SPECIAL MUSIC BY E. S. SEDER AT VESPER

Three Original Selections, the Work of Varsity Musician, Make the Programme Notable.

One of the most interesting Vesper services of the year was held Sunday afternoon. It was a double affair, there being E. Stanley Seder with his newly-composed music, together with Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Andrews, Mr. Christian and Mr. Everitt; as well as Reverend Edward P. Schueler, the speaker.

Seder's Music.

After the opening hymn, Mr. and Mrs. Andrews rendered "Once Again as Evening Shadows Fall" by Seder. Then following the responsive readings, Mr. Christian sang the solo "The Son of God Goes Forth to War," written and accompanied by Seder. The Offertory solo was Stanley Seder's music to "Crossing the Bar." This was rendered by a male quartette composed of Mr. E. Stanley Seder, Mr. Charles J. Andrews, Mr. Christian and Mr. Everitt. This was sung unaccompanied and was most impressive.

Genius Shown.

In all of these pieces the characteristic genius of Seder in the composition of such music was quite marked. The fact that the hall was crowded to its fullest capacity was an evidence of Mr. Seder's reputation.

Remarkable Record.

Besides carrying on his college course, Mr. Seder, the composer of the vocal numbers on the programme, has done a large amount of musical work in Albuquerque and the Southwest, as is evidenced by the fact that he has been for some years organist of the Congregational Church and Temple Albert here, and accompanist of the Albuquerque Choral Society, and responsible for a large share of the success of the recent concert of that society. His work as pianist with the U. N. M. Entertainers on tours to Kansas City and Los Angeles several years ago was favorably noted at that time. He has appeared before the Mountainair Chautauqua, and was called on to give the dedicatory recital on the new organ in the Scottish Rite Cathedral at Santa Fe, where the University choir concert will be given shortly, while his services as pianist and accompanist have been in demand for numerous concerts by the University and local artists.

Splendid Address.

The address given by Reverend Schueler was one of the most interesting ever heard that year. Space does not permit us to write the speech, but suffice it to say that the whole audience was very interested in every thing Reverend Schueler had to say and there were many complimentary remarks of it at the close of the services.

Y. W. C. A. SOCIAL.

All the Varsity girls are very cordially invited to be present at the social that is to be given by the Y. W. C. A., in the Gymnasium, on Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Varsity Celebrates Arbor Day in Rousing, Good Fashion

ADDRESS BY HON. THEODORE S. WOOLSEY, OF THE FORESTRY DIVISION DELIVERED IN THE MORNING, AT RODEY HALL, AND FACULTY-SENIOR-JUNIOR GAME IS IN AFTERNOON.

SENIORS AND JUNIORS "PUT ONE OVER" PROFESSORS

After Famous Ball Game, Everyone Gets Ready, and Goes to Amphitheatre, Where, Before a Rousing Bonfire, Weiners and Marshmallows Are Toasted, Coffee and Sandwiches Devoured, Lies Swapped, Various "Stunts" Pulled Off, and All Make Merry; Next, the Formal Opening of the New Gymnasium Is Celebrated With Dance and the Great Day Comes to End.

Arbor Day at the University was certainly celebrated in the correct style. First, in the morning, at Rodey Hall, an address was delivered by Honorable Theodore S. Woolsey, Jr., who spoke on "What the Forestry Service Is Doing." In his talk, Mr. Woolsey discussed the various methods employed by the Forestry Service in taking care of the trees throughout the country.

Value of Trees.

Mr. Woolsey then went on to explain the value of trees to a country. He showed how erosion was affected to a great extent by the forests, and also, how the presence of trees influenced the climate and healthfulness of a place. Trees were being planted in the Alps, in Europe, and in practically all mountainous places, he declared, where their effect on the prevention of avalanches was well known and advantage thereby taken of it.

Influence on People.

Mr. Woolsey also stated that in some manner or other, the life, culture and civilization of the people was influenced by the forests in the vicinity or country, and cited as examples, the various countries of Europe; the progressive ones were those which were taking care of and conserving their forests, while the backward ones seemed to be those which were careless in this regard, and allowed their forests to be destroyed and devastated.

Game in Afternoon.

In the afternoon, beginning promptly at 2:30 sharp, began the famous annual game between the Faculty of the University, and the members of the Junior and Senior Classes.

Adelaide as "Umps".

Miss Adelaide Shields, the popular and well-known vice-president of the Sub-Freshman Division of the University, started off as Umpire. Adelaide made a very sweet and efficient "Umps", and her decisions were remarkable for their fairness, justness and firmness, and showed a deep, thorough and exhaustive knowledge of the Great American Game. However, after the fourth inning or thereabouts, Adelaide's voice began to go back on her, and Ray McCanna finished the job, he proving satisfactory to both sides, and his voice certainly lasting him throughout the remainder of the game.

