you a terrible threshing the first time and maybe the second time if you have done any bad things or have anything wrong inside you. But after a few times it makes you strong—it doesn’t treat you so badly but it makes you clean and strong.”

NECROLOGY

Earl of Crawford and Balcarres. March 8. Aged 68. Chairman of the British School of Archaeology in Rome. Trustee, British Museum. Haddon, Alfred C., Dr. April 20. 84 years old. Anthropologist and Ethnologist. Formerly President of Royal Anthropological Institute.

Smith, Reginald A. Born 1874, died Jan. 13, 1940. Compiled guides to the archaeological collections of the British Museum.

Smolenski, Jerzy. Polish geographer. Died either in a concentration camp or shortly after his release from one.

From August 3 to 31 the University of New Mexico will conduct its annual Field Sessions in Anthropology in the Jemez and Chaco Canyons, New Mexico. Permanent buildings have been completed for the General Session encampment at Battleship Rock, near Jemez Springs, where practical field experience in archaeology and geology is offered undergraduate students. The Advanced Session will be held at the Chaco Canyon Research Station; this is devoted primarily to graduate instruction and fieldwork in archaeology, anthropogeography, biology, paleontology and ethnography.
