LICENSED GAMING DOOMED

Bill Passed Prohibiting It After 1907--Educational Bill Passes Council.

THE COUNCIL.
42d Day--Afternoon Session,
March 20.

The Joint Conference Committee worked all yesterday afternoon drafting the new appropriation bill, and the Council did not convene until almost 6 o'clock. President Spies presided and all members were present except Mr. Dalles.

A message from the House was received announcing the passage of a number of bills at the session of the evening before.

Mr. Duncan introduced Council Bill Number 130, an act to pay for bills printed in Spanish. This bill is a deficiency bill similar to another in the original appropriation bill. It was read and passed the Council by a vote of 10 ayes, 1 nay. Mr. Cameron dissenting. Mr. Richards then moved adjournment but the motion was lost.

Mr. Miera moved to suspend the rules and take up House Bill Number 178, an act to abolish the office of public printer. The motion to suspend was lost by a vote of 7 ayes, 4 nays, it requiring a two-thirds vote to suspend the rules. Those voting nay were Cameron, Martinez, Richards and Mr. President. Mr. Richards then moved to adjourn which motion prevailed.

Previous to adjournment, the Council held a brief executive session and the following nominations by the Governor were confirmed:

THE COUNCIL.
13d Day--Morning Session March 21.

The Council did not convene this morning until the House had finished work on the appropriation bill. When the House adjourned, President Spies called the Council to order, the chaplain offered the invocation and the chief clerk read the roll, all answering present except Mr. Dalles. The reading of the journal was dispensed with and the same ordered approved.

A message from the House was received announcing the passage of seven House bills and eight Council bills. Among the House bills was the appropriation bill.

A message from the Governor was received and filed with the chief clerk.

Upon motion of Mr. Duncan the rules were suspended and the Council took up House Bill Number 169, an act relative to forming school districts. The bill was read in full and passed by unanimous vote.

NEXT WAR WILL BE WITH JAPAN

Declares U. S. Senator Stone of Missouri

JAPS WANT PHILIPPINES

Could Sieze Islands But Would Eventually Suffer Terrible Defeat.

Kansas City, Mo., March 21.—United States Senator William J. Stone in the course of a speech here last night at the monthly dinner of the Kolbe and Fork Club said:

"If we are to have serious trouble with any nation it will be with Japan. Japan wants the Philippines. I am not sure that it would not be the best for all concerned if she would get them, but one thing is certain, and that is, she will never get them with our consent, but we may have trouble in keeping them. Japan would seize the archipelago in a week and we would then have to send over a big enough fleet to wipe Japan from the sea. That would be a huge and costly task."

BAD WASHOUT ON SOUTHERN PACIFIC

Near Ogden, Utah, Ties Up All Traffic Indefinitely--Great Salt Lake On Rampage.

Ogden, Utah, March 21.—All train service on the Southern Pacific Railroad was annulled last night by the washing out of part of the Ogden cut-off across Great Salt Lake. A terrific wind storm lashed the waters of the lake into mighty waves that moved huge boulders placed to protect the embankments and trampling on the western approach to the lake. At midnight the tracks at Rainbow, thirty-five miles west of Ogden, were submerged and since then no trains from the West have reached Ogden.

at Roswell $17,000; Insane Asylum at Las Vegas $60,000; Miners' Hospital $10,000; Asylum for the Blind at Alamogordo $12,500; Reform School at El Rito $5,000; Deaf and Dumb Asylum at Santa Fe $7,500.

The appropriations for hospitals and charitable institutions are the same as in the Council Substitute Bill and the original provisions for the penitentiary and for the salaries of territorial officers remain as in the original draft of the Council Substitute for the House Bill. Section 20 of the new bill gives the members of the Mounted Police $25 each additional pay for railroad fare, etc. The deficiencies as given in the Council Substitute remain practically the same in this bill.

The bond issue for educational institutions is divided as follows: University of New Mexico $30,000; Military Institute at Roswell $20,000; Normal University at Las Vegas $10,000; Normal School at Silver City $10,000; School of Mines at Socorro $15,000; College of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts $20,000; Miners' Hospital $10,000.

The amendments from the Council are as follows:

Incidental expenses of the Bureau of Immigration $4,000; providing that the Bureau of Immigration may appoint one or more agents outside of New Mexico to encourage immigration; for secretary of the Bureau of Immigration $1,500; for fish and game warden $500; changing the Board of Equalization to read $14,000 instead of $14,000 as erroneously appeared in the written copy; salary of attorney general $3,000.

THE HOUSE.
43d Day--Morning Session, March 21.

Pursuant to adjournment the House met at 11:20 o'clock this morning, delay being caused by a caucus of the Republican members.

The chaplain offered the invocation and the chief clerk read the roll, all answering present.

A message from the Governor was received and filed with the chief clerk. Mr. Mullens asked to be allowed to make a minority report on House Resolution Number 9, but unanimous consent was refused him, Mr. Holt objecting.

The Conference Committee on the appropriation bill reported a bill recommending its passage. Mr. Holt explained the provisions of the measure and moved that its reading be dispensed with in order to save time.

This motion prevailed and the bill passed by viva voce vote. Mr. Holt then asked that the chief clerk be instructed to report the bill at once to the Council. The House then took a recess until 3 p. m.

THE COUNCIL.
43d Day--Afternoon Session, March 21.

The Council met this afternoon at 3 o'clock pursuant to adjournment.

House Bill Number 107, known as the Educational Bill, was taken up for consideration and passed, after the Council had amended the measure making a much less rigid educational qualification for county school superintendents. It is believed that this will result in the bill being killed, although it is possible that the House may concur in the amendment. As the New Mexican went to press, both the Council and House were in session and were busy considering and passing a large number of bills.

ALIENISTS DECLARE THAW IS INSANE

Sign Petition Asking For Lunacy Commission

NOW UP TO THE COURT

Defendant Suffering From Mental Disease and Should Be Sent to Asylum.

New York, March 21.—Seven alienists employed by District Attorney Jerome in the Thaw case today signed affidavits for presentation to Judge Fitzgerald when court convenes this afternoon for the appointment of a commission in lunacy to examine Harry K. Thaw.

Should Be Sent to Asylum.

The six alienists in their affidavits declare that Thaw is suffering from a form of paranoia; that he should not be discharged from custody; that if he should be discharged he would be dangerous to the public peace and safety and that it is reasonably certain he will never recover.

The seventh alienist, Dr. Hersch, agrees with his colleagues, except that he declares that Thaw cannot possibly recover.

An Irrational Note.

The document includes also an affidavit by Irving Cobb which is reported to describe an irrational note given him a few weeks ago by Thaw in which Thaw comments upon his wife's testimony and upon the conduct of the prosecution.

Knew What He Was Doing.

In the affidavit signed by Drs. Flint, Mahon, McDonald, Pritchard, Ferris, Hirsch and Diefendorf, the alienists declare that Thaw knew both the nature and quality of his act in shooting Stanford White.

