Chamber of Deputies Turned Into a Pandemonium Involving a Fight with the Police.

CAVALRY DISPERSED MOB

Temple of Diana Uproar at Ephesus Rivalled—France and the Army Cheered—Jews Denounced—Minister of War Gets Mad and Quits.

Paris, Oct. 25.—Strong bodies of police were stationed in the neighborhood of the Bourbon and Palace de La Concorde today to prevent any projected demonstrations at the opening of the chamber of deputies. The progressives and Republicans decided not to support the government's internal policy, but to uphold its foreign policy. There was considerable disorder about the approaches to the Palace Bourbon when M. Deroude, M. Milleville and other deputies arrived, accompanied by supporters. Members of the League of Patriots shouted "Vive France!" The guards republican were obliged to clear a passage, and conflict with the police ensued, in which the anti-Semites injured a commissary of the police. M. Guerin, president of the Anti-Semitic League, was arrested. When M. Drumont, an anti-Semitic leader, arrived, there were further disturbances, with cries, "Down with the Jews!" and cheering for France. Cuirassiers dispersed the mob.

Session of the chamber of deputies was no sooner opened than M. Deroude made a violent attack upon the minister of war, General Chanoinne, whereupon the latter declared he was of the same opinion as his predecessor, referring to the question of reopening the Dreyfus case. The remark was greeted with cheers and protests, the uproar lasting five minutes. When General Chanoinne was about to resume speaking, he asserted that he was the guardian of the army's honor and concluded, angrily: "I place in your hands the trust I received, and I tender my resignation in this tribune." The announcement was received with loud cheering. General Chanoinne then left the chamber. Premier Brisson ascended the tribune and was greeted with shouts of "Resign!" while the Leftists cheered him lustily.

M. Brisson said that General Chanoinne's declaration was a complete surprise to him, as the general had been present at a meeting which decided to submit the documents in the Dreyfus case to the court of cassation. The general did not raise any objection. The premier said the government was fully determined to uphold the civil power as against the military. He asked a suspension of business in the chamber, which was granted. During the suspension M. Brisson went to the Elysee palace to communicate to President Faure the resignation of General Chanoinne.

A scrutiny of the vote upon the resolution calling on the government to end the "campaign of insult against the army," which M. Brisson, the premier, refused to accept, showed the government defeated. M. Berteaux moved a vote of confidence in Brisson, but it was rejected, 286 to 254.

They Have Plenary Powers.

Paris, Oct. 25.—The American commission was in session the whole afternoon, but their deliberations had no relation to the Cuban debt upon which the attitude of the United States has been strictly determined.

Our commissioners discussed the Philippine question today and decided upon the policy to follow. It is believed the American commission has full power to deal with the matter as they may judge best in the interests of the United States.

MURDER WILL OUT.

Crime 12 Years Old Laid Bare by Death Bed Confession of a Murderess—Arrests Made.

Washington Court House, O., Oct. 25.—Hannah West and Abraham Huffman have been bound over to the grand jury on the charge of murdering Louis Ball in this city 12 years ago by beheading him with a razor. On her death bed, Mrs. Anna Jeffries recently confessed that she held Ball's head while Huffman cut it off with a razor in Mrs. West's house, the blood flowing into a tub. Then the head and body were laid across a railroad track to create the impression that Ball had been killed by the cars.

LONDON STOCK EXCHANGE EXCITED.

Unsettled Feeling on Account of the Fashoda Trouble Gets English Market Into Congested Condition.

London, Oct. 25.—The stock market opened excitedly today. Consols for account opened at 107 1/2, a loss of 3/4 from yesterday's closing, and immediately dropped to 107. The rush to secure profits was arrested temporarily by execution orders from Paris to buy specialties; and under this support, consols rose to 107 1/2. The decline at opening was attributed to an unsettled feeling regarding the Fashoda trouble. The market is still wild and congested.

FIRE BRICK TRUST.

Syndicate with $12,000,000 Behind It Is Cornering the Fire Brick Trade of the Country.

Massillon, O., Oct. 25.—William G. Hipp, of the Massillon Fire Brick Company, has secured options on the plants of all the leading fire brick companies in this country, they will be purchased and operated by the trust. It is claimed there is $12,000,000 behind the scheme.

CHIEF OF ENGINEERS REPORT.

General Wilson States That American Sea Coast Cities Are Now Safe from All Attack by Sea.

