SENATORS MAKE RESERVATION

Last Stand for Special Interests and Causes

AMENDMENTS ADOPTED

Senator Aldrich Gains Another Point to Hasten Action.

Washington, D. C., July 7.—When Senator Aldrich today moved for agreement by the Senate on all paragraphs in the tariff bill which the Senators did not reserve for further amendment, there was a widespread movement to reserve parts of the bill against which Senators desire to make a last stand for a change of schedules. Bailey reserved the Corporation Tax Amendment, while Hughes reserved the Philippine tariff. LaFollette saying he had no opportunity to inspect the reprint of the bill as acted on in committee of the whole, intimated that he would not respect the supposed unanimous consent agreement unless he could be assured of a chance to present such amendments as he might desire to introduce. He declared unanimous consent was hasty and consummated in such a way that many Senators did not understand. He might be called upon to reserve all paragraphs in the bill unless he could select the paragraphs desired to amend. Aldrich agreed to co-operate with LaFollette in obtaining an opportunity for the latter to offer amendments. The Aldrich request for a vote on the unreserved paragraphs was granted and the amendments were adopted without division. Consideration of the reserved provisions then was entered upon.

Evolution of Tariff.

Washington, D. C., July 7.—Speaking on the evolution of the tariff schedule today, Senator Newlands said in part:

"No material changes can now be made in the bill and the only question before us is whether we may not by some general provisions plant the seed of a rational tariff system under which excessive tariff duties may be gradually reduced and the tariff taken out of politics.

"The Senate has now been in continuous session for 90 days over these tariff schedules, but the legislation thus far shaped is almost barren of results in accomplishing what the president doubtless has in view—an honest revision of the tariff, following the rule laid down by the Republican platform.

"As the Senate has made practically no reduction all that conference could accomplish would be acquiescence in the moderate reduction of the Payne bill; so that conference presents an opportunity for little relief and the only remaining expedient is a vote of the bill.

"The tariff is not a piece of original legislation, but a measure intended to correct the abuses of an existing law.

"It would be difficult for the president to accomplish what he desires by a veto unless he wishes to record his condemnation of party breach of faith and the only alternative will be to accept the bill and press on later for the ameliorative legislation.

"It is not my province to proffer advice to the Republican party; but I am deeply solicitous that our action here shall contain the seed of a rational tariff system which will gradually eliminate the tariff from politics just as the railroad question has been taken out of politics by the creation of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

"I feel assured that if the Republican rule were fairly applied it would result in a considerable reduction of duties and that relief would come to the country from it; and I feel assured that if the American people were effected that a fair effort was being made to comply with this rule through some competent tribunal, organized by Congress, tariff agitation would practically end.

"I have contended against the abolition of duties on Filipino sugar, tobacco and other products upon the ground that the purpose was to give the Philippines artificial prosperity. The president's recommendation, however, made with the best of motives and out of solicitude for the welfare of the Filipino people, has carried and all that can be done is to ameliorate its effects as much as possible.

that our purpose is to shape the government of those islands as to prepare the Philippines for self government and ultimately to yield the islands to the government of their people."

ENTHUSED OVER SANTA FE'S PROSPECTS

Prominent Men Upon Leaving Promise to Interest Capital in Their Home Cities.

Yesterday when J. H. Christian of Detroit and F. D. Pelletier of Kansas City, departed for their homes they were elated with enthusiasm regarding the advantages and prospects of Santa Fe. Messrs. Pelletier and Christian were here for the purpose of looking into the matter of the new De Vargas hotel in which they will have an interest.

Like a great many others they arrived in the city expecting to find that matters had been grossly overrated and exaggerated to a high degree. They had been reading various articles setting forth the advantages of Santa Fe and describing its many attractions, but somehow they anticipated meeting with great disappointment. However as the gentlemen themselves expressed it, they were disappointed but in a manner most pleasing. In other words they found upon investigation, that the many articles written about the Ancient City, have never done it full justice.

While here the gentlemen had the opportunity of seeing all the sights so prolific about the town. Their interest was aroused to the highest pitch of enthusiasm and they were not at all backward in expressing their admiration and astonishment. Both gentlemen stated that they intended returning to their home cities and interesting capital not alone in the new hotel project but in the many other opportunities offered for investment.

Said Mr. Christian who is connected with the Detroit Building Company: "Santa Fe possesses the greatest advantages of any place in the country for the erection of a resort hotel. Among all the hotels in the building of which I have been interested, I find that all are overshadowed by the great advantages offered in the building of the projected De Vargas. The people of this town should arouse themselves to the development of the great resources at hand. Not only will the proposed De Vargas be a grand success, and this from the very start, but I predict that within the next five years there will be built at least two more tourist hotels with double the capacity of the De Vargas. I am thoroughly captivated by the wonderful possibilities abounding hereabouts and have every confidence as to the future development of Santa Fe."

TESTIMONY WAS UNFIT TO PRINT

Ella Gingles Tells Court of Shameless and Sensational Bath Room Incident.

Chicago, Ill., July 7.—The sensational Wellington Hotel bathroom incident was reached in the trial of Ella Gingles today. Scores of women and even school girls were turned away from the court room. Judge Britano threatened to photograph every woman present at which several fled. Miss Gingles said she went to the hotel to collect eighty-three cents Miss Arnold owed her. A man told her that Miss Arnold was in the bath room, opened the door and pushed her in. Witness said that Miss Barrett, her erstwhile employer, came in and undressed her. She declared that the latter was under the influence of liquor, forced her to drink something that had a bad taste and then put a towel over her head. Here testimony became unprintable. The witness said that Miss Barnett and a man cut her with a knife when she refused to agree to the latter's proposition and declared she was stabbed twenty-three times. Just before noon adjournment Miss Gingles said she did not know Tom Taggart of French Lick Springs and that he never did her any harm.

SAYS FARMERS ARE PARISMONIOUS

Denver, Colo., July 7.—Farmers were charged with being parsimonious and selfish in dealing with the education of their sons, in an address before the Rural and Agricultural Department of the National Educational Association this morning. James W. Robertson, president of McDonald College at St. Anne de Bellevue, Quebec, declared that the farmer wants a little education for his son, but does not want to pay, and does not want more education because he thinks the son will leave him. "This is where he is wrong," said Robertson, "because if his son knew more the farmers' acres would be worth more." Dick J. Crosby, of the Agricultural Department of Washington, pleaded for closer relation between the rural schools and the community. He wanted to make knowledge of good cooking and the ability to make fences the goal of education for the community as well as familiarity with the three.

SACRAMENTO STREAM SYSTEM

Engineer Sullivan Makes Investigation of Flow

NO FOURTH OF JULY PARDON

Convict Who Anticipated the Clemency of Governor Curry.

Governor Curry thinks the joke is on him, but it really is on Ciriaco Moreno. Judge Edward A. Mann, the trial judge, Judge A. W. Cooley who succeeded him, the prosecuting district attorney, the members of the jury and many citizens petitioned Governor Curry to commute the sentence of Ciriaco Moreno and it was shown that the sentence imposed on the man had been too heavy in the light of more recent developments. Governor Curry therefore made out the papers for a Fourth of July pardon in favor of Ciriaco, but at the last moment learned that Ciriaco had anticipated the governor's action and had given leg bail. Moreno escaped from the gang that is working on the Scenic Highway, near Raton, and when apprehended will not only fail of being pardoned but will lose good time allowance. In the meantime, the custom and precedent of the Fourth of July pardon, observed by the chief executives of New Mexico for many years, is broken this year and Governor Curry received another jolt of his faith in human nature.

