REFUSED WRIT HABEAS CORPUS

Judge McFie Refuses to Assume Jurisdiction

CHECKING UP COLLECTOR

National Guard Armory to Be Dedicated June Tenth.

Judge John R. McFie this forenoon dismissed the petition of Attorney A. B. Renahan for a writ of habeas corpus for A. M. Jackley committee to jail for sixty days for contempt of court by Judge Edward A. Mann. Judge McFie declined to assume jurisdiction as the commitment was for a "direct contempt which is a matter peculiarly within the knowledge and jurisdiction of the judge and personal to him. This court being co-ordinate jurisdiction and not superior to that of the judge of the Sixth Judicial District who issued the commitment, I have no power to review the action of said judge in that matter," is the opinion of Judge McFie.

Colorado Fishermen.
Territorial Game and Fish Warden Gable continues to receive a large number of applications for non-resident fishing licenses from Colorado sportsmen, conclusively showing that New Mexico's trout streams compare very favorably with the Colorado streams.

SEVERE SENTENCE FOR GAMBLER

Court at Butte, Montana, Refused to Show Mercy to Old Offender Against the Law.

Butte, Mont., May 27.—One thousand dollars fine and a year in jail was the bitter dose administered to Leander Duncan, gambler and pioneer. Duncan, who is an old man, fairly wilted in his chair. The sentence was accompanied by an arraignment from the bench which has not often been equaled in severity by a court in Montana.

"For 49 years you have bilked the public," thundered District Judge Donlan, "gambling 40 years that might have been spent in useful effort that would have landed you in comfort and respect, not in jail. Now, your string is up. You're an old man and I'd like to be lenient with you, but it is time the gamblers learned there is no place for them in this community. You've been arrested in every raid made since the raids began, and we're going to put you out of business. The court orders you imprisoned in the county jail for 12 months and fined $1,000."

VETERAN PEDESTRIAN ARRIVES AT DENVER

Denver, Colo., May 27.—Sixty-three days out from New York, Edward Payson Weston, a veteran pedestrian, arrived in Denver this morning, and continued to Brighton, 20 miles north, where he spent the night. He has covered 2,479 miles in his journey from coast to coast.

FOULEST MURDER IN STATE'S HISTORY

Hanging Too Good for Junkin Says His Attorney—Killed Woman Soon to Be Bride.

Centerville, Iowa, May 27.—The foulest murder in criminal history of Iowa was the characterization today by Frank Hunter, assistant attorney for the defense, of the killing of Clara Rosen, for which John Junkin is on trial. He pictured Junkin as an irresponsible criminal and declared life imprisonment was the proper punishment for the moral degenerate as he was insensible to the significance of hanging.

State's Attorney Sena Carnell outlined the evidence against Junkin dramatically holding aloft a bloodstained stone used to beat out the girl's brains. Fred Rosen told of the finding of his sister's body and identified the articles taken by Junkin, including her engagement ring. Miss Rosen was murdered a day or two previous to the date she was to marry a well-to-do young man of Wyoming.

The sensational circumstances attending the murder of Miss Rosen, were divulged by Officers Peterson and Black on the stand today, but were not mentioned in the indictment against Junkin, nor mentioned heretofore. These details it is learned, were suppressed because the state feared they would excite the public to mob violence.

FOUL MURDER IN GRANT COUNTY

Pedro Parra Lured Into Lonely Canon By Three Men and Beaten to Death With Rocks.

From Dwyer, on the Mimbres, in Grant county, comes word of the murder of Pedro Parra, who was killed in a most atrocious manner. He was enticed by three men to enter a deep canon and was then set upon and beaten with rocks and the crime completed by sending a bullet through his head. Parra was only eighteen years old and the son of the mail carrier at Dwyer. Sheriff J. J. McFarth and Deputy Thomas Glenn arrested Francisco Valdez, Modesto Salas and Sebastian Abales, and after a preliminary hearing Valdez is reported to have confessed his guilt. He was bound over to the grand jury without bail, while his alleged accomplices are being held in jail, being unable to furnish $2,000 bail.

CITY OF CHICAGO TOO POOR TO ENTERTAIN TAFT.

Chicago, Ill., May 27.—The city of Chicago is too poor to pay the expense of having President Taft lay the corner stone of the new city hall. Therefore the council committee on public buildings has abandoned its plan of inviting the executive.

The members of the committee figured that it would cost $5,000 to have the celebration they had planned.

SOUTH IS SORELY AFFLICTED

Untold Damage by Storm and Floods

MANY TOWNS UNDER WATER

Tornado Wrecks Many Houses and Crops Destroyed by Water.

Memphis, Tenn., May 27.—Reports from the surrounding country bring advice of devastation done by recent rain and wind storms. Mississippi and Arkansas seem to have suffered the most. The Arkansas river is out of its banks and flood warnings have been sent out that other rivers will rise above the danger point.

In both states the crops are said to have been destroyed in several localities while many towns are under water and families have been driven to the roofs of their homes and the only means of transit are by boat. Great damage has been done the railroads and several trains are stalled, while telephone and telegraph wires are down in many localities. Yesterday a tornado passed over northern Mississippi and Georgia wrecking many houses.

Alabama Flood Bound.
Mobile, Ala., May 27.—Practically every river and creek in lower Alabama and Mississippi are at flood stage, resulting in drowning out all low land crops, the loss of many cattle, and the destruction of lumber. Reports from Shubuta, Mississippi, are that the town is virtually an island, being cut off from the outside world except by telephone and telegraph.

SENATE SITS ON BRISTOW

Test Vote Shows Him to Be in Minority

HALE AND BEVERIDGE

Interesting Passage of Arms Between the Two Senators.

Washington, D. C., May 27.—The Senate today refused, 36 to 47, to strike the Dutch standard test out of the sugar schedule of the tariff bill as proposed by Senator Bristow of Kansas.

Wagner and Kelly at Washington.
Special to The New Mexican.

Washington, May 27.—Dr. John P. Wagner of Santa Fe, is in Washington interesting eastern capital in the plans for his four story tourist hotel which he intends to erect at the corner of Lincoln and Palace avenues. He is also here on matters in connection with the Sacramento Valley Irrigation Company of which he is president and political matters at Alamogordo.

Harry W. Kelly of Las Vegas, is here in the interests of New Mexico wool growers and the retention of the present tariff on wool. He is also discussing political matters and the situation in New Mexico. He will accompany his daughter home from school and she will spend the summer at Las Vegas.

Hale and Beveridge Clash.

Washington, May 27.—In the Senate Hale of Maine, took part in the discussion when the proposed duty on automobiles was under consideration. As he concluded Beveridge congratulated the Senator from Maine, speaking, as he subsequently explained, "That he had been able to consume so much of the time of the Senate on automobiles and the peril they occasion pedestrians without getting down to the essence of the paragraph."

Directing his remarks to Beveridge, Hale replied:

"Mr. President. I do not suppose that I have intruded in this discussion in the four weeks in which the bill has been before the Senate one minute where the Senator from Indiana has intruded twenty minutes. I have been very careful not to consume time and not to make suggestions that consume time. I am not eager to appear in the public prints, I do not wait until the discussion of the day is nearly terminated, and then intrude myself into the discussion, in order that I may appear in the newspapers."

