TROOPS SURRENDER

Spanish Forces Complying with the Terms of Capitulation—Suffering from Starvation.

PROTECTION FOR RESIDENTS

Insurgents Have Left American Camp—Warned Not to Molest Spaniards in Interior—Fifty Funerals in Santiago from Hunger.

Santiago de Cuba, July 25.—Colonel Rosillo arrived here yesterday from General Pareja, military governor at Guantanamo, to ascertain from General Toral if the report of capitulation was true. As the result of General Toral's answer, the 6,000 Spanish troops at Guantanamo surrendered and laid down their arms. Lieutenant Miley, of General Shafter's staff has returned from Palma, Soriano and San Luis, where he received the surrender and arms of 3,405 men of whom 3,005 are Spanish soldiers to be deported. All the surrendered troops are suffering from disease and starvation.

Must Not Molest Spanish Residents.
New York, July 25.—Dispatches to the World from Santiago say: The insurgent forces have left the American camp and gone 20 miles into the interior. They have been warned under threat of an extreme penalty not to molest the Spanish residents or to return to their old system of brigandage. There were 50 funerals yesterday of refugees who died as the result of the scarcity of food at El Caney. Santiago is still short of food and the streets are full of beggars.

Freight Rate Was Ended.
Chicago, July 25.—All freight rates have been restored to the normal tariff on the western roads, ending a rate war in which $1,000,000 were recklessly thrown away. For 12 months the rates in all parts of the territory west of Chicago have been badly demoralized.

SULKY MOROCCOANS.

Want No Americans in Their Ports—Speculations of the Tangiers People.

Madrid, July 25.—According to a dispatch from Cadiz to the Imparcial advices from Tangiers say that the foreign minister of Morocco declares that if the Americans enter Moroccan ports they will be notified to leave in 24 hours and if they refuse Morocco will place herself under the protection of the powers.

The peace probabilities are anxiously canvassed at Tangier since the arrival of the United States consul and the special adds that the belief increases that the United States does not intend to deprive Spain of anything but the Antilles.

Attempt to Blow Up Supply Ship.

New York, July 25.—In a letter to a prominent official here, Captain William Brackley of the refrigerating and supply ship Port Victor, says that a box containing 30 pounds of dynamite and gun cotton was found on the main deck of the steamer. A clock like machine had been arranged by which the explosives were to be set off. The box and explosives were thrown into the sea.

Don Carlos in Switzerland.

Lucerne, Switzerland, July 25.—Don Carlos, the pretender to the Spanish throne, has arrived here with his wife and aide-de-camp.

PUERTO RICAN EXPEDITION.

Major General Brooke Sailed Today—Believed General Miles is Off
Puerto Rico.

Washington, July 25.—Major General Brooke, commanding the first army corps, will sail today from Newport News to join General Miles at Puerto Rico. He will embark on the St. Louis, and as he will proceed without waiting for the whole of his command he should arrive off Puerto Rico Friday or Saturday. The department has no doubt that General Miles is off Puerto Rico, and if all the details of the expedition are moving with precision, there is every reason to believe the troops will all be ashore before the end of the week.

Sampson's Report will be Made Public.

Washington, July 25.—The official reports concerning the naval operations off the east coast of Cuba, culminating in the destruction of Admiral Cervera's fleet, will be made public by the Navy department Tuesday morning for publication in the newspapers Wednesday morning. A statement to this effect was made by Secretary Long today.

Another Scare Hatching.

London, July 25.—A special from Shanghai says that four Russian men-of-war have left Port Arthur, and it is supposed their destination is the Philippine Islands.

FLOATING DOCK FOR THE NAVY.

Necessary Adjunct Secured—Will First Be Sent to Key West.

Washington, July 25.—Chief Endicott, of the bureau of yards and docks, has just returned to the Navy department from New York, where he succeeded in arranging for the purchase by the government of a floating dry dock, a naval adjunct very much needed at this time. The dock is capable of lifting vessels up to 2,800 tons displacement, which will bring within its scope most of the gunboats of Admiral Sampson's fleet, and large number of the auxiliary vessels. It will be first sent to Key West.

CRISTOBAL COLON TO BE SAVED.

Lieutenant Hobson Completing Arrangements to Raise the Spanish Cruiser.
New York, July 25.—Lieutenant Richmond F. Hobson returned to Washington, since landing here last Friday morning. While in Washington he again conferred with Secretary Long concerning the saving of the Cristobal Colon. Upon his return to this city he went to the office of the Merritt & Chapman Wrecking and Derrick Company to complete preparations for the righting and preserving of the Colon.

INTERNAL DISORDERS CONTINUE.

Spanish Mob Composed of Convicts Have Appeared in Different Parts of Spain.

Paris, July 25.—Private letters from Madrid say that internal disorders in the Spanish provinces continue. Some demonstrations have taken place at Granada, supposed to be due to the opposition manifested toward the octroi tax, but in view of the rigorous censorship on all questions pertaining to public order, it is difficult to ascertain the facts. At Gargaria, province of Barcelona, a mob recently fired on the gen-darmes, and armed bands, said to have been composed of jail birds, have appeared at Bance and Valdores. Thus far the efforts of the authorities to capture them have been futile.

Prominent Milwaukee Citizen Dead.

Battle Creek, Mich. July 25.—W. P. Merrill, a Milwaukee millionaire, one of the oldest residents of that city, died here today of heart disease, while on a visit to his son, D. D. Merrill. The deceased was 82 years of age.

SILVER DOLLARS DISCOUNTED.

Merchants of Santiago Refuse to Accept American Money, Except at a Discount of 50 Per Cent.

Washington, July 25.—Major Sniffen, of the pay corps, will sail from New York tomorrow on the Olivette for Santiago, accompanied by three paymasters, who will begin the payment of the troops there. A telegram has been received from General Shafter requesting that gold and paper be sent to Santiago as the tradesmen there refuse to accept the American silver dollars at par value, and rate them at 50 cents on the dollar, the same as Mexican dollars and dollars of South American countries, who do not know that any orders will be sent to General Shafter, although the suggestion has been made that American money should not be allowed to be questioned by a country occupied by United States troops.

MINERS GUARDED DAY AND NIGHT.

Coal Miners at Pana Still Maintain Their Threatening Attitude—Non-Union Men
Protected by An Armed Force.