Justice Fitzgerald took the bench at 2:05 o'clock this afternoon to hear the affidavits asking for the appointment of a lunacy commission. Thaw was not in court.

Defense to Have a Hearing.

After Jerome had presented his affidavits he said he would like to introduce the testimony of Dr. Hamilton. Counsel Delmas said that he had not been served with copies of the affidavits prepared under the direction of the district attorney until 12:18 o'clock this afternoon and he wanted more time in which to prepare his answer. He also objected to a further examination of Dr. Hamilton by Jerome and Justice Fitzgerald refused to permit such an examination.

The hearing was then adjourned until tomorrow, when the jury will again be excoised until Monday. Justice Fitzgerald allowed both sides until Saturday afternoon to present additional affidavits.

Delmas Must Bear Blame.

John B. Gleason, of the counsel for Thaw said today that Attorney Delmas is responsible if a lunacy commission is appointed as it was he who called Dr. Hamilton to the stand and told Jerome to go ahead and ask the witness anything he wished to. Delmas says he will gladly assume all such responsibility.

Counsel O'Reilly, for the defense, said that Thaw's counsel had no doubt of being able to convince the court or the Insanity Commission of Thaw's sanity. He said each one of the counsel for the defense would submit an affidavit to the effect that Thaw had been all during the trial and was now capable of advising with his attorneys.

HOMESTEAD CONTEST ON THE PINTADA

Armijo vs. Barela—Non-Residence and Non-Compliance With Law Alleged.

Eduardo Armijo, a sheep raiser on the Arroyo Pintada, eight miles northwest of Encino postoffice, a station on the El Paso & Southwestern Railroad, is in the city on business before the U. S. land office. He has contested the homestead entry of Miguel Barela of Las Vegas, deceased. The entry is now being held by the two daughters of the deceased Melvina and Paolina Barela, who, however, so Armijo alleges, have not resided thereon, have not complied with the homestead law, but are residents of Las Vegas. The contestant and contestees are in the city. The two quarter sections are adjoining.

Mr. Armijo states that sheep in his section are in the best possible condition and in better shape than they were at this time last year. He expects the coming lambing and shearing season in Guadalupe County will be productive of the very best results. Surface water is getting somewhat scarce, but there is a great deal of moisture in the ground, the old grass is good and new grass is appearing in many spots.

Mr. Armijo was formerly a resident of this city and has many acquaintances here. He lived for ten years in Oklahoma and returned to New Mexico seven years ago, settling four years ago at his present ranch in Guadalupe County.

Letter heads, bill heads, note heads, envelopes, of all sizes printed and sold by the New Mexican Printing Company at low rates and in quantities to suit purchaser.

FREIGHT RATES TO BE INCREASED

On Grain and Coal by Western Rail- roads

RETALIATORY MOVEMENT

For Recent Adverse Legisla- tion by Various State Legislatures.

Chicago, Ill., March 21.—A dispatch to the Record-Herald from Washington says:

"In retaliation for the action of the various state legislatures providing for two-cent passenger fares and other legislation against them, the railroads of the West have served notice upon the Interstate Commerce Commission of an increase in the freight rates on grain and coal. This will result in a test of the constitutionality of the federal rate law. The railroads are unable to carry these commodities at the rates now prevailing and that an increase is absolutely necessary."

RIVERS FALLING IN CALIFORNIA

Although the Worst of the Flood is Over Railroad Communication is Still at a Standstill.

San Francisco, Calif., March 20.—Owing to the floods in many parts of the state there is practically no railroad communication between this city and other points North, South or East. No trains left here or arrived this morning and the railroad officials are unable to state when the schedules will be resumed.

The rivers in the northern part of the state are falling rapidly, although the town of Broderick on the Sacramento River in Yolo County is still completely under water. The city of Sacramento has suffered no damage and is taking care of many flood refugees. At Stockton the flood is over and business has been resumed. The damage there has not yet been estimated but will be very heavy.

80 Miles of Railroad Gone.

Los Angeles, Calif., March 21.—For the first time in ten years all rail communication with San Francisco and the north was severed today as a result of the floods and numerous washouts on all three of the transcontinental lines, the Santa Fe suffering the least. The Salt Lake line is in worse shape than ever. For weeks all through traffic on the Clark road has suspended owing to the destruction of eighty miles of the road bed in the Meadow Valley Canon in Utah. Notice has been received here stating that rain is again falling there and that the track cannot be restored there in several months. The damage it is stated is already in excess of $2,000,000.

San Francisco, Calif., March 21.—The grand jury met at 10 o'clock this morning and resumed its investigation of the alleged telephone franchise graft. BOOSTING NEW MEXICO.

The latest issue of the Western Trail of which thousands of copies are distributed each month by the Rock Island system, is a most beautifully illustrated New Mexico number. The first page article is by the Secretary of the Bureau of Immigration, "The Tularosa Valley," "The Estancia Valley," "The Naravisa Country," by Willard Bellman, "Modern Methods of Farming in New Mexico," "Santa Rosa, Guadalupe County," "Logan, Union County," "Tucumanari," by D. J. Ahor, are the headings of some of the more striking articles. The introductory article, mentioned above, says:

"That 1,200,000 acres of public land were filed upon by homesteaders in New Mexico during the year just closed surprised even those who had kept close watch over events in the Southwest. There were no advance agents, no blowing of trumpets to announce this great hegin of land-hungry men and women from the great Middle West and the Far East. They simply came and it seems as if they are only the advance guard of a still mightier host which is coming to take possession of this fair Land of Sunshine. Only a short time ago, it was announced authoritatively, that 1,000,000 acres is the limit of the area that can be profitably irrigated in New Mexico, and now arrive these newcomers and set these announcements of scientists at naught by cultivating 1,000,000 acres without a drop of irrigation water from flowing streams. Verily, it seems like a miracle! Especially, in the country tributary to the Rock Island-Prisco Lines, large areas of the homestead lands have been taken up during the past year and here the homesteaders have been most successful with dry farming. The future possibilities can be best estimated by stating that although over 1,000,000 acres of land were entered under the homestead and desert land laws during the past twelve months, there still remain over 40,000,000 acres subject to entry, and the best part of these lands are located in the counties reached directly or indirectly by the Rock Island-Prisco Lines."

"That this influx of homesteaders has had much to do with the unparalleled prosperity of the Sunshine Territory during the past year goes without saying; that much greater prosperity is to come from it in the future is as self-evident as the proposition that an increase of desirable population and of industry means an increase of wealth. Since 1900, the agricultural production of the Territory has doubled, that is, it has increased from $10,000,000 to $20,000,000 a year in value, the last named figures having been reached last year. This year has already begun so auspiciously for the farmers, especially the dry farmers, that it can be confidently predicted that agricultural production will reach $25,000,000 or $30,000,000. The many new homes, the many prosperous farms, the many orchards that are being planted, the new settlements, the new towns, the new schools, the new churches that are dotting New Mexico everywhere are a cordial invitation for others to come to this land of opportunity where good crops can be raised on land that can be had for nothing—except the land office fees—where good markets for crops abound and where the opportunities for the industrious and the sagacious are plentiful on every side."

