ADDITIONS TO NAVY

Naval Appropriation Bill Reported to House Provides for New Battleships and Torpedo Boats.

TO SETTLE CUBAN QUESTION

Report of Naval Court of Inquiry Expected Thursday or Friday—Proceedings of Congress—Presidential Appointments.

Washington, March 22.—The naval appropriation bill, as reported to the house today, carries $35,085,058, an increase over last year of $3,764,435, and over the current estimates of $2,514,824. For the increase of the navy the bill allows to be constructed by contract three sea-going coast line battleships, of 11,000 tons displacement, with the highest practicable speed for their class, to cost exclusive of armament not exceeding $3,000,000 each; to be named the Maine, six torpedo boats and six torpedo boat destroyers to cost not exceeding $2,340,000, and one gun-boat for the great lakes. Toward the construction of four timber dry docks, $300,000 each is allowed. They are to be located at Portsmouth, N. H., Boston, Mass., League Island, Penn., and Moore islands on the California coast.

Entire Cuban Question Will Be Settled.

While no one having any knowledge of the matter is willing to speak for the president, it is believed that the question of arbitration in connection with the disaster to the Maine is no longer under consideration. It is believed to be the president's purpose to bring about, in whatever action he may take, a settlement of the whole Cuban question. Whether this involves war with Spain, it is believed, rests entirely with Spain herself.

Naval Court Report Expected.

After the cabinet meeting today, the following statement was given out from an official source: "It is understood at the cabinet meeting today that the report of the court of inquiry will probably be here Thursday or Friday, that it is a very voluminous document; that probably it will not be given to the press and congress until Monday, that the president will require that much time for its proper consideration."

Does Not Know What the Report Contains.

Senator Polo, the Spanish minister, said today that the report from Madrid that he had notified his government that the American naval court of inquiry's report was that the Maine disaster was of an external origin was an error. He added that he did not know what the report would be.

Proceedings of Congress.

The house today debated the Thorpe (Rep.) vs. Eps (Dem.) contested election case from the fourth Virginia district. In the senate Mr. Gallinger (N. H.) announced that he would address the senate tomorrow on the Cuban question. The senate debated the Alaskan civil government bill until 3 o'clock, when it gave way to the national quarantine bill.

Presidential Appointments.

Washington, March 22.—The president sent these nominations to the senate today: Gorman Buell, of New York, to be consul at Cardenas, Cuba; James C. McCook, of Pennsylvania, to be consul at Dawson City, Northwest Territory; J. W. Akers, postmaster at Prescott, A. T.

NEW MEXICO LAND BILL.

To Be Introduced in the Senate—Will Probably Pass That Body.

Denver, March 22.—Delegate Ferguson has become convinced that Speaker Reed does not intend to recognize him to move to take up the New Mexico land bill. He is, therefore, arranging to have the bill offered in the senate. Senators Teller and Allen have expressed a willingness to assist the people of New Mexico by introducing and supporting such a measure. Mr. Ferguson is confident the bill will pass the senate.

Storm Extends Into Nebraska.

Cattle Are Suffering.

Omaha, Neb., March 22.—A terrific blizzard prevails throughout Nebraska today. The mercury has fallen 40 degrees; the wind is blowing 75 miles an hour. Zero weather is announced for tonight. The storm is particularly hard on cattle and winter wheat.

FIRE IN COLORADO SPRINGS.

Frozen Hose Prevented Effective Work by Firemen—Entire City Threatened at One Time.

Colorado Springs, March 22.—Frozen hose pipes were responsible early this morning in a great measure for the two worst blazes this city has ever seen.

With the thermometer below zero, a fire broke out at the home of W. S. Boynton and the sheriff called out the fire department. Before that was gotten under control the Woodside, a large tenement house in the center of town, was discovered to be in flames, and was a mass of ruins in 30 minutes. A high wind threatened to carry the fire eastward on Pikes Peak avenue for a block or more. Chief Baty and Captain Armstrong were removed to their homes after the fire, almost frozen to death. They were encased in an armor of ice. Other firemen suffered intensely. The loss is $50,000.

TWO MEN KILLED IN COLLISION.

Wreck on Chicago & Northwestern Road Results Fatally—Four Injured.

Beloit, Wis., March 22.—A head-on collision between a passenger and a special engine on the Chicago & Northwestern road occurred ten miles south of this city today. The killed are: James Walsh, engineer of the passenger train; Brakeman English, on the special train. Injured: William Wallen, engineer of the special; J. C. Coon; William Winslow, fireman; G. H. Devins, conductor.

COLOSSAL FRAUDS PERPETRATED.

Banks in St. Paul and Other Mississippi Towns Victims of Swindlers.

Washington, March 22.—Information has reached the government through banks at St. Paul, Minn., that these and other nearby banks have been the victims of colossal frauds through suspected collusion of government clerks, connected with the commission having in charge improvements on the upper Mississippi river. The statement submitted indicates that $300,000 or more have been procured through the issuing of fraudulent time checks for services never performed. Some of the checks are said to be signed by J. H. Southall, chief clerk of the United States engineers office in St. Paul, and are dated at different times during 1897. Others it is understood are dated, 1896. It is understood that the banks will make a claim for reimbursement, but the law is said to be clearly against this contention.

NEW MEXICO GOLD ORES.

Professor Coates Investigates Northern New Mexico Gold Fields and is Favorably Impressed.

