Cowboys of Arizona and Mexican Guards Have a Mix-Up.

FOUR GUARDS WERE KILLED

Bisbee, Ariz., October 23.—Sunday afternoon, as a base-ball excursion from Bisbee was about to leave Naco, Mex., a fight started between the Mexican guards and American cowboys. Four Mexican guards were killed and one seriously wounded. An American was killed and one shot through the leg. The fight resulted from a row on the Mexican side of the line between Americans and Mexicans. The guards attempted to arrest the Americans, who retreated toward the line. Just before they reached the line the guards opened fire, which was promptly returned. A lively battle occurred, lasting fully fifteen minutes, over fifty shots being exchanged. Cowboys from this side rushed to the aid of their friends and opened fire across the line. Dan Burgess, a bystander, was shot in the leg, and Ryan, a freighter, was riddled with bullets. Montgomery, who was with Ryan, is missing. One cowboy, Joe Rhodes, was arrested and jailed on the Mexican side. A posse is forming to rescue him.

Rowdy Soldiers Arraigned.
Globe, Ariz., October 23.—Thirteen negro soldiers of the 25th infantry, accused of beating with clubs four Tonto Indians on the night of October 13 at the San Carlos Indian agency, had a preliminary hearing yesterday before United States Commissioner Martin, who held defendants each under $500 bail to appear before the United States grand jury.

LIVES LOST IN A SNOW STORM.

Helena, Mont., October 23.—The northern part of the state is digging itself out of the snow. Four or five days last week snow came down almost unceasingly. At Choteau, the county seat of Teton county, it was 10 to 12 feet deep in drifts, and at least 3 feet on the level. Old-timers agree that nothing like this fall of snow has been seen in October in twenty years.

Z. T. Burton, president of the Burton Land Company, who arrived here last night from the blizzard-swept district, says the bodies of eight sheep herders have already been found in Teton county, and fifteen other herders given up as lost. He says the loss of life will exceed twenty persons in Teton county, and 20,000 sheep perished.

The Colombian Revolution.

Cartagena, Colombia, Oct. 23.—News just received here shows the revolution is spreading. The insurgents have taken river steamers, armed them and burned railroad bridges. The government is arming and dispatching river steamers and troops.

Plenty of Men and An Aggressive Campaign Needed.

San Francisco, October 23.—The 51st regiment of Iowa volunteers, numbering 764 men and forty-six officers, under command of Colonel J. C. Loper, arrived Sunday from Manila on the transport Senator. Edward Kisselock, of Oskaloosa, Ia., died at Nagasaki, of dysentery. Edwin Stalter and Homer A. Reed were injured by the breaking of the aftersail, which fell on them. Stalter's leg was broken and Reed sustained a fracture of the skull. Both men are doing well. The Senator was caught in a gale of the typhoon encountered by the steamer Empress of Japan. She was tossed about for several hours, but suffered no severe damage.

Colonel Loper says: "All that is needed now is an aggressive campaign, with plenty of men, and this war will be settled in short order. The Filipinos must be thoroughly whipped."

Elizabethtown Nuggets.

A road is being built from Elizabethtown to the Sunset, on Comanche creek. The Admiral Dewey tunnel on the Big Nigger, at Elizabethtown, is now in 245 feet, a short distance from the vein.

SPLENDID FIGHTING

THE BRITISH LOSS HEAVY

It Took Brave Men to Advance Through the Valley Which Boer Guns Covered, But Redcoats Marched As Steadily As On a Field Day.

Glencoe Camp, October 22.—(Delayed)

The attack made by the Boer forces under General Lucas Meyers on the British position Saturday enabled the British forces to score another signal success. The Boer column was driven pell-mell over the plain, losing over 500 killed and wounded. The British captured several hundred horses and made many prisoners. The Boer hospital has been taken under the wing of the British hospital corps, as the Boers had only a single doctor, with a primitive staff, quite unable to cope with the wounded.

London, October 23.—A special from Cape Town, dated Sunday, says advices received there from Pretoria report President Kruger as being in favor of an unconditional surrender. It is expected the executive council will meet Monday or Tuesday to discuss the advisability of such a step. The report must be accepted with reserve.

London, October 23.—Fuller accounts of Saturday's battle at Elandsburg emphasized the splendid gallantry exhibited by both sides, and the superiority of the British in a pitched battle, although the Boers fought with the greatest tenacity to the last, only yielding when further fighting was hopeless. An armored train, with the Manchester regiment, appeared on the left at Ladysmith at daybreak Saturday, in support of the Johannesburg light horse and the Natal field artillery, with the object of reopening communication with Elandsburg. The artillery took up a position above the town and shelled the railway station, from which the Boers ran out, and the British mounted infantry entering the place, released the English prisoners. The Boers, numbering 1,600, with three guns, occupied a commanding position, and they poured such a well-directed fire on the British and their scouts were so active that the British force steadily retired until reinforcements arrived, when mounted infantry was sent to drive Boer scouts from the ridges on the right. A large force of mixed cavalry meanwhile swept over the plain and up hill on the right. The lancers met a heavy fusillade, while on the left a British battery opened fire with good effect. The British infantry, who debarked from the railway train during the interim, advanced steadily over the plain and up the rocky ridge previously cleared by the cavalry. The Boer artillery dropped shrieking into the advancing columns, but the British finally scaled the hill, whence they overtook a broad valley to the three rocky hills forming the Boer position, their camp being in the center. The British infantry formed for attack in extended order behind the brow of the hill, the Devonshire's on the left, with four companies of the Manchester and some of Gordon's on the right. About 5 p. m. the infantry advanced through the valley as steadily as on a field day. Half-way down the slope they met a terrific fire. The men fell rapidly. The advancing British infantry gradually gained the upper hand, and the Manchesters and Gordons, edging toward the right, gained the top of the ridge, thus outflanking the enemy's left.

At 6 o'clock the bugles sounded a charge. The British swept ahead. The Boers fought to the last, only attempting to escape when further fighting was hopeless. Meantime the Devonshire, pressing steadily up the left, were strongly opposed at the Boer camp and from flanking hills, and carried both at a charge with wild cheers and bugle blasts. By 7 o'clock the British gained the position, and "cease firing" was sounded. Three 12½-pound Nordenfelters were captured, with a quantity of munitions. Some estimates place the Boer losses at 500, but this is probably exaggerated.