"But not only in farming has there been great prosperity. For the first time in many years, the mineral production of New Mexico exceeded $6,000,000 in value. Coal, almost $3,000,000 worth, is the principal item in this large sum and the establishment of new coal camps on a large scale in Colfax County, and the resumption of coal mining in other counties promise that the increase in coal production will continue right along. Of copper, over $1,000,000 worth was produced; of zinc, the production exceeded $500,000 in value; of gold, it reached $500,000; of silver, $250,000, and of lead one-third of a million dollars. Cement production is becoming an important factor, for the raw material needed is to be found in every county and the demand for it exceeds the supply by far. Building stone, marble, gypsum, lime, salt, are some of the other minerals of which New Mexico has an abundant supply and which it is producing in increasing quantities each year."

"The stock industry so closely allied with agriculture as to be really part of it, flourished in 1906, and especially sheep owners made greater profits than they have for many years past. Their wool brought them $5,000,000, their lambs almost as much more, and they still have upon the ranges of the Territory some 6,000,000 sheep and lambs. The cattlemen have also fared well and shipped almost 100,000 head to market, and have remaining on the range almost a million more. Goats have done well and the number has increased to a quarter million."

"The lumber industry, although the output reached 150,000,000 feet last year, has made scarcely an impression on New Mexico's forests, 6,000,000 acres of which are now included in reserves, which taken with the fact that the federal government has withdrawn from entry during the year 8,400,000 acres of coal lands assures New Mexico a fuel supply for centuries to come."

"Naturally, a Territory covering 78,000,000 acres, of which over 40,000,000 acres are held for homesteaders, which has 6,000,000 acres of forest reserves, 8,000,000 acres of coal reserves, and where production and wealth are calculated by the millions of dollars annually, attracts the capitalist, the investor, the railroad builder. During the year 500 miles of railroad was completed in the Territory. A large portion of this mileage was built principally to develop the immense coal deposits of the Territory. Thus there is plenty of employment for the laborer and the mechanic both in coal and in railroad construction camps so that no man able to work need go without a job."

"The forty-four banks of the Territory on January 1st, had on deposit over $12,000,000. But this is merely a small measure of the prosperity of the Territory, for money does not lie long where there is so much opportunity to invest it profitably, besides many mercantile houses not classed as banks, do a banking business."

"In this resume, too short for detail, mention must be made of the climate of the Territory which continues to bring hope and healing to an increasing number of healthseekers as well as of the many scenic and other attractions for tourists which only lately have been advertised by the railroads as they should be. As a consequence, tourists are arriving in greater numbers than ever before and add to the prosperity of the Southwest as well as to advertise its resources, with a splendid school system, a law-abiding people, a model administration of justice and with unlimited resources, gaining recognition throughout the country. New Mexico's future is indeed bright. That its growth during the next few years will astonish even the western states whose growth has been phenomenal, is a prediction that can be made confidently and without any undue optimism, for the results obtained in 1906 are a glorious prophecy of the future."

NEW MEXICO MUST DO MORE ADVERTISING.

One of the principal reasons why so many people rush to Los Angeles and other towns in southern California, either to spend part of the year there or to become permanent residents, is the great, grand and constant advertising furnished by Los Angeles people and by those of other towns in that section, and distributed broadcast whenever and wherever it can possibly do good. That this business counts, and counts in the right direction is fully demonstrated and thoroughly proven by the unprecedented growth and astonishing increase in population and in wealth of the city of Los Angeles and southern California. New Mexico is now attracting attention in the right direction, but compared with what is going on in southern California this is child's play. With more advertising of its health-giving climate, its various and extensive natural resources, its many chances to get up in the world, New Mexico would and could do much more in attracting capitalists, homesteaders, those in search of health, business men, manufacturers, mining investors and miners than is now the case."

There is a good deal being done by the Bureau of Immigration and by a few of the richer towns in the Territory, but considering the vast area and the great extent of the Sunshine Territory, what is being done is entirely too little. The people of the great State of Colorado, and great the state is compared with New Mexico, have also awakened and will endeavor to secure part of the immigration and influx of capital that have been pouring into southern California and especially into the larger cities, namely, Los Angeles, the principal one for some time past. The Denver Republican in a recent issue contained a very pertinent editorial which should be read and heeded by every citizen of New Mexico who desires to see this commonwealth increase in population, in wealth, in importance, in well-being as it ought to and as it can be made to do with proper work. The remarks of the Denver Republican apply in point to similar conditions in New Mexico, with the exception that New Mexico's climate is far superior and many of its natural resources greater than those of the Centennial state. The Republican says:

"The people of Los Angeles spend hundreds of thousands of dollars every year advertising that city; they maintain headquarters in New York, and they distribute tons of literature to tell the world what a wonderful country southern California is. The result is seen in the throngs of men and women who go to California to make homes or to enjoy for a few months the delights of the climate. That is what Los Angeles and southern California are doing, and the question is, what will Denver and the state of Colorado do?"

"At the dinner given by the Colorado Commercial Association Wednesday evening, a resolution was adopted to raise $100,000 for the purpose of placing the state in a more favorable light before the world. Subscriptions aggregating $7,000 were made before the close of the discussion which followed the dinner, and it is the intention to begin a thorough canvass to secure the entire sum required."

"The amount of money named is a trifle for Colorado to raise if the purpose be approved; and there surely is no reason to withhold approval from the Colorado Commercial Association and its work. It is made up of public-spirited men, and its purpose is to publish and distribute literature regarding the state, its resources, attractions and opportunities."

"There is no reason why southern California and Los Angeles should have any advantage over Denver and the remainder of Colorado in the opinion of homesteaders and pleasure-seekers, so far as natural conditions and factors are concerned. Nature has done more for Colorado than for southern California and far more for Denver than for Los Angeles. The advantage of California is in what its citizens are doing for themselves—in the greater effort they are putting forth to attract new people and to persuade men of means to invest in enterprises which promote material growth."

"There is nothing, unless it be lack of will and purpose, to prevent Colorado from doing as much as California. It is a question of money and effort. Let the money be subscribed and the proper effort put forth, and the good results will begin to appear very soon. President Roosevelt said that Colorado should be 'the playground of the people of the United States.' Why not then let all the people know what he saw so clearly and recognized so distinctly. With proper effort the money needed can be raised and the movement for a greater Denver and a more widely famous Colorado can be begun at once."

The Sunday closing law will hereafter be strictly enforced in the First Judicial District. This is as it should be. The action of Judge McFie at the present term of court in cases where indictments for violation of the Sunday closing law were found by the grand jury, is pretty good proof of this. Public opinion will sustain Judge McFie in the matter. District Attorney R. C. Gortner will come in for his share of commendation. The Sunday closing law is wholesome and proper. It should be thoroughly respected throughout the length and breadth of the Territory."

