickly glow on the night, and then were to be to bed.

When I rose next morning, our host was in the fields. After a cup of tea I found myself strolling about the place. I was hesitating between taking a walk in the neighborhood and arranging a package of accounts when my attention was attracted to an A No. 1 bicycle under a shed.

I recognized it as one of the finest and best known of American makes. Now I had not mounted since I had broken my machine in the excursion near Malacca. I am, as you know, passionately fond of the wheel. I do not say it to boast, but I won the prize in a match against Barker.

At the sight of this splendid machine I was seized with one of those cravings that the bicyclist shares with the habitual smoker or morphia taker. At first I hesitated. Then I drew the bicycle slowly toward me and mounted, intending to take only a short ride. The road before the house was quite good. It had been begun by the Malays who had been devoured, and finished by the Netherland colony. I started off delightfully, spinning along as though in a motor. Evidently it was a perfect machine—obedient, responsive, fast.

My desire became irresistible, and sure of being excused by my amiable host away I went flying through the rice and coffee fields.

In a few minutes I had covered the five or six kilometers that separated me from the forest. I found myself in a sea of verdure trembling in the light morning breeze. I recalled my host's suggestion, but that sort of feeling of stupid security born of perfect health, the beauty of the day, the slightly intoxicating effect of the atmosphere, prevented me from heeding it.

The remembrance, coming and going, was like a presentiment flashing upon me with the rapidity of lightning and in an instant gone.

I was fascinated by the spot. I dismounted to enjoy more freely its seductive charms. Trees, stamped with the seal of ages, rampant lianas, flowers bewilderingly, dazzlingly beautiful, sang to me out of the grand, mysterious anthem of those primitive days when man wandered like a poor frugal beast through the forests and over the plains. A small lake, softly shaded by overhanging branches, was radiant with the lotus and lily, a sweet symbol of happiness as it seemed to me.

I seated myself on a granite rock, and was lost in the eternal, pathetic dream of a lover who forgets for a moment his own personality in his contemplation of the vast, vague universe.

While thus occupied, some branches cracked and something at the same time heavy and light cleaved a passage to the edge of the water. My heart stopped beating. I was in an agony of fear. Thirty steps away a monstrous beast, the king of the carnivora, had just sprung from the shade. For a moment the elegant silhouette of the tiger remained motionless. He was certainly a colossus of his kind. Covered by two or three tall, drooping palms, I did not dare to stir. To reach my bicycle I must go as far as the road—impossible without attracting the attention of the cat, and in two laps he would be up with me. How in that brief interval could I mount and be off? Then, even if the tiger's surprise should be in my favor, I should not be saved if he decided to give chase. A bicycle will go over a single league faster than a tiger, but could it cope with the formidable start of those first bounds? I did not believe it, and, after a hypnotic attack of a few seconds, I stood trembling, my heart beating like a trip hammer, and my mouth as dry as a stone. Not a weapon had I—not even the revolver that I carry everywhere and that fate would have me forget that morning.

I was secretly hoping that the monster, gorged with last night's victims, had come to the lake merely to quench his thirst. Allured far from every drinking place, he might have been seized with one of those attacks of thirst under such circumstances are said to be irresistible among the felines.

But if he did wet his tongue in the lake, he did not appear to be at all from necessity. He soon lifted his dripping jaws and looked searchingly about. By a sort of instinct I knew that, contrary to my hope, he had had an unsuccessful hunt, and was looking for some compensation.

A false movement and I would become that compensation. The time that the tiger remained motionless, his topaz eyes moving slowly from tree to tree, from bush to bush, seemed an age to me in my terror.

For an instant he appeared about to withdraw. He turned slowly and indifferently toward the forest. Then, at the rustling of a bird in the foliage, he bent his head quickly, while a phosphorescent light gleamed from his eyes. He remained in that position, his head in profile, half toward his shoulder, in as graceful a pose as that of a cat watching for its prey. He was evidently hesitating between two routes. I felt not only the beating of my heart, but of my brain. Finally the beast made up his mind. He turned again toward the lake and took one step forward. That step brought him no nearer to me. It might be that he had chosen a favorable direction, but at a second step, more rapid, my fright decided me.

I leaped once, twice and seized my wheel. Such a dizziness came over me that at first I could not tell whether the tiger had stirred or not, but in a flash, while springing to the saddle, I saw him crouch. I heard him bound. At the same instant I gave the first impulse to the pedals.