"I bide my time. I keep no account with the committee on finance, debit or credit, voting with them half the time and voting against them half the time. I will not submit to the implied censure of my young friend from Indiana, and it would be well for him to curb his impatience in criticizing older Senators—not better Senators. I say to him that I shall not appear here in disturbing the progress of this bill, as he appears constantly to do; but when the time comes that I see fit to make a suggestion I shall make it without any hesitation and the Senate will notice the difference between him and me in this regard."

Beveridge replied briefly that his remark was spoken in jest, and thought the Senator would so understand it.

Hale responded to this that he hoped the Senator hereafter would "label his pleasantries."

Oh! My! Uncle Joe Cannon, Mercy!

Washington, D. C., May 27.—The delegation of young women hosiery workers from Philadelphia called on Speaker Cannon the other day.

"When the club women of Chicago called to see me about the duties on gloves," the speaker of the house said, "I asked them why girls with such beautiful arms should want to cover them up with gloves reaching clear to the shoulders."

"Now here you are to see me about stockings."

That was where he stopped. The young women retreated.

KILLED HIMSELF BECAUSE IN LOVE

Young Man Who Found Life Unbearable and Therefore Drank Carbolic Acid.

Says the Silver City Independent: "A telephone message was received from Mogollon yesterday stating that Jim Lockwood had committed suicide the night before by taking poison. No details were given, although it is understood that the suicide was the result of an unfortunate love affair."

WILLING TO CARRY MAIL

Georgia Railroad Strikers Telegraph Offer

GOVERNMENT IN QUANDARY

Cannot Compel the Company to Divide Its Passenger Trains.

Washington, May 27.—Officials of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen who are actively in charge of the strike on the Georgia Railroad, refute the charge that they are responsible for interference in the transportation of the United States mails and express a willingness to aid the Postoffice Department to get the mails through on the Georgia line. This important information came in a telegram from Vice-President Ball of the Brotherhood today. Doubt is expressed, however, whether the department could compel the Georgia Railroad to divide its trains and run a car for mail purposes only and the situation of the strike is such that it is impossible to operate full passenger equipment.

NO BETTING ON HORSE RACES

As Result Track Meet at Littleton Near Denver, May Be Abandoned.

Denver, Colo., May 27.—Walter M. Morgan, district attorney, whose jurisdiction includes Arapahoe county, announces that he will stop gambling if complaint is made to him that bets are being made on the races.

H. G. Fisher, president of the Christian Citizenship League, says that his organization will hold a meeting Thursday night to draft a formal protest to the district attorney.

There is little prospect of a race meeting being held in Denver this year; that is, a meeting at which there is betting. John Condon, who has an agreement to hold a meeting at Overland, is in the city. It was announced from his rooms at the Brown last night that the question had not been definitely settled.

SUDDEN TRANSFER OF AFFECTIONS

Therefore Expectant Groom Loses Bride and His Rival Must Face Bigamy Charge.

Honolulu, May 27.—R. W. Baker, arrested here on Monday charged with bigamy on cabled instructions from Chicago, confessed his guilt today. His latest wife, however, whom he married here on May 13, and whose name was Mrs. Eva B. Wallace, remains steadfast. A romance of tropical seas underlies this second marriage of Baker, who is believed to be the son of Charles W. Baker, secretary of the Chicago Livestock Exchange.

Baker arrived in Honolulu about May 1. One of the fellow travelers on the steamer Alameda was Mrs. Wallace, a San Francisco woman, en route to Honolulu to marry Charles Howard, a former San Francisco resident here. It appears that the moonlit nights in southern seas, coupled with the proximity of Baker, proved too much for Mrs. Wallace's constancy to Howard, and the result was that when the good ship arrived here Howard found himself minus his expected bride, Mrs. Wallace having transferred her affections to Baker. Baker it is charged has another wife and a child in Chicago.

PRISONER ESCAPES FROM JAIL

Lee Smith, a prisoner in the jail at Silver City, cut his way out of the jail, using the handle of an iron table spoon to dig a hole through the ceiling of his cell. He had been arrested at Saint John's, Arizona, for stealing twenty head of horses from the pastures of the Lyons & Campbell Ranch and Cattle Company. The cell in which he was kept was right under the district clerk's office and he made his way through the door of that office. The escape must have been accomplished at noon and in broad daylight.

PRINCESS ALICE RUNS ASHORE

Trans-Atlantic Steamer Forced on Rocks Near Fort Wadsworth in New York Harbor.

New York, May 27.—The North German Lloyd passenger steamer, Princess Alice, ran aground near Fort Wadsworth, Staten Island, while passing out of the harbor for Bremen. The accident was due to a fog.

Will Float Vessel.

New York, May 27.—Although the Princess Alice was picking her way cautiously through the Narrows, the weight of the great steamer forced her bow high on the rocks and almost in touch with the sea wall which surrounds Fort Wadsworth. The vessel's stern, however, remained afloat and as the tide was rising when she grounded the captain felt confident of getting his vessel afloat within a few hours. The Princess Alice carried a large number of passengers, but there was little excitement when the accident occurred.

UGLY CHURCH FIGHT IN DENVER

Father P. J. Carrigan Successfully Defies the Wishes and Orders of Bishop Matz.

Midnight yesterday marked the expiration of the time allowed to Father P. J. Carrigan, pastor of St. Patrick's church, in which to go to Pueblo on order of Bishop Matz. At that hour Father Carrigan was in his home sleeping peacefully.

Father M. W. Donovan, who was brought from Ouray by the bishop and instructed to take charge of St. Patrick's, did not do so yesterday. Father Donovan did cause to be taken to St. Patrick's school the vestments and altar service necessary to say masses there.

As the situation now stands Father Carrigan still remains in charge of his parish and of the church. Father Donovan occupies a peculiar position in that he has the order of the bishop directing him to take charge of the parish, but in reality has only become what might be termed a chaplain of the convent which conducts the parochial school.

HUNDREDS OF FLOATING ICEBERGS

Trans-Atlantic Liner Badly Damaged in Collision Entering Port of St. John's.

St. John's, N. F., May 27.—With her bow badly damaged from a collision with an iceberg, the liner Almeriana, came into port today from Liverpool. It reported large quantities of ice off the coast. The Almeriana hit a berg about midnight on Tuesday. The passengers of the steamer Prospero, which was obliged to put back into port today because of ice floes, stated that they counted over a hundred icebergs during a sail of forty miles.

