DESULTORY FIGHTING

General Buller and the Federals Clash In Northern Natal Near the Transvaal Boundary.

LAINGS NEK IS BOMBARDED

The Boers Retire Before Overwhelming Odds—They Report Several Slight Successes at Witwatersrand and at Gatsrand—British Losses.

London, May 30.—It is officially announced that the Boers are leaving Natal. General Buller occupied Utrecht, in the southeastern portion of the Transvaal.

BULLER MOVING FORWARD.

London, May 30.—The following dispatch was received from General Buller:

"New Castle, May 30.—The enemy, having formed a laager east of the town at Dornberg, pressed my right and rear annoyingly. May 27 I directed a force under Hildyard by Woodruff and Utrecht, and another under Lytleton by Schanga drift, on Dornberg. These movements have caused the enemy at Dornberg to retire north. Hildyard is at Utrecht, the town having surrendered. Clery is much disheartened, and were they not in such very strong positions I doubt if they would show fight. The railway was opened to New Castle on May 28."

FROM A BOER STANDPOINT.

Pretoria, May 29.—An official bulletin was issued as follows: "On Sunday a fight occurred close to Van Wyck's Rust in Gatsrand. The federals fought well. The British troops seemed tired out. At dark the federals were forced to retire in the direction of Van Wyck's Rust on account of the overwhelming force of the British. The British attacked Witwatersrand yesterday, and were in contact with the federals at Gatsrand, but were beaten back with good results by the federals under Commandant Louis Botha. The British loss is reported to be considerable. The British are near Utrecht, and are also marching on Laings Nek."

PREDICTION BY LORD ROBERTS.

London, May 30.—As Lord Roberts heretofore always fulfilled his predictions, it is taken for granted here that the British marched into Johannesburg at noon to day. Many military men anticipate that General French will capture the Transvaal capital within a day or two with a sudden and unexpected move. Public interest centers largely in President Kruger's capture or escape.

TWELVE LABORERS POISONED.

They Stole Food That Had Been Mixed With Bat Poison.

Montgomery, W. Va., May 30.—Twelve Italian railroad laborers were found dead in the woods, 40 miles southeast of here, their deaths being the result of eating poisoned food which they had stolen from a boarding house. Rat poison had been put in the meat and the flour by a negro cook on account of the stealing that had been going on.

MANY BUILDINGS IN ASHES.

A Conflagration In Nevada Causes $60,000 Damages.

Pioche, Nev., May 30.—A fire, originating in the old stockade, destroyed a large portion of this town. Among the buildings burned were Schaffer's grand opera house, the Episcopal church, the school house, the messenger office, Clark Bros.' store, Poulade's restaurant, John Shier's drug store, Sanders' law office, N. P. Dooley's store and J. Roeder's residence. To the east and north of Schaffer's grand opera house everything was wiped out. Giant powder was used to stay the flames. Loss, $60,000. Insurance, $10,000.

All whites in Chinatown are allowed to pass out, but people outside of the lines are not let inside.

IN CONGRESS.

Action On the Chinese Commission Bill Has Been Postponed.

HOUSE.
Washington, May 30.—A motion to strike out the enacting clause of the Chinese commission bill was lost by a vote of 105 to 130. The bill was sent back to the calendar.

One hundred and ninety pension bills were passed before the house adjourned.

CHINESE OUTRAGES.

Troops Landed From British, Russian, French and Japanese Battleships.
Shanghai, May 30.—The British warships Orlando and Algerine are landing 100 men at Taku, where the French, Russian and Japanese guards have already disembarked. The "Boxers" are apparently without arms, except those obtained from the soldiery, many of whom are joining the rebels.

FRESH ATROCITIES.

Pekin, May 29.—From all parts of the surrounding country news is constantly arriving of fresh atrocities by the "Boxers." Three Christian families were massacred at Shan Lai Ying, sixty miles from Peking. At Wang Tai, a railroad station, workshops and warehouses were gutted and much tolling stock destroyed. The damage is estimated at a half million taels. Eight rioters were captured and will be decapitated. Riding through the south gate of Peking the correspondent found the road inside of the walls lined with troops, who greeted the party with a fusillade of stones.

FOREIGN TROOPS LANDED.

Tien-Tsin, May 30.—American, British, Japanese, German, Italian, Russian and French troops to the number of 100 each have been ordered to guard their respective legations at Peking, but the victory here will not allow them to proceed hence to Peking on the railway without the authority of the Tsung-Li-Yamen. One hundred and eight American troops, with a machine gun and a field gun, landed here last night amid great enthusiasm on the part of the residents. Five Russian and one British war-ship have arrived at Taku. The British are now landing. Other war-ships are hourly expected. Three thousand Chinese troops from Lu Tai are expected here to-day en route to Fang Tai. There is a disposition here to believe that the "Boxers" will disperse before the foreign troops are ready to act. Tien-Tsin is in no danger.

YUBI BURNED.

The Americans Won Several Engagements In the Philippines.

Manila, May 30.—Lieut. Jens E. Stedje, of company L, 47th regiment of volunteers, commanding a scouting party in the southern part of Albay province, had several engagements with the insurgents, in which seventeen of the enemy were killed and twenty-three, including the captain, captured. The headquarters of the rebels, Sergeant Brickley was killed during a slight engagement near Higo.

A Winner.

Chicago, May 30.—George Schall, of the American Wheelmen's Club, finished first at 11:55 p. m. in the century road race, in 6:40:00. Axel Carlson won the time prize in 5:56:00. He finished second.

This company will ship about 3,500 head of steers this spring.

BLUE AND THE GRAY

The Dedication of a Monument at Antietam Is Made a National Event.

THE PRESIDENT PRESENT

The Monument Is to the Memory of the Fallen On Both Sides—Another Link Which Binds the North and the South.

Hagerstown, Md., May 30.—Another link in the chain which binds together the once warring factions north and south was forged to-day by the dedication of a monument erected to the memory of the men on both sides who died at Antietam. The event is probably without parallel in the history of the world, and was graced by the presence of the president, accompanied by many members of the cabinet and congress, the governor of Maryland, prominent men from all parts of the country and the veterans of the civil war. Col. Benjamin E. Taylor, as president of the Antietam battlefield commission of Maryland, presented the monument to the national government. Elihu Root, secretary of war, accepted it on behalf of the United States. Then followed a short address, after which Gen. Kyd Douglas introduced President McKinley, who delivered the address of the day.

"The president said that he was not aware that he was expected to make a speech, and therefore had prepared no set oration. He spoke briefly on the spirit of patriotism.

CONFEDERATE REUNION.

