COLOSSAL GIFTS
WITH STATEHOODJudge Reynolds of
St. Louis Urges
"Yea" Vote.

CONGRESS VERY GENEROUS

People Should Vote for Jointure--Will Never Have as Good a Chance.

Judge Matt. G. Reynolds, presiding judge of the circuit court of the state of Missouri, in the city of St. Louis, is in the Capital for a few days on his way home. He came here from Conception, Colorado, where he has been angling for mountain trout and taking a rest. Judge Reynolds first arrived in the Territory in 1891, during which year he was appointed attorney for the United States with the U. S. Court of Private Land Claims, a very important position. He then visited Santa Fe yearly up to the time of the ending of the court which was three years ago. He spends many months yearly in this Capital, in New Mexico and part of the time in Colorado and Arizona in his official capacity. His record as an official and as a successful lawyer is remarkably good and stamps him as a lawyer of great legal ability, a thorough student, and as very successful in obtaining court decisions for the side which he represents. During his long term of office he defended the interests of the United States and of the people in the settlement of titles to Spanish and Mexican land grants in this section so admirably and so well that only about seven millions of acres of land were confirmed to claimants, while claims to many more millions of acres of land were rejected, the latter having been established by the efforts of Judge Reynolds and his assistants to be either illegal or fraudulent or not made in accordance with the laws and customs of Spain and Mexico governing in such cases. He was "persona non grata" to many land grant claimants and attorneys during that time, but he did his duty manfully and thoroughly. Upon the expiration of his term he resumed the active practice of law in St. Louis and on election day November, 1904, was chosen to the very honorable and dignified office of circuit judge on the Republican ticket by a very complimentary and satisfactory majority. The term for which he was elected is six years.

Well Qualified to Speak.
Judge Reynolds who is thoroughly acquainted with New Mexico's conditions and affairs and keeps constant "tab" on them,--he being a reader of the Daily New Mexican--was asked by a representative of the New Mexican as to his observations on conditions during his present visit here. The Judge said:

"I am very much gratified at the marked improvements going on in the city of Santa Fe since my visit here a year ago. A great number of new buildings are going up, a magnificent high school building has been completed, a modern jail is being erected, a neat ward school house is being built, and several very creditable business blocks are under construction, all of which is evidence of the thrift and enterprise of the people of Santa Fe, and are worthy of commendation. My observations on this present trip through the Territory indicate that it is in a prosperous condition, the people are happy and industrious, which justifies the prediction that I made fifteen years ago about this time, when I first came to the Territory as a U. S. attorney for the court of private land claims for the purpose of settling titles of various land grants in southern Colorado, New Mexico and Arizona.

Should Unite For Statehood.

"I am sorry to notice that the territories of New Mexico and Arizona are not agreed upon the question of statehood. It was to be hoped that some basis for an agreement among the people could be reached, and it is yet to be hoped that they will be able to do so. While it may seem inequitable at the present time to force the two territories to join as one state, yet in the future it will be best and the state when once admitted, will carve out its own grand destiny. The new state would become one of the richest and most prosperous in the Union in due course of time. The object, of course of the Foraker amendment, was to test the sentiment of the two territories with reference to jointure and I am inclined to believe people of the east, or a large majority, think the test of this sentiment, under the Foraker amendment, rather correct.

"I do not think that Congress will any longer tamper or temporize with the question of the admission of the remaining territories if either one should vote largely in favor of a constitution which the convention may frame. Although either one might vote against the jointure, it will ultimately result in Congress exercising its rights and power to admit them both as one state, irrespective of a vote. It is more than likely that when Congress shall again convene, the new state will be admitted regardless of the Foraker amendment. The value of property in the territories is rapidly increasing. The administration of the laws within my observation has been very efficient. Investments of money in this Territory and in Arizona have always been protected and no unnecessary burdens have been placed upon them, in my observation; I have had some experience in the matter, as a representative of capital that has been invested here. Take it all in all, I think the people, while they may feel that they are not getting that to which they are justly entitled, ought to vote in favor of joint statehood and I hope that the voters of both territories will combine in favor of statehood, as offered them under the Hamilton law. The provisions of the enabling act are the most liberal and generous ever granted and if not now accepted, in my opinion, will never again be offered to your people.

Must Look at Future Prospects.
"While I have always sympathized with the people of New Mexico in their desire for separate statehood under the stipulations of the treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo, yet we must meet present conditions with an eye to the future and upon that theory, I believe the people of the two territories would make a mistake by turning down joint statehood.

"A careful perusal of the act induces me to say that the benefits to be derived from its adoption might be called 'colossal'; the sooner your people become a state the more quickly will you receive proper recognition by the Congress, by the national administration and by men who have capital to invest in your grand and still undeveloped resources. In my opinion, every day that you are in a territorial condition you are losing, and that greatly. Now is the time and this is the place. As a sincere well wisher and friend of the people of New Mexico and Arizona, among whom I am proud to say I have many warm friends, I trust that on election day in November, coming, they will vote 'yea' and the question 'Shall New Mexico and Arizona be united into one state?'

BOLTON HELD
WITHOUT BAILTo Answer For the Killing of Carl
Gill at Clayton--Is Slowly
Starving.

Clayton, N. M., July 25.--Confinement in the county jail is telling on L. D. Bolton, charged with the murder of Carl Gill, a wealthy sheepman in this section, on Friday, July 13. Whether he is trying to starve himself to death and thus defeat justice, or because of ill health and the incident loss of appetite, he refuses to eat anything and has wasted almost to a skeleton. He has become very weak and is confined to his couch. The belief is growing that the man is insane.

Bolton was given a preliminary hearing Monday before Justice John Springer. Fourteen witnesses were examined, eight of whom were for the Territory, and six for the defense. At the conclusion of the taking of testimony the prisoner was remanded to the county jail without bond to await the action of the grand jury.

According to the story of the witnesses for the Territory, Bolton was seen coming down the street with a revolver in his hand, and fired several shots at George Hobson. The latter ran into a saloon and escaped. Bolton then shot Gill who had been with Hobson. The testimony adduced by the witnesses for the defense was to the effect that Bolton had shot Gill by accident. Bolton did not take the stand in his own defense and listened to the proceedings without any show of emotion.

District Attorney Leahy of Raton appeared for the prosecution, and attorneys John Pace and W. J. Eaton, also of Raton, for the defense.

AMERICANS WHIP
PULAJANE WARRIORSKilled Between 50 and 150 and Routed
After a Desperate Battle.

Manila, July 25.--A detachment of the 24th Infantry, colored, and a company of native constabulary were attacked yesterday by hundreds of Pulajane from the towns of Tolosa and Domani, on the island of Leyte, and a desperate battle took place, resulting in the rout of the fanatics with a loss of fifty killed and more than sixty wounded. The only American casualties were one sergeant of Constabulary wounded.

A later estimate places the number of Pulajanes dead and wounded at one hundred and fifty. The fight took place in a thick underwood and lasted thirty minutes. Five hundred Pulajanes, armed with guns and bolos, charged the American column three times. The Americans consisted of fifty constabulary and twenty-six colored soldiers, commanded by Capt. McMaster.

JEMEZ SPRINGS STORE
ROBBED AND THIEF CAUGHT.

During the absence of Moses Abousleman, a well known merchant at Jemez Hot Springs, his store was entered last Friday night, and the safe was robbed of money and checks amounting to about $300. The thief was discovered to be Claude Leonard, a trusted employee of Mr. Abousleman. He confessed to have entered the store, and showed where he had hidden the money, but he said that he had destroyed the checks. Leonard was arrested and given a preliminary hearing Monday in the court of the justice of the peace at Canon. Mr. Abousleman was engaged in dipping sheep at San Antonio Springs at the time the burglary was committed.

TO PRISON IN SEVEN MINUTESDid Not Sound Good to L. A. Gour-
dain.

