1-28-2011

And There Is a Man

Tim. Dlugos

Alan Stringer

Follow this and additional works at: https://digitalrepository.unm.edu/nm_composer_archive

Recommended Citation
For the New Mexico Gay Men's Chorus

And There Is a Man

based on the poem, "Daylight," by Tim Dlugos used with permission

Adagio, somewhat freely
There are people and there is a man. His face cuts through our eyelids like smokey light.

There are people and there is a man. His face cuts through our eyelids like smokey light.

There are people and there is a man. His face cuts through our eyelids like smokey light.
ever we speak, we are secretly talking to him.

f I shall be able to write great books when I see him, you will be able to pay your bills. He will make us woozy with his smoky love.

smoky love.

smoky love.
When we are watching each other, we remember these things. We go home alone or together with... wandering eyes. There are kisses and wandering eyes. There are kisses and there is a kiss. It lives among our rumors like the

there is a kiss. It lives among our rumors like the

there is a kiss. It lives among our rumors like the family dog. We open our eyes and it's daylight, just as family dog. We open our eyes and it's daylight, just as we expected.

we expected.

we expected.

- 7 -