A special to the Denver News from Baldy, in Colfax county, says: I have been making a thorough investigation of the mineral resources of the portion of New Mexico from Springer to Taos. I find in Truchas mountains some magnificent copper veins that are lying idle and awaiting development, as are most of the mines of New Mexico. Red River has some good prospects. Hematite is a splendid camp if properly developed. Elizabethtown district is a fine placer country, showing some good lodes. The Baldy district is by far the strongest gold bearing district that I have seen in the territory. The Aztec, Black Horse, Montezuma, French Henry, are splendid properties, with several other smaller properties on well defined gold bearing veins. The gold in this camp is easily saved by stamp mills. There is the poorest system of mining both in gulch and lead mining that I have ever seen anywhere. In fact I have seen but two properties that are worked in thorough mining fashion. One is the Waco mine, managed by George Carpenter, of Idaho. The other is the Aztec on the east slope of Baldy mountain, managed by Colonel R. C. Wilson, formerly of Denver. The climate is fine and the mining district accessible.

CONTRASTED EXPLOSION.

Pittsburg, Pa., March 22.—An explosion occurred in the Monowhan coal mine near Monongahela City today. Two men were killed and five were injured. They were foreigners.

ANOTHER CHICAGO FIRE.

Five Persons Burned or Injured—Property Loss $90,000.

Chicago, March 22.—The six-story building, occupied by the Monroe Catering company and the Building Trades club, burned today. Four women, employees of the catering company, were in the top story asleep and barely escaped. Five persons were burned or injured. The loss is $90,000.

FRENCH TROOPS DEFEATED.

Paris, March 22.—The Siecle today says, that the French expedition sent against the Boissirris in the island of Madagascar met with a serious resistance, six officers and 100 men being killed. The insurgents captured a number of rifles and 125,000 cartridges.

PEACE NEGOTIATIONS FAILED.

Cubans Will Accept Nothing But Absolute Independence.

Havana, March 22.—The negotiations between General Pando, Delegates Ramadrez and Chavez, General Calixto Garcia and other prominent insurgents, in which the radical autonomists have made what are said to be the final offers for practical independence, have proved an absolute failure. General Pando's command is again moving eastward, while General Gomez remains inside the Jucaro-Moron trocha in General Pando's rear.

DEATH OF INSURGENT LEADER.

It is announced from Spanish sources that the insurgent brigadier general, Rafael Cabrera, died recently from sickness.

REPORT OF COURT COMPLETE.

Lieutenant Commander Marix Left Key West This Afternoon for Washington and Should Reach That City on Thursday.

New York, March 22.—"I am in a position to inform you that the Spanish government will refuse to accept any finding of the Maine commission which may suggest Spanish responsibility," says the Madrid correspondent of the Herald. "If the report throws the blame upon Spain which would carry with it a call for an indemnity, the peninsular government will forthwith appeal to the combined European powers on a plea of equity and common fairness, to intervene in favor of Spain against what every Spaniard would esteem a most monstrous and iniquitous finding. It is hoped that under such circumstances, the United States will agree to the appointment of a neutral court of naval constructors."

REPORT OF COURT COMPLETE.

Key West, March 22.—The United States court of inquiry into the loss of the Maine has finished the laborious work of the investigation and submitted its report to Rear Admiral Sigsbee. He pointed out some alterations which he considered necessary and the report will probably be taken to Washington today by Lieutenant Commander Marix, judge advocate of the court. It is possible, however, that its arrival in Washington may be delayed several days longer. The decision of the court is still a matter of surmise. Admiral Sigsbee said to the correspondent: "The case of the Maine disaster is perhaps the most peculiar which ever occurred in the history of the world."

REPORT OF COURT COMPLETE.

From the general tone of his remarks it might be inferred that the court findings do not definitely solve the mystery of the explosion. The report remains in existence subject to the call of Admiral Sigsbee. The general impression continues to prevail that the court found that the Maine was intentionally blown up.

REPORT OF COURT COMPLETE.

Lieutenant Commander Marix left Key West this afternoon for Washington with the report.

MAINE OFFICERS ORDERED HOME.

It is reported that the officers of the Maine, now in Havana, have been ordered home.

SPANISH WARSHIP SAVED.

Madrid, March 22.—It is reported that the Spanish warship selected to convey the torpedo fleet to Cuba has sailed from Carthagena for the Canary islands. It appears the delay was due to the fact that the Arctic, one of the Spanish torpedo boats, sustained slight damage on way from Cadiz to the Canaries. The newspapers advocate the further strengthening of the naval squadron in Cuban waters.

EXPLOSION OF EXTERNAL ORIGIN.

The Spanish government has received a dispatch from the Spanish minister at Washington saying that the report of the United States naval court, appointed to inquire into the loss of the battleship Maine, holds that the explosion was of an external origin.

ASSIGNMENT OF BOSTON FIRM.

TUESDAY, MARCH 22.

GOING TO PRAYERS is costly business in Turkey. It takes 30,000 soldiers to guard the sultan on his way to the place of prayer. He should have sense enough to pray at home and save all this turmoil.

The Rhode Island Democrats do not mention the Chicago platform in the state platform, just adopted for the election next month. They seem to be afraid of the planks in the Chicago platform as being very weak and rotten.

The Republicans of this city can and will be successful in the coming city election if they will nominate a clean, good, respectable city ticket. Here is a hint that had best be taken by those who are at the helm on the Republican side in city politics.

It is reported that when the formal resolutions of the convention of Arizona editors, calling on the administration to stand firm and go to war with Spain, reached the White House, President McKinley felt greatly relieved and immediately telephoned Secretaries Alger and Long to be ready with their dogs of war, and he was ready to begin the fray at any time.