Louisville, Ky., May 30.—The Confederate veterans' reunion began to-day. It is estimated that the number of strangers in the city is in the neighborhood of 50,000. Col. Bennett H. Young, chairman of the reunion committee, presented reunion hall to the veterans in an eloquent speech. Gen. John B. Gordon, commander of the United Confederate Veterans, responded. His speech was received with great applause at frequent intervals.

TRIBUTE TO THE NATION'S DEAD.

Washington, May 30.—Business was suspended in the national capital to-day while thousands of citizens, veterans of three wars and their descendants paid tribute to the nation's heroic dead.

AT ARLINGTON.

At Arlington the oration of the day was delivered by Congressman Marriott Brooks.

MURDERED BY THIEVES.

Albino Gonzales Was Shot and Killed By Robbers He Was Pursuing.

Albino Gonzales was shot and killed last Friday twenty miles north of Pinos Altos, Grant county. Gonzales had been robbed of twelve burros, and he had gone out with several friends to recover them. They came upon three men who had the burros in their possession, and asked them to return the animals. Their answer was a volley from Winchester. A pitched battle was fought for an hour. Gonzales was killed, while all the others escaped injury.

The robbers were identified as Luz Ochoa, Antonio Elcubano and Gregorio Villalobos, all of Pinos Altos. They abandoned the burros and fled into the mountains. The murdered man was 40 years of age and unmarried.

APPOINTED FOREST SUPERINTENDENT

I. B. Hanna, of Kankakee, Ill., Succeeds W. H. Buntain, Resigned.

J. B. Hanna, of Kankakee, Ill., has been appointed superintendent of forest reserves in New Mexico and Arizona to succeed W. H. Buntain, resigned. Mr. Hanna arrived here last night, bringing his commission with him and before 10 o'clock this morning he and Acting Superintendent McClure were busily engaged at the office of the federal building going over the office routine. Mr. Hanna smilingly admitted that he was a direct descendant of Hon. Marcus A. Hanna, the Ohio statesman. He said he had very often been called upon to answer that inquiry in the past few years, and it had come to be a good deal of a joke with him. The new appointee is a fine looking man of up-to-date business address, and at first glance impresses one with the conviction that strictly business principles must govern wherever he has the conduct of affairs. He has spent most of his life in the insurance business having engaged in that line and made his home at Kankakee for the past 30 years. He is a man of family, and expects to bring it here in midsummer. He enters upon his official duties at once, relieving R. C. McClure who will again assume the supervision of the Pecos river forest reserve.

READY TO BEGIN CONSTRUCTION.

The Survey of the Railway Line From Roswell to El Paso Completed.

The surveying corps of the El Paso extension of the Pecos Valley and Northern route finished the survey of the line from Roswell, Chaves county, to El Paso.

The announcement comes from the general office at Roswell that the construction crews will begin work in a few weeks, and the road be completed to El Paso by the close of the summer.

Much speculation exists as to whether the road will be operated independently or become the property of some big system. The road connects at Amarillo, Tex., with both the Santa Fe and the Rock Island through the Colorado Southern, and rumor has it that both companies are bidding for the line. It is more likely that the Rock Island will get it, as the Santa Fe already has a line into El Paso.

The Stephens' Bill.

IN POLITICAL FIELDS

The Ambitions of Various Men In the Political Life of New Mexico.

AN INTERESTING SITUATION

Candidates are Plentiful In Grant County—How Politics are Run In Otero County—The Office of United States Attorney.

The commission of United States Attorney W. B. Childers will expire at an early date, and there are several of New Mexico's well-known attorneys on the anxious seat. The office is one of the best in the territory, and is easily worth $7,000 or $8,000, not considering the increase in prestige and business to the incumbent. Mr. Childers is a full-fledged Republican now, and represents Bernalillo county in the last Republican convention at Socorro as a delegate. He may be reappointed. Stranger things than that have happened in New Mexico politics.

The newspapers in Grant county have commenced to take a lively interest in the political matters. On both sides of the political fence candidates seem to be as numerous as rose leaves in the streets of Vallambrosa. The Democrats claim Grant county by from 500 to 1,000 majority. The Republicans do not concede that, but on the county ticket especially expect to make a strong fight, and claim that they will carry a majority of the ticket. The political fights in Grant county are always spirited and lively, and interesting to the observer of political events in the territory.

A Las Vegas correspondent writes the New Mexican that San Miguel county Republicans will renominate Hon. J. S. Duncan for the council from San Miguel and Guadalupe counties. A better selection could not be made, and from all indications Mr. Duncan will be elected, if nominated, by a very handsome majority.

Harry S. Church, at present a mining superintendent at Jarilla, in Otero county, is being mentioned as a probable candidate for the council from the legislative districts composed of Grant, Dona Ana and Sierra counties, on the Republican ticket. Mr. Church has been a resident of New Mexico for some eighteen years, and is highly thought of, wherever known, as a sterling and public spirited citizen. He is a civil and mining engineer by profession, and a consistent Republican. The electors of the counties of Grant, Dona Ana and Sierra could cast their ballots for no worthier man than for Harry S. Church for member of the legislative council at the coming election.

In Otero county they believe in being up early and doing things on a rush, which is quite a refreshing contrast with some other portions of New Mexico.

co, especially politically. The Democratic central committee of that county has called a primary election for August 4, 1900, at which candidates for county officers are to be nominated, to be voted for at the November election. Among the rules and regulations published for the government of said election appears the following: "Each candidate for office must pay to the chairman of the central committee at the time he submits his name in writing, as above provided, the sum of $5 which shall be used for the purpose of paying for the publication of these regulations, for printing ballots, preparing poll books and ballot boxes, etc." Two candidates are already announced for the office under the Democratic ticket for sheriff. One of them is W. R. Weems and the other one James Hunter. At present there are two Democratic papers in that county and one Republican paper. Heretofore the section that is now Otero county has been Democratic, but it is believed that the influx of emigrants during the past eighteen months has changed the political complexion there, and that at the November election a Republican set of county officials will be elected, and also Republican members of the council and house for the legislature and council districts. The New Mexican will do all it can to aid in this much to be desired result.

Captain John J. Lamborn, of Nebraska, who was in Santa Fe some time and returned recently to his old home in Nebraska, expects to settle in this county, having already acquired property interests near this city. It is understood by his friends that he is a candidate for appointment to a position in the forest reserves service in New Mexico. Captain Lamborn claims that he will have the support of Senator Thurston and Assistant Secretary of War McKeljohn for the position. His friend also say that he has other plans in connection with political matters in this territory, which may develop hereafter.