Pana, Ill., July 25.—Today there was a renewal of hostilities between the coal operators and union miners. The principal excitement was at the Springside mine, where Sheriff Coburn and a force of armed deputies were guarding the shaft. The union miners and their wives congregated on the roads leading to the mine, and the only men who entered the pit were seven who reside on the Springside company's property, 50 yards from the shaft, where they are guarded day and night.

SENSIBLE TALK.

Reported from Madrid That Spain Will Treat Directly with the United States in Negotiating for Peace.

Madrid, July 25.—A correspondent of the Associated Press has had an interesting conversation with a person occupying a high position in the queen regent's household. He said the quarrel between Spain and the United States is much easier of adjustment than is generally believed. The queen regent naturally endeavored to avert the war, and also desires an honorable ending. She is quite alive to the force of public opinion. He added: "The present government will not initiate the peace movement, but a modified cabinet, headed by Senor Gamazo, present minister of public instruction, will conclude the negotiations and then retire, and General Polavieja with a combination including Senor Silveira and General Camp-os will re-organize the country. Everybody considers that Spain should treat direct with the Americans, whose practical good sense will prevail over spread eagles."

Preparatory Message Ready.

London, July 25.—A special from Madrid says that the Spanish government has drawn up a message for Washington, preparatory to the discussion of the terms of peace. The government, it is said, will propose an armistice for the purpose of discussing the terms upon which peace can be arranged.

Immune Regiments Ready.

New Orleans, July 25.—Colonel Duncan B. Hood's regiment of Immunes, who have been in camp at Covington for several weeks, arrived here today. Colonel Richey's Immunes from Texas arrived on Sunday. Both these regiments will be taken to Santiago by the big transport Berlin, now taking on stores for the expedition.

First Shipment of New Bonds.

Washington, July 25.—The treasury statement shows about 30,000 persons to whom bonds under the government's popular loan will be allotted. All the persons offering to take $4,500 or less will receive bonds. The first shipments of the new bonds were made today.

CALLED ON ADJUTANT GENERAL CORBIN

Chief Justice Mills in Washington Tries to Have New Mexico "Rough Riders"
Sent to the Front.

To the Editor of the New Mexican.
Washington, D. C., July 20, 1898.—
Chief Justice William J. Mills again arrived in this city from Connecticut on his way to New Mexico. Chief Justice Mills and the New Mexican's correspondent called upon Adjutant General Corbin to plead with the authorities to at once send the last New Mexico troops, now under Major Horsey at Tampa, Fla., and the horses of the regiment, to Puerto Rico, or to the front. General Corbin said that every regiment asked for the same thing. That the military authorities could not always do justice as they would like to. That when an officer or man enlisted, if they faithfully observed orders, they were serving their country well wherever placed. But that he would be especially pleased to be able to comply with the request of Chief Justice Mills and the telegraphic request of Governor Otero. Then a call was made upon J. Addison Porter, the secretary to the president, and by engagement he lunched with Chief Justice Mills. He promised to do all he could to comply with the desires of Governor Otero and Chief Justice Mills.

The attorney of the United States court of private land claims, M. G. Reynolds, will leave here for St. Louis tomorrow night.
Chief Justice Mills left here last night. He will stop a day in Las Vegas and then proceed to Santa Fe to be present on the first day of the opening of the Territorial Supreme court.

SATURDAY NIGHT'S SHOOTING.

Antonio Tanos Wounded by Jose Gonzales y
Borrego—Latter Gave Himself Up, Claiming the Shooting Was Accidental.

Saturday night, between 8 and 9 o'clock, a shooting occurred in the southeast part of town, in which Antonio Tanos, a Syrian, was wounded by Jose Gonzales y Borrego. There are two accounts of the affair given, which are:

Antonio Tanos, the wounded man, who keeps a little general store on the outskirts of the city, says that Francisco Varela came into his place of business, and asked for 5 cents worth of tobacco on credit. Tanos refused to sell tobacco on any such terms and Varela went outside and told young Borrego about the matter. Borrego then entered the store, threw a nickel on the counter, telling Tanos to give Varela the tobacco, and at the same time drew a revolver and shot Tanos in the face, the ball entering the right side of his face, under the cheek bone. Tanos at once secured a warrant for Borrego's arrest, and was then taken to St. Vincent's hospital.

Jose Gonzales y Borrego, in his account, admits the tobacco transaction, but declares that the shooting was entirely accidental; that he did not draw the weapon with any intent to shoot, and that it was discharged in some un-

SINGULAR STATEMENT.

From Mrs. Rank to Mrs. Pinkham.

The following letter to Mrs. Pinkham from Mrs. M. RANK, No. 2,354
East Susquehanna Ave., Philadelphia,
Pa., is a remarkable statement of relief from utter discouragement. She says:

"I never can find words with which to thank you for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me.

"Some years ago I had womb trouble and doctored for a long time, not seeing any improvement. At times I would feel well enough, and other times was miserable. So it went on until last October, I felt something terrible creeping over me, I knew not what, but kept getting worse. I can hardly explain my feelings at that time. I was so depressed in spirits that I did not wish to live, although I had everything to live for. Had hysteria, was very nervous; could not sleep and was not safe to be left alone.

"Indeed, I thought I would lose my mind. No one knows what I endured. "I continued this way until the last of February, when I saw in a paper a testimonial of a lady whose case was similar to mine, and who had been cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I determined to try it, and felt better after the first dose. I continued taking it, and to-day am a well woman, and can say from my heart, 'Thank God for such a medicine.'"

Mrs. Pinkham invites all suffering women to write to her at Lynn, Mass., for advice. All such letters are seen and answered by women only.

TAOS NOTES.

Old Timer Joins Silent Majority—Postoffice
Matters—Road to Embudo Washed Out.

Special Correspondence to the New Mexican.
Taos, July 23, 1898.—A prominent and noted character has been removed from the county in the death of Rafael Vigil, in his 92nd year. He was identified with the stirring times of 50 years ago and was a distinguished man among his people when New Mexico was a Mexican territory.

The sleepy denizens of this quiet burg were stirred up by the local columns of the last issue of the Advertiser. Some of them were hunting "eye doctor" with blood in their eyes.

Postoffice matters are quieted down since the visit of Postoffice Inspector Thomas. In the language of a local leader of the opposition: "He inspected the people and not the postoffice." The world do move.