KAISER IN GOOD COMPANY

With Taft and Eliot Has Turned Teetotaler

COMMENDED BY ASSEMBLY

Many Demands From Congress to Blot Out Liquor Traffic

Denver, Colo., May 27.—President Taft, Emperor William and President Eliot of Harvard University, were placed on "dry" pedestals today by the General Assembly of the Presbyterian church when their example of turning teetotalers after many years was commended in the approval of the report of the temperance committee. Far reaching reform through memorials to Congress are proposed in the report, among them the following: That the receipt of revenue in any form from the liquor traffic be discontinued; that the federal government shall no longer issue liquor tax receipts in Prohibition territory; that interstate shipments of liquor be discontinued; that a prohibitory zone, twenty miles in width be established around every Indian reservation; that the mails be closed to advertising or the distribution of liquors. Newspapers, which carry liquor advertisements, fell under the ban of the assembly. The report of the committee commended fraternal organizations "heretofore noted for their convivial membership" for their action in discontinuing the sale of liquor about the lodge premises.

SNOWFALL STATIONS ESTABLISHED

Section Director Makes Successful Trip

COUNTRY VERY PROSPEROUS

Head of Local Weather Bureau Well Pleased With Work Accomplished.

An important official trip has just been completed by Section Director E. C. Linney of the local weather bureau. Mr. Linney left Santa Fe overland on the 5th of the present month going from here to Chinayo, continuing north to Penasco. North of this place an effort was made to establish a mountain snow-fall station at the headwaters of the Rio Grande del Rancho but in this district no settlers were found so the idea had to be abandoned. The next stop was Taos and from this point up the Taos canon about sixteen miles southeast of Taos where a station was established. The trip was then continued up the Rio Hondo canon to the old mining camp at Amizett about twenty-two miles northeast of Taos. This town at one time a flourishing mining camp with a population of over five hundred was found to contain but two inhabitants. Linney however was successful in establishing a station at this point. Next by way of Questa he went up the Red River canon to the town of Red River and established at station at that place. At this point arrangements were also made for a station at Anchor mine, a place nine miles northeast of Red River, and lying on the divide between the Red River and Costillo River. From Red River the way lay over the pass to Elizabethtown where another station was established. Ute Park came next, no work however, being done at this point. At the next stop, Black Lakes, a station was established and the trip then continued through the Moreno valley to Aurora where another station was established. Hall's Peak was next reached and then the old county seat of Mora county, Lucero. From there Mr. Linney proceeded to the present county seat, the town of Mora and at this point arranged for a station at Chacon. This accomplished the journey was continued to East Las Vegas and from there to the upper Harvey ranch where the eighth station of the trip was established. Returning to Las Vegas Mr. Linney took the train home, arriving here last night, very enthusiastic over what had been accomplished and absolutely satisfied that the trip had been a most successful one. The trip lasted three weeks, being the longest official trip ever undertaken at the local office. With the exception of the train ride from Las Vegas to Santa Fe the entire journey was made overland. In all eight mountain snowfall stations were established and as a result of the trip two more will be established through correspondence by mail. At all of these stations accurate records will be kept of the snow and rainfall throughout the entire year. At some of the stations even the temperature will be daily recorded.

Grand and Prosperous Country.

When seen by a representative of the New Mexican at the weather bureau office today, Mr. Linney was especially enthusiastic about the trip he had just completed. Said he: "I had a splendid trip and accomplished even more than anticipated. We were successful in establishing stations at most desirable points which will be of great benefit to the weather bureau. The country I passed through is well settled and the people are remarkably prosperous. Evidences of thrift and industry abound on every hand and it is a most delightful pleasure to make a trip through that section of the country. The season has been backward, generally, though farther advanced on the western slope of the Sangre de Cristo range. The fruit crops will be fair though fruit conditions are not so favorable on the east side of the range as on the west. The greatest amount of progress appears to be holding sway in the Taos valley. Irrigation projects are numerous and work is being pushed rapidly. Irrigation improvements are under way on the Rio Hondo, the Red River and the Costillo. Even at Taos the great amount of improvement and progress is noticeable. Quite a number of irrigation projects are also under way near Cimarron, work being done on the Cimarron river, both on the Central branch and the North branch, on the Rayado river and on the Ponil river. The lower sections of country are suffering considerably from dryness though the higher sections have

REV PAUL GILBERTON SETS EXAMPLE

He is Beautifying Church Grounds and Cemetery at Las Vegas and Creating Parks.

Rev. Paul Gilberton, formerly priest in charge of the Guadalupe church in Santa Fe, is setting a noble example of civic spirit in the Meadow City of which the Las Vegas Optic speaks as follows:

"The pastor of the West Side parish, Rev. P. Gilberton does not say much but he is doing wonders. The surroundings of his church and residence which two years ago looked like an abandoned place, is blooming all around and may be considered as the best park in both towns. More than 80 trees have been planted this year and every one of them will be an adornment for the future. The wonder is that the reverend gentleman is doing this without the help either of his parishioners or the community. He deserves the gratitude

"His attention has not been restricted to the church and the residence. He is now planning to have another park in the church property that surrounds the beautiful spot of the Mount Calvary cemetery which is one mile distant of town. For three weeks he had a force of men and team constructing fences, digging wells and fixing the roads. At this date he is breaking the ground to have some planting done and in a few weeks everything will look green. The reverend father is glad to announce that his efforts have been rewarded with success since that he reached good water at 8 feet digging, so that he is pleased to announce that those who have lots in the graveyard can use this water to irrigate their planting in the cemetery. It is also rumored that in a month or two a house will be built in the same spot to be used by the one who will be in charge of the cemetery and the whole property. In this also, he should be congratulated."

NO REASON FOR IT.

When Santa Fe Citizens Show the Certain Way Out.

There can be no just reason why any reader of this will continue to suffer the tortures of an aching back, the annoyance of urinary disorders, the dangers of diabetes of any kidney ills when relief is so near at hand and the most positive proof given that they can be cured. Read what a Santa Fe citizen says:

Jose Ortiz y Baca, Alto street, Santa Fe, N. M., says: "I derived benefit from Doan's Kidney Pills which gives me just cause to vouch for their efficiency. ARCHITECTURAL EVOLUTION*Beginnings of Culture in the Southwest*CRADLE NEAR SANTA FE*Theory of Parallel Development Accepted by Most Scientists.

No doubt the original homes of primitive man were in natural caves and recesses in the rocks. Then, when the increasing numbers of the human family made necessary the construction of artificial abodes, it was almost inevitable that these should be modeled after those found in nature. Accordingly, the efforts of the first homebuilders were in the way of excavating artificial caves—mere holes in the ground, or in soft rock strata into which Paleolithic man could dig and burrow with the crude stone tools at his command. This was really the beginning of architecture; for, though many beasts did quite as well, or perhaps better yet the beasts labored only with the teeth and claws that nature gave them, while the excavators of artificial caves in yielding rock made use of tools composed of harder rock.

It is now recognized by archaeologists that what is known as the Pueblo region of Arizona, New Mexico, and portions of Utah and Colorado is worthy of the most careful and painstaking investigation, for the reason that the prehistoric remains there found seem capable of casting more light upon the gestation of culture than similar remains found in all the rest of the world put together. Just as the fossils found in Jurassic and Triassic rock strata make it possible to reconstruct with tolerable certainty the fauna and flora of past geologic epochs, so does the study of the relics of prehistoric peoples make it possible to reconstruct primitive society. The idea of "parallel development" is now almost universally accepted. In this convenient phrase is summed the fact that, where not interfered with by outside influences, the most widely-separated peoples have passed through, or must pass through, precisely the same stages of culture; and that in the same stages of culture the same arts and industries will be developed, the same sort of dwellings built, the same kind of tools, weapons and utensils used, and much the same moral, mental and religious aspirations experienced—subject, of course, to such modifications and variations as are necessitated by different physical and climatic surroundings.

