Published: Friday, March 6, 1992

In a Feb. 27 press release, US President George Bush announced that he had requested Senate approval for Joseph Sullivan as the new US Ambassador to Nicaragua. If approved, Sullivan will replace current Ambassador Harry Shlaudeman. Sullivan held several posts at the State Department between 1988 and 1991, including deputy undersecretary of state for Inter-American affairs. (Basic data from Agence France-Presse, 02/27/92)