Colonel Scott Chisholm, the only British officer killed, was formerly attached to the 9th lancers. He served with distinction in the Afghan war, organized the present light horse, a majority of whom are refugees from the Rand, and the death of General Viljoen is a severe blow to the burghers, and the death of General Kock and the capture of General Pretorius will handicap the further movements of this column.

According to advices from Durban, Natal, the Boers have entered Zululand, a large column advancing toward Meloth. The best opinions do not credit the reports of the Boers suing for peace, or that they are likely to yield at present.

Sensational rumors of designs by foreign powers inimical to British interests meet scant credence, though it is admitted it is difficult to explain the immense force on land which Great Britain is now mobilizing.

London, October 23.—An official dispatch from Ladysmith gives the following list of casualties among the prominent Boers at the battle of Elandsburg: General Viljoen, killed; General Kock, wounded and captured, since died; General Kock's son, killed; Col. Schiel, German officer commanding the army, wounded, a prisoner; Commandant Pretorius, wounded, a prisoner. Several Boer standards were captured. The total number of casualties among the British stands at forty-two killed and 155 wounded. Among the killed are Col. Scott Chisholm, Imperial light horse; Lieutenant Hanna, 1st Leicestershire; Major Denne, Lieutenant Fantomino, Lieutenant Murray; Lieutenant Bradbury, of the Gordon Highlanders.

London, October 23.—The parliament secretary of the war office made the following statement to the house of commons to-day: "Lord Wolsey sums up the position in Natal this morning as follows: In the battle of Elandsburg, October 21, two guns were captured from the Boers, who lost heavily. A large column of the enemy appeared advancing from the northwest on General Yule, who consequently had fallen back from Dundee, and was concentrating at Glencoe Junction. The enemy appears to be in large numerical superiority."

A Young 500-Acre Orchard That Is Now Bearing.

The Roswell orchardists are now making reports on the yield of their trees. The manager of the Chisum apple orchard has 2,000 boxes of 50 pounds each. Already 400 boxes of Missouri pippins have been sold. Six trees of the Shockley variety gave 650 pounds. J. P. White's forty-acre orchard bore heavily in 1894. The fruit will be kept in cold storage and sold entirely on the local market. C. S. McCarty's farm will have 10,000 pounds to sell. AN OLD COPPER MINE.

Was Worked Sixty Years Ago—To Be Opened Again.

A project is on foot to work the Longview mine in Cedar canon in the Tijeras mining district in Bernalillo county. The mine was discovered and worked to some extent in 1840 by a Frenchman named Tone, who reduced the ore mined by him to matte in a small adobe building about a mile from the mine. Part of the metal he used in casting many of the small church bells in use in the small towns in the vicinity. The remainder was shipped east by pack train. Tone was forced to abandon the mine and leave the country on account of difficulties with near-by settlers. After remaining idle awhile the mine was worked by a Mexican from the state of Chihuahua, Mex. The mine was named Jose Maria Senanvas, and he shipped most of his ores to Chihuahua, though some of it was sent east. In 1853 the mine was in the hands of the late John Doid, a merchant of Las Vegas, who opened it by sinking a shaft a few feet from the surface, where his workmen encountered a large body of copper glance, which was left standing, except that taken out to excavate the shaft room. Doid shipped several ox-team loads of ore to Kansas City, thence to Baltimore, the gold in the ore alone paying all the cost of production, transportation and treatment. The last shipment was three six-mule team loads to Newark, N. J. This shipment netted a profit of $8,000. At that time Doid's foreman reported to him that he then had 4 feet of ore standing in the bottom of the shaft, being about 8 inches of copper glance, and the balance a yellow and red oxide and argente ore.

The difficulties encountered at an early date in transportation compelled Doid to close the mine. In 1892 the property was taken hold of and under contract the old shaft was cleaned out and retimbered to the bottom. The body of ore which was left standing in 1883 was taken out, besides some standing in the bottom. A part of this ore was treated at San Pedro, and the balance sacked and shipped east. An epidemic of small-pox forced the closing of the mine again.

The large chamber of the mine was made by the removal of the copper glance. In the bottom of this drift and to the east are found 4 inches of copper glance, increasing a little in width as it is followed to the north and down. To the west of this point the yellow and red oxide and argente ores show, the copper also showing in deposits more or less in the lime. The ore from the several assays recently made shows from 15 to 46 per cent copper, from $4.50 to $30 in gold, and 15 to 28 ounces in silver per ton. In close proximity to the shaft are several small shafts and inclines from 50 to 75 feet in depth, and from most of which good bodies of ore have been taken. In 1892 work was again commenced under contract upon the mine. All the ore was gathered from the dump and sold for $20 a ton. The Cedar Canon Copper Company was incorporated recently to again work the mine. The company owns two full claims. Five miles distant are heavy coal measures. Some of the coal will coke, and has been sold for $7.25 per ton at Albuquerque in car load lots.

LETTER TO MRS. PINKHAM NO. 3430

"I am so grateful to you for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me that I feel as though I must tell about it. A year ago I was taken very sick. Doctors could do me no good only to deaden the pain which I had almost constantly. I got some of your Compound and took one bottle and received benefit from it at once. I have taken it ever since and now have no backache, no pain in my side and my stomach and bowels are perfectly well. I can honestly say that there is nothing like it. If I could only tell every woman how much good your medicine has done me, they would surely try it."—MARTHA M. KING, NORTH ATTLEBORO, MASS.

The way women trifle with health shows a degree of indifference that is past understanding. Happiness and usefulness depend on physical health; so does a good disposition. Disease makes women nervous, irritable and snappish. The very effort of ailing women to be good-natured makes them nervous. Write to Mrs. Pinkham, she will help you to health and happiness.

MONDAY, OCTOBER 23.

The sewer bond proposition was voted down in Roswell. It is alleged that the people considered that it would be a case of buying a pig in a poke. The citizens of a municipality certainly have a right to know what they are to get for their money when they take up public improvements.

