On Jan. 7, residents of the Guillermo Ungo resettlement community in Cuscatlan department denounced operations by the army aimed at preventing the delivery of foodstuffs. Community spokespersons said that soldiers have been blocking the roads to the town since Jan. 4, and are demanding special permits and purchase receipts in order to permit entry of food supplies. Community leaders say the soldiers have accused them of collaborating with the Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front (FMLN) by supplying food and intelligence to the rebels. On Jan. 8, a local newspaper reported that soldiers had occupied the resettlement community. (Basic data from ACAN- EFE, 01/07/92, 01/08/92)