Sullivan Returns. Territorial Engineer Vernon L. Sullivan has returned from an inspection of the water systems of the Sacramento mountains and investigation of a number of water rights disputes. He reports plenty of rain in the Sacramento mountains and nearby plains. The La Luz is at present flowing 15 second feet, but the Sacramento much less, while in other canons and streams, the flow is very low. As soon as he has routine business out of the way he will tackle the problem of completing the Scenic Highway from Santa Fe to the Pecos.

Notary Public Appointed.

Governor Curry appointed John Roger Haynes of Rio Arriba county, a notary public.

Mounted Police Notes.

Captain Fred Fornoff of the mounted police, left this forenoon for Albuquerque with G. Fred Murray who is to be sentenced by Judge Ira A. Abbott. Mounted Policeman Rafael Gomez left today for Lamar, Colorado, to bring back a convict who had escaped from the convict camp on the Scenic Highway.

Admitted to New Mexico.

The National Casualty Company of Detroit, Michigan, was today admitted to do business in the Territory, by Superintendent of Insurance Jacobo Chaves. The company will write health and accident insurance and has a capital of $100,000.

PLANTATION OWNER WITH NERVE

Killed Two and Wounded Two Masked Men LEFT A TRAIL OF BLOOD

Jose Santiago Opens Fire on Hold-Ups Who Demand Valuables.

Torreón, Mex., July 7.—As the result of the attempted robbery of a nery plantation owner, two robbers are dead, and two others are badly wounded and in jail waiting for trial. Four masked men broke into the apartments of Jose Santiago, owner of the Pinto Hacienda in North Torreón, and demanded his valuables. Instead of complying, Santiago reached under his pillow for a small revolver and opened fire. When the shooting was over two robbers were dead, and the other two were running away leaving a trail of blood. They were soon captured.

TRAINS FROM EAST TIED UP

Kansas and Missouri Experiencing Annual Floods

RECORD BREAKING RAINS

Topeka and Pattonsburg Are Partly Under Water With Rivers Rising.

Topeka, Kan., July 7.—Topeka is experiencing the first flood of the season. Many houses in the southern and eastern sections of the city are flooded. A record-breaking rain fall last night, which assumed the proportions of a cloudburst near Manhattan, caused a rise in the Kansas river. All Santa Fe trains are tied up. The tracks are under water for 300 feet in Wakarusa creek, ten miles west of Topeka. Union Pacific and Rock Island trains are delayed.

Pattonsburg Sends for Assistance.

Kansas City, Mo., July 7.—Pattonsburg, Missouri, a town of 1,500 inhabitants, sixty miles north of here, is under ten feet of water and Chief of Police Snow of this city received a telegram today appealing for boats to rescue the marooned citizens, many of whom have been driven to the roofs of their homes. The chief loaded fifty rowboats on a special train and sent them with a detachment of officers to aid in the rescue work. According to a telephone operator, the water is still rising rapidly this morning and a drizzling rain is falling, adding to the discomfort of the sufferers.

Aided by a two inch rainfall here and the rising of the rivers above, the Missouri and Kansas rivers showed rises of a foot during the past 24 hours at Kansas City. The local forecaster predicted that the Missouri would reach the 25 foot mark tomorrow. If this proves true, and the Kansas continues to rise, back water will be running into the lower streets of the west bottoms tomorrow. Portions of the little town of Harlem, across the river from here, are under water.

Railroads Tied Up.

St. Joseph, Mo., July 7.—Practically all railroads to the north, west and northwest of St. Joseph are tied up as the result of floods and washouts. Hundreds of travelers from the east and south are marooned here with no prospect of getting away for 24 hours.

Freezing in Nevada.

Reno, Nev., July 7.—The coldest July night Nevada has experienced was recorded last night. Small bodies of water had a layer of ice this morning and the wheat in the northern part of the state is reported to have been frozen.

D. & R. G. Tracks Flooded.

Denver, Colo., July 7.—The blockades in railroad traffic in various parts of Colorado resulting from the heavy rains of the last few days are unbroken.

Probably the most serious tie-up occurred along the line of the Denver and Rio Grande west of Canon City, in the famous Royal gorge. Here landslides caused by the rains have covered the tracks to a depth of from six to twenty feet for several hundred feet in three different places. Three through trains are held at Canon City, carrying over a thousand passengers bound for various points on the Pacific coast, including delegates to the Elks' national convention in Los Angeles and the Epworth league in Seattle.

At Rameah, Colorado, the rains of last night washed out a quarter of a mile of the Rock Island tracks today.

Washout in Nebraska.

Omaha, Neb., July 7.—An all night rainstorm caused a heavy flood damage along the Missouri valley. Council Bluffs suffered seriously last night from a flood which had not entirely subsided this morning and numerous washouts up the river occurred in the smaller towns. In the vicinity of Missouri valley, 25 miles north of Council Bluffs, the entire valley is under water.

In Omaha many washouts are reported and two suburban car lines were put out of commission temporarily.

Crops on Lowlands are Almost Entirely Destroyed.

Will Change River Bed. Florence, Colo., July 7.—Owing to the floods of August, 1908, and the high winds of the past few days, which proved disastrous to the Rio Grande right-of-way at Florence, the railway officials have decided to change the course of the stream. A new channel will be dredged at a safe distance from the tracks and the waters diverted.

Floods in Mexico.

Monterey, Mex., July 7.—With the damage of three-quarters of a million dollars as a result of the recent rainfall and with passenger service still crippled, the railroad situation in northern Mexico is believed to be in danger of another setback. There was heavy rain in the vicinity of Villada this afternoon. Cabañas, Hidalgo, is reported entirely wiped out.

The river, which skirts the northern section of the town of Villada, has left its banks. Fifty houses have been swept away and a hundred others are under water. Several hundred persons are homeless.

The first train over the National Railroad to reach this city from Laredo since July 1, arrived last night and left for Mexico City. This train left Laredo Sunday evening and had been en route for fifty hours.

Saved by a Tramp.

Pueblo, Colo., July 7.—Passengers on a Rio Grande train, leaving Pueblo at noon today, doubtless owe their lives to an unknown tramp, who flagged the train two miles east of the little station of Swallows, where the Arkansas river had undermined a long stretch of roadbed.

After the train was stopped, passengers crept slowly over the dangerous piece of roadbed. Before the train again proceeded on its way, the waters of the river were rippling over the sagging rails.

For the executive committee the following were selected: Harrison Nesbit, C. C. Murray and John D. Findley. James W. Arrott, Jr., of Pittsburgh, the former secretary of the company was also at the meeting.

Jones, a farmer's wife, is lying at the point of death at her home five miles north of here, and her husband is seriously wounded as the result of an attempt to assassinate the couple. STATE MAKING TOO MUCH MONEY

Independent Oil Operators of Texas Dissatisfied

COMPLAIN OF COMPETITION

Receiver Doing Better Than Owners of Waters Pierce Company.