Washington, Oct. 25.—The annual report of Brigadier General John M. Wilson, chief of engineers, U. S. A., has been made to the secretary of war. It details the preparations made for coast defense before and during the war, and says: "It may be confidentially asserted that the completion of projects upon which operations are in progress will practically insure safety to our principal harbors and sea coast cities from any attacks by sea. The estimated approximate cost of the engineer's work proposed is $55,000,000."

HAVING A GAY TIME.

Quaker City Has Forgotten Its Historical Staidness and May Now Be Said to Be on a Bust.

Philadelphia, Oct. 25.—The great peace jubilee is now fairly on, the first of three monster pageants, the naval review on the Delaware river occurring today. The city is crowded. Nine naval vessels anchored amid stream stretching out about two miles and below League Island navy yard 290 other steam vessels rendezvoused. The procession moved up the river past the anchored men-of-war.

Each man-of-war, as the yacht May, with Secretary Long aboard, came abreast, belched forth a salute of 17 guns.

War Sensations at Halifax.

Halifax, N. S., Oct. 25.—The British warships Pallas and Talbot arrived today from Bermuda. General Lord William Seymour, commander of the troops in British North America, will return from Ottawa, his visit having been cut short by the unusual activity in military and naval circles at this station.

Dry as a Charity Sermon.

Paris, Oct. 25.—The French yellow book dealing with the part France took in the Spanish American war, is published. It comprises 17 documents, and consists of a dry record of the exchange of dispatches with Madrid and Washington while arrangements were being made for mediation by France.

SANTA FE ROAD'S PURCHASE.

President Ripley Says, "We Knew a Good Thing When We Saw It," So He Took Up the Option.

Fresno, Calif., Oct. 25.—E. P. Ripley, president of the Santa Fe road, Paul L. Morton, second vice president, W. G. Nevin, general manager west of Albuquerque, W. R. Hodges, C. W. Higginson and James Dun have arrived at Fresno, accompanied by Captain Payson, W. B. Storey and A. D. Schindler, of the San Joaquin Valley road. President Ripley stated the trip had to do with the purchase of the Valley road, adding: "The road is ours; we have closed the deal. We were given an option and we knew a good thing when we saw it."

Mr. Ripley slightly modified this statement subsequently by stating the Santa Fe had decided to take up this option. Captain Payson, of the Valley road, however, states the Santa Fe has not yet accepted the option.

ANOTHER BATTLE AVERTED.

Insurgents Conclude Discretion the Better Part of Valor, and Withdraw As Requested by the American Commander.

Manila, Oct. 25.—The insurgents have peaceably withdrawn to the distance desired by the Americans except in Galocan a northern suburb of Manila. The 6th artillery will go to Galocan on Wednesday. It is thought there will be no opposition to this movement.

A WILD EXPRESS TRAIN.

Engineer's Head Crushed, and Train Rushes for 20 Miles at Midnight Without Any Hand on the Throttle.

Susquehanna, Pa., Oct. 25.—When the Erie night express train, east bound, arrived at this station last night, Engineer Henry Kingsley was found dead in the cab with his head badly crushed. After the train left Binghamton, 23 miles west of here, the engineer failed to give the usual signal at the crossing. Fireman Cohen noticed the whistle had not blown for this station, and going forward from the tender, found the engineer dead in his cab. The train had run at a terrific speed for 20 miles without an engineer.

There were over 200 passengers on board. It is supposed the engineer was hit by a water crane just east of Binghamton. The engine was what is known as a Woodton, which carries a cab forward of the fire box for the engineer or runner, while the fireman remains behind on the tender, where a roof projection from the back head of the boiler serves as a protection from storm and cinders. Consequently the fireman did not know the engineer was hurt until he went forward.

Lord Salisbury in Blue Book Checkmates Last French Move and Rather Leaves Mons, Parlez-vous in a Hole.

London, Oct. 25.—Interest today is centered in the Marquis of Salisbury's addition to the Fashoda correspondence contained in the publication of the British blue book. Conservative newspapers declare it dispels the idea spread by French Ambassador Baron De Courcel, that the premier is willing to negotiate the whole question; but the liberal and radical organs still consider the Marquis of Salisbury's attitude admits of negotiations promising a friendly arrangement. The entire press, however, scents the idea of the possession of Fashoda coming within the sphere of discussion. The Globe points out the significant announcement in General Kitchener's report that he sent gunboats south from Sebat towards Meshra-Er-Rok, the principal trading center of the Bahr-el-Ghazal region, with instructions to establish the necessary outposts and completed arrangements for the maintenance of these stations. "These movements," the Globe adds, "brings our position down to the 8th parallel, north latitude, and the valley of Bahr-el-Ghazal this moment is under the rule of the khedive. It will be interesting to see the effect of this revelation upon the French government."