The Great Games.

The game started with Profs. Hutchinson and Lembke as Faculty battery, and Messrs. Hall and Calkins for the Juniors and Seniors. In the first inning, due to poor team work, the Juniors and Seniors allowed the Faculty four runs, while they in their turn got only one. In the second inning, the Faculty annexed three more runs, while the Juniors and Seniors got two. The third inning was runless. In the fourth, the Faculty made three runs, and the Juniors and Seniors four, which made the score ten to six in favor of the "wise ones". At the beginning of the fifth inning, Higgins, Junior and Senior Captain, took the place of Hall as pitcher. The Faculty made two runs in this inning, while the Juniors and Seniors made none. In the sixth inning, the Juniors and Seniors got in three runs, making the score twelve to ten in favor of the Profs. In the seventh inning neither side scored. The eighth inning gave the Profs. one run, and the Juniors and Seniors four, making the score fourteen to thirteen in favor of the Juniors and Seniors. The ninth inning settled down to be a great pitchers' duel, between Hutchinson and Higgins; both succeeded in holding their opponents down, only one man on each team getting to first base, and at the close of the ninth inning, the Faculty having the last bat, and not scoring, the final result was: Faculty, 13; Juniors and Seniors, 14.

The line-up for the two teams was as follows:

Faculty.	Jrns.-Srs.
Hutchinson	P.....Hall, Higgins
Lembke	C.....Calkins
Barton	1B.....Harkness
Gruer	2B.....Leupold
Kirk	SS.....Higgins, Hall
Suydam	3B.....Singleton
Weese	RF.....Boldt
Bonnettee	CF.....Senaul
Mitchell	LF.....Emmons

The score by innings was as follows:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Faculty	4	3	0	3	2	0	0	1	0	—13
Jrs. Srs.	1	2	0	4	0	3	0	4	0	—14

Batteries: Faculty — Hutchinson and Lembke; Juniors-Seniors—Hall, Higgins, Calkins. Umpire—Adelaide, McCanna. Time — One hour, forty-four minutes, thirty-nine and nine-tenths seconds.

"Feed" at Amphitheatre.

The ball game over, everyone rested up and waited until nightfall, when all made for the amphitheatre, where a rousing bonfire was in progress. Seats, benches and boxes were piled all around for the benefit of the participants, and branches of trees taken, on which weiners were roasted (?) by the fire. Soon everyone was devouring the sandwiches, hot coffee, pickles, etc.

Amateur Theatricals.

After the "feed" amateur theatricals and musicales were the order; a

DR. MITCHELL ISSUES VALUABLE BULLETIN

Little Booklet, Giving Concise Information About Rhodes Scholarship, Just Off Press.

Of interest to all friends of education in general, and of the classics in particular, is the announcement that Professor Lynn B. Mitchell, Ph. D., Head of the Department of Latin and Greek at the University, has just issued a bulletin giving information on the Rhodes Scholarships.

Much Compilation.

The pamphlet is a compilation of the material contained in Dr. Parkin's book on the Rhodes Scholarships, and of the contents of several Memoranda sent out by The Rhodes Trust. The object of the pamphlet is to present to students some information on the Rhodes Scholarships, so as to induce them, if possible, to compete for this high honor.

Life of Rhodes.

The booklet contains a condensed life of Cecil John Rhodes, the founder of the Scholarships. It traces his life, from his birth, in Hertford County, England, July 5, 1853, down to his death. His early struggles, both for an education and good health, are recorded, and the idea which brought forth his dream of a great Anglo-Saxon Empire, and the consequent founding of the Rhodes Scholarships, are well and tersely told.

Motives of Scholarships.

The motives prompting these Scholarships may best be shown by the quotation from Mr. Rhodes, which runs as follows:

"Whereas, I consider the education of young Colonists at one of the Universities in the United Kingdom is of great advantage to them for giving breadth to their views, for their instruction in life and manners, and for instilling into their minds the advantages to the Colonies as well as to the United Kingdom of the retention of the unity of the Empire. And whereas in the case of young colonists studying at a University in the United Kingdom I attach very great importance to the University having a residential system such as is in force at the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge, for without it those students are at the most critical period of their lives left without any supervision.... And whereas I also desire to encourage war dance, to the music of a genuine Indian tom tom, played by Ira Boldt, furnished one of the main events of the evening, and songs by the whole "bunch" enlivened the scene until a little after eight o'clock, when most of the spectators and participants hid themselves to the gymnasium, which was well lighted up.