Elizabeth's loss is our gain. W. C. Whitescarver leaves there to open a hotel in Taos September 1. John Gysen leaves there to establish a paint business in Taos. Geo. Anderson leaves there to open a drugstore in Taos, succeeding Dr. L. S. Orton.

Dr. David Knapp, of Santa Fe, is visiting Taos for a few days.

It has rained every day for the last week and the heart of the farmer is glad.

The road to Embudo is impossible between here and there, below Cleonega, on account of the rains. Freight shipped there for our acquaintances has to be re-shipped to Tres Piedras, and the mail is packed with horses.

The crops in this favored spot are good, beyond all expectations.

MONDAY, JULY 25.

Major General Miles acts with energy and with vim and it looks as if success would crown his efforts. Well, he does not weigh quite as much as does General Shafter, and that is an advantage to be sure.

Since the surrender of Santiago, Secretary Alger thinks he has heard a call to the presidency, and the presidential bee has been buzzing in his bonnet pretty lively. It is safe to say that the secretary's bee is of the stay-at-home kind and will gather no honey from other men's pastures.

Emperor William has informed the United States that he has lost nothing in the Philippine Islands and will make no search for what some other country has lost. Probably the manner in which Admiral Dewey has been picking up lost opportunities around Manila had much to do with settling the matter with his majesty.

The abandonment of the project to hold a national convention in Cincinnati by the Peoples' or Populist party will cause no grief, except in the newspaper offices of Colorado. The molders of public opinion in the Centennial state will now have to organize a political party of their own, based on the solitary principle of discontent with everybody and everything.

Admiral Cervera was defeated and captured at Santiago, but since coming to the United States he has gained a signal victory. A Yankee girl, after taking a good look at the old gentleman declared: He's not a Spaniard. Why, with his white hair, blue eyes and pink cheeks he looks like a down east farmer. I like him. After an indorsement of that kind, even the Spanish will do him homage.

The man who quotes Washington's farewell address is not dead yet. He now insists that the United States must conclude peace with Spain, because the latter country is willing to concede the independence of Cuba. Of course he bases his opinion on what the Father of his Country said a century ago, and does not take into consideration that other questions have come up since the present war for freedom began.

In the sweet-by-and-bye this country may have more trouble with the so-called insurgents in Cuba and the Philippines than it ever had with the Spaniards, especially in the Philippines. From all accounts, that fellow, General Aguinaldo, who has just proclaimed himself dictator over the Philippine Islands and wears a gold collar with a gold whistle attached to it and a gold headed cane with a gold tassel, is an ass. And asses are tough customers in the Philippines as well as in this country.

The San Miguel county tax thieving ring, through its organ, our more or less esteemed contemporary over in Las Vegas, squeals loud and long. The New Mexican has touched the tax grabbing outfit in a very tender spot. Truth hurts, to be sure. Falseness, slanders and vilification on the part of the gang cannot prevail against truth, solemn truth. Hence the San Miguel county ring of official tax eaters yelps and the New Mexican goes along in the even tenor of its way, working for the best interests of the territory, giving the news and knowing the satisfaction of doing right. As far as the editor of our more or less esteemed contemporary is concerned, he is too small to be noticed for the present. The New Mexican is too busy, but will attend to that matter in due time.

Dollar Based on Gold.

Since the United States has become somewhat mixed up in the Philippine Islands the free silver papers have begun their usual misleading tactics concerning the value of silver when used as money metal. In one of these papers of recent date appeared the following deceptive paragraph:

What would our government do today if it were without that "50-cent" dollar? We are informed that the dollar of our fathers circulates very freely in the Philippine Islands at the rate of 100 cents and that the people there are most anxious to get hold of it, so much so that Admiral Dewey in his order for ammunition, wired over here, included a liberal supply of silver dollars.

worth only so much an ounce as bullion. The American silver dollar in intrinsic value is worth no more than the Spanish dollar; the difference in the standard upon which it is based alone makes the difference in its worth as money.

Further, the United States has no desire to do away with the use of silver as money, but a majority of the people do not propose to furnish a profitable market for the silver of the world at the expense of the credit of this country with inevitable national bankruptcy in the end. The free silverites, by the use of questionable argument, seek to impose the idea on the voters that the willingness of the people in the Philippines to take American silver dollars demonstrates conclusively the theory that all that is necessary to make money out of any old thing is for the United States to place its imprimatur upon it. It is the old flat-greenback craze under another name.

Let the United States remove all restrictions upon the use of paper and silver money, that is; remove the gold guarantee which is now back of all the circulating medium in use, and the people of the Philippine Islands and all other countries will be no more anxious to secure American silver dollars than they are to take the silver money of Spain. That is the situation, so far as silver and greenbacks are concerned, in a nutshell, and this the free silver papers know full well, but with the hopes of bolstering up their discredited cause they attempt to foist falsehood upon the voters as argument.

AN IMPORTANT DECISION.

Taxing Shares of Stock and Loans by Building and Loan Associations Would Be Double Taxation.
(Albuquerque Citizen.)

Judge Crumpacker rendered a decision today replying with interest to a great many of our citizens who are stockholders in our Building & Loan Association, which has contributed so greatly to the prosperity of our city. The territory claimed from the Co-operative Building & Loan Association taxes both on the shares of stock issued to its shareholders and also upon the loans it had made to its borrowing members, all the taxes claimed amounting to $9,000. The court held that to tax the shares and to tax the capital invested was double taxation and that inasmuch as the law required the shareholders to return the respective shares held by them for taxation, the association could not be taxed except upon its real estate. The association had already paid its real estate tax and therefore the judgment of the court was in favor of the defendant.

This is an important victory, as, if the association has been held to double taxation, it and all similar institutions would be compelled to go out of business, and in this particular instance such a result would be quite unfortunate, for it is without doubt the case that this association has been a great factor in our city's advancement.

The territory was represented by Mr. Finley and the association by Messrs. Collier & Marron.

THE ROSWELL MILITARY INSTITUTE.

A First-Class School That Should Be Well Patronized by the People of New Mexico.
(Las Vegas Optic.)

It is not known to all the people of New Mexico that the territory has a military school—a duly and properly equipped territorial institution, modeled after the best schools of the same class, in the older states.

A military school supplies not only a thorough grade of education, covering all the ground held in common by schools of different purposes, though leaning more to the scientific than the classical; but such a school has some things which give it a commanding claim to attention.

