On April 28 in St. Georges, an official of the Public Workers Union one of seven unions affiliated to the Grenada Trade Union Council (GTUC), said the unions are protesting taxes introduced in the 1991 budget. The taxes, presented last December, include increased water rates, and a 10% debt service levy on workers' earnings above US$4,494.38 per year. The GTUC is comprised of unions representing bank workers, commercial and industrial workers, teachers, technical workers, taxi owners and drivers, seamen and waterfront workers union and public service employees. The unions planned to use the May Day celebrations as an opportunity to demonstrate against the taxes.