RATHER CONFINE HIMSELF

In His Own Penitentiary--
Has Hired Warden and Guards.

Chicago, July 25.--Louis A. Gourdain came back to Chicago Sunday afternoon, with several new ideas. He held a crowd of newspaper reporters at his "Imperial bank," 179 Jackson Boulevard, that he wouldn't accept District Attorney Morrison's kind offer to "send him to the penitentiary in seven minutes."

Mr. Morrison had said that all Gourdain needed to do was to appear before him with a motion to set aside his appeal and he would see that some judge immediately arranged for Gourdain's entering the Joliet prison and beginning his four and one-half years' sentence for operating a lottery.

Gourdain looked fatigued. He said he hadn't slept since he left Chicago a week ago to see the supreme court judges in the east. He had eaten--yes--but only after a four days' fast, when he saw it was hopeless trying to get a supreme court justice to hear his petition.

"If I should go before Judge Landis or Judge Groscup," said Gourdain, "and ask them to set aside the super-sedeas under which I was released it would put me in the position of having sanctioned the unwarranted position filed by my attorneys. I'm not going to withdraw something I didn't file."

In Haste to Build Prison.

Then he said he would start at once building the "penitentiary annex" he has exploited, at Joliet and have it all ready in case the United States Supreme Court fails to grant his petition in October. He left last night for Joliet. His program for today is a visit to some church, in company with his wife and son, who are at the Dan-can Hotel in Joliet. He'll stay in the cottage he has rented from a prison employee, near the penitentiary, he says.

These are Gourdain's new "ideas."
"Monday I will start to give away $4,000,000 to persons who have lost money investing in my enterprises, which the government has held illegal. I figure I have taken in from $800,000 to $1,500,000 a month in the last four years.

"I shall post notices to that effect in every postoffice in the United States. That's the only way I can get a list of the names.

"While in New York I engaged a warden and an assistant warden for my penitentiary annex. They will leave jobs in another prison. I'll pay them just double the salaries of those officials in the Joliet penitentiary.

"I have hired six Chicago men as guards. They will receive double the salary of guards at Joliet.

"I will be furnished with plans and specifications for my prison annex on Monday. Architect Campbell of Joliet is preparing them. The prison will be 40 by 40--a replica of the one owned by the state.

"I will make shoes, shirts, coats, and shovels coal in my little penitentiary.

Fires Attorney for Freeing Him.

"I have fired my attorney, W. Knox Haynes. He was getting $500 a month from me, but his ill advised attempt to keep me from serving my sentence in Joliet has killed the goose that laid his golden eggs.

"When I have finished my sentence I'll give the building to the government, with all the rest of my property except the yacht Imperial.

"When I have finished my sentence I'll sail away with my family in my yacht and found a republic on one of the South Sea Islands that I purchased some time ago to be used in such a contingency.

"I'd rather live in the Joliet penitentiary than in the Auditorium Annex, where the air is contaminated by smoke from Illinois Central trains.

"I don't care for money or any material things in life. I don't read. It spoils a man's brain. All I do for enjoyment is sleep."

Gourdain told what he had eaten in New York, when he broke his four days' alleged fast last Wednesday. It was two soft boiled eggs, three poached eggs on toast, baked beans, crab meat salad, fried cornmeal mush, two plates of wheat cakes and a pot of coffee.

FREIGHT HANDLERS
STRIKE SERIOUS

San Francisco, Calif., July 25.--About 500 freight handlers in the employ of the Southern Pacific Railroad Company in Oakland went on a strike yesterday, demanding an increase in pay of from 22-1/2 to 25 cents an hour as was granted the freight handlers on this side of the bay, a week ago. The freight tie-up threatens to become a situation of the gravest peril to this city. Officials of the road have appealed to consignees to help clear the crowded tracks by unloading their own freight.

BURIAL COSTS LARGE SUM

Remains Placed in Four Inch
Steel Box--Lock on Inside.

New York, July 25.--Encased in a hermetically sealed receptacle, placed within a solid mahogany coffin, the body of Russell Sage will today be placed in a chilled steel case, four inches thick, riveted with steel bolts, locked with a lock which can be opened from the inside, and lowered into a grave, carpeted and lined with evergreens on which clouds will be heaped and a mound of earth built. The steel case weighs three tons. It was shipped to Oakland Cemetery, Troy, yesterday.

Electric Alarms on Grave.

After the body is lowered into the grave, wires will be strung so that an immediate alarm will be given should any attempt be made to tamper with the grave. The cost of this protection will be a greater sum than ever before expended in the burial of a private citizen in this country. Mrs. Sage readily consented to the proposal for safeguarding the grave of her husband, having had a dread of the violation of graves ever since the theft of the body of the late A. T. Stewart.

Financiers' Body Ready for Burial.

New York, July 25.--The body of Russell Sage was removed today from its residence on Fifth Avenue to be taken to Troy, for interment. The entire first floor of the residence was filled with floral tributes. A few intimate friends of Mr. and Mrs. Sage heard the prayers read by Rev. Dr. Andrew Hageman before the removal of the body from the house.

Buried by Side of First Wife.

Troy, N. Y., July 25.--The body of Russell Sage was buried in Oakland cemetery here today beside the body of his first wife. The words to be engraved on his monument are:

Superintendent Clinton J. Crandall, the efficient and courteous official in charge of the U. S. Superintendent Crandall enjoyed his visit there greatly, and is particularly well pleased with the good work and the proper behavior of the young Indians.

ATTRACTIVE
AND VALUABLEBulletin for Homeseekers and Immigrants to Southwest By Santa Fe Railway System.

The New Mexican is in receipt of a copy of a booklet entitled "Free U. S. Government Lands Along the Santa Fe, Where They Are and How to Get Them," which was compiled for the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railway by C. L. Seagraves, the general colonization agent who has his headquarters in Chicago. The pamphlet in brief tells about the free government land tributary to the Santa Fe route and also gives a synopsis of the homestead and desert land laws of the United States. It will prove valuable to the homeseeker who contemplates making homestead or desert land entry on public lands in the great southwest.

The booklet contains a fund of information for the prospective settler in addition to a description of the public domain open to settlement and extracts from the laws under which he may secure a free home from Uncle Sam. A number of fine half-tone pictures reproduced from actual photographs appear in the pamphlet and many are also published of California, Nebraska, Wyoming, Colorado and Utah. Much of the information contained in the pamphlet is taken from the bulletin issued by the Bureau of Immigration of New Mexico, entitled "Ho, To the Land of Sunshine," of which 10,000 copies have been printed and distributed since July 1, 1905.

Among the pictures appearing in this Santa Fe route booklet which attract the most attention, is one showing an artesian well in the Pecos Valley of New Mexico spouting a steady stream of water almost twice as high as the men standing erect in the background and another illustrating the method of irrigating in the Rio Grande Valley of New Mexico. Another picture is that of a farm scene in the southwest which has for its principal object, to show the difference between farmhouses of 1895 and 1905. The older dwelling is nothing more than a small log cabin while the one of more recent date is a comfortable two story frame residence. There is an air of prosperity about the place and the picture gives one a good idea of the rapid progress that has been made in this section of the country within the past decade.

Other half tone cuts contained in the pamphlet show an alfalfa field in Arizona, a farm scene in Colorado, another in Kansas and a vineyard in California. The engravings were previously published in The Earth, an agricultural magazine which is printed in Chicago, under the auspices of the passenger department of the Santa Fe Railway System.

Eastern and western farmers who are not satisfied with their present conditions will do well to peruse this booklet. It is filled with interesting reading matter and points out a way for them to secure a homestead at a nominal cost. Copies can be had free of charge by applying to C. L. Seagraves, colonization agent, Santa Fe Railway System, Chicago, Illinois.