This is the reason why the myths, traditions and folklore tales of peoples, widely separated and totally unrelated, often exhibit such startling analogies. This used to be considered evidence of the common origin of the human family; and the strange parallels in the beliefs, superstitions and mythologies of antipodal tribes were used as arguments to prove a common ancestry. It is now accepted as merely confirmatory of the reasonable theory that in the same stage of development and under the same conditions, men are likely to think much the same thoughts. So it happens that the Hottentot and the Papuan cherish the same myths and fables that the old Aryans related to their children in the heart of Asia uncounted centuries ago. So it happens, also, that when we study the origin and development of any art or industry among the primitive peoples of the Southwest, we are gaining a knowledge of how the same activities were evolved by our own forbears when they, too, were in the Stone Age.

In the development of architecture, everything depended upon the nature of the country. The tribes that sought level plains as a place of residence, and that traveled from place to place in pursuit of game of migratory habits, never became builders. In the proper acceptance of the term. As soon as they learned to construct rude but portable tepees of bark or the skins of animals, they had attained the utmost limit of architectural development consistent with their manner of life. Those who confined their place of residence to a well-defined region, but who still moved with considerable frequency, did a little better. Fairly typical of these are the Navajos, building their homes, or hogans, of the trunks and limbs of trees, and covering this rude skeleton-house with earth. This, we may suspect, is only a modification of the idea of the cave, necessitated by migration into a country where natural caves did not exist and where natural conditions were not suited to the excavation of artificial caves. Intellectually the Navajo is quite capable of the construction of much better homes than the members of that great tribe have ever occupied. Probably the evolution of the hogan into a higher type of dwelling was arrested by the immemorial custom of abanoning a dwelling as soon as a death occurred in it. With the term of occupancy so uncertain, the tendency toward improvement is effectively barred.

None but an agricultural race, among primitive people, is likely to find its interests best served by establishing permanent habitations. Hence, the early farmers were better homebuilders than the hunters or the herdsmen. When the construction of extensive systems of irrigation was necessary to successful farming, an added incentive to continuous residence was given, with farther opportunities for architectural development in advance of the upbuilding of an extensive commerce, it was among the farmers of a semi-arid region, Peru, Mexico, Egypt and the Valley of the Euphrates are well known illustrations of the early development of noble architecture in ancient times, in semi-arid countries. The architectural monuments of the American Southwest are in no way worthy of comparison with any of these; but in the Southwest alone is it possible to view the successive stages of development from the very lowest to a relatively high plane.

The father of all architects was he who first discovered that he could build a wall by piling one stone upon another until the required height was reached. That marked the introduction of a new idea into the human cranium—and each new idea was a rung in the ladder of progress by means of which mankind has climbed from the pit of barbarism to the lofty pinnacle of civilization. The introduction of mortar, the invention of the column and the discovery of the arch—these followed inevitably, even if slowly, from the beginning of masonry; but the building of the first wall by the piling of stone upon stone was an epochal innovation of more far-reaching importance than all later devices put together.

No doubt necessity, the prolific mother of invention supplied the inspiration of the first wall builder. In numerous places throughout the region once occupied by the prehistoric cliff dwellers may be seen ancient caveate dwellings from which the front walls has fallen away. The slow crumbling of the cliffs must, at times, have brought the same result to pass when the cliff dwellings were occupied. When that happened, the householder found himself under the necessity of moving out and digging a new hole in the cliff, or else of making repairs. The only practical way of making repairs was to build a stone wall in place of the living rock that had crumbled away.

The success of the first wall builder inevitably begot imitation, and it was doubtless only a short time until the idea of the artificial wall was applied in other ways. Perhaps some one who had excavated a large cave found it easier to subdivide it by building a masonry partition than to dig a new cave for the accommodation of a lazy or improvident son-in-law. Then it may be that some one knew of a tempting and convenient location for a home on a rocky ledge overhung by a beetling cliff, and conceived the idea of providing side walls as well as a front wall. Once the principle of the hand-made stone wall was thoroughly understood, that step to the utilization of a ready-made roof, floor and rear wall was easily within the capacity of some Christopher Wren of the Stone Age.

Then came the vast stride of progress with the discovery that the hand-built walls did not need to be anchored to the cliffs. When the cliff men found that their walls would actually stand alone, their emancipation was complete. From the three-walled house, with natural roof and rear wall, built in a recess in the frowning cliff, to the four-walled building, detached and isolated and standing upon its own feet as it were, may appear to us to be a natural, easy and inevitable gradation. To those who witnessed the first experiments, it must have appeared a hazardous leap in the dark, and there were doubtless many predictions that the first wind would scatter the unsupported walls all over the landscape. In some localities, as in the Mesa Verde, men built entire stone cities in the recesses of sheltering cliffs, for no discoverable reason other than the wholly supposititious one that they feared that their houses would not stand alone. When the cliff dwellers discovered that their four-walled houses would stand alone, they were ready to leave the gloom of the cliffs and to live in the open. But the love of locality had been well developed in them, so that their masonry structures were generally built in the immediate neighborhood of their old cave homes, which had doubtless served their ancestors for many generations.

To the writer, who has done a little tramping among the prehistoric ruins of the Southwest, this seems to be an unwarranted reflection upon the intelligence of the men of the cliffs. Most of the great masonry ruins in the region of the cliff dwellings are located upon the mesas, in places as easily susceptible of defense as the cliffs themselves. That their builders placed them upon the high mesas, rather than in the valleys, where their tillable land and their water supply were found, solely for defensive purposes, hardly admits of question. These ancient communities upon the mesas undoubtedly supplied the models for the construction of the communal towns of the present-day Pueblo.

SENATOR BEVERIDGE AND TAFT.

Of course, Senator Beveridge did not make much of a hit with President Taft in his speech this week in which the Indiana statesman made a plea for reductions in the tariff and sought to quote Taft in support of his theories. The Indiana statesman has the unhappy faculty of gathering a number of isolated and incongruous facts and building thereon his airy castles and fortifying his prejudices. Ever since he "Beveridged" New Mexico, has this trait of his been noticeable to the public. His superficiality is vainly sought to be drowned in a flood of words and an apparently scholarly diction, but he deceives no one but himself. Even his constituents have learned that "to Beveridge" means to skim over the surface of things and to pass judgment without thorough information. The Denver Republican has sized up this class of three by four statesmen when it says:

"Cornstossel statesmen, like Senators LaFollette of Wisconsin and Brewster of Kansas, are hardly the men to turn the current of public sympathy away from President Taft and gather about themselves a strong following in opposition to the traditional position of the Republican party on the tariff question.