The Republican congressional campaign committee is getting ready to start active campaign work for Republican success in the coming congressional elections. It is to be hoped, the committee will not overlook New Mexico in its calculations. This matter should be stirred up in the territory as early as possible and the Republican congressional campaign committee can do it.

The yellow journals are now enjoying themselves publishing canards, that President McKinley is falling mentally and giving away under the strain of the Spanish-Cuban entanglements. They are talking rot. President McKinley is one of the most evenly balanced men in this country and the people know this. But yellow journalism must have sensations; it cares not where they come from and how little there is to sustain them.

Despite the fact, that there are now three Republicans on the board of regents of the Agricultural college at Las Cruces, the college still maintains its identity. From the yawns of certain Democratic-pop papers, a few weeks ago, one would have concluded that if such a thing were to happen, that the college would at once collapse, the faculty would throw up its nice, soft jobs at good salaries and the entire territory would go to the demitition bow wows. It is therefore a great relief to find that these direful consequences are still in the dim future.

What Will the Week Bring?

The present week promises to be a momentous one in the history of the United States, and possibly in the world's history. Not only is the long expected report of the court of inquiry into the cause of the Maine disaster expected, which may result in a declaration of war, but other matters have transpired in the past three days which may bring about hostilities between this government and Spain.

Spain, with a view to secure her possession of Cuba and prevent any interference by this country, on Friday last made the proposition that the United States join in an attempt to induce the insurgents to accept autonomy on the basis of the control exercised over Canada by England. This proposition was flatly refused consideration by the officials at Washington.

Unofficially Spain has announced that under no circumstances will she pay an indemnity for the destruction of the Maine in the harbor of Havana. On the other hand the United States has said that if the culpability of that country is proved by the court of inquiry that full reparation shall be made.

Spain says she will never surrender her sovereignty over the island of Cuba unless compelled to do so by an armed force superior to any that the Spanish can put in the field; the United States is preparing to make a demand that will amount to evacuation of the island by that country, with independence to follow as surely as the sun rises in the morning.

The two countries stand on directly opposing grounds and one or the other must recede from the positions taken or war will result. Conscious that the demands of humanity and civilization require the cessation of war on the island, feeling that they are in the right and knowing that the cause of freedom will be advanced by an interference in the affairs of an unhappy land, the American people will not permit the administration to make any concession.

The question is, will Spain, in the face of the results of a struggle so unequal, insist upon the position taken on all the questions involved in the dispute? The pride of the Spaniards is well known, and there is little likelihood of any concessions being made by the Madrid government, and unless that country yields war must come. This is the opinion expressed by men who are considered authority on international questions, and certainly the condition of affairs bears out the opinion.

The gravity of the situation indicates that before next Saturday the crisis will have been reached. Perhaps diplomacy can avert a conflict that seems inevitable, it is to be hoped that it can, but it appears impossible at this time. The United States faces the crisis without fear and with a consciousness of being master of the situation. The past three weeks have sufficed to place the country in a condition to meet almost any emergency of a warlike nature, and if war must come it will be entered into with a grim determination to win and free a people who have suffered everything in the name of freedom and home.

Carry the War into Africa.

While Spanish papers are blustering about the dire things which will befall the sea board cities of the United States when their king "cries havoc and lets slip the dogs of war," and while weak kneed mungwumps like Larry Godkin and others are whining over the dangers which threaten New York, which by the way has more guns mounted for her defense than the entire Spanish fleet can show, it will not be inopportune to take a glance at Spain's weak points which lie open inviting attack. One of the most fertile islands in the West Indies is Porto Rico, whose exports are twice as valuable as those of Jamaica. The ancient fortifications of its principal city, San Juan, were built some 300 years ago and have never been rebuilt to meet the exigencies of modern warfare, hence could make no resistance to any serious attack. The Canaries, so well known to all readers of the Life of Columbus, as the last resting place of his flotilla before its daring venture out into the vast mysterious ocean, are still in the possession of Spain and would fall an easy prey to any one of the great battleships. Then come the Balearic islands in the Mediterranean, although but a short distance from Spain, are but poorly defended according to modern ideas. Away off in the South Pacific lie the Philippine islands, in which the smoldering embers of rebellion have been rekindled by the knowledge that in the neighboring port of Hong Kong, an American squadron is impatiently waiting the word to swoop down and annihilate Spanish authority. So much for Spanish colonies every one of which would be captured immediately after a declaration of war was made. But on the coast of Spain itself, half a dozen important cities would be compelled to surrender at discretion, being in their present defenseless condition unable to make the slightest show of resistance. This would be carrying the war into Africa with a vengeance and would be simply repeating the story of Selpio and Hannibal.

Even now active measures are being adopted by a vigilant administration to carry out this policy to the fullest extent. A hundred and twenty years ago Paul Jones in a rotten old Indian carried terror and destruction up and down the British channel. In the early part of the present century gallant tars from America inflicted condign punishment on the Algerine pirates, and 85 years ago whole fleets of British merchantmen were destroyed or captured in and near the narrow seas between Ireland and England, so the American war eagle is no stranger to the distant coasts of Europe and the bird of Jove and Washington can reach them inside of two weeks, instead of two months as in the times spoken of. As the New Mexican has repeatedly said war is not desired. Peace being the special mission of America, but if it comes it will be backed up by every man and every dollar in the Union. The $50,000,000 voted by the senate inside of 15 minutes, is a mere bagatelle to what would be forthcoming the first day the long roll is beaten to rally the young chivalry of America to arms. Then once again the old song.