CHARGED WITH
DAMAGING ENGINESLewis Myers, Arrested at Las Vegas
and Brought Here Arraigned Before Judge McFie.

Lewis Myers arrested by Captain Fred Fornoff of the Mounted Police at Las Vegas Monday where he was employed as a machinist by the Santa Fe Railway Company and brought to the Territorial Penitentiary here yesterday for safe keeping, was today arraigned before Judge John McFie, sitting in the United States court, on a charge of maliciously conspiring to prevent the operation of trains on the Santa Fe. He pleaded not guilty and was held under a bond of $3,000 for trial. His hearing will take place before Judge McFie in chambers, August 4 at which time, it is said that interesting testimony will be given.

Myers was arrested on a warrant issued by a United States Commissioner at Las Vegas. Captain Fornoff said he also had a warrant issued by a justice of the peace at that place. When the train bearing the officer and his prisoner reached Lamy, United States Deputy Marshal William R. Forbes, served a warrant on Myers, in which the technical charge against the man was the placing of steel filings and emory in oil cups of Santa Fe engines during the recent machinists' strike on that railway.

Myers made considerable fuss when arrested at Las Vegas, asking that he be permitted to see an attorney, but refused to show him any favors, saying that he did not want the man to communicate with his friends or any one likely to spread the information of his arrest. "Ben" Williams, a deputy sheriff of San Miguel County and a special officer for the Santa Fe Railway Company assisted in the arrest, the sheriff of that county being absent from the city.

Captain Fornoff said today that he had secured evidence against Myers, showing that he was in close relations with another Santa Fe machinist, who is now serving a sentence of three years in the Territorial Penitentiary for a similar offense. This man was convicted in Bernalillo County and was formerly employed in the machine shops at Albuquerque.

Myers told Judge McFie that he was not guilty as charged and that his arrest was a complete surprise.

FIRE-KILLED
TIMBER SALABLESays J. D. Warner
Inspector of Forests.

SUPPLY ON PECOS RESERVE

Is Large. Makes Good Box
Lumber Railroad Ties and Poles.

After making a thorough investigation of the Pecos and Jemez Forest Reserves, Joseph DeWitt Warner, an assistant traveling inspector connected with federal forestry bureau, finds that there is considerable burnt timber that is available for commercial purposes.

Most of the trees which have been killed by forest fires are in the Pecos Reserve. Mr. Warner estimates that the area of burnt timber in this reserve is 40,000 acres, and he figures that it can be converted into 304,000 cords of fire wood, 1,000,000 railroad ties, or 200,000 poles.

Although it has been known for a number of years that fire-killed timber in the great forest reserves had a commercial value for railroad ties and poles of various kinds in addition to being used as fuel, it has only recently been demonstrated by the forestry bureau that there are many other uses for this timber, and that in certain respects it has actual advantages over green wood. These facts have been deduced from a study of the Pike's Peak Forest Reserve, where the ravages of fire have been particularly widespread and destructive. Burned timber is now being converted into lumber for box boards and it has proved excellent for this purpose. The time that has elapsed since the burning seems to make no great difference in the value of the wood, except in cases where there is little left of the tree. Timber used for box purposes has been burned all the way from three to fifty-five years.

Inspectors Now Looking Over Timbers

The government has four of its officials in the forestry service now at work inspecting the burned areas in the various forest reserves with a view of having the trees thus killed, felled and made use of instead of leaving them standing to rot and fall. Under ordinary conditions practically all of the timber can be used for one purpose or another, and as already mentioned a good deal of it can be utilized for making wooden boxes.

In this connection the following from a recent bulletin issued by the forestry bureau is of interest:

"Rod fir is preferred for railroad ties, then yellow pine, loblolly pine, and range pine. While pine has been objected to because of its lack of durability, but it is now taken in many places. At Rosemont, Colorado, burned timber of all kinds is made into ties, some of the material having been burned fifty years ago. It is asserted that dry ties last as long as green ties and in many cases longer. On the Cripple Creek 'short line' they were more satisfactory than green pine ties from Texas. Dry ties hold a spike well, and a tie plate does not cut into the wood so seriously as it does in the case of a green tie. Englemann spruce is as good as other species as far as mechanical wear is concerned, but it decays much quicker and so should be given a preservative treatment.

First Use of Fire Timber.

"Burned timber was first used for boxes by the Denver Cattle and Box Company in February, 1903, the species used being Englemann spruce and loblolly pine, with some red fir and loblolly pine. The material used had been burned from one and one-half to four years. The Englemann spruce was excellent, and the loblolly pine also gave good results. The fire seasoning had driven the odor out of the pine so that it could be used for packing crackers and biscuits. Also, on account of the perfect seasoning the boxes remained tight when put up and therefore sold better than green boxes.

"For mine timbers all species are used, if of the requisite size. Dry timber is preferred because of its lightness, durability, and stiffness, all principally due to its better seasoning.

Burnt Trees Sometimes Preferred.

"For many purposes fire-killed timber should be preferred to green timber because it is so well seasoned. This seasoning makes it more durable than green timber, and also makes it lighter, so that its cost of transportation is appreciably less, and it is therefore available, not only for numerous local uses, but for shipping long distances. Actual experience with the fire-killed timber proves that its utilization should be a source of profit to the reserve."

Mr. Warner has been in this city for the past week. He leaves tomorrow for Beaver, Utah.

The New Mexican is the oldest newspaper in New Mexico. It is sent to every postoffice in the Territory and has a large and growing circulation among the intelligent and progressive people of the Southwest.

EXPERIENCED CONSTITUTION MAKERS FOR THE NEW STATE.

The great importance of having men of the highest character chosen as members of the Constitutional Convention is recognized by all. In the performance of this duty the new State is entitled to the services of its most able, intelligent and experienced citizens.

The New Mexican is glad to know that New Mexico contains a large number of men who are competent for this work. Especially among the new set of its public men there are many who have given careful study to the science of government, and there are several who have held office in other states and bring the experience of various systems. Among native New Mexicans there are men who have an intimate acquaintance with local conditions which will be very valuable in the practical features of the work. All elements are necessary in the convention, in order that there may be the fullest knowledge of every subject involved.

The Territory has also some citizens who have already had experience in constitutional work, which will be valuable now, and it is of them that this paper speaks especially today.

Not one of the members of the first two Constitutional Conventions of New Mexico survive. They were held many years ago, and the last of their members has departed.

At least two citizens of New Mexico have had experience with constitutions in other states. Honorable Henry L. Waldo, who always carefully preserves his New Mexico citizenship as a resident of Las Vegas, saw his first public service as a member of a Constitutional Convention in California, before settling in New Mexico, and has always retained a high reputation as a constitutional lawyer. Honorable L. Bradford Prince is known in New York as the father of the constitutional amendments of 1871 in that state. He introduced the bill for the commission which formulated them and had charge of them in the legislature during both sessions required for their passage, and then wrote the explanatory pamphlet used throughout the state in the campaign for their adoption by the people.

Of the Constitutional Convention of 1890 about a half yet survive; and their experience will be valuable now. That convention consisted of seventy-five members, but a number of them, especially from Taos, Valencia, Rio Arriba and Socorro, attended very little, if at all, so that the work was practically done by fifty men. One of the most valuable members, Judge Warren Bristol, died before the adjourned session of the convention in August 1890. Since then R. Haberland, B. S. Rodey, J. A. Whitmore, L. R. S. Paulin and R. M. White have left the Territory; and many of the most prominent members, including Colonel Chavez, the President, have died.