Among the funny things in the present political situation in New Mexico it appears that some of the politicians are already commencing to pull wires for appointment as Governor of New Mexico in case of Major McKinley's re-election. Major McKinley will from all signs of the time, be re-elected, but the men who are already working for Governor Otero's place are doomed to disappointment. Their plans and machinations are well known and in due course of time will be given publicity should they attain sufficient importance. For the present their pretensions are mostly wind, and not worthy of specific and serious consideration.

W. R. Baker, the present efficient sheriff of Otero county, announces himself as a candidate for the same office at the coming election. Mr. Baker is a strong man and if he receives the nomination will stand a most excellent chance for election on the Republican ticket.

Jasper Scott is out with a card announcing himself as a candidate for the office of probate clerk of Otero county of the Republican ticket at the next election. It is gratifying to know that Republicans generally in Otero county are of the opinion that the county will go Republican next November.

DENVER SCIENTISTS

A Party of Them Is Encamped To-day Near the Denver & Rio Grande Depot.

EXPLORED CLIFF DWELLINGS

A Visit to the Enchanted Mesa—The Age of the Cliff Dwellings to Be Determined—The Object of the Expedition.

A scientific expedition party from Denver came in from the south yesterday and pitched their camp near the Denver & Rio Grande depot. It consists of Rev. C. M. Coburn, pastor of Trinity church at Denver; Capt. C. A. Dean, custodian of the Colorado war relic museum; Prof. I. E. Cotter, of the Denver University, geologist; and Rev. J. C. Gullette, D. D., photographer.

A SCIENTIFIC EXPEDITION.

Lounging in the shade of his tent, Dr. Coburn talked entertainingly of his trip to a New Mexican scribe this morning as to how the expedition came to be organized, its object and its travels. While on a summer vacation last year the pastor of Trinity church visited the Mesa Verde ruins on the Rio Mancos. He was so shocked at the evidences of vandalism there and so impressed with the need of scientific research into these and other ancient ruins in the southwest that upon returning to Denver he spoke of the subject to his congregation, taking the position that the Mesa Verde ruins at least were not near so old as had been generally claimed for them; possibly 500 years old, yet of very great interest and worthy of preservation from the careless work of pot-hunters in search of relics. Congressman Shaffroth, of Colorado, happened to be in the audience at the time, and at the close of the address he called upon Dr. Coburn and requested him to draft a bill for the preservation of these Mesa Verde and similar ruins. This bill is now pending before congress.

AGE OF CLIFF DWELLINGS.

But Dr. Coburn's position as to the probable age of such ruins brought such a deluge of letters from all over the country protesting against his five-century theory and inviting him so earnestly to visit this place and that, where evidences of a greater age could be shown, that he decided to delve deeper into the subject for scientific purposes. So he organized this party, turned these letters over to Captain Dean to make up their itinerary, and left Denver at the end of April by rail for Durango. Thence by team they came south to Chaco canon, where Richard Wetherill has 100 men at work excavating the ruins for the Hyde exhibit at the American museum of natural history, New York. After some days spent there they proceeded to Gallup, thence to Laguna, McCarty, Acoma, the Mesa Encantada, thence via Albuquerque to Santa Fe. After a day or two here examining the collections of idols, etc., owned by ex-

WEDNESDAY, MAY 30.

New York is not the only town that has a Coker. There are places in New Mexico that have a dozen of them.

It is an ill wind that blows no one good. Carnegie has made a bonus of $5,000 by having the steel trusses for the Kansas City auditorium finished in time so that the Democratic convention can meet on the day set for it.

George B. Loving has given up his fantastic scheme to form a cattle trust. The prosperous condition of the cattle interests in Texas and in New Mexico prevented the scheme becoming a reality, although Loving asserted that he had $4,000,000 in back of him.

The rough riders' reunion at Oklahoma will doubtless be a successful affair, but it will not draw as many rough riders as did the reunion at Las Vegas last year. The Las Vegas reunion was a historic affair, while the Oklahoma gathering will be merely an imitation with a lot of side-shows added.

Geographies will have to be revised once more. The Orange Free State has passed out of existence, and has become a simple British province. By the time schools open next September the Transvaal, too, will be no more, and the map makers might as well mark it now as a part of the British domain in South Africa.

General Funston has been exonerated for killing two natives who were caught in the act of murdering two scouts. The Atkinsons may not approve this judgment, but the majority of the American people will. Murder and brigandage in the Philippines must be suppressed, and those caught in the act should be promptly shot down.

In Socorro county a mining company has fenced in a large piece of ground, turned its waste water into it, and will raise vegetables. There is a dissimilarity between mining and farming, and yet the two go well together. It is by utilizing every waste product that wealth is made nowadays, and the Socorro mining company has set a good example for others to follow.

The Ashanti still hold Coomassie invested, and the British relief force has been beaten back by the savages. Coomassie may prove another Lucknow or Mafeking, although very little attention is being paid to the war on the west coast of Africa as long as the British are engaged in the more interesting task of bringing Oom Paul Kruger to terms.

El Paso correspondents are sending out doleful stories to eastern journals, telling of the desolation reigning at Juarez and the country below it on the Rio Grande because the people of New Mexico steal the water of the Rio Grande. There is evidently an intention to create sentiment against New Mexico's right to the waters of the Rio Grande so that the Stephens bill will have a better show at the next session of congress.

The "Boxers" of China are not unlike some of the opponents of progress in the United States. The "Boxers" are making a savage fight against the inevitable, while the anti-expansionists and other foes of progress are fighting the inevitable, too, although they do it in a more refined manner. This opposition to progress will cost lives in China the same as it does in the Philippines, but it can never prevail, for this old world is not going to take one step backward; no, not one step.

The senior class of Columbia college has included a beer drinking match as one of the features of the festivities of commencement week. The absurdity of the spectacle that the seniors will make of themselves will lead many people to believe that the average American college education is a failure. That conclusion, of course, is wrong, but a man need not be a temperance apostle to admit that the faculty of Columbia college should put a stop to the proposed exhibition of beer guzzling.

There is no doubt about it: Governor Roosevelt does not want a story from trustworthy sources that Roosevelt's ambition is not to be elected president in 1904, but that he wants to be governor general of the Philippines, there to establish a model government upon American ideas. The story is strange, but so much like Roosevelt that it may be true. Governor Roosevelt is an advocate of the "strenuous life," and as governor general of the Philippines he would find it.

A lone highwayman has again held up a train in Nebraska. There seems to be a belt of train robbery extending from the suburbs of Chicago through Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska to Wyoming and to California, in which travelers had better go armed. The path of the lone highwayman is made altogether too easy and too lucrative. As soon as he swings himself on a train and yells "hands up," he should be met with a shower of lead that would leave just enough of him for the corner to hold an inquest over. The railroads should arm their employes in those sections, and train robbery would become a memory of the past.