The union of lakes, the union of lands, The union of states none can sever, The union of hearts, the union of hands, And the flag of our Union ever.

The flag of our Union for ever would round throughout the republic from Passamaquoddy Head to the Rio Grande and from Montauk Point to the Aleutian Islands.

Fits Santa Fe to a Dot.

The nominating conventions for city officers for this city are soon to be held. Republicans can and will carry the city if honest, capable and progressive men are nominated.—Raton Range.

The Capital at Santa Fe.

Delegate Ferguson's bill declaring Santa Fe the permanent capital of the territory, passed the senate Monday. It's all right, this paper has often declared that the old Ancient city should remain as the seat of territorial government as it has for ages.—Springer Stockman.

All Quiet on the Rio Grande So Far.

There was quite a change around among territorial officers last week. The governor removed Thomas J. Bull from his position as regent of the Agricultural college, because he had not settled up his accounts as treasurer properly, and appointed Jacinto Armijo, of Las Cruces in his place. District Attorney Young, of Dona Ana county, resigned and John D. Bryan was appointed in his place. Mr. Bryan was appointed a Democrat. He was appointed register of the land office at Las Cruces by Cleveland, but was forced to resign, and since then has not felt kindly toward the Democratic party. Vincent B. May resigned his membership of the board of immigration and Harry L. Miles was appointed in his place. All is now quiet on the lower Rio Grande.—Lordsburg Liberator.

Still, a Republican Will Try and Beat Him.

The Enterprise says that W. B. Walton is likely to become a candidate for the nomination as probate clerk. Mr. Walton made a most excellent record while holding the position as clerk of the District court, and if he goes after this office he will make a hard candidate to beat, both at the convention and at the polls. Still there are men who will try and beat him at each place.—Lordsburg Liberator.

A Democratic Voice on the Solicitor General's Question.

The legal embargo that is to follow the action of Governor Otero in appointing E. L. Bartlett solicitor general of the territory may bring forth some good fruit after it. It may serve to call the attention of the people to the fact that, for the last two or three sessions of the legislature, members of the council have been using their positions as stepping stones to fat appointive offices. It might be a good idea for the political parties in the territory, in their councilmanic conventions, to state, by resolution, that their nominees would not be applicants for appointive offices at the session of the legislature to which they are to be sent. We have no criticisms of a personal nature to make against Judge Fall, or any of the other members of the council, holding appointive places in the territory; but we deprecate the custom of members of the council being applicants for positions which the council is required, by law, to confirm or reject.—Roswell Record.

Beyond State Lines.

The military lawyers are again discussing the question of the right of the federal government to order a state's militia beyond the state lines. The topic comes up at every war or rumor of war, and learned disquisitions are written on the subject. The matter has been so definitely settled by practice and particularly in the late civil war, that it seems useless to discuss it, a bare statement of what has been established being alone necessary.

When a regiment of state militia is sworn into the service of the United States it passes under the control of the United States and can be ordered anywhere. Until it is sworn into the federal service the United States has no control over it at all, and it can only be used within the state, being subject to the commands of the governor of the state. It will be remembered that when President Lincoln issued his call for troops and several militia regiments responded—notably the Sixth, Eighth Massachusetts and the Seventh and Sixty-ninth New York—they were sworn into the service of the United States and at once ordered to Washington. During the civil war there was an occasional volunteer regiment that demurred to going beyond state lines, and General Grant's first regiment—the Twenty-first—was one of them, but their protests were overruled.

The whole thing turns on whether a regiment has been mustered into the service of the United States. If it has it is subject to the orders of the federal government. If it has not been mustered it cannot be ordered by the federal government, and certainly has no right to move or act beyond the lines of its state. The taking of the mustering oath transforms a regiment from state militia to United States volunteers.—Denver News.

Blood Poison.

Contagious Blood Poison has been appropriately called the curse of mankind. It is the one disease that physicians can not cure; their mercurial and potash remedies only bottle up the poison in the system, and when it breaks out more virulent form, resulting in a total wreck of the system.

Mr. Frank B. Martin, a prominent jeweler at 926 Pennsylvania Ave., Washington, D.C., says: "I was for a long time a sufferer from blood poisoning, and I tried every remedy, but all to no purpose. I was cured by S.S.S. After I had taken four bottles, I began to get better, and when I had finished eighteen bottles, I was cured sound and well, my skin was without a blemish, and I have had no return of the disease. S.S.S. saved me from a life of misery." S.S.S. (guaranteed purely vegetable) will cure any case of blood poisoning. ## NATIONAL HOCKEY LEAGUE.

Bartow S. Weeks Will Try to Organize Such an Association.

Hockey is a sport which is apparently growing in popularity with the public. Bartow S. Weeks of the New York Athletic club has watched its progress with much interest, and he thinks that the time is ripe for the organization of a national league. The game is decidedly popular in Canada, where it has reached a stage of perfection that Americans are trying hard to attain, as was evidenced by the close score recently between the Shamrocks of Montreal and the New York Hockey club. Mr. Weeks has been doing his best to secure the cooperation of the various clubs in those cities toward the organization of a league. He thinks there will be no trouble in getting hearty support from those sources, and afterward other cities may be induced to join or will do so voluntarily.

When it was suggested to Mr. Weeks that instead of good posts a cage should be provided in which the rubber would be sent in order that a cage might be scored, he replied that he had been considering the matter of late. The conclusion he had reached was that a cage would improve the game, but not, however, such a cage as is used in the two New England roller polo leagues, which, he thought, would take up too much space.