But among the survivors are the following, who took an active and influential part in the proceedings, and whose good work should not be forgotten: E. S. Stover, Alejandro Sandoval, Marcos C. de Baca, Perfecto Armas, A. C. Voorhees, E. W. Fox, Martin Lohman, C. B. Eddy, T. W. Heman, Mateo Lujan, Trinidad Romero, J. M. C. Chavez, Aniceto Aheya, T. B. Cannon, F. W. Clancy, Nicholas Galles, D. C. Winters, Manuel C. de Baca, J. C. Clancy, Jefferson Raynolds, Edward Henry, G. W. Prichard, W. H. Shupp, Frank Springer, W. E. Kelley, Demetrio Perez, E. A. Dow, and Patrocinio Luna.

Of those who made the active campaign in favor of the constitution in 1890, nearly all are dead. Honorable L. B. Prince was then governor, and was the leader in the campaign; but the others who were most active, like Colonel Chavez, Judge Trimble, Major Seta, Governor Axtell and Honorable M. S. Otero have gone to the great beyond. On the other hand, the three most vigorous opponents of the constitution in that campaign, Messrs. Childers, Ferguson and Field survive.

MEXICO WILL TAKE CARE OF ITSELF.

For some time rumors have come from Mexico towns to the effect that there was a great and growing anti-American sentiment, especially among the middle and lower classes of the people and also that a revolutionary spirit was growing constantly, that the latter would soon be strong enough to make itself felt and give the Diaz government serious trouble. A careful investigation of the conditions of the sister Republic shows that there is mighty little whereupon to base these rumors and statements and that the Mexican government is today stronger and more firmly established than at any time in its history. Careful investigations also prove conclusively that the country was never as prosperous as it is now and that it never before increased in population and in modern progress as at this time. It seems that there are mighty few Mexicans behind the alleged revolutionary and anti-American movements, but that there are some Americans who have interests in the land of the Montezumas who are creating the talk for their own purposes and benefits and to carry out plans of their own whatever they may be.

The Denver Republican takes the right view of the situation when it says:

"The report of a contemplated movement among the laboring classes of Mexico to drive all foreigners out of the country is ridiculous and very probably so by the authorities of the Republic. It is declared by men in a position to know that there is no truth whatever in the story that the peace of the Republic is in danger, and that the sixteenth of September has been designated as the time for a revolt against the presence of foreigners.

"Mexico is a tranquil and peaceful country as there is in the whole world, and it will continue so as long, at least, as Diaz remains at the head of affairs. He suppressed the revolutionary spirit when it was still strong and the country had learned little or nothing about the blessings of peace and industrial prosperity. Certainly now when peace has long been maintained and a generation is coming on which has never known a revolution, he is still able to preserve order and insure protection to the lives and property of all the people, whether citizens or aliens, natives or of foreign birth.

"Foreign capital and foreign energy and enterprise have done so much for Mexico that there is all the reason in the world why the intelligent people of that country should welcome Americans and Europeans who may come with means to develop mines, build factories, construct railroads or engage in enterprises of other kinds which will promote the material welfare of the Republic. In fact, Mexicans of that class appreciate the truth of this in every way; and they are so completely dominant in all public affairs that the laboring classes could not attempt to start a hostile movement against foreign-born residents.

"No doubt Americans now living in Mexico understand the situation fully and hence will not be frightened away or greatly disturbed. In all probability the reports of a revolt will soon die out and soon be forgotten."

A STONE BRIDGE ON GALISTEO STREET.

The Board of County Commissioners of this county will meet tomorrow for the purpose of making a tax levy for the present year. The board has before it a petition signed by over 300 tax payers and property owners, requesting that a stone bridge be constructed across the Santa Fe River on Galisteo Street. The petition is a meritorious and proper one. There is much travel on that thoroughfare from the south to the north side of the river. The present structure is unsightly, inconvenient and somewhat unsafe. A new and handsome stone bridge there would be an improvement that would prove of benefit to the city and of convenience and comfort to all classes of the population and business men especially. It will also enhance the value of property on Galisteo Street north and south of the river. The cost would be comparatively small. The petition should be favorably considered if properly signed according to law and if all other requirements of the statutes in such cases have been complied with. Permanent improvements like the two bridges that have been built under the auspices of the present Board of County Commissioners, and like the new jail now in course of construction, are of the very character that please all decent and patriotic citizens and prove of utility and benefit to the municipality. So far not only have the citizens of the town sincerely praised the two massive stone bridges heretofore erected, but also have sojourners, travelers and tourists who have come to visit the capital of New Mexico. Their erection was creditable and bespoke modern progress and due care for the advancement and the business interests, especially, of the town. There cannot be too many attractive and useful structures of the kind.

THE SENSIBLE THING UNDER THE CIRCUMSTANCES.

"The Santa Fe New Mexican and one or two other Republican papers that recently have been converted to the joint statehood faith, are now trying to rule the Democratic papers out of the communion service. 'Twas ever thus with new converts.'—Roswell Record.

The New Mexican's esteemed Democratic contemporary is again mistaken. The New Mexican is not converted to the joint statehood issue. This paper has fought for the best interests of the people of New Mexico for many a long year. Up to the passage of the Hamilton joint statehood law it considered that separate statehood was best and proper and that the people of New Mexico proper were justly entitled thereto. It holds to this opinion today. It became convinced by the passage of the Hamilton joint statehood law and subsequent events that separate statehood could not be attained, and therefore, it did the next best thing, espoused the cause of joint statehood, believing the same to be right under the circumstances. It has no apologies to make for its conduct and makes none. It considered the action it has taken carefully and adopted it manfully and courageously. This paper is neither hidebound nor narrow. It is glad to accept any and all possible help for the cause it has adopted and for which it now battles.

CANNOT LAST LONG.

It is very plain that the recent exposures of packing house methods in Chicago and other large meat packing centers have seriously injured the export trade of the United States in meat and similar food stuffs for the time being. This cannot last long in the very nature of things. Great Britain, Germany and France must have these food stuffs and the only country they can buy them from is the United States. The New York Evening Sun comments upon the question pitifully and sensibly when it says that a result of the recent agitation is that the German authorities have made new regulations for the inspection of their refrigerated meat—though no revelations were made with regard to that article—which will virtually kill the trade for some time to come. We say "for some time" advisedly. For though there may be great loss to our packers, though the industry may be affected seriously for a time, our German friends are bound to take a sane view of the situation in the long run.

We quoted from a consular report the other day in which it was set forth that Great Britain and Germany cannot possibly get along without our food products. Not only had their demand been a growing one, but it tended to exceed the supply available here. A significant dispatch from Berlin, about the same time, emphasized the fact that the market in dog and horse flesh was growing rapidly.

The thing that did most harm was the failure to give information about the packing houses in detail, and discriminate between those which were properly conducted and those which were not. Hence the sweeping and unjust condemnation of our products abroad which only time will remedy.

THE 1906 CONGRESSIONAL CAMPAIGN.

Plans for the conduct of the Congressional Campaign for this year which has already commenced, have been adopted and campaign work will now commence in earnest. The plans have the approval of President Roosevelt. They were agreed to after consultation with the President by Speaker Cannon, Chairman Sherman, Secretary Louderback and Treasurer McKinley of the committee. Democratic leaders have heretofore flattered themselves that their party had a first-class chance to carry a majority of the House of Representatives, November 6th next. This flattering unctious will, according to all advisers and indications, be knocked into a cocked hat. Well posted politicians and public men all over the country now believe that the Republicans will have a good working majority in the 60th Congress. New Mexico will surely go with the procession as far as the election of a Delegate is concerned, and should the joint state of Arizona be created two Republican Congressmen will be elected, for such are the signs of the times and they are strong and very apparent for Republican success.

THE RATON RANGE IS 25 YEARS OLD.