General Funston has been requested by the war department to return to the Philippines, as there is one more river to cross. He has decided to go as a matter of duty, although he could be mustered out with his regiment and at once accept a position offered him in civil life that would pay a larger salary than a brigadier general receives. The general says he has no love for war, and will leave the army forever as soon as peace is secured in the islands.

In a lecture delivered in Oakland a few nights since General Funston spoke up for the honor of the soldiers in the Philippines as follows: "In closing, I want to deny a statement I have seen published recently to the effect that the 4,000 soldiers in the Philippines at the present time are hoodlums, drunkards, ruffians and thieves. It is untrue. Possibly some of our men are not what they should be, but all are soldiers; there is nothing in the tales of torturing enemies, no foundation for the stories of the slaughter of innocent ones. I have been among them and know whereof I speak." The people from whom these soldiers were never believed the stories. But it is good to hear a brave man of the people bear witness to the above exonerations.

New Mexico is a cosmopolitan territory. Most of the immigrant settlers have come within the last forty to fifty years from all parts of the United States and beyond. Not only Spanish and English are heard on the streets of the principal towns, but German, French, Italian, Swedish, and even Arabian, with a smattering of other tongues besides. People from Oregon, Canada, Missouri, Pennsylvania, Germany, Italy, Arabia, France, and native-born citizens own business enterprises or hold many of the positions of honor and trust in the territory. If in connection with the account of an average social event the list of birthplaces of the guests attending were published, the list could hardly be duplicated in many states or territories.

A scientist writing in a medical journal says that the chief point in the danger of tuberculosis infection from sweeping, and that the broom is the chief and most serious danger, as 60 per cent of all men die of some pulmonary trouble, and the main cause of tuberculosis is bacilli-laden dust, the broom being the main cause for such dust is, therefore, more responsible for this great percentage of mortality; that the broom, far from serving any hygienic purpose, is the direct cause of the maintenance of organic matter, and, being such, is therefore the most important cause for the existence and spread of contagious diseases; that the carpet, ordinarily, is an unhygienic article, serving as a fine breeding ground for the existence of organic dust.

Waste of water in the pipes is a chronic evil in American cities. The more waste the easier the pretended demonstration of insufficiency, and the richer the returns to corporate greed when it is in control of the sources of water supply. New York City uses about 110 gallons of water daily for every resident; the actual amount required is about twenty-seven gallons per capita. Nearly eighty gallons are wasted in one way or another. In England and in Europe, where the matter of supplying municipalities with water has been reduced almost to an exact science, the daily allowance per head varies from fifteen gallons in Vienna to forty-two gallons in Paris. In St. Petersburg the average is twenty-two gallons per head, in Berlin eighteen gallons, in London thirty-eight gallons. In comparison with these figures the liberal supply of most American cities seems almost like extravagance.

Johannesburg Will Boom Again.

When the Transvaal war is over Johannesburg will be "turned loose" by the Boers, and may be expected to grow again faster than ever before. It is already a city as large as Denver. The output of gold from the district for six months of this year was three times as great as that of Cripple Creek in the whole year, although many of the mines are but in their infancy, so far as production is concerned. The mines of the Rand do not produce until they reach a depth of from 1,000 to 1,500 feet. It is therefore not a poor man's mining camp. The ore is low grade, and is treated by immense cyanide plants. There are thirty leading companies, which pay from 15 to 65 per cent dividends to their stockholders annually, only two of these being as low as 15 per cent. The city is very prosperous, the intelligent, progressive part of the population being Outlanders. Nine-tenths of the people of the city speak English, yet none but the Boers are allowed to hold office or representation in municipal affairs, even as to taxation. The Boer government has had no bowels of compassion for the people who own the property. With the English in control and the concessions, robberies and hold-up schemes of the Boers abandoned, the city will prosper again.

The South Still Solid.

Some of the eastern newspapers are so sure the people all over the country are for silver that they prophesy that even Democratic states will vote against Colonel Bryan if he makes free coinage of silver the main issue next year. The claim is made by one optimistic journal, the Philadelphia Public Ledger, that even southern states cannot be depended upon by the Democrats in such event. That assertion might inspire a belief in the minds of hopeful Republicans who have never been in the south, nor watched the political history of that section of the country.

The southern voters do not give much thought to the financial question, and have the Democratic party lined up otherwise than it did in 1896 at the Chicago convention the southern states would have voted just as they did in that year for the nominee on a free silver platform. It will be so next year. The nominee, whoever he may be, and upon whatever platform, will probably carry all of the southern states that were carried for Bryan. The southern people individually have modified their views in many respects concerning government policy, but they have not abandoned their bred-in-the-bone pride in voting for the party which has ever had the political support of the south, nor their belief that it is an inherited duty to vote against Republican nominees.

The more the Republican national committee attempts to build up an organization during national political campaigns in the south, the more are the people there aroused to the duty of asserting the preponderance of the Democracy. A hurrah effort like that made in Texas in 1896, when the Republican national committee was induced to send funds there to assist in organization, the greater majority do the Democrats pile up, even if the Republican voting strength be increased. It is true that the border states of Kentucky, Tennessee and West Virginia are liable any year to give Republican majorities, but this condition has come about gradually by growth of the Republican party from immigration and from the inside rather than from any effort by the national party organization.

The southern leaders and the press are all outspoken in favor of carrying on the war in the Philippines and retaining the islands, as they have ever been for the acquisition of territory, but this will not prevent the people voting for Colonel Bryan, even if he and the platform be arrayed against such a policy. They would even go to the length of electing him president upon such a platform, and at the same time elect congressmen who would vote for expansion.

Colonel Bryan is not wasting any time in work in the south. It is the uncertain border states and the northwest and west where loss of strength is feared by him. In the latter regions discontent no longer prevails, and the people can not so easily be interested in a measure for which there seemed to be a necessity when he formerly had their support, because of promises of relief through a change in the currency system. As a complete reversal of conditions which there existed has come about without the remedy he proposed, and without his aid, his leadership does not seem to be needed.