Following out this plan a cage made of netting instead of wire, with three posts and a crossbar in front and triangular in shape, will be tried, and if it proves satisfactory will then be used by all the clubs. By making it triangular in shape Mr. Weeks thinks that it will allow all the fine playing necessary to find the goal and besides prevent any fluke goals being made by reason of the rubber being knocked the wrong way between the posts, only to be sent back from the front for a goal. With a cage the rubber would have to be taken out either to the side or in front of it in order that a point might be scored.—New York Herald.

"AT LAST!" SAID GEN. LEE. A Sailor's Account of the Maine's Entrance to Havana Harbor. Harry Andrews, carriage painter of Reading, Pa., recently received a letter from his brother, Frank Andrews, aged 26, who was a seaman on board the Maine for the past three years. Mr. Andrews' letter, dated at Havana, gives a description of the way the United States warship entered Havana fully prepared for action should she have been fired on.

"When the Maine received orders to go to Havana," Andrews writes, "we saw that all our guns were in good order. Cylinders were filled, shot and shell broken out and the decks almost cleared for action. Everything was ready for business, and we turned in for a couple of hours' sleep. We waited Cuba at daylight, and all hands were soon on deck. We had heard the Spaniards would fire on us, so we were prepared to return it with interest.

"Our orders were to enter Havana, and it had to be done, so there was no half hearted anything on this outfit. As we steamed in under the guns of Morro castle we calculated how long it would take us to silence it. Our turret guns' crews were standing at their guns under the turrets, out of sight of course, while the rest of the crew was lounging around the deck, but at the first shot from the Spanish they would have soon found their places, and we could have shown them one of the nearest Yankee tricks that was ever played.

"However, nothing happened, and we steamed in and moved to a buoy. We kept the ship ready for action until United States Consul General Lee came on board. He looked proud and, plunking his foot down on the deck, exclaimed: 'At last!'

"We still kept our ammunition ready and stood night watches ready for business at a moment's notice," Andrews says there were a number of Pennsylvania boys on the Maine.—New York Sun.

Fishing With Shovels.

The greatest sport we have heard of in Parsons, S. D., recently is the catch of fish that Hubert Bares, Anton Fergen and some others recently made. They went to the Jim river, near Victor, Christ's place, and in a slough which was formed last spring for the overflow of the Jim river they cut a hole in the ice and with scoop shovels they took out over 250 pounds of fine fish. They said that they had found fish frozen fast to the ice which, when held in their hands, revived and assumed their natural condition. It is said there are thousands of fish in the ponds and sloughs that were formed last spring by the overflowed river. Most of these will perish in a short time after the ice commences to freeze for want of water and air. There are no doubt many fine pickers in some of the creek ponds.—Parsons (S. D.) Advance.

Electric Hook.

An electric hook has been invented which shocks a fish to death the moment the bait is touched. The idea of pulling out of the water an inert object in the form of an electrocuted bass would have made the gentle Iszaak use language that could be represented only by asterisks.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

HELP FOR WHALERS.

HERD OF REINDEER TO BE DRIVEN TO POINT BARROW.

Plans of Captain Tuttle—Relief Ship Bear Selected for the Work—The Whalers May Be Safely Housed in the Government Relief Station.

The whole country is deeply interested just now in the fate of one Norwegian and seven American whaling ships, said to have been caught in the ice north and east of Point Barrow, with insufficient food to support them until they return to San Francisco, their home port.

The United States revenue service on the Pacific coast embraces a supervision of the whaling fleet in Bering sea, and the Arctic ocean north of Bering strait in order to see that the laws prohibiting the distribution of firearms and "fire water" among the savages of Alaska and Siberia in the way of trade are carried out.

For this purpose the revenue cutters Bear and Corwin make yearly trips to the arctic seas, and their officers are naturally well informed concerning the conditions prevailing there, in the summer months at least. It was natural, therefore, that when it was decided to send relief to the imprisoned whalers the revenue marine should be called upon to perform the hazardous work, they being provided with suitable vessels as well as experienced officers.

The condition of the imprisoned whaling fleet is not so desperate as to warrant such a heroic effort to reach it. If they are really in trouble—and many whaling captains as well as others more or less familiar with the history of the whaling industry in that part of the world doubt that fact—the arrival of a single sled, with one or two white men bearing the news that a relief ship with 100 barrels of pork and 100 barrels of ships' biscuit awaited the shipwrecked crews near Sledge island or Cape Nome would buoy them up and they could make the trip to the stores without very much trouble.

It is not a new thing by any means for whalers to get caught in the ice north and eastward of Point Barrow, and even long before there was a relief station anywhere upon that coast the men have escaped to the land and reached a place of safety at Cape Prince of Wales or Port Clarence, where they were picked up during the following summer by the incoming whalers or the steamers belonging to the revenue service. At one time there were about 30 whaling vessels caught in the ice pack above Point Barrow and the crews of all except two, who elected to stay by their ships and were never again heard from, made their escape safely over 40 miles of intervening ice and reached the northern coast of Alaska, where, scattering out, they managed to find sufficient sustenance until relieved later on. Most of the abandoned ships passed on into the great unknown, but two, I believe, remained somewhere in the track of the whalers and were picked up by them during the next season.