An order has been received at Portsmouth to prepare all the ships in the fleet and reserve them for immediate mobilization. Eight additional warships commenced coaling this morning. Although not connected with war preparations, much attention has been attracted to a request received by the Clyde ship builders from the British admiralty for tenders to four new first class battle ships, a first class cruiser and 12 torpedo boat destroyers. The increased armament will make the battle ships, when ready for service, the most powerful vessels of their class afloat. They will have a speed of 19 knots.

Samuel Stevenson, who is under indictment in Eddy county for an assault with a deadly weapon and a fugitive from justice, has been located in Tarrant county, Texas, where he is under bond for some crime committed in that state, and Governor Otero has issued requisition papers for his return to New Mexico. Jesse Roscoe, of Eddy, has been designated as agent to present the papers to the governor of Texas and bring Stevenson back to stand trial in the District court for Eddy county.

Creeping Consumption

Do not think for a single moment that consumption will ever strike you a sudden blow. It does not come that way. It creeps its way along. First, you think it is a little cold; nothing but a little hacking cough; then a little loss in weight; then a harder cough; then the fever and the night sweats. The suddenness comes when you have a hemorrhage. Better stop the disease while it is yet creeping. You can do it with

POLITICAL GOSSIP.

The most encouraging reports from the southern counties reach the New Mexican from a political standpoint. In Sierra county even, two years ago strongly Pop, there is great dissatisfaction with the Democratic ticket, and Mr. Ferguson's Pretorian guards will have to hustle.

Mr. W. L. McClure has resigned from the Republican county ticket of Taos county as a nominee for county commissioner, and Mr. William M. Adair has been substituted in his stead. The Taos county ticket is sure to carry.

Mr. David Martinez has withdrawn as a nominee for representative on the Republican ticket for the Taos, Rio Arriba and San Juan district, and Mr. Frank Staplin, of Taos county, has been endorsed as such nominee.

Colonel J. Frank Chaves has returned from an electioneering trip through Lincoln county, where he did excellent work for the Republican ticket. He is at Los Lunas today.

Three Safe Precincts in Bernalillo County. E. A. Miera, the big general merchant and flour miller of Cuba, up in the Nacimiento mountains, drove into the city today and made a pleasant call at this office this afternoon. He is here on business and to attend the Republican convention, which will be held on Wednesday, October 26. He states that his section of Bernalillo county, which heretofore has been partially on the wrong side and the voters deceived as to their interests, will go almost to the man for the Republican ticket, and that Hon. Pedro Perca, for delegate to congress, will get a big majority in every precinct of the Nacimiento and Rio Puerco country.—Albuquerque Citizen.

A Las Vegas paper recently contained an item, that Hon. Sol Luna, of Las Lunas, and Hon. B. S. Rodey, of Albuquerque, had bolted the Republican party. Mr. Rodey addresses the New Mexican saying that the item is a first-class, unadulterated and gigantic fake and untrue in every word so far as he and Mr. Luna are concerned.

Word reaches the New Mexican that Judge Stephen R. Booth has withdrawn as a candidate on the Republican ticket for member of the house from Colfax county and Sheriff Marion Littrell will be substituted in his stead.

And still another independent ticket is being talked of for Colfax county. The more the merrier, seems to be the motto there.

Declines a Nomination on the Bernalillo Independent Ticket.

David C. de Baca, whom the soreheads nominated for probate judge at their convention last Saturday, sends a letter to the Citizen stating that the use of his name was unauthorized and that he does not propose to run for an office on a ticket that is against his interests in

The Peace Commission's Work.

The instructions to the peace commissioners before they started to Paris were not made public for obvious reasons, but from a high official comes the statement that this country will insist upon Spain yielding to every demand we make. She cannot do otherwise than give up eventually. She is like the sick man who is contending with the strong in business circles—almost powerless. It takes many years for nations to recover from weakness, but sick men can quickly regain health and strength by taking Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. There have been many bad cases of dyspepsia and indigestion cured by this medicine when it looked as though cure was impossible. The Bitters first put the stomach in order and bring about proper digestion of food.

What He Got.

Mr. Flohrwalker—Ah! Miss Cummings! Now that I have an opportunity, I wish to tell you that I love you; that my whole heart, my whole life is yours. What, oh! what more can a woman want?
Miss Cummings (who has just finished waiting on a customer)—Cash!—Puck.