A revolutionary leader has been captured in Venezuela, but unfortunately revolutionary leaders are thicker than huckleberries in South American countries, and the capture of a general does not mean as much as the capture of one of his privates, for of those there is merely a limited supply, but as to leaders—every South American claims himself a born general.

New Mexico certainly is desirous that the Rock Island railroad extend its line from Liberal, Kan., to White Oaks, and from there across the territory to some junction point or to California. The Rock Island would do for that part of New Mexico through which it would pass what the Santa Fe railroad has done for New Mexico along its lines. White Oaks, perhaps, would become another Albuquerque, and somewhere near Roswell might be founded another Las Vegas.

Russia is slowly but surely encroaching upon China. It is a little piece of ground to-day, it may be a port next year, and a river the following year. But it is always forward, never backward. It is difficult to say what the final outcome of this policy will be, but for the present it is building an empire that is larger and more populous than any of the empires of old. Russia will hardly ever play the role that Rome did in its day, but it will ever be a menace to free institutions and the independence of lesser nations which come within the reach of its grasp.

The last days of congress will be very busy days, and all but the most urgent legislation must be put aside so that the final appropriation bills can be discussed. The adjournment of congress always brings up the question of some method to stem the rush of proposed legislation with which congress is overwhelmed every session. Thousands of bills are introduced, and many of them can receive no consideration at all. It might be a dangerous experiment to vest more power in the departments to dispose of minor matters not strictly legislative, to which congress has to devote a part of its time now, but something of that nature will have to be done if congress is to keep up with its work.

Political Looters.

When it is remembered that Samuel Swartout, collector of the port of New York, appointed by President Jackson, stole $1,250,000 from the government; when the horde of political thieves and crooks who have disgraced Democratic annals since that day is kept in mind; when the deeds of the Tweed ring and the Democratic thieves in New Mexico are recalled, then it is apparent that the steals by Democrats are double the number of transgressions of Republican office-holders, with this difference, that Democrats generally go unpunished under a Democratic administration, while Republican defrauders are punished as soon as their crimes are discovered. This looting by government employees is an unpleasant subject, and the Democrats had better stop making political capital out of the Cuban scandal, for the Democratic record is easy of access, and shows many pages that are a disgrace to the nation.

A Factor in Strikes.

The cars of the St. Louis Transit Company are being manned with motormen and conductors from other cities. This draws attention to the fact that there are now electric railways in more than 500 cities in the United States. With that wonderful facility for producing too much of a good thing that America possesses, there are more motormen than there are motors. When a strike breaks out there is this reserve to draw upon. The reserve is never as good as the regular operating force, but it can be used in a pinch. There is no union so strong as the union of bread and butter with an empty stomach, and that is the reason the reserve men take the place of the union men. It is a fact that has to be reckoned with in every strike. It is not the corporations that crush out strikes; they would be powerless were it not for the army of hungry workers ready to take a job wherever there is a vacancy.

Athletics.

The college of physicians and surgeons of Chicago has declared against athletics as being detrimental to the educational work of the students. It is easy to go from one extreme to the other, and American universities and colleges have done so in the matter of athletics. Several decades ago athletics and physical culture were unheard of at the universities, and to-day colleges gain their greatest renown by the football victories won by their teams rather than by the scholarship of their faculty and students. A middle course, which would make athletics a side issue, a means to an end rather than a feature of college life, is undoubtedly the best and safest method, but it is difficult to enforce, for when a young American tackles anything, be it athletics or business, he is bound to push it for all it is worth, and if a college countenances sports and athletics at all there will be student athletes who will endeavor to excel in them.

Those Pen. Steals.

For several weeks past the Las Vegas Pop. daily has been shouting corruption and fraud in penitentiary matters, and accused Governor Otero and Superintendent Bursum of being the instigators of this awful and fearful mess of corruption, which it said existed in the management of the affairs of the territorial penitentiary. Last week, however, it commenced to crawl in the matter, and now has no more to say. Indeed, in one or two issues of last week it rather patted Superintendent Bursum on the back and called him a good fellow. Of course, all these alleged charges of dishonesty were wrong and mere fake stories. The New Mexican has already stated most of the facts in this matter, and desires to add another. One of the charges was that fifty dollars of Cones' bread had not been given to the lowest bidder at the last awarding of contracts for the penitentiary. The fact is that no contract for bread was awarded. It was found that there was enough bread on hand to last for the next six months, and as no bread was needed none was purchased. Comments in the case unnecessary.

THE SUPERB CLIMATE

Santa Fe Has Fine Summers and Moderate Winters with Equable Temperature.

NEARLY ALWAYS PLEASANT

The Salubrious Atmosphere of the Territory and Reasons Why the Climate Is Healthful and the Country Chosen for Sanitariums.

A knowledge of the contour of New Mexico in relation to the surrounding country is necessary to clearly understand the cause of its climatic advantages, that are not possessed by any other part of the United States. A study of the Rocky mountain region reveals the fact that the great chain from the far north is broken in its continuity as it leaves Colorado. In New Mexico there are smaller ranges with here and there lofty peaks with timbered slopes and barren crowns to relieve the clouds of moisture. From them incline fertile valleys and grassy upland plains to the gulf region until where the southern border is reached, there are no mountains between New Mexico and the southern water. Three-fourths of this territory has an altitude of 5,000 feet. At the southern border the valleys have dropped to from 3,000 to 4,000 feet, while the Santa Fe valley, at the capital city, has an altitude of 6,967 feet at the plaza.

A country of such varied altitudes must have some variety in climate, but the variation is in degrees of temperature mainly, for in general the climate of New Mexico is dry and salubrious. The rainfall is principally confined to showers in the summer, with little rain or snow in the winter, except in the northern part of the territory.

Near the extreme southern line, in the Sacramento mountains, a lofty peak is the first considerable elevation met with, as the moisture-laden gulf clouds drift to the northwest, and this precipitates rain to greater extent than any other mountain, the rainfall there having in exceptional seasons been estimated at 48 inches. But over the territory the normal precipitation ranges from 8 to 35 inches, according to elevation.

COMPARATIVE TEMPERATURE.
The southern valleys are, of course, the warmest portions of New Mexico in the summer, but the hottest are pleasant in midsummer than the east, because the air is dry, rapidly absorbs the dampness of the skin and has a cooling effect. The weather is never oppressive, the nights are always cool enough to sleep under cover and generally under a blanket.