Galveston, Texas, July 7.—The independent oil dealers are complaining over the state of Texas competing with them in the sale of oil from the Waters Pierce companies property which is being operated under a state receivership. The receivership permits cheap prices and the accumulation of great profits. The complaints point to the fact that the earnings of the company for five weeks were $79,647 or 40 per cent of the total assets of the concerns in Texas. It is charged that these profits are far in excess of what the Waters Pierce company earned under trust operation and protection.

OPEN REVOLT AT CARLISLE SCHOOL

Two Pupils Charge That Their Health Was Seriously Impaired by Close Imprisonment.

Carlisle, Pa., July 7.—Charges that two students at the Carlisle Indian school, Spencer, Williams and Carl Sylvester, had been thrust into a dungeon and fed on bread and water until the health of one of them was seriously impaired, and that the school was in open revolt, called forth a statement today from Superintendent Moses Friedman, in charge of the institution.

Mr. Friedman defended his own administration and attacked former administrators as "brutal and demoralizing." He also accused a former superintendent of stirring up sentiment against him. He admitted that students had been imprisoned under his direction.

In the fact of Mr. Friedman's denial of "gross mistreatment" of students, charged by James R. Wheelock, a graduate of the school, many citizens declare that the Carlisle school may be abolished as the result of attacks which are being aimed at it. This will be less the fault of Mr. Friedman, they assert, than of men who are dissatisfied with his conduct of the school, which was founded by General R. H. Pratt and which has been maintained by the government under the supervision of the Indian bureau of the department of the interior. Mr. Wheelock urges the interior department to make a prompt and searching investigation.

"These two boys," said Mr. Friedman, discussing the charges, "were refused permission to join the Wheelock band because it came to my attention that the students of this school who had been engaged in previous seasons by Mr. Wheelock were underpaid and finally left stranded when the season was over. In spite of my order these boys left the school and as they had signed a promise not to leave until their term was up, I ordered their confinement in the guardhouse."

The charges that the students were weakened by their confinement in the guardhouse was declared absurd by the superintendent, who asserts that never before in the history of the school has the punishment meted out to students been of such mild character as now.

CONVICTS ESCAPE FROM SCENIC HIGHWAY

Two Men Having But Few Months to Serve Flee From Colorado Camp.

Trinidad, Colo., July 7.—Convict Hummel, No. 7074, and Convict Davis, No. 6527, who came here with the last party of convicts last week to work on the state highway, escaped from the camp near Morley and no clue has been secured to their whereabouts. Davis was sent up from Adams county for robbery for 10 to 12 years, and had only 17 months to serve. Hummel was sent from Mesa county on the charge of assault to rob for five to six years, and had but four months to serve.

THE DAILY ROUND UP.

BACK HOME

If I could go back to my home tonight, Back to the long low house when evening light Just shadowed down to darkness— what would be My first glad act? The first thing, I would see Where mother was—go calling far and near Through every room, until she answered "Here". Then I would turn so fast—I could not wait! And I would cry: "Has father come? It's late; I want you both—I've something I must tell." How well do I remember, oh! How well! Then father'd come, and, after tea, we'd go Into the quiet room we used to know; And I would tell them all the joy, the gain Since I had seen them last—the grief, the strain, And mother'd kiss me and my father'd smile And say: "It will come right, just wait a while." And both would know—and all things would be right, If I could go back to my home to-night. —George Adel Pierce.

In his room, in the Young Men's Christian Association Building at Las Vegas, yesterday, Charles Hutchinson Mills of Chicago, was found dead with a bullet hole in his forehead. HANDS CRACKED RAW AND SCALY Itched and Burned Terribly—Arms Affected, Too—Could Not Move Thumbs Without Flesh Cracking—Sleep and Work Often Impossible—Was Fairly Worn Out.

CUTICURA SOON CURED HIS FEARFUL ECZEMA

"About a year ago an itching humor began to appear around the back of my hand. It started in to spread, and pretty soon it covered both my hands and got up over my wrists and even up to the elbows. The itching and burning were terrible. My hands got all scaly and when I scratched, as I was doing a good part of the time, the surface would be covered with blisters and then get raw. The eczema got so bad in around the pit of my thumb that I could not move the thumbs without deep cracks appearing. I went to my doctor, but his medicine could only stop the itching and did not seem to heal my hands up at all. At night I suffered so fearfully that I could not sleep, often lying awake until well toward morning, then waking up still tired. I am a chef and steward by trade and I had to give up my place, as my hands were so terrible to look at that they did not like to have me around about the food. I could not bear to touch them with water, but when I positively had to get my hands clean I would rub them with oil.

"This sort of business went on for three months and I kept trying zinc and tar ointments and such remedies with no particular benefit. I did not know what to do, for I was fairly worn out. For a long time several friends kept asking me why I didn't use Cuticura and at last I thought I would. First I got the Cuticura Soap, then Cuticura Ointment and at last Cuticura Resolvent. I put the Cuticura Ointment on at night, covering my hands with light cotton gloves. In the morning the inside of the gloves would be lined with scales, sometimes half as long as your finger, leaving nice healed places where the scales had been. In a month I was cured and have kept so now for nine months. My hands and arms are perfectly clear of all traces of eczema and I think I am well rid of it. Walter H. Cox, 16 Somerset St., Boston, Mass. Sept. 25, 1908."

HEED THE WARNING.

Many Santa Fe People Have Done So.
When the kidneys are sick they give unmistakable warnings that should not be ignored. By examining the urine and treating the kidneys upon the first sign of disorder, many days of suffering may be saved. Sick kidneys expel a dark, ill-smelling urine, full of "brick-dust" sediment and painful in passage. Sluggish kidneys cause a dull pain in the small of the back, headaches, dizzy spells, tired, languid feelings and frequently rheumatic twinges.

Doan's Kidney Pills are for the kidneys only; they cure sick kidneys, and rid the blood of uric poison. If you suffer from any of the above symptoms you can use no better remedy.

Santa Fe people recommend Doan's Kidney Pills.
Hilario Baca, Delgado street, Santa Fe, N. Mex., says: "I feel so greatly pleased with the benefit I obtained from Doan's Kidney Pills, which I procured at Stripling and Burrows' drug store, that I am glad to recommend them. Off and on for three or four months I was subject to a pain in my back and I felt it severely at times, especially when I stooped, lifted or brought any strain on the muscles of my loins. Owing to the persistence of the annoyance I was led to believe that the cause was some disorder of the kidneys. After using Doan's Kidney Pills a short time I noticed an improvement and before I had finished one box I was cured. I have not had a symptom of the trouble since. I will recommend Doan's Kidney Pills whenever the opportunity occurs."

TELEPHONE IN FIGHT- ING FOREST FIRES

Portable Instruments With Which Rangers are Equipped are Great Time Savers.

The season for forest fires is about to commence. The early summer months with their days of heat and drought invariably bring with them destruction to acres and acres of timber tracts that this country can ill afford to lose. Dr. W. J. McGee, the government's erosion expert, estimates the aggregate loss from this source, taking in all parts of the country, at no less than a million dollars a day during the dry spell. Last year the fires were worse than ever. Everybody can recall the daily reports of towns wiped out, lives lost and thousands of square miles of precious woodland wasted. It amounted to nothing less than a public calamity. The terrible visitation formed part of the subject of President Roosevelt's famous message on the conservation of natural resources. If the fertility of American soil is not to suffer surely something must be done to guard against another devastation like that of 1908, he argued.