"Although elected as Republicans they have dragged certain free-trade notions into the discussion of the tariff in the Senate, and now they are trying to discredit the President and others who favor a rational revision. They are essentially Populists in their views of all public questions, and as for LaFollette, he would have greatly preferred to support Mr. Bryan in the late presidential campaign, and doubtless he would have done so if he had not been afraid it would cost him the approval of the people of Wisconsin.

"These two senators are clamoring for what they call a radical downward revision, and they are as indifferent to the consequences of such legislation as they are ignorant of what the effect would really be. They have found that a demand for radical downward revision meets with favor among some of their constituents, and that is as far as they see any occasion to inquire. Determined to please their own people, they prolong the debate in the Senate while the business interests of the country are compelled to wait for Congress to get through with its work. What the obstruction of these cornstossel senators is costing the country could be ascertained only by estimating the injury to innumerable business and industrial interests in every section because of the delay in disposing of the whole tariff question.

"President Taft has been consistent from the beginning, and nothing the opposition senators may say will make the people believe otherwise. He declared for revision of the tariff long before the presidential nominations were made last year; yet he has never favored a radical, wholesale reduction which would ignore all business interests. In any event, not the President, but Congress is primarily responsible for whatever revision may be made. President Taft has expressed clearly his views on the subject. But he is not usurping any legislative prerogatives, and he is not participating in the Senate debate.

"The fact that the demand for sweeping reductions under the guise of revision of the tariff comes from men like Senator LaFollette and others of little experience in such matters, shows that the work of revision should be entrusted not to them but to men of experience and ability who, having participated in much tariff legislation, have a clearer idea in regard to the adjustment which may be needed to adapt the present tariff to the business needs of the country."

FEEDING STOCK.

Although general conditions on the stock range in New Mexico, have brightened considerably the past few days, and sheepmen especially will fare much better than they had anticipated, while cattlemen are receiving better prices for their lean stuff than they did in former years for well kept stock, yet, the following words from the El Paso Herald are applicable and emphasize the contention of the New Mexican that soon new methods must be adopted in sheep and cattle growing in the Southwest, methods of which winter feeding must form the basis. Says the Herald:

"Conditions in the cattle business are the worst known for 20 years. The long drought in the Southwest has caused the death of thousands of head and those that are still living are in an almost unmarketable condition. A loss of 25 per cent between range and market is reported in some shipments. The range was practically ruined some weeks ago and the only way the cattle are kept alive in some sections is by scattering tons of rock salt out on the range, after consuming which the cattle will eat many weeds and other range growth they would not otherwise touch.

"Not only weak cows and young stock are dying, but even the big steers. At one watering place east of Carlsbad there were counted 1000 dead cattle. All over the ranges there are hundreds of good animals down that can never get up.

"In West Texas, after a number of good rain years, there has been a tendency to overstock, which makes the situation much worse. In the sheep business the same tale is told.

"Such experiences will go far to hasten the day when the old system of cattle raising will be abandoned. Most of the important cattlemen of the Southwest have during the past few years developed water to take care of the needs of their stock, but this does not solve the range problem. A prolonged drought means fearful loss. Yet experience under just such conditions has shown that good farm crops, especially forage crops and roughage, can be successfully raised even under exactly the conditions now prevailing, provided the principle of scientific soil culture be persistently applied.

"The next move of the big cattlemen will no doubt be to Mexico where there is still much open range left. But that can only afford temporary relief at best. The final solution will come when ranges are turned into farms and food stuff of some kind is raised in the Southwest in sufficient abundance to put livestock in marketable condition right at home, leaving nothing more than the final fattening and finishing to be done in the North.

"The losses in the stock business this spring are going to hit the Southwest very hard. The sale of stock is one of the principal channels for the influx of outside capital, and there will be less money from this source to invest and spend this year than there has been for a long time."

As long as the Presbyterian General Assembly confined itself to deploring the slaughter of wild animals by hunters, no one objected and the country applauded. When, however, one of the speakers in the assembly made an onslaught upon Ex-President Roosevelt for shooting wild animals, the assembly was against him and the country depreciated such an attack upon any individual, especially since that individual was not present to defend himself. Mistakes, akin to that enemy of the Ex-President, have been made even in Santa Fe, when individuals or associations, zealous to remedy civic abuses received the applause of well-meaning citizens, but the moment they turned to attack individuals and invade the prerogatives of the courts by prejudging officials who were not present to defend themselves, public sentiment turned against them and they split the town wide open, so that even today it is impossible for its business interests to get together. There is a wide difference between attacking abuses and trying individuals for such abuses. A very liberal and yet rigid procedure must be observed in the latter case and if the defendant is not given a square deal and that before properly constituted authority, the inherent sense of justice of Americans will assert itself and the defendant, no matter how guilty, is made a martyr by at least part of the community, while his prosecutors and judges are detested.

The relation of irrigation and forestry is so close, that the Irrigation Commission of the Senate, which will visit the West this fall to examine the Reclamation projects, should extend its inquiries to the administration of the National Forests. The schedule of questions which will be asked by the Senatorial committee and which was published in the New Mexican yesterday, should be extended so as to gain some first hand information on the opinions held in the West on the present administration of the Forest Reserves. There is no doubt that many enlightening and pointed answers would be received, that would prove valuable in formulating future legislation.

The securing of a pension for old Boatswain Crowley at White Oaks, after four years of effort in Congress, is another instance to prove that Delegate to Congress Andrews is a man who does things and that he is the very best representative New Mexico could have at the present time in Washington.

TAX THE PULLMAN CARS.

Councilman Upton at the last legislative session introduced a bill for the equitable taxation of Pullman cars in New Mexico. The bill was promptly squelched by the same combination that killed local option, revision of the laws, new counties and other beneficial measures. In Colorado, something like $15,000 in taxes are derived from the Pullman Company, but despite this sum, so much larger than that which New Mexico receives, the Centennial State is arousing itself to the fact that the company, which gouges the traveler at every opportunity, is not paying its just proportion of taxes. Says the Pueblo Chieftain:

"For years it has been notorious that the Pullman Palace Car Company has not been paying anything like a just or equitable tax upon the property which it owns in the State of Colorado; the basis of its valuation for taxation in this state is $110 per mile on about 260 miles, or a total valuation of $28,600, while the company has in fact fully one hundred Pullman cars in Colorado, of the value of about $20,000 per car, or a total value of two million dollars, and should pay on at least a valuation of from eight hundred thousand to one million dollars. Its total taxes in Colorado are less than $15,000, when in justice to every other taxpayer in the state, it should be compelled to pay from forty to fifty thousand dollars.

"The Rio Grande Railroad, for instance, pays on a valuation of $9,000 per mile, and other railroads in like proportion; yet this company, which operates its cars practically without and expense to itself, receives from the railroads two cents per mile for every mile they are hauled on the respective roads, and the public pays the salaries of the porters upon its trains through the infamous tipping system.

"The Wells-Fargo Express Company pays one-third as much taxes in Colorado as the Pullman Company, though the Wells-Fargo Company owns no cars or roundhouses or railroad equipment of any kind.