Santa Fe, being up out of the great valley of the territory, is especially blessed as to summer temperature. The highest record by the thermometer in this city in twenty-six years was 96 degrees in 1873, an extreme rarely approached. In the last ten years 91 was the highest absolute temperature. It should be borne in mind that in a dry climate the record of the metallic thermometer does not indicate the real temperature felt by a human body, which is cooled by the drying effect of the air. It has been demonstrated that a temperature of 90 at Santa Fe is not more oppressive and heating than 72 at St. Louis, or at any place with a humid climate.

The following table was made up from reports of the climate and crop service of the weather bureau, and gives a general idea of the relative intensity of heat as indicated by the metallic thermometer:

SANTA FE SUMMER.

Were Santa Fe located in sight of St. Louis or Chicago, with its present elevation, residents of such place would behold a city more than a mile and a quarter skyward, above the hot, malarial, moisture-soaked earth, in a purer atmosphere, which all would seek. Should they behold the city where else is they would find a still cooler and purer atmosphere, where there is little moisture, a porous soil to drain away the rain that comes, and a precipitous descent for escape of the snow-fed streams and gorges in sight of the city. The records show that no other city in the same latitude possesses so cool a summer temperature as Santa Fe, where the average is 67 degrees and the change between night and day temperature too slight to be detrimental to health. Thanks to elevation, to wooded mountains far southward, and shelter from the hot winds of Arizona that are warded off by the rising series of mountain ranges between Santa Fe and the sandy, lower levels of desert, this city is the coolest south of the upper lake region. It is far cooler than Denver, has thermometer readings about as low as San Diego, and is free from the humid heat of the coast.

THE WINTER SEASON.
One who has not seen the lay of the land might think that an elevated place having so delightful a summer climate would have a severe winter. Yet this is not true. The winter temperature is not so low as in the lower Ohio valley, and is free from moisture, there being less of cloudy weather in winter than in summer. To the north, the great mountains of Colorado receive the greatest snowfall, and break the force of northern winds; other mountains closer stand guard to shelter the Santa Fe valley, which lies at their feet. To the east a range keeps out the cold northerly winds that rush southward to Texas. Westward also, nature has interposed barriers to shield New Mexico from gales.

and when a wind finds its way up the winding Rio Grande, Santa Fe receives but the feather edge of the blow.

NEW MEXICO SANITARIUMS.
Sunny, bright days mark the winter season, which, until Christmas at least, is quite as delightful as the glorious summer, though crisp and cool. Even the spring months in Santa Fe cannot be equaled for mildness in any eastern state. While hundreds of tourists visit the city in summer and make a more or less protracted stay, the number who come to remain permanently for the curative effect upon tuberculous diseases is all the while increasing. The proportion of the latter will be undoubtedly enlarged in consequence of the endorsement given New Mexico's climate by the United States marine hospital service, which has in 1898 established two permanent sanitariums in the territory, and will maintain them as homes for soldiers and sailors afflicted or threatened with tubercular troubles. Many years of life at New Mexico army posts and a careful examination by experts led the authorities to take this action in the interest of military invalids, and it is also intended to remove to New Mexico consumptive inmates of soldiers' homes in California and eastern states.

Favorable conditions exist all over New Mexico for restoration to health or for improving the condition of such sufferers; a dry, aseptic air, light atmosphere, a pressure, well drained soil, a minimum of cold and heat, the absence of great changes in temperature and a maximum of sunshine.

SUNSHINE RECORDS.
As to the latter point, the latest figures available from the government records are those of 1897, the year book of 1898 having not yet been published. The summer of 1897, as it happened, was unusually cloudy and rainy at Santa Fe, yet the superiority of this city in the matter of days that were sunny throughout, can be seen by a few comparisons with places in various parts of the country.

Note.—The minus sign (-) used before figures above indicates below zero.

This table shows that in the year 1897 only El Paso had more sunshine than Santa Fe, but that Texas city has much hotter summers and almost as great an extreme of cold, with an excessive amount of wind in the winter. The government records do not show that any place in the United States exceeds Santa Fe in sunshine, year in and year out, the average number of hours of sunshine daily in a period of five years being seven hours and forty-five minutes, which is just about right for variety, comfort and health.

A favorable point in comparison with the east is that the most sunshine here is in the fall and winter, November leading, while in the east the sun is more in evidence in the summer months, when it is sometimes neither wanted nor needed.

Poison In Potatoes.

The public is becoming excited over the statement recently made that potatoes contain a poison called solanine. It is announced that new potatoes contain much less than old ones, but those who have commenced to sprout are quite dangerous. This may be true, but it seems odd that people have lived and thrived for centuries upon them and that their danger has just been discovered. It is safe to assert that anyone with whom potatoes do not agree has stomach trouble, and anyone who has indigestion, dyspepsia, constipation, biliousness, or liver and kidney weakness needs Hostetter's Stomach Bitters at once. This medicine does more than promise, it cures. Avoid substitutes and insist upon having the genuine. Try it.

Once More Unfortunate.

My latest love affair, sighed the girl in the pale blue taffeta shirt waist, was a disappointment. Tell me all about it, said the other girl, snuggling up to her. I'll never breathe a word of it to anybody. It was a love of a bonnet. I couldn't afford it.

A NIGHT OF TERROR.

"Awful anxiety was felt for the widow of the brave General Burnham, of Machias, Me., when the doctors said she could not live till morning," writes Mrs. S. H. Lincoln, who attended her that fearful night. "All thought she must soon die from pneumonia, but she begged for Dr. King's New Discovery, saying it had more than once saved her life, and had cured her of Consumption. After three small doses she slept easily all night, and its further use completely cured her." This marvelous medicine is guaranteed to cure all Throat, Chest and Lung Diseases. Only 50c and $1.00. COLD STEEL OR DEATH.

"There is but one small chance to save your life, and that is through an operation," was the awful prospect set before Mrs. I. B. Hunt, of Lime Ridge, Wis., by her doctor after vainly trying to cure her of a frightful case of stomach trouble and yellow jaundice. He didn't count on the marvelous power of Electric Bitters to cure Stomach and Liver troubles, but she heard of it, took seven bottles, was wholly cured, avoided surgeon's knife, now weighs more and feels better than ever. It's positively guaranteed to cure Stomach, Liver and Kidney troubles, and never disappoints. Price 50c at Fischer & Co.'s drug store.

Despite manifold contradictions it is common to hear people say that women possess no subtle wit.
Mary, remarked Adeline, I am sorry to see you using hair dye. Do you not know that hair dye affects the eyes?
Why, Adeline, dear, that's just what I am using it for.
Even if woman has no subtle wit, she has a great deal of intuition, and that is of itself a great benefit.