Dance Terminates All.

The gym floor was in perfect condition; the piano was all tuned up to perfection, and the various musical artists took turns at playing while the rest of the dancers made merry. This continued until a late hour, when finally everyone had to take a regretful departure, all feeling that they had had a mighty good time, and fittingly and well observed both the spirit, as well as the letter of the proper celebration of Arbor Day.

HAVING A GOOD TIME?

If it were not for the prospect of a good time, the advantages of a college education would lose half their charm. Girls are especially apt to emphasize this side of college life. But boys, too, devote large amounts of time and money to its pursuit.

As a matter of fact, if you are not having a good time here it is probably your own fault. And you are losing a valuable part of your college course as well. You can make your own good time if you will.

Too many people come here with the idea that to have a good time one must have money, leisure, lots of friends, and personal magnetism. But these are not necessary. You may be working your way through school with barely enough money to pay expenses, you may have to study hard every evening, you may come here an utter stranger, and yet have the best of good times; because after all it depends on your own state of mind, and if you have any capacity for happiness, you will find plenty of occasions for enjoyment. If you have not the capacity for happiness in little things, now is the time to develop it.

Leaving aside all formal occasions and celebrations, a college student should have no difficulty in finding every day opportunities for a good time. If you don't enjoy browsing in the library, or walking across the campus in the fragrant sunshine of a spring afternoon, or watching the play of light and shadow on the mountains; if you have no friends whose coming makes your heart lighter; if, apart from all these things, you can not be happy alone, you have not received from your college course what it should give you.

Two elements of happiness are within every one's reach. You can have friends if you show yourself friendly, and you can so enrich your mind that to you it is a kingdom. There are some people on this campus to whom we should like to say, "Come out of your shell. We want to know you." One year at the U. N. M. ought to be enough to make every one on the campus acquainted with every one else, and give each one a number of constant friends.

If, by the acquirement of these two elements, you can be happy with others, or happy by yourself, you will be sure to have a good time at the University.

DR. BERGMANN SPEAKS ON THE VALUE OF "DISCONTENT"

Speaks of Good of Gospel of Dissatisfaction, and Points Out Results Thereby Gained.

Tuesday morning, Dr. Moise Bergmann, Rabbi of the local Synagogue, Temple Albert, spoke to the student body and faculty on the value of the possession that has nearly always been considered a vice: discontent.

Show Results.

In a clear and logical manner, Dr. Bergmann pointed out how all, practically, of the improvements and benefits of mankind had been achieved by the few who had been dissatisfied and discontented with their lot and the condition of things in general.

Cites Examples.

He cited numberless examples, as Moses' discontent with the lot of the Children of Israel, and the consequent exodus from Egypt to the Promised Land. Also, in modern times, he mentioned the discontent with the old learning and order prevalent before the Renaissance, and the consequent revival of learning under Erasmus, Moore, etc.

Present Discontent.

Dr. Bergmann spoke of the discontent which exists at the present day: discontent with conditions of living, education, etc., and took the stand that here, as in the past, these conditions would work themselves out, and things be adjusted safely and satisfactorily.

Virtue to Vice.

The Rabbi called attention to the fact that every virtue, though good in itself, may be carried to the extreme, and result in vice. Modesty may degenerate into cowardice; bravery to foolhardiness; honesty, into stern cruelty, etc. This, discontent, to a certain degree, while valuable and leading to good results, may, if not guarded, lead to an utter disregard for the good things of the present, an overthrow of law and order, and anarchy. The speaker warned his listeners that they always try to keep within bounds in their discontent, and be sure that it is a good aim they are seeking for.

WISE AND OTHERWISE.

Where can a man buy a cap for his knee?

Or a key for a lock of his hair? Can his eyes be called an academy, because there are pupils there? In the crown of his head what gems are set?

Who travels the bridge of his nose? Can he use, when shingling the roof of his mouth?

The nails on the end of his toes? What does he raise from a slip of his tongue?

Who plays on the drums of his ears? And who can tell the cut and style, Of the coats his stomach wears? Can the crook of his elbow be sent to jail?

And if so, what did it do? How does he sharpen his shoulder blades?

I'll be hanged if I know, do you? —Exchange.

Silver Lining.

Father (severely): My son, this is a disgraceful state of affairs. The report says you are the last boy in the class of twenty-two.

Henry: It might have been worse, father.