"It might be well for the State Board of Equalization to examine into the valuation on which the Pullman taxes are assessed in the Middle Western states, and that board might then get some adequate basis on which to compel the Pullman Company to pay its share of taxes in the State of Colorado."

Uncle Sam keeps very strict tab on the National Guard in the States and Territories, now that he contributes materially to its support. For that reason, the old, slouchy days in many of the States and Territories as far as the militia is concerned are over. The demands made upon members of the National Guard companies and troops are much stricter than heretofore, but they are also wholesome and need not be a burden if met in the right spirit. It is to be regretted that in the past, New Mexico's National Guard as a whole did not stand very high in the eyes of the Department of War and army officers, although here and there, a company or two, or a few individual members of the Guard, made records that were tantalizing enough in showing what could be done if the proper efforts were made. However, a new regime has been inaugurated and while funds are short for the present, yet, in time, New Mexico's National Guard will demonstrate the justice of New Mexico's claim to patriotism and devotion to duty.

Cyclones and tornadoes have created havoc in the South at regular intervals this winter and spring. The average Southerner must sleep as uneasy as the proverbial head that wears the crown for he never knows when a tornado or a cyclone is at hand to wait him to the kingdom come or when one of the many small or big rivers is disposed to step out of its banks and sweep him into the ocean. There is more than one compensation for living in Santa Fe, and among these is the fact that neither wind, nor earthquake nor flood ever demanded any human life in this town.

Uncle Sam is determined to make more out of his coal lands than heretofore. Whether the raising of the price, which is to be determined by the amount of coal underlying each acre, at the rate of one to three cents a ton, will retard the development of Western coal fields is problematical, for often one needs but increase the price of a desirable object in order to sell it. With coal lands at $300 an acre, they might be gobbled up much quicker than at $20. It would probably prove a good scheme to follow with other Western resources to secure their development.

In Las Vegas, police and peace officers are diligent in arresting the human hogs who expectorate on sidewalks, and justices of the peace do not hesitate to impose fines that teach better manners. In Santa Fe there has been no conviction for a number of years for this filthy offense against public decency and public health, but it wouldn't be too late to commence tomorrow. The lesson would prove such a wholesome one and the revenue derived would be so welcome, that the Las Vegas plan of arresting and fining the man who expectorates on the sidewalk should be imitated here.

With bamboo forests in the Southwest and thickets of spineless cactus on the plains, New Mexico will bear resemblance to an African wilderness which needs but lions and tigers and hippopotami to complete the ensemble.

The predictions that the wheat crop will be short are not reassuring, but should be an incentive to New Mexico to put more ground under cultivation and to raise more wheat. At the prices which have prevailed of late, wheat will prove a very profitable crop. It has been demonstrated that New Mexico can raise extra fine wheat and that such valleys as the Taos, the Santa Fe, the upper Rio Grande and even some of the dry farming regions can not be beat for yields to the acre.

The Territorial officials are right in nipping land swindling schemes in the bud. The theory that a man brought to New Mexico to be bilked and swindled will remain here to develop the actual resources of the Territory is too absurd to discuss. Each victim becomes a virulent knocker, not only against the scheme that robbed him but against all New Mexico. Rather than immigration at all than immigration brought here by misrepresentation.

Representing the Mitchell, Moline, McIntyre and Zimmerman Factories. These factories are noted for their excellent cars, who, instead of building down to a cheap price car, build up to a machless standard, as good a car as a man would care to own. The Mitchell people have built $11,000,000 worth of cars within the past few years, and their current year's production will equal 18,000 cars.

The Moline car occupies a position of high favor among automobile users. Models "K" and "M" for 1909, are two models of still higher excellence than their satisfactory models of last season, and have proven themselves the cars for anywhere.

High wheelers in solid rubber tires are represented by the McIntyre and the Zimmerman cars. These cars are furnished in 26 styles of commercial and passenger combinations from $250 up.

The people realize that the motor driven vehicles have proven good and is here to stay. It is erroneous to suppose that only expert mechanical engineers can own and operate a motor driven car, many ladies drive their cars.

At present quotations they are relatively cheaper than horses—cheaper to maintain. In its adoption you take nothing from the horse except that part which can better and cheaper be done with the motor vehicle. You drive the car yourself. You get the real seat of motoring by handling the levers and steering the car yourself.

Free road demonstrations are given to interested parties any time.

ARCHITECTURAL EVOLUTION.

to Indians. They were themselves forts, as well as homes; pyramidal in form, each story having perpendicular walls without doors or windows, and entered only by means of ladders that could be drawn up to the roof. The blank wall of masonry, manned on top by determined warriors, was impregnable against the assaults of naked savages armed only with spears and bows and arrows. That whole communities should desert these impregnable fortified homes, exposing them and all their contents to looting and destruction is a specimen of scientific guesswork that might well be supplanted by a little unscientific common sense. Aside from this, the favorite method of waging war among savage nomads the world over has always been by sudden and unexpected attack. It is not likely that the foes against whom the mesa men had to contend gave them notice in advance of their intention to attack. If it was their habit to leave their dwellings on to mesa tops and retire to the cliffs in time of war, the first move of rival strategists would naturally be to steal up at night and cut off their retreat to the cliff strongholds. If any one will inspect the ruined "pueblos" of Atlatl, Tsankwi and Tshiro, with the cliff ruins that line the walls at no great distance, nothing but an unreasoning determination to bolster up preconceived opinions can prevent the conclusion that here are represented two distinct stages in the evolution of culture; and a reasonably close inspection of the tens of thousands of cliff dwellings will show the connecting links that led, almost imperceptibly, from the lower to the higher.

It is claimed by some investigators that the aborigines never learned how to dress blocks of stone to suit their requirements, but that they selected from the piles of detritus along the bases of the cliffs such rock fragments as met their wants. That men of sufficient intelligence and ingenuity to excavate many-roomed homes in solid rock, to construct great pyramidal buildings containing hundreds of separate apartments, and to carve huge idols or fetiches in the forms of men and beasts should lack the skill, the wit or the means to cut rectangular blocks of stone of any size or shape they might desire is unthinkable. True, the Mohi Indians today depend upon small flagstones for their architectural effects, and most of the existing Pueblo tribes prefer to use adobe rather than stone for building purposes; but the old town builders, who succeeded the cliff dwellers (probably their ancestors) were no such raw amateurs. If one takes more than a passing glance at the vast stone piles that once constituted Tsankwi, for example, he will find thousands of blocks of stone of identical size and shape, all perfect rectangles, excepting that time and the elements have worn away the edges and rounded the corners. One will search long among the piles of debris at the foot of the cliffs to find a single rock fragment of the size and shape of thousands in this single ruin.