In spite of my agitation my movements were sure, neat, quick. It seemed as though I had become all instinct; that every fiber of my being obeyed that mysterious will that avails a hundred times more than the clearest reasoning in times of imminent peril. With two efforts I had acquired great speed, and in the instant between the first and second bounds of the cat my self-possession had returned. It all depended now on keeping ahead of the tiger, if never so little, for a hundred meters, after which probably his speed would slacken, though it would be still to be feared. I pushed on with frenzied fire, but at the fourth bound the distance between us was reduced to a few steps. At the fifth I was almost within reach of his tawny paw, at the seventh he touched the tail. I thought I was lost. The effort that I made then seemed all in vain, but his claws missed the wheel, hardly grazed it, and he took his eighth bound a little less quickly than he had failed of his first.

During those dizzy seconds I had the inspiration to turn abruptly toward a guava growing by the roadside, and escaped again, because through hesitation my pursuer was forced either to turn aside or shorten his leap.

As my speed had reached its maximum I had no longer any fear. I was certain that one or two more laps would end the struggle. At the next bound he almost struck me, but while the wheel sped before his claws I saw in a flash that I was going to cross a small bridge, long and very narrow, thrown across an irrigating canal. That canal restored my courage. I had a strong feeling that the tiger would hesitate again and so lose a few meters. That was, in fact, what happened. When I found myself on the other side, I had gained a few steps. I firmly believe that in my rupture I accelerated my speed.

During the second leap that followed the tiger regained little by little what he had lost, but less easily than at first. A glimmering hope came to sustain me. I soon had an even match. I cannot say that I redoubled my efforts, for I had reached the height of my speed, but I lost none of my energy. A few hundred meters more and I had the delightful certainty that I was not only maintaining my advantage, but that the tiger had lost a couple of meters. Coming to a slight descent I let myself go like a projectile whose speed increased from its own momentum, and I gained again. Already a sense of triumph was quickening my pulse and swelling my bosom. I thought I was saved and was working my pedals in a frenzy of joy when an unforeseen accident almost turned the scale. At the entrance to a field of bananae a low branch threw down by some traveler was barring the way. There was no time to avoid it; neither could I lean down nor dismount at such a crisis. In an instant I had decided. I cleared the obstacle. Unfortunately I was awkward and was forced to slow up a little to maintain my equilibrium.

The carnivorous beast must have perceived it. He made a desperate effort, and I foresaw that in the end I must succumb. A sort of deadly faintness seized me. The madness of surrender, as terrible as one sometimes experiences among the mountains, a strange resignation to death. In a flash it was gone. An instant after I was making my last desperate struggle. The tiger, though still as fleet as a gallant hunting horse, was unquestionably conquered by the bicycle. Soon he abandoned the pursuit, partly from discouragement, partly no doubt on account of the proximity of the village that he had learned to fear.—Translated for Springfield Republic.

Negro Distrust of the Jay Bird.
Southern negroes regard the jaybird with comically great distrust. To them he is the counselor, guide and friend of the evil one himself. The amount of confidence established ages ago between the devil and the jaybird is to the African mind enormous. "Uncles" and "aunties" believe that whenever Satan can spare the time from his frying operations he visits earth, and he and the jaybird hold a council of the powers, devising ways and means wherein and whereby to insure the darky's ruin.

Before this combination the voodoo charm of red flannel, shabones, scrapings of human nails and hair from a dead person is of no avail. The rabbit's foot is powerless. The only defense is "rasslin" in prayer. This is highly esteemed, as the more anxious the "cassidy" the less work will be done in the field next day. The jaybird is safe from negro attack—safe through fear.—Chicago Times-Herald.

health comes to steal away that more precious thing—your life?

You can see a burglar and you can't see a disease germ; but the latter is by far the more deadly. It finds lodgment in your body and multiplies with awful rapidity. It fills your blood with disease breeders. It saps your vitality—ruins your rest—steals your flesh.

You may get at your druggist's a remedy that will kill every germ in your system—it will fill your blood with vitalizing, purifying material—that will strengthen your nerves—bring sleep and rest—stop the loss of flesh. It is called Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Its record of cures is the most marvelous in the whole history of medicine.