It must be a source of great satisfaction to you, remarked the millionaire's friend, to be able to give these large sums to struggling institutions of learning.
You notice, replied the millionaire, my gifts are generally made on condition that the beneficiaries raise an equal sum within a certain time.
Yes.
Well, I think I got more satisfaction from seeing the managers skin around after this money than I do from anything else.—Chicago Tribune.

"After suffering from piles for fifteen years I was cured by using two boxes of DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve," writes W. J. Baxter, North Brook, N. C. It heals everything. Beware of counterfeits. Ireland's Pharmacy.

Japanese Wit.

A tale of Japanese wit has been revived in Paris in connection with the present visit of Japanese Ambassadors. A Japanese Embassy had come to Paris to arrange for three free ports to be opened in France and Japan respectively. The French selected Yokohama, Yeddo and Han-Yang. The Japanese at once suggested Havre, Marseilles and Southampton. But Southampton, said the Frenchman, with a burst of undiplomatic laughter is in England, you must know. Yes, said the Japanese, and Han-Yang is in Corea.—London Globe.

And I was Cousin John!

I'd like to have a colt to ride
And lams 'n' things to pet.
With apples in the cellar,
And drink milk that's 'scumin' yet;
I'd like to live where I could whoop
Around with all my might
And never have to be afraid
A cop would come in sight.

It's jolly sitting in the sled
When uncle drives to town,
And lets the horses walk up hill
And makes them gallop down!
It's jolly getting out behind
Sometimes, and hanging on—
I wish my Cousin John was me
And I was Cousin John!

JOHNNY VISITING IN THE CITY.
I wish 'at I lived here, where things
Are all set at the door.
And where you see so many sights
You never saw before;
I'd like to ride in nice, warm cars
That whiz along the street,
Instead of in a bobbed, where
You nearly freeze your feet.

They never have no wood to chop,
Nor cows nor sheep to tend;
They never have to carry slop
To where the pigs are penned;
They never carry water from
A well that's far away.
Nor every night and morning feed
The stock a ton of hay.

They never have no cows to milk,
Nor other chores to do,
And every time they turn around
They look at something new;
There's ways lots that's going on,
The streets are ever full;
I wish that Cousin Will was me,
And I was Cousin Will!

She Did Not Care

By Morris Gerard.

SIR ROBERT HARRINGHAM sat adding up accounts at the library table of his luxurious flat in Maddox square. The handle of the door turned and John Freville entered, unannounced.

The two men were in sharp contrast—Harringham, cool, phlegmatic, cynical, with the blue eyes, fair hair and beard of the Saxon; Freville, dark, impetuous, full-blooded, generous, quixotic—a veritable Celt. Their friendship was the alliance of negations, secured by the cement of antithesis.

"How long is it? Eighteen months?"
"Two years to the day."
"So long!"
"It seems to me an eternity, but the calendar is rigid. It neither measures sentiment nor registers feelings."
"I never quite knew why you went away. Try those Manilas, the brand is unexceptionable."

Freville took a cigar and lighted it mechanically.
"I expect you will be less understanding why I have come back."
"Then I shall not try. If the cause is obscure the result is satisfactory, which cannot be said of the other inexplicable spring of your movements."

Had Harringham asked for a solution Freville would probably not have given it. Unasked, he proffered it. That is why truth is rarely disclosed in the witness box, evidence being a playful game of question and evasion.

"I heard three words—accidentally."
"And you went away for two years. That seems to lack symmetry. It ought to have been a year a word, or nothing."
Harringham was quizzing; but his friend was not listening. Freville was talking because he couldn't help himself. He had been silent too long to trouble himself as to the attitude of his listener.

"You know how I cared for Di Lestrangle?"
"Most people did. You made no secret of it."
"She had always seemed specially kind—to care for me. I had never said anything; nor, of course, she to me. But there is a light in a woman's eye—sometimes!"

"I know; a dangerous light, like a will-of-the-wisp."
"So it was in my case. I found it out at the Leigham ball. Di and Alec Travers were in a recess together. Before I knew who it was, or, in fact, that any one was there—I had only just come up—I heard Di say: 'You need not think that I care for Freville.'"

"That was more than three words," interjected Harringham.
"I never slept that night. Next day I left England."
"For the Arctic regions, to cool your heated blood?"
Freville did not look exactly as if the remedy had been efficacious.

A runaway horse, attached to a smart brougham, in Regent street; people scattering in all directions, women fainting and shrieking, men chivalrously retreating into doorways.
A little figure steps off the curb and seizes the frightened brute by the bridle. They sway to and fro, while the brougham gyrates on its axis and threatens every moment to topple over. Two terrified women, blanched with terror, look out breathlessly at the unequal struggle being waged on their behalf.

The man alights. He will fall. No, he won't! He is firm on his legs again. He holds on like grim death and the horse is forced back. The modern dress does not lend itself to heroics; but there is a certain heroism, nevertheless, in the tense figure. A policeman runs up; then another. The horse yields to superior numbers. Freville lets go the bridle as soon as his hand is no longer required. His face is flushed and an angry wait across his right wrist is the outward sign of a strained muscle.

A girl jumps from the brougham almost into his arms. It is Di Lestrangle—or it was two years ago.

"We can never thank you enough, Mr. Freville—mother and I—you have saved our lives. I must go back to her. She is feeling faint. Won't you come and see us—to-night—at nine o'clock? Then we can hear of your return, and thank you."

Freville had hardly taken in what Miss Lestrangle was saying. The excitement of the struggle, the surprise of the meeting, so sudden and unexpected, the old glamour reawakened—stronger than ever.

"Where?" Freville managed to stammer.

"In the old place, 19 Curzon street—where else should you think?"

Diana was recovering her composure. Freville gazed at the girl half incredulously.

"Still in Curzon street—you?"

"Why, where else?"

"I thought you were—"

"Well?"

"Married."

Di laughed.

"You say it as if you meant 'buried' to whom, pray?"

"To Alec Travers."

"Alec Travers! The last man! Why, I never thought of him in my life. Now I must go. But we shall expect you at nine."

Mrs. Lestrangle was too much upset by the adventure of the afternoon to appear at dinner or to receive their visitor afterward, much as she wished to do so. To Diana she entrusted the giving of her message of gratitude. Diana, in a simple evening gown of white, was sitting in the little boudoir off the conservatory when Freville was announced.

"Mother is too ill to come downstairs to-night. She will thank you herself another day; I cannot thank you enough. We owe our lives to you. I shudder now when I think of that awful race from Piccadilly Circus." Then the girl broke off.

"But tell me why you thought I was married; and to Alec Travers, of all people!"

Freville looked confused. He had only just dropped Diana's hand.