For the loss is not alone to the tracts of wooded land laid waste. The character of an entire country side is changed by such a conflagration. Many have passed through portions of various states and seen the awful effects of a forest fire—the blackened stumps it leaves behind, the dreary waste of sterile, unproductive land.

Not only is timber burned up, but the loss of foliage has a destructive effect on the atmosphere. The development of streams, upon which the country relies for power, and which forms the distinctive feature of all American landscapes, is arrested. The indirect loss which accrues when forests are burned would be pretty hard to estimate.

Uncle Sam of course knows this, and it is interesting to see what has already been done to prevent further loss. The government exercises sway only over the national forests, principally in the far West. Here prodigious steps are being taken to safeguard the timber lands from destruction. Principal among the preventive measures is the use of the telephone. Already this common little instrument has succeeded in arresting the progress of several serious blazes, and the experts of the Department of Agriculture are eagerly watching for more proofs of its efficiency.

In the national forests in 1908 lands extending 414,638 acres were burned over. The timber destroyed aggregated 232,191,000 board feet. There is food for thought in these figures. As much lumber as was utterly destroyed last year would build many a good sized town. Cut into planks of the accepted dimensions, one inch thick and one foot wide, and laid end to end, it would extend almost twice around the earth. And this too in the national forests alone—only the thousands of individual lumbermen whose private interests suffered could furnish any information that would involve a real total.

The Forest Service atlas figures that in the year 1906-7 for every thousand acres of national woodland .82 acres were destroyed by fire. In the preceding year 1,078 acres per 1,000 were burned over. But in the past year, with a report of 414,638 acres destroyed out of a total of 150,831,665 acres of forest land, including alienations, it can be computed that 2.74 acres out of every thousand were wiped out.

How Forest Fires Start.
Fires in the forests have their origin in many cases. In the summer months dry leaves and brittle stumps are prolific sources of trouble. The least spark thrown into a pile of woodland rubbish may start a tiny flame—the blaze, invisible for days, perhaps, will smoulder until suddenly it breaks out and seizes tree after tree.

It is possible to avoid one species of risk, and here New York has set a notable example. The Public Service Commission for the second district of the Empire State has directed an important ruling at the railroads. The second district includes all of the state without the boundaries of the City of New York, and there are no woods in Gotham, unless one considers the park trees. The New York state railroads last year were found to be the cause of 83 serious blazes, most of them in the Adirondacks. Sparks from locomotives did the damage. Accordingly the Hughes commission, after an inquiry into the facts, has ordered that oil be burned as fuel in locomotives on all roads traversing the wooded lands between April 15 and November 1 of each year.

The foresters wish it were as easy to regulate hunters, who cause more trouble than railroads. New York reports that last year 103 fires of large dimensions were caused by the carelessness of amateur sportsmen. Fifty thousand acres of trees were burned down. The hunter who builds his camp-fire in a clearing and goes away without stamping out the remains; the man who knocks the hot ashes out

Stop That Cold

To check early colds or Grippe with "Preventics" means sure defeat for Pneumonia. To stop a cold with Preventics is safer than to let it run and be obliged to cure it afterwards. To be sure, Preventics will cure even a deeply seated cold, but taken early—at the sneeze stage—they break, or head off these early colds. That's surely better. That's why they are called Preventics.

Preventics are Little Candy Cold Cures. No Quinine, no physic, nothing sickening. Nice for the children—and thoroughly safe too. If you feel chilly, if you sneeze, if you ache all over, think of Preventics. Promptness may also save half your usual sickness. And don't forget your child, if there is feverishness, night or day. Herein probably lies Preventics' greatest efficiency. Sold in 5c boxes for the pocket, also in 25c boxes of 48 Preventics. Insist on your druggists giving you of his pipe by hitting it against a tree trunk, and the one who throws his cigar-end off into the bushes at his side little realize what follows in their wake. Probably if told they were the cause of the great conflagration they see a few days later, they would be astonished.

Quite a few of these fires are started by incendiaries. The fiend who sets the torch to a forest differs very little from his brother, who explodes a bomb in a tenement. Thoughtless children are known to have been the cause of some fires. Still a larger number go unexplained. What to do to check the spread of the flames is a more pressing problem to the government than how they started.

Fighting the Flames.

In the national forests are about 200,000 men ready to turn out and of all descriptions. During the forest fight the flames whenever necessary. This includes regulars and volunteers are season the United States Forest service employs 1,351 rangers and guards. Each man has a certain beat to patrol. Taking into consideration the area of the national forests, it can be calculated that each of these "patrolmen" covers 121,596 square miles. Quite a long beat for a man, even on horseback.

This is where the telephone comes in. Portable 'phones are made expressly for this purpose, and with their aid each ranger is kept in touch with his entire area. Let a fire start, and immediately the wires ring with the message of warning. Strapped to the back of the ranger, the telephone is an ever-present and quicker-than-lightning messenger. It has worked wonders lately, and it means almost the only encouragement for those engaged in the apparently hopeless task of combating the forest fires.

In one case last year a government officer summoned help from 43 miles away with his portable instrument. Aid was received more than a day sooner than if a messenger had been dispatched.

Forester Gifford Pinchot's latest report on this subject is dated June 30, 1908. During the year previous to that day 3,500 miles of telephone lines were constructed in the national forests. This year's report will show interesting data. The work has been progressing as rapidly as appropriations would permit, and the number of 'phones has been greatly increased. Already this year 2,523 3-4 miles of telephone lines have been constructed. The Western Electric Company is installing the 'phones and apparatus in the government's lands.

The Forest Telephone.

Government telephone lines have been built in Arizona, California, Montana, Nebraska, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Oregon, Utah, Washington and Wyoming. The need of 'phones has not been underestimated in the past and many miles of telephone line have been constructed in the national forests. The headquarters of many of the forest officers are in isolated parts of the country and in some cases it takes three weeks for an answer to a letter to be received, although the distance may not exceed sixty to seventy miles.

To talk of eliminating forest fires is nonsense, everybody knows that. But if the success to which they may be fought shows a greater percentage through the use of the telephone the Forest Service will feel justified in the expenditure it has made. With the season coming on fast, the men in the woods will find their 'phones more than useful.

One of these portable telephones is an interesting instrument. The case is handsomely finished in birch or mahogany and is provided with a strap to facilitate handling. It contains a buzzer, hand generator, switch, receiver cord, one dry battery, induction coil, a transmitter and a receiver. The transmitter is fastened inside the case and the receiver and the other projecting parts are mounted so that they are not likely to be caught by branches. The compactness of the set makes it easy to handle.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF SANTA FE COUNTY.

The New Mexican is the oldest newspaper in New Mexico. It is sent to every postoffice in the Territory, and has a large and growing circulation among the intelligent and progressive people of the Southwest.

IT CAN'T BE WORSE!