The session is about over and now for the campaign of 1908. It is a very fortunate thing for the Republican party of New Mexico that this is fifteen months off. Anyone at all acquainted with the situation must know this to be so. This matter will be discussed fully as time advances and in such a manner that the people, and especially the Republicans of New Mexico will know and be fully enlightened when the time for the next campaign rolls around. It is a long time that has no turn in politics as well as in everything else in life."

The Garfield and Coronado County projects may be brought up again in the next Assembly, be it Territorial or State. However, in the meantime, the New Mexican hopes that better and wiser counsel will prevail, and that the citizens of East Las Vegas and of Las Vegas will get together for a Greater Las Vegas. That is the way it looks to an outsider and not only to one, but to nine out of ten of the outsiders who become acquainted with the situation in the Meadow City. Get together for one town and for one great big town at that."

No legislation that favors delinquent taxpayers or puts a premium upon the non-payment of taxes by taxpayers should become law. Such measures are rank injustice to the honest taxpayers and simply embolden and encourage the dishonest tax-dodgers and knucklers. There are enough loop holes now by which the latter class benefits materially at the expense of the honest citizens who make fair returns and pay taxes properly as the law requires."

President Spies made an invaluable record as a presiding officer and as a member of the Council. He acquitted himself as his friends hoped that he would when he was elected. He is certainly one of the growing men of the Sunshine Territory and future Sunshine State. His record in the Assembly will bear the fullest scrutiny and closest examination. Certainly the people of the county of San Miguel did the right thing at the right time by electing him by the overwhelming majority which he received at the polls November 6th last."

The session is about over and all joking laid aside it must be admitted that Councilman J. O. Cameron of the Twelfth District did mighty good work for his constituents. He took advantage of every possible point in the strained political and legislative situation in the Council and especially of the errors and mistakes of the administration members of that body. The man who picks Mr. Cameron out for a champion will surely be left and that far behind."

Whatever good and up to date legislation there was had in the Thirty-seventh Legislative Assembly is absolutely and unqualifiedly due to the "swift seventeen" Republicans who stood shoulder and shoulder for the rights and for the benefits of the commonwealth, as well as for the cohesion and well being of the Republican party of which they are members, and which elected them to be members of the House of Representatives."

Speaker Roman L. Baca and Representative E. C. Abbott, of Santa Fe County, acted untiedly and harmoniously for the best interests of their constituents and of the Territory at large, during the session which closes tonight. Their good work for this city and county will tell for many years to come in the right direction. The New Mexican will take pleasure in due course of time in describing it fully."

A QUEER OLD GUN.

The Way the Ancient Matchlock Was Loaded and Fired.

Among the arms now obsolete which formed a large part of the infantry equipment in the days when the army was started was the pike, which was in the form of a spear, with a flat and pointed head, mounted on a staff from thirteen to eighteen feet long. The firearm in general use at the time was the matchlock.

What would a sergeant major of the present day, with his men armed with the magazine rifle, think of such a weapon as this: "Attached to the lock of this musket was a pan; also a cock, the hammer of which was somewhat in the form of a bird's, serpent's or dog's head. This head was split, and a screw compressed on eased the slits. The piece being loaded first with powder and then with ball, some powder was poured into the pan. The pan was then shut to keep this 'priming' from dropping out and to keep it dry. When the soldier wished to fire, he fastened his burning match into the slit of the cock, opened the pan, looked to his priming, presented and pulled the trigger. The match, falling into the powder in the pan, fired it."

"Between the pan and breach of the barrel communication was established by means of a small hole. When the piece was being loaded the grains of powder were naturally rammed and shaken down close to this hole, and when priming the soldier took care to perfect the communication of the powder in the pan with that in the barrel. Thus the explosion in the pan caused the ignition of the charge."—London Graphic.

SILK OF THE SPIDER.

The Delicate Machinery That Spins the Liquid Threads.

The spider is able to secrete at least three forms of silk stuff—the white which forms the web, and the ensnathment of captives and the egg cocoon; the brown mass that fills the cocoon interior and the glossy yellow which forms the inside of the egg. The glands end in minute ducts which empty into spinning spools regularly arranged along the sides and upon the tips of the six spinnerets, or "spinning mammals," or "spinning fingers," which are placed just beneath the apex of the abdomen. The spinnerets are movable and can be swung wide apart or pushed closely together and the spinning spools can be managed in the same way."

The silk glands are infolded in muscular tissue, pressure upon which, at the will of the spider, forces the liquid silk through the duct into the spool, whence it issues as a minute filament, since it hardens upon contact with the air. One thread as seen in a web may be made up of a number of the filaments and is formed by putting the tips of the spools together as the liquid jets are forced out of the ducts. When the spinnerets are joined and a number of the spools are emptied at once their contents merge, and the sheets or ribbons are formed which one sees in the ensnathment of a captive or the making of Argiope's central shield. This delicate machinery the owner operates with utmost skill, bringing into play now one part and now another and again the whole with unflinching deftness and a mastery complete.—Dr. H. C. McCook in Harper's.

A QUEER HOUSE.

The Novel and Famous Fossil Bone Cabin in Wyoming.

"The queerest house in the world," said a zoologist, "is undoubtedly the famous bone cabin in Wyoming, near the Medicine Bow river. This cabin's foundations are built of fossil bones. 'Bones of dinosaurs—jaws of the diplocodus, teeth of the brontosaurus, knuckles of the ichthyosaurus, vertebrae of the camarasaurus, chunks of the barosaurus, the cetiosaurus, the brachiosaurus, the stegosaurus, the ornithomimus or bird catching dinosaur—all entered into this wonderful cabin's foundations, making it the most curious and most costly edifice in America."

"This hut was built by a Mexican sheep herder who had happened by chance on the grandest extinct animal bed in the world. This was a plot about fifty yards square, wherein lay in rich profusion the bones of all the animals of the reptilian age. The heaviest and the lightest, the largest and the smallest, the most tranquil and the most ferocious, lay side by side."

"The place was evidently once a river bar, and the dead bodies that floated down the stream were here arrested to lie for hundreds of thousands of years till a sheep herder came along and, rooting among bones as big as bowlders, set about the building of the world's queerest cabin."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Grip Facts.

The grip is not simply a bad cold, and this fact is not widely known. It resembles a cold in some respects, and is often wrongly diagnosed by the victims as grip. The grip is a malady which has laws of its own, both as to origin and progress after development. According to the doctors, it must run its course—there is no special remedy that can directly destroy the infection, no drug that can kill the bacillus or neutralize its toxin. This also is worth knowing. The main thing is to nurse with care and give the system the best possible aid in its efforts to throw off the poison.—Baltimore American.

Not Thirsty.

Jane, the bright new maid, always anxious to please, had been entrusted with the care of a little aquarium, in which the goldfish had always thrived very well until Jane came on the scene. The first day she arrived she gave them fresh water, as instructed, and then left them to their own devices. But, alas, one morning the little fishes were found floating feebly on their backs. "Jane," called the anxious mistress, regarding her pets with concern, "have you given the fish any fresh water lately?" "No, ma'am, Bless their little hearts, they haven't drunk the water I gave them last month yet!"

