On May 16, the Inter-American Development Bank (IDB) approved a $33.9 million loan for Bolivia to support a program aimed at improving basic health services. The project to be administered by the Ministry of Social Security and Public Health will have a total price tag of $39.1 million, IDB officials said. The program's main objectives are to expand and improve coverage of basic health services, to strengthen the health system's operations capacity and to help begin decentralizing the services network. Twelve districts will be targeted for the project six urban and six rural in six of the Bolivia's nine departments. (Basic data from AFP, 05/16/91)