Among these we may mention the physical development which comes from regular and systematic military training. Too many American boys grow up without any attention whatever to the laws of their physical constitution. Stout-shouldered, narrow-chested, shambling in gait, awkward in carriage, without any idea of bodily symmetry or the requirements of bodily health, they reach manhood but caricatures upon what human beings should be. A military training in youth remedies these evils.

An upright carriage, a fully developed chest, proper breathing, graceful walking, personal cleanliness, neatness in dress—these are some of the benefits to be had from military training in youth. But there are others, even more important than these. The American boy is sadly lacking in respect for his seniors—his superiors in age or position. He has but little idea of system and routine, or of obeying instructions at certain times. Too many American boys grow up without any attention whatever to the laws of their physical constitution. Stout-shouldered, narrow-chested, shambling in gait, awkward in carriage, without any idea of bodily symmetry or the requirements of bodily health, they reach manhood but caricatures upon what human beings should be. A military training in youth remedies these evils.

Mrs. A. Lombardo and four children, of Albuquerque, have departed on an extended trip to Europe, visiting Switzerland and the Mediterranean country.

Deputy United States Marshal Cipriano Roca, of Socorro, arrested V. Castillo for obstructing the mail. He will be tried before Commissioner Whiting at Albuquerque on Tuesday.

Mrs. H. R. Ray and daughter, Miss Ethel, have gone to Bland for a few days' visit with Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Meade.

Sulphur Hot Springs.

Many people from different parts of the territory are going to Sulphur Springs these days. Recent arrivals there are C. W. Dudrow and wife, of Santa Fe; Otis Kelly and Lee English, of Dolores; Phil Barber, of Bland, and Dick Hays, a conductor on the Santa Fe.

Las Vegas. Oscar Gaertchen, who until recently has had charge of the Harvey house at Edgewood, Kas., has taken charge of the Harvey dining hall here.

Jacob Block will not leave Las Vegas, though he intends to close out his mercantile interests here and engage in the sheep and wool business.

The Elks of Las Vegas contributed $100 to the normal school at that place, the donation to be used for equipping the school with furniture.

NEW MEXICO'S EXHIBIT AT OMAHA.

Splendidly Arranged—Attracting Great Attention and Lots of It.
Special Correspondence.

Santa Fe, July 23, 1898.—Few visitors to the Transmississippi exposition will fail to see the New Mexico mineral exhibit, which occupies a prominent place on the central aisle, in the eastern end of the mines and mining building. The commissioner in charge, Mr. J. J. Leeson, has had so much experience in collecting and arranging the various mineral products of our territory that he is fully alive to all the opportunities offered, and has succeeded in making a very creditable display.

There are more than 30 cases of minerals and ore specimens, including Mr. Leeson's private collection, which is probably the best extant. In the cases are to be found the richest gold and silver specimens, ores of copper, lead and zinc, numerous varieties of precious stones, finished and in the rough, and a large number of mineralogical curiosities.

Distributed on tables are samples of ores from south Santa Fe county, Cook's Peak, Silver City, Cochiti and Elizabethtown; gold bearing sands from Hillsboro and the Jicarillas, coal from the Maxwell grant, sandstone from Las Vegas and marble from White Oaks.

The exhibit occupies at least twice as much floor space as that of any other state or territory, and in richness and variety of its integral parts is surpassed by none. Indeed, Mr. Leeson is so well provided with specimens that he jocularly has offered to lend a few full cases to neighboring exhibitors who are less fortunate.

Because of the difficulty in obtaining space in the liberal arts building it is here that are found exhibits of the work of our public schools, that coming from Gallup and the kindergarten at Santa Fe being especially notable. A feature that catches the eyes of all visitors is the old bell from Socorro, which according to an interesting legend, was cast in 1379 of a mixture of gold, silver and copper melted together. This old bell was the first one rung on the American continent. Among other relics is an interesting group of stone idols, worshipped by people of a pre-historic age.

WHITE OAKS NEWS.

Delegate Ferguson's Visit to That Prosperous Mining Camp—Soldiers' Aid Society—Personal Notes.
Special Correspondence New Mexican.

White Oaks, N. M., July 22, 1898.—Delegate H. B. Ferguson arrived in White Oaks Tuesday of this week. He came especially to look after his interests in the Old Abe mine. Mr. Ferguson preferred to spend his brief stay here in recuperative rest, for which the perfect quiet and untroubled climate of White Oaks is so favorable, but he yielded to the earnest solicitation of friends for a speech. Last night he spoke in Bonnell hall to a large audience, many of whom came in from adjacent ranches. The address was eminently non-partisan. He spoke of his work in congress for New Mexico, and of obliteration of party lines and the complete unification of all sections in dealing with war measures. He talked of the demonstrations upon the adamant of the Spanish army, showed the complete fellowship and unity existing between the north and south. The speech was most enthusiastically received by the audience. The hall was beautifully decorated in flags and bunting.

The Old Abe mine is producing some of its finest ore from down below the 900 foot level. An ore body was struck that runs as high as $350 to the ton. Hotel Ozanne has been full to overflowing with transients for the past two weeks. This hostelry is a surprise to travelers coming to White Oaks on account of its up to date appointments and accommodations. Business, generally, is good and everybody cheerful and hopeful.

Railroad prospects are brightening and those who are waiting for more than a decade with unwavering faith in the "grand future for White Oaks" begin to feel a slackening of the tentative uncertainty.

The Soldier's Aid Society of White Oaks gave a cake walk dance last week. The proceeds are to be applied to furnishing comforts for Company A, in which our White Oaks soldier contingent is located. An incident occurred on the eve of their departure from White Oaks which shows the true grit of one of the boys. His sweetheart was away at school when he decided to enlist. On the evening before they were to leave White Oaks, he received word that she had returned home and wanted to see him before he left for the army. About 11 o'clock p. m., after the farewell reception tendered the boys, this young man rode 15 miles to his sweetheart's home and was back in White Oaks to start at 7 o'clock next morning on the trip across country to the railroad station.

Miss Perry, of Alabama, is visiting her grand parents, Captain and Mrs. Hempstead. She will spend the summer here. Mrs. Bonney and children, of Roswell, are spending the summer with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Lund, of this place.

J. E. Wharton has taken his family out on his ranch, about 12 miles distant, for a summer outing.

HOW THE WAR ENDED

TRUE HISTORY OF THE GREAT SPANISH-AMERICAN CONFLICT.