"It can't be worse!" was the slogan that carried the commission form of government at Des Moines, Iowa. The Circle for July tells of the success of the plan in that beautiful Iowa city. The movement started from conditions similar to those that tolerate a manure pile in the heart of the residence portion of Santa Fe, and right under the nose of Governor Curry in the executive mansion. Says the Circle: "Some years ago a man named Brown went to the city hall and told somebody there that the sewer back of his house was filled up with dead cats, or something as offensive, and refused to continue the performance of its functions. He told the first man he saw, because sewers were anybody's business. He wanted the sewer attended to right away, fearing his family would take sick. The man whom he addressed politely referred him to somebody else, and after he had been referred to one place and another for five or six hours the baseball game started and all the officials hurried over to the park in order not to miss the first half of the first inning. Mr. Brown went home and returned next day, finally to be informed that he would have to bring the matter up before the council. He did so the next week, which was the occasion of the next meeting of the council. The sewer complaint was referred to the sewer committee, and two weeks later a report was brought in recommending that the matter be placed in the hands of the city solicitor to dispose of some legal considerations involved. The solicitor gave the subject long and ponderous contemplation and advised the council to direct the board of public works to take action. The report was delayed several days in the office of the clerk, during which period the city was visited by a heavy rain. In the meantime Brown had gone away on his summer vacation. Nothing having been done to remedy the condition of the sewer the water backed up into the alley, flooded Mr. Brown's hen house and drowned all his chickens. In due course, a stench arose from the hen house and Mr. Brown returned from his summer outing to face a warrant for his arrest on a charge of maintaining a nuisance."

This resembles very much, at least in its incipency, Santa Fe's famous manure pile. Every city official's attention has been called to it, individually and collectively, but it is still there and getting richer every day, although an application to the court for an injunction would settle it immediately and forever. If Governor Curry were not so good-natured a friend of Santa Fe, he would make that manure pile an excuse for heading a movement to remove the capital to some cleaner town, a town that would have respect enough for him and for itself to remove an obnoxious, fly-breeding, mosquito-breeding, disease-breeding, water contaminating manure pile that smells to high heaven from out of the sight of the executive mansion and the Capitol.

It is here, where the difference between the present form and the Roswell form of municipal government is illustrated. Under present conditions, no one thinks it his duty to interfere with that manure pile. It can be there and rot and contaminate all it has a mind to, for there is no one responsible for abating such nuisances. Under the Roswell plan, it would be the distinct duty of one individual, which he could not shove on to the next fellow. Any complaining citizen, including the governor, could go to him and say: "You are the man. You are responsible for the removal of this nuisance." And it wouldn't take 24 hours to get it removed.

Perhaps, in the all wisdom of Providence, that manure heap is serving a good purpose, for it may bring Santa Fe the much to be desired commission form of government. At least, the New Mexican will continue to refer to this ill-smelling theme, until even the strong stomachs of the members of the city government are nauseated.

The city council last evening failed to pass an ordinance calling a special election at which to vote on the matter of including the city's suburbs within the city limits before the census is taken. This question is as important to Santa Fe as consolidation to Las Vegas. Upon it will depend whether Santa Fe is to be classed as a village for another ten years or as a city; whether it is to be regarded as the second city of the Territory when the capital fight is on in 1915, or as the sixth city. The contest may be so close, that this one fact alone may decide the issue.

MANUAL TRAINING SCHOOLS

Santa Fe will sooner or later fall in line when it comes to establishing manual training schools, but the New Mexican is so ambitious for Santa Fe, that it would prefer to see the city take the lead rather than the "falling in line". The city's board of education is composed of a rather higher grade of citizenship than the average and while the board has been negligent in failing to heed the demand for a ward school in the Fourth Ward, yet, by establishing school gardens and other progressive actions, it has demonstrated that it seeks to perform its duties not only conscientiously but also intelligently.

Two of the speakers at the National Educational Association convention in Denver yesterday, emphasized this demand for trade schools, for manual training, for an industrial education. Says the Denver Republican in speaking on this subject:

"Trade schools are needed because tens of thousands of bright, naturally capable American boys should be given an opportunity to learn the trades they would like to follow."

"It is an error to say that the establishment of trade schools would develop a class spirit, and that it would be impracticable to determine where boys should learn trades and where boys should take the ordinary high school course. Nothing would prevent the father who might wish to do so from sending his boy to the high school. Schools of that kind would be open and as free as they are today; and the father who did not want his boy to learn a trade would be as free to make a lawyer or a doctor of him as he is now."

"The present system is more likely to develop class antagonism than one of which trade schools would form a part because while at present a boy can at public expense be trained for the legal or the medical profession, no provision is made for equipping him with a trade. The boy with natural aptitude for the mechanic arts is restricted in his opportunities for unions limit the number of apprentices and the state does nothing to supply this lack."

"Artisans of foreign birth attracted to this country by the high wages paid, fill places which would be occupied by American young men, if when boys the latter had been given an opportunity to fit themselves for the skilled trades."

"In other words what is needed is that the American boy be given a chance. Tens of thousands of young men who would make skilled artisans are denied the opportunity to fit themselves for that kind of work; and thus they are compelled to make their living in more or less precarious ways or join the great army of the unemployed."

"The thing which American boys need to be taught more than anything else is that work is the price of success and that it is not a thing which should be shunned. But the schools are not teaching this lesson or at the most they are teaching it in a way that does not impress its importance upon the minds of the pupils. In a large measure the tendency is to train boys away from work instead of equipping them for the real battle of life. The notion that it is better to be a poor lawyer than a good machinist is one from which the youth of this land should get away as rapidly and as far as possible. One way to do this is to elevate the trades in public estimation by providing as liberally for instruction in them for the kind of training boys and girls obtain in the ordinary high school."

After several years' absence, the cry of Samar for Governor Curry is as persistent as ever. It can not be the cry of the sycophant, for in his present condition and position, Governor Curry can help no one in Samar to office or to anything else. It is a spontaneous cry, it is like the Macedonian cry, one for help because help is needed, because Governor Curry was the best beloved, most esteemed, most just man, that was ever sent to Samar to govern that colony. It is unusual for any people or any province to demand the return of an official who has passed out of their sphere of activity for several years. There is no one in New Mexico, for instance, demanding the return of officials who have left the Territory for other places of usefulness, nay, not even for such ex-officials who have remained in the Territory and are still identified with it. But New Mexico is beginning to understand, this cry for Curry from far Samar, for it too is realizing better every day that he has brought harmony where there was dissension and is giving the commonwealth what it needed after a Hagerman regime—peace, justice and the square deal.

As a rule, the sending of the attorney general of the Territory to different counties to aid in the prosecution of criminals, ought to be discouraged. Of course, there may be an exceptional case now and then, where such interference is warranted, but generally speaking, it is not a good practice. District attorneys, if they need such help, should be authorized to employ special attorneys and where such help is not needed, the presence of the attorney general, will often be construed as a reflection upon the ability or the integrity of the district attorney. As a matter of fact, the attorney general of the territory, has of late years so much work that comes within what is considered his real sphere of duty, that he should not be expected to be trotting over twenty-six counties to help in the prosecution of cases which the district attorneys are fully able to attend to themselves, and unless the reasons are quite clear and the cause for it evident, the governor should not direct the attorney general to proceed to county seats to do the work that should fall to district attorneys alone. Governor Curry has acted on this principle and lately refused to direct Attorney General Clancy to take charge of the prosecution of a murder case at Bernalillo and has made up his mind, unless there is a justifiable demand, like that from Roswell, this week, not to accede to any requests of that nature.

