CLUB NEWS & EVENTS

Net Impact presents: “Super Size Me” on Thursday, October 25 at 6 pm in the Anderson Student Center. “Super Size Me” is the documentary of one man’s experience eating exclusively food from McDonald’s for a month while examining American fast-food culture through a series of interviews with experts and ordinary consumers. Everyone is invited, but the ethical challenge the film presents to leading fast-food corporations should be of particular interest to students of business ethics, and the damage it does to the McDonald’s brand should hit home with marketing majors. Free refreshments will be provided courtesy of the Association of Graduate Business Students. Write or phone with questions: lucie_wang@yahoo.com, 974-6876.

ANDERSON CAREER SERVICES

Career Tip of the Week:
When you talk to recruiters, always emphasize skills that are important and relevant to them. Try showcasing a combination of the ones listed below. These are the top five “most desirable attributes of business students:*
1. Communication and interpersonal skills
2. Ability to work well within a team
3. Personal ethics and integrity
4. Analytical and problem-solving skills
5. Work ethic

Public Service Career Showcase
Thursday, October 25, 9 am - 3 pm in the SUB Ballroom. View details and participating agencies at http://www.career.unm.edu/students/career_fairs.php.

FAST INFO

Have a question? Ask it at http://fastinfo.unm.edu and we’ll try our best to answer it here.

Question: What do I do if my degree audit is incorrect? I got an email saying that a new progress report was available, but when I checked it, it said I was missing a lot of classes. What can I do to fix it?

Answer: Don’t let your degree audit cause you to panic. It may not recognize that Anderson has accepted a course that is an exception to a particular pre-admission requirement; this is an easy issue to resolve once you apply to graduate. If your ACT or SAT scores placed you directly into Calculus, it may say that you are missing MATH 121 or 150, but you don’t need to go back and take algebra. It may count certain MGMT 490 topics courses only as free electives, so it could show that you’re missing concentration courses. While the audit can be a helpful tool to keep you track, it’s always best to check in with your advisor for clarification.
Representatives from student organizations around Anderson attended the Dean’s Student Advisory Council Breakfast on October 16. Above are pictures of representatives from each of the organizations that attended. All pictures were submitted by Dr. Jeanne Logsdon.