"My wife was troubled with prolapsus or 'female weakness' for several years," writes James Caswell, Esq., of Oshkosh, Wis., "and she was not able to do her work, she had such bearing down pains, and pain in the back. Her periods were irregular, varying all the way from two to six weeks. At those times she would have fainting spells so bad I thought she would not live. She was attended by the best doctors in the country. They did her no good, and she grew worse all the time. I picked up one of your advertisements and bought a bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Before we had taken one bottle she seemed better; so I got her another. By the time she had taken two bottles of the 'Golden Medical Discovery' and two of the 'Pleasant Pellets' she was completely cured. Her periods are regular now, and she is stout and strong. When she commenced taking your medicines she weighed only about 125 pounds—now she weighs 160."

The above mentioned medicines, furnish a thorough and scientific course of treatment for all diseases peculiar to women.

Seven Wonders of the Whirl.
I wonder if she is really as charming as she seems to be?
I wonder if she is as rich as they say she is?

I wonder what kind of a wife she'd make a chap, any way?
I wonder if he is ever going to propose to me?

I wonder what she would say if I did ask her?
I wonder if I couldn't hasten him by flirting with some one else?

I wonder this music is ever going to stop? If I have any breath left, by George! I'll do it.
And the waltz stopped.

A Spring Poem.
[After R. K. Lanier's poem.]
Oh, the rosy-tinted-tulle
Of the striped pollywog
As he glides the second diddle
In the fastness of the bog,
And the sweetest-gossamer-rosalind
Of the sooty, fifty fog
Puts a crimp in the whiskers
Of the bumptious on the log,
And the joyous snail-music
Of the little yellow dog
Puts the razzam-tazzam-tazzam
Of the dingbats on the log.
And he darts a split-second wood.

Oh, the mellow rattle-rattle
Of the buckster and his heels
And the heavy up-to-ram-ram
Of the shirtless of the swells
Do the dinky doodle-doodle
With the double-barrel-saw
Of the ferryboats, loaded,
Loaded down with oyster shells,
And the cooey-gooey-gooey
Of an atmosphere of snoring
Don't do a thing to rattle
To the hydrostatic spalls.
But be carried in the toe.

Oh, the drowsy little beetle,
With his steady hummy-hum,
And the little German bandit,
With his paucity of drum,
And the sweet girl graduate,
With her wad of sticky gum,
And the old man with a cane,
Macing money from his dum
To release his overcoat
From the rumpty-tumpty-tum—
All these warnings to be right
That the days of spring have come.
And the blow almost killed father.

Talks With Travelers.
Yes sir! The most enjoyable trip I ever took to New York was over the Wabash. Only one change of cars in St. Louis; the finest passenger station in the world. Fine restaurant and cafe. Got an elegant supper for 60 cents.

We arrived in St. Louis at 6:00 p. m., and left on the Wabash New York Limited at 7:00 p. m., in the elegant through sleeper, reaching Detroit at 9:15 the following morning. Niagara Falls at 4:37 that afternoon, and arrived at New York, Penn. Central Depot at 7:30 a. m., just the right time to get breakfast and attend to business.

Oh! the Wabash is the route for New York.
By the way just write to C. M. Hampton, General Agent, New York, for particulars. I may have forgotten something.

GETTING INTO SOCIETY.

Extracts from the Diary of a Young Foreign Nobleman.

Oh, I'm getting into society fast. I can already say that I am moving in the best circles. (The police keep me moving.)

Yesterday I was invited to a ball at the Haster place. I mean their hotel. I took nine straight. The next day the clerk there gave me a ball all for myself. It only cost me 15 cents.

Today I proposed to 17 New York heiresses by letter. I also inserted a "wife wanted" personal in Jim Bennett's paper. I met him once in France when his coach ran over me. I do like to keep up my society connections. Tomorrow I am going to hyphenate my name. Hyphenating names and hyphenating bonds are all the rage now.

I gave a swarty musicale at Wunderbilt's the other day. An organ grinder friend of mine was sick, and I conducted his orchestra for him.

I have called on Whispehard Steward. Was going to ask him to lead a blind German I know who wants to go into the begging business. Got a warm reception from his valet. Didn't see Whisp.

Last evening I danced (attendance) at the house of a millionaire. Finally got a quarter to go away without marrying his daughter. Offered me his mother-in-law, but I couldn't do that.

This morning I waited aound until his daughter came out and bowed to her. She cut me any dead. I've got that far into society now way. It isn't every one who can be cut by a society girl. Keep your eye on me.—Yellow Book.