That Governor Curry is taking a keen interest in completing the Scenic Highway from Santa Fe to the Pecos, should be appreciated by the people of this city. His interest has gone so far that he went before the board of county commissioners yesterday and persuaded them to make an appropriation toward completing this fine piece of roadway and making it available to travel. This gave the Good Roads Commission, the warrant to now its aid to the project, and the penitentiary to furnish convicts for the purpose. While thus far, only $2,000 are available, there is an intimation that the forest service will swell the fund by adding to it such amount as it has available. Application will also be made to the Santa Fe Railway to contribute, as the completion of the road will be of immense advertising value to the Santa Fe system, for the road will open the finest tourist resort country in the Southwest to the general public. It is certain now, that the project will be completed to the Pecos river without waiting for the Congressional appropriation, which when it is made, will be used to widen the road and carry it to the Las Vegas end. Governor Curry, is verily a man who does things and the community should certainly co-operate with him to push the Scenic Highway through to the Pecos this year and if it should cost ten times as much as is now available. It is certain, that for every step that the city and the county will take in this matter Governor Curry and the Good Roads Commission are ready to take three.

Both Colorado and New Mexico have had sufficient experience in employing convicts in road building, to learn that except for heavy rock work, convict labor on roads far away from the penitentiary is more expensive than free labor. It would have paid New Mexico better, for instance, to have employed free labor at the Raton end of the scenic highway than convict labor. The limit for out-of-door employment of convicts is very small, and excepting where camps can be established permanently within wagon distance of the penitentiary, as in the Santa Fe Canon or on the Dalton Divide, building roads not more than thirty miles from the penal institution, it is better from a financial standpoint and also that efficient work, to employ men at a dollar and a half a day than to use convicts. This having been determined by Governor Curry and the Good Roads Commission, the use of convicts on good roads will be limited to the immediate vicinity of the penitentiary and the capital.

It is a curious argument that the Texas brewers are putting up; curious in the light of their other actions. They have voted $100,000 to prove their faith in the contention that more intoxicants are consumed in prohibition states than in wide open states, and yet, at the same session they decided to fight prohibition tooth and nail. It is the business of the brewers to brew beer and to sell it and everything that promotes the sale of beer, they would naturally encourage if they are good business men. If their first view is correct therefore, it would be their business to encourage prohibition, to vote $100,000 for the prohibition treasury and to do everything in their power to have the remaining wet districts go dry, for it is in the dry districts, according to their own testimony that they sell the most beer.

That the homesteaders in the vicinity of Amistad, Union county, have the right idea of making their home attractive, is indicated by the fact that they are not only planting orchards, but also forest trees. A. T. Gill, for instance, has set out 10,000 locust trees, and another homesteader who set out 8,000 black locust trees a few years ago, has lost but a few while the remainder are all the way from three to more than six feet high, already making a shady and pleasant grove, that adds much to the beauty of the homestead. By the way, what has become of the idea to reforest the Santa Fe grant?

S.S.S. THE CURE FOR SCROFULA

The usual symptoms of Scrofula are enlarged glands of the neck, sores and ulcers on the body, skin affections, catarrhal troubles, weak eyes, and general poor health. The inherited poison, transmitted through the blood, pollutes and weakens this fluid, and in place of its nutritive qualities fills the circulation with scrofulous matter, which saps the vitality of the entire system. Thousands of children, born with a scrofulous taint, have spent their childhood in constant physical suffering, and grown to manhood or womanhood handicapped by ill health and stunted growth, and perhaps later some disease of the bones or joints developed. S. S. S., given in their early life, would have prevented this. It would have cleansed and purified the blood of the taint, nourished and strengthened their systems, and assisted each to grow into strong, healthy manhood or womanhood. S. S. S. is the very best remedy for Scrofula. It goes down to the bottom of the trouble, and cleanses the circulation of all scrofulous matter. It supplies the weak, diseased blood with strength and health-building qualities, and under the purifying effects of this great remedy all symptoms of Scrofula pass away. S. S. S. contains no minerals in any form, and is an absolutely safe treatment for children, even infants, or persons of any age. Literature about Scrofula and any medical advice free.

Over Thirty-Five Years.
In 1872 there was a great deal of diarrhoea, dysentery and cholera infantum. It was at this time that Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy was first brought into use. It proved more successful than any other remedy or treatment, and has for thirty-five years maintained that record. From a small beginning its sale and use has extended to every part of the United States and to many foreign countries. Nine druggists out of ten will recommend it when their opinion is asked, although they have other medicines that pay them a greater profit. It can always be depended upon, even in the most severe and dangerous cases. For sale by all druggists.

FROM MORIARTY

Busy and Prosperous Town on the New Mexico Central Tributary to Santa Fe.

(Haywood and Fielding, Moriarty, Agents for the New Mexican.)

The New Mexico Central private car was side tracked in Moriarty Monday evening with Governor Walter Lyon of Pittsburg, Traffic Manager Morrell Law and others on board. The party that arrived at Moriarty paid a visit to the home of Judge M. T. Moriarty and stayed over night, returning to town early Tuesday morning. The remainder of the Eastern party which was headed by Francis J. Torrance stopped over at Estancia and drove to the timber claims of the New Mexico Fuel and Iron company, west of Estancia. The entire party passed through Moriarty Tuesday on train No. 4 en route to Santa Fe.

The Fourth of July celebration at Moriarty on Monday afternoon and evening was not carried out with much success on account of the heavy rain which began falling about two o'clock in the afternoon. The ball teams had just started to play when the storm broke and were unable to start the game. The only contest that was carried out was that of broncho busting—the honors were divided between William Taylor and Joe Gomez. The fire works display began about eight p. m. and lasted for one hour. The evening closed with a ball at McPharland's hall.

J. A. Dye of Estancia is spending several days in Moriarty on business pertaining to the People's Lumber company.

The Fourth of July celebration brought into town over a thousand people. It is surprising to see how the spirits of the farmers have been cheered up by the late rains.

Mrs. J. S. Freeman, who has been ill for some time was taken to the hospital at Albuquerque Monday morning. Mr. Freeman is located on a claim about thirteen miles northwest of Moriarty.

Boy's Life Saved.
My little boy, four years old, had a severe attack of dysentery. We had two physicians; both of them gave him up. We then gave him Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea remedy which cured him and believe that saved his life.—William H. Strolling, Carbon Hill, Ala. There is no doubt but this remedy saves the lives of many children each year. Give it was castor oil according to the plain printed directions and a cure is certain. For sale by all druggists.

The seals and record books for notaries public for sale by the New Mexican Printing company at very reasonable rates. Seals for incorporated companies are also handled. Call at or address the New Mexican Printing company, Santa Fe, New Mexico.

ROYAL STRONG ARMS

Famous Monarchs That Rivalled the Mighty Samson.

AMAZING FEATS OF MUSCLE.

The Emperor Maximilian Could Lift Three Men With One Hand—Augustus the Strong of Saxony Carried a Horse and Its Rider on His Back.