Captain Tuttle, who had considerable experience in the Arctic while in the revenue service, will command the Bear, and every effort will be made by him to get beyond Norton sound before the ice forms there, and he hopes to reach Sledge island, about 40 miles from Port Clarence, by the 15th of December. The revenue bureau has information that Norton sound does not freeze over until January, and in that case Captain Tuttle may arrive at his destination at the time fixed, but if he is calculating upon an open winter north because the winter in these lower latitudes has so far been very mild he is likely to be mistaken, for the whaling captains have found that the climatic conditions are reversed. A cold winter here indicates an open winter north and vice versa.

It is probable that any relief party from the Bear will find most of the beleaguered whalers at the relief station near Point Barrow, where there is a house designed by Commodore Melville, the veteran arctic traveler, and built by the United States government to be used as a refuge for shipwrecked mariners who might reach the northern coast of Alaska in need of stores and shelter. Three years' supplies were always maintained there, and three men were there, paid to take charge of the station. This was prior to 1890, but since then the relief station has been taken in charge by the owners of the vessels engaged in the whaling business in that part of the Arctic ocean.

The supply of stores has been maintained at this station ever since, and this year, it is said, there are 400 barrels of flour at the post of the North American Trading company, only 16 miles from Point Barrow. So that after all the icebound whalers may not be in such great distress as appeared probable when the news of their detention first reached this country.

But, be that as it may, they should have the benefit of the doubt, and the government can very well afford to make every effort to see that they have relief if necessary. Of course no one expected that sufficient provisions could be taken on Sledge island to feed 365 men for six months or that they could be brought back to a refuge station in a body. The only feasible thing to be done in this case seems to be to drive a herd of the tame reindeer that the government has introduced into Alaska to the refuge station at Point Barrow and furnish fresh meat "on the hoof" to those in need of it.

This is the plan proposed by the officers in charge of the relief expedition, but as the herd can only be moved slowly while in such great numbers it has been proposed to send 800 or 1,000 head. It would be well to send a sledge party on in advance with the information that fresh venison will be furnished by the government a little later on. —W. H. Gilder in New York Journal.

KNOWN BY THE CLICK

When I was a telegraph operator at Rocky Forks, my friend Tom Brown telegraphed me that he would go with me for a day's shooting. I liked nothing better than a day's outing with Tom, and I quickly ticked back word that he could rely on me next Tuesday, as that was my day off.

The following day there came a message through Omaha that the United Express would ship $12,000,000 in bullion over the road to Sioux City the next Monday night and that the train would pass through my station, Rocky Forks, at 8:15 in the evening. I telegraphed back that I understood it, and then opened up the instrument and asked Tom if he had received his message yet. He said that he had and would look for the train 17 minutes earlier at Dismal Point.

That day and next I passed in my usual way. Sunday was uneventful and would have seemed long except for the constant ticking of the instrument, which was kept busy sending messages about the important shipment to be made the next day. Monday evening at 7:30 I looked at my watch. "The train will soon be along," I said. "I guess I will call up Tom and see if he knows where it is."

I called up Dismal Point, and Tom answered. "The express train is one station up the road," said he, "and is ahead of time. It will wait here five minutes. I'll let you know as soon as it leaves here. Tomorrow."

There was a sudden pause in the ticking, and then a strange hand sent the message, "That is all."

I called up Tom again, but he did not answer. I kept calling, but no response came, and I thought that the wires had become entangled.

I waited for the express with its $12,000,000 in bullion until 8:15, but it did not arrive. Then I telegraphed up the road to Tom, but there was no answer. I waited five minutes longer and telegraphed again, but still no response.

"The wires must be down," I said. I walked out upon the platform and looked up the road. To my surprise I saw in the distance an engine coming toward me, slowly swinging down the track. As it came nearer I saw it was empty, and as it passed me I boarded it.

Reversing the engine I started back up the road. I went, with such fire as I could get up, back to Dismal Point. Here, in front of the station, stood the express car, filled with its contents. Across one of the trucks the express messenger lay dead. The engineer and fireman were so badly stunned that at first I thought they, too, were killed, but after some time I brought breath back into the life of the former. His poor fellow, was too dazed to speak, and I lifted him into the car, thankful that he was alive.

When I stepped into the little station where Tom always sat, an awful sight met my eyes. There, sitting at the instrument, with his back to the door, was my old friend, a danger striking through him and fairly plucking him to the table. I grasped the wooden handle and pulled it out with all my strength, only to receive his cold body in my arms.

Well, they never found out the robbers of the train. The engine had struck from behind and could remember nothing, and after waiting only long enough to see my old friend buried I resigned my position at Rocky Forks and struck out again. But on Tom's grave, back in the woods at Dismal Point, I put a shaft of wood and on it carved these words: "Lying, I will pursue you to the end of the world; dead, I will come back to you."

Below it I put Tom's name and age and vowed aloud the oath that I had there written to find the murderer of poor Tom Brown.

Three years later I found myself stationed at New Elsworth, a suburb of New York. I was in charge of a private wire of the Pacific Telegraph company, which communicated with all parts of the new world, and I was proud to be an operator in its employ.

My duty here in part was to transmit the private messages of the higher officials. I never liked the president of the company, though he lived in the handsomest house in the place and treated me with uniform courtesy. He had a cold, uncertain manner that did not seem to be worthy of trust. Certainly I should not have put up my millions into his hands.

One night when he did not reach home and asked me if I had heard from him. I was forced to tell her no. This happened frequently, and one evening when he had been late and she had made three trips in her carriage to the telegraph office he said to me, "Tomorrow I will have a private wire put in my office in Pine street, and when I am detained I will telegraph you, and you can send a message to me by it."