Expensive.
"Just think of the extravagance of city folks, Joshua," said Mrs. Wintergreen to her husband. "I read in the paper of a woman who had a gold plated bicycle."

"That isn't a marker to what I saw in the paper," replied the honest farmer. "What did you see?"

"Why," said he as he lowered his voice to a whisper, "I saw that some feller had a diamond frame wheel. What do you think of that?"—Detroit Free Press.

Nothing Succeeds Like Success.
"What do you think about Si Perkins' plan to go to the Alaska mines?" asked Farmer Cornsloss.

"I don't think there's any sense in tryin' to form an opinion fur at least six months," replied his wife. "Then the neighborhood'll know whether to refer to Si as a man of 'extraordinary foresight' or 'another deluded victim.'"

—Washington Star.

His Reason.
She—Do you think the world is getting better or worse?

He—Better.
She—Why do you hold that opinion?

Perhaps He Told Truth.
"Was old Billiger telling the truth, do you think, when he said he had always put principle above mere party success?"

"I think he was. He has run for office about 40 times and has never been elected yet."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

SOCIAL HAPPENINGS.

The Week's Doings Among Well Known People.

Last evening at Miss Gulliford's school, one of the prettiest sights ever witnessed in Santa Fe, was given to the fortunate parents of her pupils. Before the closing of the last term, Miss Gulliford had promised the children a fancy dress dance, to emphasize her appreciation of the good, steady work done by the whole school. This promise was redeemed last night with brilliant success, brilliant in every way, the placita illuminated with lanterns, and the children's costumes being all of the gay colors prevalent during the last term; the kaleidoscopic effect was enchanting. As the little folks arrived, they congregated in the ample parlors of the Clancy house, while their parents were comfortably installed in the spacious, well ventilated school rooms. When all were assembled, shortly after 8 o'clock, the whooping and shouting by the children themselves and led by Myrtle Boyle in perfect style. A rather startling interruption occurred at the end of the march, which did not, however, mar the children's pleasure; Topsy suddenly bounded into the room and pelted the young ladies with her slippers, who welcomed her with screams of laughter. The great feature of the evening was the dancing of the graceful minuet, so much in vogue more than a hundred years ago, and now being happily revived. It was perfectly wonderful to see how even the youngest children had so quickly caught up the elegant manners and respectful grace of their great-grandmothers. The first minuet was danced by Myrtle and Vere Boyle, Miss Louise Schenckel and Noyes Weltner, Florence Spitz and Miss Gulliford, Susan Weltner and Henry Deubel. The second, on in the evening, was performed by Ramona Baca and Vere Boyle, Ritchie Seligman and Miss Gulliford, Florence Spitz and Henry Deubel, Anita Baca and Noyes Weltner. Both sets elicited unbounded applause from the spectators.

The amusements were diversified by the exhilarating game of "musical chairs," for which the characteristic music was joyfully furnished by the versatile, imitable, irrepressible Topsy. The ordinary, everyday dances, including the "original lancers," succeeded, the pupils attending the dancing classes evidencing the excellence of their training, especially considering the short time the lessons have been given. Both young and old were equally delighted with Mignon LeBrun's exquisite "pas seul," which was one of the surprises of the evening. After dainty refreshments had been served in the placita, the company separated, highly delighted with their unique entertainment, which will linger long in the memories of those privileged to witness it.

Mr. H. L. Mabey, the Las Vegas commission merchant, spent the day among Santa Fe businesses.

The dance given by the Social club at the Palace hotel, last Tuesday night, proved a very pleasant affair, although the attendance was not large.

District Attorney J. H. Crist left for Denver this morning and thence will go to Aztec, San Juan county, to attend the special term of the District court.

M. C. O. Dubar, a businessman of Antonio, came in on the Denver & Rio Grande train last night and returned home this morning. He acted as mail clerk on the trip. Mr. Carruth, the mail agent, being quite ill.

The ladies of the Public Library association in Albuquerque will give a female minstrel performance in Grant's opera house, in that city, Monday evening. About 25 of the young ladies in the city will appear in the "troupe," and one of the best entertainments ever given in that city is confidently expected.

Ex-Governor Thornton will meet Ex-Governor J. B. Grant of Colorado, at Lamy tonight, and thence the two ex-governors, who are now much more deeply interested in mining pursuits than in politics, will journey to the state of Sonora, Republic of Mexico, where the gold mines of the former are located.