A Normal Disadvantage.

"Why do reformers so often come to grief?" "I have often asked the question," answered Senator Sorghum. "I think it must be because they take up politics as an incidental diversion instead of a regular business. It's the difference between the amateur and the professional."—Washington Star.

Shopping Politeness.

"Never point, my dear," said the mother gently. "But, mamma," objected the little girl, "suppose I don't know the name of the thing?" "Then let the salesman show you all he has in stock until he comes to the article that is desired."—New York Press.

OLD TIME STYLES.

The Fashions in Ladies' Hats in Richmond After the War.

A southern lady in a diary which she kept throughout the civil war tells of a bonnet which she made and which was regarded as "quite stunning." The author of "Dixie After the War" quotes from the diary as follows: "We had been wearing coal scuttle bonnets of plaited straw, trimmed with corn shuck rosettes. I made fifteen one spring, acquired a fine name as a milliner and was paid for my work."

I recall one that was quite stunning. I got hold of a bit of much worn white ribbon and dyed it an exquisite shade of green with a tea made of coffee berries. Coffee berries dye a lovely green. You might remember that if you are ever in war and blockaded."

When the northern ladies appeared on the streets of Richmond they did not seem to have on any bonnets at all. They wore tiny, three cornered affairs, tied on with narrow strings, and all their hair showing in the back. We thought them the most absurd and trifling things. But we made haste to get some."

The Yankees introduced some new fashions in other things besides clothes that I remember vividly, one being canned fruit. I had never seen any canned fruit before the Yankees came. Pleasant innovations in food were like to leave lasting impressions on one who had been living on next to nothing for an indefinite period."

Piccadilly.

A theory as to the origin of Piccadilly was put forward by Archdeacon Bickerseth many years ago. He had discovered a Piccadilly among the Chilterns, the central one of three conical hills near Irvinghoe, and he learned that this hill had at one time been known also as Peaked hill. Might not London's Piccadilly likewise be a Peaked hill? No doubt the hill in Piccadilly is not remarkably peaky, but, then, the same thing might be said of the Derbyshire peak itself. There is another Piccadilly near Aberystwyth, and yet another near Bolton. But in the provinces one always suspects borrowing from London in such cases. There are Hyde Park Corners in provincial towns that have no Hyde park to justify them.—London Chronicle.

Imperative.

An infantry soldier named Scheiber died on the last day of his leave in his home in a little village in upper Austria. The village burgomaster, himself an old soldier, remembered that the commanding officer of Scheiber's regiment should be notified of the death, and he proceeded to do so in the following letter:

"The undersigned village burgomaster requests on behalf of the soldier Scheiber two days' more leave, as otherwise his funeral cannot take place."—Vienna Press.

Remarkable Vision.

An old woman who had been in the infantry with sore eyes told a neighbor that the doctor took out her eyes and scraped them with lances. "Nonsense, woman," replied the other. "You shouldn't believe all ye hear. The doctors would only be stuffing ye." "Oh, but ye know it's no use saying that, for I awakened up out of the chloroform and saw both of my eyes lying on the table!"

The Dad—My son, I want to tell you that the secret of my success, as it must be of any man's, is hard work. The Son—Sh! Dad, I don't care to hear other people's secrets, and I am too much of a gentleman to take advantage of information gained that way. Say no more.—Cleveland Leader.

The Fourth Lady In Waiting.

By EDITH J. HULBERT.

Copyright, 1906, by P. C. Eastmont.

"A herald from his imperial majesty the czar of Russia!"

There was a flare of trumpets, an eager swaying of the lines of courtiers, a soft ripple of laughter and then silence.

Before me stretched an interminable path of red velvet, flanked on either side by rows of smiling, bowing creatures clad in rainbow hued satins, velvets and glittering with jewels. At the farther end, on a throne of ivory and gold, sat a regal, white robed woman, crowned and girdled with diamonds. Behind her stood two dusky giants majestically waving fans of peacock feathers. At her feet knelt two tiny pages attired in blue and silver.

She was the queen of Bodalva and one of the most beautiful women in the world. I was a nobody. It was my province to deliver into her royal hand the scroll entrusted to my keeping by my gracious master. For weeks I had been looking forward to this audience with feverish eagerness. But now, at the crucial moment, when grace of bearing and fluency of speech would perhaps serve to win me a smile from those perfect lips, I stood gaping like a clown in the midst of her lackeys.

My feet refused to move, my knees trembled, the scroll in my hand shook, my tongue clove to the roof of my mouth. There was a muffled giggle on my right. Then a clear, exquisitely modulated voice smote the air like the notes of a golden harp.

"Methinks," said the queen, flashing laughter from her violet eyes, "that the messenger of our fair cousin, the czar, is unduly overawed by our presence. Be not afraid to approach, Sir Herald. We are quite harmless."

Again came that subdued giggle, all the more maddening that it had about it a baffling familiarity, but at a frown from the queen it was quickly suppressed.

Summoning all my will power, I plunged desperately forward and in a moment was kneeling at the foot of the throne between the two pages.

"The humble as well as the great, your majesty," I faltered, "are overcome by the spell of beauty."

She smiled and, indicating by a gesture that I was to rise, took the scroll and, unrolling it, hastily scanned its contents.

A change, swift and terrible, came over her countenance. Her eyes flashed. Her cheeks paled. Her lips straightened to a scarlet line. Tearing the parchment thence across, she cast it at my feet and blushed in a low tone of concentrated fury: "That varlet, I my answer to your master! See that you deliver it to him with all possible haste! Out of my sight! Begone!"

Then again her wonderful voice rang out in all its clearness.

"Men of Bodalva," she said, "never while Elfrida lives shall you bend your neck beneath the yoke of the Russian tyrant!"

"Long live Queen Sylvia!" shouted the courtiers. And from somewhere in the distance came the sounds of tumultuous applause—clapping, stamping and cries of "Brava! Brava!"

Mechanically I backed down the red velvet path, unheeding the hisses and black looks which beset me on either side, and presently found myself in a small anteroom, the walls of which were hung with doublets, hose, cloaks, plumed hats and various articles of armor. Almost immediately I was confronted by a tall, thin, flashily dressed man, who eyed me with an expression of extreme disfavor.

"See here," he said. "We don't want suppers in this company to forget their cues and occupy the center of the stage for ten minutes, and we don't want any lines thrown in either. The man who wrote that play can attend to that."

"But," I stammered, "the queen—Miss Elsworth—said something to me that wasn't in—"

"What's that to you?" he interrupted sarcastically. "You're not a star just yet, are you? Who are you, anyway? One of them young chaps from the college, ain't you?"

I nodded.

"First time on?"

Again I nodded. He shrugged his shoulders.

"Well, I won't report you if you look sharp for the rest of the performance. Luckily for you the boss is away to-night. What are you doing it for, anyway? Stage struck or Elsworth struck?"

I did not deign to answer, and, with a derisive guffaw, he went out, slamming the door behind him.