The next day the wire was put in, but as the president came home promptly that night it was not used. But on the following day at 5 o'clock I got a telegram from him telling me that he would not be home until 8 o'clock and ordering me to send word to his wife. I did so by the station messenger.

An hour later there came another message from the president's office. It was that he would be detained still later and telling me to send word home to that effect.

"Is that all?" I asked.
"The message came back in short staccato notes."
"That is all!" I leaned back in my chair cold and faint, for the hand was the same that had sent me the message on the night poor Tom Brown was killed.

The next day I came to the city on a leave of absence to investigate the life of Anson Tryon, president of the Atlantic and Pacific Telegraph company. I found that three years before he had been a laborer on the Sioux City railroad, with a dollar to his name and that his sudden rise had been the talk of Wall street.

When we read of an elephant hunter who has been trampled to death in the wilds of India, we wonder at the foolishness of a man who will travel round the world and endure all manner of hardships, in order to court death in a far away jungle. A man does not have to make a journey to India in order to court death in a manner equally foolhardy.

Thousands of hard working men are daily courting death in a much more certain way, without ever leaving their native village or cities. They are the men who neglect their health. They are the men who court death from consumption, or some other deadly disease due to improper or insufficient nourishment. The man who suffers from bilious or nervous disorders, who has a weak stomach and an impaired digestion, who has lost the power to eat, rest or sleep, and who fails to take prompt steps to remedy these conditions, is courting death in the guise of some fatal malady.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures 98 per cent. of all cases of bronchial, throat and laryngeal affections that lead up to consumption. It soothes the cough, facilitates expectoration and restores the lost appetite. It corrects all disorders of the digestion, makes the assimilation of the life-giving elements of the food perfect. It invigorates the liver and purifies and enriches the blood. It is the great blood-maker, flesh-builder, nerve tonic and restorative. It is the best of all known medicines for nervous disorders. Dealers sell it.

"I had a bad cough and got so low with it that I could not sit up," writes Mrs. Mittle Gray, of New London, Union Co., Ark. "I consulted a physician told my husband that I had consumption. I had pains through my chest and spit up blood. I used your 'Golden Medical Discovery' and it cured me. It saved my life."

"Maria," said Mr. Despard to his wife as he pulled off his overcoat upon getting home for dinner, "just step in to the parlor, will you, and fix the stove so as it will sulphur like fury?"

"Why, John!" exclaimed Mrs. Despard.
"And while you're there," continued Mr. Despard, "you might as well turn up the lamp so as to fill the room with its smoke. Are both of them lighted?"

"Ye-es," replied his wife, regarding him anxiously, and unobtrusively edging beyond the reach of any overt act of insanity.

Well, then, turn down the other one low so it will smell of kerosene like sixty," continued Mr. Despard quietly. "And here's a package of the very worst tobacco I could buy. Tell the cook to put it in a pan with some live coals and put it in the parlor too."

"But, John!" began Mrs. Despard piteously.
"And say, Maria," calmly continued her husband, ignoring her appeal, "tell the nurse to bring the children out to the head of the front stairs at 10 o'clock sharp and pinch them all around until they yell like demons. And—well, I guess that's all I can do."

"But what on earth are you doing?" demanded Mrs. Despard. "Trying to drive us all out of the house?"
"You do as I say, Maria," insisted her lord and master, "and we'll fix him this fustian, sure."

"Fix whom? What does this mean?" demanded Mrs. Despard fiercely.
"Why, you see, Maria," explained Mr. Despard soothingly, "Talker told me this afternoon that he was coming over to spend the evening with us, and I'll just bet you a new bicycle that he don't keep us up to 1 o'clock telling idiotic stories this time."—Alex. Rickettes in New York Sunday World.

BURIED MONEY FOUND.

Reported That $16,000 Was Found at Rodriguez House in East End of Town—
Old Coins in Circulation Lend
Color to Story.

A find of buried money, reported to consist of nearly $16,000, was made last week while repairing an old house near the brewery. Considerable secrecy is maintained by the interested parties, but the fact that numerous old coins, dating back as far as 1837, are afloat in the city, seems to indicate that the find is not a "pipe story."

The facts of the case, as given by the NEW MEXICAN representative, are, that Juan and Eugenio Lujan and others, were repairing the Rodriguez home, across the street from the brewery, and one of the party, in removing a stone from under the window, struck his pick into a buckskin bag. The bag was filled with gold and silver money and was afterward removed to a safe place and some of the coins of smaller denomination put into circulation. These fell into the hands of coin collectors, who have been assiduously searching through authorities on old coin values in the endeavor to secure premiums. Naturally a question was raised as to the source of so many old pieces of money, and the information was elicited that they were found in the Rodriguez residence.

Toribio Rodriguez, who works at Sol. Lowitzki's store on San Francisco street, says that he has heard of the find but can gain no authentic information. This is not strange, because, if information were given, beyond doubt, that the money had really been unearthed, himself and mother would come in for a share of the spoils.

Young Rodriguez lives in the Rodriguez home with his mother, sister, brother, brother-in-law and sister-in-law. His father Rafael Rodriguez, who purchased the place in early days from his mother. She was known to be very wealthy and kept her money buried in the house. She was 68 years old when she died and told Mr. Rodriguez that she had removed all the money from the house. Other relatives, however, were not satisfied that the money had been removed. When Rafael Rodriguez died, one year ago, some of the relatives accused the Rodriguez family of having found the money buried by the old lady, because the imposing funeral was thought to be beyond the available cash supply of the family.