In the south, however, business considerations do not enter so largely into the politics of the people. The masses never study about the intentions of the parties. They inherit their politics, as they do their religion, and never stop to question whether the party is right. They are born Democrats, as they are born Methodists or Baptists, and as few of them ever switch from their party as transfer their allegiance from one church to another. Let alone, they do now and then make a change from inward conviction, but an attempt to proselyte in either case only arouses the fighting qualities of the southerners.

Better Business in California.

The editorial columns of Democratic papers in many instances ignore the existence of prosperity over the country, but a perusal of their news columns shows that a great increase of business has come within the past year. Take the San Francisco Examiner, for instance, and the prosperity of California can be judged from the statistics printed. A review of business conditions last week shows that for the past eight months the exports from San Francisco were $2,981,464 greater than for the same six months of last year, indicating very clearly that trade in the Orient is growing. September stamp sales at the San Francisco postoffice were 14 per cent greater than for September of last year. The canned salmon exported for the same month was valued at $480,840, as against $294,874 in the same month last year. Last year up to date the state found a market in the east for 3,500 cars of deciduous fruits. This year the sales have aggregated 5,000 cars. The same increase is noted in all transactions. The railways on the coast, like those all over the country, have more freight than can be handled rapidly, because of the lack of cars. These improved conditions would be still more marked but for the decreased production in the southern part of the state as a result of three dry years.

War Popular in Great Britain.

But one thing was needed to make the war against the Transvaal popular in Great Britain, and that was an early victory. Their diplomats were fortunate enough to delay actual hostilities upon the part of the British army until the Boers issued a foolish ultimatum forbidding Great Britain to even send troops to any of her own lands in Africa, and then the Boers followed their foolish ultimatum by invading British territory before being assaulted for their insolence, and besieged a British garrison. Though they inflicted much loss upon the enemy the Boers suffered serious defeat, and fled in a manner that lowers them in the estimation of the people who admired their previous bold course. On the contrary, the trained British soldiers and artillery fought with their usual skill, and the gallant charge up the heights to drive the enemy was one of those affairs which have won glory for the army and made the British proud of its achievements. The loss of so many brave officers, and the signal victory of the British in this first deadly battle have sealed the fate of the Boer oligarchy, which has masked under the name of a republic. To-day the government and the people of Great Britain, who under Gladstone's conservatism spared the Boers, have reached the point where toleration is no longer considered. There is but one feeling in the hearts of the people now, and that is for war. The inferior and stubborn race that has so long barred the advance of English supremacy in the Transvaal, having resorted to force against the masterful nation, must take the consequences which the Boers have invoked rather than sought to avoid.

THE TERRITORIAL PRESS.

A GOOD ADVERTISER.

(Alamogordo News.) The Santa Fe Daily New Mexican is doing great work in advertising the extensive resources of Otero county. For the people of this county are very grateful.

PERSONAL ABUSE DON'T PAY.

(Alamogordo News.) The Deming Headlight assails Governor Otero and other Republicans in a variety of unbecomingly low and vulgar attacks that paper make on the governor are absolutely personal and in no sense political and cannot and will not do the Democratic party any good. It is high time that personalities were disappearing from the columns of the journals of this territory. It may be that some disappointed officeholder or disgruntled politician pays the editor of the Headlight for these scurrilous and abusive articles at 10 cents per line. It looks as if such were the case. At any rate if the leaders of the Democratic party in this territory have any sense, they will put a stop to personal abuse, and vindictive libels published by Democratic papers against Republican officials, who are doing their duty and are known as competent, honest and public spirited.

THE PECOS VALLEY ROAD.

(Roswell Record.) The success of the Pecos Valley & Northeastern road has been not only a matter of much gratification to public-spirited citizens of the valley, but a matter of surprise to railroad men generally. The volume of freight business has been such as to demonstrate that with further connections and extensions the road is destined to become one of the most powerful factors in the development of the southwest. The passenger service has steadily improved. The proposed installation of the new through car service to Kansas City will be a boon to the entire countryside, and result in a very largely increased traffic. There is no doubt but that the future of the road is very bright, which means much to Roswell and the valley.

WORMLESS FRUIT.

(Roswell Register.) "If I could only get hold of an apple that I could bite into without fear of a worm!" is a common expression nearly everywhere, outside of the Pecos valley. No one has ever seen or heard of a worm or any other insect in any kind of fruit here, and it is hoped the record can be prolonged indefinitely. If the proper care is taken, it can be. Pecos valley apples can be labeled "Guaranteed free of worms."

THE LEADING INDUSTRY.

(Springer Stockman.) It is, nevertheless, a fact that with the various large industries of New Mexico the sheep business is by far the greatest, even outclassing our mining and cattle industries in volume of wealth. And the business is rapidly increasing each year. The sale of the wool clip and lambs bring several millions of dollars into the territory each year. It may be surprising to many outside of New Mexico to learn that there are hundreds of families that obtain their livelihood from the increase and wool of 200 or 300 head of sheep, which means less than that many dollars invested. This proves that the great industry is extremely profitable and of great import to the territory. A great many of our leading sheep men now get their start through a few head of sheep loaned them on shares, and through persistent persistence and care of their flocks commenced to lay in a few dollars and increase their flocks, all the time the increase and wool paying the expenses from the start. But the industry requires strict attention to business the same as any other, and those that have attended to it have made a winning, and are now independent business men and among our most conservative men. There is local markets for them, and their stock can at all times be readily disposed of to outside buyers each year at good prices, and the lamb crop can be sold to be almost all profit, with a profit on the wool even at an ordinary market price. But the sheep man must take care of his flocks both in the winter and the spring lambing season. This is the secret of the business, and also knowing how to keep them free from disease. The fact increase of the sheep industry in this territory is gratifying to all.

GRANT COUNTY PAYS OLD DEBTS.

(Lordsburg Liberal.) It has been reported in the papers several times lately that Grant county was getting in a good financial condition. The cause of this is conceded to be the careful management of its affairs by a Republican board of county commissioners, as now for the first time in years the board has been entirely Republican. The Liberal saw proof this week that the county was actually in such a position. The proof was in the shape of county warrants paying debts incurred by the county five years ago. When a county pays debts five years old there is no doubt that the management of the affairs of the county are in first-class hands.

PRESS COMMENT.