I had been alone scarcely a minute when that irritating giggle again fell upon my ears.

"Who's there?" I cried, flinging open the door and peering into the dimly lighted corridor.

"Sh! Go back!" whispered a feminine voice. And as I obeyed its command the doorway framed a petite golden haired damsel, resplendent in pink satin and a court train.

I seized her hands and drew her to the center of the room under the electric light.

"Elfrida!" I gasped. "What are you doing here?"

She dropped me a stately courtesy.

"The Countess Olga, fourth lady in waiting to her majesty Queen Sylvia, at your service," she said, with dignity. Then she giggled and blushed.

"It was you, then, who kept laughing all the time I was on the stage," I said reproachfully.

Elfrida looked penitent.

"It was mean of me," she admitted.

"But you did look so funny!" She giggled again at the recollection.

I made no reply in words, but I let her see that I forgave her.

"Where did you come from? How did you get here? Why haven't you written to me in all these weeks?" I asked as soon as I felt sure she thoroughly understood my mental attitude regarding her.

"Mine, Brenner's, New Haven. Skipped with the show Saturday night. Couldn't write. Watched every minute," she answered with unwomanly lucidity and brevity.

Elfrida always was different from other girls. This was why I made such a fool of myself over her last summer when my junior year that the governor was afraid I never would stand for the senior grind at Harvard. If he had remembered that I was on the crew, he wouldn't have been so scared. "I could not love thee, dear, so much loved I not honor more." I had quoted solemnly to Elfrida the night we said goodby.

That was why she was packed off to that beast of a Brenner when she should have been queening it in Albany society. She was so original that when there was no immediate danger of her eloping with me her father was afraid that she might take up slumming or typing or insist on going to the Philippines to nurse the soldiers.

Brenner had doubtless been apprised of these contingencies, but apparently the possibility of Elfrida succumbing to the ordinary schoolgirl variety of stage fever had occurred to no one.

Consequently with her power of resource it was mere child's play for her to "break jail," as she expressed it, during the relaxed vigilance of the Saturday evening recreation hour and subsequently to coax her way to the manager's presence. As far as he was concerned, to see was to engage. Did I mention that Elfrida was a ripping, tearing beauty? Well, such is the case, and she confided to me that she was paying for her own costumes.

"You must go back at once," I said sternly as soon as we had compared notes on the numerous exciting events which had occurred since our parting.

"And give up earning my own living," demanded Elfrida indignantly. "Just when I have proved how easily I can do it?"

"You've only been at it two days," I remarked, "and as it is the 4th of the month I suppose you still have most of your allowance."

Instantly I saw my mistake. Elfrida turned her back on me, and for fully two minutes every one of my usual methods of effecting a reconciliation failed utterly. At length a brilliant idea came to me.

"If you will leave the company to-night, I will," I said in the tone of one making the sacrifice of a lifetime.

Elfrida displayed signs of interest. She didn't of course know that my engagement, like that of a dozen other fellows who were members of the queen's guard, was only for the current week.

"You are willing, then, to forego the pursuit of the queen?" inquired Elfrida, quoting from the play with mock intensity. I detected, however, an undercurrent of real anxiety in her voice and hastened to reassure her.

"Anything that I gave up for your sake would be the next moment forgotten," I replied dramatically.

She allowed me to kiss her.

"I will do it," she said after a moment's deliberation. "But we will both have to forfeit our salaries."

I glanced at the clock. It was quarter after 9, and I knew by the noise outside that the first act was just over. Seizing the fourth lady in waiting unceremoniously by the arm, I hurried her down the corridor to the ladies' dressing room.

"Borrow a long dark coat if you haven't got one," I whispered, "and pin that flummy under it. I will have a cab here in five minutes, and you can get the 9:40 for New Haven."

She obeyed my directions, and twenty minutes later I stood alone on the station platform disconsolately watching the rapidly disappearing train that was bearing her Brennerwards.

I got back in time for the third act all right, but I didn't succeed in meeting Miss Elsworth after the performance, nor any other time, for that matter, for I kept my promise and quit that night.

In this case, however, virtue met with a substantial reward, for when the episode came to the ears of my father and of Elfrida's they were so impressed by my masterly handling of the situation that they permitted our engagement to be announced.

French School Meals.

In some of the rural districts of France every boy or girl takes to school in the morning a handful of vegetables and puts them in a large pan of water. They are then washed by one of the other pupils, who take turns at performing this duty. Later the vegetables are placed in a kettle with water and a piece of pork and are cooked while the lessons are going on. At 11:30 each scholar has a bowl of hot soup. To cover the cost of fuel and meat the richer pupils pay a small sum each month.

GIVEN UP TO DIE.

B. Spiegel, 1204 N. Virginia St. Evansville, Ind., writes: "For over five years I was troubled with kidney and bladder affections which caused me much pain and worry. I lost flesh and was all run down, and a year ago had to abandon work entirely. I had three of the best physicians who did me no good and I was practically given up to die. Foley's Kidney Cure was recommended and the first bottle gave me great relief, and after taking the second bottle I was entirely cured." Why not let it help you? For sale at the Ireland Pharmacy.

BOWSER'S HUMANITY.

Finds a Lost Boy In Street and Has an Idea He Will Adopt Him.

HIS KINDNESS IS MISPLACED.

Parents of the Child Accuse the Philanthropist of Stealing Their Offspring and Come Near Giving Him a Beating.

[Copyright, 1907, by P. C. Eastment.]
"Well, what is it this time?" asked Mrs. Bowser as Mr. Bowser came home the other evening to dinner holding the hand of a very dirty and very ragged boy about six years old.

"Didn't you hear this child crying and walling on the street?" he queried in reply.

"No, I didn't. There is so much noise all the time that I pay no attention to anything."

"Of course not. Half the population of the city can freeze and starve to death in front of the house, and you wouldn't concern yourself at all. Thank heaven that I was born with a heart."

"And what do you call this?"

"This is either a lost or an abandoned boy. I found him crouched against the fence and hungry and cold, and I have brought him in to succor
him. He is so cold and exhausted now that he can't talk, but after dinner we will question him. He may have been sent out by his mother to beg a few pennies to keep his brothers and sisters from starving, or his discouraged and desperate father may have abandoned him to the tender mercies of the world. See that he has a plate at the table."

Mrs. Bowser took a closer look at the boy and smiled. The boy returned her look and seemed to be confused and uneasy.

"Are you trying to scare him to death?" demanded Mr. Bowser.

Boy is Ravenous.

Mrs. Bowser did not answer, but led the way down to dinner and gave the boy a seat at the table and heaped his plate high with dinner. He was as ravenous as a young wolf, and after watching him for awhile Mr. Bowser said:

"Poor child! I suppose this is the first meal he has sat down to for many weeks. This place must seem like heaven to him."

"What are you going to do with him?" was asked.

"I don't know yet. He should be returned to his parents tomorrow if they can be found. If not, I may adopt him. One has only to glance at his face to see intelligence far beyond his years."