General Weyler, Spaniard Against His Will, Deserts to the Enemy and Vigorously Proceeds to Get Even, Wherein He Succeeds Until the Powers Intervene.

The fighting had been noisy and the engagements had followed one another in close succession. The Americans had triumphed at every clash of arms. The Spaniards had been whipped, chased, humiliated, marched as captives and treated with every kind of ignominy. All the usual courtesies of civilized warfare had been abandoned.

"We surrender!" The commander of the Spanish forces would make this announcement. Immediately the entire force of Americans would pounce upon the Spaniards, throwing them to the ground and "wallowing" them in the most unilitary fashion. This barbarous treatment of the prisoners of war showed how bloodthirsty the Americans had become.

One might suppose that after three days of victory the soldiers would be sated with revenge, but they were not. They were simply sighing for other Spaniards to conquer.

A difficulty had arisen. It seemed probable that the war would have to end. The supply of Spaniards was about exhausted. Various soldiers of the enemy had marched over to the camps of the stars and stripes, voluntarily renouncing their own flag. The whole Spanish army had been anxious from the first to swear allegiance to the American flag, but they had been told that unless there was a Spanish army there couldn't be any war. They had been kept in line by threats, entreaties and occasional presents of gun and marbles.

At intervals they would be compelled to mobilize under the command of a small fraction of the army, but they had been told that unless there was a Spanish army there couldn't be any war. They had been kept in line by threats, entreaties and occasional presents of gun and marbles.

At intervals they would be compelled to mobilize under the command of a small fraction of the army, but they had been told that unless there was a Spanish army there couldn't be any war. They had been kept in line by threats, entreaties and occasional presents of gun and marbles.

The Spanish army was in a bad way. With its desecration and surrender to the enemy the entire fighting force was reduced to the following:

General Weyler—Impersonated by a strange boy in a sailor suit, who did not know of the trouble that awaited him. The Army—Represented by a very small boy who had been coerced into the Spanish service by his elder brother.

These two stood backed up against a tight board fence, awaiting with apprehension an attack from 18 wildly enthusiastic Americans who were in battle array. The frightened boy led the charge. General Weyler stood, dazed and inactive, to receive the pokes from a dozen wooden swords, but the Spanish army fled, with the frightened boy in full pursuit.

Up an alley and across a vacant lot retreated the Spanish forces, the frightened boy following after and gaining at every step. He shouted as he ran, for he was burning with lust for vengeance. He remembered the blowing up of the Maine and the starving of the Cubans and all the insults offered to his country—to say nothing of what he had suffered for three

When the Spanish army yielded, the frightened boy jumped on top of it, shaking it by the collar, kneading and pounding with his fists and sitting down hard occasionally like a man trying a springy cushion.

Then there arose such walling and frantic appeals for mercy and long drawn howls that every word and anxious mother around that corner was brought up standing.

General Grant was getting his last fill of vengeance something smote him on the side of the head, and he saw a million of green, blue and yellow stars. A hand clutched him by the collar, and he was lifted and sent sprawling. It was the mother of the Spanish army. The powers had intervened.—Chicago Record.

Soldiers Sing "God Save the Queen."

In Tampa, Fla., the other day American soldiers did a thing that would have raised a protest a year ago. They joined in singing "God Save the Queen" in honor of Victoria's birthday. It is really astonishing how sentiment has changed since England has been so sympathized with the United States in our war with Spain. Radical changes in the relations of nations are no more wonderful, however, than the marked changes in individuals who are restored to health by that great medicine, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. It is no unusual thing for people who are thin, weakly and all run down to show a marked improvement in a few weeks after taking this medicine, which overcomes nearly every known disease arising from a disordered stomach.

They Need Must See to Sew.

Mrs. Styles—Is your husband worried about business during these war times? Mrs. Rich—No indeed, he thinks the war will help his business. He is interested in a gas company, you know, and he thinks there will be so many young men to war that there will be no more occasion for turning down the parlor lights every night.

"I have used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in my family for years and always with good results," says Mr. W. B. Cooper of El Rio, Cal. "For small children we find it especially effective." For sale by A. C. Ireland.

Notes of Table Etiquette.

When dining out do not ask to be helped to the same dish twice; try always to be self-reliant and help yourself. Do not eat your meat into bits before you begin to eat. Cut it as you eat it. Do not eat it without cutting it as you should avoid wounding your hostess feelings as far as possible.

"During the hot weather last summer I had a severe attack of cholera morbus, necessitating my leaving my business," says Mr. C. A. Hare, of Hare Bros., Cincinnati, Ohio. "After taking two or three doses of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy I was completely relieved and in a few hours was able to resume my work in the store. I sincerely recommend it to any one afflicted with stomach or bowel trouble." For sale by A. C. Ireland.

A Martyr to Art.

My wife and I are not on speaking terms. Fall out about the war? No! I didn't mind her taking bad photographs of me, but when she said she was going to make a plaster cast of me I struck.

Persons troubled with diarrhoea will be interested in the experience of Mr. W. M. Bush, clerk of Hotel Dorrance, Providence, R. I. He says: "For several years I have been almost a constant sufferer from diarrhoea, the frequent attacks completely prostrating me and rendering me unfit for my duties at this hotel. About two years ago a traveling salesman kindly gave me a small bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. Much to my surprise and delight its effects were immediate. Whenever I felt symptoms of the disease I would fortify myself against attack with a few doses of this valuable remedy. The result has been very satisfactory and almost complete relief from the affliction." For sale by A. C. Ireland.

As It Is Spoken.

Farmer Scroggs—Hard times must have struck city folks. Farmer Binks—Dew tell! Farmer Scroggs—They are having dinner in the evening and doing 'thout supper.

Our baby has been continually troubled with colic and cholera infantum since his birth, and all that we could do for him did not seem to give more than temporary relief, until we tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. Since giving that remedy he has not been troubled. We want to give you this testimonial as an evidence of our gratitude, not that you need it to advertise your meritorious remedy.—G. M. Law, Keokuk, Iowa. For sale by A. C. Ireland.

Suburban Exercise.

You raise flowers? Of course. Then you don't raise chickens? Yes; I hoist them over the fence every day.

He turned suddenly toward her and tried to see her face, which she turned away.