NO FIRE IN THE REAR. (Brooklyn Standard-Union.) Well, there's one thing about this Anglo-Boer war that we in America need to take notice of, and that is, now that the Afrikaners have jumped in and opened fire on the British forces both parties in England, Liberals and Conservatives, are united, and both are in favor of fighting the Transvaal. There is no longer a "fire in the rear" party there. They seem to have no At-

YELLOW FEVER IN THE ARMY.
It isn't the number of men that yellow fever kills that frightens you, but the unexpected suddenness of its attack, and the rapidity with which it kills. A man is well and hearty at 3 p. m.; at 4 p. m. he is dead; at 5 p. m. he is dead; and at 8 p. m. he is buried. In much the same manner men will work day after day in apparent health, and then suddenly appear a general weakness. The body is giving out. It needs something to strengthen it, to drive away the impurities of the blood, to tone up the stomach, and assist digestion. For this purpose Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is highly recommended. It will cure dyspepsia, indigestion, constipation, malaria, fever and ague.

The Good Old Way.
Is there no cure for pessimism? wailed the social student, who, he it known, was still in the gloomful days of youth. In my day, said his father, they most always used blue mass and quinine.—Indiana Journal.

Pat's Plan.
Mrs. Murphy—Oh say, Pat, what would you do if the old house would tumble on yez and crush yez to death? Her husband—Falth, an old fly fer me loffe.—Ohio State Journal.

ROBBED THE GRAVE.
A startling incident, of which Mr. John Oliver, of Philadelphia, was the subject, is narrated by him as follows: "I was in a most dreadful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongue coated, pain continually in back and sides, no appetite—gradually growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Fortunately, a friend advised trying 'Electric Bitters'; and to my great joy and surprise, the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well man. I know they saved my life, and robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fall to try them. Only 50 cts., guaranteed, at Fischer & Co.'s drug store.

An Affair of the Heart.
The beautiful young girl hesitated to marry the ugly old man. They say you have a bad heart! she faltered. Yes, I'm liable to fall dead any minute he answered with a paternal candor. Now at last she gave her consent, for in her innocence she believed him. More marriages are affairs of the heart than we sometimes think, perhaps.—Detroit Journal.

THAT THROBBING HEADACHE.
Would quickly leave you if you used Dr. King's New Life Pills. Thousands of sufferers have proved their matchless merit for Sick and Nervous Headaches. They make pure blood and strong nerves and build up your health. Easy to take. Try them. Only 25 cents. Money back if not cured. Sold by Fischer & Co., druggists.

One Consolation.
His Wife—Now, there's cousin Bob—I don't believe he's saved any money in all these years. The Suburbanite (with a sigh)—Oh, well. If he had he might have bought a house in the suburbs.—Puck.

A THOUSAND TONGUES.
Could not express the rapture of Annie E. Springer, of 1125 Howard st., Philadelphia, Pa., when she found that Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption had completely cured her of a hacking cough that for many years had made life a burden. All other remedies and doctors could give her no help, but she says of this Royal Cure: "It soon removed the pain in my chest and I can now sleep soundly, something I can scarcely remember doing before. I feel like sounding its praises throughout the Universe." So will every one who tries Dr. King's New Discovery for any trouble of the Throat, Chest or Lungs. Price 50c. and $1.00 at Fischer & Co.'s drug store; every bottle guaranteed.

Just Keep Right Along.
No Harry, I am sorry; but I am sure that we could not be happy together. You know I always want my own way in everything. But my dear girl, you could go on wanting it after we were married.—Tit Bits.

A FRIGHTFUL BLUNDER.
Will often cause a horrible Burn, Scald, Out or Bruise. Bucklen's Arnica Salve, the best in the world, will kill the pain and promptly heal it. Cures Old Sores, Fever Bites, Cuts, Burns, Feloons, Corns, all Skin Eruptions. Best Pile cure on earth. Only 25 cts. a box. Cure guaranteed. Sold by Fischer & Co., druggists.

A Cynical Old Chap.
We are all worms! cried an itinerant preacher, addressing a seafaring community on the beach. I, my friends, am a mere worm! Shouldn't 'spec' to do much with yer as bait, getting an elderly fisherman, lighting his pipe and strolling away.—Punch.

Why experiment on yourself with remedies of doubtful utility when you can get Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, which has stood the test of time? Twenty-five years' sale and use have proven that remedy to be a prompt and certain cure for colds. It will cure a cold in a day if taken as soon as the cold has been contracted and before it has settled in the system. Sold by A. C. Ireland.

Density Unexampled.
You can't very well take a fall out of the automobile, observed the Lay Figure, meaning to comment upon the safety of the new contrivance. The Unconscious Imbecile sprang at once to his feet, crying, Oh, yes you can! You can call it mobile, instead of autumn-mobile! But although he drew many diagrams, it was still easy for the others to affect not to understand.—Detroit Journal.

There is one good thing about an ocean voyage remarked the globe-trotter. What is that? queried his companion. Why a man can get as tight as he pleases every day and everybody will think he is only seasick, answered the traveller.—Chicago News.

GUINEY PIGS.
Guinea pigs is awful cute, With their little trimbley snoots sniffing at the poultry that we bring 'em to nibble at. Looks like they're so clean and white An so dainty an polite, They could eat like you an me When they're company!

Tiltin down the clover tops Till they spill, an over drops The sweet morning dew—don't you think they might have napkins too! Et a guinea pig was big As a shore an certain pig, You he wouldn't be so fine When he comes to dine.

Nen he'd chop his laws an eat Things out in the dirty street, Dirt an all, an nen lay down In mud holes an waller round. So the guinea pigs is best 'Cause they're nice an tidest. They eat 'most like you an me When they're company! —James Whitcomb Riley.

GIRARD'S WIFE.
She Returned From the Dead to Comfort Her Living Husband.

Gerard Girard is regarded by people who don't know him as a freak and by those who do know him as a person to be avoided after dark. Girard is not his name, but it is so much like his name that those who care to do so may identify the gentleman and establish to their satisfaction whether or not he is justified in his extraordinary beliefs. One man in this town, a bon vivant of the clubland, felt himself attracted to Girard because he found out that Girard believed things no man dared credit if he valued his own peace of mind and, moreover, that he was willing to demonstrate the correctness of his theories to any one sufficiently interested. The man about town interested himself in Girard because the talky fellows of his own set told queer street stories that savored of Boccaccio, but lacked in that raconteur's artistic merit.