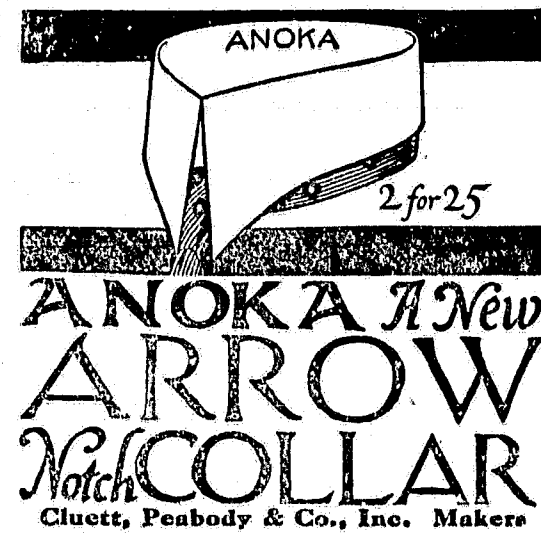

Father: I can't see how.

Henry: There might have been more boys in the class.—Ex.

MISS SEDER SPEAKS AT Y. W. C. A. DEVOTIONAL SERVICES

"The Power of Thought" Forcibly and Finely Brought to Attention of Girls of University in Good Lecture.

Thursday afternoon, the girls of the Y. W. C. A. enjoyed a short devotional service in Hokona Parlor, with Miss Florence M. Seder as leader. The meeting was opened with the Y. W. C. A. Hymn, followed by a short prayer.

Splendid Talk.

Miss Seder chose for her subject, "The Power of Thought," and illustrated it with a few very sweet and characteristic remarks, showing how powerful is the influence of our thoughts on our own lives, and on the lives of those with whom we come in contact. She also suggested that if the three-fold test, "Is it necessary? Is it kind? Is it true?" were applied to our thoughts of others before we gave them utterance, how many unkind and thoughtless things would be left unsaid!

"Trade Lasts" Commended.

Miss Seder also commended the system of giving and receiving "Trade Lasts," which is so prevalent amongst the feminine element on the Hill, and encouraged the practice of repeating friendly, complimentary remarks.

Now therefore I direct my Trustees, as soon as may be after my death and either simultaneously or gradually then in such order as they shall see fit, to establish for male students the Scholarships hereinafter directed to be established, each of which shall be of the yearly value of 300 pounds and be tenable at any College of the University of Oxford for the consecutive Academic years."

Description of Oxford.

The description of Oxford University, the studies and the life and customs surrounding English College life, are of especial interest, as contrasted with American College life.

The Examinations.

The different subjects given in the examination for the Rhodes Scholarship are explained at length, as well as the qualifications the candidate must possess to be eligible for a Scholarship. The circumstances under which candidates from New Mexico may be eligible, is set forth clearly and conclusively, and this renders the pamphlet extremely valuable for New Mexicans in general.

Copy of Bulletin.

Anyone desiring a copy of the Bulletin, may obtain same, free of charge, by writing to the University Librarian, Albuquerque, N. M. President David Ross Boyd, or Dr. Lynn B. Mitchell will be glad to give further information on the Rhodes Scholarships, or advise candidates as they proceed in their preparation for the examinations.

AT THE RANCHO GONZALES.

Yes, a woman's traceable for lots o' things,
'Twas only for a woman young Fitz-Hugh—

Mary Stuart's only cousin, friend of princes by the dozen—

Went from bad to worse, and finally went clear thru,

All for a little peach down in La-grame.

And I passed old Sanchez' broncho as I came,
Tied yonder to the cemetery post.

It's only for a woman that he's there.

Poor Sanchez never'd marry twice, like most!

And 'twas only for a woman my pard Nelse

Went grievin' in Socorro town one night!

We was rollin' glasses over, like two steers in knee-deep clover

When Nelse pulled out his gun an' pinked the light.

The bar-keep's wife, she chased us out o' sight!

An' 'twas only for a woman joshin' Nelse

Wore a black eye and a broken shoulder-blade.

Just a woman—but he called her somethin' else!

And 'twas only for a woman Long-horn Pete—

Drunk, faro-bucker, hop-head—Lord knows what—

Fought an' fought his longin's hazy, tho it well-nigh turned him crazy

An' now goes most all year without a shot!

An' when you see him with his little tot,

An' what a woman done with such a cuss,

It makes you think perhaps the Only One

Might do as well with any one of us!

And its only for a woman that I'm here,

Where the hacienda porch is archin' low.

Where Dolores' eyes are dancin'; in the moonlight softly glancin',

And I wonder if she'll shake me—tell me no?

What's that you say, mi dulce? Whisper low—

Would she have a fresh young gringo? Ah, things even,

With your arms around my neck, my girl, I know,

It's only for a woman, but—it's Heaven!