Nowhere else in the world can these successive stages in the natural development of architecture be studied so satisfactorily as in the Southwest. There are places in the Pajarito Park district, within easy reach from Santa Fe and only a few miles from Espanola or Buckman station, on the Denver and Rio Grande Railroad, where the crude artificially-excavated cave, the first step in the evolution of building represented by the front wall of masonry, and the final architectural triumph in the great communal dwelling of stone (now in ruins it is true, but with many of the salient features still discernible), may be seen within a radius of half a mile. Nor need one travel far to see the aboriginal apartment-house in much of its pristine glory—excepting as to the materials used. The communal dwellings of the Pueblo Indians at Santa Clara, San Juan and San Ildefonso are built on a small scale, after the models of Tsankwi and Otowi; but the fact that adobe is used instead of stone is illustrative of the decadence of the Southwest. Farther away is Taos, the most perfect specimen of the highest type of aboriginal architecture now remaining in America—mud-built also, it is true, but no contemptible rival, in external architecture, of the great apartment-houses of the cities, when the resources of the builders are taken into consideration.

If your Stomach, Heart or Kidneys are weak try at least, a few doses only of Dr. Shoop's Restorative. In five or ten days only, the result will surprise you. A few cents will cover the cost. And here is why help comes so quickly. Dr. Shoop doesn't drug the Stomach, nor stimulate the Heart or Kidneys. Dr. Shoop's Restorative goes directly to the weak and failing nerves. Each organ has its own controlling nerve. When these nerves fail, the depending organs must of necessity falter. This plain, yet vital truth, clearly tells why Dr. Shoop's Restorative is so universally successful. Its success is lead-druggists everywhere to give it universal preference. A test will surely tell. The Most Common Cause of Suffering.
Rheumatism causes more pain and suffering than any other disease, for the reason that it is the most common of all ills, and it is certainly gratifying to sufferers to know that Chamberlain's Pain Balm will afford relief, and make rest and sleep possible. In many cases the relief from pain, which is at first temporary, has become permanent, while in old people subject to chronic rheumatism, often brought on by dampness or changes in the weather, a permanent cure cannot be expected; the relief from pain which this liniment affords is alone worth many times its cost. 25 and 50 cent sizes for sale by all druggists.

INCIDENTS OF DAY AT WASHINGTON

Flashing Warnings of Storms Around the World by Wireless Telegraphy—President as Trespasser.

Washington, D. C., May 27.—Flashing around the world by wireless telegraph warnings of approaching storms and other disturbances of the elements is one of the latest international projects, according to an announcement made here. Still another of perhaps little less importance is the proposition to equip the vessels of all nations with uniform storm signals.

These are the leading problems to be thrashed out at a conference of distinguished meteorologists of the principal nations to be held in London on June 21 next.

The proposed conference is the outgrowth of a meeting of the leading meteorologists of the world, held in Europe several years ago. The United States will be represented by Prof. Willis L. Moore, chief of the weather bureau.

A concerted movement will be inaugurated to induce the principal governments to adopt a uniform system of wireless marine weather reports and to reach an agreement so that all nations shall display uniform marine storm signals. If such an international agreement can be effected, it is believed that it will be a great factor in saving life and property on sea and land and at the same time be highly important in the making of weather predictions.

Can Express Liquor to Local Option County.

Washington, May 27.—The supreme court of the United States decided the case of the Adams Express Company vs. the Commonwealth of Kentucky, involving the right of the express company to ship liquor into a local option county, contrary to the law of the state, in favor of the company. The opinion says that the transaction was interstate commerce and therefore not subject to interference by the Kentucky authorities.

Came Near Arresting President.

Washington, May 27.—Those little signs: "Don't pick the flowers," which are stuck up all around Washington, apply to the President and all his satraps, as they found out to their sorrow, last Saturday.

With Captain A. W. Butt, U. S. A., his military aide, and a nameless friend, the President was taking a motor ride in the mall Saturday evening. In the grounds of the Department of Agriculture the chauffeur slowed down and the President's eye caught some beautiful flowers.

"Those are beautiful flowers, Archie," he exclaimed to his aide; "let's pick a few."

Now Captain Butt would not pluck posies for himself off any one's front lawn, but, as a soldier, "orders is orders" to him.

Each gathered a big bunch of the fragrant posies, the President being the first to move back toward the car. Captain Butt was getting a few more when the harsh voice of a burly watchman fell upon his ears:

"What you-all doing there? You have no business doing that; breaking the law, stealing government property that way."

Captain Butt started to explain, but was interrupted by the President, who rode indignantly forth from the shadow (flowers concealed behind his back).

"See here," he thundered at Captain Butt, "I told you not to do that. I told you 'Uncle Jimmy' Wilson would have somebody watching those flower beds. You know mighty well you're breaking the law, and now you're going to be arrested."

"You sure are, and"—here the watchman recognized the President and stood mute. The President laughed at him and at Butt and told him the whole crowd would quit their pliffing if he would not arrest them. "You have done your duty and I'll tell Secretary Wilson next time I see him," said the President. And he did this morning.

Monday to be Holiday.

Washington, May 27.—President Taft today issued an executive order directing that when national holidays fell on Sunday all government employees entitled to a holiday should be granted leave on the Monday following. The order applies everywhere, except in states where the state laws provide for celebrations on the Saturday preceding holidays falling on Sunday. In the latter cases the government employees will be granted leave on Saturday.

ORGANIZE FOR FAIRER RATES

Invitation to Commercial Bodies West of the Missouri to Help in the Fight Against Railroads.

Spokane, Wash., May 27.—Commercial bodies in interior cities and towns west of the Missouri river and south of the Canadian border to Mexico have been invited by the Interstate Commerce Commission of the Spokane Chamber of Commerce to organize for the purpose of resisting the efforts of the transcontinental railroads to upset the recent decision by the Interstate Commerce Commission in the Spokane rate case, also to send delegates to the hearing in Washington, D. C., June 9. It is declared that, if upheld, the ruling by the commission will furnish a precedent for every inland city to obtain reductions on excessive freight rates, and will also revolutionize rate-making all over the country.

Shippers in Spokane are paying on west-bound shipments from Chicago and Missouri river points, the rate to the Pacific coast, plus the rate back to Spokane. They have been doing this the last 20 years, and believe they are entitled to coast rates, at least, while others insist that the charges should be placed upon a service basis, regardless of so-called water competition. The establishment of coast rates would save the shippers in interior Western cities millions of dollars yearly.

"Service is all that can be legally charged for," said A. W. Doland, chairman of the committee, "and by this rule the shorter haul would get the lesser freight rate. Railroads are commercial ventures. However, in effect, the government is subsidizing the roads running to the Pacific coast to enable them to compete with the boats, and thus it is assisting them in driving the shipping of this country off the water. The government is virtually subsidizing the railroads by allowing them to tax the people of inland cities with unjust freight rates to enable them to fight the shipping interests successfully."

Hoarseness, bronchitis and other throat troubles are cured by Foley's Honey and Tar as it soothes and heals the inflamed throat and bronchial tubes and the most obstinate cough disappears. Insist upon having the genuine Foley's Honey and Tar. Sold by all druggists.

INSURANCE CONDITIONS IN NEW MEXICO

Gerald L. Schuyler Tells Denver of the Property That Prevails in Territory.