"This explains it," he thought. "It is evidently my ladylove's intention to shock me—to keep me from declaring my love. It is a good hint, but faint heart never won fair lady, and if she does not love any one else I will win her." So he drew a little nearer and said in low and tender tones, "Rose, do you guess the subject on which we spoke?"

"No; haven't the least idea," she answered.

"May I tell you?" bending forward. "Oh, no, no!" she cried, springing to her feet hurriedly.

Id like to be as vain as that man Timmins. Timmins is a little vain. I do believe that he believes that if he jumped into the sea there would be a whole where he went in.

IT MATTERS NOT.

Living, I have not sued you for a smile; Dying, I do not ask you for a tear; For that night other hapless hearts beguile, And this to death's self make you all too dear.

And some will give a look, and some a touch, And some a word, albeit 'twere but rebuff, But none of these for me—each were too much, Too much in faith, and yet not half enough.

As I pass the threshold of your door As proud and poor, dead, as in life I passed, Your scorn can do no less, your love no more, From both or either I am safe at last.

A MAID'S MOOD.

Rose Dare was the petted darling of a large circle of friends, both male and female, for, strange to say, she was greatly admired by both sexes. She was not rich, but that did not prevent many lovers of all sorts and conditions coming to woo, but to Rose they were all the same, and she gave them very little encouragement except a smile at odd times for which they were evidently thankful. But it was not intended by her poor but fond parents to allow her to lose the freshness of youth without in some way settling her future.

She was to marry young—that had been decided long ago. She had rare beauty, and while she maintained that anything was possible.

"This is the last time I shall aid you in any way to obtain a suitable husband," said Mr. Dare one day angrily. "All my efforts in the past have been useless, but you ought not, in fairness to your mother and myself, to go on for ever like this. I cannot afford to keep you in dress and falls such as you like much longer, for year by year, as you know, the value of our property is decreasing, and what the end of it will be heaven only knows."

"But, dad, I do not want a husband. I do not want to marry yet," answered Rose, her pretty lips pouting.

"But you have said that for the last three years. Now, my dear child, do listen to reason."

"But, dad, I do not love Harold Rodney."

"Do you love any one else?"

"No."

"Then, my child, love will come. Now do not let this excellent chance go by. You know how hard your mother has worked to entertain him and what an expense his visit has been. Now run away, child, and no more nonsense."

Mr. Dare waved his hand toward the door with an air of a pasha and a look on his face that forebode further conversation.

Rose wandered out into the sunshine, her white dress and childish pink sash looking fresh as the morning itself.

She sighed as she went nevertheless. The sun had no charm for her that day, and, strange to say, her dress gave her no delight either, although it was new, and a very pretty one, too, dotted with much pleasure and pride an hour before.

"I wish I was like 'Alice in Wonderland,'" she thought, "so that I could change my appearance by growing too big or too small for my dresses, so that I should look a sight; for then perhaps Mr. Rodney would not propose. That would serve dad right."

A sudden thought seemed to enter her head at that moment, and with a merry twinkle in her eye and mischief lurking in the dimple in her cheek she hurriedly returned to her house again, and ascended to her room, from which she came forth half an hour later looking a different Rose altogether.

"Let him propose now if he can," she murmured. "As he spoke to me last night, I suppose he means to do it today."

She smiled a satisfied smile as she turned her head to view the hang of the back of her skirt. Presently from amid the trees she smelled the perfume of a cigar and made straight for the place whence she guessed the aroma came.

She walked very strangely too. Perhaps something hurt her foot, and her boots looked extremely large for such a small, dainty body to wear.

"Good morning," she said, with a drawl. "Doesn't the weather make one lazy? Too lazy to wash oneself today."

"Good morning," answered Harold Rodney, allowing his eyes to wander from her head to her heels with widest astonishment and pain mingled. "It is rather warm," he continued as he threw his cigar into the hedge and proceeded to seat himself upon a fallen tree, looking the picture of a healthy, handsome English gentleman.

"You are out early, are you not?" she asked, seating herself beside him and thrusting into sight a boot with half the button undone.

An amused smile rested on his face, but he did not let her see it, and, indeed, it was hard not to laugh, for Rose had on an old gray dress too small for her, a dirty ribbon tied around her neck, and another of a different color around her hair. Her hat was a green one which had seen some hard winter weather, and her boots were her mother's.

"What in the world does it mean?" thought Harold, for he had seen her go out before in her fresh white gown and had followed her, hoping to speak to her about it. But he could not find her.

"This Rose was not the dainty maiden he had seen there."

"Yes," he answered, "I was restless and unsettled, so I came here to look for you."

"For me?" Rose exclaimed, looking rather frightened, clutching at the trim of her hat with hands covered with white cotton gloves which had, by the look of them, been used for fruit picking.

"Yes," he answered, "I wanted you to talk me into a better frame of mind. I—I can't talk. I never do. At least I am generally considered rather silly as a conversationalist of any sort."

"Indeed! Since when, Miss Rose?" he inquired.

"Oh, always," she answered, moving her arm so that a hole in the sleeve could be seen.

"I think I must differ with you, for ever since I have been here your conversation has been charming."

"Ah, I expect that was after dinner," she said.

"After dinner?" he exclaimed in a surprised tone.

"Yes, I generally wake up a bit then, you know."

He gazed at her for a moment trying to grasp her meaning. Her whole behavior was strange, but even this did not dispel the vision of the other Rose—the Rose he loved and hoped to make his wife. So, glancing away from her so as not to be disturbed by her appearance, he said slowly:

"I spoke to your father last night upon a subject that has given me a good deal of food for reflection lately."

"Yes, he told me, I mean—did you?" she stammered.

He turned suddenly toward her and tried to see her face, which she turned away.

"This explains it," he thought. "It is evidently my ladylove's intention to shock me—to keep me from declaring my love. It is a good hint, but faint heart never won fair lady, and if she does not love any one else I will win her."

So he drew a little nearer and said in low and tender tones, "Rose, do you guess the subject on which we spoke?"

"No; haven't the least idea," she answered.

"May I tell you?" bending forward. "Oh, no, no!" she cried, springing to her feet hurriedly.

"Why not, dear?" he said. "Rosie, darling, I must tell you."

He arose and stood before her, and certainly she mischievously in his eyes equalled hers as he continued, "For you look so very sweet today."

"I look sweet?" she cried in a dazed sort of way.

