According to a recent report by the US State Department, Chile ranked first among Latin American nations last year in terms of anti-US terrorist attacks. The report added that terrorism increased significantly after the installation of civilian President Patricio Aylwin. On May 3, Chilean Foreign Minister Enrique Silva Cimma said the statement on terrorism in Chile "is simply...exaggerated." Government General Secretary Enrique Correa said, "We do not share the evaluation derived from this State Department document." (Basic data from AFP, 05/03/91)