On the other hand, seldom talked at all unless directly addressed, but when he did tell a story one evening it made everybody creep and uncomfortable, because Girard's mode of expression is horribly convincing. His diction is deliberate and measured, in fact, he makes no effort whatever to convert others to his convictions. Indeed, he appears utterly indifferent to skepticism. Open scoffing is impossible where Girard is concerned, because he never permits himself to be engaged in conversation unless by those whose characteristics he is somewhat familiar. There are various ways of avoiding persons who wear diamond studs and frock coats at 10 o'clock in the morning, and Girard manages his social affiliations with infinite skill.

The story Girard told at the club was about his wife, who died four years ago, but who still lives with Girard in the big house he built when he came here from Chicago. Girard and his wife were companions in the sense that few married people are. She was frail and he was strong, yet until the very day of her death he had not contemplated the horror of a separation. He failed of a proper regard for the carefully worded preparatory phrases of his medical adviser and understood only when conventional euphemisms were abandoned and the plain truth stared him in the face that the woman whose future he had built and planned in common with his own would be dead in an hour. Then he went and sat beside the bed and stared at the little white face, at the darkly closed eyes closed in eternal sleep. He realized then that the deep lines between the brows were fearfully deep; that the gasping, shortened breathing might cease at any instant; that nothing on earth could stay the inevitable loss of her, his idol.

He stroked her hair, and the tired eyes opened. She smiled and faintly whispered his pet name. He bent over her and wept—such great, heaving sobs as come from the breast of a strong man in mortal trouble, but the dying woman smiled through her tears and bade him grieve no more.

"I shall be with you always," she said. "Always in the evenings we will sit together, you and I. We shall be comrades ever."

When Girard raised his head from the pillow, he realized with a calmness that surprised him that his wife was dead. He closed the weary eyes, crossed the thin hands, kissed the bloodless forehead and went out. Three days later they buried her, and people remarked that Girard didn't seem much affected. He even indulged in one or two sedate jokes on the very day of the funeral. That evening also Girard dined as usual at the little table where he and his wife had dined tete-a-tete every evening during their two years of married life.

"You will understand," he said to the servants, "that Mrs. Girard is still here—she dined with me every evening for both of us as usual; also that Mrs. Girard has referred to his wife not as one dead, but as the constant companion of his daily life. For those who doubt his assertions he has merely a shrug of his big shoulders. One or two men have dined with Girard since his bereavement, however, and these gentlemen do not care to talk about their experiences. Only one man has had the courage to make a direct thrust to the Girard table. That man is the bon vivant. He has found something that interests him, and men with whom he was formerly a fall fellow well met, for want of better diversion, say he isn't half the decent sort he used to be. Last night he asked the bon vivant to tell me the story he had told to one of his friends about having spent the evening with Mrs. Girard. The friend repeated the story, and those to whom he told it said that the bon vivant had wheeled."

"I am 38 years old, in sound health physically and mentally. My father and mother both died when I was a child. I had no brothers or sisters. I have never experienced anything which could possibly be characterized as a great grief. I have been known from my boyhood as an individual of importunate temperament."

I have never loved a woman well enough to marry. I have no shattered ideals. There is mighty little superstition in my nature. My friends say I am cold blooded and cynical. They are wrong. I am merely analytic. So far so good. Now for the rest of it.

"You remember the snowstorm last Saturday? Girard asked me to spend the afternoon and evening with him. He's a most interesting fellow—has a magnificent collection of old books and manuscripts. I always was taken with that sort of thing. I reached the house at 2 p. m., and we lunched at 2:30. I had lunched there a dozen times before. Mrs. Girard's place was always set at the head of the table, and Girard told me his wife was there. He conversed with her in my presence, made comments to her on remarks of mine, laughed heartily at comments she made in return and repeated them to me. I never could see anything, but it occurred to me from the first that if Girard was merely acting he was the most consummate actor I had ever seen on or off the stage. Almost unconsciously I came to treat the vacant chair at the head of the table with deferential reverence to its supposed occupant, but to me it was never anything but an empty chair. I had not known Mrs. Girard in the life, but Girard insisted that some time or other I should be able to see her. There was something uncanny at first in the spectacle of a man deferring in every point of conversation to an invisible third party, but in time I became used to it and lost my sense of discomfort in the spiritual presence. At 4 o'clock in the afternoon Girard received a telephone message. It related to some important matter and necessitated his going at once to the West hotel. I wanted to go with him, but he wouldn't hear of it. 'I'll be back in an hour,' he said, 'and we'll have a quiet evening together.'

"To tell the truth about it, I didn't care about being alone there. Ordinarily I am the reverse of a nervous person, but I witnessed such strange proceedings in that very room that the idea of remaining there alone in the twilight was disquieting. I believe Girard read my sensations, for he said, 'You're not afraid of Margaret, are you?'

"Margaret was Mrs. Girard. Of course I was not afraid of her, and I told him so. A moment later he was gone. The house was quite empty. The servants were all out. The coachman has apartments over the stable. The clocks ticked more loudly every moment after Girard had left. There is a big clock at the head of the main staircase, and it has a disagreeably audible ticking-tick-tack that seems always on the point of stopping. There is a smaller clock in the front parlor and a still smaller one in the library. There seemed to be a nervous rivalry between them that afternoon.

"Dusk was gathering, and I parted the curtains to size up the weather. A terrific snowstorm had set in. Already the walks were heavily covered. It occurred to me that Girard would never get home in a street car. He would have to walk back. As the storm increased in violence I doubted whether he would find a hack even.

"Oppressed by the loneliness of the place, I lit a cigar, pulled Girard's big leather chair up to the blazing log fire and sat there smoking and waiting. I tried to light the gas until, hearing all three of the clocks strike 7, I was about to make a light, when the door of the room opened, and a woman entered. At first I supposed one of the maids had returned, but immediately my impression was corrected. Instinctively I knew that Mrs. Girard stood before me. She crossed the room hesitatingly, apparently embarrassed in the presence of a man she did not know. It may seem odd to you, but from that instant I had no sense of fear. A more attractive woman I have never looked upon. She carried herself like a princess after the first few steps in my direction. I rose from the chair in which I had been lounging, bowed to her and introduced myself.