"Yes, Rosie—always sweet to me. Won't you marry me, dear, and make my happiness perfect?"

"No, no, I cannot! What must I say?"

"Say 'Yes, Harold, I will marry you.'"

"But I do not love you."

"Do you love any one else?"

"No, of course not."

"Then why not give yourself to me, dear, for I love you dearly?"

"I cannot," she commenced; then, suddenly remembering the conversation with her father, she continued, "I suppose I must say 'Yes,' with a frown."

"But that, Rosie, will not do. I want your love."

"Why do you worry me? You know I don't love you."

"My dear, what has your father said? Did he tell you I had spoken to him about you, and that I wished to make you my wife?"

"Yes."

"And what else, dear?"

"He said I ought to marry you, for you are rich, and he—"

Rose got no further; but, hiding her face with her hands, began to cry pitifully. "Did he want you to marry me even if you did not love me?"

"Yes," her lips were trembling, and the efforts she made to control the sobs were almost more than the man could bear.

How he longed to take her in his arms and comfort her!

He looked quite aged and worn as he stood there battling with himself and thinking, "Shall I marry her and chance gaining her love or go away and try and forget her?"

The hungry, sorrowful pain would be as bad for him either way, and if he thought of her happiness he must leave her.

The victory soon came; the better part of his love rose uppermost. Just then he thought of what would be the best for her, so, taking her hand in his and gently stroking her dainty fingers, he said in tender tones:

"And this is why you dressed so strangely. If you only knew how much I loved you, you would know that whatever you wore would still be as dear to me, still my little rosebud."

Rose hung her head. How awfully silly she must be to find out so easily!

"There, dear," he said presently. "Forget this, and be your own little hearted pretty girl again. I shall not offend any more."

"But dad?" Rose exclaimed.

"He need never know. I will go away tomorrow morning on most important business. You understand, dear?"

"Oh, thank you, thank you!" she said, and she pressed his hand for a moment to her breast in sheer thankfulness.

She did not know how hard it was for Harold Rodney not to take her in his arms there and then and say he could not give her up, come what would.

He went, as he promised, next day, much to Mr. Dare's disgust, for he felt sure he had not spoken to Rose. She would not be so silly as to send him away after what he had said to her.

Only two or three days passed before Rose found that she missed her gray-eyed, tender lover, missed his care and attention, and the place seemed very lonely.

Before a month had passed she wished him back again, but the knowledge that she loved him did not fully develop until she heard one day that he was married.

Then it came suddenly to her with overwhelming force. Then she cried and called herself naughty naught and longed and longed that she could live the past year over again.

How many of us, I wonder, have done that? But it was no good. The love of her life had come and gone so quickly that she had hardly time to recognize the fact.

She was sitting one day on the same tree where he had told his love, trying to recall every look and word he had uttered to her there, and unbidden the tears gathered in her eyes and presently overflowed and fell one by one from her clasped hands.

"Oh, I wish—I wish he were here!" she murmured sorrowfully.

"Who?" inquired a voice she knew so well.

"Some one who is not worth a thought."

"Rose, it was not I?"

"You—a married man?" with horror.

"You have been mistaken!" he said.

"I am not married, nor am I likely to be, unless—"

He paused, putting forth his hand yearningly.

"Not married?" she cried. "Unless—"

"Unless you love me and will marry me, dear. I was going away tomorrow, far away—to try and forget, and come down today to get a last glimpse of you to carry away with me; something for my heart to feed on, but now—"

"Now?" she echoed.

"Will you, dear?"

"Yes,"—Princess.

Scriptural Names.

We smile at such Puritan names as "Praise God Barebones" and "Hew Agag In Pieces Before the Lord Smith."

The Moors, it is said, give similar names, but of course the phrases are chosen from the Koran. They are quite as singular as were the Puritan names, and are said often to be as bad a fit. Some examples of these names are given by Mr. George D. Cowan.

More than one owner of false weights of our acquaintance rejoices in the title "Slave of the Truthworthy." A former governor of Naha—detested throughout the province for his cruelty and extortion—answered to the name "The Blessed One."

There is, too, in Mogador a loafer whose fiery eyes, dark skin, strong language and drunken habits have gained for him on the English steamers, where he now and then works, the sobriquet "Devil," whereas in his family circle and among the faithful he is styled "Pilgrim of Salvation."

Brains and Climate.

The weight of a man's brain has nothing to do with his mental power. It is a question of climate, not of intellect. The colder the climate the greater the size of the brain.

FROM COMPANY "C"

Among the Volunteers.

MEASURED FOR UNIFORMS

Santa Fe Company the Best Drilled—
No Passes—Money Scarce—Five Dollar Bills As Big As An Army Blanket.

Special to the New Mexican.

Whipple Barracks, July 23.—The boys of Company C have settled down to the routine of barracks life in earnest, and the utopian dreams of the "brave sojourners" are at an end. It is quite different from anticipated results, and while reports of an early move to some scene of action are heard daily and listened to hopefully, they are generally discredited. All are anxious to see service and if the company is forced to occupy some frontier post, as now seems probable, the disappointment will be great.

The commander of the post refuses to issue passes for a greater length of time than five hours, on the plea that an order to move is expected at any time. Camp utensils have been distributed and measurements taken for clothing. However, these preparations may signify nothing.

A baseball team has been organized by members of the company. Lieutenant Otero, manager, donated the necessary paraphernalia for operations. The bundle of NEW MEXICAN'S containing the write up "Off For Service," lasted about as long as a snowball would in a Sahara. When the portion of Colonel Frost's letter, relative to gratuitous distribution was read, the boys expressed all manner of gratitude and appreciation. The edict was issued immediately that the correspondent devote the time necessary for regular correspondence. The penalty for non-compliance is an aerial ride on the back of a bucking blanket. Verily, the duties of a New Mexican war correspondent devolve heavily.

The "grub" is improving daily, but there is room for plenty of it—grub and improvement. For the past week the little gray "strings" furnished by the Santa Fe ladies have protected an aching head and flapped idly against the spinal columns of the recruits. One of the boys avers that he fed his ration to a canary bird and starved it to death, but that state of affairs is rapidly improving and plenty of good, wholesome food is promised in the future.

From four to five hours drill is engaged in daily. Swollen, blistered and sore feet are prominent. Washington's army in Valley Forge did not expose worse foot-ures. ("Das one yoke").