On the 21st of this month the Raton Range was twenty-five years of age. The New Mexican has been intimately acquainted with the career of the paper or during this quarter of a century and it can consistently and truthfully say that the Range under its various managements and editors has done yeoman work for the up-building and advancement of the Gate City, for the progress and material improvement of the County of Colfax, and for the general good of the Sunshine Territory during this long period. Under its present management, being published twice a week, the paper is not only continuing in the same strain, but is also being greatly improved and is doing better work than ever. The people of Raton in particular and of Colfax County in general are to be congratulated upon the fact that such a clean, courageous and up-to-date newspaper is published in their growing municipality and their prosperous county.

SOCORRO PLUCK AND COURAGE.

Considering the fact that Socorro experienced during the week just closed from fifty to sixty earthquake shocks, several rather severe ones, the New Mexican feels constrained to congratulate the Socorro Chieftain upon its very creditable appearance of last Saturday. The seismic disturbances made no difference in the brightness of the effective editorials, in good local news and other contents of the paper. The difficulties, the nervousness and the uneasy feeling prevailing among the people did not affect the editorial force nor the printers nor the appearance of the paper to any extent. Pluck and courage are always admirable and grand. These qualities were certainly exhibited by the Chieftain force and the people of the Gem City generally during the trying ordeal which recently visited them.

Several clerks in New Mexico post-offices have been receiving increases of pay, this on account of increased work and more responsibility in the positions which they hold. Another indication, according to the yellow dog sheets that the people of the Territory have been ruined by excessive taxes and extraordinary corruption and dishonesty by territorial and county officials for the past nine years. If it is plain as the nose upon a man's face that the business of postoffices always increases rapidly in sections of the country where there is no honest government and where corruption and hoodlums hold sway. Pluck the poor down-trodden people of the Sunshine Territory.

Governor Joseph A. Kibbey of Arizona, is being mentioned for the probable nomination as the Republican candidate for Delegate to the 60th Congress from Arizona, in addition to W. S. Sturges, the present member of the Republican National Committee from the Territory. Both are good men and either would poll the full party strength and more, if nominated. It is also understood that both are anti-joint statehood, although neither is as demonstrative against joint statehood as he was a few weeks ago.

Their Absence Explained.

During an arduous debate in the house shortly before the civil war Mr. Potter of Wisconsin made some very sharp strictures on Mr. Pryor of Virginia. The result was a challenge from Pryor to fight a duel, which Potter promptly accepted, naming as terms bowie knives at five paces, terms which he well knew Pryor would not dare to accept, as he was a small man, while Potter was a large, powerful man and familiar with the use of the bowie knife. Pryor declined on the ground that the proposed terms were beneath the dignity of a gentleman to accept, and so the matter ended. But on the day following the challenge, while the result was still unknown, both Potter and Pryor were absent during roll call, and when Potter's name was called a Quaker member rose and in mild voice said, "Mr. Speaker, I am informed that the gentleman from Wisconsin had a Prior engagement." And when Pryor's name was called a moment later he rose again, saying, "Mr. Speaker, I hear that the gentleman from Virginia has gone to be as busy in the hands of the Potter."

Double Thinking.

Professor Jastrow, writing in the Popular Science Monthly of the causes of certain lapses of speech, recalls the singular power that Sir Walter Scott, among others, possessed of conducting two trains of thought at the same time. When highly developed this power enables its possessor unconsciously to find words expressing a thought already formed while at the same time shaping the next thought period in conscious preparation. An instance is given by Scott's amanuensis, who relates that while dictating the novelist would sometimes search through a book, finding and reading a passage, and thus keeping two trains of thoughts going simultaneously. The amanuensis discovered the fact that Scott was doing double work in his brain through the occasional occurrence in the dictation of a word which did not fit in the sentence, but four or five lines farther on the place where the word belonged would turn up.

Candlelight.

Hail, candlelight, without disparagement to the sun or moon, the kindest luminary of the three. If we may not style thee radiant deity, mild vicerey of the moon! We love to read, talk, sit silent, eat, drink, sleep by candlelight. They are everybody's sun and moon. This is our peculiar and household planet. By the midnight taper the writer digests his meditations. By the same light we must approach to their perusal if we would catch the flame, the odor. Night and silence call out the stately fancies. Milton's "Morning Hymn in Paradise," we would hold a good, and Taylor's rich description of a sunrise smells decidedly of the taper. Even now a lotter speculation than we have attempted courts our endeavors. We would indite something about the solar system. "Betty, bring the candles."—Charles Lamb.

A Useful Model.

An English manufacturer of pottery is the subject of a joke told in the Liverpool Post. While on a continental tour he purchased a Sevres vase for some hundreds of pounds and brought it home most carefully. Thinking that the foreman of his works might gather a hint from the design he called that gentleman in and showed him the treasure. "How do you like it?" he asked. The foreman took the vase in his hand, turned it over and returned it, with the brief reply, "I don't think I can learn much from it." "Why not?" asked the manufacturer. "I don't like telling you, sir." "Come, out with it." "Well, I designed that vase myself. It is a foreign imitation of our own work and is worth 45 at the outside."

Will Row Till Judgment Day.

There is a shivery, shivery legend among the people who live along the Hudson river which is to the effect that that stream is the everlasting boiling waters of a specter who is personified as Rambout Van Dam. Away back in colonial times Rambout and his friends were drinking until late at night. Finally this man Rambout started for home, some distance up the river, in his boat, swearing that he would row the distance if it took "a month of Sundays." Rambout never reached home, and the superstitious people say that he has been condemned to row till judgment day.

His Daughter.

A gentleman who was once stopped by an old man begging replied, "Don't you know, my man, that fortune knocks once at every man's door?" "Yes," said the old man, "he knocked at my door once, but I was out, and ever since then he has sent his daughter."

The Unusual Way.

"Do the Blanks manage to keep up appearances since they lost the greater part of their fortune?" "Yes," they don't bother about appearances. They just use what little money they have to make themselves comfortable."—Detroit Free Press.

A Change.

Old Gentleman (pointing to lanky youth at his side in the tram car)—How much for this boy—half fare, I suppose? Conductor—Well, no. He looks as if he were kept on half fare at home, and needs a change. Full fare, please.—London Answers.

His Mistake.

Rupert—Why did you ask her to marry you? Harold—Well, I thought she was sensible, but hanged if she didn't accept me!

POLITICAL POINTERS.

Opinions on Campaign Subjects of Interest to the Dear People.

They Should Show Good Judgment.
 If the people of Arizona and New Mexico are capable of showing good judgment they had better do it now and take President Roosevelt's advice about voting to come into the Union. This may be their last chance for a long time to come.—The Sentinel, Knoxville, Tennessee.

Wise and Shrewd.

President Roosevelt's advice to Arizona to join hands with New Mexico for statehood is wise and shrewd. But what the Arizona Statehood Association sees is that the Territory alone is big enough for two New Yorks, Connecticut and Massachusetts—and there it balks.—New York World.

Arizona Hard to Please.

The Arizona voter is hard to please if he prefers to stay out of statehood to spite New Mexico. The Territory is gaining in population hardly as fast as the unit of a Congressional district advances. At that rate it will be a long time before the other states will consent to admit Arizona alone.—Buffalo, New York, Press.

Second Thoughts in Arizona.

Possibly the people of Arizona, though they may not unreasonably resent the President's advice, may think better in the end of their refusal to enter the Union by amalgamation with New Mexico. The Americans in the Territory have a not unnatural dread of falling under the domination of the Mexican population; but if they had had the experience that falls to the eastern states of assimilating successfully all sorts of immigrants the situation might not appear so appalling to them. They cannot evade the conclusion that Congress and the majority of the people of the country will hardly be brought around to the creation of separate states if for no more disinterested reason than that thereby four Senators would be created. The country has an interest in the proposition of making states out of territories as well as the territories themselves and that interest must inevitably be consulted. The feeling is deep and widespread that one additional state is all the country really needs.—Journal, Providence, Rhode Island.

Arizona and New Mexico.