As the kid was cross eyed and snub nosed and flat faced, Mrs. Bowser couldn't see the intelligence part, but she made no comment, and directly
Mr. Bowser continued:

"If this child is adopted and reared
as he should be, who knows the goal
he will ultimately reach?"

"That's true. He has begun well by reaching for about everything on the table."

"Never mind that. Of course he hasn't been brought up to have table manners. I wish you were more humane, Mrs. Bowser."

"I could pick up a dozen lost children a day, but I have no clothes or food for them."

Calls Wife Hard Hearted.

"If you were a millionaire the poor would be no better off for it. You are selfish and hard hearted. You have no sympathy for those in misfortune. Any evening I may come home and find a man, woman or child frozen to death in the vestibule."

"We might put a kerosene stove out there," she suggested.

Mr. Bowser turned red in the face and was about to say something decisive when the lost boy looked around for something more to devour, and not finding it, he picked up his plate and slammed it down on the floor and began to kick and yell.

"Here, what the devil is this?" shouted Mr. Bowser as he rose up. "Young man, what do you want?"

"Sunthin' eat," replied the boy.
"Something to eat! Good lands, but you have eaten more than three birds men could already! You may get something more by and by, but not now.
We'll go up to the sitting room. Mrs.
Bowser, why didn't you smile at him and speak a few motherly words?"

Mrs. Bowser took the boy by the hand and led him upstairs. On the way they passed the cat, and he gave her a vicious kick. As he reached the sitting room he walked over to the

A Realistic
Introspective Tale.

Miriam Swift stood between the lace curtains looking out on the falling snow. Donald Forsythe was coming that evening to propose to her. He had not said this in so many words, but he had been attentive to her for a long while and had said, "This evening I shall call to ask you a very important question." There was but one of two explanations to the announcement—either he intended to propose marriage or he was a fool.

Was he a fool? It had never before occurred to her to ask such a question, but Miriam was a girl who followed things out to a logical conclusion.
Were her premises correctly laid? She couldn't say. Might be. Might be not.
ask a very important question
other than the one she supposed and yet not be a fool? What would constitute a fool in his case? That it was honorable she did not doubt.
Could an honorable man be attentive to a girl and make such a statement as he had made, leading her to suppose that he intended to propose to her, yet not meaning anything of the kind,
without being a fool?

After all, what is a fool?
Meanwhile Donald Forsythe was putting his sleeve buttons in cuffs fresh from the laundry. They had been pot-shot, not washed. Either the dirt had been driven in or vanished over, for it did not appear. The cuffs were as white as snowflakes.

He, like Miriam, was thinking.
He had been graduated at two universities in America and three in Europe. He had delivered a lecture before the ladies of the Woman's club, of which Miriam Swift was secretary, on the influence of Egyptian inscriptions on certain Greek roots. His mouth was therefore on a plane with it.

What view would she take of it? A announcement that he would call to ask a very important question? He was putting on a sock when the proposition occurred to him and, seeing a hole in the heel, was diverted for a moment to a different "aim of thought—an undig-ested train. But Forsythe was a man to finish one subject before entering hastily on another. His brain saw things as through an inverted telescope, in groups rather than as parts of groups.

Would Miriam expect from the conditions under which his announcement was made that his question would constitute a proposition of marriage? Was it not possible that a man, even if he had been attentive to a girl, might make such an announcement and not mean that he intended to ask her to be his wife? He thought of many questions that would not in any way refer to love or marriage. Therefore, if Miriam expected that he would call for the purpose of making a proposal, would she not be a fool?

His meditations were again diverted temporarily at the discovery that there was an ink stain on the bosom of his shirt. He was obliged to change the shirt, after which he resumed his train of thought—this while he was putting a bit of polish on his boots.

Would the question as to Miriam—should she assume that he intended to ask her to be his wife—be affected by his intention? That is, if she assumed it and he did not so intend, would she be any more of a fool than she would be if he did so intend? He divided the supposition into five heads and was disposing of them consecutively when —he didn't hear the clock strike in the neighboring church tower, for there was neither clock nor tower near—he looked at his watch and saw that it was twenty-five minutes past 8. He hastily finished his toilet and, boarding a trolley car, soon found himself at Miriam's home.

Miriam as soon as she heard the ring of the doorbell snatched a book on psychology from the library and, hurriedly seating herself by a table, under a light with a rose colored shade, had only time to open the book when her lover entered. She could not look up from it, for she had not had time to look down at it. She looked at Donald, a sweet smile hovering about her lips.

"Don't rise," said Donald as she made a move to do so. He seated himself in a blue damask and gold chair.
Miriam, who had a pronounced taste for contrasting colors, had placed it in position for him, since he was a blond.
Then he opened the conversation.

"This new theory from Germany," he said, "has upset all our psychological platforms."

Miriam, who was expecting the all important question, had cast down her eyes and seen that the book in her lap was upside down.

His words, under the circumstances, were unfortunate. Were they satirical?
He saw color rising in her face and hastened to correct the contretemps.

"I told you," he said, "when I saw you last that I would call tonight to ask a very important question."

She bent her head over the book. She did not turn the volume right side up.
Was she distrustful, or did she hope that he might not have seen that it was inverted?

"I wish you would tell me," he continued, "whether, according to the doctrine of categorical syllogisms, it can be proved that a woman who assumes that a man loves her before he has explicitly told her so is a fool."

There was a long pause, while Mir-iam's bosom heaved in sudden swells at wide intervals. Then her answer came.

"That question I am not at the moment prepared to answer. But I will say this: A man who will lead a woman to think that he is about to propose to her when he is not is not only a fool, but a knave."

She arose and, humming a favorite air, sauntered out of the room.

A RARE BIRD.

Why an American Showman Could Not Get It For His Museum.

When the eminent French writer
Ferdinand Brunetiere visited the United States some years ago, lecturing at Harvard and other leading universities, he had an amusing experience, which he described in the recollections of his American tour which he afterward published. The great litterateur devoted much attention to the life and works of Bossuet, who was often styled the "Eagle of Meaux," on account perhaps of his lofty flights of eloquence.

This fact, with others pertaining to his literary career, was mentioned by some daily papers during his stay in this country. It caught the eyes of a shrewd American showman, who, however, got somewhat mixed over the meaning of the allusion. He wrote the following letter to the French author:

Sir—I have just heard that a certain Meaux eagle, very celebrated, it appears in your country, has become your exclusive property. Now, I am the manager of a museum in one of the largest cities in the States. This Meaux eagle, whose reputation has been enhanced by your eloquence, would certainly not fail to excite the curiosity of my public. If you will let me have the rare bird and tell me how to feed it, you can quote your own figure.

Brunetiere politely explained that the "rare bird" had been dead for nearly 200 years.

Puzzling Measures.

Wheat is sold in Great Britain in twenty different ways—by the quarter, comb, load, bushel, barrel, hundred-weight, cental, windle and bobbet.

