On June 7, the 642 staff members of the Organization of American States requested salary parity with counterparts in United Nations agencies. At the OAS general assembly meeting in Santiago (Chile), Terrence Woods, president of the staff members’ association, said, "It is time to deal with the subject of adequate financing for this organization." He added that the related topic of just and adequate remuneration for OAS personnel, must be the first point of interest." The salary parity system with the UN was abandoned in 1976.