In desiring that the people of Arizona avail themselves of the opportunity to unite with New Mexico in statehood, President Roosevelt is probably moved by a feeling of generous cordiality toward the growing west. He says: "They may have to wait many years before the chance again offers itself, and even then it probably will be only on the present terms." The St. Louis Globe-Democrat, sympathizing with this view, says: "Like every other American, the President wishes well to Arizona, and the best possible thing for that community now would be its entrance with New Mexico as the forty-seventh state." But would it be the best thing for the country at large? Heretofore the fitness of at least one territory for statehood has been over-estimated. Arizona has some desirable people; New Mexico has some extremely undesirable ones. How well they would get along together is a matter for speculation. There is a feeling in many quarters that no harm would be done if the merger scheme should be delayed for a few years.—Chronicle-Record, Rochester, New York.

Arizona and Statehood.

President Roosevelt proffers sensible advice when he urges the voters of Arizona to accept the chance of statehood offered them under the Oklahoma-Arizona enabling act. Now that the act has been passed and signed, the people of Arizona are face to face with a condition, not a theory. So long as Congress remained uncommitted to the policy of consolidation, the advocates of separate statehood were free to elaborate their case and make their appeal to local ambition and local sentiment. The desire to retain political and territorial integrity was in itself natural and laudable and the people of Arizona were not to be censured for preferring to enter the Union in their own right if Congress could be persuaded that their asserted qualifications for statehood were valid. But Congress could not be persuaded to take that view. It decided, after thorough consideration, that in justice to the other states in the Union—four-fifths of them greatly surpassing Arizona in population and resources—no such chances should be taken as would be involved in admitting Arizona by itself.—Chronicle-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

Modest Claims Often Carry the Most Conviction.

When Maxim, the famous gun inventor, placed his gun before a committee of judges, he stated its carrying power to be much below what he felt sure the gun would accomplish. The result of the trial was therefore a great surprise. Instead of disappointment, it is the same with the manufacturers of Chamberlain's Cholera, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. They do not publicly boast of all this remedy will accomplish, but prefer to let the users make the statements. What they do claim, is that it will positively cure diarrhoea, dysentery, pain in the stomach and bowels and has never been known to fail. For sale by all druggists.

THE KITCHEN.

You could eat from the Bon Ton Hotel kitchen floor. Cleanliness counts so much with all of us.

But the Bon Ton Hotel and Lunch Counter management goes much further than cleanliness.

Our aim is to serve our patrons with the best food possible—dainty, yet substantial.

To see that they live and sleep in cheerful, airy rooms.

To surround them by all that is pleasant and refined.

And they also have for use the hand-some parlors, library, buffet and smoking room.

The Bon Ton is just like a great big happy home.

Yet all these luxuries and privileges are at your service at minimum rates.

Old Chronic Sores.

As a dressing for old chronic sores there is nothing so good as Chamberlain's Salve. While it is not advisable to heal old sores entirely they should be kept in a good condition, for which this salve is especially valuable. For sore nipples Chamberlain's Salve has no superior. For sale by all druggists.

Saved His Comrade's Life.
 "While returning from the Grand Army Encampment at Washington City, a comrade from Elgin, Ill., was taken with cholera morbus and was in a critical condition," says Mr. J. E. CAUGHT WITH A HOOK.

A fine mess of speckled beauties were received at the Bon Ton from an old time friend who sent them to the manager that they may be served to the patrons of this popular place. Call and get them now while they are fresh. They have a cook that knows how to fix them, and if you want a real treat in the eating line, why just give them a call, and you will be twice as glad.

REMEMBER!

That the Bon Ton is the only eating house in the city of Santa Fe that keeps open at night. The doors are never closed and you can get something to eat at any hour of the day or night.

The New Mexican aims to "please the best element in the community. It is always bright and it is always clean."

Work-Play.
Don't work too hard; it doesn't pay. Devote a little time to play. To mitigate your labor. When evening comes drop thoughts of toil. Instead of burning midnight oil. Drop in to see your neighbor. Don't play too hard; it doesn't pay. We all should do some work each day. To earn our bread and butter. At least go out in your back yard And make a show of working hard. Although you only putter.

First work, then play's the proper way. As you have heard the wise men say. And that's the way to do it. He who to either work or play Devotes his life, day after day. Is pretty sure to live it. —Somerville Journal.

"Yes," replied the girl's rich old father. "We ain't been able to trace ours back any farther than a certain robber who was hanged in 1604. Now, I s'pose you have a clear record right back to the ape, haven't you?"—Chicago Record-Herald.

Howie's Mutiny

By JED STRONG

Copyright, 1906, by P. C. Eastment

Howie glanced after Marcia with regret. Here was a splendid cruise spoiled almost at the outset. Just because he had ridiculed her matinee hero she had stamped her foot angrily and had declared that she wanted to be set ashore at the first opportunity, and Marcia was always as good as her word.

While he was still gazing at the companionway down which her slender figure had vanished Mrs. Lorraine came panting up the stairway.

"Mr. Howie," she said majestically, "my daughter informs me that she has been grossly insulted. I must ask that you put the yacht about at once and land us at the nearest port."

Howie made the mistake of trying to argue. "I merely said that Rowland Montague was a stick," he began, "and then Marcia grew angry and gave me back my ring and said she wanted to go home."

"I consider Mr. Montague a most admirable actor," announced the lady, who cared nothing for Montague, but who dearly loved a battle. "It was not polite of you to attack the judgment of your guests. Perhaps had it been a horse we should have had to abide your judgment, but of the finer arts you know nothing, and I am glad that my daughter has discovered her error in time to avoid an alliance with a man of such poor taste. Please put about at once."

Howie groaned. Of old he knew Mrs. Lorraine as an antagonist worthy of one's steel. She would persist in up-bolding Marcia in her bad temper. If they ever reached port with Marcia in this humor he could never hope to restore the engagement. In spite of her temper, or possibly because of it, Howie loved Marcia, and he was determined that at all hazards the yacht would not touch the landing at Palm Beach until a truce had been effected.

He was still pondering the matter when half an hour later Mrs. Lorraine's portly form reappeared upon the deck. Instead of coming toward him she went to the wheelhouse and presently she bore down upon him, the light of virtuous indignation firing her eye.

"I perceive that we are still headed northeast," she said as she approached. "I must insist that you turn about immediately."

She was almost sorry that she would not have this tractable young man for a son-in-law, but her joy was short lived, for when the sun set in the east it was plain to be seen that the compass card had been tampered with and there was an explosion that proved more diverting to the rest of the party than to Howie or the Lorraines.

It ended in the yacht's nose being swung around, and, with a pocket compass, Mrs. Lorraine verified the course. The rest were sorry that the trip was to be abandoned; but, full of the joy of victory, Mrs. Lorraine considered no one but herself.

It was barely light the next morning when the sound of pistol shots were heard on the deck, and the party rushed up the companionway. Up forward the crew had gathered and stood, sullen-faced, regarding the owner and his captain. At the appearance of the party Howie left the sailing master and came toward them.

"It's all right," he explained. "There was a mutiny, and I am afraid that the men have possession of the boat. They have promised not to interfere with our comfort, and they will land us at one of the Bahama group, with enough provisions to enable us to reach Nassau. They will give us the launch."

For a moment Mrs. Lorraine eyed the crew and seemed on the point of going forward to them, but to their great relief she elected to have hysterics instead and caused a diversion that occupied the entire party until the still civil steward announced breakfast.

The attention seemed more pleasant after breakfast. Apart from the fact that every man in the crew carried a revolver, ostentatiously displayed, they went about their work the same as usual. No detail of service was lacking, and Jimmy Travers declared a mutiny de luxe to be a positively novel and pleasant experience.

Mrs. Lorraine offered the men rapidly increasing sums to put the party ashore at Palm Beach, but the crew declined to accept within reach of the authorities, and even the good lady's threat to have the southern Atlantic squadron ordered in their pursuit the moment they reached a cable station did not move them.