There is considerable feeling aroused by members of the family, the brothers and relatives of Mr. Rodriguez believing that the wife and family are secreting the money and keeping them from securing a share.

Last week three men went to the Rodriguez residence after dark and commanded Mrs. Rodriguez to deliver up the money. She declared that she knew nothing about it and was so scared that she fled from the place. She did not know who the night prowlers were.

Toribio Rodriguez has been in the employ of Lowitzki 12 years and is a bright appearing young fellow. He says that if the money was found he would like to get a share of it and thinks that himself and mother should have a share of it.

While the recent improvements were going on Hilgino Lujan was engaged in plastering the place and Juan Lujan did the carpenter work. A lot of holes were found where the money was buried, but the cans were all empty. Doubtless the repository under the window was considered safe enough to have so vast an amount in. One of the Lujan boys, while "taking in the sights" one night, gave a companion some old coins to change for him, which led to the belief that he had secured the money.

That some one got away with the $16,000 is not doubted, but there seems to be a difficulty in determining just who, or how many are enjoying the benefits of the discovery. The money is being disposed of in a quiet way that defies detection.

Besides being in general circulation here, some old coins bearing dates 1835 to 1840, have been shovelled out in surrounding towns. The money is somewhat discolored by vegetable matter and has the appearance of being handled but little.

CITY POLITICS.

The Situation Becoming Lively—Registration and Conventions.

The registration in the four city wards up to this date is as follows: Ward No. 1, 297; ward No. 2, 226; ward No. 3, 270; ward No. 4, 202. Total, 1,095.

It is understood that the Republican primaries are called for March 31, and the Republican city convention for the nomination of candidates for city offices on April 2.

The idea of nominating a so-called citizens ticket in opposition to the regular Republican ticket is gaining ground in Democratic ranks. It is said that Judge J. H. Walker is to be named as a candidate for mayor and Pedro Delgado as a candidate for city clerk of that ticket.

In ward No. 1, the Democrats are talking of Eugenio Sena and Nicanor Baca as candidates for members of the council.

Captain J. R. Hudson, the present county assessor, is talked of as a candidate for mayor on the Republican ticket.

In ward No. 3, the Democrats are canvassing the names of Francisco Gonzales y Raca and Pablo Martinez for members of the council and board of education.

Hon. Jose D. Sena is talked of as a candidate for member of the council from ward No. 1. This would be a most excellent selection, would he consent to run.

The Republican city committee consists of the following members:

Chairman, Antonio Ortiz y Salazar; members, ward No. 1, Epitacio Gallegos and J. M. Samora; ward No. 2, Seferino Baca and Ricardo Alarid; ward No. 3, John V. Conway and W. Miller; ward No. 4, Max Frost and Octaviano Rodriguez.

THE EXCHANGE EDITOR.

Some Political Pointers for Campaign Orators Gleaned from Other Papers—Republican Party Responsible.

The exchange editor has gleaned the following information from the Dye-in-the-wool, Middle-of-the-road, Ever-in-the-push, and other valued contemporaries. The matter will be of vast importance to Republican stump speakers in the fall campaign:

"Cy Horner has given his fence a new coat of paint. Mr. Horner would give it two coats, but the uncertain policy of the government in the Spanish matter induces him to think that the guns of the enemy may raze it to ground, early next month."

"Granny Jones died yesterday. She was only 98 years old and would have lived to 130, but the hard times brought on to the country by an extravagant Republican administration, induced her car and consequent sup-law to cut down Granny's supply of grub. P. S.—Granny's son-in-law inherited $20,000 by her death."

"George Smith's malted cat had a litter of four kittens again yesterday. She always gave eight before 'the crime of '73.'"

"Jim Hawkins made $8,000 from his wheat crop. The friends of Jim will be glad to know this because it will enable him to pay off the mortgage on his farm and square up the old bill at the store that has been running for eight years. Jim could do better under a Democratic administration with half a show."

"Leap year won't come again until 1900. This is owing to the infernal machinations of the Republican gangs, who want to give their robbing president and congressmen an extra day's salary every year, until the Democrats kick them out of office."

"Our respected and influential townsman, Abraham Keeler, who was refused the postoffice of this place by the damnable Republican administration, for purely political reasons, says he has never voted the Republican ticket and never will again. This is the kind of spunk we like to see. The Buncombe Bazaar will soon publish some letters Mr. Keeler received from Mark Hanna, promising him the position."

"Hiram Sibley, who is a respected dockwaller down at Ford's ferry, has been refused a pension by the ungrateful Republican administration. This is the way the despicable Republican party looks after the heroes of the late war, and should be an object lesson to the voters of Harney county. Mr. Sibley left a log at Gettysburg, but will go back and get it this fall and stump the county against the Republican party. The Republicans slanderously say Mr. Sibley lost his leg in a saw mill."

"Silas Jenkins, who lost his eyesight, looking for work under Republican rule, has so far recovered that he will be able to do jury duty as of old in a few days."

"The cars ran over and killed a fine Jersey bull belonging to Amos Green last week. This never would have happened to Mr. Green if the Republican party had not turned the nation over to the bloated plutocrats and ruined a flourishing community by their new fangled improvements."

"The Longhorns got drunk yesterday and beat his wife nearly to death. Mrs. Longhorns says she knows it was not Ike's fault, and that if the Republican party would only make times better Ike wouldn't get drunk and despondent. The rascals should be turned out of office."