Three Doctors in Consultation.

From Benjamin Franklin.
"When you are sick, what you like best is to be chosen for a medicine in the first place; what experience tells you is best, to be chosen in the second place; what reason (i. e., Theory) says is best is to be chosen in the last place. But if you can get Dr. Inclination, Dr. Experience and Dr. Reason to hold a consultation together, they will give you the best advice that can be taken."
When you have a bad cold Dr. Inclination would recommend Chamberlain's Cough Remedy because it is pleasant and safe to take. Dr. Experience would recommend it because it never fails to effect a speedy and permanent cure. Dr. Reason would recommend it because it is prepared on scientific principles, and acts on nature's plan in relieving the lungs, opening the secretions and restoring the system to a natural and healthy condition. TO A MAIDEN OF SIXTEEN.

I do not ask you from you
The qualities of a noble heart,
A mind whose thoughts are pure and true,
A tongue that speaks no venom'd dart,
A temper sweet or gentle mood,
Unselfishness or high endeavor—
I do not ask you to be good,
Sweet maid, or even to be "clever!"
I do not ask for poet's song,
For dreamer's high flights of mind,
For orator's eloquent fighting wrong—
Gifts all, no doubt, to you assigned;
I do not ask for theories now,
One's powers of comprehension tasking,
For wisdom or for wit from you
(There would not be much use in asking).
I do not ask you for the gift
All other gifts so far above,
I will be brave and make a shift
To live my life without your love—
Not mine to play a lover's part,
So, though the omission is distressing,
I do not ask you for your heart.
I only ask a minor blessing.

I do not ask you when we meet
To condescend to notice me,
But when kind fate affords that treat
Pray bear in mind this modest plea:
I do not ask you to sit still,
Though in your chair you always wriggle,
I'd have you do what ever you will,
I only ask you—not to giggle! —Punch.

THE REAL REASON.

I had arrived at Monte Carlo about 3 o'clock and after a late lunch set out in search of my friends the Vernys. I found Master Arthur, a serious minded young politician of 23, in his room at the hotel. He was completing an elaborate toilet and drinking champagne. "Aynsley!" he cried in surprise. "I thought you were in London."
"The spirit of restlessness," I explained. My eye dwelt for a moment on the champagne. "A little low, Arthur?"
He blushed. Arthur was the highly respectable son of an eminently respectable father, who was M. P. and other things.

He glanced at the clock, then rose and picked up his hat and gloves.
"A stroll!" I finished, with a grin.
He laughed nervously.
"Look here, Aynsley," he said, "you'll find the governor and Evelyn on the terrace. Do you mind if I run away now?"
I got up and laid a hand on his shoulder in a paternal fashion. "She is a woman in a thousand, Arthur. Au revoir and good luck!"

He blushed again—he was really a most nervous young man—and hurried away. I followed him out of the hotel, then strolled leisurely through the gardens and round to the terrace. I espied Mr. Verney and his daughter sitting almost immediately in the rear of the casino. I walked up to them.
"Well, 'pon my word!" cried Mr. Verney. A smile dimpled round Miss Verney's mouth as she took my hand. I explained lucidly how it was I came to leave London in so unexpected a fashion. "It envelopes us all," I finished, with a graceful wave of my hand toward the casino.

"Indeed," said Miss Verney politely. After a few minutes' conversation Mr. Verney pulled out his watch. "I'm very glad you came, Aynsley," he said, "as I left off last night in the midst of a little mathematical experiment with treble et quartette, and I thought that if you would kindly look after Evelyn I'd—"
"Delighted!" I said quickly. "I trust the experiment will be brought to a satisfactory conclusion."

As soon as he had taken his departure I glanced at Miss Verney. She was examining the handle of her parasol with some intentness. I made a mental note that white suited her admirably—in fact, better than any other girl of my acquaintance.
"Perfect weather," I remarked at length. She nodded in a preoccupied manner.

"I have been wondering," she said after a moment, "why you came here."
"Did you not hear me explain?" I began.
She smiled.
"Oh, yes, but—"
"Surely nothing further is needed. The attraction of Monte Carlo is world famed."
"I do not believe, Mr. Aynsley," she said deliberately, "that you have ever gambled in your life."
I tried another tack.
"Well, then, I'm rather delicate, and the chill, damp fogs of London are rather trying to an invalid."
Again Miss Verney laughed.
"How unsympathetic you are!"
"The deep sea fishing last winter must have been rather bad for you. No, Mr. Aynsley, I'm a clear sighted young person, and I can quite see what has brought you so suddenly to Monte Carlo."