Further confusion is also caused by the fact that the bushel of wheat varies from sixty-two pounds at Birmingham, Gloucester and Taunton, to eighty pounds at Monmouth and Aberystwyth, while at Aberystwyth it is sixty-five pounds. Similarly, the boll weighs three imperial bushels at Newcastle, four throughout Scotland, six at Berwick, 244 pounds at Glasgow and 240 pounds at Hamilton. A quarter measures 496 pounds in country districts and 504 pounds in London.—London Morning.

Unique Advertising.

A tale is told of Robert Bonner and of his belief in advertising. One day he engaged a whole page of a newspaper and repeated a two line advertisement upon it over and over again. It must have been repeated 5,000 times upon the page in the smallest type.

"Why do you waste your money,
Robert?" asked a friend. "I noticed that same line so often. Would not half a page have answered your purposes?"

"Half a page would never have caused you to ask the question," replied Mr. Bonner. "At least five people will ask that to every line the way
I figured it."

Opening His Hand.

William Penn was once urging a man he knew to stop drinking to excess when the man suddenly asked:
"Can you tell me of an easy way to do it?" "Yes," Penn replied readily: "It is just as easy as to open thy hand, friend." "Convince me of that," the man explained, "and I will promise upon my honor to do as you tell me."

"Well, my friend," Penn answered,
"whenever thee finds a glass of liquor in thy hand open that hand before the glass touches thy lips, and thee will never drink to excess again."

HOMESEEKERS FOR ESTANCIA VALLEY

Four Wichita, Kansas, Men Investigating Resources and Conditions.

Four home-seekers from Wichita, Kansas, were in the city today en route to the Estancia Valley. W. E. Hooton, who is a railroad man, has already made a homestead entry eight miles northwest of Moriarty. This is located in Santa Fe County. The other three left for the valley today to investigate conditions with a view to making homestead entries. They are: B. E. Briley and son, H. E. Briley, and Novie Putney, all of Wichita, Kansas. They called at the office of the Bureau of Immigration this forenoon and were supplied with literature descriptive of the Estancia Valley, giving information concerning the United States land laws and Santa Fe County.

TAOS VALLEY BANK CLOSES ITS DOORS

Quits Business On Account of Poor Patronage—Depositors All Given Due Notice.

Lack of support on the part of citizens and business men and the distance of the town from a railroad are assigned as the principal reasons for the closing yesterday of the Taos Valley Savings Bank which was established about a year ago at Taos. It was a branch institution of the United States Bank and Trust Company of Santa Fe.

Percy F. Knight, assistant cashier and teller of the local banking house, went to Taos yesterday to wind up the affairs of the bank there. Circular letters were sent out several days ago to all of the depositors and patrons of the Taos Bank notifying them of the suspension of business on Wednesday March 20. All of the depositors were paid in full dollar for dollar or their accounts transferred at their request to the bank in Santa Fe.

The following is the full text of the circular letters explaining why the bank was closed:

"After due deliberation, the directors of the Taos Valley Savings Bank have decided to close the doors of its banking institution on March 20, 1907, and desire in the meantime to wind up its business affairs, either by balancing or liquidating accounts, or by transferring them to the United States Bank and Trust Company, at Santa Fe, an affiliated, flourishing and reliable banking house, which respectfully solicits your business and assures fair, courteous treatment to all business relations with it.

"There are several reasons for closing the Taos Valley Savings Bank in Taos, two of the decisive ones being: the great distance from the railroad which makes it difficult and hazardous of transport specie to the bank, the other is the lack of support. If not opposition of several of the leading firms of Taos itself. However, the directors have no complaint to make about the general support given the institution, for that has been generous and up to the most sanguine expectations, and they take this means of extending their hearty thanks to all depositors and well-wishers. When Taos gets a railroad, and that will doubtless be before long, and its business interests unite in supporting all institutions that are a benefit to the town, then Taos will have a flourishing bank doing a profitable business and helping in the upbuilding of the Taos Valley.

"We urge all depositors and customers to present their books and claims as soon as possible to be balanced and for settlement or transfer and ask our friends to call upon us at the banking quarters of the United States Bank and Trust Company, at Santa Fe, where a hearty welcome will be extended to them by the officers.

Again thanking you for your business, we are, Respectfully,
"TAOS VALLEY SAVINGS BANK."

HAD TO SIT UP ALL NIGHT

Party of Twenty Home-seekers Who Reached Santa Fe Yesterday Could Not Find Place to Sleep.

A delegation of about twenty home-seekers arrived in Santa Fe last night from points in Kansas and Oklahoma en route to the Estancia Valley. Owing to the crowded condition of the local hotels only about half of the party were able to secure even cots to sleep in, let alone individual rooms and the others were obliged to sit up all night in the lobbies.

There were several women in the delegation who stated that it was their intention of taking up homestead claims themselves if they were satisfied with the looks of the country. Most of the intending settlers are farmers of long experience and were induced to go to the valley with the intention of locating on account of the encouraging reports received from others who preceded them.

The Santa Fe Central Railway of-fices here reported having received three carloads of immigrant outfits today, with destination on the line, one bound to Estancia, one to Moriarty and one to Willard.

ARIZONA TO HAVE NEW GOVERNOR

Phoenix, Ariz., March 21.—Word has been received that when the time comes for a change of governors that Arizona will be represented by C. F. Ainsworth, the late candidate for Congress on the joint statehood ticket. Although it has been reported several times that Senator Beveridge said a change would be made, up to the present time no faith has been put in the rumors. But with the closing of the legislature occurring tonight, these rumors are again afloat.

MORE SALOON MEN IN DISTRICT COURT

Arraigned Before Judge McFie for Violations of Statutes Pertaining to Liquor Traffic.

The First Judicial District Court continued in session today, Judge John R. McFie, presiding, and Clerk A. M. Berger at his desk. The Territory was represented by District Attorney R. C. Gortner and Assistant District Attorney C. C. Catron. Sheriff Charles C. Closson was at his post.

Several more saloonkeepers were arraigned today for violations of the Sunday closing law and allowing women of questionable character to frequent the bar-rooms. Judge McFie holds that saloonkeepers who have their saloons open on Sunday are as much guilty of selling liquor without a license as if they had no license at all. He maintains that the licensees are void as far as Sundays are concerned as interpreted by the Sunday closing law.

In the case of the Territory versus Louis Napoleon and Jose Digneo, the defendants, entered a plea of guilty and were fined as a firm $100 and costs. They were charged with allowing women in their place contrary to law. Half of the fine imposed was suspended pending good behavior.

A. de Lalle, proprietor of a saloon at Cerrillos, pleaded guilty to having his place of business open on Sunday. He was also fined $100 and costs and half of the fine was also suspended conditional on good behavior.

In the case of the city of Santa Fe vs. Atlano Golor taken on appeal from the police court, the judgment of Police Magistrate Jose Ma. Garcia was affirmed. The defendant had been arrested on a vagrancy charge and fined $5 and costs or sentenced to ten days in jail.

After the disposition of these cases adjournment was taken until tomorrow at 10 o'clock.