"Oh, yes," she replied, "I know you quite well. I should not have introduced you," she added, "but Mr. Girard has met with an accident. The car upon which he was returning has been snowed in and is now standing on the track at Fifteenth street. The storm is so violent that I am afraid he will not reach home tonight unless—"

"I'll go after him immediately," I said. It never occurred to me that there was anything supernatural about the transaction.

"If you would tell John to harness the bays to the light cutter, I believe they could get through easily," she said. "I am ashamed to ask it of you, but it is, oh, such a storm!" and I saw her shudder as she walked to the window and looked out.

"I made for the stable with all haste, told the man to hitch up and went in for my coat. Mrs. Girard was nowhere to be seen. I did not wait for her return, but started immediately. I found the street car precisely in the position she had indicated. Girard was on it. He boarded the cutter without comment, and we started home. I didn't say anything, because I was thinking. After a time he spoke: "Did Margaret send you?" he asked.

"Yes," I said.

"John," he called to the driver, "push along, Mrs. Girard will be alarmed." I dropped out at Twenty-fifth street because it was close to my house, and since that I haven't seen Girard. Wasn't that a fright of a snowstorm though?"—Seattle (Wash.) Intelligencer.

Couldn't Work Around.
One day a man carrying a fuzzy little poodle dog under one arm entered the office of Philip D. Armour in Chicago and tried to talk him into buying it. The price was exorbitant—$200 for a useless toy poodle. Mr. Armour looked at the man, then at the dog and back again at the man and said: "No. The sausage business must pick up considerably before I can pay so much for small dogs. Bring around a mastiff, and I'll talk to you."

On another occasion one of those self-confident young men who believe that all wealthy men have a tender spot for the man of nerve and who do not hesitate to approach even the busiest men made Mr. Armour a decidedly bold request, which was promptly denied. Summoning up all the haughtiness at his command, the young man said in a tone that was meant to crush Mr. Armour, "Well, all I can say is this: you are not a gentleman." "Young man," with a cold, enigmatical smile, "I am a butcher."—Chicago Tribune.

She'll Say the Best.
"It's awfully late," I remarked to my friend after a long while but at the club. "What will you say to your wife?" "Oh, I shan't say much, I know," was the reply. "Good morning, dear," or some thing of that sort. She'll say the best."—Roxbury Gazette.

"DEATH IN THE POT."

"Death in the pot." That sentence condenses the story of a tragedy. A little family gathering. A fine dinner cooked in the large copper kettle, long disused, and the entire family poisoned by the accumulated veridigirs. The story was told by the newspapers from one end of the land to the other. But it was soon forgotten. The moral of it is, that the purest of food, put into a foul vessel, instead of ministering to life may become a minister of death.

If the stomach is diseased it is like the poisonous kettle, which taints everything that goes into it. The symptoms are irregular appetite, undue fullness after eating, distressed feeling in the stomach, of flitting and sinking sensations, palpitation, dizziness, ringing in ears, sour or bitter risings and constipation. Not all these symptoms may be present at the same time, but any of them shows disease in the digestive or alimentary tract.

The intimate relation of the stomach to the blood, heart, liver and lungs makes it a medical maxim in exploring the causes of obscure diseases to "start with the stomach." It is upon this principle that Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery effects so many and such remarkable cures. It cleanses the stomach and the system in general. It increases the action of the blood making glands, and the body is enriched by the purified blood. It strengthens the digestive or nutritive organs and these strengthen the whole body by increasing the quantity and quality of its nourishment. It carries off the poisonous effluvia. In this way it re-establishes health, banishing the bodily aches, which are but symptoms of the stomach's condition.

NEW MEXICO WOOL.

A Trade Paper Shows from Where It Is Shipped.

From the statistics of the wool production of New Mexico by parties who are thoroughly acquainted with the wool markets of that territory, the following table is compiled of the amounts handled by the several places in the territory, direct from first hands:

Las Vegas	6,000,000
Albuquerque	2,500,000
Chama, Espanola, Tierra Amarilla and Antonito	2,500,000
Clayton	1,500,000
Wagon Mound	1,000,000
Springer	1,000,000
Sores valley points	1,000,000
Belen	750,000
Santa Fe	250,000
Watrous	100,000
Balance of territory	1,000,000

It will be observed that Las Vegas heads the list with 6,000,000 pounds. In addition to this between 3,000,000 and 4,000,000 pounds received from first hands at other places is handled by Las Vegas dealers, or through them, making the total amount of wool handled by Las Vegas merchants between 9,000,000 and 10,000,000 pounds, valued at $1,250,000.

Of the 2,500,000 pounds placed to Albuquerque credit, over half comes from first hands direct to Albuquerque, the balance coming in from points on the Atlantic & Pacific. In addition, Albuquerque dealers handle between 1,000,000 and 2,000,000 pounds from other points, so that the total amount that can be placed to the credit of Albuquerque dealers and commission men would amount to perhaps 4,000,000 pounds.

A good deal of wool was handled at Chama this season, the amount being estimated at about 1,500,000 pounds. There is very little of it held back in Rio Arriba county. Prices were satisfactory. Upon the whole, the people have done well, during the season, and are contented and happy.—Shepherd's Bulletin.

On the 10th of December, 1877, Rev. S. A. Donahoe, pastor M. E. church, south, Ft. Pleasant, W. Va., contracted a severe cold which was attended from the beginning by violent coughing. He says: "After resorting to a number of so-called 'specifics' usually kept in the house, to no purpose, I purchased a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy which acted like a charm. I most cheerfully recommend it to the public." For sale by A. C. Ireland.

Finding Lost Men.

A short time ago the New Mexican published a letter from K. Eriksson, a mining engineer at Falun, Sweden, asking for information about O. W. Alexander, whom he had known in New Mexico twelve years ago. To-day this paper received a letter from Mr. Alexander, stating that he resides at Bland. The New Mexican, it will be seen by this, is the medium to reach the people, for it is the most widely read paper published in the southwest.