"Well?" I said, with an air of indifference.
She played with the tassel on her parasol for a moment. Then she smiled.
"Mrs. Fairfax," she said at length. I laughed outright.
"How amusing! Nothing of the sort. The usual attraction, I assure you."
"Mrs. Fairfax?"
"Gambling—or invalid's natural aversion to chill, damp fogs!"
"Mrs. Fairfax!" repeated Miss Verney once again, with just a shade of emphasis.

I gave it up.
"A very charming person," I said.
"You admit it?" and her voice held a tiny note of triumph.
"Don't you?" I replied wonderingly.
"She is talented, pretty, agreeable and—"
"A widow," put in Miss Verney.
"Yes, but her husband was hardly more than an acquaintance. He went to India, you know, shortly after their marriage, and was killed. Do you not think her fascinating?"
"And I'm a lonely bachelor man!" I remarked apologetically.

She turned to me with a smile. "Forgive me," she said kindly, "for reminding you of your pitiful condition. I only meant to show you that I guessed and—"
"Has it reached that stage?" I glanced at the couple and noticed they were arm in arm.
"I believe so."
There was a slight pause. Miss Verney played with the tassel again.
"Then I suppose I must tender my congratulations?" she said at length.
"I believe it is customary among friends," I replied, with a glance at her. She had allowed her eyes to fall on the ground.
"You know she is very wealthy?" I added.
"You have been most fortunate in your endeavors," she replied in deliberate tones. "I trust you'll be very happy."
The couple were now opposite to where we were sitting. So engrossed were they in conversation that they had not noticed us. I felt an anticipatory shiver of enjoyment.
"I do not enter into the question," I said. "Look!"
She glanced up in surprise.
"Arthur and Mrs. Fairfax," she whispered.
"He is wrapped up in his studies again," I remarked. "I fancy he has taken the lady's eyes as his subject."
Miss Verney looked at me reproachfully.
"And you knew this all the time?"
"I'm afraid so. Arthur confided in me some months ago in London, and I have occasionally amused myself by helping him. Take the Melba night, for instance."
"Was that on Arthur's behalf?" she asked wonderingly.
I nodded. It occurred to me once again how extremely charming Miss Verney looked in white.
There was a silence for a minute or so. Arthur and Mrs. Fairfax passed out of sight.
"It wasn't the gambling," I remarked at length.
Miss Verney made no reply.
"Nor an invalid's aversion to the chill, damp fogs," I went on after a pause.
"Nor Mrs. Fairfax," she put in.
"No," I said slowly. "I came because I thought it just possible you might be pleased to see me."
There was another pause, and then I added:
"Are you?"
A smile crept round the corners of Miss Verney's mouth.
"Well, yes, I think I am," she said. "We see a good deal of one another now.—Gilbert Doyle in London Weekly Sun."

the reason for your sudden change of plans.

"Your intelligence is beyond reproach. But what made you think of Mrs. Fairfax?"
"My dear Mr. Aynsley," she laughed, "you forget last season."
I tried to recollect.
"The episode at the Cartons; the Mat-ba night at Covent Garden," she reminded gently.

"You take great interest in my welfare," I said with a laugh. "I am very glad to notice it," I added with a glance at her.

"By the way," I continued after a pause, "where is Arthur?"
"I never trouble about Arthur," she replied quickly, "he is so wrapped up in his books and studies that even here at Monte Carlo I see very little of him."
I was amused.

"You have nothing against Mrs. Fairfax?" I suggested.
"Nothing whatever," she replied frankly. "I like her immensely."
This helped matters, I thought.
"You think she will make a good wife?"

"Admirable," said Miss Verney, calmly surveying the bay. "Her experience will be invaluable."
I caught sight of a couple that had just appeared on the farther end of the terrace.
"You will come to the wedding?"
A slight tinge of color appeared on Miss Verney's cheeks as she turned to me.

"Has it reached that stage?" I glanced at the couple and noticed they were arm in arm.
"I believe so."

There was a slight pause. Miss Verney played with the tassel again.

McCoey Had Enough.