Adjutant General H. B. Hersey, Lieutenant Colonel T. P. Gable, Major N. L. King, Major Fred Muller, Captain T. J. Matthews, Captain W. E. Griffin, Captain Fred Wientge, and the lieutenants of the several militia companies of Santa Fe, will leave for Albuquerque tomorrow evening at 7:30 to participate in the parade in honor of Governor's day at the Territorial fair on Monday. Captain W. H. James, U. S. A., on detached service with the New Mexico National Guard, will also be in attendance.

Mrs. Matt G. Reynolds, wife of the attorney for the United States court of private land claims, who has been at the sanatorium for sometime, has been suffering with a sprained ankle for four or five days, but is able to walk a little today. Colonel Reynolds expects to leave for St. Louis with his family as soon as Mrs. Reynolds is able to travel. He is expected to be in Washington at the opening of the October term of the United States Supreme court.

On Wednesday evening a pleasant farewell party was given Mr. Albert Jones at the government Indian school. Mr. Jones left for St. Louis Thursday night, where he will spend a short vacation, and from there he goes to North Carolina to take a position as an Indian agent. Those present at the party, aside from the folks at the school, were: Mrs. Money, Mrs. Read, the Misses Staab, Helen, Hort, Crawford and Jones, and Messrs. J. Staab, E. Staab, R. C. Gortner, F. H. Hudson, C. A. Scheurich, and Dr. Brady.

General Agent Helm, of the D & R. G. system, with headquarters in Santa Fe, is at least today, visiting in and with the interests of this ancient capital and historic seat of christianity, has completed arrangements with General Passenger Agent Hooper in Denver, whereby probably the most elegant decorated train that ever pulled out of a station in New Mexico will leave this city for Denver on the evening of October 3. It will be known as Governor Otero's special, will fly the colors of New Mexico, which are emphatically red, white and blue with one bright star missing from the field, and will have on board Governor Otero, his military staff, Company B, First Infantry, New Mexico National Guard, Captain Matthews commanding, with the famous First regiment band of Santa Fe, will also be guests of honor on the train. Many others will doubtless avail themselves of this rare chance to attend the Mountain and Plain festival in Denver. The train will run through New Mexico at night, thus affording the excursionists an opportunity to study the scenery of Colorado by daylight.

From a social standpoint the Horticultural fair held the past week was a brilliant success. The exposition building was the center of the social life of the city for the three days, and everything in the way of social gatherings gave place to the entertainment of visitors. This success was due to the efforts of the ladies who were on the reception committee who were present, with flowers in great abundance, every day. That committee was composed of the following well known ladies: Mrs. R. L. Baca, Mrs. Berger, Mrs. Amado Chavez, Mrs. Catron, Mrs. Coleman, Mrs. Corrao, Mrs. S. El-dott, Mrs. Ernest, Mrs. Fischer, Mrs. Foraker, Mrs. P. H. Harroun, Mrs. Irene, Mrs. W. L. ## MINING LITIGATION.

Alleged Trespassers on the Ortiz Mine Grant Have Filed Answers—Injunction Matter Will Be Decided on Monday.

The matter of the application of Newton S. Finney, a stockholder in the New Mexico Mining company of Santa Fe county, wherein the plaintiff petitioned for the appointment of a receiver for the company aforesaid and for an injunction to restrain alleged trespassers from doing further work on the Ortiz Mine grant, claimed by the company, again came up before Judge Langhlin in chambers this morning.

S. C. Wright, Dan Taylor, Robt Wilson, and the other miners charged with being trespassers on the Ortiz Mine grant, answered this morning that, in their candid opinion, they were not trespassers, as years ago they had been formally granted permits to prospect on the grant named by the agents of the New Mexico Mining company and felt satisfied that the important discoveries they had made under such permits gave them rights on the grant that they were not trespassers.

Judge H. L. Warren and A. B. Rensen represented the defending miners and Colonel Matt G. Reynolds appeared for the plaintiff.

Judge Langhlin will determine whether or not the injunction should be made permanent on Monday.

CITY NEWS ITEMS.

U. S. weather bureau forecast for New Mexico: Generally fair tonight and Sunday.

Bernardo Saiz, an old resident of the city, died at his home in Ward No. 4 this morning at 9 o'clock, and will be buried from the Cathedral tomorrow morning at 7 o'clock.