Curiously enough, a large percentage of the notably strong men of history have been of royal blood. One of the earliest of these royal athletes was Maximilian, called "Maximilian Hercules" because of his great strength. He was the son of a peasant and had an enormous physique. He became a common soldier and was finally made emperor by acclaim of his fellow soldiers during a stormy period of Roman history.

Maximilian's strength was prodigious. It was said that on foot he could run down a fox, that he could lift three men with one hand and that by gripping the wheel of a chariot with one finger he could resist the pull of three horses. Like most men of great physical strength, Maximilian was a heavy eater. History records that his daily allowance was forty pounds of meat and eighteen bottles of wine.

Augustus the Strong of Saxony was another of these royal Samsons. He would often seize two of his courtiers, grasping one with his right hand and another with his left, holding them up at arm's length and playfully twirling them about.

On one occasion the horse ridden by one of his attendants became balky and refused to budge. After some minutes of coaxing the king dismounted, placed his Herculean shoulder under the horse's chest, grasping it by the fore legs, and calmly walked away with both horse and rider. This remarkable performance was witnessed by a number of courtiers and attendants.

King Richard of England ("Coeur de Lion") had tremendous strength. During his captivity in Germany he gave a terrible demonstration of his physical powers. The son of one of the wardens was a youth locally renowned for his muscular strength and in his assurance invited the royal captive to an exchange of buffets. The young man by a cast of the dice won the right to the first stroke and struck the king a staggering blow on the side of the head. It was then the king's turn, and he landed a blow just behind his opponent's ear so heavy that the man was instantly killed.

This incident is used in Sir Walter Scott's famous historical novel "Ivanhoe," where King Richard, the "Black Knight," and the jolly outlaw Friar Tuck have an exchange of buffets, without, however, any fatal result.

Dom Pedro I, emperor of Brazil, is also on the list of royal strong men. On the occasion of a carnival he arranged matters so that he was standing on the bow of the royal barge between two of his stately courtiers. Suddenly in the midst of the festivities the king reached out, grasped a courtier with each hand, and, after holding them for a few moments squirming in the air and begging to be released, he relaxed his grip and allowed them to drop plump into the water, amid the frantic applause of the huge crowd that had assembled to view their monarch. The king joined heartily in the general hilarity, but what the drenched courtiers thought about this exquisite joke is not recorded.

Peter the Great of Russia, like Charlemagne, possessed great physical as well as mental power. His years of work as blacksmith and ship carpenter had so developed a naturally powerful physique that he was believed to be the strongest man in Russia.

The story is told that a certain blacksmith in a little country town had boasted that he was the only blacksmith in the world who could lift his own anvil. The emperor, hearing of the blacksmith's boast, disguised himself as a workman and with a single companion set out for the blacksmith's village. On learning of their errand the blacksmith without a word laid aside his tools and, grasping the anvil with his brawny hands, lifted it with great effort about a foot from the floor. Then Peter took hold of the anvil, raised it a foot, two feet, three, higher and higher, till he finally swung it to his shoulder and calmly walked away with it.

Charlemagne was said to be the most powerful man physically of his time. One of his favorite feats of strength was to break the heaviest horseshoe by gripping it with one hand.

A worthy successor of Peter the Great was the late Czar Alexander III, who was one of the strongest men in the world. He was often called "the Russian Samson." The czar's regular visiting card was a Russian coin somewhat larger than our silver quarter, which he would bend almost double with his powerful fingers.

Alexander was also fond of breaking horseshoes, and it is said he never found one he could not break in two. He could take two fresh packs of cards and by gripping the ends with his hands tear them straight down through the middle.

It is said that on one occasion a woman companion expressed a wish for a bouquet holder in which to place a large bunch of roses. The czar took a powerful tankard from a table nearby and with a few movements of his powerful hands fashioned it into a rough but picturesque and quite efficient bouquet holder.—W. R. C. Latson in New York Tribune.

IT WAS A FINE COD.

A Little Story of William M. Chase, the Portrait Painter.

Several years ago I had a studio at Hammersmith and was hurrying into London one morning to transact some business. Just as I swung around a corner occupied by a fishmonger's market my eye was attracted to a magnificent cod stretched out for exhibition on a clean slab of white marble. Whatever my mood for color was that morning, that fish completely fitted and filled it. I must paint it, I decided.

I called out the proprietor and told him what I wanted. I was a bachelor. I explained, and did not want to buy the big fish. I only wished the use of it as a model. Could I rent it?

"Ow, now, sir," he said, with true British stolidity. "I'll never rents my fish. You see, it's Saturday, too, sir. I'll sell him today, sir."

However, I explained that I needed the fish for only a few hours, and directly we struck a bargain. If after two hours I still wished to keep the fish I should buy it. At the end of the stipulated time the boy came. I was not quite finished. "In a few minutes," I said, and when I looked up he was gone.

Shortly afterward the proprietor came, tiptoeing in and peeping over my shoulder. I could hear him softly sighing, and I said nervously, "In a few minutes now, in a few minutes."

"Don't hurry, sir; don't hurry," he urged. "She's getting on! I'll take my chances, sir!"

When the painting was finished he refused at first to accept any remuneration, but at length, with a muttered apology, he charged—a shilling! The painting was hung and shortly afterward purchased by the Corcoran Art gallery for a very substantial sum.

On my next trip to London I determined to call up my fishmonger, tell him of the good fortune that had attended the painting and tender him some fitting reward. To my great surprise he not only refused again any sort of fee, but evinced no surprise whatever at the figure the painting had brought, though the price paid represented several times over the investment of his shop.

"Ah, but it was a fine cod, sir," he said, and his eyes glowed with pride. "Now, wasn't it?"—William M. Chase in Delineator.

ORIENTAL RUGS.

Made to Resemble the Antiques by Chemical Washings.

The United States buys annually many thousands dollars' worth of what are known to the profession as washed rugs. Brightly colored oriental rugs sometimes are washed with a solution of chloride of lime, a treatment which partly bleaches the colors and imparts a soft appearance to the rug.

This chemical treatment is a process of washing which produces the effect of age and a peculiar sheen to the surface, which is pointed out by the unscrupulous dealer as a proof of superior quality. The fact is that the process of washing as described invariably weakens and in some instances destroys the materials of the rug.

The progressive effect of the chemicals on the materials in the rug is this: The chlorine gas contained in the chloride of lime attracts oxygen and moisture from the air, by which muriatic acid is formed. This eats away the vitals of the rug. Sooner or later the wool and cotton in the rug become brittle and thus weaken the warp and deteriorate the wool.

When this deterioration is complete the pile of the rug may be swept away by the ordinary process of sweeping, and the warp, which is the foundation of the rug, becomes so weak that holes appear here and there, and soon the rug is worthless.

It not seldom happens that a Persian rug is too staring in some bright hue, perhaps red, and is not salable. The unscrupulous dealer will subject the rug to a series of washings in chemically prepared water. In this way he turns out a rug possessing a soft antique sheen that is truly captivating and finds a ready purchaser at an advanced price.—Chicago Tribune.

Partners in Debts.

"My tooth is just killing me," she complained.

"Why don't you go to the dentist about it?" asked he.