Some days every gust of wind seems a hot breath of air from a furnace. Stomachmen here feed their hens cracked bolle to prevent them from laying hard boiled eggs. (Yoke No. 2—somewhat ancient).

There are but few cases of sickness. Change of climate, food and water occasion attacks of vertigo and once in a while a recruit topples over while standing at attention. No serious results are attached to such cases. Gout, dyspepsia, etc., are rare indeed. Soldier fare is not so conducive to such ailments as some people may imagine. The delicate looking fellows are all improving rapidly and none of them have been on the sick report. Corporal Hurt and Detlebach and Goldoft, whom it was thought "roughing it," would agree with, are about the most healthy, lively and cheerful boys in the command. Plenty of exercise, plain food and regular hours are furnishing weight, flesh and muscle.

The boys of company C are ready to do anything. No serious fight has disturbed the calm serenity of their domestic felicity, and cleanliness is observed with rigidity. No subjects for the guard house have been furnished from their quarters. The only disturbance worthy of distinction was raised when some unprincipled vandal, with malice aforethought and kleptomaniacal tastes, stole Sergeant Omerod's pajama suit.

Company C is the best drilled body of men in the camp and is the only company which attends dress parade in coats.

Ladies are partial to their quarters. In fact, the boys present such a neat appearance that it became necessary to detail Sergeants Pearce, and Ormerod, Corporal Robinson and Privates Helm, Allen and others, to keep ladies away from the barracks.

The nocturnal perambulations of Private Pat Miller furnish food for considerable amusement. He gets some exceptionally peculiar ideas in his head, but his most startling exhibition occurred night before last, when he was found in the center of the squad room lustily calling for the company jeweler to clean the wheels in his head.

The Albuquerque company, sent 21 men to the hospital on the 24th of this week. Those not addicted to the baleful influences of drinking water, were in the immune class. They immediately formed a mission school and opened services with a corkscrew, and things went on smoothly until the choir sang "Wash My Sins Away." The heavens became densely overcast with rainclouds and the mission fearing another flood visitation, surrendered its charter and retired from business.

It is not known whether the Albuquerque ladies sent their boys the mustard, towels, napkins and toilet soap, called for in the requisition, but if they do not arrive this week, the commissary sergeant will probably issue them an extra supply of mince pies and "butter tickets." The Manila flavored toilet soap is needed to wash the boys ashore on the Philippines.

Sergeant Gutterman is the hardest worker in the camp. His previous army experience makes him invaluable to the company and he is continually on the hustle, looking after matters tending to a higher degree of efficiency in each department. He has a large fund of bear stories at command from which he draws occasionally for the entertainment of the boys.

Money is scarce in the quarters. A $5 bill looks as large as an army blanket, and nearly everyone is looking for "angels."

Vaccination occurs today. Company C will take its medicine at 4 o'clock. Albuquerque has furnished one insane patient to the guard house. His hobby is "free silver," and he devotes his spare time in exemplifying the object lessons contained in his creed. It is not known whether he will be sent to some government insane asylum or transferred to Colonel Bryan's regiment.

A PRACTICAL MAN'S EXPERIENCE.

The Fruit Canning and Evaporating Industry Will Do Well in This City.

The New Mexican has several times alluded to the presence in Santa Fe of Mr. F. J. Gleason, of Michigan, who has been induced to come here by the Fruit Company in order that they may have the benefit of his experience and advice.

Mr. Gleason is a thoroughly practical man, who talks straight facts without any flourishes, and yesterday a representative of the New Mexican interviewed him in order to present some matters of large local importance to the people of this vicinity. In answer to a question Mr. Gleason said:

"I have had considerable experience in these fruit matters, having been engaged in the business for 19 years at David, Clinton county, Mich. My father and myself commenced in a moderate way on a farm, with an evaporator and a cider mill; then after three years we moved into the town, adjoining the railroad track so as to have facilities for transportation, and there we erected a building about 100 by 100 feet, and added three new evaporators and larger press, and we ran with those till 1892. We then put in two of the largest presses that are made, each having a capacity of about 2,000 bushels a day, and added five more evaporators and enlarged the building generally. Among other improvements we erected an apple house 60x40 feet for the storage of cider apples; built a cider mill 60x75 feet in size, put up new boilers and engine and added a cooper shop, in which 20 men are regularly employed. We now ship about two carloads of cider a day during the whole season. In all our experience we have always found it more difficult in finding a ready sale for a good article at all times.

"We are now running nine evaporators and use up about 1,400 bushels of fruit a day in that way. In 1896 we handled 450,000 bushels of apples and other fruits in evaporating and the manufacture of cider. In all our experience we have always taken all the fruit offered and have never had any difficulty in finding a market.

"We employ about 150 hands in the business. The business has built itself up entirely. We started without capital, and all enlargements and improvements have been paid for out of the profits.

"From my observation since I have been here, and I have occupied myself in examining into the climate and fruit product carefully, I see no reason why a business of this character should not be very successful here. It would naturally compare in a moderate way with the business in other sections, and there is no doubt that the business will take care of itself here, and pay for all enlargements and improvements exactly as it has done with us. What you need is first rate modern appliances, and to manufacture a first class article. Then you have no trouble in finding a market. Care and energy are sure to bring success. I have recommended to the Fruit Company that they commence with one Williams' evaporator and a modern cider plant, and with your fine fruit and near by market, they cannot fail to do well. If the business is properly attended to, we ship part of our product to Denver, over 1,000 miles, and you can get your there much more easily."

Ladies' shirt waists, belts and remnant stock of neckties below cost. Miss A. Mugler.

Arrest of F. M. Johnson.

Saturday night F. M. Johnson, of Las Vegas, was arrested in this city by City Marshal Gallegos, on telegrams received from the sheriff of San Miguel and taken back to Las Vegas by the marshal. Johnson was formerly the manager of the Harvey house in Las Vegas, leaving that position to become proprietor of the Antlers saloon. He became indebted to the merchants in that place in various sums amounting to $800, and it is claimed that he organized and put into execution a bogus hold-up of his saloon Friday night in which he appeared to lose about $1,000. Saturday he sold his business to Shan Roads, and came to Santa Fe that evening, where he was apprehended. On reaching Las Vegas yesterday morning, through the efforts of Captain L. C. Fort, he turned over all the money he had to his creditors, and there the matter rests for the present.