They were stubborn, but polite, and finally even she gave up the endeavor and contented herself with sighing loudly from the depths of a deck chair as she watched Howie pace the deck.

Howie had his hand in a bandage, explaining lightly that he had barely been scratched by a bullet in the fight, and Marcia followed him about the deck with her sympathetic glance, though it was not until evening that she broke the conversational ice.

The full moon was just rising out of the sea as she came toward the spot where he was leaning against the rail. "Does your hand hurt very much?" she asked, trying to make her voice sound cold and polite.

"Not very much," was the indifferent answer. "That is the least of my troubles."

"It is very awkward," she conceded, "to have your boat seized."

"I don't care about the boat," he disclaimed. "They are welcome to the Irene for all I care. She would only serve to remind me of you, and I must put you out of my heart if I can."

"Do you care so much?" she asked wonderingly. "You did not seem to mind yesterday."

"I had some hope yesterday," he declared. "I realize now that there is none."

"Faint heart ne'er won fair lady," she quoted. He grasped her hand.

"Do you mean that, Marcia?" he demanded.

"Perhaps Montague is a little stiller," she conceded. "It is a very silly thing to quarrel over, anyway."

"And you are willing to make up?" For answer she slipped her hand within his bandaged member. The ring finger shone white and bare in the moonlight. She slipped the ring upon it.

"I was a very silly girl, Fred," she said penitently. "I do not deserve forgiveness."

"We never get our just deserts," he laughed, "and, besides, I should not have poked fun at Montague."

Mrs. Lorraine came up the companionway just in time to see two heads close together. Marcia saw her first.

"It's all right, mother," she laughed. "It was all a mistake."

With a sickening sense of defeat, the elder woman turned and went back to the cabin. With her hand still in his, Howie went forward to the wheelhouse. "It's all right," he said quietly. "Head back for the course."

The man at the wheel touched his cap respectfully and swung the wheel. Marcia started.

"And you have been in command all the time?" she demanded.

"Not exactly," he declared.

"But the mutiny?" she persisted.

"Made to order," he admitted. "When your mother espoused your cause I could see that nothing less than a mutiny would clear the air. You said yourself 'Faint heart ne'er won fair lady.'"

"Poor mother," sighed Marcia. "I don't think you will make an ideal son-in-law."

"But a good husband," he insisted, "and the head of the house."

"Poor mother," said Marcia again.

Spiders in History.

Spiders have played a greater part in history than most people are aware of. Everybody knows how the perseverance of a spider encouraged Robert Bruce to regain his kingdom of Scotland, but not so many know that, according to Jewish tradition, a spider saved David's life. Saul was hunting for him, and his soldiers approached a cave where David was hidden. Shortly before, however, a spider had spun her web at the mouth of the cave, and the soldiers, taking it for granted that he had taken refuge in the cave he must have broken the web, departed, forgetting the web might have been spun after as well as before his entrance.

Frederick William was king of Prussia, and an attempt was made to poison him with a cup of chocolate. By chance a spider fell into the cup, and for this reason the monarch gave the chocolate to a dog, who immediately died. Inquiry was made, with the result that the cook was hanged, and a large spider wrought in gold now decorates one of the chief rooms of the Winter palace at Potsdam in memory of the king's escape.

Well Recommended.

The buxom maid had been hinting that she did not think much of working out, and this, in conjunction with the nightly appearance of a rather sheepish young man, caused her mistress much apprehension.

"Martha, is it possible that you are thinking of getting married?"

"Yes," admitted Martha, blushing.

"Not that young fellow who has been calling on you lately?"

"Yes; he's the one."

"But you have known him only a few days."

"Three weeks come Thursday," corrected Martha.

"Do you think that is long enough to know a man before taking such an important step?"

"Well," answered Martha, with spirit, "that's 't' if he was some new fellow. He's well recommended. A perfectly lovely girl I know was engaged to him for a long time."—Everybody's Magazine.

Ruling Switzerland.

In Switzerland they have no idea that they are essentially idiots and must have great men and superior and divinely gifted intellects to rule them, and tell them what to do about their affairs. They do not think much of "ruling" in Switzerland nor much of the idea of divinely gifted intellects. All are great men in Switzerland, and one is as great and as divinely gifted as another. To the Swiss mind the great men are those that do something in science or literature, like Agassiz or De Saussure; but they have no particular fancy to be "ruled" by anybody, however great. You will find many an intelligent Swiss that cannot tell you the name of the president of Switzerland. He knows the name of the president of the United States, always, but he does not know who is at the head of his own country. Not because the interest he takes in his political affairs is small, for it is very great; but because who may be president of Switzerland is not important. Whoever he is, he amounts to nothing, he effects nothing, he "rules" nothing. The only rulers of Switzerland are the Swiss people.—Everybody's Magazine.

Age of Birds.

The doctrine of vegetarianism appears to be slightly shaken by the result of an investigation that an English newspaper has made into the subject of the longevity of birds. With one notable exception the carrion, or meat feeding birds, are the longer lived. The exception is the swan. The average ages of some of the best known birds are given in the following: Blackbird lives 12 years, black-cap 15, canary 24, crane 24, crow 10, eagle 100, fowl, common, 10; goldfinch 15, goose 50, heron 50, lark 13, linnet 23, nightingale 18, parrot 60, partridge 15, peacock 24, pelican 50, pheasant 15, pigeon 20, raven 100, robin 12, skylark 30, sparrow hawk 40, swan 100, thrush 10 and wren 5 years.

When Boston Was Young.

A book published in 1817 informs us that the fare by steamer from New York to New London, Conn., was $7, including board. The distance is given as 140 miles and the time twenty-one hours. The same book tells us that Boston is not yet a city, "because the people fear that the power invested in corporations would be injurious to their liberties." Further on it is stated that "this town is the headquarters of federalism in politics and Unitarianism in religion."

Four Days in the Year.

There are but four days in the year when the sun and clock exactly correspond. In other words, there are but four days of the 365 in which the sun is directly south at noon. The 15th of April and the 15th of June remember. August 31 and 24th of December. On these four days (and none else in the year) the sun and clock both the same time declare.

The Mexican Central has recently placed on sale tickets to New York and return, going via the Mexican Central to either Vera Cruz or Tampico, thence via the famous Ward Steamship Line to New York. The return will be by rail over any line to El Paso. The entire trip, covering thousands of miles, Havana, Cuba, and its famous Moro Castle, Newport, and a dozen of the largest cities of the United States, can be made for $122.50. A more delightful trip can not be planned, as stop-over privileges are allowed and the tickets are good for one year from the date of sale. The trip includes the City of Mexico, the "Paris of America." Further information can be secured by addressing A. Dulohery, Commercial Agent, El Paso, Texas, or W. D. GONE TO THAT HOUSE,
"ETERNAL IN HEAVENS"

Mrs. John C. Belcomb, of Raton, Joins Silent Majority—Former Resident of Santa Fe.

After a lingering and insidious illness, Mrs. John C. Belcomb, a young matron well known in Santa Fe, died at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon at her home in Raton. A telegram received here in the early evening conveyed the sad intelligence. The deceased was about twenty-eight years of age and leaves a daughter motherless in infancy besides the bereaved husband.

Mrs. Belcomb formerly resided in Santa Fe, and in maidenhood was Miss Pamela Lee Robertson. She was married here about two years ago to Mr. Belcomb who was at that time employed as a civil engineer by the Santa Fe Central Railway, which position he held up to the time of his removal to Raton. Prior to her marriage, the young woman was connected with the editorial department of the New Mexican, and she was a favorite in the younger element of society in Santa Fe. She was a relative of Associate Justice William H. Pope of the Territorial Supreme Court. She resided in this city probably two years before her marriage, having come here from Charleston, South Carolina.