"Because," said she, "I owe him money."

"You and I seem to be in hard luck," said he. "Now, look at me. Every time I go out in my automobile it breaks down right in front of some store where I owe a lot of money."—New York Press.

Honeyed Words.

"How are you getting along at home? The last time I called your wife was giving you the dickens."

"Quite true. I had been a bad boy. But she relaxed. Last night she came very near calling me honey."

"You don't mean it! How was that?"

"She called me old beeswax."—New York Press.

No Hurry.

"Of course, Tommy," said the Sunday school teacher, "you'd like to be an angel, wouldn't you?"

"Well—er—yes," replied Tommy, "but I'd like to wait till I can be a full grown angel with gray whiskers."—Philadelphia Press.

Didn't Agree With Him.

"You should never take anything that doesn't agree with you," the physician told him.

"If I'd always followed that rule, Maria," he remarked to his wife, "where would you be?"—London Express.

A PSYCHOLOGICAL INTRUSION.

(Copyright, 1908, by American Press Association.)

No one, excepting the sick restored to health, has reason to feel more thankful for that wonderful advance science has made within the last ten or twenty years than I. But right here in the beginning I must break away from my subject to tell a story.

Margaret May charmed me by what I consider the higher traits. She was a sober girl of an intellectual type, with excellent principles and elevated ideals. I am not a man to be pleased with a gay, frolicsome girl, however kind hearted, however winning. It was, therefore, natural that I should yield to the characteristics of Margaret. We became engaged, and everything looked well for our future happiness when my fiancée began to show a succession of singular changes. One evening when I went to see her she bounded into the room like a hoiden, threw her arms about my neck, kissed me several times in rapid succession and, beginning with "You bad boy," upbraided me for not having come earlier. When I asked her for what she had wished me, she said that a circus had come to town, and she was "dying" to attend that evening's performance. Astonished, I asked her if the next night would not do as well. She said it would not, and when I pressed her for a reason the only one she could give was that she couldn't wait.

It was altogether too late to go to the circus that evening, so I spent the rest of it with her in the cozy library where we had passed so many happy hours, often taking book after book from the shelves, rambling in them together and calling each other's attention to favorite passages. But, alas, there was no such enjoyment for us tonight. Margaret spoke of the books as "musty, dusty things," in which she had no interest, and insisted in talking only upon the most frivolous topics.

It is needless to say that I was not only disappointed, but shocked. Could this be my steady, well balanced, intellectual Margaret? I was inclined to doubt it. Could it be her twin sister? I knew that she had no twin sister. I endured her prattle as long as I was able; then, telling her that I had some work to do before going to bed, I rose to go.

"And you will take me to the circus tomorrow night?" she asked, with a pout.

"Certainly if you wish it," I replied and when I could escape from an exuberance of caresses left her.

That night and the next day my brain was in a turmoil. I was like a man who had lost his love. I brooded instead of working till after office hours and in the evening called to take Margaret to the circus. The maid who received me at the door went upstairs to announce me and, returning, told me that Miss May was not feeling well and had gone to bed. There was no message of disappointment at missing the performance nor at not seeing me. Indeed, the maid told me that she thought her mistress had not expected me that evening. This would have been natural had it not been for the engagement, since it was an evening I seldom called.

The next of my usual weekly visits was Sunday, and I called, dreading to again find the hoiden. I was agreeably disappointed. Margaret was her usual self except that she showed signs of overstrained nerves. Something told me to refrain from mentioning her singular personality when I had last seen her, to wait and observe. During the visit and the next two visits she was her own sweet self, baring her altered health. Finally I referred to her desire to visit the circus. She seemed surprised, mystified, and when I told her the whole story said, with a nervous tremor, "Oh, she'll ruin me!"

"Was some one else than you with me that evening?" I asked.

"Yes—no. I was with you, but she dominated me." And she hurried out of the room.

I was not admitted to see Margaret—indeed, I did not care to see her; I was dissatisfied—for a month. Then I called on her. What was my surprise to find her a different person from either of the two I had known. From the moment we met she talked of women's rights, women's voting, women's superiority to men and finally told me that if I interfered with her in any of these objects to which she proposed to devote her life we must proceed by separate paths.

I left her maddened. Had I not been puzzled as well I would have broken my engagement then and there, but curiosity prevented. Several months passed in which I continued to visit her, hoping that she would settle down into her old personality resolutely. When she was another I would turn away from her; when she was my own Margaret I loved her still the same. As the hoiden I found it possible to be amused with her; as the "strong minded" woman I could not endure her. I was not able to get the real Margaret to talk of the other two, but from hints she dropped I inferred that she knew of their existence, and she hated them.

One day I received a call from a psychical specialist. He informed me that Margaret was under his care; that two other personalities besides her own appeared to inhabit her body and at times dominated her. By psychic methods of his own invention he was trying to enable her to dominate them and thus return to a normal condition.

He succeeded, the intruders were driven out, and Margaret is my wife. LAWRENCE FOSTER CHURCH.

Will Build Tramway—It is very likely that the Territorial Penitentiary will build a tramway from the penitentiary to the clay banks northeast of the city, going around the city limits so as to avoid the built-up portion of the town. A locomobile or traction engine will be employed. The cost will be repaid in two years, in the saving of teams, horses and horse feed alone, so it is figured. The building of the tramway would also do away with the nuisance of the penitentiary teams cutting up the city streets and raising clouds of dust to the great annoyance of householders.

Women Suffer

much needless pain when they delay using Cardui for their female troubles. Cardui has been found to relieve headache, backache, pain in the side and dizziness arising from deranged organs. It does more than relieve,—if used persistently,—many have written to say that it cured them.

TAKE CARDUI

It Will Help You

Mrs. Maxwell Johnson, Tampa, Fla., writes: "Cardui cured me after doctors and everything else had failed. I had been suffering with numb spells ever since I was 16 years old. One day I decided to take Cardui. I have now taken 5 bottles and I can say that it has cured me. I advise all suffering women to give Cardui a long and fair trial."

Mrs. Johnson suffered years. Have you? Do you wish to?
But why suffer at all? Take Cardui. Give it a fair trial.

MILLIONAIRE WILL BE EXECUTED

El Paso, Tex., July 7.—News was received here today that the supreme court of the state of San Luis Potosi, Mexico, has confirmed the death sentence of Dario Gonzales, millionaire, who was convicted of the murder of his brother-in-law, Manuel Iturre, the wealthy son of an American family.
In addition to confirming the death sentence, the court has issued a deree requiring Gonzales to pay to the sum of $200,444. The prominence, popularity and wealth of Gonzales were relied upon to secure for him a lighter sentence.

Runaway Son Makes Trouble.

Washington, July 7.—As one father to another, Senator Jeff Davis of Arkansas explains to President Taft in a letter made public today that his failure to attend the White House dinner the other night at the president's invitation was due not to international disrespect but to the pursuit of his twelve year old son who went to Fort Myer to see the aeroplane flight and did not return. Explaining his search for his son the senators adds:

"I did not return until it was too late to be present in obedience to your kind invitation."
The senator states further that his letter owes its origin to newspaper criticism and says he writes in the fear that some of these may fall within the president's observation. He says he does not want to be considered rude.