Here is a story told by Parson Davies on Kid McCoy, the pugilist, as given in the Wilmington Sun:
"Kid McCoy attracted the attention of a crowd of sportsmen at the Gilsey House," says Parson, "and it was decided to introduce Lavenia Charmion, a trapeze performer and a muscular phenomenon, to him as a woman who wished to learn boxing. McCoy was delighted."
"The meeting took place, and the Kid told Charmion to take a position, in which of course she was very awkward. That is picturesque, but not pugilistically correct," he remarked, with a smile of superior knowledge. "Now," he said, as she adjusted her arms, "let go with your left."
"It was a chop blow and made the air whiz, as the first attempt narrowly missed the Kid's face. He looked apprehensive and remarked: 'You have steam enough, but your execution is faulty. Now, hit out straight and let your body go with the blow.'"
"The fist brought up suddenly at about the third button of McCoy's waistcoat. 'That is better,' gasped the Kid. 'That will do for the first lesson. Come again tomorrow, and we'll try the big gloves.'"
"Oh, how nice," said Charmion. "Do you know, I never had but one chance to box with a man. That was when a fellow tried to kiss me, and I knocked him down and broke his jaw with my boot heel. I—"
"Excuse me," interrupted McCoy, "come to think of it, I have an engagement for tomorrow. Ah, yes, I leave town Sunday, but—but I'll see you again."

He Knew.

be thrown away or spent and scattered in vain.

If any man's health is weakened or wasted, or running down, he should take the right means to build himself up strong and well, so that he can both live and care for the loved ones he should investigate the "Golden Medical Discovery" originated by Dr. R. V. Pierce, chief consulting physician of the Invalid Hotel and Surgical Institute, of Buffalo, N. Y. It is a remedy that makes a man thoroughly well by giving power and capacity to the digestive and assimilative organs. It makes healthy the vigorous blood out of the food he eats. It gives him strength and energy to put into his daily task. It builds up hard muscular flesh and nerve fiber, revitalizes the tissues of the throat and lungs, heals inflammation, purges the blood of bilious poisons and makes a man, strong, vigorous and hardy.

"My husband had been sick a long time," writes Mrs. J. W. Britton, of Clinton, Dewitt Co., Ill. (Box 25), "I had doctored with home physicians and even went to Chicago and consulted a doctor there but without receiving any help. He went to the Invalid Hotel and was operated and after three months came home to die (as the doctors here thought), but after while he commenced to take your wonderful medicine, the 'Golden Medical Discovery' and now, thanks to the good welcome means he can do anything he wants and is again a well man."
No remedy relieves constipation so quickly and effectively as Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. They never gripe.

A Shrewd Woman.

When Jernbery comes home late he receives a lecture from Mrs. J. of such length and strength that he is pretty certain to stay out later the next night. When Hollister, on the contrary, arrives at his domicile at an untimely hour, Mrs. Hollister smiles sweetly as she says: How fortunate Charles! To be sure, you are a little late for dinner, but you are in admirable time for breakfast and getting it at once. Next evening Hollister reports at an early hour. Mrs. Hollister understands man nature much better than Mrs. Jernbery does. —Boston Transcript.

TALE OF THE SERVICE

Lieutenant Coleman Gives An Entertaining Talk of His Experience in the Field.

TROUBLESOME SEA CAPTAINS

Necessity of Transports Being Under Control of Naval Officers—Inefficient Light Artillery Service—Emergency Roosevelt Was Equal To.

First Lieutenant Sherrard Coleman, Roosevelt's Rough Riders, regimental and brigade quartermaster, expresses himself as very much pleased at the idea of getting back to Santa Fe, where the bracing and health giving climate is already putting him back to where he was before falling sick. He had escaped sickness of every kind throughout the Cuban campaign, was not sick at Montauk Point, and saw no reason why he should be sick at all, when he was taken down with typhoid pneumonia at Washington. He had gone there to settle up his regimental accounts, and was naturally surprised to find sickness overtaking him. However, careful nursing and doctoring and a naturally robust constitution enabled him to overcome the attack, and he left Washington on the 20th of this month for home. A prominent St. Louis lady friend looked after the patient as far as her home, so he had excellent nursing and did first rate. At St. Louis it was wet and cold, so he remained in the sleeper for the hour his car remained in that city. At Kansas City it was snowing, and he ventured out, but found it expedient to hurry back to the pleasant and warm quarters of the Pullman. Lieutenant Coleman packed his uniform away when he left Washington, so he escaped the pestering from curious passengers that so many of the other boys suffered en route west.