For a minute he did not reply. Diana Lestrangle was not going to be put off. She recognized the fact that the reason of something she had felt more than anything which had ever happened to her was near the surface. She meant to know what it was.

Freville was looking at her. How he admired the fine curves of her throat, the delicate tracery of her eyebrows, the soft, inviting languor of her eyes, those magnificent coils of auburn hair. Possibly his eyes were eloquent of his impressions. His speech was lame and halting enough.

"I have been away two years."

"I know that."

"I went away after the Leigham ball—do you remember it?"

Di did not answer. She could not say enough without saying too much.

Freville went on: "I heard you say something that night—I did not mean to—until you spoke—I did not know you were there; you were in a recess on the landing at the top of the stairs, behind some yellow drapery; I can see it all now just as vividly as I could then."

"Well?"

"You said: 'You need not think I care about Freville.' I thought, of course, Travers had been pressing you about me."

Diana looked puzzled. After awhile she said:

"So that was why you went away."

"That was why I went away," said Freville, simply.

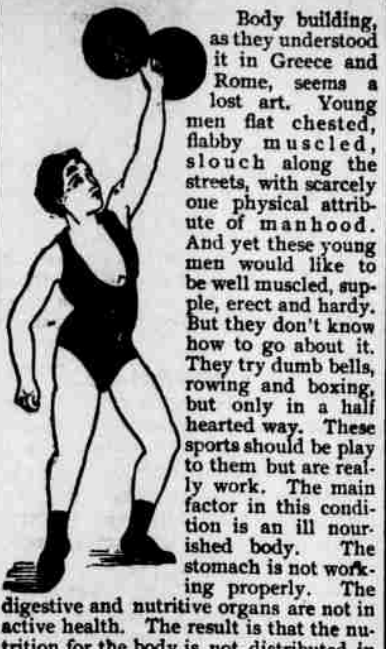

Diana walked across the room to an escritoire and took out a bundle of papers. She had a curious habit of keeping the cards of her engagements, as a sort of informal social diary.

Just two years ago! Yes; there it was! Lady Gallant: at home, four to six; and in the corner, Mr. Henry Neville.

Diana handed the card to Freville without a word, just indicating the date with her forefinger. It was that on which he had started, the day after the ball.

"Music is a closed book to you," she said, quietly. "But in those days we music lovers were divided into two camps, Nevilleites and anti-Nevilleites. Neither I nor Alec Travers 'cared' for Henry Neville's playing. It was the only tie between us."

Diana looked into his eyes, and the smile about her lips deepened perceptibly as she added: "Neville is a very like Freville, is it not, especially round the corner of 'some yellow drapery'?"—Gentlewoman.

Body building, as they understood it in Greece and Rome, seems a most art. Young men, flat chested, flabby muscled, slouch along the streets, with scarcely one physical attribute of manhood. And yet these young men would like to be well muscled, supple, erect and hardy. But they don't know how to go about it. They try dumb bells, rowing and boxing, but only in a half hearted way. These sports should be played to them but are really work. The main factor in this condition is an ill nourished body. The stomach is not working properly. The digestive and nutritive organs are not in active health. The result is that the nutrition for the body is not distributed in proper proportions to make blood, bone and muscle.

Weak young men who take a course of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will find a marked change in their physical strength and energy. The body will be built up so that gymnastics will not tax and tire them, but be the natural exercise enjoyed by muscles which are nourished into firm health.

In a letter received from D. Weller, Esq., of Pensacola, Escambia Co., Fla. (Box 544), he states: "I have since receiving your diagnosis of my case as stomach trouble and liver complaint, taken eight bottles of the 'Golden Medical Discovery' and must say that I am transformed from a walking shadow (as my friends called me) to perfect health. I value your remedy very highly and take pleasure in recommending it to any and every one who suffers as I did. Four months ago I did not think to be in shape to assist our 'Uncle Samuel' in case of hostilities, but thanks to you, I am now ready for the 'Don's.'"

Her Motto.

The members of a Bible class in a New England parish were studying at St. Paul's rules for Christian living, set forth in the twelfth chapter of Romans.

Among the questions asked by the leader of the class was, "What motto should be adopted when strangers are to be entertained?"

The proper answer, of course, and the one given by all the members of the class, with one exception, was: "Given to hospitality."

In this class, however, there was one young person who held a different idea; this was the minister's daughter, who since she was fifteen years old, had been the head of his house and the manager of many a difficult meal.

I don't agree with the others, she said firmly. I think very often the motto should be: Patient in tribulation.—Youth's Companion.

AUGUST FLOWER.

"It is a surprising fact," says Prof. Houton, "that in my travels in all parts of the world, for the last ten years, I have met more people having used Green's August Flower than any other remedy, for dyspepsia, deranged liver and stomach, and for constipation. I find for tourists and salesmen, or for persons filling office positions, where headaches and general bad feelings from irregular habits exist, that Green's August Flower is a grand remedy. It does not injure the system by frequent use, and is excellent for sour stomachs and indigestion." Sample bottles free at Ireland's Drug Store. Sold by dealers in all civilized countries.

His Exact Words.

Housekeeper—How's this? You promised to saw some wood if I gave you a lunch?

Tramp—I recall no such promise, madam.

The Ideal. I told you I'd give you a lunch if you saw some wood, and you agreed.

Pardon me madam. Your exact words were: 'I'll give you a lunch if you saw that wood over there by the garage.'

Exactly. That's just what I said.

Well madam, I saw that wood over there by the gate, as I came in.—New York Weekly.

Something Up Her Sleeve.

Madge said she would marry me if Maud went to Paris.

What's the idea?

Well, she said she would then be prepared to cope with Maud when she came home bragging about her trip.—Chicago Record.

BEWARE OF A COUGH.

A cough is not a disease, but a symptom. Consumption and bronchitis, which are the most dangerous and fatal diseases, have for their first indication a persistent cough, and if properly treated as soon as this cough appears are easily cured. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has proven wonderfully successful, and gained its wide reputation and extensive sale by its success in curing the diseases which cause coughing. It is not beneficial if it will not cost you a cent. For sale by Ireland's Pharmacy.

WINE OF CARDUI

A LITTLE DOES MUCH.

Boons, Iowa, Dec. 14.
No tongue can tell what I have endured in the past ten years with my monthly sickness. While suffering untold agony, a friend called and recommended Wine of Cardui. I sent for a bottle, and Oh! what relief. After the first dose I began to feel better and have had no pain since.
MRS. GRACE LAMPHIRE.