To-day the New Mexican received a letter of inquiry about the whereabouts of a ranch owner and stock raiser named John Thomas, who left New York forty years ago. John T. Shepherd, of New York City, is the man seeking the information, and if John Thomas is anywhere in the southwest this notice will undoubtedly be brought to his attention sooner or later.

A. L. Carpenter of Paxton, a carpenter working for the Southern Pacific, fell from a tank on which he was working and was badly injured. He was taken to the El Paso hospital.

The Trade With Bland.

Visitors to Santa Fe frequently ask why an organized move is not made to secure the trade of Bland for this city and to have railway connection. There will be a railway build to the camp, but the Santa Fe company, if it builds will probably do so from Thornton. A railway company rarely builds an extension from a competitive point when it can easily make a junction not reached by another railway.

But without a railway, a stage line and freight teams from this city would aid in bringing trade from that district, which Albuquerque is actively seeking.

PREHISTORIC ANIMAL REMAINS.

A Strange Discovery Made Near the Village of Tesuque.

The fossil remains of a strange prehistoric animal were discovered last week at Postmaster Nussbaum's ranch at Tesuque. Alphonso Dockweiler, who has charge of digging a ditch through a ridge on the ranch, picked up a piece of petrified bone, the shape of a large tongue, but with a row of twelve teeth along what seemed to be the tip of the tongue. He dug a little further, and found the remainder of what seemed to be the jaw of an animal that was part ichthyosaurus and part plesiosaurus, with some of the characteristics of the pterodactyl, perhaps. The jaw consisted of about twenty layers of bone in the shape of a tongue, and each layer was armed with a dozen teeth, which showed that the animal was herbivorous and not carnivorous. These twenty layers were evidently the upper jaw of the animal. Mr. Dockweiler expects to find the lower jaw and perhaps all of the remains of the strange animal. As much as he has found, he will bring to this city Friday or Saturday, and from here ship it to the Smithsonian institute at Washington. Two layers of the jaw were brought to the city yesterday by J. G. Schumann and shown to friends, who were all puzzled by their unusual shape. It is well known that the surroundings of Santa Fe abound with submarine fossil remains, which seem to prove that in long gone by ages the site of the city was covered by a sea. Only half a mile up the arroyo and canon that branch off Palace avenue, near the old brewery, pretty petrified seashells are to be found. At many other places there are unmistakable signs of the erosion of waves and the footprints of gigantic prehistoric amphibians, who made their home both in the water and on the land in the days when the highest peaks of the Rocky mountain range were only islands in a vast ocean.

More Prisoners.

Sheriff P. F. Garrett, of Las Cruces, last night brought two prisoners sentenced at the Dona Ana county district court to the penitentiary. The prisoners were Juan Montenegro, sentenced to four years for larceny of a horse, and Jacobo Flores, sentenced to 21 years for murder in the second degree. At the same time Deputy United States Marshal F. W. Hall and A. P. Codrington, of Albuquerque, brought from Las Cruces the following four United States prisoners: Ramon Balcorte, sentenced to four years for perjury; Jose Maria Gajeda, sentenced to eight years and $500 fine for counterfeiting; Bernardino Duran, sentenced to two years for smuggling, and F. H. Britts to one year for impersonating a United States officer.

COURT AT AZTEC.

San Juan County Cases That Have Been Disposed Of.

Correspondence of the New Mexican. Aztec, N. M., October 18.—As promised, I will give you a slight intimation of what work the court has been doing here since our arrival. Although this is but the third day of the court, we have accomplished quite a little, and I believe that we will be through by next Monday, and certainly not later than next Tuesday, and will start for Santa Fe the same day.

The first day, Monday, October 16, the juries were empaneled, and while we had to issue special venire for talesmen, yet we got all through with them and completed the empanelling of both juries.

On the second day the case of the Territory vs. Carlos Chavez for assault with attempt to murder was dismissed. The Territory vs. George Delusche, for carrying arms, was dismissed on motion of the district attorney.

The Territory vs. George J. Wetterhoff, two cases for carrying deadly weapons and for handling deadly weapons, were dropped from the docket with leave to reinstate.

The Territory vs. Thomas B. Hart, assault to kill. In this case the court received petition from prominent men of the county, requesting the court to nolle proes, the case for the reason that Hart had been sufficiently punished, and also that it arose from the same cause for which he received a penitentiary punishment. The district attorney requested that it be dismissed, and accordingly it was done.

Territory vs. Ed M. Gibson, assault to kill, was dismissed on account of the death of the defendant.

Regarding the balance of the criminal cases, they have been set for trial for to-day and to-morrow.

Charles E. Herr vs. William et al.; cause dismissed at plaintiff's costs. This was a case in assumpsit and had been settled.

Edmund H. Noel vs. Arthur Coolidge, suit over an agreement; continued awaiting the decision in the supreme court over a patent of the same land.

Cases of the Graden Mercantile Company vs. Animas River and Land and Irrigation Company, and the case of Thomas Hart vs. the Colorado and Northwestern Investment Company were also continued until the next term of the court.

About ten cases have been set down for trial this week.

The case entitled Nestor Martinez vs. Franklin T. Amiot; motion heard to reopen the judgment and allow the defendant to plead, and said motion was allowed and the case reopened.

Several other motions were heard and disposed of.

The grand jury reported one indictment: Territory of New Mexico vs. John W. Teter, for assault with attempt to kill, and the case was set down for trial for next Friday. This was all that was done yesterday.

To-day two motions were disposed of, and the court is now trying a case by jury.

Four or five motions were disposed of on the third day. The case of Reinhold vs. Hermann Blum was tried by a jury and a verdict rendered for the plaintiff for the sum of $122.

The grand jury made a report and returned an indictment against Fred Dean for assault with attempt to kill.

The court will dispose of nearly all the business now on the docket, and virtually there will not be any business left when we get through. We have plenty of money to run the court, having on hand about $1,600, which will be ample.

Times seem to be very good here, and the people all say that they are prosperous. Certainly there are a great number of new buildings since last we were here, and the town is growing very rapidly. The court expects to visit Farmington before we return, and it is expected that we will go there next Sunday for one day.