With the exception of his sickness, of course, the lieutenant enjoyed his Washington visit very much. He was introduced to the president, who received him very kindly and made some remarks that the visitor had just reason to interpret as highly complimentary. In fact, the lieutenant was given to understand that a commission in the reorganized regular army would be at his disposal if he wanted it. Just at present he is not inclined to avail himself of the opportunity, but some of his friends are urging him to by all means accept a commission, as it means a life position with excellent pay. The lieutenant's accounts were satisfactorily settled with the War department, where he was given a discharge from all responsibility, with a certificate which reads as follows: "War department, quartermaster general's office, Washington, D. C., October 19, 1898. Sir: The quartermaster general directs me to inform you that your return of quartermaster's supplies rendered for the first quarter of the fiscal year '99 closed, has been received at this office, examined and found correct. Respectfully, F. G. Hodgson, lieutenant colonel quartermaster volunteers; to Lieutenant Sherrard Coleman, 1st U. S. volunteer cavalry."

Lieutenant Coleman left Santa Fe with troop E as its 2d lieutenant, which rank he retained until July 2, when he was in the trenches before Santiago with his regiment. He was there and then made acting quartermaster and commissary for the regiment of Rough Riders, and subsequently was made acting quartermaster and commissary of the 2d brigade of the cavalry division.

He says that primarily the cause of supplies failing or not being on hand when wanted was the hurry with which the expedition was organized and conducted. Then the second, and a very potent cause was the conduct of the transport campaign. These vessels should have been placed under the command of naval officers, and managed in the interests of the service; whereas the captains, who were in neither army nor naval service, were allowed to remain in control of their vessels, and in every case these officers considered first the interests of the owners of the boats rather than the interests of the expedition. For instance, a gale was feared and these captains would put out to sea, no matter whether they were unloaded or not, and the result often was that when supplies were needed at the front they could not be had because the vessel containing them was 10 miles or so out to sea. The siege guns were not unloaded at all, whereas when loaded at Tampa it was the intention to have them unloaded early and quickly. The thing to have done would have been to have compelled these captains to remain near the shore until their vessels were unloaded, or be placed under arrest. This reminded the lieutenant of how Colonel Roosevelt managed an awkward situation aboard ship on the way home. The captain reported that he could not get up steam as his firemen had struck and would not work. Colonel Roosevelt replied: "They won't, hey? Well, we will see about that." So he went down into the fire room with a detail of men and told the firemen that he would give them just one hour to get up steam to a certain pressure, or he would put them in irons and shut them up in the hold until they reached the United States. Those firemen did not wait for anything further, and steam was gotten up within the time specified by Colonel Roosevelt.

The failure of the artillery arm of the service at Santiago was so glaring as to bring it into general dispute not only with the troops themselves, but gave the foreign representatives a good chance to cover that arm of the service with ridicule in the reports to their governments. The artillerymen really did nothing beyond getting themselves laughed at. The batteries of light artillery were not only insufficiently equipped, but they seemed to be forever in trouble over something. They found at critical moments that they had left this or the other thing behind on the transports, or down on the beach; there were no fuses when wanted, or breech blocks had been lost, and there was fuss and worry and grief continually. Lieutenant Coleman believed the dynamite gun of the Rough Riders did more work than all the artillery, although their own gun got into trouble from the loss of the shell extractor. However, a machinist from the Raton shops in Captain Llewellyn's troop fixed up an old file so that it did the business of an extractor very well. Sergeant Borrowe, who was in charge of the dynamite gun squad, was a very wealthy man, having married the daughter of Austin Corbin. He was afterwards made captain and assistant adjutant general. Like many other soldiers, Lieutenant Coleman has a very high opinion of General Wood, who is now in command of the entire department of Santiago. He also pays Lieutenant Griffin a compliment for his able management under General Wood, as provost of Santiago after the surrender, and said Lieutenant Griffin could have remained there had he wished to on account of his excellent knowledge of Spanish and his ability as an officer.

Lieutenant Coleman was made 1st lieutenant September 7 last, and then made quartermaster of the regiment. After mustering out he went to New York and Washington. In a reference to the regiment's experience at San Antonio, the lieutenant said one of the papers there, the Evening Light, a little two-for-a-cent affair, was always ready to say an ill word for the men, and one issue boldly affirmed that a lot of cow men in the command came in town and shot out all the lights in one part of the city. Nothing could have been more untrue. The men were well behaved all through the term of their service.

There is a strong sentiment among Republicans and among good citizens generally for the re-nomination by the Republicans of County Commissioners C. W. Dudrow and J. T. McLaughlin. These officials have made very good records and are deserving re-nomination and re-election.