Wine of Cardui not only cures but it acts AT ONCE. Here is a case of ten years' standing, and yet one single dose made the sufferer feel better, and stopped the pain. The Wine goes straight to the seat of the trouble, and it does not force a result. It simply gives Nature that little assistance that the sufferer's system lacks. A single disorder in the feminine organs spreads many disorders all over the body, and when the Wine cures the source, all the other ills vanish as a matter of course. A woman can be her own physician and cure herself at home. Local examinations are largely things of the past—the obnoxious custom is no longer necessary. Wine of Cardui is the only perfectly safe and sure vegetable Wine made to-day for the cure of "female troubles".

PROSPECTOR'S DREAM.
Plans of a Santa Fe Canon Miner "When the Calico Pans Out."
The Monument Rock region in the picturesque Santa Fe canon, where the clear and sparkling rio flows its swiftest between sodded banks of the greenest sward, hemmed in by towering snow-clad peaks, whose rugged slopes are clad in a deep foliage with wild flowers all about; where the meek-eyed prospector pursues his hunt today for gold and the sound of pick and shovel uningles, echoes and re-echoes with that of cheery children gamboling on the green—who couldn't woo the muse in such a spot? One of the new mining claims located up there has been christened the "Calico," and the lucky owner feels justified in building air castles thus:
We'll all get gay on that bright day, And have a high old time, We'll do the work, with dizzy whirl, Through o'er the land and mine, Old Rome we'll see, and the "Paree" its boulevards throughout; And London's "kicks" and its renown, "When the Calico pans out."
Where Ramesses, in gorgeousness, Once ruled in princely style; Reared lofty "kicks" built by pyramids, Near by the sluggish Nile; The Holy land, with legends grand—All these we'll do, indeed more, too; On this old earth we've done, If worth a pin, to take it in— "When the Calico pans out."
And when each spot, both cold and hot, On this old earth we've done, We'll take a trip in our air-ship, Up to the fiery sun. Then visit Mars; the seven stars; And other worlds about; The nebulae moon, and old Neptune; "When the Calico pans out."
And Venus, queen, sweet and serene, We'll court with blandest smile; Ride fast and free, Milky Way, In proper Newport style. All other sports the hard now sings; And we've done throughout, We'll do and see, as sure's can be, "When the Calico pans out."

THE MEDICAL SOCIETY.
Santa Fe Should Make Preparations for Its Entertainment.
A meeting of the territorial board of health will be held in this city on June 5. The territorial medical society will meet the day following, June 6. The latter meeting will bring to the capital city all of the leading physicians of the territory and they will nearly all be accompanied by their families. This will be a good opportunity for Santa Fe to draw the attention of the medical profession to its advantages as a health and a summer resort. There should be a committee on entertainment appointed by the Woman's Board of Trade. A hall should be provided where the meetings of the society could be held. The visitors should be given a formal welcome and a drive around the city and its surroundings as well as a reception or banquet.
An invitation has been sent to every licensed physician of the territory, and there will doubtless be many other visitors drawn to the city at that time. This is a chance for Santa Fe to prove its hospitality and to make the entertainment of the physicians such a success that they will vote to come here again next year.

FIREMAN'S CONVENTION.
A Formal Call For Its Meeting In Santa Fe Will Be Issued.
A meeting of the board of fire commissioners was held last evening to take steps in regard to the convention and tournament of the New Mexico volunteer firemen to be held in this city July 3, 4 and 5. Letters were read from the Raton, East Las Vegas, Las Vegas, Albuquerque and Silver City departments favoring the convention and the board was ordered to issue a formal call, each department to be allowed three delegates and three alternates from each company as representatives, with the chief of the departments as ex-officio delegate. An executive committee consisting of Major Fred Muller, J. B. Sloan and A. M. Dettelbach was appointed to make all arrangements for the convention and tournament to be held in connection therewith. A finance committee consisting of Chief J. L. Van Arsdale, Assistant Chief Antonio Alarid, Foreman J. V. Conway and Sheriff H. C. Kinsell was appointed to solicit subscriptions.

COMPANY B.
It Has Been Reorganized—It Is Stationed In This City.
At a meeting held to reorganize Company B, of the New Mexico National Guard, there were enlisted 37 men. The following officers were elected: Captain, Jasper E. Ortiz; 1st lieutenant, John Shoemaker, 2d lieutenant, James B. Read, 1st sergeant, Juan B. Sandoval, 1st duty sergeant, Thomas Dofflemeyer. Thirty-two members of old Company B re-enlisted. The company will meet for drill work every Thursday evening at 8 o'clock.

Gov. L. B. Prince and the historical society, Dr. Coburn returns to his church duties at Denver, and others of the party will proceed to investigate the cliff dwellers ruins near Espanola.
THE ENCHANTED MESA.
As to the Mesa Encantada, the "enchanted mesa" of the Acoma Indians, about which cluster volumes of legendary story—in the minds of the Indians—this is the third exploring party that has ever scaled its walls and reached its flat-top surface. It stands out on the open sandy plain near Acoma pueblo, 500 feet high, and its surface area is about twenty acres. At the point east of access the vertical walls in a narrow cut are 300 feet high. Here are footprint marks in the walls, which only an Indian can mount. They sent an Indian up with a rope, and made a rope ladder, which carried them up and down safely. They spent an hour or two on the top of the mesa, but found no evidences whatever that the place had ever been inhabited. Dr. Coburn found a small piece of very ancient pottery there. The romantic stories of the spot probably originated from the fact that here, for generations past, the Indian medicine man has been wont to climb and remain in seclusion, in order to mystify his subjects.
RESEARCH TO BE CONTINUED.
During this trip but little was found to throw light upon the main subject of the expedition's research—that of fixing, if possible, the age of these southwestern ruins. Dr. Coburn is convinced that they are much older than he at first thought, and will follow up his researches to ascertain just how old they are. The lava beds near McCarty station and probably the Gila river and Tularosa sections, in western Socorro county, will be examined with this end in view. What they want to find is a ruin and evidences of human occupation under the lava flow. They have heard of these, but have as yet been unable to locate them. Professor Cutler says there are evidences of two distinct lava flows, and he thinks they occurred in the past Tertiary period, but scientific investigation has yet to determine this, and also the time that elapsed between the flows.

The Sanitary Still . . .

PURE WATER is the most essential requisite for health that enters into the system. Ninety per cent of our food is water. Distillation is the only method of rendering water free from both organic and inorganic matter. The Sanitary Still is a perfected process that clears water absolutely of every form of impurity, whether from alkali, lime or other minerals; removes free ammonia, ammonia albuminoids, chlorine or other injurious gases. It requires about the same space as a teakettle, but little time, very little trouble, and no experience to operate. The first cost is the only cost, and that is small enough to be real economy to users of distilled water. Sold under an absolute guarantee. Descriptive catalogue free. Local agents wanted.