Santa Fe friends will join with the residents of her home community in extending sympathy to the young husband in his hour of poignant grief. Frances, the baby daughter, is one year old.

The remains will be brought here for burial. The funeral will take place tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock from the Presbyterian Church. Interment will be in Fairview Cemetery.

FATAL STABBING
AFFRAY IN TAOS

No Bloody Military Operations Yet—Wool At 18 Cents Per Pound.

Special to the New Mexican.

Taos, N. M., July 24.—Two boys, one the son of the Widow Vigil, living a couple of miles out of town, the other his friend, named Diego and other boys, were fishing in Pueblo Creek Monday when they engaged in a quarrel. Diego stabbed young Vigil who died within a few minutes. An inquest was held at the court house with the result of reaching no conclusion, but adjourned for other witnesses to be called.

Mrs. Stevenson, of the Bureau of Anthropology is here, camped near town. Her secretary has gone to Washington. An involuntary armistice exists between the Anthropologists and the Indians. There is no probability of open hostilities or active military operations at an early date, as was feared for a while.

News of the railroad which is heading for Taos Valley from Raton has the road graded to Moreno Creek, 15 miles from Elizabethtown. A party of surveyors were near Taos last week, but little could be learned from them.

Taos Valley, the sleeping beauty of valleys, seems about to awaken from its slumber of a thousand years.

Considerable wool is coming here and is sought by the merchants at 18 cents per pound for best qualities. Peaches, apricots and plums are also beginning to come in.

The rains have been sufficient although not all that could be desired from the farmer's standpoint.

IN THE JUDICIAL DISTRICT COURT

Final Judgments in Favor of the Santa Fe Mercantile Company Rendered.

Having returned from Denver and the Elks' convention, A. M. Bergere, clerk of the first judicial court has buckled down to business again, and is engrossed in the work that piled up during his absence.

In the case of the Santa Fe Mercantile Company versus the London & Lancashire Fire Insurance Company of Liverpool, et al., judgments have been rendered against the defendants and the judgments are now being paid into court. Clerk Bergere has already received about $9,200, and a large amount is yet to come. Other cases in the jurisdiction of this court are as follows:

In Rio Arriba County T. D. Burns has filed a suit against J. M. Archuleta, Jr., to recover a balance due the plaintiff of $48 on a breach of contract for the payment of sheep. In the same county Mr. Burns is also the plaintiff in a suit brought against the Archuleta Mercantile Company on a note for $533.33.

In the first judicial district court for San Juan County an application was filed by Lillie A. Johnson administratrix, to be appointed as the guardian of three minor children and for permission to sell certain real estate. An order to that effect was entered. In the same county in the case of James Goodwin a similar order was entered.

A suit has been brought in the first judicial district court for Rio Arriba County by the McCord Mercantile Company of St. Joseph, Missouri, against E. R. Hunter in assumpsit for the recovery of $16.70 claimed to be due on an open account.

A suit has been filed in the first judicial district court for Santa Fe County, entitled C. W. Astler versus Antonio Ortiz, sheriff. It is a suit in replevin for the recovery of a bay horse and a set of harness.

TO DEFINE A CONTRABAND OF WAR

Recommended By Inter-Parliamentary Union—Sessions End—Next Meeting in Berlin.

London, July 25.—The Inter-Parliamentary Union concluded its session today. The decision as to the time and place for the next conference was left in the hands of the international council. It is expected the next conference will be held in Berlin.

The conference of the Inter-Parliamentary Union, after a prolonged debate, today adopted the following resolutions: The Inter-Parliamentary Union expressed the view that the second Hague conference should, first, by treaty, define a contraband of war as being restricted to arms, munitions of war and explosives.

Second, to reassert and confirm the principle that neither a ship carrying contrabands of war, nor other goods aboard such a ship not being a contraband of war, may be destroyed.

Third, to affirm that even belligerents' private property should be as immune at sea as in its own land.

The conference also adopted a resolution in favor of a discussion by the Hague conference of a means to cut down the "intolerable expenditure on armaments."

The delegates were entertained at luncheon at the House of Lords. Mr. Bryan made the hit of the occasion with a brilliant piece of word painting, describing the glories of peace, his text being that a noble life is better than a death on the battle field.

Prolonged applause greeted Mr. Bryan's oratorical effort.

CLEVER DEAL IN PANAMA BONDS

Poor Clerk Bids in Five Million Dollars Worth—Can Now Sell Option Making $2,850.

New York, July 25.—The identity of Samuel Byerley, a successful bidder for five million dollars of the new Panama Canal two per cent bonds was learned yesterday. He is a clerk in the accounting department of the American Express Company. The general opinion is that Byerley is taking a little flyer which has cost him nothing more tangible than nerve. Under the terms of sale no money need be put up until August 1st. Byerley made four bids ranging from $104.125 to $103.867. The syndicate that gets half of the $30,000,000 worth of bonds put up the price or worth yesterday of $104.40. It was whispered by bond experts that should Byerley sell his option at 104 he would clear up $2,850 without putting up a cent.

FEW VIOLATIONS
8 HOUR DAY

War Department Has Only Two Complaints in Three Years—Cases of Necessity.

Washington, July 25.—It is said at the war department that there have been but two complaints during the last three years of violations of the eight hour law by government contractors. The last occurred at Fort Wingate, New Mexico, where house mechanics were working ten hours a day but the contractor complained that there was a real emergency for this as it was necessary to rush the work and have his materials in hand and brought up before all transportation facilities were absorbed by the large movements of troops attending maneuvers.

UNIFORMITY IN STEEL RAILS

London, July 25.—A general meeting of the members of the American Institute of Mining Engineers was held here today under the presidency of Robert W. Hunt of Chicago. Many members of the British Iron and Steel Institute also attended. In an address Mr. Hunt surveyed the progress achieved by metallurgy. A Ladd Colby, of New York, in a paper, advocated an international standard by which the quality of steel rails can be established.

to death here today, and the assassins have escaped.

Salamatoff, who was assistant to chief of Gendarmes of the Province of Warsaw, had been active in repressive measures. He was walking in the street about noon when attacked by two men who stabbed him several times and then, as he sank to the ground in a dying condition, walked quickly away in different directions, no spectators trying to stop them. Arresting Jews Who Defend Themselves.

Olesso, July 25.—This city is comparatively quiet today. About seventy Jews have been arrested on suspicion of belonging to a self defense organization. In the disturbances yesterday two Jews were killed, seventeen were wounded and twenty-seven shops were wrecked.

Permanent Parliament Committee in Session.

St. Petersburg, July 25.—Prince Dolgoroukoff's permanent parliament committee held several sessions today but the greatest secrecy is observed to prevent the government from getting wind of the decisions. Meantime government notes, inspired by Premier Stolypin, are being busily issued, assuring the public of the government's honorable intentions to continue the liberal regime, but the fair words fall on deaf ears.

May Be General Strike July 28.

Moscow, July 25.—It is reported, but not confirmed, that the workmen's council has decided in favor of a general strike, to begin July 28th.

Boistering Up Russia's Bonds.

St. Petersburg, July 25.—Not a word of the military disorders is now permitted to be published. The Reich today says a financial crash is impending as the government is resorting to Count Witte's old system by which millions are used in Berlin and Paris as well as St. Petersburg to bolster up the Russian bonds. In the provinces suppression of newspapers and the arrest of agitators continue unabated. Up to the present time there is no evidence of the expected general rising of peasantry but news travels slowly in this country.

Captain Fred Fornoff of the New Mexico Mounted Police today received a telegram from Lieutenant Cipriano Baca at El Paso stating that the officer had arrested a man known as "Babe" Hunt near Estes, Socorro County and had taken him over to officers from McCulloch County, Texas. The man is wanted there on a charge of larceny of cattle.