The new consolidation locomotives for the Santa Fe will have 21x28 inch cylinders; straight top boiler, 68 inches in diameter; working pressure of boiler, 180 pounds; fire box, 103x155 inches; heating surface of fire box, 195 square feet; heating surface of tubes, 1,740 square feet; grate area, 29.23 square feet; weight on drivers, 145,000 pounds; total weight, 163,000 pounds; 163,000 pounds; drivers, 68 inches; tank capacity, 5,000 gallons.

Tax payers and property owners in this county make no bones about the fact that they will vote for the Republican ticket, regardless of politics, provided the ticket consists of clean and able men and is as good in its personnel as the ticket that was nominated and elected in 1896. This is a very gratifying state of affairs and the Republicans of this city and county will do well by the people and themselves to profit by it.

Some evil disposed person turned Hank Fisher's hack horses loose at the Santa Fe depot the other morning, and when the driver woke up as the train came along and started for the hack, lo and behold it was gone. However, no damage was done as the horses walked all the way back to the stable.

The Democratic campaign managers are waiting to see what the Republicans will do at their county convention on Thursday. It is universally admitted that with good, clean nominations and loyal support of the ticket the Republicans will be successful by a large majority.

The absorption by the Santa Fe of the different branch lines connected with it will prove an economical move, as it does away with a large amount of accounting and statistical work, which has been made necessary by these separate corporations.

SUPREME COURT DECISIONS.

Adverse Possession to Real Estate for the Statutory Period Ripens Into Perfect Title—Code of Civil Procedure Does Not Apply to Criminal Cases.

In case No. 766, John Solomon, plaintiff in error, vs. Emilia Yrsarri, defendant in error, error to the district court of Bernalillo county, Associate Justice Leland handed down an opinion which was concurred in by the other members of the court, affirming the judgment of the lower court.

This cause was begun in the lower court by the defendant in error in ejectment to secure possession of certain real estate, and a verdict was rendered in her favor, and the case came into the supreme court on a writ of error sued out by the plaintiff in error. In rendering the opinion the court held:

Where there is no substantial conflict in the evidence adduced by the parties plaintiff and defendant, the court may direct a verdict.

Where one party wholly fails to make proof of the essential elements necessary to sustain his side of the contention in a suit, and the adverse party has made a prima facie case, the court should direct a verdict for the adverse party.

When a party fails to make his proof in a trial, requests for special findings of the jury are properly refused by the court.

Open, notorious and adverse possession by a claimant to real estate for the statutory period, either by himself or by those through or under whom he holds, ripens into a perfect title.

That paper writings may constitute a foundation for title or a link in a chain of title, but they must be executed according to the laws in force at the time of their execution.

Code of Civil Procedure Does Not Apply to Criminal Cases.

In case No. 803 The Territory of New Mexico, appellee, vs. Tomas Archibeque and Albert Cevada, appellants, appeal from the district court of Bernalillo county, Associate Justice Parker handed down an opinion, which was concurred in by the other members of the court, except Associate Justice Crumpacker, who did not sit in the case, affirming the judgment of the lower court.

The defendants in this case were jointly indicted, tried and convicted of the crime of arson in the district court of Bernalillo county, and sentenced to a term of five years in the territorial penitentiary. The case was taken into the supreme court on an appeal. The bill of exception contained no motion for a new trial. In reviewing the case and rendering the opinion, the court held:

Alleged errors occurring at the trial in criminal cases must be called to the attention of this court by motion for a new trial, exception to the overruling of the motion must be saved and the motion and exception made a part of the record by bill of exceptions before this court will consider them.

The code of civil procedure does not control the requirements as appeals in criminal cases.

Improved State of Things.

Eastern drummers are not finding New Mexico such a profitable territory since the railroads made rates that give Colorado business houses a chance as against Kansas City and St. Louis houses. It has long seemed an anomaly that Denver and Pueblo jobbers should be shut out of the territorial markets while houses 1,000 and 1,500 miles away were allowed to monopolize them. But the Denver and Pueblo merchants got their heads together some months ago and made such representations to the railroads that the latter found it for their interest to cease this discrimination against Colorado business interests. The Colorado business men proposed to throw all their traffic and influence as far as they possibly could for shipments via the southern sea route and the Gulf road from Galveston, unless they were given a show, and this, with other representations, brought the transcontinental lines over to their way of thinking. That is why so many Colorado men have been coming into this territory within the last few months and why they are doing such a good business.