Denver, Colo., May 27.—Gerald L. Schuyler, general agent of this city, who has been planting agencies for the Shawnee Fire Company during the past month in New Mexico has returned to this city.

Speaking of conditions in New Mexico, Mr. Schuyler said:

"This was my first trip into New Mexico for five years. The Territory has grown wonderfully since I was there last and there is a noticeable increase in the populations and buildings of the various towns. In the eastern section of the state, which is the one that has caused most of the trouble, I found a land boom condition existing. Until last week there had been no rainfall in that section since last fall and the whole country was dried up. Last week, however, there were two heavy rains that extended from Carlsbad to the northern end of the district and I believe now that the farmers will have enough water to put their present crops through safely."

"While in Santa Fe I visited the offices of the insurance commissioner and from the officials there I found that of the total 65 per cent loss ratio of the Territory for last year, fully three-fourths was listed in the eastern section in the unirrigated districts. There are apparently few chances for improvement there and as a result I placed only one agency in that district. In all the Shawnee now has from 12 to 14 agencies in New Mexico."

A pain prescription is printed upon each 25c box of Dr. Shoop's Pink Tablets. Ask your doctor or druggist if this formula is not complete. Pain means congestion, blood pressure. Head pains, womanly pains, pain anywhere get instant relief from a Pink Pain Tablet. Sold by Stripling Burrows Co.

ASSESSMENT REFORM IN COLORADO

Denver, Colo., May 27.—An agreement to assess all property on a standard basis and under conditions which compel all county assessors to live up to the agreement will be reached by the county assessors of the state who are conferring with Governor John F.
Shafroth and the members of the state board of equalization.

The only question at the present time is whether the assessment standard shall be 33 1-3 or 40 per cent. Governor Shafroth, the state board and the members of the committee appointed by the assessors favor the 40 per cent basis. Many of the assessors argued yesterday for the lower standard.

F. D. Foster of Teller county presided at the meeting in the house of representatives. The report of the committee favoring the 40 per cent standard was read, and immediately several assessors moved that it be amended to 33 1-3 per cent. The discussion which followed lasted for more than two hours.

The governor contended that a 33 1-3 per cent basis would leave the state's revenues just about as they are. Many of the assessors claimed that the present assessment average not more than 22 1-2 per cent, because the assessments in some counties are very low. The governor said that a 50 per cent basis would be right.

"It has been my experience," said
P. L. Sanchez of Huerfano county, "that in previous meetings of the assessors we have agreed upon a standard and then many of the assessors went back to their counties and violated their agreement."

The assessors' committee in its report said:

"A number of the counties of the state are valuing property in their respective counties for assessment purposes at not less than 40 per cent, and that it is the opinion of the committee that a large number of the counties are valuing property upon a valuation much lower than this; and "Your committee further finds in its opinion, from an examination of the estimated revenues of the state, that the appropriations which are to be paid therefrom can and will be paid if all of the property of the state be assessed upon a uniform basis at not less than 40 per cent of its actual value."

BLOOD HOUNDS
AFTER CONVICTS

Ciriaco Moreno and Ramon Teyno, convicts employed on the scenic highway between Raton and the Colorado boundary, are reported missing and undoubtedly made their escape. Moreno was serving nineteen years from Otero county for murder, and Teyno, a year from Grant county, for burglary. The discarded prison garbs of the two men were found a short distance from the prison camp. The penitentiary has sent its bloodhounds to Raton to take up the trail of the convicts today. It seems that the two men received help from friends on the outside and are probably far in Colorado by this time.

TAFT WINS BARREL OF SAUERKRAUT.

Sandusky, Ohio, May 27.—President Taft holds a ticket that drew a barrel of sauerkraut worth $3 at the Elks' fair here last night. It was presented him by William Homer Reinhardt, president of the Perry Victory and the International Centennial Peace Commission, who was in Washington recently.

RIO GRANDE SHARES BOOM IN WALL ST.

New York, May 27.—Denver & Rio Grande was the most active of the Gould stocks and again passed 51.
Improved earnings and anticipation of financing other Gould properties are given as the reasons for the advance.

ADAM GOD AND HIS WIFE

Made a Maudlin Spectacle of Themselves on the Witness Stand at Kansas City.

Kansas City, Mo., May 27.—An unusual spectacle was presented in criminal court today when James I. Sharp, known as "Adam God" and his wife, Melissa, who went under the name
"Eve God," to the followers of their band of roving religionists, went on the witness stand at the trial of Sharp who is charged with murder. The woman is yet to be tried. The testimony of the couple proved weird, a pitiful exhibition of tears, lamentations and wild sayings. Mrs. Sharp reviewed the history of herself and husband. When told of their conversion she wept piteously and screamed so loud that she could be heard in the street.
"Adam God" wept aloud constantly during the half hour he was on the stand. He explained in detail the beliefs of himself and his band and told their doings. "Brother," said Sharp finally, addressing the judge and with tears streaming down his face: "It all came to me in a revelation as I lay asleep in my cell last night. The Lord said to me just like it was in the Bible, that my enemies are my friends.
No, the Lord means I must turn that saying around. If I'm to find my friends I must go among my enemies.
That's just the reason God led me into this courtroom!" Sharp denied he shot Patrolman Mullane with whose death he is charged. He declared he fired into the air.

IDENTIFICATION IS ALMOST COMPLETE

Sheriff of Pueblo County, Colorado, at Las Vegas to Examine the Suspect.

Pueblo, Colo., May 27.—Frank Bay Gordon, who is wanted here for the murder of Peter Dieter at Rye, Colorado, is believed to be under arrest at Las Vegas, New Mexico. The officers here are certain that the man there is Gordon and an officer will probably leave here tomorrow to bring him to Pueblo.

The man says his name is James Williams, but he fills the description sent out of Gordon in every detail, including secret marks on the forehead and the right wrist. He was arrested a few days ago as he stepped from a Santa Fe train by Deputy Sheriff Sena, who identified him from pictures sent out.

There were no new developments in the "Bay" Gordon arrest at Las Vegas today. Sheriff Cleofes Romero of San Miguel county, positively denied a rumor that the suspect had confessed that he was the much wanted fugitive murderer. While his identification apparently has been made complete, he still maintains that the officers are mistaken and that he is James W. Williams, an Oklahoma farmer. Sheriff F. W. McMillan of Pueblo is to arrive in Las Vegas tonight to identify the prisoner and to take him back to Colorado, should he prove to be the murderer of John Dieter.

LAMB MARKET IS HIGHER

Highest Price Known Paid at Chicago and Fort Collins Feeders Are Happy.

Fort Collins, Colo., May 27.—The lamb market continues to rise and today $9.65 was paid in Chicago, the highest price known, according to advices received by feeders who had lambs on sale. Ben Preston of this city and A. Scott of Timnath, each sold one car on the Chicago market at this price. Senator Drake sold two cars of clipped at $8.65. The news created a bull feeling among feeders here, while there was a deep feeling of regret among those who sold early in the season. There are a few lambs in this district and with a limited market it is confidently believed the price will continue to go up.