City Marshal Ricardo Alarid has assigned Officers Ramon G. Garcia and Frank Romero to night duty, and Ascencion Rodriguez will look after the maintenance of the peace during the day.

Andilor Garcia reports that the assessors of Socorro, San Miguel, Bernalillo, Lincoln, Eddy, Guadalupe and Grant counties have so far failed to file their assessment rolls with him. And this is the last day of grace.

This morning, on the complaint of his wife, Gregorio Gooch was placed under bonds in the sum of $200, by Justice Romero, to keep the peace for six months, and the costs of the case were entered up against him.

The regular meeting of the Woman's board of trade will be held Monday next at 2:30. At 3:30 a special order of business will come before the board and it is hoped every member will be present exactly at that hour.

Luis Gonzalez was before Police Magistrate Romero this morning on a drunk and disorderly charge. Judge Romero, in consideration of the fact that Gonzalez had been in similar troubles over 60 different times, gave him 30 days in jail and fined him $25.

The Denver & Rio Grande road has made a round trip rate of $10.25 for the Festival of Mountain and Plain, to be held in Denver on October 5, 6, and 7. The Santa Fe troops are arranging to attend the festival, and will probably have special cars assigned them.

Mrs. John T. Kelly of Golden, died at the Skinner residence, near Chillum, last Monday and was buried in the Golden cemetery. The deceased was the widow of the well known gold miner and mill man who died very suddenly at Golden a few months ago.

Surveyor General Easley and his successor, Hon. Quincy Vance of Sierra county, are still busily engaged in checking up the voluminous archives of this important office with a view to a formal transfer of the same to the new surveyor general about next Wednesday.

A number of pupils for the Presbyterian mission school arrived from different parts of the territory last night.

Professor Perez' band will render the following program in the plaza tomorrow evening at 6:30 o'clock, weather permitting.

John McLaughlin, a bright young medical student from Pennsylvania, is reported dying of lung trouble at St. Vincent hospital. He would have graduated next year. John Vosburg, an old Colorado miner, John Donovan of Albuquerque, and Matt Breeden of Santa Fe, are also considered hopelessly ill at the same institution.

Last year fully 200 innocent Santa Feans attended the Territorial fair in Albuquerque. This year of grace, according to the careful estimates of expert, diligent and truthful observers, the total number of Albuquerque visitors at the peerless New Mexico Horticultural fair in Santa Fe would not aggregate two baker's dozen. Possibly Santa Fe will not send quite as large a contingent to Albuquerque this year as usual. In the language of two eminent philosophers, "Turn about is fair play," and "You pour water on my wheel and I will pour water on yours."

Judge A. L. Morrison will assume the duties of collector of internal revenue for the district of New Mexico and Arizona on the 20th of this month, when a special agent of the treasury department will be in Santa Fe to supervise the transfer of the office from the possession of Collector Shannon to the new collector. Judge Morrison received telegraphic information yesterday from Washington that his gilded bond had been formally approved. This bond represents nearly $200,000, although the penalty thereof is only $50,000.

In addition to Mrs. M. E. Teas' address to ladies this afternoon in the Presbyterian church she will fill the following dates: Sabbath afternoon at 2 o'clock in the Presbyterian church an address to men only. She has given 27 addresses of this character the last year with marked success. At 8 o'clock Sabbath bath evening in the Methodist church she will give a lecture on the subject, "Who is the criminal?" Monday afternoon at 2:30 in the Methodist church she will give a second address to ladies. Mrs. Teas has the strongest endorsements from religious, educational and political sources. A cordial invitation is extended to all to attend these services. Please come prepared for a free will offering.

A special train for Albuquerque over the Santa Fe, will leave this city Monday morning at 8:15, arriving in the Duke City at 11:15; returning will leave at 8:25 p. m., reaching this city at midnight. Fare for the round trip $2.65.

Pleased with the Fair.

Mrs. A. R. Lowe, a most excellent lady of this city, and Mrs. Johnson, a late arrival from Cleveland, O., chaperoned a party of young ladies to Santa Fe Tuesday night, returning to the city last night. Mrs. Lowe and party attended the Horticultural fair, and Mrs. Lowe states that the exhibits of fruits were in every way creditable to the territory. While at the capital they visited several adjacent orchards, and say that the Hickox place is indeed a fine place.—Albuquerque Citizen.
